Senator Flanders -- who introduced the original motion to censure Senator McCarthy -- thinks this select committee is an excellent one. But, Flanders said: "No committee, however judicial, however high in integrity, is the keeper of my conscience." Senator Knowland described the committee as "one before which he would be willing to go on trial for his life."

The attorney for Annie Lee Moss -- the suspended Army Signal Corps employee -- says tonight that she has been barred from her job because of a report that she received Communist Party Membership book 37269 for the year 1943. Mrs. Moss is reported as saying she never say the book mentioned in these new charges against her.

The Senate is still debating the Administration's Farm bill. The Administration wants flexible support prices but strong farm-state opposition has developed. At least 20 Senators have indicated a desire to make speeches on the issue.

Elsewhere in Washington, the Senate Finance Committee today approved a temporary 6-billion dollar increase in the National Debt limit. The increase would remain in effect until June 30th of next year.

And, President Eisenhower has issued an order designed to speed up the handling of cases where Government employees are suspected of being major security risks. The Presidential order directs the civil service commission to work with the National Security Council on the project whihc is also expected to result in a tighter check on suspected security cases.

Chariman Lewis Strauss of the Atomic Energy Committee told the Veterans of Foreign Wars today that the United States has "an overwhelming superiority in atomic weapons and Strauss hopes "we may continue to be ahead until such time as all nations agree to workable international control."

Federal Mediation efforts to head off a strike by atomic production workers at Oak Ridge, Tennessee and Paducah, Kentucky, have collapsed. A new walk-out over wages is expected. No date has been announced as yet.

And Air Force Secretary Talbott has announced that the nation's first jet transport plane -- the Boeing 7-0-7 -- has been ordered into production for use as a flying gasoline tanker for our jet bombers.

Communist China today rejected categorically the second United States protest over the shooting down of that British airliner off Hainan Island. Six Americans were killed or wounded in that incident. The Chinese Reds say the United States is trying to "entangle the case of the airliner unwarrantedly."

And Washington is reported to have sent a stiff note of protest to South Korea over recent incidents involving the neutral nations truce supervisory teams. Members of these teams -- particularly from Poland and Czechoslovakia -- have been threatened and attacked in recent weeks. And South Korean police authorities have been talking about arresting some of them for alleged espionage. The State Department note is believed to warn the South Koreans against any hostile acts toward the truce teams.

Australia's Prime Minister Menzies told his Parliament today that Australia would join and contribute men and equipment to a Southeast Asian defense organization. Menzies acknowledged that traditionally, his country does not make advance committments of a military nature. But he added: "it is now clear that should the communists attack, the first few weeks of a new war will determine the issue." Menzies concluded: "We must, therefore, defend the geographical frontiers of those nations whose self-government is based upon the spirit of freedom."

In Indo China, the French High command has announced that 20 Viet Namese were killed in a riot over the truce agreement. The mob attacked Viet Namese troops who were forced to open fire. Many persons are reported to have been wounded.

In Morocco, French authorities say 5 arabs have been killed and five others wounded in the past 24 hours in fighting between Arabs and Berber tribesmen. The French Resident General of Morocco is flying to Paris for emergency consultations with Premier Mendes-France.

The Anglo-Iranian oil dispute has been settled with the signing of an agreement between 8 world-wide oil companies and the Iranian government. The private companies will operate the Iranian oil fields and expect to have oil flowing again in two or three months.

Five thousand Germans rioted in Bremerhaven today against an announced plan by American authorities to requisition 29 homes for military purposes. German police and Bremerhave tax assessors were driven from the area by housewives using pitchforks and by a huge mob of dock-workers.

Here at home -- two very "hot" items -- one is political: The torrid primary fight in Tennessee for the Democratic Senatorial nomination. Incumbent Senator Estes Kefauver is battling his strong challenger, Representative Pat Sutton. Polls in rural districts are closed by so far, no conclusive results are available.

The other "hot" item: -- a multi-million dollar fire in the American Distilling Company in Pekin, Illinois. Exploding alchohol has kept the blaze going for more than 36 hours. It is still burning -- feeding on some 90-110-thousand gallons of bourbon whiskey. Six persons are known dead and two are missing. Thirty-three persons are injured. Police say intense heat may touch off another 300-thousand gallons of alchohol before the fire is brought under control.

And, the Michigan State Health Laboratories have developed what is described as the first known cure for typhoid fever. The treatment involves an anti-biotic and has been successfully used to cure 16 persons in the past two months.

Those are today's main news items...Now a few words on another situation...
And this is serious -- no japes at Christian Dior today.

In the last five years there has not been a day when the possibility of a third world war has not shadowed our world. Sometimes the possibility has become quite imminent as at time in Korea and Indo-China...Experts have given much thought as to the kind of situation which would bring another war about. It could come from some utterly unforeseen occurrence -- a border incident, or some trigger-happy pilot shooting down a plane. But that is unlikely. We have had a good number of such incidents and people have kept their heads and put these brushes in perspective...

War could come, and at one time we feared it might, from some Communist miscalculation of either our will or our capacity to resist a threat to our security. But we have pretty well advertised what we will not stand for and the Communists seem aware of it. In both Korea and Indo-China the wars were kept from spreading because each side calculated to a nicety the limits to which they could go without bringing on a third world war.

The greatest danger of war seems to lie in something else -- the possibility that one side or the other, pushed by dim but inexorable necessities of its own character, would encroach upon an area which its opponent, because of its character, would have to treat as a matter of symbolic importance, above argument, and set in motion all of the thermonuclear horrors of the next world war.

This danger has become very much more real in the past few weeks. Its focus is the island of Formosa, off the coast of China, an island whose importance to both the Communists and the United States is out of all proportion to its military significance. In recent days the biggest guns of Chinese Communist propaganda have been levelled at Formosa. Chou En Lai has been saying that the task of freeing China will not be complete until Formosa is liberated. General Chu Teh has urged Red China's military forces to prepare for the liberation of Formosa. For our part, we are taking these threats very seriously indeed. Secretary of State Dulles went out of his way this week to emphasize that even though we do not have a specific treaty, we would defend Formosa. There is reason to believe that the swift and massive American reaction to the air incident off Hainan was prompted by a desire to make it very clear that we would stand for no nonsense in that area. There are reports that much of the American military equipment destined to help the French in Indo-China is being re-routed to Formosa. American naval strength in the area is said to have been reinforced...

Formosa is one of those places which, for better or worse, the United States would defend -- not because of treaty obligations, not only because of strategic location, but because it has become a kind of symbol. The danger of war lies in that it may also be one of those places the Communist Chinese are committed to attack -- and for the same reason. Formosa is a symbol to both us and the Chinese Communists because of one thing -- Chaing Kai Shek is there.

Someday some historian will decipher the whole story of how the United States came to be so emotionally as well as politically and militarilly involved with Chiang Kai Shek. There are many elements in it -- our deep affection for the Chinese people, President Roosevelt, Douglas MacArthur, the wartime argument over priority for Asia or Europe, our shock at the communist revolution in China, our partisan politics here at home...It is a complicated story. But there is no doubt at all that the forces in our political life dedicated to the preservation and, if possible the re-instatement of Chiang Kai Shek are so powerful at the present time that the American Government would have to react in the most decisive fashion to any attack on Formosa.

And for the Chinese Reds, Formosa is just as dynamic an issue. Having driven Chiang from the mainland, they burn over his continued presence on the big island off the coast. He is a symbol of what they fought against and their victory will not be complete until he is eliminated.

It is this highly charged situation which makes the new Communist gestures toward Formosa so fraught with peril. If the Communists begin anything in that direction they can not retreat, and neither can we.

THIS IS CHARLES COLLINGWOOD...I'LL BE BACK IN A MOMENT WITH A FOOTNOTE TO THE DAYS NEWS.

BUT FIRST, BOB DIXON

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

COLLINGWOOD: A note on life in the mysterious Near East. The baghdad radio broadcast the following announcement today: "A rumor has spread to the effect that the air will run out of oxygen for two minutes on Saturday, August 7, and, as result, the temperature will rise. This remor is devoid of truth," says the Baghdad Radio severly, "Definitely no such thing will occur."

THIS IS CHARLES COLLINGWOOD...SEE YOU TOMORROW.

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS (Charles Collingwood)
CBS RADIO NETWORK

FRIDAY, AUGUST 13, 1954
7:45 - 8:00 PM EDT

Good evening!

The United States tonight granted political asylum to Yuri A. Rastvorov -- a top-ranking Russian diplomat who deserted to the West last January 24th. At a special news conference just a few minutes ago, Rastvorov told reporters he had left the communists because: as he put it "I wanted to live like a decent human being. I wanted to live decently and I wanted to be able to treat other people decently."

Russia was formally notified by the State Department that Rastvorov-- an intelligence officer in the Soviet diplomatic service in Japan -- was in American hands and had been granted a temporary American visa. Soviet Ambassador Zarubin did not appear at the State Department to receive the official word about Rastvorov and the Russian Embassy did not send any other representative to get the notification.

The Senate tonight voted to reject a compromise version of the atomic energy bill. The vote was 48 to 41 and sends the measure back to a House-Senate conference committee for further revision. Just before this evening's vote was taken, Administration leaders in the Senate read into the record a message from President Eisenhower in which he recommended passage of the bill. Mr. Eisenhower said he had carefully examined the bill and was of the opinion that first, "it did not contain any provisions that would be in any way harmful in the field of rural electric power," and second, that the passage of the bill would be "in the public interest."

Main Senate objections to the compromise centered around provisions for patent rights in the atomic development field. The compromise bill contained the House-approved section giving exclusive patent rights to companies for 17 years but authorizing the Atomic Energy Commission to give preference to those companies who promised to share their patents for five years. The Senate's version of the measure called for compulsory patent-sharing for 10 years.

The Senate tonight voted to remporarily raise the ceiling on the national debt by 6-billion dollars. But the bill orders the debt limit returned to its current 275 billion dollar mark by June 30th of next year.

Representative Charles Halleck -- the Republican Majority leader in the House of Representatives -- says the House may begin consideration on Monday of the Senate approved bill to outlaw the communist party.

President Eisenhower is at his Western Maryland Mountain retreat -- Camp David. The Chief Executive met there this morning with members of his cabinet and spent the afternoon resting.

The Navy announced today that it is dropping from its reserve officer rolls an estimated 45-thousand men who have not taken an active part in reserve programs for at least three years. The elimination process does not apply to enlisted reservists.

Senator McCarthy said today he is going to check a complaint of a former employee of the Voice of America who says he was fired from his job as "punishment" for cooperating with the McCarthy investigating sub-committee. The former employee - John Cocutz -- says he was ousted as acting chief of the Rumanian section of the Voice of America after he testified in March, 1953 before McCarthy's committee. Cocutz says that after his testimony, he was "suspected, investigated and frozen out" of his job even though he had been praised and promoted for his work before his appearance as a witness.

And Senator Watkins who is chairman of the special committee to investigate proposals to censure Senator McCarthy says the Senate will pay the cost of hiring a lawyer for McCarthy. The Senate has appropriated 30-thousand dollars to cover the costs of the investigation but there is no indication how much McCarthy's attorney will be given as a fee.

The government's Chief criminal prosecutor, Warren Olney 3rd, says more than 2-hundred cases involving fraud, collusion or other irregularities in the housing field are "now in various stages of investigation by Federal attorneys." Olney says 20 of the cases now pending include "matters arising as a result of the official and personal conduct of FHA officials and employees."

Nine communist party leaders in the Philadelphia area were convicted today of violating the Smith Act by conspiring to teach or advocate the violent overthrow of the government. The nine defendants did not deny communist party membership but contended they did nothing illegal. Each faces a five year prison term and a 10-thousand dollar fine.

25-thousand CIO Rubber workers are on strike against the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company. Plants in 8 cities are tied up by the walk-out which stems from a dispute over wages.

And at Oak Ridge, Tennessee, nearly 1-thousand electricians who quit work Wednesday are back on the job today. Union representatives met with the contracter for the top-secret atomic construction project and ordered the men back to work.

Radio Peiping announced this afternoon that Red China's Premier Chou en Lai has advocated "the task of liberating Formosa." Chou's statement came in a foreign policy pronouncement read to the Chinese People's Government Council. Chinese nationalists on Formosa say they have no indication that the communists are building up for an invasion. They characterize Chou's statement as more diplomatic than military.

Switzerland announced today the smashing of a spy ring which operated during the Geneva Peace conference. Two men have been arrested. The Swiss says the men were hired by what they describe as "a nearby foreign power." They had been assigned to carry out political espionage during the Geneva conference. There is no indication if they were successful in their mission although the Swiss say the men were arrested "some time ago."

Late word from Paris tonight says that three members of Premier Mendes-France cabinet have resigned. The three -- supporters of General Charles DeGualle -- are reported to have quit in protest over Mendes-France's plans for the European Defense Community treaty. Earlier, the Franch National Assembly had agreed to pospone debate on EDC until August 28th in order to have more time to study changes in the treaty suggested by Mendes-France.

American, British and French envoys are reported to be divided on an answer to Russia's latest proposal for a Big-4 conference on European security matters. The diplomats are said to be agreed that Russian suggestions can not be accepted as they stand, but the French are reported holding out for one more try for an agreement with Russia on German reunification and a German peace treaty. The Russian proposal under discussion calls for a Foreign Ministers conference to consider the German question and to prepare the ground for a security pact between east and west.

The Russian government today boosted the prices of potatoes, fruit and vegetables. A Moscow broadcast says the move is being made in order to provide an "incentive" for farmers to grow more. Observers believe today's announcement, coupled with recent public criticisms inside Russia of the Agriculture Ministry, means a serious food shortage has developed within the Soviet Union.

Police this afternoon recaptured five convicts who escaped from the Norfolk, Massachusetts prison colony. The men were taken after a gun battle and an automobile chase. Two hostages were discovered unharmed.

And a late report from Kingston, Ontario, tells of a fire raging out of control in the Kingston Penitentiary. Guards are patrolling the prison walls to prevent any escapes. The fire is raging in two cell blocks. It may spread.

That's the way the news has run so far today. Now a longer range look at the world scene.

When the last armistice phase in Indo-China was completed it began to be said with some amazement that now for the first time in 20 years the world was at peace -- no hot wars anywhere for the first time in 20 years. It is a happy thought... If only it were true. Unfortunately it is not.

To be sure there are no formal, declared wars now in eruption...But declarations of war are old-fashioned niceties like fingerbowls and standing up for ladies in streetcars, now more honored in the breach. The fact is that something like more than half a million men are now engaged in military operations in seven or eight very hot little wars around the world...and men are dying every day.

Hanson Baldwin, the erudite military correspondent of the New York Times compiled a catalog the other day of the small hot wars still burning. Here are some of the items: In Malaya about 40 thousand British and Empire troops, plus 68 thousand Malay policement and 200 thousand native militia are still fighting Communist guerrillas, about 5 thousand of them, in the jungles...In Burma, the 45 thousand man Burmese Army is fighting over 5 thousand remnants of Chiang Kai Shek's Armies which retreated into Burma when the Communists chased them out of China not to mention three to five thousand Communist guerrillas and the wild Karen tribes which are in revolt.

In the Phillipines a good part of the Phillipine Army is still mopping up the Communist-led Hukbalahap guerrillas operating out of their mountain fastnesses.

In Indonesia, the island country spread over a vast area in the Indian Ocean, there are sporadic uprisings in the numerous islands which require the constant attention of the army. Baldwin says there are an estimated 30 thousand guerrillas in the Celebes alone.

In Kenya some 28 thousand British troops and police are still trying to put down the Mau Mau terrorist movement.

The war between Israel and the Arab states have never been formally ended and hardly a day passes without a shooting incident along the borders.

In North Africa they don't call it a war, but to the naked eye there's not much difference. In Morocco, the French forces, including tanks and planes, patrol to put down the violence which breaks out almost daily. And in Tunisia the French conduct regular military operations against well-armed nationalist organizations in the south.

Besides these places where fighting is almost constant, there are plenty of other areas where the potentiality of war is enormous. India is one, where the Kashmire dispute still has Indian and Pakistani troops facing each other in an attitude of belligerence. And we don't have to look any farther back than the Guatemala episode to realize that in Latin America there exist all of the conditions for more little wars which could break out at any time.

So it is not quite true to say that just because the Indo-China conflict has been stopped, the world is without war. In jungles and mountains and deserts in a score of places you and I never heard of men are fighting and some of them are dying right now. They are not big wars, or even medium-sized wars, they are little wars. Most of them bear the character of civil wars and of revolution. They are symptomatic of our time of trouble. So far those who hold the power in our world have been successful in keeping them from spreading. If they continue to be so it may be that historians of the future will see these little wars and not thermonuclear conflict as typical of this age of the atom.

This is charles collingwood...I'll be back in a moment with a footnote to the days news.

COMMERCIAL

FOOTNOTE: The Golden Modal of the Greek Royal Order of George First was bestowed today on Edgar Hopkins, chef, and John Shappard, waiter on the New Haven Railroad's luxury car, the Yankee. The two had cooked and served the food for King Paul and Queen Frederika of Greece when the Royal couple toured the United States last fall. Said Chef Hopkins: "It came as a complete surprise. All we did was serve them plain American food.

THIS IS CHARLES COLLINGWOOD...SEE YOU MONDAY.

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS -- CHARLES COLLINGWOOD

MONDAY AUGUST 16, 1954
7:45 - 8:00 PM EDT

Good evening:

The House of Representatives today voted to outlaw the communist party in the United States. The vote was 3-hundred-5 to two. The dissenters were Republican Representative Burdick of North Dakota and Democratic Representative Multer of New York. The bill, as passed by the House, is a substitute for a stiffer bill which the Senate passed Thursday night. The Administration opposed that measure but today supported the House bill which declares the Communist Party to be "an instrumentality of a conspiracy to overthrow the government". The House bill strips the communist party of all rights, privileges and immunities which political parties can claim in the United States. This would include, for example, the right of the communist party to tun candidates for office. The House measure differs from the Senate version in that it does not provide penalites for persons who are active communist party members. In addition, the House bill specifically states that it in no way is to be considered a repealer of the McCarran Internal Security Act which requires registration of communist party and communist-front groups.

The House-approved measure also includes a provision to bar labor and business organizations which are determined to be communist-infiltrated from using the services of the National Labor Relations Board. There is a provision in the bill which allows these infiltrated organizations to "clear" themselves of the communist tinge and thus regain their rights.

The Senate and House versions of the anti-communist legislation will now go to a conference committee where differences are expected to be ironed out quickly.

Congress has apparently been afflicted with adjournment fever. Republican Majority leader Knowland says he expects to see the Senate finish up its work by the end of the week. A good deal of work was accomplished today.

A Senate-House Conference committee agreed on a compromise farm bill which adopts President Eisenhower's request for a 75 per cent of parity support price on dairy products.

Another conference committee tonight agreed on a new compromise atomic energy bill. This new measure adopts the Senate-approved provisions with respect to mandatory sharing of atomic patent rights. The compromise bill requires this sharing for five years instead of ten as the Senate had recommended. The bill now goes to the Senate for action expected later tonight.

The Senate today voted to cite Abraham Unger and Albert Shadowitz for contempt of Congress for refusing to answer questions put to them by the McCarthy Investigating Sub-committee. Neither man had taken the Fifth Amendment.

And Senator McCarthy tonight charged Independent Senator Wayne Morse of Oregon with making "fantastic" statements about his investigating sub-committee and of engaging in what McCarthy called "dishonest name-calling." Morse had accused McCarthy of "doing an injustice to every witness that ever came before him and suggested that some committees of Congress have used what Morse termed "lynch law" tactics. Morse says these tactics point up the need for rules of procedure to guide Congressional committees.

The House this afternoon passed and sent to the President a bill temporarily boosting the national debt limit by 6-billion dollars. The debt ceiling reverts to 275-billion dollars next June 30.

At the White House, President Eisenhower signed into law the biggest tax revision program in 50 years. The law brings about tax reductions amounting to more than 1-billion-300-million dollars in its first year. The President called the law "a monumental overhaul" which will "benefit all Americans.

The White House today dispatched an advanced guard to Denver, Colorado to set up offices for a summer White House at Lowry Air Force Base. The President is expected to head west just as soon as Congress winds up its legislative session.

Democratic National Chairman Stephen Mitchell tonight charged that one of President Eisenhower's closest friends has an interest in a syndicate which the President has selected to enter the field of private power development. Mitchell insists that - as he puts it - "the President's role in the atomic power controversey is something that really needs investigating". Mitchell's office identified the friend of the President as golfer Bobby Jones. Republican National Chairman Leonard Hall answered Mitchell's charges tonight, saying: "When Mr. Mitchell says by implication that President Eisenhower is doing favors for his neighbors, to the detriment of his country's welfare, I believe that the American people will rise up and condemn such an unwarranted attack."

The National Association of Attornies General has moved the site of its annual meeting from Mississippi to Arizona. No reason was given for the change but Association President - Attorney General Eugene Cook of Georgia has been openly critical of the Administration's strong support for the elimination of segregation in public schools. Because of Cook's stand, there were reports that it would be wiser to move the meeting from a southern state to one in the west.

American Airlines officials announced tonight they are meeting with representatives of the AF of L Airlines Pilots Association in a new effort to end the 18-day-old pilots strike. That walk-out has grounded all American airlines planes and today resulted in the suspension of nearly 2-thousand ground employees and stewardesses. Two-week suspension notices have also gone out to the rest of the airline's nearly 16-thousand employees.

Moscow Radio tonight has broadcast what may be the first Soviet comment on the forthcoming conference to set up a Southeast Asian anti-communist defense alliance. That meeting is scheduled to get underway in the Phillippines on September 6. Moscow says the talks are nothing more than an attempt to set up a coalition of colonial powers and a few of their sattelites.

The British Foreign Office announced today that Britain is against including Formosa in any area to be protected under a Southeast Asian alliance. The Foreign office disclosed at the same time, that Anglo-American talks will get underway soon to take up the recent and continuing threats by Communist Chinese leaders to attack and "liberate" the island stronghold of Formosa.

The question of Western European defense against communist aggression is being reviewed thoroughly in almost every Western capital as a result of the changes suggested in the European Army treaty by French Premier Mendes-France. A meeting of Western European nations will begin Thursday in Brussels to discuss EDC and France's proposed revisisions in the program. At the Hague, the Netherlands government expresses vigorous opposition to French suggestions that EDC lose some of its supre-national characteristics. And there are indications that Belgium and Luxembourg go along with the Dutch position. In Rome, it is reported Italian officials are worried that the newFrench position will make it difficult for the Italian Parliament to ratify EDC. West German Officials are not commenting on the European Army situation - they are currently more concerned with the case of Doctor Otto Joh. But in Washington, State Department officials deny that there is any thought of accepting the changes in EDC which have been suggested by Mendes-France. The French themselves have issued conflicting reports. One says that unless changes are adopted in the European army plan, there is little hope that the French Chamber of Deputies will adopt the program.

On the other hand, there is a report that Premier Mendes-France has merely made his suggestions to form a basis of discussion and that he is by no means determined to force all his alterations through. In general, if adopted, they would give any member nation of EDC a vote if some adverse action was taken by EDC's governing body.

In other news - Portuguese forces have shelled and retaken the fortress of Tiraco in the colony of Goa in India. That fortress was occupied yesterday by Indian nationalists who originally threatened to invade Goa and then managed to muster only few feeble parades.

And two typhoons are heading toward the Japanese mainland tonight. Heavy damage is expected unless the storms veer from their present course. One of them hit Okinawa yesterday causing damage and a few casualties.

Now a word or two on the action of the House of Representatives on the Communist Party in the United States. Consider the following chronology. Last Thursday, Senator Hubert Humphrey, Democrat of Minnesota, introduced the bill to outlawthe Communist party as a substitute for a measure relating to Communist-dominated labor unions. At first glance it seemed only rather devious parliamentary maneuvre, but by nightfall the Senate had passed it by a vote of 85 to nothing. Friday, general speculation since the administration from the President through the chief of the FBI, wason record as opposing such a move. Then the weekend intervened. This morning a White House conference on the subject. Then an administration-approved bill outlawing the party introduced into the House, and this afternoon, the passage of the bill.

It happened very rapidly...almost casually...there was not even a great deal of debate. Of course, there's a very good reason for that. This is a political year and no politician wants to be on record with a vote which could be construed as even remotely favoring the Communist party. But it goes deeper than that. There wasn't much debate because the great debate on the place of the Communists in our political life had already taken place. There wasn't much study of the bill's technical provisions because, to all intents and purposes, the Communist party is already outlawed in our country.

Six years ago it was very different. That was an election year, too...1948, a Presidential year, and for a time the question of outlawing the Communist party seemed likely to be a major campaign issue. In fact it played a major part in the most dramatic pre-convention contest that year. In the Spring of 1948, Harold Stassen had been cleaning up in Republican primaries all over the country. The Dewey machine was just beginning to roll. Both men were in the Oregon primary, and Stassen challenged Dewey to a debate on outlawing the Communist party. Dewey took him up, and the two had a full dress debate with Stassen saying "yes, the Communist party should be outlawed," and Dewey saying "no, or at last not in the way then proposed." Dewey carried off the honors, won the primary, broke the momentum of the Stassen drive, and the rest is history.

Outlawing the Communist party seemed a big issue then, in terms of justice, the Constitution, the American tradition, and, as J. Edgar Hoover often pointed out, the plain business of keeping an eye on the tactics of Communist infiltration. In 1948, Communist fronts still flourished an well-meaning non-communists often got mixed up in things whose real purposes they didn't understand--witness Henry Wallace's Third Party movement.

Outlawing the Communist party and driving it underground seemed very large steps to take. But a lot of water has passed under the bridge since 1948. A whole network of laws, court decisions, and executive orders have enmeshed the Communist organization in a legal stranglehold. A deep change in the attitude of the American people has taken place, encompassing intellectuals as well as lowbrows. No one any more thinks of the Communists as just another political party. To all intents and purposes, the Communists have been outlawed already, legally and in the minds of Americans. To all intents and purposes, the party is now underground.

Perhaps the most interesting aspect of the Congressional action which has registered this fact is that it was initiated by the liberal wing in Congress. A good many of the liberals have come to the conclusion that the constitutional and philosophical objections to depriving the Communist party of its legal status are outweighed by something else. That is, that as long as the Communist party is still around as a convenient target, demagogues will shoot at it with buckshot which sometimes spreads enough to hit a lot of non-communists. But if the Communist party is put beyond the pase of the law, then the attack upon it will have to be carried out by the expert marksmen of law enforcement agencies and innocent bystanders won't get spattered. That at any rate is one of the reasons that some of the liberals have reversed their traditional position on this issue.

Today in 1954, the outlawing of the Communist party in the United States has been accomplished with relatively little excitement. It is an indication of howthings have changed in a few short years.

This is Charles Collingwood.... I'll be back in a moment with a footnote to the day's news.... but first, Bob Dixon

BOB DIXON: Commercial.

CHARLES COLLINGWOOD: FOOTNOTE: The Communists have been able to give a private, special meaning to the word "peace." Today before the Assembly of the World Council of Churches, Methodist Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam, called for a crusade for peace based on Christian teachings, said: "We do not intend to allow spurious or even sinister appeals for peace to discredit the sacred word or deter us from our resolve to establishing law and order on earth."

This is Charles Collingwood.... See you tomorrow.

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS - Charles Collingwood

TUESDAY, August 24, 1954
7:45 - 8:00 PM EDT

Good evening! The United States Embassy in Rio de Janeiro is under heavy armed guard by Brazilian troops tonight following a series of attempts by rioters to storm the building. Machine-gun emplacements have been set up and troops with fixed-bayonets are on guard as Brazil shudders under the impact of the suicide of President Getulio Vargas. Rioting by supporters of the late president is reported from many places in Brazil including the city of Belo Horizonte where a communist-led mob stormed the American consulate and wrecked the place. Police and troops had the situation under control according to early word from the Brazilian capital but tonight, there are numerous reports of increasing violence in the wake of Vargas' death.

The tragic events in Rio came suddenly this morning following morethan a week of rising tension. Air Force Generals had been demanding Vargas' resignation, following the mrder of a popular Air Force major. He was killed during an attempted assasination of an anti-Vargas newspaper editor. Later, several members of Vargas' personal body guard were arrested and implicated in the killing. Despite the Air Force demands for his resignation, Vargas still had control and support of the army, until this morning when high army officers issued a "memorial" calling on the President to step down. It was announced that after consultation, Vargas had asked the Brazilian Congress for a 90-day leave of absence during which time, Vice President Joao Cafe Filho would serve as chief executive. The tension had thus apparently been eased. But a few hours later, Getulio Vargas -- President of Brazil -- was dead -- a bullet through his heart.

Vargas left a suicide note in which he bitterly bequeathed "to the wrath of my enemies, the legacy of my death". Vargas' note went on: " I take with me the sorrow of not being able to give to the humble all that I wished". His six-hundred word note recounted his rise to power as a revolutionary leader in 1930 and his career as top man of Brazil for all but five years from 1930 until this morning.

Vargas has been succeeded without formal ceremony by Vice President Cafe who called on all Brazilians, regardless of political party, to pay the respect due to their late leader. The Vice President, incidentally, is regarded as a close friend of the United States and he was scheduled to pay a visit to this country in October.

Secretary of State Dulles told newsmen today that he has sent a note of sympathy to the Brazilian government.

And the Secretary expressed "hope if not expectation" that France will approve a European Army plan including German troops. Dulles says he hopes that when France confronts the ultimate decision on EDC, she will follow her great tradition of idealism based on a sense of realism. Dulles declined to speculate, however, on what the United States may do if the French National Assembly rejects the European Defense Community.

And it looks tonight as though the French Assembly will vote on EDC without making it an issue which could cause the fall of the government of Premier Pierre Mendes-France. The French cabinet tonight refused to authorize Mendes-France to pose the EDC question as one involving a "vote of confidence". One member of the French cabinet predicts EDC will be turned down and then the Chamber of Deputies will be asked to express an opinion on German re-armament.

I want to discuss the latest EDC developments in a moment.

At his news conference today, Secretary of State Dulles also touched on the question of Formosa, repeating that the United States 7th Fleet has orders to defend that Nationalist Chinese stronghold against communist attacks. Dulles also said smaller islands off Formosa may likewise have to be defended in the event of an attack, but, he added, hat is up tb the military commanders on the scene. Dulles will fly to the Phillippines a week from today to attend a Southeast Asia Defense conference there.

President Eisenhower today signed into law a bill which in effect outlaws the communist party in the United States. The law also imposes tough controls on communist-infiltrated labor unions and business organizations. After signing the measure, the President told newsmen that it is a reflection of American determination to smash conspiracies aimed at the "violent overthrow of our entire form of government". Mr. Eisenhower siad that the American people are also determined to accomplish the destruction of these conspiracies in "strict conformity with the requirements of justice, fair play and the constitution f dhe United States".

The Watkins Committee which will investigate proposals to censure Senator McCarthy today made public a list of five categories of charges against the Wisconsin Republican. Chairman Watkins says the five categories seem to be the most important of the 46 charges filed against McCarthy but the committee will issue a report on all 46 before it is through. The five categories are: alleged contempt by McCarthy of the Senate and a Senatorial committee for his failure to testify in 1950 before a Senate group investigating his finances; incidents of encouragement of United States employees to violate the law and their oaths of office or executive orders. (This centers around McCarthy's appeal to federal employees to give him classified information about alleged communists or subversives): incidents involving the use of confidential or classified documents from executive files. This involves McCarthy's receipt of a so-called FBI espionage summary which McCarthy presented during his controversey with the Army. And the final charge against the Senator involves his alleged abuse of Brigadier General Ralph Zwicker during one of his committee hearings. The list of charges has been presented to McCarthy's attorney. The Senator himself is on vacation and had no comment. The hearings will start one day later than previously announced -- on August 31st now.

CBS announced today that United States Appeals Court Justice Harold Medina will present "the case against radio and television coverage" of the Watkins committee heraings. Medina will be heard on CBS Radio on Thursday September 2nd -- CBS President Frank Stanton will present the network's views on why live radio and television coverags should be permitted. It will be heard on CBS Radio this Thursday at 10:15 p.m., Eastern Daylight Time.

The Joint Congressional Atomic Energy Committee today invited Democratic National Chairman Stephen Mitchell to appear before it on September 2nd. Mitchell has been asked to give "any evidence of malfeasance or impropriety" he has with respect to the Admiiistration's plan for a private electric power syndicate to sell power to the Tennessee Valley Authority. That is known as the Dixon-Yates Syndicate and Mitchell charges that it got the power contract without competitive bidding which might have saved the government money. Committee Chairman W. Sterling Cole, inhis telegram inviting Mitchell to appear, termed the Democrat's assertions "intemperate charges". Tonight, Mitchell replied that he will be glad to accept Cole's invitation to testify and he once again questioned the propriety of the power deal. He expressed concern over Cole's description of his point of view as "intemperate" because Mitchell said "it would seem to indicate that the case has been prejudged".

In other news today: the Office of Defense Mobilization issued an order providing for government payments to private industry to maintain equipment necessary for the production of military items.

The Soviet Union has protested to Washiggton against what it calls "acts of violence" in the case of the former Soviet diplomatic official, Yuri Rastvorov. He defected to the West in Japan in January and Moscow says he was induced to do it by American agents who violated international law.

Russia's UN delegate, Andrei Vishinsky returned to the United States today and when asked what he thought of the prospects of world peace, he replied: "Who Knows? I hope for the best".

Every nation has its special way of looking at the world. That's what makes nations different. What looms large to one country, seems insignificant to another and one country' monster is another's tame kitten. Thus the French tend to think that the United States magnifies the dimensions of the Russian threat through some national astigmatism. We, on the other hand, tend to think the French exagerate the menace of German rearmament..... These two ways of looking at things have clashed in the current dispute over EDC which is a way of defending Europe against Russian aggression by enlisting a re-armed German in the defense. We want more defense against Russia, the French want more safeguards against a resurgent Germany.

In the current EDC stalemate, French Permier Mendes-France finds himself in a predicament well-known to American politics. He must cut the cloth of policy to fit the shape of political realities. The political realities seem to indicate that the French Assembly would not now approve EDC in the form sponsored by the United States and ratified by four of the six nations involved. Mendes-France's task as premier is either to persuade the Assembly to accept EDC or to come up with some alternative that could be accepted both in his country and in the other nations involved.

Right now the news from Paris seems gloomy, but the brief experience the world has had with M. Mendes-France would seem to caution that it would be unwise to sell this extraordinary man short. ANd it's interesting that Secretary Dulles, who might be presumed to be getting a pretty good morning line from Paris on the current odds, Secretary Dulles didn't lambaste the French, but rather expressed his hope that EDC might be approved. There is reason to hope that the French parliament when confronted with the alternatives to EDC might decide that it is the best, after all, of a group of unpleasant choices.

For the alternatives to EDC are not likely to fill the French deputies with enthusiasm. Mendes-Frnces is under no illusions. He told his countrymen frankly: "The choice before us today is between a rearmament of Germany that we could still supervise and a rearmament over which we would have no possible control." The truth is, he said, that Germany will not remain indefinitely apart from her own defense. Can we, Mendes-France asked his people, can we, because the prospect of rearming Germany is painful to us, because to say 'yes' is cruel, and to say 'no' is unrealistic, can we beat about the bush indefinitely? A great country cannot hide its face when confronted by an unpleasant choice. It must face up to it, it must choose".

That is tough talk from a man in politics, but that is the way Mendes-France is talking to the French people about European defense. Now, if the French assembly will not accept EDC, it is perfectly clear that Germany is going to be rearmed. And if EDC fails, the most likely alternative is that Germany would be admitted to NATO as a full partner. And that would be extremely unpalatable to the French... It would be, as the French premier said, rearmament of Germany over which France would have no possible control... It is therefore, not yet certain that the French Assembly, when it faces, as history and Mendes-France intend to make it face, the question of German rearmament, will not decide that it's better to have a German army within the framework of EDC than a German army with no international control beyond its membership in NATO ...

This is the hope that Secretary Dulles expressed today... It will not be an easy decision for France to take, and we may sympathize with her travail, but no decision she will take on this matter is going to be easy.

This is Charles Collingwood... I'll be back in a moment with a footnote to the day's news..... but first..Bob Dixon.

FOOTNOTE

The hardest thing for a court of law to decide is a matter of taste. The surrealist painter Salvador Dali has sued Mrs. William Woodward, Jr. for $7,000 dollars. He says she owes it to him for a portrait she commissioned him to do. Dali says she worked for a year on the picture. Mrs. Woodward says she commissioned the picture all right, but when she looked at it she said it was something she wouldn't have in the house. THIS IS CHARLES COLLINGWOOD.... SEE YOU TOMORROW.

Monday, August 30, 1954

This is the news:

The French Assembly has voted to kill the European Defense Community. #

The State Department says Secretary Dulles may have something to say about this tomorrow. [Mr. Dulles was at the White House when the news came.] But so far there has been no official American comment. I'd like to discuss this defeat for our European policy in a few minutes.

The President flew from Denver to Washington today to speak ~~with~~ (To) the American Legion convention. He told the Legionnaires that a number one item on his legislative program next year, will be the establishment of an adequate reserve program for our armed forces. Mr. Eisenhower said, we have failed miserably to maintain adequate military reserves in the past..we must cast aside wishful thinking, and political timidity...we must establish a Reserve program that is absolutely essential for our national defense. And some 75-hundred Legionnaires cheered loudly when the President said: the new program will not "unfairly burden men who have already served" in the armed forces. There were no such cheers when the President told the convention that the failures of the United Nations are "no reason to weaken our support." Earlier the delegates cheered loudly when Past National Commander Lewis K. Gough told them: "IT becomes (increasingly) evident that the U.N. no longer can claim to be an instrument for suppressing war and aggression."

Admiral Radford, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, told the convention that Russia's military threat is "very considerable, and a rapidly growing menace." He said international communism has massive power on land, sea and air, and is widely deployed..and can strike out (in) any direction, at any time.

While he was in Washington today, before flying back to Denver, the President signed a new atomic energy law. It gives private industry the right to enter the atomic energy field for the first time. And it gives the government authority to participate in a fuller exchange of nuclear secrets with friendly nations. The President says this bill will strengthen the free world's security, and speed the day when nuclear force will be "wholly devoted to the constructive purposes of man."

A Northern power syndicate charged today, that the Budget Bureau supplied both the President and Congress with what it called "deliberately innaccurate and misleading figures." This was in connection with the selection of the Dixon-Yates power group, to build a new Tennessee Valley Authority supply plant. Walter Von Tresckow, a New York financier, wrote Chairman Cole of the congressional atomic enegry committee, that the government could have saved 150-million dollars, over a thirty year period, if his plan had been accepted. Democratic National Chairman Mitchell has attacked the Dixon-Yates agreement as a "raw deal" that was [redacted] "corrupt and scandalous."

A Republican leader said today, that the President this year is going to make the most active off-year election campaign that any president has made in the past thirty years. Representative Simpson of Pennsylvania, the chairman of the Republican congressional campaign committee, says [redacted] the plans have been "firmed up".. and are designed to impress the people who voted for Mr. Eisenhower in 1952, that he "must have the tools to carry out his program."

Adlai Stevenson charged in Chicago today that the President has not lived up to his campaign promise to remove "union-busting provisions of the Taft-Hartley law." Stevenson said: "This has been a year of futility--or worse--in meeting what may be considered the particular problem of labor-management relationships." Stevenson said that the Administration's answer to unemployment "is only further hidden beneath platitudes about being 'conservative in economic [redacted] matters, but liberal in human affairs.'"

In Evanston, Illinois, the World Council of Churches today called for an abolition of nuclear weapons under a system of international inspection. The group also called for a drastic reduction in all other armaments. And it called on churches around the WORLD [redacted] to observe a week of prayer in January for church unity.

In Washington today, Senator Mc Carthy consulted three times with a committee that starts [redacted] an investigation of the Senator's conduct TOMORROW. Mc Carthy told reporters he was taking up what he described as "a very recent development.. something urgent." A source close to the Senator says Mc Carthy dicovered a newspaper article which quotes Democratic Senator Johnson of Colorado in an unfriendly reference. Johnson is a member of the six-man committee named to hear charges against Mc Carthy.

The three Democratic members of the committee that heard the Army-McCarthy charges today made a unanimous report on their views. This report and a Republican majority report will be made public sometime Wednesday.

In Phenix City, Alabama, a special grand jury today indicted 59 persons on 545 counts in its gambling investigation. The jury said in part that it is convinced from evidence that "this diabolical enterprise was deep-rooted and of many years duration." Under Alabama law NO NAMES WERE MADE PUBLIC. ~~none of the names of persons indicted were made public.~~

The British today lifted a three-year ban on the sale of arms to Egypt. And Isreali Premier Sharett accused the British and the United States of "following the general trend of one-sided arming of Arab states at the height of a campaign of hatred and plotting of revenge against Isreal.

Edward R. Murrow: August 30, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

The French Parliament has finally acted on the European Defense Community - (the plan to create a six-nation European Army of about a million, two hundred thousand men, including twelve West German divisions) # The vote was 319 to 264. By that margin, it was decided to postpone debate indefinitely. This means that the plan, which the French originally proposed, which was supported by Britain, by West Germany, and by the United States, is for all practical purposes dead. French Premier Mendes-France did his best to save his government, by announcing that his Cabinet would remain "neutral" when the vote was taken. But his Cabinet is bitterly divided, and no less than eight members of it are said to be threatening to resign tonight. Clearly, the French Parliament voted its memories, rather than its hopes. They refused to face the prospect of a resurgent and dynamic Germany as part of a European Army. They wanted more binding guarantees from Britain and from us. But above everything else, the memory of German boots and German tanks on French soil was too strong.

The free world has suffered a very considerable defeat. The cornerstone of American military policy in Western Europe has crumbled. The time for what Mr. Dulles called "the agonizing re-appraisal" of our policy has come.

The moderate German supporters of Chancellor Adenauer are shocked. British officials say that there will now be talks between the United States, Britain, France and Germany, in an effort to figure out some way to give West Germany its independence without the right to re-arm. There is some talk in Washington of our permitting Germany to re-arm as part of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization; but this of course cannot be done without the agreement of Britain and France, which will not be easy to secure.

Many of our military leaders have contended that Western Europe could not be defended without German manpower and German production. But if Western Europe cannot be defended without Germany, it equally cannot be defended without France.

Today's vote in Paris was primarily the work of the Communists and the De Gaullists. The two extremes in French political life combining to squeeze down the moderate center. It was a turbulent, noisy scene in the Assembly, as the French discarded the plan they had created. Premier Mendes-France said simply: "The Assembly has expressed its will. Now THERE is work to be done, and this time it will not take three years." Presumably he meant further conversations with the other European powers in an effort to reach some compromise on methods of mutual defense. The prospect for any such agreement must be regarded as dismal and dim, even if Mendes-France remains in power.

The political repercussions in Germany may be considerable. The moderate, middle-of-the-road Adenauer government has eagerly and consistently supported the European Army Plan. Now, that plan has been scuttled, and with nations, as with individuals, when moderation and toleration fail to produce results, there is a tendency to resort to extremes. The one inevitable result of today's vote, in Germany, will be to strengthen the hands of those extreme elements of both the right and left, who have criticized Adenauer for linking the fate of Germany too closely with that of the West. The European Army has been "talked to pieces." It was a revolutionary plan, but it has failed. Now, somehow, some way, a new beginning must be made. Any effective German contribution to the defense of Western Europe has been set back months, if not years.

The three Western Powers, Britain, France and the United States must now take counsel on an old problem: what to do about Germany. But Germany is vigorous though divided, impatient and restless. If moderation and patience lead only to frustration and impotence, the Germans in due course, must be expected to try more extreme measures.

Today's vote was a defeat for American policy, for Chancellor Adenauer's policy, and the destruction of a dream which might have wiped out military frontiers over most of Western Europe. The defeat of the European Army Plan has for three years been the purpose and objective of Communist policy. [redacted] That purpose has been achieved. The task of statesmanship now is to devise an alternative. It would be [redacted] as futile to deny the defeat as it would be fatal to abandon the effort to reach working agreement.

It was the Greek writer Plutarch who once remarked:"Memory - what wonders it performs, in preserving and guarding the past." Nothing underlined this more than today's vote of the French Parliament, killing the European Defense Plan. But despite France's fear of a re-militarized Germany, she...like other countries...may come to know what Sheridan meant when he said:"Prudence, like experience, must be paid for."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

Tuesday, August 31, 1954.

This is the news:

The four Republican Senators who investigated the row between Senator Mc Carthy and the Army, reported tonight that McCarthy did not use improper pressure on behalf of Private G. David Schine. But three Democratic senators, in the minority report, said Mc Carthy deserved "severe criticism."

Both reports, released tonight, came after the Watkins committee opened its hearings on Senator (Mc CARTHY'S) conduct. My (Colleague) Daniel Shorr, has been following the McCarthy developments.

So let's hear his summary from Washington:

6 MIN -- RETURN CUE: "Now back to Ed Murrow in New York."

380

Secretary of State Dulles said today that the North Atlantic Treaty Organizations council of ministers must meet soon to work out a new philosophy for European defense. Mr. Dulles said that as a result of the French decision to kill the European Defense Council we must re-appraise our foreign policies. .move quickly to restore soverignty to West Germany.. The Secretary pledged our allies that we will not "turn to a course of narrow nationalism." He said it was nationalism, abetted by Communism that caused the French Assembly to defeat the E.D.C. plan. He called this action: abrupt..ill-considered..and said it created "grave anxiety throughout Europe."

In France today, the Assembly voted confidence in Premier Mendez-France's ability to find some way for the western nations to co-operate on a plan to replace the Europpean army plan. The assembly will not debate foreign policy for at least two months...to give the Premier a chance to co-operate with France's allies.

In London, Foreign Secretary Eden said that as a result of the French decision and the "urgent and important problems" it raises, he will not be able to attend the Southeast Asia defense conference in Manila. Secretary of State Dulles is leaving for Manila tonight.

In Washington tonight, the American Legion's rehabilitation committee, attacked what it called "the continued unwarranted attack" on veterans by the American Medical Association. The A.M. A. opposes government hospitalization for veterans with disbailities they did not get while in the service. The Legion committee says this opposition comes from "a selfish minority."

In Cincinnati today, Republican leaders agreed on the theme of their election campaign for control of congress. It will be: "peace, progress, and prosperity."

An army trial judge ruled today, that Corporal Claude Batchelor was not promised immunity by the army, if he would return to our side in Korea. Batchelor is charged with collaborating with the Communists, and informing on other Americans while he was a prisoner of war. His counsel had urged that all charges against him be dropped, because he was promised immunity from any court-martial. But Lt. Col. Donald L. Manes, the law officer of the court martial..in San Antonio..held this was not true.

Today in Korea, the allies and Communists started to exchange thousands of war dead. In all we have promised to hand over more than 14-thousand bodies. The Communists say they will return 4-thousand allied dead.

In Rome, at a conference of world experts on population, scientists were told that the earth's present population of two and a half billion persons may double in the next century. The experts say that although birth rates are holding relatively stable the gain in population is due to the progress of modern science in prolonging man's lifespan. The experts were also told that in only four countries is man achieving a life expectancy of 70 years. That's in Denmark, Norway, Sweden and the Netherlands. The life expectancy of women is 70 years or more in the United States, Australia, Denmark, Norway, the Netherlands, England and Wales.

Here in the east today, a hurricane that swept up the coast from Florida spread over New York, Rhode Island, Massachusetts and Connecticut. An estimated 16 persons were killed. (damage) will probably run into the millions and some areas are still without electricity and transportation.

In Boston, the storm blew the WOODEN BELFRY FROM Old North Church where Paul Revere received the signal to alert "every Middlesex village and farm....because the British were coming. And emergency areas were declared at Cape Cod, in Massachusetts...Providence, Rhode Island and New London, Connecticut. The storm is expected to blow itself out north of Maine tomorrow morning.

The United Mine Workers Welfare and Retirement Fund..in the red for seven and a half million dollars for last year..reported today that it had a one and a half million dollar surplus for the year ended June 30th. The fund now has total reserves of 93 and a half million dollars. This year's surplus was due to the discontinuation of two emergency programs...and an increase in receipts from the 40 cent a ton royalty on coal production.

These words, spoken long ago by Marcus Aurelius, would seem appropriate tonite: "A man's true greatness lies in the consciousness of an honest purpose in life, founded on a just estimate of himself and a steady obedience to the rule which he knows to be right - without troubling himself about what others may think or say."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

CBS RADIO DIVISION

EDWARD R. MURROW

Tuesday, August 31, 1954
7:45-8:00 p.m.

MURROW: This is the news! The four Republican Senators, who investigated the row between Senator McCarthy and the Army, reported tonight that Senator McCarthy did not use improper pressure on behalf of Private G. David Schine, but three Democratic Senators, in the minority report, said Senator McCarthy deserved severe criticism. Both reports, released tonight, came after the Watkins Committee opened its hearings on Senator McCarthy's conduct. My colleague, Daniel Schorr, has been following the McCarthy developments so let's hear his summary from Washington.

SCHORR: The long-awaited reports in the Army-McCarthy row have just been released, winding up one round of hearings just as another gets under way. This morning, the select Senator Committee headed by Republican Senator Watkins, of Utah, opened its hearings on the censure charges against Senator McCarthy. There was no mistaking the determination of the tight-lipped Utah Senator to keep these hearings under strict control, to make them, in his words, a semi-judicial inquiry. He let Senator McCarthy read a statement blaming an unwholly alliance of people for the charges against him, although Watkins noted this was not strictly relevant. Then, Chairman Watkins clamped down. He shut off an argument by McCarthy's counsel, Edward Williams, that the present Senate has no right to censure McCarthy for acts committed during previous Congresses; suggested that Williams file abrief on this subject. This morning's hearings closed, perhaps symbolically, with an angry Watkins banging his gavel to silence McCarthy as the Wisconsin Senator tried to be heard, to demand an explanation of a newspaper interview by a Committee member, Democratic Senator Edwin Johnson, of Colorado, an interview quoting Johnson as saying that Democratic leaders in Congress loathe McCarthy. Said Watkins: "We are not going to be interrupted by these diversions and sidelines. We are going straight down the line."

As Senator Watkins was banging his gavel, the printers were rushing to finish the reports on the thirty-six days of the hearings in the Army-McCarthy controversy and after some confusion about the release time this document has just come out, a series of reports in which Republicans and Democrats distribute blame in various degrees on both sides. The four Republican members, headed by Chairman Carl Mundt, find no evidence of dishonesty or bad faith on the part of any of the principals, but they note what they call frequent evidence of mistake in judgments, in judicious action, and indiscreet activities. Of Senator McCarthy, the majority finds no conclusive evidence that he used improper influence on behalf of Private G. David Schine, but says he should have used more vigorous discipline to prevent improper influence by his staff members, and McCarthy is criticized for condoning such activities by members of his staff; McCarthy's former chief counsel, Roy M. Cohn, is found to have been unduly aggressive and persistent in seeking favors for Schine and it said that the investigation of alleged subversion was not designed by Cohn as a lever to get preferential treatment for Private Schine.

On the Army side, the majority holds that Secretary Robert Stevens and Army counsel, John G. Adams, did make efforts to terminate or influence investigations on Fort Monmouth, that they were derelict in not protesting to the Committee soon enough about Cohn's approaches on Schine, that all the Pentagon officials were errant for failing torepudiate suggestions that Schine get preferential treatment. In addition, the Committee held Adams guilty of vigorous efforts to block McCarthy Committee subpoenas for members of Army Loyalty Boards and Stevens guilty of placation, appeasement, and vacillation in his dealings with the McCarthy Committee. The majority like the minority, found no cause for action against Francis Carr, McCarthy's staff director, and H. Struve Hensel, then Defense Department counsel.

Two of the Republicans who signed this report also issued supplementary statements, laying somewhat different emphasis.

Senator Dirksen, of Illinois, stresses his belief that the Schine matter would never have been brought up if McCarthy had not persisted in efforts to subpoena members of the Army Loyalty Boards. This, says Dirksen, establishes a motive for the Army's charges against McCarthy and his staff. Senator Potter, of Michigan, in his supplementary report says the efforts by Cohn to get favors for Schine reached the point of harassment. He criticizes Senator McCarthy for sanctioning Cohn's conduct and he accuses Secretary Stevens of a lack of comprehension, which, in Potter's words, at times suggested bewilderment. Potter asserts that the principal accusation of each side in this controversy was borne out. The minority report, signed by Democratic Senators McClellan, Symington, and Jackson, also parcels out blame to both the Army and McCarthy side, accusing McCarthy and Cohn of inexcusable actions that merit severe criticism. They say that Cohn ... and we quote ... acted without justification knowingly and persistently in seeking and securing special privileges for Schine and in doing so misrepresented the need of his services, that Senator McCarthy condoned Cohn's actions and defended him at the hearings. As to the Army, the Democrats find that Secretary Stevens and Adams pursued a course of appeasement in the Schine affair by granting him special privileges and preferred treatment to placate McCarthy and Cohn.

Unlike the majority report, the minority goes into the so-called collateral issues that took up much of the time during these hearings. On the question of whether Loyalty Board members can be required to testify before investigating committees, on that the Democrats hold that Loyalty Board members are not immune to subpoena, but cannot be compelled to answer questions about their disposition of loyalty cases. Senator McCarthy is criticized in this report for ... and I quote ... attacking the character and impugning the loyalty of individuals not involved in the proceedings. On McCarthy's assertion of his right to receive secret information from Government employees, the minority asserts that if McCarthy's invitation were followed the entire security system of the Government would be imperiled. The Democrats say McCarthy merits severe criticism for receiving and usiug the famous two-and-a-quarter-page document based on an FBI report and they ask Attorney General Brownell to investigate the matter as one vitally affecting the security of the U. S. The Democrats add that a (sic) record is replete with contradictions, suggesting that perjury may have been committed and, so, with blame liberally distributed on all sides, thefamous Army-McCarthy controversy officials ends with these hundred and thirty closely-printed pages.

Now, back to Ed Murrow in New York.

Ed.trans.-A.A.Cardiff (30)

Wednesday, September 1, 1954

This is the news:

The West German government today called on the western allies to restore soveringty to West Germany at once. Chancellor Adenauer's government acted as a result of the defeat by France of the European Defense Community. Just 15 years to the day after Adolf Hitler started World War (Two) by invading Poland, the West German government pledged continued support of European unity... urged new negotiations on the "military integration" of Europe...and indicated that it will reject the allied-west German peace contract that was designed to give the Bonn government only limited soverignty.

And in London today official sources say the British cabinet has decided to press for limited rearmament in West Germany..within the North Atlantic pact. Their are 14 member nations in the NATO organization and unanimous agreement is necessary to admit additional members.

I should like to discuss some results of the French (decision) to defeat E.D.C, in a few minutes.

President Eisenhower today signed a bill extending social security coverage to an additional ten million persons. The bill also liberalizes social security benefits. The President called it "one of the cornerstones to build a better and stronger America." And he said this and other bills he has signed into law "will bolster the health and economic security of the American people."

Vice President Nixon, in Cincinnati today, said that because there has been no (ECONOMIC) recession in this country, the Democrats have lost their only big political issue. Mr. Nixon, who is attending a party meeting, says he doesn't see any issue that the Democrats can use effectively in the congressional campaign. And he said the President will support all Republican candidates, even though some of them have not been 100 per cent behind the Administration's program.

~~A.F. of L. President Meany told the American Legion convention in Washington that the Eisenhower Adminsitration cannot escape a "major share of responsibility" for the Geneva settlement of the war in Indo-China. Meany said the Geneva conference, like Munich, "will go 60 down in history as a point of no return. And he charged that the only American policy in this crisis was "a lack of policy."~~

~~The Watkins committee investigating censure charges against Senator~~

3

Democratic Senator Gore of Tennessee charged tonight that the President has not lived up to his promise of a "bold, dynamic program" both at home and abroad. In the official Democratic reply to the President's speech summing up the record of Congress, Senator Gore said the President's batting average was not eight-three-oh, as claimed, but actually less than .252. Gore said the President made a mistake in listing foul balls as clean hits..and by failing to account for his "times at bat."

4

The Watkins committee investigating censure charges against Senator Mc Carthy has now completed taking evidence on three of the five charges it is considering. Today the committee turned down a move by McCarthy to challenge the qualifications of Democratic Senator Edwin Johnson of Colorado. And it rejected, at least for the time being, a move by McCarthy's lawyer to throw out a charge that McCarthy was in contempt of the Senate . The committee than heard reporters testify that Senator McCarthy had accused Republican Senator Flanders of Vermont of "senility" and described Republican Senator Hendrickson of New Jersey as "a living miracle without brains or guts. " One of the charges against McCarthy is that he has "abused" his senate colleagues.

The Navy today admitted a grave injustice against Abraham Chasnow, a naval employe for 22 years. Fourteen months ago Chasnow was suspended from his job because he was accused of being a bad security risk.. a radical...an associate of Communists and fellow travelers. The accusers have never been publicly identified. A Navy Loyalty Board has investigated and found Chasnow to be "an above average loyal American citizen." It notes that those who offered derogatory information against him "either failed to corroborate their original testimony or were unable to produce (specifics) their early allegations."

5

Assistant Navy Secretary James H. Smith who ordered Chasnow restored to his job says those who made accusations against him "committed a grave injustice and disservice to the country." He said the Navy will try not to let such a case happen again. And Chasnow told reporters: "It is like waking from a bad dream."

South Carolina's Democratic Senator Maybank died in his sleep early today, after a heart attack. He was 55 years old. Governor Byrnes says he will not consider appointing a successor until after Senator Maybank's funeral on Friday.

The Air Force reports that another hurricane, with winds up to 115 miles an hour, is moving north over the Atlantic. Its expected to pass midway between the Carolina Capes and Bermuda.

And the President has directed that all federal facilities go to work immediately, to assit the northeastern states hit by a storm yesterday. Governor Herter of Massachusetts has ordered seizure of all dry ice in his state, for distribution to food firms whose refrigeration was knocked out by the hurricane. He says there's a critical danger that million of dollars worth of food may be spoiled.

One lesson the State Department might learn from the defeat of the European Defense Community in the French Assembly is, not to be too sure. Premier Mendes-France himself had warned us there would be no majority for the E.D.C., and now he remarks wryly that the Americans thought they knew more about the Assenbly than he did. Responsible correspondents in Paris consistently reported the situation without optimism. But Washington continued to advertise that all our eggs were in the E.D.C. basket and no alternatives were to be talked about. So now we have to hunt for an alternative everybody knows we think is inferior.

What we want - and have no choice but to want - is to re-arm Germany. And our success in doing this is what we must not be too sure about. The difficulties certainly are no less than those of setting up a European Army. It may be part of the American disposition to ignore difficulties and bull things through with a surplus of enthusiasm. But that is not a diplomatic formula. We are not going to re-arm Germany by hiding the obstacles from ourselves.

I say it is German re-armament that we want because Germany is one of the three great power issues between the East and the West awaiting diplomatic solution, that is, solution without combat. The other two are Southeast Asia and Japan. In Southeast Asia we already have lost much; not everything, but enough to make the loss of the remainder hard to avoid. Japan is still with us, but the decision about which side Japan's future power will be on has not been made. It depends very much on Japan's economic health. Only a healthy Japan will be dependably loyal, and we haven't squared off yet to the problem of keeping Japan prosperous.

But German re-armament is the greatest of the issues, as the Kremlin has unfailingly indicated. It has warned over and over again that it will not tolerate the arming of Germany by the West. It was against E.D.C. for that reason; it will maneuver as vigorously against any other formula for the same purpose. If Germany can be kept neutral and unarmed, the Kremlin feels sure it will ultimately write the terms for unifying Germany, and will do it in a way that draws Germany into the Soviet orbit. Then with Germany on its side, unarmed or perhaps by then armed, Soviet power would dominate the continent. It would win a war without fighting it, which is the way the Kremlin wants and expects to win it. If we are to have the security of a free Europe, we have to arm Germany, and though doing so will not win us a war, it will avoid our losing one.

On paper there are several ways that Germany can be re-armed. On paper the same French Government that sponsored the death of the E.D.C. is in favor of German re-armament. That is what Mendes-France told the Assembly, and he denounced anyone who tried to read neutralism into his policies. The only condition he mentioned was that German arms be under suitable controls.

One way of getting German re-armament is to give the Bonn government sovereignty and then make West Germany a full partner in NATO. But this France would veto. It ~~does~~ would not provide the desired controls. Another proposal is to set up a little NATO, consisting of the six E.D.C. states plus Britain. This is a French idea, perhaps part of the strategy to saddle on Britain the failure to create a European Army. But the British are the pivotal member of a far-flung Commonwealth, and they also still own colonies. They show no sign of being ready to give up their world position to operate as a counter-balance against Germany, in France's interest.

The next step will be to give the Bonn government a large degree of sovereignty, though not the whole of it. It will not have free rein to raise an army, or re-build its munitions industry. But when this limited sovereignty is granted, negotiations about re-armament will get down to brass tacks. And then will rise another obstruction. It will be Germany's rejection of the controls over its military establishment which France will insist on having. The Germans had accepted the limitations of E.D.C. because they were being subordinated to Europe, to something supra-national. They are not inclined to settle for a second-class position among sovereign states. France has already shown it fears Germany more than the Soviet Union, and has refused to accord the Germans a first-class place. So unless France, or Germany, or indeed Britain, changes its mind, German re-armament is going to be extremely hard to bring about.

A further possibility remains, which was thrown out - perhaps thoughtlessly - in Washington today. It is that the United States by-pass France and build a security system in Europe based on Germany and Spain. The trouble with this idea is that it wouldn't be a security system. A by-passed France most likely would become a neutralized France, and lying behind Germany would make the system about as unstable as can be imagined. Besides, the plan would throw away the basic ideological concept of the free world.

So the difficulties are enormous. One has to hope that they can be solved. But surely it will not help solve them to hide them away and to pretend cheerfully that they don't exist.

[redacted] France's decision to kill the European Defense plan has now put the other nations of the free world in a difficult position, [redacted] If it is true, as Edmund Burke once said, that "difficulty is a severe instructor", then we might learn something from this observation by John Winant that "whatever we accomplish is of little importance, because what we accomplish is always measured by what others do in relation to it."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
CBS RADIO NETWORK

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 1, 1954
7:45-8:00 P.M., EST

This is the news:

The West German government today called on the western allies to restore soverignty to West Germany at once. Chancellor Adenauer's government acted as a result of the defeat by France of the European Defense Community. Just 15 years to the day after Adolf Hitler started World War Two by invading Poland, the West German government pledged continued support of European unity...urged new negotiations on the "military integration" of Europe...and indicated that it will reject the allied-west German peace contract that was designed to give the Bonn government only limited soverignty.

And in London today official sources say the British cabinet has decided to press for limited rearmament in West Germany...within the North Atlantic pact. Their are 14 member nations in the NATO organization and unanimous agreement is necessary to admit additional members.

I should like to discuss some results of the French decision to defeat E.D.C. in a few minutes.

President Eisenhower today signed a bill extending social security coverage to an additional ten million persons. The bill also liberalizes social security benefits. The President called it "one of the cornerstones to build a better and stronger America." And he said this and other bills he has signed into law "will bolster the health and economic security of the American People."

Vice President Nixon, in Cincinnati today, said that because there has been no economic recession in this country, the Democrats have lost their only big political issue. Mr. Nixon, who is attending a party meeting, says he doesn't see any issue that the Democrats can use effectively in the congressional campaign. And he said the President will support all Republican candidates, even though some of them have not been 100 per cent behind the Administration's program.

Democratic Senator Gore of Tennessee charged tonight that the President has not lived up to his promise of a "bold, dynamic program" both at home and abroad. In the official Democratic reply to the President's speech summing up the record of Congress, Senator Gore said the President's batting average was not eight-three-oh, as claimed, but actually less than .252. Gore said the President made a mistake in listing foul balls as clean hits...and by failing to account for his "times at bat."

The Watkins committee investigating censure charges against Senator McCarthy has not completed taking evidence on three of the five charges it is considering. Today the committee turned down a move by McCarthy to challenge the qualifications of Democratic Senator Edwin Johnson of Colorado. And it rejected, at least for the time being, a move by McCarthy's lawyer to throw out a charge that McCarthy was in contempt of the Senate. The committee then heard reporters testify that Senator McCarthy had accused Republican Senator Flanders of Vermont of "senility" and described Republican Senator Hendrickson of New Jersey as "a living miracle without brains or guts." One of the charges against McCarthy is that he has "abused" his senate colleagues.

The Navy today admitted a grave injustice against Abraham Chasnow, a naval employee for 22 years. Fourteen months ago Chasnow was suspended from his job because he was accused of being a bad security risk...a radical.. an associate of the Communists and fellow travelers. The accusers have never been publicly identified . A Navy Loyalty Board has investigated and found Chasnow to be, "an above-average loyal American citizen." It notes that those who offered derogatory information against him "either failed to corroborate their original testimony or were unable to produce specifics of their early allegations."

Assistant Navy Secretary James H. Smith who ordered Chasnow restored to his job says those who made accusations against him "committed a grave injustice and disservice to the country." He said the Navy will try not to let such a case happen again. And Channow told reporters: "It is like waking from a bad dream."

South Carolins's Democratic Senator Maybank died in his sleep early today after a heart attack. He was 55 years old. Governor Byrnes says he will not consider appointing a successor until after Senator Maybank's funeral on Friday.

The Air Force reports that another hurricane, with winds up to 115 miles an hour, is moving north over the Atlantic. It is expected to pass midway between the Carolina Capes and Bermuda.

And the President has directed that all federal facilities go to work immediately to assist the northeastern states hit by a storm yesterday. Governor Herter of Massachusetts has ordered seizure of all dry ice in his state for distribution to food firms whose refrigeration was knocked out by the hurricane. He says there's a critical danger that millions of dollars worth of food may be spoiled.

One lesson the State Department might learn from the defeat of the European Defense Community in the French Assembly is, not to be too sure. Premier Mendes-France himself had warned us there would be no majority for the E.D.C., and now he remarks wryly that Americans thought they knew more about the Assembly than he did. Responsible correspondents in Paris consistently reported the situation without optimism. But Washington continued to advertize that all our eggs were in the E.D.C. basket and no alternatives were to be talked about. So now we have to hunt for an alternative everybody knows we think is inferior.

That we want - and have no choice but to want - is to re-arm Germany. And our success in doing this is what we must not be too sure about. The difficulties certainly are no less than those of setting up a European Army. It may be part of the American desposition to ignore difficulties and bull things through with a surplus of enthusiasm. But that is not a diplomatic formula. We are not going to re-arm Germany by hiding the obstacles from ourselves.

I say it is German re-armament that we want because Germany is one of the three great power issues between the east and the west presently awaiting diplomatic solution, that is, solution without combat. The other two are Southeast Asia and Japan. In Southeast Asia we already have lost much; not everything, but enough to make the loss of the remainder hard to avoid. Japan is still with us, but the decision about which side Japan's future power will be on has not been made. It depends very much on Japan's economic health. Only a healthy Japan will be dependably loyal, and we haven't squared off yet to the problem of keeping Japan prosperous.

But German re-armament is the greatest of the issues, as the Kremlin has unfailingly indicated. It has warned over and over again, that it will not tolerate the arming of Germany by the West. It was against E.D.C. for that reason; it will maneuver as vigorously against any other formula for the same purpose. If Germany can be kept neautral and unarmed, the Kremlin feels sure it will ultimately write the terms for unifying Germany, and will do it in a way that draws Germany into the Soviet orbit. Then with Germany on its side, unarmed or perhaps by then armed, Soviet power would dominate the continent. It would win a war without fighting it, which is the way the Kremlin wants and expects to win it. If we are to have the sucruity of a free Europe, we have to arm Germany, and though doing so will not win us a war, it will avoid our losing one.

On paper there are several ways that Germany can be re-armed. On paper the same French Government that sponsored the death of the E.D.C. is in favor of Gemman re-armament. That is what Mendes-France told the Assembly, and he denounced anyone who tried to read neautralism into his policies. The only conditions he mentioned was that German arms be under suitable controls.

One way of getting German re-armament is to give the Bonn government soverignty and then make West Germany a full partner in NATO. But this France would veto. It would not provide the desired controls. Another proposal is to set up a little NATO consisting of the six E.D.C. states plus Britain. This is a French idea, perhaps part of the strategy to saddle on Britain the failure to create a European Army. But the British are the pivotal member of a far-flung Commonwealth, and they also still own colonies. They show no sign of being ready to give up their world position to operate as a counter-balance against Germany in France's interest.

The next step will be to give the Bonn government a large degree of soverignty though not the whole of it. It will not have free rein to raise an army or re-build its munitions industry. But when this limited soverignty is granted, negotiations about re-armament will get down to brass tacks and then will raise another obstruction. It will be Germany's rejection of the controls over its military establishment which France will insist on having. The Germans had accepted the limitations of E.D.C. because ther were being subordinated to Europe, to something supra-national. They are not inclined to settle for a second-class position among soverign states. France has already shown it fears Germany more than the Soviet Union, and has refused to accord the Germans a first-class place. So unless France, or Germany or indeed Britain changes its mind, German re-armament is going to be extremely hard to bring about.

A further possibility remains, which was thrown out - perhaps thoughtlessly - in Washington today. It is that the United States by-pass France and build a security system in Europe based on Germany and Spain. The trouble with this idea, is that it wouldn't be a security system. A by-passed France most likely would become a neautralized France, and lying behind Germany would make the system about as unstable as can be imagined. Besides, the plan would throw away the basic idealogical concept of the free world.

So the difficulties are enormous. One has to hope that they can be solved. But surely it will not help solve them to hide them away and to pretend cheerfully that they don't exist.

This is Ed Murrow....I'll be back in a moment with a footnote to the day's news....But first, Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: France's decision to kill the European Defense plan has now put the other nations of the free world in a difficult position. If it is true, as Edmund Burke once said, that "difficulty is a sever instructor", then we might learn somet ing from this observation by John Winant that "whatever we accomplish is of little importance, because what we accomplish is always measured by what others do in relation to it. Good nite and Good Luck.

Thursday, Sept. 2, 1954

This is the news:

The West German government today demanded "full and UNLIMITED soverignty", in return for contributing to the western military alliance. In the wake of the French defeat of the European Army proposal, the West Germans no longer will accept the limited freedom promised them in the past. And Chairman Wiley of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, who conferred with Chancellor Adenauer today, told reporters he feels "the west German government must have full soverignty restored forthwith."

Britian's former Prime Minister Atlee held a newsconference in Hong Kong today, and reviewed his conclusions formed in 18 days in Communist China. Atlee said the Communist Leader Mao Tze Tung urged him to try to get a change in American foreign policy.. to try to persuade America to pull its fleet out of the Formosa straits, and to stop rearming Germany and Japan. Atlee says he told Mao to try to get the Russians to mend their ways..to try to get the Russians to stop the infiltration of other nations.. and to get the Soviet Union to free her satellites states. Atlee also urged Mao to work for a reduction in Soviet arms and greater freedom for Soviet citizens. Atlee also reported that despite protestations for peace by the Chinese Communist leaders, they drop all peace talk when discussing Formosa, headquarters of the Chinese Nationalists. Atlee says the sentiment for "taking" Formosa runs high in Red China.

In Washington today the American legion convention elected Seaborn P. Collins a 41-year-old former World War Two transport pilot, as its new national commander. And the convention expressed concern that the Eisenhower Administration may be substiuting a diplomatic policy of massive appeasement for a defense policy of massive retaliation. The Legion also approved a resolution saying that since the Indo-China settlement, we have been placed in a position of "being requested by our allies to surrender to them first, as a prelude to surrendering to Communism." The Legion approves the immediate re-arming of West Germany.

Harold E. Fellows, the president of the National Association of Radio and Television Broadcasters, told the Legion that the principle of a free press is threatened in this country..particularly in Washington. He referred to the Watkins' committee's decision to ban radio and televis ion coverage of its investigation of Senator Mc Carthy.

A week ago tonight CBS President Frank Stanton urged that radio and television be allowed to cover these hearings. And tonight Judge Harold R. Medina will reply to Stanton over many of these stations at 10:15 p.m. eastern time. In his prepared text, Judge Medina argues that radio and television inspire witnesses to "put on an act".. and make it impossible to get at "that submerged but precious kernel of truth." Judge Medina recognizes that watching congressional proceedings is fun..instructive, in a way. But he believes the real question is "wether television and radio interfere with the ascertainment of the true facts."

Chairman Watkins of the special committee investigating cesnure charges against Senator Mc Carthy said today the committee refuses to be drawn into a public wrangle with Mc Carthy over wther Committee Member Johnson of Colorado is biased against him. Today Mc Carthy renewed his charge against Senator Johnson. And he accused Senator Watkins of having said that it is not necessary for every committee member to be impartial. Watkins told reporters:"I don't think I said that at all."

The House un-American activities committee said today that the Communist party is now sending college-trained men and women into the nation's basic industries. The committee estimates that nearly 100 of these persons.. called "colonizers".. have been sent into Michigan to work on automobile assembly lines.

The President today killed by a pocket veto the so-called un-American trout bill. It would have penalized with a prison term and fines persons who did not label foreign-produced trout served in public places . Mr. Eisenhower said the bill is discriminatory and oppressive against foreign trade. The announcement came as Mr. Eisenhower and former President Hoover broke up their trout fishing camp in Fraser, Colorado.. with the President preparing to return to Denver.

And the President today designated Hurricane-struck areas of Massachusetts and Rhode Island as major disaster areas..eligible for federal aid.

Edward R. Murrow: September 2, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

It is usual, and Probably quite correct, in explaining the growing troubles of the world, to blame some of them on the rise of extremism. We have just seen an illustration of this in the defeat of the European Defense Community by the French Assembly. We know it was beaten by the extreme right and the extreme left working together, the Gaullists voting with the Communists. Both were aiming to destroy a great constructive measure produced by enlightened moderation. But there are two ways to present the same fact. The troubles of democracy may be due to the rise of extremism. But the rise of extremism is due to the weakening of the middle. When extremism gains, its help can only come from the middle. And it may be more useful to study what is happening to the middle than to complain only about the victories of the extremists. This examination can be made in all the democracies, not only France, and certainly in our own. Indeed the world crisis as such may be better understood if one starts with the confusion of the middle in dealing with its problems. I shall ~~speak~~ talk about France tonight, but I hope to come back to the theme as it bears on other countries in later broadcasts.

All the headlines about the defeat of the E.D.C. concentrated on the defeat of the European Army. But much more was defeated, for European federation was lost. The Federation was to be much more than a military community, it had permanent economic and political features. It was to enlarge the European market, take European enterprise out of the strait-jacket of customs barriers, and make it possible to raise living standards of many nations. It was going to wipe away narrow political nationalism, and prevent in the future the conflicts that have kept Europe at war, or on the brink of war, much of the last thousand years. It was not just burying the hatchet between France and Germany, it was merging the lives and the activities of the two nations in a new community.

The Germans, after coming close to destroying the Western Democracies in the two biggest wars ever fought, were being put to the service of all Western Europe. They were to cease the dangerous preoccupation with their own national aims. European unity has been a dream of far-sighted men for generations. And the plan for it finally emerged from what I have called the political middle. The greatest protagonists of it over the last decades have been the left wing of the middle. But like so many other measures needing left-wing pioneering, the whole middle adopted it as its own.

When it became clear that German troops were essential to the defense of Western Europe against possible Soviet conquest, the French middle took up the Federation idea and proposed a European Army serving a new European entity. To get the thing going the Schumann plan of a coal and steel community was launched first. Its adoption proved good faith all around. It was adopted and is still functioning.

I repeat that the defense community was beaten by the nationalist Gaullists voting with the Communists, both of whom wanted to kill federation, partly because it was federation. But a study of the vote shows the astonishing fact that the E.D.C. was just as clearly beaten by the middle itself, and notably by the French socialists. To consider the socialists alone, had they voted in a body for E.D.C. it would have won 317 to 266, which is about the margin by which it was beaten. Fifty-three Socialists voted against the treaty, fifty for it. All these Socialist deputies were under orders to support the treaty from the National Socialist Council, the grass-roots organization of the party. Since then, as a result of the vote, four top Socialist leaders, including Jules Moch and Daniel Mayer, have been expelled from the party, and the disobedient deputies have been told they are not to speak or vote any longer as representatives of the party.

Other parties of the French middle also split on the E.D.C., and so helped defeat it. But the action of the Socialists was a breach of party disciplines and somehow appears more flagrant.

One reason for the French Socialist split was the attitude of other European Socialists. German social-democrats, being in the opposition to Dr. Adenauer and the Christian Democrats, opposed E.D.C. for strategic reasons. That had some influence in Paris. But the British Labor Party counted still more heavily. At first the Labor Party liked the E.D.C. and liked the prospect of Germans in a European Army. But a few months ago Aneurin Bevan launched a campaign against German re-armament. That cooled down the Labor Party leadership on the E.D.C. itself. This had a marked effect on the French Socialists. Enthusiastic Labor Party urging could have swung most of the French deputies into line.

The E.D.C. was not a statesmen's masterpiece. It may even have been in parts unworkable in important respects. But no member of the middle - anywhere - would say that it was not better as it stood than the loss of federation and the triumphant victory of nationalism and communism. It is all the more enigmatic, this combined socialist default, because now there is little hope for a federation that socialists can help shape. They will have a hard time giving their followers, and history, a convincing explanation how this could happen.

The collapse of the European Defense Plan has undoubtedly aroused the fears of the free nations of the world as to what the future may hold. Seneca once remarked that "the mind anxious about the future is full of misery." And that is the case at the moment, even though Anatole France counseled:"He is wise who places neither fear nor hope in the uncertain future."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

6 min

It is usual, and quite correct, in explaining the growing troubles of the world, to blame some of them on the rise of extremism. We have just seen an illustration of this in the defeat of the EDC by the French Assembly. We know it was beaten by the extreme right and the extreme left working together, the Gaullists voting with the Communists. Both were aiming to destroy a great constructive measure produced by enlightened moderation. But there are two ways to present the same fact. The troubles of democracy may be due to the rise of extremism. But the rise of extremism is due to the weakening of the middle. When extremism gains its help can only come from the middle. And it may be more useful to study what is happening to the middle than to complain only about the victories of the extremists. This examination can be made in all the democracies, not only France, and certainly in our own. Ineed the world crisis as such may be better understood if one starts with the confusion of the middle in dealing with its problems. I shall speak about France tonight, but I hope to come back to the theme as it bears on other countries in later broadcasts.

All the headlines about the defeat of the EDC concentrated on the defeat of the European army. But much more was defeated, for European federation was lost. The Federation was to be much more than a military community, it had permanent economic and political features. It was to enlarge the European market, take European enterprise out of the straightjacket of customs barriers, and make it possible to raise living standards of many nations. It was going to wipe away narrow political nationalism, and prevent in the future the conflicts that have kept Europe at war, or on the brink of war, much of the last thousand years. It was not just burying the hatchet between France and Germany, it was merging the lives and the activities of the two nations in a new community.

The Germans, after coming close to destroying the Western Democracies in the two biggest wars ever fought were being put to the service of all Western Europe, They were to cease the dangerous preoccupation with their own national aims. European unity has been a dream of farsighted men for generations. And the plan for it finally emerged from what I have called the political middle. The greatest protagonists of it over the last decades have been the left wing of the middle. But like so many other measures that needed left-wing pioneering, the whole middle adopted it as its own.

When it became clear that Germans troops were essential to the defense of Western Europe against possible Soviet conquest, the French middle took up the Federation idea and proposed a European army serving a new European entity. To get the thing going the Schumann plan of a coal and steel community was launched first. Its adoption proved good faith all around. It was adopted and is still functioning.

I repeat that the defense community was beaten by the nationalist Gaullists voting with the Communists, both of whom wanted to kill federation, partly because it was federation. But a study of the vote shows the astonishing fact that the EDC was just as clearly beaten by the middle itself, and notably by the French socialists. To consider the socialists alone, had they voted in a body for EDC it would have won 317 to 266, which is about the margin by which it was beaten. Fiftythree Socialists voted against the treaty, fifty for it. All the Socialist deputies were under orders to support the treaty from the National Socialist Council, the grass-roots organization of the party.

Since then as a result of the vote, four top Socialist leaders, including Jules Moch and Daniel Mayer, have been expelled from the party, and the disobedient deputies have been told they are not to speak or vote any longer as representatives of the party.

¶ Other parties of the French middle also split on the EDC, and so helped defeat it. But the action of the Socialists was a breach of party disciplines and somehow appears more flagrant.

¶ One reason for the French Socialist split was the attitude of other European Socialists. German social-democrats, being in the opposition to Dr. Adenauer and the Christian Democrats, opposed EDC for strategic reasons. That had some influence in Paris. But the British Labor Party counted still more heavily. At first the Labor Party liked the EDC and liked the prospect of Germans in a European army. But a few months ago Aneurin Bevan launched a campaign against German rearmament. That cooled down the Labor Party leadership on the EDC itself. This had a marked effect on the French Socialists. Enthusiastic Labor Party urging could have swung most of the French deputies into line.

¶ The EDC was not a statemen's masterpiece. It may even have been in parts unworkable in important respects. But no member of the middle--anywhere--would say that it was not better as it stood than the loss of federation and the triumphant victory of nationalism and communism. It is all the more enigmatic, this combined socialist default, because now there is little hope for a federation that socialists can help shape. They will have a hard time giving their followers, and history, a convincing explanation how this could happen.

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
CBS RADIO NETWORK
Thurs- Sept 2
[redacted]
7:45-8:00 P.M. E.S.T.

This is the news:

The West German government today demanded "full and unlimited sovereignty" in return for contributing to the western military alliance. In the wake of the French defeat of the European Army proposal, the West Germans no longer will accept the limited Freedom promised them in the past. And Chairman Wiley of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, who conferred with Chancellor Adenauer today, told reporters he feels "the west German government must have full soverignty restored forthwith."

Britain's former Prime Minister Atlee held a news conference in Kong today, and reviewed his conclusions formed in 18 days in Communists China. Atlee said the Communist Leader Mao Tze Tung urged him to try to get a change in American foreign policy...to try to persuade America to pull its fleet out of the Formosa straits and to stop rearming Germany and Japan. Atlee says he told Mao to try to get the Russians to mend their ways..to try to get the Russians to stop infiltrating other nations... and to get the Soviet Union to free her satellites. Atlee also urged Mao to work for a reduction in Soviet arms, and greater freedom for Soviet citizens. Atlee also reported that despite protestations for peace by the Chinese Communist leaders they drop all peace talk when discussing Formosa, headquarters of the Chinese Nationalists. Atlee says the sentiment for "taking" Formosa runs high in Red China.

In Washington today the American legion convention elected Seaborn P. Collins a 41-year-old former World War Two transport pilot, as its new national commander. And the convention expressed concern that the Eisenhower Administration may be substituting a diplomatic policy of massive retaliation. The Legion also approved a resolution saying that since the Indo-China settlement we have been placed in a position of "being requested by our allies to surrender to them first, as a prelude to surrendering to Communism." The Legion approves the immediate re-arming of West Germany.

Harold E. Fellows, the president of the National Association of Radio and Television Broadcasters, told the Legion that the principle of a free press is threatened in this country ...particularly in Washington. He referred to the Watkins committee's decision to ban radio and television coverage of its investigation of Senator McCarthy.

A week ago tonight CBS President Frank Stanton urged that radio and television be allowed to cover these hearings. And tonight Judge Harold R. Medina will reply to Stanton over many of these stations at 10:15 p.m. eastern time. In his prepared text, Judge Medina argues that radio and television inspire witnesses to "put on an act"...and make it impossible to get at "that submerged but precious kernel of truth." Judge Medina recognizes that watching congressional proceedings is fun...instructive, in a way. But he believes the real question is "whether television and radio interfere with the ascertainment of the true fact."

Chariman Watkins of the special committee investigating censure charges against Senator McCarthy said today the committee refuses to be drawn into a public wrangle with McCarthy over whether Committee Member Johnson of Colorado is biased against him. Today McCarthy renewed his charge against Senator Johnson. And he accused Senator Watkins of having said that it is not necessary for every committee member to be impartial. Watkins told reporters: "I don't think I said that at all."

The House un-American activities committee said today that the Communist party is now sending college-trained men and women into the nation's basic industries. The committee estimates that nearly 100 of these persons called "colonizers"..have been sent into Michigan to work on automobile assembly lines.

The President today killed by a pocket veto the so-called un-American trout bill. It would have penalized with a prison term and fines, persons who did not label foreign-produced trout served in public places. Mr. Eisenhower said the bill is "discriminatory and oppressive against foreign trade. The announcement came as Mr. Eisenhower and former President Hoover broke up their trout fishing camp in Fraser, Colorado...with the President preparing to return to Denver. And the President today designated Hurricane-struck areas of Massachusetts and Rhode Island as major disaster areas.... eligible for federal aid.

It is usual, and probably quite correct, in explaining the growing troubles of the world, to blame some of them on the rise of extremism. We have just seen an illustration of this in the defeat of the European Defense Community by thr French Assembly. We know it was beaten by the extreme right and the extreme left working together, the Gaullists voting with the Communists. Both were aiming to destroy a great constructive measure produced by enlightened moderation. But there are two ways to present the same fact. The troubles of democracy may be due to the rise of extremism. But the rise if extremism is due to the weakening of the middle. When t extremism gains, its help can only come from the middle. And it may be more useful to study what is happening to the middle than to complain only about the victories of the extremists. This examination can be made in all the democracies, not only France, and certainly in our own. Indeed the world crisis, as such, may be better understood if one starts with the confusion of the middle in dealing with its problems. I shall talk about France tonight, but I hope to come back to the theme as it bears on other countries in later broadcasts.

All the headlines about the defeat of the E.D.C. concentrated on the defeat of the European Army. But much more was defeated, for European federation was lost. The Federation was to be much more than a military community, it had permanent economic and political features. It was to enlarge the European market, take European enterprise out of the straight-jacket of customs barriers, and make it possible to raise living standards of many nations. It was going to wipe away narrow political nationalism, and prevent in the future the conflicts that have kept Europe at war, or on the brink of war, much of the last thousand years. It was not just burying the hatchet between France and Germany, it was merging the lives and the activities of the two nations in a new community.

The Germans, after coming close to destroying the Western Democracies in the two biggest wars ever fought, were being put to the service of all Western Europe. They were to cease the dangerous preoccupation with their own national aims. European unity has been a dream of far-sighted men for generations. And the plan for it finally emerged from what I have called the political middle. The greatest protagonists of it over the last decades have been the left wing of the middle. But like so many other measures needing left-wing pioneering, the whole middle adopted it as its own.

When it became clear that German troops were essential to the defense of Western Europe against possible Soviet conquest, the French middle took up the Federation idea and proposed a European Army serving a new entity. To get the thing going the Schumann plan of a coal and steel community was launched first. Its adoption proved good faith all around. It was adopted and is still functioning.

I repeat that the defense community was beaten by the nationalist Gaullists voting with the Communists, both of whom wanted to kill federation, partly because it was federation. But a study of the vote shows the asonishing fact that the E.D.C. was just as clearly beaten by the middle itself, and notably by the French socialists. To consider the socialists alone, had they voted in a body for E.D.C. it would have won 317 to 266, which is about the margin by which it was beaten. Fifty-three Socialists voted against the treaty, fifty for it. All these Socialist deputies were under orders to support the treaty from the National Socialist Council, the grass-roots organization of the party. Since then, as a result of the vote, four top Socialist leaders, including Jules Moch and Daniel Mayer, have been expelled from the party, and the disobediant deputies have been told they are not to speak or vote any longer as representatives of the party.

Other parties of the French middle also split on the E.D.C., and so helped defeat it. But the action of the Socialists was a breach of party disciplines and somehow appears more flagrant. One reason for the French Socialist split was the attitude of other European Socialists. German social-democrats, being in the opposition to Dr. Adenauer and the Christian Democrats, opposed E.D.C. for strategic reasons. That had some influence in Paris. But the British Labor Party counted still more heavily. At first the Labor Party liked the E.D.C. and liked the prospect of Germans in a European Army. But a few months ago Aneurin Bevan launched a campaign against German re-armament. That cooled down the Labor Party leadership on the E.D.C. itself. This had a marked effect on the French Socialists. Enthusiastic Labor Party urging could have swung most of the French deputies into line.

The E.D.C. was not a statesman's masterpiece. It may even have been in parts unworkable in important respects. But no member of the middle-anywhere - would say that it was not better as it stood than the loss of federation and the triumphant victory of nationalism and communism. It is all the more enigmatic, this combined socialist default, because now there is little hope for a federation that socialists can help shape. They will have a hard time giving their followers, and history, a convincing explanation how this could happen.

This is Ed Murrow.....I'll be back in a moment. But first, Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: The collapse of the European Defense Plan has undoubtedly aroused the fears of the free nations of the world as to what the future may hold. Seneca once remarked that "the mind anxious about the future is full of misery." And that is the case at the moment, even though Anatole France counseled: "He is wise who places neither fear nor hope in the uncertain future."

Good nite and good luck!

Friday, Sept. 3, 1954

This is the news:

The Chinese NATIONALISTS on Formosa report that Chinese Communists have shelled two small islands off the China Coast for more than five hours. The islands are Quemoy and Little Quemoy.. 100 miles west of Formosa. The attack came from the Communist-held island of Amoy. There is no indication whether this was basically a political attack or POSSIBLY the start of an attempt to seize the island.

The French in Indo-China report that captured General de de Castries, the hero of Dien Bien Phu, was not among French prisoners RELEASED by the enemy today. TODAY was the deadline for exchanging war prisoners.

The French ambassador to Australia announced tonight that a former second secretary in the embassy in Sydney.. a woman.. has been arrested on charges of furnishing information to a Communist spy network in Australia.

Secretary of State Dulles arrived in Manila for the Southeast Asian conference, and called it "one of the most important international conferences of our time." But Philippine President Magsaysay and other important Asian leaders are reported to feel that chances for success have been hurt because British Foreign Secretary Eden will not attend. Magsaysay says this will indicate to the Communists that Britain does not consider the Manila conference of top importance. Lord Reading has been designated to represent the British.

French Premier Mendes-France announced today that he will visit the United States about the 24th of September..for the opening of the United Nations general assembly. Three French cabinet members resigned today..protesting the way the premier handled the European Defense Community treaty. But the cabinet is not threatened because the National Assembly is not in session.

In Paris today, Chairman Wiley of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, told reporters that he is opposed to any seperate American arrangement with West Germany for defense. He says:"I will not concede that E.D.C. is dead." And Chairman Short of the House Armed Services Committee said in Germany that French Premier Mendes-France is "skating on thin ice. " He feels that if the re-arming of West Germany is further delayed "we might lose her."

In Jerusalem today the Jordan-Isreali mixed armistice commission condemned Isreal for what it called "a most flagrant violation of the general armistice agreement." An estimated 800 Isreali soldiers are said to have raided Jordan territory Wednesday night. Isreal has boycotted this mixed commission for several months.

British sources reported today that Prime Minister Churchill has sent the President a secret report on the growing European army crisis. But the President's news secretary, James Hagerty told reporters that Mr. Eisenhower and Sir Winston are in constant communication.. he refused to say whether this concerns the Europan army crisis.

Today the President signed a bill that makes peacetime espionage subject to the death penalty. In the past the death penalty could not be imposed for peace-time espionage..although this is the penalty during war. The new law also provides for prison sentences up to life. (in the past the law placed a maximum of 20 years on such sentences.)

Mr. Eisenhower today made a special appeal to all car drivers to "fool the experts" over the Labor Day week-end..and reduce holiday traffic accidents. The President issued a statement saying: "Let's be careful this week-end. Let's stay alert. Let's remember the simple rules of the road. Let's fool the experts. Let's all be alive next Tuesday."

Foreign Aid Director Stassen said today that he is going to split a big order for railway equipment 50-50 between foreign producers, who offered low bids, and American firms who bid up to twice as high. A Japanese firm, for example, bid roughly 81-thousand dollars to make a locomotive on which the American bid was 178-thousand. But Stassen says while the decision to split the order will add 7-million dollars to costs, it will give relief to depressed unemployment areas in this country.

Chairman Watkins of the Senate committee considering censure charges against Senator Mc Carthy told reporters today: he has detected no bias among the committee members. Watkins says his committee is "as fair a group as you can find in the Senate." And he says he has not been able to find any prejudice in the committee against Senator McCarthy. Watkins says the actual jury in the McCarthy case is the whole Senate.. which will finally vote on whatever report his committee makes.

Edward R. Murrow: September 3, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

The [redacted] Committee, which will report to the Senate on the censure of Senator McCarthy, yesterday ended its first week of work and finished compiling most of the evidence on which the report will be based. So much material has been published in connection with other McCarthy hearings, it may reduce confusion to state simply what this one is doing, what the charges against Senator McCarthy are, and what can come of them.

Thirteen charges have been chosen by the Watkins Committee for analysis. Others may follow, growing out of the findings of the Mundt committee in the Army-McCarthy dispute and the evidence it heard. But that is not certain. As things now stand the Senate will vote censure, or decide not to, on the basis of the committee's judgment of the thirteen accusations.

Some of the thirteen charges overlap, so the committee has lumped them under five headings. The first is that Senator McCarthy showed contempt of the Senate in refusing to appear to answer questions to the Senate sub-Committee on Privileges and elections in 1952. Senator Fulbright's amendment to the censure resolution said that McCarthy was invited repeatedly to testify by Senator Gillette, and that "he denounced the committee and contemptuously refused to comply with the request." Senator Flanders in his amendment, said: "He (McCarthy) has continued to show his contempt for the Senate by failing to explain in any manner the six charges contained in the Hennings-Hayden-Hendrickson report. This involved bank transactions, possible income tax evasions and the Lustron deal. The taint persists until he satisfactorily explains these matters which he refuses to do, although invited six times to appear during the 82nd Congress."

Senator Watkins has ruled that the 83rd Congress can decide whether McCarthy was in contempt of the Senate in the 82nd Congress, though it cannot pass on the truth or falsity of the charges he refused to answer.

The second heading of charges deals with incidents of encouragement of United States employees to violate the law and their oaths of office or executive orders. Here the charges as stated in amendments to the censure resolution by Flanders, Morse and Fulbright are virtually the same.

The third heading has to do with the celebrated "two-and-a-quarter page letter"Senator McCarthy told the Mundt committee he had received from an Army officer. As Senator Morse put the charge, Senator McCarthy "received and made use of confidential information unlawfully obtained from a document in executive files, upon which document the F.B.I. had placed its highest classification; and offered such information to a lawfully constituted Senate Committee in the form of a spurious document falsely asserted to be a letter from the F.B.I." To this Senator Flanders added the accusation that Senator McCarthy permitted the document to fall into the hands of a gossip columnist.

The fourth heading is of incidents involving Senator McCarthy's abuses of Senatorial colleagues. The Flanders amendment named Senator Hendrickson and himself as having been abused. Senator Morse added the names of Gillette and Monroney.

The fifth and final heading has to do with Brigadier General Ralph Zwicker. Senator Fulbright charged that "without justification" McCarthy impugned his "loyalty, patriotism and character." Senator Flanders went further, charging that McCarthy "attacked, defamed and besmirched military heroes, either as witnesses before his committee or under the cloak of immunity of the Senate floor" and in parenthesis named General Zwicker and General Marshall.

Such charges make this a new kind of McCarthy hearing. Still more severe charges arose during Senator Benton's attempt to have McCarthy expelled from the Senate. But there now is a huge difference. This time Senator McCarthy cannot side-step. For the first time as Senator, he faces the one body that has the constitutional power to punish him, the Senate itself. This time it is the entire Senate that has ordered a committee to report on a motion of censure.

So now he cannot display his considerable talents for browbeating witnesses, or slip away from awkward questions by digressions.

The Senator made one try of his technique of raising objections and then continuing to drown out the voice of the chairman. He did it often to Senator Mundt. But Senator Watkins grimly refused to back away, and when pressed, simply recessed the hearing. After that Senator McCarthy remained silent and seemed dejected.

Next week he and his attorney present the defense, and while they will be hemmed in by any ruling by Senator Watkins that their arguments are irrelevant, they hope for wide latitude. Certainly a livelier time is to be expected.

But it will not be like the Army-McCarthy hearings. These will ~~be~~ approach the stern and strictly regulated proceedings of a legal trial. For once Senator McCarthy's uncanny skill in playing up to an audience beyond the hearing room will be of no avail. To be sure, there is an audience beyond the hearing room, but it is not the public, it is the Senate, this time the sole judge in the case. And everyone - Senator McCarthy included - must know that what this committee decides, while it is not a verdict, is not likely to be softened by ~~that judge~~ the Full Senate.

We have reached the last holiday weekend of the summer. And on the eve of Labor Day, these words by Shelly would seem appropriate: "There is no real wealth but the labor of man. Were the mountains of gold and the valleys of silver, the world would not be one grain of corn the richer; no one comfort would be added to the human race." We trust you'll have a pleasant weekend...drive carefully.

Good Nite and Good Luck!

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
CBS RADIO NETWORK

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 3, 1954
7:45--8:00 P.M. E.S.T.

This is the news:

The Chinese Nationalists of Formosa report that Chinese Communists have shelled two small islands off the China Coast for more than five hours. The islands are Quemoy and Little Quemoy...100 miles west of Formosa. The attack came from the Communist-held island of Amoy. There is no indication whether this was basically a political attack or possibly the start of an attempt to seize the island.

The French in Indo-China report that captured General deCastries, the hero of Dien Bien Phu, was not among the French prisoners released by the enemy today. Today was the deadline for exchanging war prisoners.

The French ambassador to Australia announced tonight that a former second secretary in the embassy in Sydney...a woman..has been arrested on charges of furnishing information to a Communist spy network in Australia.

Secretary of State Dulles arrived in Manilla for the Southeast Asian conference and called it "one of the most important international conferences of our time." But Phillipine President Magaysay and other important Asian leaders are reported to feel that chances for success have been hurt because British Foreign Secretary Eden will not attend. Magsaysay says this will indicate to the Communists that Britain does not consider the Manila conference of top importance. Lord Reading has been designated to represent the British.

French Premier Mendes-France announced today that he will visit the United States about the 24th of September...for the opening of the United Nations general assembly. Three French cabinet members resigned today..

protesting the way the premier handled the European Defense Community treaty. But the cabinet is not threatened because the National Assembly is not in session.

In Paris today, Chairman Wiley of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, told reporters that he is opposed to any separate American arrangement. with West Germany for defense. He says:"I will not concede that E.D.C. is dead." And Chairman Short of the House Armed Services Committee said in Germany that French Premier Mendes-France is "skating on thin ice." He feels that if the re-arming of West Germany is further delayed "we might lose her."

In Jerusalem today the Jordan-Israeli mixed armistice commission condemned Israel for what it called "a most flagrant violation of the general armistice agreement." An estimated 800 Israeli soldiers are said to have raided Jordan territory Wednesday night. Israel has boycotted this mixed commission for several months.

British sources reported today that Prime Minister Churchill has sent the President a secret report on the growing European army crisis. But the President's news secretary, James Hagerty told reporters that Mr. Eisenhower and Sir Winston are in "constant communication..." he refused to say whether this concerns the European army crisis.

Today the President signed a bill that makes peacetime espionage subject to the death penalty. In the past the death penalty could not be imposed for peace-time espionage...although this is the penalty during war. The new law also provides for prison sentences up to life...in the past the law placed a maximum of 20 years on such sentences.

Mr. Eisenhower today made a special appeal to all car drivers to "fool the experts" over the Labor Day week-end...and reduce holiday traffic accidents. The President issued a statement saying:"Lets be careful this week-end. Let's stay alert. Let's remember the simple rules of the road. Let's fool the experts. Let's all be alive next Tuesday."

Foreign Aid Director Stassen said today that he is going to split a big order for railway equipment 50-50 between foreign producers who offered low bids and American firms who bid up to twice as high. A Japanese firm, for example, bid roughly 81-thousand dollars to make a locomotive on which the American bid was 178-thousand. But Stassen says while the decision to split the order will add 7-million dollars to costs, it will give relief to depressed employment areas in this country.

Chairman Watkins of the Senate committee sonsidering censure charges against Senator McCarthy told reporters today: he has detected no bias among committee members. Watkins says his committee is "as fair a group as you could find in the Senate." And he says he has not been able to find any prejudice in the committee against Senator McCarthy. Watkins says the actual jury in the McCarthy case is the whole Senate..which will finally vote on whatever report his committee makes.

The Committee, which will report to the Senate on the censure of Senator McCarthy, yesterday ended its first week of work, and finished compiling most of the evidence on which the report will be based. So much material has been published in connection with other McCarthy hearings, it may reduce confusion to state simply what this one is doing, what the charges against Senator McCarthy are, and what can come of them.

Thirteen charges have been chosen by the Watkins Committee for analysis.. Others may follow, growing out of the findings of the Mundt committee in the Army-McCarthy dispute and the evidence it heard. But that is not certain. As things now stand the Senate will vote censure, or decide not to, on the basis of the committee's judgement of the thirteen accusations.

Some of the thirteen charges overlap, so the committee has lumped them under five headings. The first is that Senator McCarthy showed contempt of the Senate in refusing to appear to answer questions to the Senate sub-Committee on Privileges and elections in 1952. Senator Fulbright's amendment to the censure resolution said that McCarthy was invited repeatedly to testify by Senator Gillette, and that "he denounced the committee and contemptously refused to comply with the request."

Senator Flanders in his amendment, said: "He (McCarthy) has continued to show his contempt for the Senate by failing to explain in any manner the six charges contained in the Hennings-Hayden-Hendrickson report. This involved bank transactions, possible income tax evasions and the Lustron deal. The taint persists until he satisfactorily explains these matters which he refuses to do, although invited six times to appear during the 82nd Congress.

Senator Watkins has ruled that the 83rd Congress can decide whether McCarthy was in contempt of the Senate in the 82nd Congress, though it cannot pass on the truth or falsity of the charges he refused to answer.

The second heading of charges, deals with the incidents of encouragement of United States employees to violate the law and their oaths of office or executive orders. Here the charges as stated in amendments to the censure resolution by Flanders, Morse and Fulbright are virtually the same.

The third heading has to do with the celebrated "two-and-a-quarter page letter" Senator McCarthy told the Mundt committee he had received from an Army officer. As Senator Morse put the charge, Senator McCarthy "received and made use of confidentaal information unlawfully obtained from a document in executive files, upon which document the F.B.I. had placed its highest classification; and offered such information to a lawfully constituted Senate Committee in the form of a spurious document falsely asserted to be a letter from the F.B.I." To this Senator Flanders added the accusation that Senator McCarthy permitted the document to fall into the hands of a gossip columnist.

The fourth heading is of incidents involving Senator McCarthy's abuses of Senatorial colleagues. The Flanders amendment named Senator Hendrickson and himself as having been abused. Senator Morse added the names of Gillette and Monroney.

The fifth and final heading has to do with Brigadier General Ralph Zwicker. Senator Fulbright charged that "without justification" McCarthy impugned his "loyalty, patriotism and character." Senator Flanders went further, charging that McCarthy "attacked, defamed and besmirched military heroes, either as witnesses before his committee or under the cloak of immunity of the Senate floor" and in parenthesis named General Zwicker and General Marshall.

Such charges make this a new kind of McCarthy hearing. Still more severe charges arose during Senator Benton's attempt to have McCarthy expelled from the Senate. But there now is a huge difference. This time Senator McCarthy cannot side-step. For the first time as Senator, he faces the one body that has the constitutional power to punish him, the Senate itself. This time is is the entire Senate that has ordered a committee to report on a motion of censure. So now he cannot display his considerable talents for browbeating witnesses, or slip away from awkward questions by digressions.

The Senator made one try of his technique of raising objections and then continuing to drown out the voice of the chairman. He did it often to Senator Mundt. But Senator Watkins grimly refused to back away, and when pressed, simply recessed the hearing. After that Senator McCarthy remained silent and seemed dejected.

Next week he and his attorney present the defense, and while they will be hemmed in by any ruling by Senator Watkins that their arguments are irrelevant, they hope for wide latitude. Certainly a livelier time is to be expected.

But it will not be like the Army-McCarthy hearings. These will approach the stern and strictly regulated proceedings of a legal trial. For once Senator McCarthy's uncanny skill in playing up to an audience beyond the hearing room, will be of no avail. To be sure, there is an audience beyond the hearing room, but it is not the public, it is the Senate, this time the sole judge in the case. And everyone - Senator McCarthy included - must know that what this committee decides, while it is not a verdict, is not likely to be softened by the full Senate.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a moment with a footnote to the days news....but first, Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: We have reached the last holiday weekend of the summer. And on the eve of Labor Day, these words by Shelly would seem appropriate: "There is no real wealth but the labor of man. Were the mountains of gold, and the valleys of silver, the world would not be one grain of corn the richer; no one comfort would be added to the human race." We trust you'll have a pleasant weekend....drive carefully.

Good Night and Good Luck!

Monday September 6, 1954

This is the news:

The nation's first atomic power plant of commercial size was opened in Pennsylvania today. And the President, in a cermony marking the event, announced that a number of our allies have agreed to join in the formation of an agency that would use atomic power for peaceful purposes. I'd like to discuss these developments in a few minutes.

The President today entered the Fitzsimons army hospital in Denver for his annual phsyical check-up. News Secretary Hagerty told reporters at the summer White House: There is nothing wrong with the President...this is just a regular check-up.. he insists on it.. and has been getting it for at least ten years. Mr. Eisenhower will spend the night in the hsopital and be back at his desk tomorrow.

Today the President and Vice President Nixon appealed to both labor and business for more help in the Administration's campaign to end employment discrimination. And in a half million pamphlets being distributed by the President's Committee on government Contracts we are being told: the nation's growing industrial might requires the largest possible (Reserve) of skilled manpower. And, our position of leadership in the world makes it mandatory "that we not be subject to the charge of racial prejudice which is being hurled at us every day by the Communists."

On this Labor Day leaders of both the AF of L and the C.I.O. accused the President and his Administration of "Deserting the common man" in favor of the wealthy and big business. They also charge that Mr. Eisenhower has broken his 1952 campaign promises to labor. James B. Carey, the secretary treasurer of the C.I.O., says the government is now in the hands of what he calls "the Cadillac and country club set." And President George Meany of the A.F. of L. says labor has lost ground under the Eisenhower Administration.

A crewman on that Navy patrol plane shot down by two Russian Migs on Saturday said today he fired about 150 rounds at the Soviet planes.. but it did not good. The attack was made off Siberia. (One of the NAVY plane's crewmembers is missing.) The Russians say we opened fire. We say the Soviet charge is "completely without foundation." And Ordnanceman

Ernest Pinkevich of California says he fired at the Migs only after they had set fire to the plane's starboard wings..~~which soon caught fire.~~

The Chinese Nationalist stronghold on Formosa was ~~blacked~~ (Blacked) out today for the first time since Chiang Kai Shek brought his government there in 1949. An unidentified plane..or planes..appeared over Taipeh. But there is no report of any bombs being dropped. There are now some 2-thousand Americans (in) Taipeh ..most of them attached to a military advisory group.

For a fourth day Chinese Communist artillery attacked Quemoy the little Nationalist island 120 miles from Formosa. Nationalist artillery fired back. And Nationalist planes attacked the Communist guns. They report big clouds of smoke on the nearby island of Amoy..just 7 miles from Nationalist Quemoy.

In Manila, the delegates to the Southeast Asia Treaty conference are reported to have approved five of the ten articles of a draft treaty which would unite them in a common effort to halt Communism in Asia. The Chinese Communist radio says this is all an American plot to get Asians to fight Asians.

In London today, the British suggested September 14th as a date for the proposed nine-power conference on West German rearmament. That's a week from tomorrow. A foreign office spokesman says several countries have offcially accepted this date. Britain would have the United States, the six signers of the European Defense treaty and Canada at the conference.

Start P-3

Prime Minister Churchill today was reported to have cut short a vacation to take charge of British efforts to set up a new European defense system. And West Germany's Chancellor Adenauer, just back from his vacation, is quoted as saying: "I regret that French Premier Mendez-France wanted to destroy the European defense community. What is important to note is that he has no majority behind him."

In Washington today, Democratic Representative Celler of New York accused Scott McLeod, State department security chief, of "ineptitude and failure" in administering the refugee program. And for the second time in less than a month he demanded that McLeod be fired. The law provides for the admission of 209-thousand refugees to this country. Celler says so far only 8-thousand visas have been granted and only 819 refugees actually admitted to the country. McLeod says red tape and the refusal of some foreign governments to comply with the law have hampered the program.

The Watkins Committee investigating censure charges against Senator McCarthy held two secret meetings today. There was no announcement of what was considered. There are reports that the committee hopes to complete its presentation of testimony tomorrow. It would then hear from McCarthy's counsel, Edward Bennett Williams.

The season's fifth tropical storm.. named Edna.. is now reported about 790 miles southeast of Miami. Forecasters predict it will reach hurricane proportions tonight or early tomorrow. The storm's center was last reported northeast of Turks Island. If it continues in the same direction it will threaten most of the Bahama islands and the Florida peninsula.

Governor Byrnes of South Carolina today named Charles E. Daniel, a millionaire industrialist, to fill the unexperied term of the late Senator Maybank. Daniels, a staunch Eisnhower Democrat, will not be a candidate for the six-year-term to which Senator Maybank had been nominated before his death.

Edward R. Murrow: September 6, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

Since the beginning of the atomic age, it seems to this reporter that some kind of giant has stood astride this planet holding in one hand the threat of devastation, destruction and death beyond the power of men's minds to grasp; in the other hand there is the promise of plenty, of revolutionary advances in power, in medicine, in agriculture; (even the possibility that one day there would be no more hungry people on this planet.) The President today chose to speak of the promise - "a historic step forward " he called it, "opening for all of us new avenues to constructive employment, to prosperity, to respite from burdensome toil." He spoke of our first atomic power plant of commercial size, at Shipping Port, Pennsylvania. But then he ranged out and beyond that single plant, (which after all will produce only enough electricity for a hundred thousand people.) He said: "We do not stop with this plant; nor indeed with our own country's hopes and dreams. Our many proposals for peaceful use of the atom have so far been cynically blocked in the councils of the world. But we shall proceed onward. We shall proceed now, under safeguards set forth in our law, to share atomic technology with others of good will."

And the President said: "We have just agreed with a number of other nations to go ahead now with the formation of an international agency which will foster the growth and spread of the new atomic technology for peaceful use. We will set up a school to train people from friendly nations for their own atomic programs.

The President did not name the nations participating in this international agency. But a White House aide, who did not want his name used, said that Britain, Canada, Australia, South Africa and France were among the nations participating, and that other nations will be joining in the program. Mr. Eisenhower left the door open for the Russians, when he said: "We hope that no nation will long stand aloof from the work of this agency."

Today the President took up where he left off last December 8th, when he made the original proposal for peaceful use of atomic energy in a speech to the United Nations. After many months of private negotiation, the Russians decided they wanted no part of it, so now the free world is going ahead on its own. This new international agency, now in the process of creation, will require the approval of Congress before it can come into operation.

It seems to this reporter that there are at least two conclusions to be drawn from this announcement. The first is that the free world now has enough fissionable material to devote some part of it to peaceful research and experimentation; and we are prepared to share our knowledge and know how with our friends.

The second conclusion is rather less obvious. This new agency, if it be pressed forward with vigor, will do more than months of propaganda to persuade millions of non-Communists that our purpose is peace. It is at times difficult for us to understand that there are, in fact, millions of non-Communists in Europe and in ~~Western~~ Asia who regard our country as being a threat to the peace. They speak of our lack of maturity, our lack of first-hand experience of what even an old-fashioned war was like; they are unduly impressed by some of our belligerent oratory, and the ill-concealed talk of preventive war. They are impressed with our power and our production; but they are likewise aware that if war comes, and even if we should win it, the outcome would have no interest for them because in the process they would have been expunged from the map.

~~THXXXXXXXX~~ The construction of a commercial atomic power plant in Pennsylvania does certainly mean, as the President said, that "mankind comes closer to fulfilment of the ancient dream of a new and better earth." This would likewise be true of an atomic power plant in India or ~~PAKISTAN~~ Pakistan, in a valley in South Wales, or in any of the power-starved areas of the world. Here are the beginnings of the promise to counter-balance the threat. If this plan is driven forward with ~~vigor,~~ determination - it will not of course eliminate the threat; but it will provide - entirely aside from its scientific aspects - a massive demonstration of American purpose which the Communists will have difficulty in countering or distorting.

If you're on the road tonite, and driving in heavy traffic, don't take unnecessary chances - even though you're anxious to get home. And, if perhaps you're a little tired and annoyed behind the wheel, remember what the Roman Catulus said:" What is more blessed than to put care aside, and spent with distant travel, we come home again, and rest on the couch we longed for? This, this alone, is worth all such toils."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

Tuesday
Sept 7, 1954

This is the news:

Chinese Nationalist planes today attacked Communist junks along the China Coast. The Nationalist defense ministry says planes and warships continued to attack Red artillery batteries near the Nationalist island of Quemoy. For a second day they struck at Amoy..seven miles from Quemoy. A Nationalist army spokesman says these attacks are a "major retaliation" against the Communists for their bombardment of Quemoy. He says no enemy planes have challenged Nationalist planes or ships. The Peiping radio says three Nationalist planes were shot down and another 20 damaged of the 42 that attacked

Two British newspapers, the Conservative Daily Telegraph and the Laborite "Daily Herald," today urged the United States to stop Nationalist raids on the Chinese mainland. The Daily Herald said in part that "in this situation there is a risk of nasty complications between Britain, which recognizes Red China, and the United States, which does not."

Aneuran Bevan, the left-wing Laborite, said in Hong Kong today that the west must believe "the Communists are at least as sincere as ourselves" in their expressed desires for peaceful contact with the West. And in London, the Daily Mirror called Bevan "the irresponsible master of the indefensible statement" and urged him to keep quiet when he has nothing to say.

Former Prime Minister Atlee was in Darwin, Australia, today and he told reporters there: the West has nothing to fear from Communist China. He said China is too busy looking after its 600 million people.

In Manila, eight nations have just about completed a pact aimed at halting Communist aggression in Asia. I'd like to discuss this development in a few minutes.

And at the United Nations western diplomats predict that the Russians will make a strong diplomatic counter-attack to the United States' demand for Security Council action in the shooting down of an American plane by Soviet Migs.

The President returned to his summer White House desk in denver today after a night in a hospital for a check-up. He told reporters: He feels fine. And Mr. Eisenhower has named a four-man committee..headed by General Clay..to work with the nation's governors and plan a 10-year 50-billion-dollar road building program.

The Watkins committee hearing CENSURE charges against Senator McCarthy today completed taking evidence against the senator. McCarthy was instructed to be prepared to begin his defense tomorrow. Before adjourning today the committee heard Columnist Walter Winchell testify that he did not know who gave him a copy of the so-called F.B.I. letter that was introduced in the Army-McCarthy hearings. Winchell said McCarthy didn't give it to him.. and he doesn't believe it was a member of the Senator's staff. Senator Flanders has charged that in the transmittal of secret documentts to Winchell a "clear violation" of the espionage laws appears to have been involved. He said the letter amounted to a forgery and Mc Carthy appears to have broken the law by concealing the identity of the forger.

Here in New York today four Peurto Rican nationalists pleaded guilty to a charge of conspiring to overthrow our government by force and violence. Thirteen others face trial on the same charge.

In Mississippi, Governor Hugh White called on the legislature to approve a constiutional amendment giving itself power to abolish public schools. White said "we shall resist with every legal means at our command" the recent Supreme Court decision outlawing segregation in the public schools.

Miami's weather forecaster has warned one million persons from Key West to PALM Beach in Florida, to get ready for a dangerous hurricane by tomorrow night. Today, the storm, with winds up to 115-miles an hour, hit the island of San Salvador, where Columbus first landed in the new world. Forecaster Grady Norton says :"She is looking right down on us. At this time I don't see how she can miss the lower half of Florida." The hurricane is expected to reach Nassau early tomorrow morning. In Miami tonight, hotels are throwing up hurricane shutters...outdoor advertising companies are removing billboards.. and boat owners are moving small craft up the Miami River to safety.

In Palo Alto, California, Glenn "pop" Warner, the football coach, died TODAY. He was 83 and had been ill for months with throat cancer.

Here in New York tonight, Governor Dewey will end speculation on his future political plans in a CBS radio and television address. A source close to the Governor says Dewey will announce that he will not run for a fourth term. Dewey is expected to endorse Senator Ives for the Republican nomination.

Hazel
Don't type this is a repeat

Here in New York tonight, Governor Dewey announced that he will not be a candidate for re-election this fall. The Governor said in a radio and television address: "[redacted]

"I have concluded that the time has come for me to return to private life. I shall not under any circumstances be a candidate for any public office this fall."

Edward R. Murrow: September 7, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

The creation of a mutual defense organization by the Manila Conference will be something of an achievement. But it is well to recognize that this organization, as virtually agreed to, cannot exert decisive influence in Southeast Asia. It is proudly called SEATO, as though it were an Asian duplicate of NATO, the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. But it has only the shadow of the substance of NATO. It does not deal with permanently stationed troops in the region, or maintain a supreme command and headquarters. It does not require instant, automatic joint action, to meet aggression against any member. Moreover the Asian organization differs from NATO in that its success depends more on strong economic provisions than on its military structure. The Manila treaty has done no more on the economic side than call vaguely for co-operation.

This is not said critically, but simply to see the results in perspective. It has been written in much the same way that an army after a fateful retreat throws up defenses to protect its new position. It has lost valuable ground and is acting to prevent, if possible, the loss of more. The SEATO treaty could be described as a measure of chastened prudence on the part of the West, to prevent a still greater setback than was suffered at the Geneva conference. Had the non-communist states of Asia joined hands with the Western powers before any of Southeast Asia was lost, the defeat in Indochina might have been averted altogether. That they did not was primarily the fault of the French in being so late in granting complete independence to the Associated States. Collective action was out of the question as long as any colonialism survived there. But it was also the fault of the Western capitals, Washington in particular, in not appraising the military situation well ahead of the catastrophe of Dienbienphu, when time still remained to forge some kind of collective action. But this treaty is pretty much like a padlock painfully designed for the barn door after the horse has been stolen. And it isn't a particularly impressive padlock.

What is good about the treaty is that it is drawn up by Asian states and Western Powers acting as equals. It is not a white man's treaty contrived to maintain the white man's holdings and prestige in Asia. This time there is no taint of colonialism in the matter. And everyone knows that the one and only common danger is the threat of communist expansion.

There have been differences about saying this baldly in the text of the treaty. Secretary Dulles made it clear that approval by the Senate depended on the explicit statement that we are pledged to act only against communist aggression. So it will be set forth in what amounts to a United States reservation. Other conferees, notably the British, regarded such bluntness as needless, and likely to play into the hands of Chinese Communist propaganda.

The states which drafted the new treaty include only three Asian countries, the Philippines, Thailand and Pakistan. The non-communist states which did not go to Manila are India, Burma, Ceylon and Indonesia, who together have far greater population and influence than those who did go. It should be self-evident that a Southeast Asian Treaty Organization, to be fully effective, must include all the non-communist countries of the region. So the work at Manila had better be considered only as a beginning aimed at the ultimate inclusion of all the absent non-Communist countries.

India cannot be expected to take part in a mutual defense system directed against Red China, at least not for a long time. Prime Minister Nehru has warned that the new organization will do more harm than good. But that only emphasizes the importance of the economic mission of the organization. All the states that stayed away from Manila are bogged down in poverty and acutely aware of their need of economic help. All of them recognize that the chief danger of Communist expansion is not through overt military aggression but through infiltration. They know the best defense SEATO will have against infiltration is economic. If the organization can be developed to include a far-reaching economic program, the absent non-Communist states presumably will join. With a good economic program under way Burma and Ceylon, and perhaps even Indonesia could be expected to come in. / So without India it still should be possible to create an organization that is more Asian than Western, and one that would be felt throughout Asia. / The British keep telling us that even India can be won over in time, if the main emphasis is economic, not military. For Nehru stands to lose as much as anyone from Communist infiltration.

The three Asian states at Manila sought firm economic commitments by the Western powers. But they were not to be had. The British recognized the need, but felt they had to go on giving first priority to their own Colombo plan. / France, New Zealand and Australia are in no position to export capital. And Mr. Dulles believed, no doubt rightly, that this Congress is interested only in a military pact, and would shy away from the costly financial outlays the region would need to be put out of the reach of Communist persuasion.

The Manila Conferences obviously leave much to be desired in working out an effective Southeast Asian defense plan. But two Romans...Quintillian and Horace...summed up the situation well when they said:"Whilst we deliberate how to begin a thing, it often grows too late to begin it...he has accomplished half who has made a beginning; so dare to be wise - begin!"

Good Nite and Good Luck!

Wednesday - September 8
1954

This is the news:

The President today called the National Security Council to a special meeting in Denver this Sunday. /The council is the government's top policy group on cold and hot war planning. /This is the first time it has scheduled a meeting outside of Washington. /White House news Secretary Hagerty says the group will hear Secretary of State Dulles report on the new eight nation agreement to combat communist aggression in Asia. /And the State Department says Mr. Dulles will report to the President on Communist attacks on the Chinese Nationalist island of Quemoy.

Mr. Dulles is due on Formosa today, on his way home from the Manila meeting of the Southeast [redacted] Asia Treaty Organization. /He's going to confer with Chiang Kai Shek. /Today, Chiang's planes, including American-made Thunderjets, made the heaviest attack of the week on the Chinese mainland. /Nationalist warships also joined the attack. [redacted] The Nationalists also struck at enemy guns on Amoy island.. five miles from Nationalist Quemoy.

The State Department disclosed today that it plans to take immediate action to strengthen the military position of Arab countries in the Middle East. News Officer Lincoln White told reporters that Egypt and Isreal are among the states that will get our help.

In West Germany today, Chancellor Adenauer asked his cabinet to support his move to postpone a nine-power conference on German re-armament that's scheduled to open in London on Tuesday. And official British sources say they're willing to postpone or cancel the meeting..perhaps in favor of an emergency session of the North Atlantic Treaty Organizations council of ministers.

French sources said today that the French will propose a European "arms pool" to replace the European Defense Community that was killed by the French Assembly.

The British Trades Union Congress today narrowly approved West Germany's rearmament. And because of this some observers think the Labor Party's stand in favor of rearmament may be in for difficulty when the Party holds its conference in three weeks. At today's meeting, Arthur Deakin, Britain's top union leader, attacked those who visit behind the Iron Curtain "where people go and get indoctrinated." He did not specifically mention the visit by former Prime Minister Atlee and eight other Labor party leaders to Moscow and Communist China.

In Washington today, Senator McCarthy took the stand before the Watkins committee which has heard a charge that he abused Brigadier General Zwicker, the former commander at Camp Kilmer. In refering to Zwicker's testimony before his committee, the Senator said: Zwicker was an arrogant, evasive and untruthful witness. He said then, and he repeated today, his (BELIEF) that Zwicker is not fit to wear the uniform of an American general. He charged that the General's attitude before his committee was "one of complete arrogance and contempt." General Zwicker was in the hearing room but was not called to the stand. Earlier. General Lawton, the retired former commander at Fort Monmouth, told the Senators he could not, under a presidential order, testify on conversations he had with Zwicker. Senator McCarthy's counsel charged that Lawton had been "gagged" by the Pentagon. Defense officials denied this.

The Commerce Department reported today that employment increased slightly in August..as unemployment dropped somewhat.

Adlai Stevenson said in Harrisburg, Pennaylvania tonight, that the President's foreign policy "wallows aimlessly and dangerously while a bunch of bickering helmsmen quarrel at the wheel." He said that in the congressional campaign this fall the Democrats must talk issues "whether the Republicans want to or not." He added:"It is the Republicans decision to generate heat; it is still our duty to shed light."

Here in New York, the state Republican executive committee has unanimously recommended Senator Irving Ives to be the Republican candidate for governor. Senator Ives says he is still doing his best to persuade Governor Dewey to run again for a fourth term.

That hurricane that was scheduled to hit the Florida coast tonight is now headed to the north..and may not strike anywhere on the mainland. Grady Norton, Miami's chief forecaster places the center of the 115-mile-an-hour storm some 280 miles east of West Plam Beach. And Norton says:"There is now a possibility that nobody will get hit." Today, Nassau--which had expected to be hit hard--escaped with a 30-mile breeze as the storm veered to the north.

The President today sent a letter to Senator Knowland, California Republican, explaining why we should not break diplomatic relations with Russia. On Sunday Knowland had asked for an immediate diplomatic break. The White House did not make public the President's reply.

Edward R. Murrow: September 8, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

Little Quemoy and Quemoy are islands a hundred miles from Formosa, and respectively five and ten miles from Amoy, just off the mainland of China. The two Quemoys have never been wrenched out of Nationalist possession. Strictly speaking they are not part of the defense of Formosa. They would be ideal stepping-stones if the Nationalists were to be "unleashed", as Secretary Dulles once phrased it, and were to invade the Asian mainland. They also are highly useful observation posts from which to detect Communist preparations to invade Formosa.

The United States is pledged to defend Formosa, and the Seventh Fleet has had the immediate responsibility for that defense since the start of the Korean war. But it never has been made clear just what our obligations include. Some two weeks ago the Department of the Navy disclosed that the orders of the Seventh Fleet cover the Pescadores, which are Nationalist-held islands thirty miles off Formosa in the Strait. And the fleet has visited the Tachen Islands, guarding Formosa's nothern flank. All efforts to learn whether the duties of the Seventh Fleet include the Quemoys have been met by complete silence.

We have had two publicly announced policies about the defense of Formosa. One was proclaimed by President Truman, on June 27, 1950 when South Korea was attacked. The other was stated by President Eisenhower in his State of the Union message on February 2, 1953. President Truman assigned the Seventh Fleet to prevent an attack on Formosa, but he also instructed the Fleet to see that the Nationalist government on Formosa ceased all air and sea operations against the mainland. President Eisenhower, two-and-a-half years later, said that this order meant that the United States Navy was serving as a defensive arm of Communist China. And since by then Chinese Communists were killing U.S. and U.N. soldiers in Korea he instructed the Fleet not to shield Communist China any longer. That is all that the public was told about instructions to the Seventh Fleet until the Pescadores were mentioned last month.

Air and artillery exchanges between Nationalist and Communist forces have now reached the highest pitch since Chiang Kai Shek withdrew from the mainland. It is concentrated in the Amoy-Quemoy region. The Nationalists say they have evidence that the Communists are about to invade the Quemoys. The Reds opened up preparatory action three weeks ago, then began heavy bombardment last Friday. This was the occasion when two American officers, advising the Nationalists on their defenses, were killed. Yesterday Nationalist bombers flew over a hundred sorties against Amoy fortifications and Nationalist destroyers and gunboats shot up assembled invasion junks. Today Chiang's American-made jets went into action and sank ten more junks. But it is doubtful that preparations for invasion have been given up.

Communist China has been talking openly of late about conquering Formosa. Mao Tse-Tung told British Labor leader Attlee that he should work to have the Seventh Fleet withdrawn altogether from Formosa. Mr. Attlee thereupon advocated the neutralization of Formosa. However, the Chinese Communists say they will not accept this, nor will they agree to a U.N. trusteeship for the island. They insist on "liberating" the island, as they put it.

Just about everybody, including this reporter, would like to know just what the American policy is at this moment. It is no academic question. Uncertainty hangs like a pall over both our intentions and those of the Peiping government. Peiping may be heading straight for a showdown over Formosa. It may be content to clear the Nationalists off the Quemoys. Or it may be bluffing. But we do not know whether it is American policy to defend the Quemoys. Neither do the Communists know. If they knew that we would, it might deter them from taking the islands. So we could be expected to say so. The fact that we don't say so, suggests that we have no such commitment, but don't care to advertise the fact, since it might spur on an invasion. In either event war is ~~close.~~ Possible

But if Peiping is in earnest about taking Formosa war is more than ~~close,~~ Possible it is imminent. It has said so much about it so openly that it will lose face at home if it is bluffing. If Peiping's is in earnest it may be counting on the influence of Mr. Attlee to induce the British to break with us over our Formosa policy. Not all the British agree with Mr. Attlee. His own Daily Herald commends his proposal to neutralize Formosa. But the conservative Daily Telegraph writes: "The Seventh Fleet is performing a humane as well as political service in protecting Formosa from any attempt at invasion."

It may just be possible that the activity around the Quemoys, the talk about "liberating" Formosa and the shooting down of an American plane off the Siberian coast are part of a war of nerves conducted to warn Asians to stay out of the Manila mutual defense organization. Now that the treaty has been signed, the provocations may peter out.

The Chinese Communists should have no doubts on one score. It would not have been easy to get Congressional support for sending American forces to Indochina. But there will be no hesitation or delay in supporting the defense of Formosa. Congress was shy about entering a new commitment. It shows no tendency whatever to go back on one openly announced in 1950 and still very much in effect.

Although the tensions are increasing in the general area of Formosa, the record is clear on one thing: we are firmly commited to the defense of that island. George Washington once advised:"Undertake not what you cannot perform, but be careful to keep your promise." Junius put it another way:"Intergrity in men is measured by their conduct, not their professions." Both observations still hold true.

Good Nite and Good Luck!

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
CBS RADIO NETWORK

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 8, 1954
7:45-8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

The President today called the National Security Council to a special meeting in Denver this Sunday. The council is the government's top policy group on cold and hot war planning. This is the first time it has scheduled a meeting outside of Washington. White House news Secretary Hagerty says the group will hear Secretary of State Dulles report on the new eight nation agreement to combat communist aggression in Asia. And the State Department says Mr. Dulles will report to the President on Communist attacts on the Chinese Nationalist island of Quemoy.

Mr. Dulles is due on Formosa today on his way home from the Manila meeting of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization. He's going to confer with Chiang Kai Shek. Today'Chiang's planes, including Ameridan-made Thunderjets , made the heaviest attack of the week on the Chinese mainland. Nationlists also struck at enemy guns on Amoy island...five miles from Nationalist Quemoy.

The State Department disclosed today that it plans to take immediate action to strengthen the military position of Arab countries in the Middle East. News Officer Lincoln White told reporters that Egypt and Israel are among the states that will get our help.

In West Germany today, Chancellor Adenauer asked his cabinet to support his move to postpone a nine-power conference on German re-armament that's scheduled to open in London on Tuesday. And pfficial British sources said they're willing to postpone or cancel the meeting...perhaps in favor of an emergency session of the North Atlantic Treaty Organisation council of ministers.

French sour es said today that the French will propose a European "arms pool" to replace the European Defense Community that was killed by the French Assembly.

The British Trades Union Congress today narrowly approved West Germany's rearmament. And because of this some observers think the Labor Party's stand in favor of rearmament may be in for difficulty when the Party holds its conference in three weeks. At today's meeting, Ar hur Deakin, Britain's top union leader, attacked those who visit behind the Iron Curtain "where pe ple go and get indoctrinated." He did not specifically mention the visit by former Prime Minister Atlee and eight other Labor Party leaders to cow and Communist China.

In Washington today, Senator McCarthy took the stand before the Watkins committee which has heard a charge that he abused Brigadier General Z icker the former commander at Camp Kilmer. In efering to Z icker's testimony before his committee, the Senator said: wicker was an arrogant, evasive and untruthful witness. He said then, and he repeated today, his belief that Zwicker is not fit to wear the uniform of an American general. He charged that the General's attitude before his committee was "one of complete arrogance and contempt." General Zwicker was in the hearing room but was not called to the stand. Earlier, General Lawton, the retired former commander at Fort Monmouth, told the Senators he could not, under a presidential order, testify on conversations he had Zwicker. Senator McCarthy's counsel charged that Lawton had been "gagged" by the Pentagon. Defense officials denied this.

The Commerce Department reported today that employment increased slightly in August ...as unemployment dropped somewhat.

Adlai Stevenson said in Harrisburg, Pennsylvania tonight, that the President's foreign policy "wallows aimlessly and dangerously while a bunch of bickering helmsmen quarrel at the wheel." He said that in the congressional campaign this fall the Democrats must talk issues "whether the Republicans want to or not." He added: "It is the Republicans decision to generate heat; it is still our duty to shed light."

Here in New York, the state Republican executive committee has unanimously recommended Senator Irving Ives to be the Republican candidate for governor. Senator Ives says he is still doing his best to persuade Governor Dewey to run again for a fourth term.

That hurricane that was scheduled to hit the Florida coast tonight is now headed to the north and may not strike anywhere on the mainland. Grady Norton, Miami's chief forecaster places the center of the 115-mile-an-hour storm some 280 miles east of West Palm Beach. And Norton says:"There is now a possibility that nobody will get hit." Today, Nassau--which had expected to be hit hard--excaped with a 30-mile breeze as the storm veered to the north.

The President today sent a letter to Senator Knowland, California Republican, explaining why we should not break diplomatic relations with Russia. On Sunday Knowland asked for an immediate diplomatic break. The White House did not make public the President's reply.

Little Quemoy and Quemoy are islands a hundred miles from Formosa, and respectively five and ten miles from Amoy, just off the mainland of China. The two Quemoys have never been wrenched out of Nationalist possession. Strictly speaking they are not part of the defense of Formosa. They would be ideal stepping-stones if the Nationalists were to be "unleashed", as Secretary Dulles once phrased it, and were to invade the Asian mainland. They also are highly useful observation posts from which to detect Communist preparations to invade Formosa.

The United States is pledged to defend Formosa, and the Seventh Fleet has had the immediate responsibility for that defense, since the start of the Korean war. But it never has been made clear just what our obligations include. Some two weeks ago the Department of the Navy disclosed that the orders of the Seventh Fleet cover the Pescadores, which are Nationalist-held islands thirty miles off Formosa in the Strait. And the fleet has visited the Tachen Islands, guarding Formosa's northern flank. All efforts to learn whether the duties of the Seventh Fleet include the Quemoys have been met by complete silence.

We have had two publicly announced policies about the defense of Formosa. One was proclaimed by President Truman, on June 27, 1950 when South Korea was attacked. The other was stated by President Eisenhower in his State of the Union message of February 2, 1953. President Truman assigned the Seventh Fleet to prevent an attack on Formosa, but he also instructed t the Fleet to see that the Nationalist government on Formosa ceased all air and sea operations against the mainland. President Eisenhower, two-and-a-half years later, said that this order meant that the United States Navy was serving as a defensive arc of Communist China. And since by then Chinese Communists were killing U.S. and U.N. soldiers in Korea he instructed the Fleet not to shield Communist China any longer. That is all that the public was told about instructions to the Seventh Fleet until the Pescadores were mentioned last month.

Air and artillery exchanges between Nationalist and Communist forces have now reached the highest pitch since Chiang Kai Shek withdrew from the mainland. It is concentrated in the Amoy-Quemoy region. The Nationalists say they have evidence that the Communists are about to invade the Quemoys The Reds opened up preparatory action three weeks ago, then began heavy bombardment last Friday. This was the occasion when two American officers, advising the Nationalists on their defenses, were killed. Yesterday Nationalist bombers flew over a hundred sorties against Amoy fortifications and Nationalist destroyers and gunboats shot up assembled invasion junks. Today Chiang's American-made jets went into action and sank ten more junks. But it is doubtful that preparations for invasion have been given up.

Communist China has been talking openly of late about conquering Formosa. Mao tse-Tung told British Labor leader Attlee that he should work to have the Seventh Fleet withdrawn ltogether from Formosa. Mr. Atlee thereupon advocated the Neautralization of Formosa. However, the Chinese Communists say they will not accept this, nor will they agree to a U.N. trusteeship for the island. They insist on "liberating" the island, as they put it.

Just about everybody, including this reporter, would like to know just what the American policy is at this moment. It is no academic question. Uncertainty hangs like a pall over both our intentions and those of the Peiping governemnt. Peiping may be heading straight for a showdown over Formosa. It may be content to clear the Nationalists of the Quemoys. Or it may be bluffing. But we do kot know whether it is American policy to defend the Quemoys. Neither do the Communists know. If they knew that we would, it might deter them from taking the islands. So we could be expected to say so. The fact that we don't say so suggests that we have no such commitment but don't care to advertise the fact, since it might spur on an invasion. In either event war is possible.

But if Peiping is in earnest about taking Formosa war is more than possible...it is imminent. It has said so much about it so openly that it will lose face at home it it is bluffing. If Peiping is in earnest it may be counting on the influence of Mr. Attlee to induce the British to break with us over our Formosa policy. Not all the British agree with Mr. Attlee. His own Daily Herald commends his proposal to neautralize Formosa. But the conservative Daily Telegraph writes;"The Seventh Fleet is performing a humane as well as political service in protecting Formosa from any attempt at invasion." It may just be possible that the activity around the Quemoys, the talk about "liberating" Formosa and the shooting down of an American plane off the Siberian coast are part of a war of nerves conducted to warn Asians to stay out of the Manila mutual defense organization. Now that the treaty has been signed, the provocations may peter out.

The Chinese Communists should have no doubts on one score. It would not have been easy to get Congressional support for sending American forces to Indochina. But there will be no hesitation of delay in supporting the defense of Formosa. Congress was shy about entering a new commitment. It shows no tendency whatever to go back on one openly announced in 1950 and still very much in effect.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a moment with the Word for today, but first, Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: Although the tensions are increasing in the general area of Formosa, the record is clear on one thing: we are firmly commited to the defense of that island. George Washington once advised: "Undertake not what you cannot perform, but be careful to keep your promise." Junius put it another way: "Integrity in men is measured by their conduct, not their professions." Both observations still hold true.

Good Night and Good Luck!

Swing About 5:55 Sept. 8.

Little Quemoy and Quemoy are the islands a hundred miles from Formosa and five and ten miles respectively from Amoy, just off the mainland of China. The two Quemoys have never been wrenched out of Nationalist possession. Strictly speaking they are not part of the defense of Formosa. They would be ideal stepping-stones if the Nationalists were to be "unleashed", as Secretary Dulles once phrased it, and were to invade the Asian mainland. They also are highly useful observation posts from which to detect Communist preparations to invade Formosa.

The United States is pledged to defend Formosa, and the Seventh Fleet has had the immediate responsibility for that defense since the start of the Korean war. But it never has been made clear just what our obligations include. Some two weeks ago the Department of the Navy disclosed that the orders of the Seventh Fleet cover the Pescadores, which are Nationalist-held islands thirty miless off Formosa in the Strait. And the fleet has visited the Tachen Islands, guarding Formosa's northern flank. All efforts to learn whether the duties of the Seventh Fleet include the Quem- have been met by complete silence.

We have had two publicly proclaimed policies about the defense of Formosa. One was by President Truman, on June 27, 1950 when South Korea was attacked. The other was stated by President Eisenhower in his State of the Union message on February 2, 1953. President Truman assigned the Seventh Fleet to prevent an attack on Formosa, but as a corrolary instructed the Fleet to see that the Nationalist government on Formosa ceased all air and sea operations against the mainland. President Eisenhower, two and a half years later, said that this order meant that the United States Navy was serving as a defensive arm of Communist China. And since by then Chinese Communists were killing US and UN soldiers in Korea he instructed the Fleet not to shield Communist China any longer. That is all that the public was told about instructions to the Seventh Fleet until the Pescadores were mentioned last month.

Air and artillery exchanges between Nationalist and Communist forces have now reached the highest pitch since Chiang Kai Shek withdrew from the mainland. It is concentrated in the Amoy-Quemoy region. The Nationalists have evidence that the Communists are about to invade the Quemoys. The Reds opened up preparatory action three weeks ago, then began heavy bombardment last Friday. This was the occasion when two American officers advising the Nationalists on their defenses, were killed. Yesterday Nationalist bombers flew over a hundred sorties against Amoy fortifications and Nationalist destroyers and gunboats shot up assembled invasion junks. Today Chiang's American-made jets went into action and sank ten more junks. But it is doubtful that preparations for invasion have been given up.

Communist China has been talking openly of late aboit conquering Formosa. Mao Tse-tung told British Labor leader Attlee that he should work to have the Seventh Fleet withdrawn altogether from Formosa. Mr. ~~Attlee~~ Attlee ~~has~~ thereupon advocated the neutralisation of Formosa. However ~~but this~~ the Chinese communists say they will not accept this, nor will they ~~any more than that they will~~ agree to a UN trusteeship for the island. They insist on "liberating" the island, as they put it.

Just about everybody, including this reporter, would like to know just what the American policy is at this moment. It is no academic question. Uncertainty hangs like a pall over both our intentions and those of the Peiping government. Peiping may be heading straight for a showdown over Formosa. It may be content to clear the Nationalists off the Quemoys. Or it may be bluffing. But we do not know whether it is American policy to defend the Quemoys. Neither do the Communists know. If they knew that we ~~were~~ would it might deter them from taking the islands. So we could be expected to say so. The fact that we don't say so suggests that we have no such commitment but don't care to advertise the fact, since it might spur on an invasion. In either event war is close.

But if Peiping is in earnest about taking Formosa war is more than close, it is imminent. It has said so much about it so openly that it will lose face at home if it is bluffing. If it is in earnest it may be counting on the influence of Mr. Attlee to induce the British to break with us over our Formosa policy. But Not all the British agree with Mr. Attlee. His own Daily Herald commends his proposal to neutralize Formosa. But the conservative Daily Telegraph writes: "The Seventh Fleet is performing a humane as well as political service in protecting Formosa from any attempt at invasion."

It may just be possible that the activity around the Quemoys, the talk about "liberating" Formosa and the shooting down of an American plane off the Siberian coast are part of a war of nerves conducted to warn Asians to stay out of the Manila mutual defense organization. Now that the treaty has been signed, the provocations may peter out.

¶ The Chinese Communists should have no doubts on one score. It ~~was not possible~~ would not have been easy to get Congressional support for sending American forces to Indochina. But there will be no hesitation or delay in supporting the defense of Formosa. Congress was shy about entering a new commitment. It shows no tendency whatever to go back on one openly announced in 1950 and still very much in effect.

9 Sept 1954 - 7145

~~(standard cue is: Now here is Edward R. Murrow)~~

actually

~~Now~~... This is Larry Le Seur . Ed Murrow is now FLYING somewhere in the Atlantic trying to OBSERVE ~~make contact with~~ Hurricane Edna. ..last reported ~~The eye of Hurricane is~~ some 280 miles east of Daytona Beach. He'll be back ~~Flying this evening, he will be back in the Weather Bureau in New York~~ in the newsroom tomorrow NITE ~~night~~. At last report the Weather Bureau in New York said we won't know until tomorrow morning what to expect from the hurricane in this area. And Miami's Forecaster Grady Norton says "edna" is wobbling..moving unusually slow..and "its anybody's guess what will happen after the next 12 hours."

In North Africa today, the worst earthquake in 40 years struck ~~the~~ Algeria. The governor-general's office estimates that between 300 and 800 persons were killed in their homes or on the heaving streets of one city..Orleansville. The Ministry of Interior in Paris says 350 dead have been counted. Many communication lines have been struck down, so There are no detailed reports from the area. But we do know that in many towns, residents ~~and~~ were caught asleep, with several villages just about wiped out. (There are no American military bases in the area.)

The Nationalist Chinese Defense Ministry says new attacks have been made on Communist China's coastal islands and strongpoints. This was the fourth day of such attacks. There is no word of any activity by Communist Migs. And Secretary of State Dulles, visiting Formosa today, told reporters: "We shall not be intimidated by Communist China's stepped-up military and propaganda campaign" against the Nationalist island of Quemoy. Mr. Dulles said "Nationalist China does not stand alone against the forces of aggression."

And India's Prime Minister Nehru said today that the new southeast Asia treaty is designed to protect nations that may not want protection. He says he fears it reverses what he called "the process of peace" set in motion by Indo-China.

In Washington today the Watkins Committee refused, at least temporarily, to permit Senator McCarthy to introduce the two-and-a-quarter-page document that figured in the Army-McCarthy hearings. Dan Shor covered the hearing for us and here's his summary from Washington:

(runs 3 minutes)

(return cue: And that's the story, Larry)

In Denver today the White House announced that the President will meet on Sunday with Attorney General Brownell and F.B.I. Chief Hoover to discuss the domestic battle against Communism. The meeting will take place just before the National Security Council gathers to hear a report by Secretary Dulles.

Today the President announced a policy for disposing of one billion dollars worth of surplus farm commodities to overseas customers during the next three years. The policy is designed to expand world trade and to avoid "demoralizing world commodity markets."#

Secretary of Agriculture Benson said in Idaho today that the farm vote "isn't for sale to the highest bidder." He called for support of the Administration's flexible price support program as one which will "help keep America strong." He said its just as wasteful to spend billions on out-dated farm programs, as on outdated planes, ships and guns.

Chairman Strauss of the Atomic Energy Commission SAYS we now have an atomic and hydrogen bomb stockpile that contains "more weapons today by a wide margin than it did a year ago."

And General Ridgeway, the army chief of staff, says that atomic warfare will probably require more soldiers instead of fewer men. In the face of announced plans to cut the army's manpower by 22 per cent, Ridgeway explained that while combat units will be smaller, there will be a need of men to man "an increase in depth of the battlefield".. and for maintenance and support facilities in smaller but more numerous concentrations.

Here in New York today, Senator Ives agreed to become the Republican candidate to succeed Governor Dewey, who is retiring. And the state's top Democratic leaders formally endorsed Averell Harriman to be their candidate for governor. But backers of Representative Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr. insist they'll place his name before the state Democratic convention.

(Senator Ives told reporters he will not resign his Washington post to make the campaign. He said "it isn't necessary.")

And in New York City, Police Commissioner Adams demoted a deputy chief inspector for "insuburdination." The police officer, Louis Goldberg, refused to close his eyes to charity bingo games, which are illegal. Goldberg, a 36 year veteran on the force, said he will seek retirement.

LeSueur 9 Sept 1954 7?45p

~~So much for the back news~~

The Un Security Council meeting called for tomorrow morning on an american complaint that the Soviet Union shot down one of our patrol bombers off the Siberian Coast, may do more than just assess the blame---it may focus world attention on one of the new facts of life..

This particular case is simple enough on the surface....Two Russian jet fighters launched a completely unexpected and unprovoked attack on an american navy plane patrolling over what are considered international waters...

The navy says the attack, which cost the life of one of our men, took place some 45 miles off coast of Siberia some 125 miles east of Vladivostok...The American plane clearly had a right to be there since we have troops based on both Japan and Korea...

But it may be that international law and traditional proceedure regarding international waters and just where an aircraft has a right to fly, has not caught up with the technological facts of 1954...

According to the considered opinion of one of Britain's most distinguished military analysts, Liddell Hart, no sovereign Nation can permit an unidentified bomber to appear over one of its major cities...Not any longer, not since the creation of the Hydrogen bomb... The reasons are plain...Most modern bombers are equipped to carry an atomic bomb...Some of them presmably can carry a Hydrogen Bomb...

Its now a well-known military fact that the most important element in any future world war would be that of suprise... Surprise has always been of great advantage of course in war, now it may be of supreme advantage...

For example, a hydrogen bomb dropped on LONDON, might Be not only the start of a war, it could Be The end, too. The wiping out of an Entire leadership might conceivably destroy the national will to fight back...

It would seem to go without saying, that not only should a non-identified bomber not be permitted to appear over any major city, but it should not even be allowed to approach one. For At supersonic speeds, of plus 700 M.P.H 50 miles or so in distance from a city, is practically the start of a Bomb run...

This is not to say, of course, the Russians were justified in wantonly attacking our navy patrol bomber...Far from it...This attack was as much premeditated, as the recent chinese communist attack on a British transport plane off Indo-China...To the Russians government and all communists, politics, world politics, is the supreme art of life. Every international action is deliberately cued to international politics...This was not the effort of a nation to protect a city from atomic bombing, any more than was the shooting down of neutral Swedish planes in the Baltic last year...

These communist attacks on patrol and unarmed transport planes are part and parcel of a definite pattern of pyschological aggression... They are deliberately motivated to further Soviet Foreign policy By intimidating the weak countries and insulting their strong protectors.. in order to reduce the respect in which they are held by their allies..

It amounts to the brutal implementation of foreign policy in which any and all means are employed to achieve a calculated end...

It is for this reason, as well as to defend our own rights and honor our dead, that the United States has called for a Un Security Council discussion of this most recent incident...

Technically, The nature of our complaint is couched in milder language than is usually employed when an international incident may be a threat to world peace. The Security Council could consider this american complaint a dispute between two countries, in which the parties to the dispute may be asked to abstain from voting...

But no matter what satisfaction we may receive in this matter before the United Nations, out of it seems almost certain to emerge, at least the start of a new concept of international law. The New question of Air Space. For The supersonic aircraft and the hydrogen Bomb apparently no longer fit into the old concept of international waters---be they three miles or 12 miles out...

This terrible problem is already upon us...

The Hydrogen bomb is a weapon of mass destruction. From a military standpoint its only practical use is against civilian populations.. And so how far from any city in the world, should a modern plane travelling more than 600 miles an hour be permitted to approach..

Time, Distance and the Hydrogen bomb have presented an equation that cries urgently out for an answer. (If there is one.)

This is LL - We'll be back in a moment with the word for today - Bauer. But first, here's Bob Dixon

This is L.L again

Like it or not, we are living in time where distance is no longer a major factor in our security. A long time ago, Pliny the Younger remarked: "Careless of things which are near, we pursue eagerly things which are far away." Perhaps the time has come for us to do a little re-evaluating. For, as Charles Kingsley put it: "The more you know, the more you can save yourself and that which belongs to you."

And as Ed Murrow would say: "Good Nite and Good Luck!"

CBS RADIO DIVISION

EDWARD R. MURROW PROGRAM

Thursday, Sep. 9, 1954
7:45-8:00 P.M.

LESUEUR: ... In Washington today the Watkins committee refused, at least temporarily, to permit Senator McCarthy to introduce the two-and-a-quarter-page document that figured in the Army-McCarthy hearings. Dan Schorr covered the hearing for us, and here is his summary from Washington.

SCHORR: Senator McCarthy had today what must have been one of the most frustrating days of his life. Several times he was called to order by Chairman Watkins for presenting irrelevant testimony or drawing conclusions. Twice he was barred from presenting evidence he termed "essential" to his case. And, finally, in a rage at being gaveled down by Watkins, he strode away from the witness table, as tho to walk out, but then returned to his chair. It was a deadly serious McCarthy today. Only once did he permit himself a joke. Requested to file certain correspondence with the committee, he asked to get it back "because I'm sure I will be investigated again". For the rest, McCarthy confined himself to replying to questions put by his counsel, Edward Williams, sitting at his side. He spoke in low tones except when disputes with the committee arose.

The first of the two major clashes came this morning. McCarthy had replied to the charge that he invited government workers to bring him official secrets by saying he had only asked for evidence of graft, corruption, communism or treason. This, he contended, it was his positive duty to do. Then Williams sought by questioning McCarthy to show that other members of Congress had received information from Federal workers. Watkins cut him off with a ruling that testimony about what others did was hearsay and irrelevant. This, said Williams, left him unable to introduce the heart and soul of his case on two counts: the soliciting of information from Federal workers and the use of the controversial two-and-a-quarter-page FBI letter. But Watkins stood firm.

This afternoon the defense turned to another charge, that McCarthy defied the Senate by refusing to appear before a subcommittee investigating his role in the 1950 Maryland Senatorial election. McCarthy contended that only once had this committee demanded his appearance - and then by a telegram that reached him too late to appear. Then Williams, despite his earlier statement he'd given up on that count, returned to the FBI letter, the famous "hot" letter of the Army-McCarthy hearings, the summary of a longer FBI report to the Army on subversion at Fort Monmouth, that the Mundt committee had refused to accept. It turned out to be equally "hot" today. Williams and McCarthy appealed to the committee to look at it as the only way of proving it was not spurious, as charged. Faced with a dilemma, Watkins said the subcommittee would take this matter under advisement. McCarthy, his voice rising in excitement, said he had every reason to believe this was a copy of a document in the Army files, adding "it proves the Army had warnings year after year of danger to security at Fort Monmouth". Watkins interrupted sharply, told McCarthy to wait for the committee's ruling. McCarthy started speaking again. Watkins cut him off. Then McCarthy rose, turned his back on the committee, walked away from the witness table about ten paces, staring at the ornately carved ceiling of the Senate Caucus Room. It was a tense moment - but then McCarthy returned to his chair. Icily he asked if he could state his position tomorrow without interruption. Watkins replied: "I can't say you won't be interrupted because I don't know what you'll say."

And that's the story, Larry.

LESUEUR: That was Daniel Schorr in Washington.

-30-

Ediphone trans./E.S.

Friday, Sept. 10 1954

This is the news:

Hurricane Edna is moving north-northeast, faster, and with higher winds at her center. The latest from the Weather Bureau is this: Edna's speed has increased from ten miles an hour to betwen 17 and 22 miles an hour. She was last reported centered 80 miles slightly "east of south" of Cape Hatteras, North Carolina. The center is EXPECTED to pass THE CAPE at midnight. Previously the highest winds NEAR the center were 115 miles per hour. Now they are 125 miles per hour. The weathermen expect the hurricane to step up its forward speed in the next few hours. Tonight, hurricane warnings..(..a central white light, with two red lights on each side..) are displayed from North Carolina to Maine. Here in New York, the weatherman has told us: "It will be a complete miracle, if Edna does not hit the city tomorrow." It could be one of the most serious hurricanes in the city's history. There is a slight possibility that it may go out to sea..but we have all been adequately warned. The phone companies here, and in New England, are ready with their "master disaster plan." Military and naval planes have been flown inland from all shore installations. Civil defense agencies, the Red Cross are ready. Coastal residents of Connecticut have been urged to move inland before midnight. Sand bags have been piled around buildings in Providence, RI hard hit by Hurricane Carol. On Martha's Vineyard, bulldozers are pushing up sand dikes to protect low inland areas. Ham radio networks have been set-up to relay emergency messages. Three thousand National Guardsmen in New Hampshire have been ordered on a standby alert. ~~Last night~~ Yesterday I flew into Hurricane Edna's eye..with the Air Force. I'd ~~like to~~ try to describe what I saw in a few minutes.

7

IN Washington TODAY,

Senator McCarthy scored a victory today at the censure hearings. [redacted]. The special Senate committee hearing the charges against McCarthy agreed to receive in evidence the famous "FBI letter". But the committee, after consulting with Attorney General Brownell, refused to make the document public. McCarthy has claimed that the purported letter shows that the Army was guilty of "gross neglect" in handling subversives. At today's hearing, Senator McCarthy also challenged the validity of the Senate elections subcommittee he is accused of snubbing, two years ago. The point was raised on a technicality [redacted] that senators said "will take looking into." Under cross-examination, McCarthy insisted he was justified in his statements, questioning the fitness of Brigadier General Zwicker to wear his country's uniform. ~~He said Zwicker~~ [redacted] ~~Communist~~. After today's hearing recessed, the Defense Department announced that both General Zwicker and Major General Kirke Lawton will testify at the hearings... within the limits imposed by a presidential order. Lawton has refused to testify on grounds of a presidential security order.

4.

Democratic Senator Johnson, OF COLORADO, vice chairman of the investigating committee, today made public a letter to Senator McCarthy in which he said it would be "strange indeed" if most Democratic leaders did not loathe him after the vicious things that he---McCarthy---had said about the Democratic Party. Johnson said that he personally had never said he loathed McCarthy and he reiterated that he would hear the censure charges fairly. Johnson and McCarthy then shook hands.

~~In Denver today, President Eisenhower conferred with the Republican leaders of 10 midwestern and Rocky Mountain states, and called for the election of a Republican Congress in November.~~

~~And in New York, the state CIO Council ... which claims 1-million members... endorsed Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr. for the Democratic nomination for governor. Roosevelt said he would carry on his fight for the nomination, in spite of the growing strength of W. Averell Harriman. Whichever of them gets the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, it is almost a foregone conclusion that their opponent in November will be Senator Irving M. Ives.~~

The West today rejected Russia's recent proposal for a Big Four meeting on European security. Washington, London and Paris told Moscow progress on German and Austrian problems should come first.

The Chinese announce that they will send one of their top diplomats to Great Britain...the first such move since Great Britain established diplomatic relations with Red China in January of 1950.

And today, Chinese Nationalist planes hit the Communist coast of China for the fifth straight day. Warships joined the attack. Still no sign of enemy Migs.

6

The U.N. Security Council agreed today to a full airing of the American charge that the Russians violated international law in firing on that U.S. Navy plane over the Sea of Japan. ~~The Navy man was killed in the incident. The American delegate, Henry Cabot Lodge, said, "The gravity of the situation is compounded by the fact that these minimum Soviet attacks show a continuing disregard for the generally accepted standards of international conduct."~~

Edward R. Murrow: September 10, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

Yesterday this reporter had the privilege of looking into the eye of Hurricane Edna. We took off from Bermuda at 11.30 A.M., in a specially equipped B-29. The Air Force boys were working for the taxpayers, going out to chart, measure, map and study the hurricane. We climbed to ten thousand, blue sky overhead, blue water without a single whitecap below, and headed West. For about an hour-and-a-half there was nothing to do, except remember that flying is made up of many hours of boredom, interspersed with a few minutes of stark terror. Then there were a few whitecaps, but no cloud. Then the whitecaps grew in size - surface wind about thirty miles an hour; a few scattered cumulus clouds ahead. A big cloud, seemed to summon its neighbors, and they built castles and lakes and cities on hillsides, all white against the blue of the sky. We bored through a few, and skirted others. Then there was a big mountain of clouds ahead, and we went in. A few rain squalls, but little turbulence. The texture of the cloud changed, became a ghostly grey; we couldn't see the wing-tips of the aircraft. Twenty minutes later there was a little ~~ghostly~~ blue-grey light, but it seemed to come from all around us. Suddenly blue water ~~below~~ ~~behind it~~ about & below again, no whitecaps, but the ocean was heaving as though a giant were shaking a rug. Into another cloud, out on the other side, and the ocean had changed its face.

Long irregular furrows, like a drunken ploughman had been ploughing a field of blue velvet and turning up snow. We went down to seventy-five hundred - surface winds now estimated at sixty miles an hour; flew right along the top of a flat cloud, with the feeling that if the pilot let his wheels down he'd leave a track in it. The next time we saw water, the wind was cutting the top off the whitecaps, and there was a thin gauze of spray as far as we could see. Then into the cloud again, and that ghostly grey light that seemed to rub off on the faces of the crew members, and cause them all to look as though they were ill and hadn't slept.

Radar kept reaching out, looking for Edna's eye. It showed a high bank of clouds to the right and to the left - we were flying blind in that grey stuff in the valley between. Suddenly there was a hole in the cloud - maybe a quarter-mile across - and at the bottom there was foam, like looking down a deep well with a huge egg-beater churning up milk at the bottom. We flew on, and began the real search for the eye of the hurricane. There were sudden changes in temperature, more rain; Radar reported, the engineer reported, the navigator wanted to know if anybody could see surface wind. The radarscope didn't show anything; we were bounced around a little; the

Skipper said: "There's a storm around here somewhere - let's find it."

The navigator asked for a turn to the left, and in a couple of minutes the B-29 began to shudder. It was a twisting tortured motion. The co-pilot said: "I think we're in it." The pilot said: "We're going up", although every control was set to take us down. Something lifted us about three hundred feet, then the pilot said: "We're going down", although he was doing everything humanly possible to take us up. Edna was in control of the aircraft. We were on an even keel but being staggered by short, sharp blows. Then we hit something with a bang that was audible above the roar of the motors; More than one man flinched. It was a solid sheet of water. Seconds later brilliant sunlight hit us like a hammer; a little rainbow spun off the starboard outboard prop. someone shouted "There she is", and we were in the eye. Calm air, flat, calm sea below; a great amphitheatre, round as a dollar, with white clouds sloping up to twenty-five or thirty thousand feet. The water looked like a blue ~~XXX~~ alpine lake, with snow-clad mountains coming right down to the water's edge. A great bowl of sunshine. Someone, I think it was the right scanner, shouted: "So help me, there's a ship down there", and there was - right in the center of the eye. We guessed her to be a ten thousand ton merchant ship, moving very slowly in that calm water, with only a thin feather of wake behind her. She appeared to be in no trouble, but trouble was inevitable sometime, because she was surrounded by those cloud mountains and raging water. The eye was twenty miles in diameter. We went down to fifteen hundred feet and flew back and forth across it, making shallow penetrations of the storm area. The temperature went up fourteen degrees, the altimeter said four thousand feet, but we were actually at fifteen hundred. The civilian weather officer aboard looked at Edna with a clinical eye, and said: "She's a copybook hurricane - beautifully formed." We took her temperature, measured her speed, threw overboard scientific gear which might help to chart her future movements, while we continued to fly around in the calm at the bottom of that funnel of white clouds.

The eye of a hurricane is an excellent place to reflect upon the punyness of man and his works. If an adequate definition of humility is ever written, it's likely to be done in the eye of a hurricane.

The engineer reported some trouble with the Number three engine; we climbed to ten thousand feet, and bored in to the wall of white cloud that surrounded the eye. It was rough going out as coming in because the navigator had picked his exit well.

Going back to Bermuda we talked of hurricanes. One of the pilots said: "We were certainly disappointed in Carol; we just didn't think she would do what she did." He had flown through Carol so often that he regarded her as a friend who had committed a major misdemeanour.

These young men who fly the Air Weather Service are doing all that can be humanly done to provide information upon which adequate warning can be based. After all, the only thing you can do about a hurricane is to watch it and get ready for it.

After flying only nine hours with those young men of the Air Force yesterday, on a routine mission, I think they deserve combat pay.

It is probably true, as O. Henry said that "we may achieve climate, but weather is thrust upon us." But it is equally true that even though we can do little about the weather, we can at least prepare ourselves for the worst. Cervantes put it this way: "The man who is prepared, has his battle half fought." Those assigned to the Air Force Weather Service are doing all they can to help win the battle.

Good Nite and Good Luck!

Edward R. Murrow

September 10, 1954
7:45 - 8:00 PM EST

Yesterday this reporter had the privilege of looking into the eye of Hurricane Edna. We took off from Bermuda at 11:30 AM in a specially equipped B-29. The Air Force boys were working for the taxpayers, going out to chart, measure, map and study the hurricane. We climbed to ten thousand, blue sky overhead, blue water without a single whitecap below, and headed West. For about an hour-and-a-half there was nothing to do except remember that flying is made up of many hours of boredom, interspersed with a few minutes of stark terror. Then there were a few whitecaps, but no cloud. Then the whitecaps grew in size - surface wind about thirty miles an hour; a few scattered cumulus clouds ahead. A big cloud seemed to summon its neighbors, and they built castles and lakes and cities on hillsides, all white against the blue of the sky. We bored through a few and skirted others. Then there was a big mountain of clouds ahead, and we went in. A few rain squalls, but little turbulence. The texture of the cloud changed, became a ghostly grey; we couldn't see the wing-tips of the aircraft. Twenty minutes later there was a little blue-grey light, but it seemed to come from all around us. Suddenly blue water again, no whitecaps, but the ocean was heaving about below as though a giant were shaking a rug. Into another cloud, out on the other side, and the ocean had changed its face.

Long irregular furrows, like a drunken ploughman had been ploughing a field of blue velvet and turning up snow. We went down to seventy-five hundred - surface winds now estimated at sixty miles an hour; flew right along the top of a flat cloud, with the feeling that if the pilot let his wheels down he'd leave a track in it. The next time we saw water, the wind was cutting the top off the whitecaps, and there was a thin gauze of spray as far as we could see. Then into the cloud again, and that ghostly grey light that seemed to rub off on the faces of the crew members, and cause them all to look as though they were ill and hand't slept.

Radar kept reaching out, looking for Edna's eye. It showed a high bank of clouds to the right and to the left - we were flying blind in that grey stuff in the valley between. Suddenly there was a hole in the cloud - maybe a quarter-mile across - and at the bottom there was foam, like looking down a deep well with a huge egg-beater churning up milk at the bottom. We flew on, and began the real search for the eye of the hurricane. There were sudden changes in temperature, more rain; radar reported, the engineer reported, the navigator wanted to know if anybody could see surface wind. The radarscope didn't show anything; we were bounced around a little; the Skipper said: "There's a storm around here somewhere - let's find it."

The navigator asked for a turn to the left, and in a couple of minutes the B-29 began to shudder. It was a twisting tortured motion. The co-pilot said: "I think we're in it." The pilot said: "We're go ing up", although every control was set to take us down. Something lifted us about three hundred feet, then the pilot said: "We're going down", although he was doing everything humanly possible to take us up. Edna was in control of the aircraft. We were on an even keel but being staggered by short, sharp blows. Then we hit something with a bang that was audible above the roar of the motors: More than one man flinched. It was a solid sheet of water. Seconds later brilliant sunlight hit us like a hammer; A little rainbow spun off the starboard outboard propeller - someone shouted "There she is", and we were in the eye. Calm, air, flat, clam sea below; a great amphitheatre, round as a dollar, with white clouds sloping up to twenty-five or thirty thousand feet. The water looked like a blue alpine lake with snow-clad mountains coming right down to the water's edge. A great bowl of sunshine. Someone, I think it was the right scanner, shouted: "So help me, there's a ship down there", and there was - right in' the center of the eye. We guessed her to be a ten thousand ton merchant ship, moving very slowly in that calm water, with only a thin feather of wake behind her. She appeared to be in no trouble, but trouble was inevitable sometime, because she was surrounded by those cloud mountains and raging water. The eye was twenty miles in diameter. We went down to fifteen hundred feet and flew back and forth across it, making shallow penetrations of the storm area. The temperature went up fourteen degrees the altimeter said four thousand feet, but we were actually at fifteen hundred. The civilian weather officer aboard looked at Edna with a clinical eye, and said: "She's a copybook hurricane - beautifully formed." We took her temperature, measured her speed, threw overboard scientific gear which might help to chart her future movements, while we continued to fly around in the calm at the bottom of that funnel of white clouds.

The eye of a hurricane is an excellent place to reflect upon the punyness of man and his works. If an adequate definition of humility is ever written, it's likely to be done in the eye of a hurricane.

The engeneer reported some trouble with the Number three engine; we climbed to ten thousand feet, and bored in to the wall of white cloud that surrounded the eye. It was not as rough going out as coming in because the navigator had picked his exit well.

Going back to Bermuda we talked of hurricanes. One of the pilots said: "We were certainly disappointed in Carol; we just didn't think she would do what she did." He had flown through Carol so often that he regarded her as a friend who had committed a major misdemeanour.

These young men who fly the Air Weather Service are doing all that can be humanly done to provide information upon which adequate warning can be based. After all, the only thing you can do about a hurricane is to watch it and get ready for it.

After flying only nine hours with those young men of the Air Force yesterday, on a routine mission, I think they deserve combat pay.

Edward R. Murrow; September 10, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

Yesterday this reporter had the privilege of looking into the eye of Hurricane Edna. We took off from Bermuda at 11.30, in a specially equipped B-29. The Air Force boys were working for the taxpayers, going out to chart, measure, map and study the hurricane. We climbed to ten thousand, blue sky overhead, blue water without a single whitecap below, and headed West. For about an hour-and-a-half there was nothing to do except remember that flying is made up of many hours of boredom, interspersed with a few minutes of stark terror. Then there were a few whitecaps, but no cloud. Then the whitecaps grew in size - surface wind about thirty miles an hour; a few scattered cumulus clouds ahead. A big cloud seemed to summon its neighbors, and they built castles and lakes and cities on hillsides, all white against the blue of the sky. We bored through a few and skirted others. Then there was a big mountain of clouds ahead, and we went in. A few rain squalls, but little turbulence. The texture of the cloud changed, became a ghostly grey; we couldn't see the wing-tips of the aircraft. Twenty minutes later there was a little blue-grey light, but it seemed to come from all around us. Suddenly blue water below again, no whitecaps, but the ocean was heaving as though a giant were shaking a rug. Into another cloud, out on the other side, and the ocean had changed its face.

Long irregular furrows, like a drunken ploughman had been ploughing a field of blue velvet and turning up snow. We went down to seventy-five hundred - surface winds now estimated at sixty miles an hour; flew right along the top of a flat cloud, with the feeling that if the pilot let his wheels down he'd leave a track in it. The next time we saw water, the wind was cutting the top off the whitecaps, and there was a thin gauze of spray as far as we could see. Then into the cloud again, and that ghostly grey light that seemed to rub off on the faces of the crew members, and cause them all to look as though they were ill and hadn't slept.

Radar kept reaching out, looking for Edna's eye. It showed a high bank of clouds to the right and to the left - we were flying blind in that grey stuff in the valley between. Suddenly there was a hole in the cloud - maybe a quarter-mile across - and at the bottom there was foam, like looking down a deep well with a huge egg-beater churning up milk at the bottom. We flew on, and began the real search for the eye of the hurricane. There were sudden changes in temperature, more rain; Radar reported, the engineer reported, the navigator wanted to know if anybody could see surface wind. The radarscope didn't show anything; we were bounced around a little; the

Skipper said: "There's a storm around here somewhere - let's find it."

The navigator asked for a turn to the left, and in a couple of minutes the B-29 began to shudder. It was a twisting motion. The co-pilot said: "I think we're in it." The pilot said: "We're going up", although every control was set to take us down. Something lifted us about three hundred feet, then the pilot said: "We're going down", although he was doing everything humanly possible to take us up. Edna was in control of the aircraft. We were on an even keel but being staggered by short, sharp blows. Then we hit something with a bang that was audible above the roar of the motors; a solid sheet of water. Seconds later brilliant sunlight hit us like a hammer; someone shouted "There she is", and we were in the eye. Calm air, flat, calm sea below; a great amphitheatre, round as a dollar, with white clouds sloping up to twenty-five or thirty thousand feet. The water looked like a blue ~~MX~~X alpine lake with snow-clad mountains coming right down to the water's edge. A great bowl of sunshine. Someone, I think it was the right scanner, shouted: "So help me, there's a ship down there", and there was - right in the center of the eye. We guessed her to be a ten thousand ton merchant ship, moving very slowly in that calm water, with only a thin feather of wake behind her. She appeared to be in no trouble, but trouble was inevitable sometime, because she was surrounded by those cloud mountains and raging water. The eye was twenty miles in diameter. We went down to fifteen hundred feet and flew back and forth across it, making shallow penetrations of the storm area. The temperature went up fourteen degrees, the altimeter said four thousand feet, but we were actually at fifteen hundred. The civilian weather officer aboard looked at Edna with a clinical eye, and said: "She's a copybook hurricane - beautifully formed." We took her temperature, measured her speed, threw overboard scientific gear which might help to chart her future movements, while we continued to fly around XXXXXXXXXXXXXXX in the calm at the bottom of that funnel of white clouds.

The eye of a hurricane is an excellent place to reflect upon the punyness of man and his works. If an adequate definition of humility is ever written, it's likely to be done in the eye of a hurricane.

The engineer reported some trouble with the Number three engine; we climbed to ten thousand feet, and bored in to the wall of white cloud that surrounded the eye. The wind was not as rough going out as coming in because the navigator had picked his exit well.

Going back to Bermuda we talked of hurricanes. One of the pilots said: "We were certainly disappointed in Carol; we just didn't think she would do what she did." He had flown through Carol so often that he regarded her as a friend who had committed a major misdemeanour.

These young men who fly the Air Weather Service are doing all that can be humanly done to provide information upon which adequate warning can be based. After all, the only thing you can do about a hurricane is to watch it and get ready for it.

After flying only nine hours with those young men of the Air Force yesterday, on a routine mission, I think they deserve combat pay.

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 10, 1954
7:45--8:00 P.M. E.S.T.

This is the news:

Hurricane Edna is moving north-northeast faster and with higher winds at her center. The latest from the Weather Bureau is this: Edna's speed has increased from ten miles an hour to between 17 and 22 miles an hour. She was last reported centered 80 miles slightly "east of south" of Cape Hattteras, North Carolina. The center is expected to pass the cape at midnight. Previously the highest winds near the center were 115 miles per hour. Now they are 125 miles per hour. The weathermen expect the hurricane to step up its forward speed in the next few hours. Tonight hurricane warnings...a central white light with two red lights on each side...are displayed from North Carolina to Maine. Here in New York, the weatherman has told us: "It could be one of the most serious hurricanes in the city's history." There is a slight possibility that it may go out to sea..but we have all been adequately warned. The phone companies here and in New England are ready with their "master disaster plan." Military and naval planes have been flown inland from all shore installations. Civil defense agencies, the Red Cross, are ready. Coastal residents of Connecticut have been urged to move inland before midnight. Sand bags have been piled around buildings in Providence, Rhode Island, hard hit by Hurricane Carol. On Martha's Vineyard, bulldozers are pushing up sand dikes to protect low inland areas. Ham radio networks have been set-up to relay emergency messages. Three thousand National Guardsmen in New Hampshire have been ordered on a stand-by alert. Yesterday I flew into Hurricane Edna's eye...with the Air Force. I'd like to try to describe what I saw in a few minutes.

In Washington today Senator McCarthy scored a voctory at the censure hearings..The special Senate committee hearing the charges against McCarthy agreed to receive in evidence the famour "FBI letter". But the committee, after consulting with Attorney General Brownell, refused to make the document public. McCarthy has claimed that the purported letter shows that the Army was guilty of "gross neglect" i handling subversives. At today's hearing, Senator McCarthy also challenged the validity of the Senate elections subcommittee he is accused of snubbing, two years ago. The point was raised on a technicality that senators said "will take looking into." Under cross-examination, McCarthy insisted he was justified in his statements, questioning the fitness of Brigadier General Zwicker to wear the country's uniform. After today's hearing recessed, the Defense Department accounced that both General Zwicker and Major General Kirke Lawton will testify at the hearings... within the limits imposed by a presidential order. Lawton has refused to testify on grounds of a presidential security order.

Democratic Senator Johnson of Colorado , vice chairman of the investigating committee, today made public a letter to Senator McCarthy in which he said it would be "strange indeed" if most Democratic leaders did not loathe him after the vicious things that he--McCarthy--had said about the Democratic Party. Johnson said that he personally had never said he loathed McCarthy and he reiterated that he would hear the censure charges fairly. Johnson and McCarthy then shook hands.

The West today rejected Russia's recent proposal for a Big Four meeting on European security. Washington, London and Paris told Moscow progress on German and Austrian problems should come first.

The Chinese announce that they will send one of their top diplomats to Great Britain..the first such move since Great Britain established relations with Red China in January of 1950.

And today, Chinese Nationalist planes hit the Communist coast of China for the fifth straight day. Warships joined the attack. Still no sign of enemy Migs.

The U.N. Security council agreed today to a full airing of the American charges that the Russians violated international law in firing on the U.S. Navy plane over the Sea of Japan.

Yesterday this reporter had the privilege of looking into the eye of Hurricane Edna. We took off from Bermuda at 11:30 a.m. in a specially equipped B-29. The Air Force boys were working for the taxpayers, going out to chart, measure, map and study the hurricane. We climbed to ten thousand, blue sky overhead, blue water without a single whitecap below, and headed West. For about an hour-and-a-half there was nothing to do except remember that flying is made up of many hours of boredom, interspersed with a few minutes of stark terror. Then there were a few whitecaps, but no cloud. Then the whitecaps grew in size-surface wind about thirty miles an hour; a few scattered cumulous clouds ahead. A big cloud seemed to summon its niighbors and they built castles and lakes and cities on hillsides, all white abainst the blue of the sky. We bored through a few and skirted others. Then there was a big mountain of clouds ahead, and we went in. A few rain squalls, but little turbulence. The texture of the cloud changed, became a ghostly grey; we couldn't see the wing-tips of the aircraft. Twenty minutes later there was a little blue-grey light, but it seemed to come from all around us. Suddenly blue water again, no whitecaps, but the ocean was heaving as though a giant were shaking a rug. Into another cloud, out on the other side, and the ocean had changed its face.

Long irregular furrows, like a drunken ploughman had been ploughing a field of blue velvet and turning up snow. We went down to seventy-five hundred - surface winds now estimated at sixty miles an hour; flew right along the top of a flat cloud, with the feeling that if the pilot let his wheels down he'd leave a track in it. The next time we saw water, the wind was cutting the top off the whitecaps, and there was a thin gauze of spray as far as we could see. Then into the cloud again, and that ghostly grey light that seemed to rub off on the faces of the crew members, and cause them all to look as though whey were ill and hadn't slept.

Radar kept reaching out, looking for Edna's eye. It showed a high bank of clouds to the right and to the left - we were flying blind in that grey stuff in the valley between. Suddenly there wea a hole in the cloud - maybe a quarter-mile across - and at the bottom there sea foam, like looking down a deep well with a huge egg-beater churning up milk at the bottom. We flew on, and began the real search for the eye of the hurricane. There were sudden changes in temperature, more rain; Radar prported, the engineer reported, the navigator wanted to know if anybody could see surface wind. The radarscope didn't show anything; we were bounced around a little; the skipper said: "There's a storm around here somewhere - let's find it."

The navigator asked for a turn to the left, and in a couple of minutes the B-29 began to shudder. It was a twisting tortured motion. The co-pilot said: "I think we're in it." The pilot said: "We're going up," although every control was set do take us down. Something lifted us about three hundred feet, then the pilot said; "We're going down", although he was doing everything humanly possible to take us up. Edna was in control of the aircraft. We were on an even keel but being staggered by short, sharp blows. Then we hit something with a bang that was audible above the roar of the motors; more than one man flinched -- It was a solid sheet of water. Seconds later brilliant sunlight hit us like a hammer; a little rainbow spun off the starboard outboard prop. Someone shouted "There she is", and we were in the eye. Calm air, flat, calm sea below; a great ampitheatre, round as a dollar, with white clouds sloping up to twenty-five or thirty thousand feet. The water looked like a blue alpine lake with snow-clad mountains coming right down to the water's edge. A great bowl of sunshine. Someone, I think it was the right scanner, shouted, "So help me, there's a ship down there", and there was - right in the center of the eye. We guessed her to be a ten thousand ton merchant ship, moving very slowly in that calm water, with only a thin feather of wake behind her. She appeared to be in no trouble, but trouble was inevitable sometime, because she was surrounded by those cloud mountains and raging water. The eye was twenty miles in diameter. We went down to fifteen hundred feet and flew back and forth across it, making shallow penetrations of the storm area. The temperature went up fourteen degrees, the altimeter said four thousand feet, but we were actually at fifteen hundred. The civilian weather officer aboard looked at Edna with a clinical eye, and said:" She's a copybook hurricane - beautifully formed." We took her temperature, measured her speed, threw overboard scientific gear which might help to chart her future movements, while we continued to fly around in the calm at the bottom of that funnel of white clouds.

The eye of a hurricane is an excellent place to reflect upon the punyness of man and his works. If an adequate definition of humility is ever written, it's likely to be done in the eye of a hurricane.

The engineer reported some trouble with the Number three engine; we climbed to ten thousand feet, and bored in to the wall of white cloud that surrounded the eye. It was not as rough going out as coming in because the navigator had picked his exit well.

Going back to Bermuda we talked of hurricanes. One of the pilots said: "We were certainly disappointed in Carol; we just didn't think she would do what she did." He had flown through Carol so often that he regarded her as a friend who had committed a major misdemeanor.

Those young men who fly the Air Weather Service are doing all that can be humanly done to provide information upon which adequate warning can be based. After all, the only thing you can do about a hurricane is to watch it and get ready for it.

After flying only nine hours with those young men of the Air Force yesterday, on a routine mission, I think they deserve combat pay.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a moment with the word for today... but first, Bob Dixon.

DIXON : COMMERCIAL

MURROW: It is probably ture, as O.Henry said that "we may achieve climate, but weather is thrust upon us." But it is equally true that even though we can do little about weather, we can at least prepare ourselves for the worst. Cervantes put it this way; "The man who is prepared has half his battle fought." Those assigned to the Air Force Weather Service are doing all they can to help win the battle.

Good Night and Good Luck.

Monday, Sept. 13, 1954

This is the news:

The President said today that the National Security Council has reaffirmed our determination "where our vital interests demand it" to support our friends in the Far East" in their security and in their own interests."

The President outlined the results of the unprecedented Security Council meeting held in Denver yesterday. He said the council re-affirmed that our policy continues to be "defense of our vital interests wherever they may arise." And he says that no "specific decisions for action" were advanced at the Denver meeting.

Secretary of State Dulles, who told the Council of his recent trip to the Far East, returned to Washington today. He told reporters that our policy is to keep the Chinese Communists guessing on whether we will fight for Quemoy, the small Nationalist-held island, off the Chinese coast. He said we will block any Communist move to take Formosa. And it's up to our military leaders to say what islands held by the Nationalists will be defended in carrying out our policy.

Today, again, Nationalist planes, warships and artillery struck at the Communist-held mainland. And the top Chinese Nationalist military leaders visited Quemoy..just seven miles from the mainland. This was the 12th day of hostilities and there is still no sign of Communist air or naval counter-action.

In Australia today, former British Prime Minister Atlee said that Formosa should be placed ..at least temporarily..under a neutral mandate. He wants this done to avoid the danger of war in the Far East. Atlee says that at the moment both the United States and Red China regard Formosa as a danger. But he doesn't know if both sides would agree to neutralize it.

British Foreign Secretary Eden and West Germany's Chancellor Adenauer said today that they have reached complete agreement on plans for European unity "in which the United Kingdom can play a full part." And shortly after Eden flew to Rome to seek Italy's views on how to achieve unity, Robert D. Murphy, the deputy undersecretary of our State Department, conferred with Adenauer. I'd like to discuss the problems of European unity in a few minutes.

In Washington today, the Watkins Committee, hearing censure charges against Senator McCarthy, ended its public hearings.

Before adjourning the Senators heard McCarthy's counsel, Edward Bennett Williams, ask that the committee's special counsel not be permitted to take part in preparing a report on the hearings. Williams said that both E. Wallace Chadwick and Guy De Furia.. had played the part of prosecutors in the hearing..he would have special independent counsel hired to write the committee's report. Chairman Watkins, expressing his confidence in all staff members, said the committee has not made a decision on whether it should go so far as to make recommendations in the McCarthy case. (He thinks the committee can discharge its duties without making recommendations.)

At today's hearing, Major General Zwicker, whom McCarthy is accused of "abusing" as a witness, told the Senators that he personally was very much opposed to granting an honorable discharge to former Major Peress. Senator McCarthy has called Peress a 5th amendment communist. #

General Zwicker said that in discharging Peress he was following orders from higher-ups. The General contended that in February testimony before the McCarthy committee he told only the truth. And he said McCarthy had seen the Army's explanation of how and why Peress was discharged before Mc Carthy questioned Zwicker about it. Mc Carthy's attorney claimed today that there were inconsistencies between Zwicker's new testimony and what he told McCarthy in February. Zwicker refused to concede that there were any inconsistencies.

Attorney General Brownell today invited Communists with important information to make peace with the federal government under a new immunity law. He said a number of Americans who have become enmeshed in the toils of the Communist conspiracy have wanted to break with it. They have been under the impression that they would be subject to prosecution. Brownell quoted F.B.I. Chief Hoover as saying: "Now is the time for those who love America to step forward and be counted. Now is the time for those who erred and who realize they erred to declare themselves." Brownell said it is the Administration's aim "to utterly destroy the Communist Party. U.S.A, and its activities."

Here in New York today, a witness at the trial of Puerto Rican nationalists, testified that the Nationalist who planned the March first shooting in Congress had also decided to attack the President. ~~The witness, a brother of Delores Lebrone, one of four Nationalists seized in the shooting, said one of the defendents told him an attack would be made on Congress.. the Presidency and the resident Commissioner for~~

[redacted]

In Washington today some Negro and white pupils sat side by side in school for the first time as youngsters registered for the new school term. And in White Sulphur Springs, West Virginia, about 275 white high school students went on strike against the integration of Negro students in THE [redacted] school.

Edward R. Murrow: September 13, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

The rejection by the Western Powers of a four-power conference on European security has not much rattled the Kremlin in its campaign for an all-European treaty organization to take the place of NATO. The Kremlin expected the rejection. It believes that a Soviet-European treaty organization lies at the end of the road, and of necessity will take time.

It is one of four main objectives of Soviet foreign policy. The first has now been won, the defeat of E.D.C. The Kremlin has reason to feel encouraged. It not only can thank the French Assembly, it can be grateful for two still more recent events. One is the Trade Union Congress in England, which voted for German re-armament by such a slim margin as to make it almost certain that the Labor Party itself will reverse its previous stand in favor of that policy. That helps the Kremlin in its fight to keep Germany out of NATO, or from an alliance with the United States on the Japanese model, which is point number two of its program.

The other event also helps on this point. It is the election result yesterday in Schleswig-Holstein. Here Dr. Adenauer's Christian Democrats lost the leadership numerically to the Social Democrats. The defeat was clinched by the break of Free Democrats from the Adenauer coalition. Both the Socialists and the Free Democrats want a four-power conference with Russia - both are against German re-armament. The Socialists outvoted Adenauer despite Schleswig-Holstein being agrarian in character and ultra-conservative. It is an odd place for the Kremlin to pick up help, but it got it.

Point three in the Moscow program is to break up NATO altogether, which it hopes to do by using French fears of Germany and Europe's present anti-Americanism. Point four is to get the Soviet-European Treaty Organization accepted to replace NATO.

The Kremlin candidly says this must entail the withdrawal of all American forces from Europe and the abandonment of all American bases there. It also discloses that it wants a guarantee of the Oder-Neisse frontier along with the neutralization of Germany. And the Kremlin intends that the two Germanys, West and East, should co-exist until they can be united on the basis of elections on the Communist model. It does not foresee this happening until after the new all-European security organization is formed.

That is the grand strategy which, I repeat, has had an auspicious start in the defeat of the E.D.C. Further success depends on well-conceived tactics. Students of Soviet policy believe they know what some of the next moves will be. They foresee, for one thing, further desertions to the East from the West, to join Dr. (~~Yone~~) John, the turncoat security chief of the Bonn government, and Herr Schmidt-Wittmack, the Free Democratic member of the Bundestag. The Soviets plan to form an all-German committee out of the present East German Committee for the promotion of German unity. It will include the two deserters, John to appeal to German neutralists, Schmidt-Wittmack to appeal to right wing Christian Democrats. Field Marshal Paulus, the defeated German commander at Stalingrad, will appeal to ex-officers. Intensive efforts are going on at the moment to attract a Catholic and a Social-Democrat to the East German side.

I should add that Schmidt-Wittmack belongs to a group that favors a Hohenzollern restoration in Germany under Prince Louis Ferdinand as monarch. The Kremlin has used plenty of Nazis to help its cause. Playing with Hohenzollern monarchists should be no harder for it to stomach.

Once the East German committee gets enough adherents it will declare itself all-German and representative enough to go over Dr. Adenauer's head. It will ask to be accepted as qualified to organize the unification of Germany, working on the lines already laid down by Foreign Minister Molotov.

Part of these tactics will be the use of trade benefits to get wider recognition of the East German government. The Soviet trade chief, Mikoyan, will offer lucrative markets as ~~inducements~~ bait. East Germany has in its favor that by now it has succeeded in channelling all West German trade with the whole Communist area through East Berlin.

Two more tactical moves are expected. One is the offer of an alliance to France by Czechoslovakia, along the lines of the Polish offer already made. The other is the dramatic appearance in Moscow of the vanished British diplomat, Donald MacLean, who would be used at the microphone to appeal to Britain.

If the threatened defeat of the moderate Attlee policy is consummated at the forthcoming Labor Party conference, it means an enormously strengthened opposition in Britain to German re-armament, and far more support for four-power talks on an all-European security system. Mr. MacLean is not a political personage in his own country, but he is Britain's Dr. (~~Yone~~) John, and if British labor really is wavering, he would have something of an audience in that country.

This outline of Soviet policy and strategy shows nothing that a determined and united West cannot cope with. But this is the central struggle, and it cannot be a wild guess that the National Security Council in Denver yesterday devoted considerably more time to it, than to the role of the Seventh Fleet in the defense of Quemoy.

Back in 1931...twenty-three years ago...Will Rogers wrote:"Russia likes to worry the whole world. She just loves to put a thumb in the soup and let the guests see it's in there. The whole world's nerves are jumpy anyhow. Right now anybody with a sheet over their head can run the world home and under the bed." It would seem that [redacted] unfortunately time has not changed much.

Good Nite and Good Luck!

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 13, 1954
7:45-8:00 p.m. E.S.T.

This is the news:

The President said today that the National Security Council has reaffirmed our determination "where our vital interests demand it" to support our friends in the Far East in their security and their own interests." The President outlined the results of the unprecedented Security Council meeting held in Denver yesterday. He said the council re-affirmed that our policy continues to be "defense of our vital interests wherever they may arise." And he says that no "specific decisions for action" were advanced at the Denver meeting.

Secretary of State Dulles, who told the Council of his recent trip to the Far East, returned to Washington today. He told reporters that our policy is to keep the Chinese Communists guessing on whether we will fight for Quemoy, the small Nationalist-held island, off the Chinese coast. He said we will block any Communist move to take Formosa. And it's up to our military leaders to say what islands held by the Nationalists will be defended in carrying out our policy.

Today, again, Nationalist planes, warships, and artillery struck at the Communist-held mainland. And the top Chinese Nationalist military leaders visited Quemoy...just seven miles from the mainland. This was the 12th straight day of hostilities and there is still no sign of Communist air or naval counter-action.

In Australia today, former British Prime Minister Atlee said that Formosa should be placed ..at least temporarily..under a neautral mandate. He wants this done to avoid the danger of war in the Far East. Atlee says that at the moment, both the United States and Red China regard Formosa as a danger. But he doesn't know if both sides would agree to neautralize it.

British Foreign Secretary Eden and West Germany's Chancellor Adenauer said today that they have reached complete agreement on plans for European unity "in which the United Kingdom can play a full part." And shortly after Eden flew to Rome to seek Italy's views on how to achieve unity, Robert D. Murphy, the deputy undersecretary of our State Department, conferred with Adenauer. I'd like to discuss the problems of European unity in a few munutes.

In Washington today, the Watkins Committee, hearing censure charges against Senator McCarthy, ended its public hearings. Before adjourning the Senators heard McCarthy's counsel, Edward Bennett Williams, asked that the committee's special counsel not be permitted to take part in preparing a report on the hearings. Williams said that both E. Wallace Chadwick and Guy De Furia had played the part of prosecutors in the hearing...he would have special independent counsel hired to write the committee's report. Chairman Watkins, expressing his confidence in all staff members, said the committee has not made a decision on whether it should go so far as to make recommendations in the McCarthy case. He thinks the committee can discharge its duties without making recommendations.

At today's hearing, Major General Zwicker, whom McCarthy is accused of "abusing" as a witness, told the Senators that he personally was very much opposed to granting an honorable discharge to former Major Peress. Senator McCarthy had called Peress a 5th Amendment communist.

General Swicker said that in discharging Preess he was following orders from higher-ups. The General contended that in February testimony before the McCarthy committee, he told only the truth. And he said McCarthy had seen the Army's explanation of how and why Peress was discharged before McCarthy questioned Zwicker about it. McCarthy's attorney claimed today that there were inconsistencies between Zwicker's new testimony and what he told McCarthy in February. Zwicker refused to concede that there were any inconsistencies.

Attorney General Brownell today invited Communists with improtant information to make peace with the federal government under a new immunity law. He said a number of Americans who have become enmeshed in the toils of the Communist conspiracy have wanted to break with it. They have been under the impression that they would be subject to prosecution. Brownell quoted F.B.I. Chief Hoover as saying; "Now is the time for all those who love America to step forward and be counted. Now is the time for those who erred and who realize they erred to declare themselves." Brownell said it is the Administration's aim "to utterly destroy the Communist Party,U.S.A. and its activities."

Here in New York today, a witness at the trial of Puerto Rican nationalists, testified that the Nationalist who planned the March first shooting in Congress had also decided to attack the President.

In Washington today some Negro and white pupils sat side by side in school for the first time as youngsters registered for the new school term. And in White Sulpher Springs, West Virginia, about 275 white high school students went on strike against the integration of Negro students in the school.

The rejection by the Western Powers of a four-power conference on European security has not much rattled the Kremlin in its campaign for an all-European treaty organization to take the place of N.TO. The Kremlin expected the rejection. It believes that a Soviet-European treaty organization lies at the end of the road, and of necessity will take time.

It is one of four main objectives fo Soviet foreign policy. The first has now been won, the defeat of E.D.C. The Kremlin has reason to feel encouraged. It not only can thank the French Assembly, it can be grateful for two still more recent events. One is the Trade Union Congress in England, which voted for German re-armament by such a slim margin as to make it almost certain that the Labor Party itself will reverse its previous stand in favor of that policy. That helps the Kremlin in its fight to keep Germany out of NATO, or from an alliance with the United States on the Japanese model, which is point number two of its program.

The other event also helps on this point. It is the election result yesterday in Schleswig-Holstein. Here Dr. Adenauer's Christian Democrats lost the leadership numerically to the Social Democrats. The defeat was clinched by the break of Free Democrats from the Adenauer coalition. Both the Socialists and the Free Democrats want a four-power conference with Russia..both are against German rearmament. The Socialists outvoted Adenauer despite Schleswig-Holstein being agrarian in character and ultra-conservative. It is an odd place for the Kremlin to pick up help, but it got it.

Point three in the Moscow program is to break up NATO altogether, which it hopes to do by using French fears of Germany and Europe's present anti-Americanism. Point four is to get the Soviet-European Treaty Organization accepted to replace NATO.

The Kremlin candidly says this must entail the withdrawal of all American forces from Europe and the abandonment of all American bases there. It also discloses that it wants a guarantee of the Oder-Neisse frontier along with the neautralization of Germany. And the Kremlin intends that the two Germanys, West and East, should co-exist until they can be united on the basis of elections of the Communist model. It does not foresee this happening until after the new all-European security organization is formed.

This is the grand strategy which, I repeat, has had an auspicious start in the defeat of the E.D.C. Further success depends on well-conceived tactics. Students of Soviet policy believe they know what some of the next moves will be. They foresee, for one thing, further desertions to the East from the West, to join Dr. John, the turncoat security chief of the Bonn government, and Herr Schmidt-Wittmack, the Free Democratic member of the Bundestag. The Soviets plan to form an all-German committee out of the present East German committee for the promotion of German unity. It will include the two deserters, John to appeal to German neautralists, Schmit-Wittmack to appeal to right wing Christian Democrats. Field Marshal Paulus, the defeated German commander at Stalingrad, will appeal to ex-officers. Intensive efforts are going on at the moment to attract a Catholic and a Social-Democrat to the West German side.

I should add that Schmidt-Wittmack belongs to a group that favors a Hohenzollern restoration in Germany under Prince Louis Ferdinand as monarch. The Kremlin hasused plenty of Nazis to help its cause. Playing with Hohenzollern monarchists should be no harder for it to stomach.

Once the East German committee gets enough adherents it will declare itself all-German and representative enough to go over Dr. Adenauer's head. It will ask to be accepted as qualified to organize the unification of Germany, working on the lines already laid down by foreign Minister Molotov.

Part of these tactics will be the use of trade benefits to get wider recognition of the East German government. The Soviet trade chief, Mikoyan, will offer lucrative markets as bait. East Germany has in its favor that by now it has succeeded in channelling all West German trade with the whole Communist area thorugh East Berlin.

Two more tactical moves are expected. One is the offer of an alliance to France by Czechoslovakia, along the lines of the Polish offer already made. The other is the dramatic appearance in Moscow of the vanished British diplomat, Donald MacLean, who would be used at the microphone to appeal to Britain.

If the threatened defeat of the moderate Attlee policy is consumated at the forthcoming Labor Party conference, it means an enormously strengthened opposition in Britain to German re-armament, and for more support for four-power talks on an all-European security system. Mr. MacLean is not a political personage in his own country, but he is Britain's Dr. John, and if British labor really is wavering, he would have something of an audience in that country. This outline of Soviet policy and strategy shown nothing that a determined and united West cannot cope with. But this is the central struggle, and it cannot be a wild guess that the National Security Council in Denver yesterday devoted considerably more time to it, than to the role of the Seventh Fleet in the defense of Quemoy.

This is Ed Morrow. I'll be back in a moment with the Word for today, but first, Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: Back in 1931...twenty three years ago...Will Rogers wrote: "Russia likes to worry the whole world. She just loves to put a thumb in the soup and let the guests see it's in there. The whole world's nerves are jumpy anyhow. Right now anybody with a sheet over their head can run the world home and under the bed." It would seem that unfortunately thim has not changed much.

Goot Night and Good Luck!

Tuesday, September 14, 1954

This is the news:

National leaders of both major parties are publicly voicing their satisfaction with the election results in Maine./For the first time in 20 years a Democrat --Edmund S. Muskie--was elected governor./And Senator Margaret Chase Smith and Republican congressional candidates were all returned to office but by smaller margins than they had expected./Democratic National Chairman Mitchell predicts the Democrats will regain control of Congress if they can do as well in the rest of the nation as they did in Maine./And Republican National Chairman Hall has congratulated the winning Republicans for beating "stiffer than the usual opposition." #

I should like to discuss the Maine results in a few minutes.

Both chairmen..Mitchell and Hall..today signed a pledge to conduct a clean campaign this year./All candidates for federal office this fall will be asked to sign the pledge [redacted] to "condemn the use of personal vilification, character defamation, whispering campaigns, libel, slander or scurrilous attacks on any candidate or his personal or family life."

The State Department announced today that Secretary Dulles will make a report to the nation tomorrow night on the situation in the Far East. Today, Nationalist planes and warships again attacked the Communist-held mainland opposite Formosa. The Nationalists (SAY) the Reds fired only ten shells at Quemoy and little Quemoy islands.

A Defense department spokesman in Washington says Chiang Kai Shek is free to send to Quemoy any of the military equipment we have been sending to Formosa. And the Navy says it will send the aircraft carrier Midway and 16 destroyers to the Pacific in the next four months..to help balance our naval strength in the Atlantic and Pacific.

The Soviet Foreign Ministry said today that the recent Manila conference "helped aggravate the international situation and creates obstacles for the settlement of unsolved problems."

In Iran, the war minister said today that a Communist spy ring that infiltrated the Iranian armed forces has given Russia detailed information on "every tank, gun and (UNIFORM)" sent to Iran from this country. More than 400 persons have been arrested.

British Foreign Secretary Eden today won Italian support for a British plan to replace the European Defense Community proposal. My colleague Bill Downs informs me that it calls for six west European nations to admit West Germay into a continental defense program based on "a combination of existing institutions of the Brussels treaty and the North Atlantic Treaty Organization." The British would join the new alliance..something they were not prepared to do in E.D.C. Tomorrow, Eden goes to Paris to lay the plan before French Premier Mendez-France.

In Denver today, a committee from the American Retail Federation told the President that ~~that~~ t"there has been a steady growth of confidence in the economic future of our country" in the first 20 months of the Eisenhower administration. The committee says this year "is proving to be an eventful one in the distribution of more and better goods to the American people."

Republican Senator Flanders of Vermont charged today that Senator McCarthy has used "abusive and coercive" tactics in a ~~persistent~~ persistent effort to intimidate the press and other communication media. Flanders filed the charge with the Watkins committee which is now considering the censure charges against Mc Carthy. The committee today decided to turn down McCarthy's challenge over the fairness of the committee's counsel.

McCarthy and his lawyer had charged that Chief Counsel Chadwick and his assistants had acted ~~as~~ prosecutors in the hearings. The committee said today it has "absolute confidence" in the fairness of its aides.

Federal Housing Chief Cole today told the Senate Banking Committee that three Jamaica, New York, builders had made a million and a quarter DOLLARS in "windfall" profits on an investment of only $90....capitalizing three housing projects with a stock of $30 each.

In West Virginia today, Greenbrier County school authorities ~~banned~~ banned negro students from white schools after white residents voted to remove bodily any negroes who tried to attend classes at the [redacted] White Sulphur Springs High School. Parents of the Negro children then voted to keep the children at home until "equal school facilities" are provided by the county board of education. In Fayetville, Arkansas, whites and negroes attended classes together without incident.

Edward R. Murrow: September 14, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

It is hard to down a slogan, even a false one. The slogan: "How Maine goes, so goes the nation" has long been out of date, and sometimes - as in the Roosevelt-Landon campaign year of 1936 - it can be quite absurd. For as long as this reporter can remember, every election in Maine has been followed by elaborate explanations why the results did not indicate a national trend. Usually these explanations were offered by Democrats, because Maine normally goes Republican. This year they are being offered by Republicans, because Maine has elected a Democratic governor. The change in the voices making the explanations, may in itself indicate a national trend. [But this is no occasion for snap judgment.]

It is true, that for the first time in many decades, a Republican governor in Maine has been denied a second term. But this was a local, not a national issue. Senator Margaret Chase Smith was re-elected, so were the three Maine representatives in the House, all of them Republicans. The majorities they received, however, are smaller than in the last election. Senator Smith's majority was less than half of the 96,000 she was given in 1946, and the congressional majorities dropped sharply. It is in comparing these results, with those of two years ago, that any national significance is to be found, if it exists.

A question to answer first of all is whether Edna voted. For if Edna voted at all she helped the Democrats. That is, Edna, the hurricane, disrupted the country districts more than the towns and cities. She produced floods that washed out roads and swept away bridges. That could keep the country vote down. The country districts are usually overwhelmingly Republican, whereas most Democrats live in towns and cities. But it does not look as though Edna voted heavily. The total turnout for the election was about the same as two years ago. There may have been a slight decline in rural areas and a heavier turnout in towns and cities. [Final analysis as to that is still not possible.] But it is not true to say that Governor Cross was blown out of office by a hurricane, or that it took a hurricane to hurt the Republican vote for Congressmen.

Governor Cross is a blunt man, and blunt men sometimes forfeit votes. He made enemies with some of his appointments, and by backing a reclassification of roads, so that local communities instead of the state had to keep them up. He offended hard-hit potato growers by opposing federal price supports. But he counted as a good governor. Probably it is right to say, that the Democrats won the election, rather than that he lost it. They had a likeable and popular candidate, Edmund Muskie. And they campaigned with the battlecry: "time for a change". They said that Maine should enjoy two-party rule after Republican domination for ninety years. "Time for a change" had been a good cry for the Republicans two years ago. In Maine this year it worked against them. It did not elect a Democratic legislature, but it certainly helped elect Muskie and to reduce Republican majorities all around.

Some of Senator Smith's loss of half her previous majority can be explained in local terms. Six years ago she courted and received many Democratic votes, and consequently did not campaign against the Democrats. This year she went after the Democrats tooth and nail. And this year the Democrats had a promising candidate of their own, a Colby professor, Paul Fullam. There is no national significance in these facts.

But when it comes to the congressional results, it grows harder to prove they have chiefly local meaning. In the First District, Representative Robert Hale won two years ago by more than 16,000 majority. Yesterday his majority was less than 4,000 (with a few precincts still unreported). The total vote in the district was about the same, so it was not Edna making the difference.

In the Second District Representative Charles Nelson won two years ago

by 28,000, this year by fewer than 7,000, with a few precincts unreported. And here the turnout was at least twelve hundred more than two years ago.

In the Third District Representative Clifford McIntire two years ago beat his opponent three to one, yesterday by two to one, and here, too, the turnout was greater this year than last time.

The combined Republican majorities in the three districts two years ago was around 80,000. This year it was about 24,000. This was in spite of Vice President Nixon's appeal that Maine voters show the way to the rest of the country by piling up even larger majorities than before. It may be, as I said, that the cry: "Time for a change," accounts for some of this shrinkage. But it has to account for all of it - which is most unlikely - if it does not suggest a similar shrinkage in other states. There are enough close districts in other states for the Democrats to win a comfortable majority in the House if the shrinkage proves to be only a fraction of what it was in Maine.

So while it cannot be stated too dogmatically, the Maine election does appear to have a national meaning. It is a suggestion rather than a prediction, but the suggestion is that the Republicans face considerable losses in the House. In 1952 they swept into power with the help of some Democrats and a great many non-party votes. To win again in November they must receive the same kind of support in much the same measure. If the voters in Maine are like voters elsewhere, they are not going to get all of this support again. They could do without it in Maine. They will need it sorely in many other states.

Bismarck was once inclined to remark that "politics is not an exact science." And this is something we ought to bear in mind in trying to draw conclusions from the Maine elections. Oliver Wendell Holmes put it well when he said:"Everything is twice as large, measured on a three-year-old's three-foot scale as on a thirty-year-old's six foot scale."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
CBS RADIO NETWORK

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 14, 1954
7:45-8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

National leaders of both major parties are publicly voicing their satisfaction with the election results in Maine. For the first time in 20 years a Democrat --Edmund S. Muskie --was elected governor. And Senator Margaret Chase Smith and Republican congressional candidates were all returned to office but by smaller margins than they had expected. Democratic National Chairman Mitchell predicts the Democrats will regain control of Congress if they can do as well in the rest of the nation as they did in Maine. And Republican National Chairman Hall has congratulated the winning Republicans for beating "stiffer than the usual opposition," I should like to discuss the Maine results in a few minutes.

Both chairmen...Mitchell and Hall..today signed a pledge to conduct a clean campaign this year. All candidates for federal office this fall will be asked to sign the pledge. to "condemn the use of personal vilification, character defamation, whispering campaigns, libel, slander or scurrilous attacks on any candidate or his personal or family life."

The State Department announced today that Secretary Dulles will make a report to the nation tomorrow night on the situation in the Far East. Today, Nationalist planes and warships again attacked the Communist-held mainland opposite Formosa. The Nationalists say the Reds fired only ten shells at Quemoy and little Quemoy Islands.

A Defense department spokesman in Washington says Chiang Kai Shek is free to send to Quemoy any of the military equipment we have been sending to Formosa. And the Navy says it will send the aircraft carrier Midway and 16 destroyers to the Pacific in the next four months..to help balance our naval strength in the Atlantic and Pacific.

The Soviet Foreign Ministry said today that the recent Manila conference "helped aggravate the international situation and creates obstacles for the settlement of unsolved problems."

In Iran, the war minister said today that a Communist spy ring that infiltrated the Iranian armed forces has given Russia detailed information on "every tank, gun and uniform" sent to Iran from this country. More than 400 persons have been arrested.

British Foreign Secretary Eden today won Italian support for a British plan to replace the European Defense Community proposal. My colleague Bill Downs informs me that it calls for six west European nations to admit West Germany into a continental defense program based on "a combination of existing institutions of the Brussels treaty and ahe North Atlantic Treaty Organization." The British would join the new alliance..something they were not prepared to do in E.D.C. Tomorrow, Eden goes to Paris to lay the plan before French Premier Mendez-France.

In Denver today, a committee from the American Retail Federation told thr President that "there has been a steady growth of confidence in the economic future of our country" in the first 20 months of the Eisenhower administration. The committee says this year "is proving to be an eventful one in the distribution of more and better goods to the American people."

Republican Senator Flanders of Vermont charged today that Senator McCarthy has used "abusive and coercive" tactics in a persistent effort to intimidate the press and other communication media. Flanders filed the charge with the Watkins committee which is not considering the censure charges against McCarthy. The committee today decided to turn down McCarthy's challenge over the fairness of the committee's counsel. McCarthy and his lawyer had charged that Chief Counsel Chadwick and his assistants had acted as prosecutors in the hearings. The committee said today it has "absolute confidence" in the fairness of its aides.

Federal Housing Chief Cole today told the Senate Banking Committee that three Jamaica, New York, builders had made a million and a quarter dollars in "windfall" profits on an investment of only $90...capitalizing three housing projects with a stock of $30 each.

In West Virginia today, Greenbrier County school authorities banned negro students from white schools after white residents voted to remove bodily any negroes who tried to attend classes at the White Sulpher Springs High School. Parents of the Negro children then voted to keep the children at home until "equal school facilities" are provided by county boards of education. In Fayetville, Arkansas, whites and negroes attended classes together without indicent.

It is hard to down a slogan, even a false one. The slogan: "How Maine goes, so goes the nation" has been out of date, and sometimes - as in the Roosevelt - Landon campaign in 1936 - it can be quite absurd.

For as long as this reporter can remember, every election in Maine has been followed by elaborate explanations why the results did not indicate a national trend. Usually these explanations were offered by Democrats because Maine normally goes Republican. This year they are bein offered by Republicans, because Maine has elected a Democratic governor. The change in the voices making the explanations may in itself indicate a national trend. But this is no occasion for snap judgement.

It is true that for the first time in many decades a Republican governor in Maine has been denied a second term. But this was a local, not a national issue. Senator Margaret Chase Smith was re-elected, so were the three Maine representatives in the House, all of them Republicans. The majorities they received, however, are smaller than in the last election. Senator Smith's majority was less than half of the 96,000 she was given in 1946, and the congressional majorities dropped sharply. It is in comparing these results with those of two years ago that any national significance is to be found, it it exists.

A question to answer first of all is whether Edna voted. For if Edna voted at all she helped the Democrats. That is, Edna, the Hurricane, disrupted the country sistricts more than the towns and cities. She produced floods that washed out roads and swept away bridges. That could keep the country vote down. The country districts are usually overwhelmingly Republican, whereas most Democrats live in towns and cities. But it does not look as though Edna voted heavily. The total turnout for the election was about the same as two years ago. There may have been a slight decline in rural areas and a heavier turnout in towns and cities. Final analysis as to that is still not possible. But it is not true to say that Governor Cross was blown out of office by a hurricane, or that it took a hurricane to hurt the Republican vote for congressmen.

Governor Cross is a blunt man and blunt men sometimes forfeit votes. He made enemies with some of his appointments, and by backing a reclassification of roads so that local communities instead of the state had to keep them up. He offended hard-hit potato growers by opposing federal price supports. But he counted as a good governor. Probably it is right to say that the Democrats won the election, rather than that he lost it. They had a likeable and popular candidate, Edmund Muskie. And they campaigned with the battlecry: "time for a change". They said that Maine should enjoy two-part rule after Republican domination for ninety years. "Time for a change" had been a good cry for the Republicans two years ago. In Maine this year it worked against them. It did not elect a Democratic legislature, but it certainly helped elect Muskie and to recude Republican majorities all around.

Some of Senator Smith's loss of half of her previous majority can be explained in local terms. Six years ago she courted and reciived many Democratic votes, and consequently did not campaign against the Democrats. This year she went after the Democrats tooth and nail. And this year the Democrats had a promising candidate of their own, a Colby professor, Paul Fullam. There in no national significance in these facts.

But when it comes to the congressional results, it grown harder to prove they have cheifly local meaning. In the First District, Representative Robert Hale won two years ago by more than 16,000 majority. Yesterday his majority was less than 4,000 (with a few precincts still unreported). The total vote in the District was about the same, so it was not Edna making the difference.

In the Second District, Representative Charles Nelson won two years ago by 28,000, this year by fewer than 7,000 with a few precincts unreported. And here the turnout was at least twelve hundred more than two years ago.

In the Third District Representative Clifford McIntire two years ago beat his opponent three to one, yesterday by two to one, and here, too, the turnout was greater this year than last time.

The combined Republican majorities in the three districts two years ago was around 80,000. This year it was about 24,000. This was in spite of Vice President Nixon's appeal that Maine voters show the way to the rest of the country by piling up even larger majorities than before. It may be, as I said, that the cry: "Time for a change," accounts for some of this shrinkage. But it has to account for all of it - which is most unlikely - if it does not suggest a similar shrinkage in other states. There are enough close districts in other states for the Democrats to win a comfortable majority in the House if the shrinkage proves to be only a fraction of what it was in Maine.

So while it cannot be stated to dogmatically, the Maine election does appear to have a national meaning. It is a suggestion rather than a prediction, but the suggestion is that the Republicans face considerable losses in the House. In 1952 they swept into power with the help of some Democrats and a great many non-part votes. To win again in November they must receive the same kind of support in much the same measure. If the voters in Maine are like voters elsewhere, they are not going to get all tf this support again. They could do without it in Maine. They will need it sorely in many other states.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a moment with a Word for Today. But first, Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: Bismarck was once inclined to remark that "politics is not an exact science." And this is something we ought to bear in mind in trying to draw conclusions from the Maine elections. Oliver Wendell Holmes put it well when he said: "Everything is twice as large, measured on a three-year-old's three-foot scale as on a thirty-year-old's six foot scale."

Good Night and Good Luck!

Wednesday, September 15, 1954

This is the news:

Secretary of State Dulles left for Europe tonight, to discuss the re-armament of West Germany. He will visit Bonn and London..not Paris. I should like to discuss this mission in a few minutes.

Before he left, the Secretary made a recorded report on his most recent trip to Manila, where the Southeast Asian Defense Conference was held. The Secretary's report may be heard over many of these stations at 10;15 p.m. eastern time. Mr. Dulles will say, that we intend to keep powerful air and naval forces on guard in the Pacific. He will say that the recent Chinese Communist bombardment of the Nationalist island of Quemoy, was an effort to intimidate the nations attending the Manila conference. This move failed.

Again today, Nationalist planes and ships attacked the Communist-held coast of China. Nationalist officials say the size of their attacking forces has been reduced. And the Interior Ministry says a Communist Marine Division recently was shifted from South China to the mainland, opposite Quemoy.

The Communists today released two American newsmen..Richard Applegate and Don ~~Nixon~~ Dixon, and a ship's captain...Benjamin ~~Kraner~~ KRASNER. The three men had been held as prisoners for 18 months. They reported being brainwashed from time to time..forced to sign germ warfare confessions. They never were allowed to see one another until today. Applegate said all three "had to tell the Communists we loved ~~them~~ Communism before we could leave." They were all seized while aboard Applegate's yawl off Hong Kong..in international waters. And for the last ten months all three were confined to small, windowless cells in a Canton jail.

The White House announced today that Japan's Premier Yoshida will visit the United States in November as a guest of our government. He will "renew personal and official friendships and discuss problems of mutual interest."

The President today "very reluctantly" accepted the resignation of Dr. Henry D. Smith (~~Ed: wash says its no longer smyth~~) as a member of the Atomic Energy Commission. He will be replaced by Dr. Willard Frank Libby, a University of Chicago atomic scientists. Smith told the President today that in the event of enemy attack we have a stockpile of hydrogen and atomic bombs that would "assure this country and the free world the capacity to answer with overwhelming power."

Vice President Nixon started a political speech-making tour in Columbus, Ohio, today. He said the Congressional elections this year are critical, and the Administration will have tough-sledding if the Republicans fail to win a majority in Congress.

Wisconsin Democrats, beaten [redacted] in yesterday's primary, are deriving some satisfaction from the fact that they showed gains of from 12 to 17 per cent in the votes for Democratic candidates. And in New Hampshire Representative Norris Cotton defeated Senator Robert Upton for the Republican nomination for the remaining two years of the late Senator Tobey's term.

Here in New York today, the National Council of Churches approved a Christian Manifesto for the guidance of some 35 million Protestants on economic matters. A key principle says "Christians should work for a situation wherein all have access to at least a minimum standard of living." The manifesto says this should be "sufficient to permit care of the health of all and for suitable protection of the weaker members of the society, such as children, the sick, the aged and the incapacitated. The Manifesto adopted by the National Council of Churches also ~~[illegible]~~ speaks of " a sound economy which seeks the maximum welfare of the greatest number of people." And it adds: "All youth should have the right to equal opportunities to develop their capacities." The guide was drawn up by a 121-member committee headed by Charles P. Taft, brother of the late Senator Taft.

The Federal Trade Commission today called on the cigaret industry to abandon references to health in its advertising. And the industry was asked to limit cigaret sales appeals generally to quality, (TASTE) flavor and enjoyment. All of this is not legally enforceable. But it could become a formal rule after the trade commission and tobacco manufacturers come to a final agreement on advertising rules. The commission wants the elimination of "all claims and implications which are questionable in light of present day scientific knowledge."

And here in New York, the heavyweight champaionship fight between Rocky Maricano and Ezzard Charles was postponed..until tomorrow night.. because of rain.

Edward R. Murrow: September 15, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

Secretary of State Dulles left for Europe this evening - said he was going to seek ways to restore German sovereignty and to re-arm Germans. He's going to Bonn and London.

Richard Hottelet cables me from Bonn that Mr. Dulles' trip struck the European scene like a thunderbolt. It is noted that he is not going to France.

Cables from Paris say that this comes as a profound shock to the French Government. One close associate of Premier Mendes France said: "Have we gotten to the point already where America is trying to isolate France?" Tomorrow at the Council meeting of NATO, Mendes-France will be asked whether it is the French intention to beef up [redacted] NATO with German troops, or is it to produce a situation in which talks with the Russians are the next step, with the inevitable result that the Western Alliance will be weakened.

[redacted]

-1A-

[redacted]

Mr. Dulles ~~The~~ trip is most unlikely to be a fact-finding expedition. ~~Mr.~~ He ~~Dulles~~ has been informed copiously, through diplomatic channels, of Anthony Eden's visit to Belgium, Germany and Italy. Moreover, Robert Murphy, of the State Department, left Bonn only yesterday after extensive conversations with Chancellor Adenauer and his top advisors. There is literally nothing more that Adenauer could say to Dulles tomorrow. The conclusion in Germany is that Mr. Dulles is bringing some ideas and suggestions of his own that can be put into operation without French consent, which he wants to co-ordinate with Germany and Britain before the nine-power conference in London later this month.

This is a period of unprecedented and even desperate diplomatic activity. Mr. Eden has been visiting European capitals, and his plan for including Germany in NATO has met widespread acceptance. Hottelet says that informed diplomatic observers in Germany are speculating tonight that Mr. Dulles is coming over with the first rough draft of the agonizing re-appraisal of American foreign policy, which he has been threatening for so long. If he can get agreement in London and Bonn he will be in a position to crowd the French when the nine nations meet in London.

Mr. Eden's activity reflects a British desire to press for an immediate alternative to the European Defense Community. There exists in Europe now a combination of confusion, disunity and resignation which works only to the benefit of the Russians. The British who for centuries based their policy upon a division of Europe, now know that disunity in Western Europe threatens their very existence. Even in the atomic age the island must be nourished by ships, and by tradition [redacted] and necessity the British think in terms of sea power. A few weeks ago the British Admiralty announced that in two or three years Russia would possess a fleet of five hundred submarines, thirty cruisers, a hundred and fifty destroyers, five hundred motor torpedo boats, one thousand minesweepers, many escort vessels and landing craft, plus four thousand naval aircraft. The Russians are now devoting about one-fifth of their total defense expenditure to naval forces. The British already concerned over the presence of vast Soviet land forces, must have been shocked at the prospect of facing this immense Soviet sea power. A Russian Navy of this magnitude is not needed to patrol the Volga River, the Black Sea and the Baltic. Britain must be concerned to do what it can to mend the Continental fence while there is still time. If France refuses to come along, that would raise painful political problems. But if Europe staggers along in the present morass of inactivity, it will raise equally painful German political problems, in addition to an acute military problem for all concerned.

There is at the moment no hard assurance that France will not prefer isolation to the acceptance of German political and military equality. A few days ago France alone killed a Western proposal that NATO defense orders be given to German industry. One of the strongest proponents of E.D.C. and Western Defense integration in France has been removed from his post as French representative on the NATO Council. The French for the moment appear content to take the gradual approach to European unity, believing that political integration should gradually precede military co-ordination. We and the British are obviously in greater haste. The Germans, too, are impatient. So far the French hopes for the future do not outweigh in the balance their memories of the past. If they fear the Germans more than the Russians, it is of course because their acquaintance with the Germans is more recent and more terrible. With nations, as with people, it is simply not true that the better they become acquainted the better they like each other.

Mr. Dulles has made many missions since he became Secretary of State, but few if any more delicate than this. In military terms the situation is this: Western Europe cannot be defended without Germany; Germany cannot be defended without France; Western Europe is lost unless those two countries collaborate. History, prejudice and suspicion are in collision with hope, logistics and military requirements. And whatever Mr. Dulles's plan may be, the French are in the middle.

It is difficult at times, perhaps, for some of us in this country to understand the [redacted] sensitive feeling between the French and the Germans. Lord Byron summed it up pretty well when he wrote:"There never yet was human power which could evade, if unforgiven, the patient search and vigil long of him who treasures up a wrong."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 15, 1954
7:45-8:00 P.M.,E.S.T.

This is the news:

Secretary of State Dulles left for Europe tonight to discuss the rearmament of West Germany. He will visit Bonn and London...not Paris. I should like to discuss this mission in a few minutes.

Before he left, the Secretary made a recorded report on his most recent trip to Manila where the Southeast Asian Defense Conference was held. The Secretary's report may be heard over many of these stations at 10:15 p.m. eastern time. Mr. Dulles will say that we intend to keep powerful air and naval forces on guard in the Pacific. He will say that the recent Chinese Communist bombardment of the Nationalist island of Quemoy was an effort to intimidate the nations attending the Manila conference. This move failed.

Again today, Nationalist planes and ships attacked the Communist held coast of China. Nationalist officials say the size of their attacking forces has been reduced. And the Interior Ministry says a Communist Marine Division recently was shifted from South China to the mainland, opposite Quemoy.

The Communists today released two American newsmen..Richard Applegate and Don Dixon...and a shipss captain..Benjamin Krasner. The three men had been held as prisoners for 10 months. They reported being brainwashed from time to time...forced to sign germ warfare confessions. They never were allowed to see one another until today. Applegate said all three "had to tell the Communists we loved Communism before we could leave." They were all seized whild aboard Applegate's yawl off Hong Kong...in international waters. And for the last ten months all three were confined to small, windowless cells in a Canton jail.

The White House announced today that Japan's Premier Yoshida will visit the United States in November as a guest of our government. He will "renew personal and official friendships and discuss problems of mutual interest."

The President today "very reluctantly" accepted the resignation of Dr. Henry D. Smith as a member of the Atomic Energy Commission. He will be replaced by Dr. Willard Frank Libby, a University of Chicago atomic scientist. Smith told the President today that in the event of enemy attack we have a stockpile of hydrogen and atomic bombs that would "assure this country and the free world the capacity to answer with overwhelming power."

Vice President Nixon started a political speech-making tour in Columbus, Ohio, today. He said Congressional elections this year are critical and the Administration will have a tough-sledding if the Republicans fail to win a majority in Congress.

Wisconsin Democrats, beaten in yesterday's primary, are deriving some satisfaction from the fact that they showed gains of from 12 to 17 per cent in the votes for Democtatic candidates. And in New Hampshire Representative Norris Cotton defeated Senator Robert Upton for the Republican nomination for the remaining two years of the late Senator Tobey's term.

Here in New York today, the National Council of Churches approved a Christian Manifesto for the guidance of some 35 million Protestants on economic matters. A key principle says "Christians should work for a situation wherein all have access to at least a minimum standard of living." The manifesto says this should be "sufficient to permit care of the health of all and for suitable protection of the weaker members of society, such as children, the sick, the aged and the incapacitated. The Manifesto adopted by the National Council of Churches also speaks of "a sound economy which seeks the maximum welfare of the greatest number of people." And it adds: "all youth should have the right to equal opportunities to develope their capacities." The guide was drawn up by a 121 member committee headed by Charles P. Taft, brother of the late Senator Taft.

The Federal Trade Commission today called on the cigaret industry to abandon references to health in its advertising. And the industry was asked to limit cigaret sales appeals generally to quality, taste, flavor and enjoyment. All of this is not legally enforceable. But it could become a formal rule after the trade commission and tobacco manufacturers come to a final agreement on advertising rules. The commission wants the elimination of "all claims and implications which are questionable in light of present day scientific knowledge."

And here in New York, the heavyweight championship fight between Rocky Marciano and Ezzard Charles was postponed...until tomorrow night..because of rain.

Secretary of State Dulles left for Europe this evening -said he was going to seek ways to restore German soverignty and re-arm Germans. He's going to Bonn and London.

Richard Hottelet cables me from Bonn that Mr. Dulles' trip struck the European scene like a thunderbolt. It is noted that he is not going to France.

Cables from Paris say that this comes as a profound shock to the French Government. One close associate of Premier Mendes France said: "Have we gotten to the point already where America is trying to isolate France?" Tomorrow at the Council meeting of NATO, Mendes-France will be asked whether it is the French intention to beef up NATO with German troops, or is it is the French intention to beef up NATO with German troops, or is it to produce a situation in which talks with the Russians are the next step, with the inevitable result that the Western Alliance will be weakened.

Mr. Dulles trip is most unlikely to be a fact-finding expedition. He has been informed copiously, through diplomatic channels, of Anthony Eden's visit to Belgium, Germany and Italy. Moreover, Robert Murphy, of the State Department, left Bonn only yesterday after extensive conversations with Chancellor Adenauer and his top advisors. There is literally nothing more that Adenauer could say to Dulles tomorrow. The conclusion in Germany is that Mr. Dulles is bringing some ideas and suggestions of his own that can be put into operation without French consent, which he wants to co-ordinate with Germany and Britain before the nine-power conference in London later this month.

This is a period of unprecedented and even desperate diplomatic activity. Mr. Eden has been visiting European capitals, and his plan for including Germany in NATO has met widespread acceptance. Hottelet says that informed diplomatic observers in Germany are speculating tonight that Mr. Dulles is coming over with the first rough draft of the agonizing re-appraisal of American foreign policy, which he has been threatening for so long. If he can get agreement in London and Bonn he will be in a position to crowd the French when the nine nations meet in London.

Mr. Eden's activity reflects a British desire to press for an immediate alternative to the European Defense Community. There exists in Europe now a combination of confusion, disunity and resignation which works only to the benefit of the Russians. The British who for centuries based their policy upon a division of Europe, now know that disunity in Western Europe threatens their very existence. Even in the atomic age the island must be nourished by ships, and by tradition and necessity the British think in terms of sea power. A few weeks ago the British Admiralty announced that in two or three years Russia would possess a fleet of five hundred submarines, thirty cruisers, a hundred and fifty destroyers, five hundred motor torpedo boats, one thousand minesweepers, many escort vessels and landing craft, plus four thousand naval aircraft. The Russians are now devoting about one-fifth of their total defense expenditures to naval forces. The British already concerned over the presence of vast Soviet land forces, must have been shocked at the prospect of facing this immense Soviet sea power. A Russian Navy of this magnitude is not needed to patrol the Volga River, the Black Sea and the Baltic. Britain must be concerned to do what it can to mend the Continental fence while there is still time. If France refuses to come along, that would raise painful political problems. But if Europe staggers along in the present morass of inactivity, it will raise equally painful German political problems, in addition to an acute military problem for all concerned.

There is at the moment no hard assurance that France will not prefer isolation to the acceptance of German political and military equality. A few days ago France alone killed a Western proposal that NATO defense orders be given to German industry. One of the strongest proponents of E.D.C. and Western Defense integration in France has been removed from his post as French representative on the NATO Council. The French for the moment appear content to take the gradual approach to European unity, believing that political integration should gradually precede military coordination We and the British are obviously in greater haste. The Germans too, are impatient. So far the French hopes for the future do not outweigh in the impatient balance their memories of the past. If they fear the Germans more than the Russians, it is of course because their acquaintance with the Germans is more recent and more terrible. With nations, as with people, it is simply not true that the better they become acquainted the better they like each other.

Mr. Dulles has made many missions since he became Secretary of State, but few if any more delicate than this. In military terms the situation is this: Western Europe cannot be defended without Germany; Germany cannot be defended without France; Western Europe is lost unless those two countries collaborate. History, prejudice and suspicion are in collision with hope, logistics and military requirements. And whatever Mr. Dulles's plan may be, the French are in the middle.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a moment with a Word for Today. But first, Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: It is difficult at times, perhaps, for some of us in this country to understand the sensetive feeling between the French and the Germans. Lord Byron summed it up pretty well when he wrote; "There never yet was human power which could evade, if unforgiven, the patient search and vigil long of him who treasures up a wrong."

Good Night and Good Luck!

Thursday Sept. 16, 1954

This is the news:

French Premier Mendez-France and British Foreign Secretary Eden today announced that they have agreed on some of the Eden plan for a 7-nation European Defense alliance. A joint communique says both men have agreed on the importance of strengthening the Atlantic community and achieving unity "in which the United Kingdom will play a full part." A French foreign office spokesman says this means agreement on the basic ideas of the Eden plan. And Eden..back in London.. indicated that he does not yet have full French..or American..support for all phases of the plan to re-arm West Germany. The seven nations concerned with the Eden plan are: West Germany, Britain, France, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg. Despite the optimistic reports from Paris and London, my colleague Blair Clark reports from Paris by cable that no real solution has yet been found for West Germany's entry into the North Atlantic Treaty organization. And Clark quotes NATO diplomatic sources as saying that at the Mendez-France..Eden meeting little actual progress was made toward French acceptance of West Germany in the North Atlantic group..without discrimination.

In West Germany today, Secretary of State Dulles [redacted] conferred with Chancellor Adenauer on how to give Germany sovereignty and arms without alienating France. There has been no official report on the more than three hours of conference. When he arrived in Bonn today Mr. Dulles said only that he is seeking a way to bring Germany into the "the society of the free as an equal partner." And Chancellor Adenauer, greeting him at the airport, said to the secretary: "The best Europeans come from the United States." Mr. Dulles flies to London tomorrow to talk with Mr. Eden and Sir Winston Churchill. He will not stop at Paris.

Some British newspapers today called this a "snub" to Premier Mendez-France.. The Manchester Guardian refers to the decision as "political ineptitude" and a "studied insult to France." But for the second time, the State Department says this is not so.. "No snub was intended, and there has been none."

The West German parliament today heard charges from Socialist deputies that Chancellor Adenauer's system of what's called "secret decisions" is a danger to democracy in West Germany.

And Chairman Wiley of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said in Paris today: continued aid to Europe is not in the interest of the United States unless west Germany contributes to the defense of the free world.

In Italy, Vatican sources said today that Pope Pius has suffered a recurrence of his stomach trouble.. a Swiss specialist has been at his summer residence for a week, treating the Pope.

In the Far East, Chinese Nationalist planes and warships again attacked the Red China coast near Quemoy. One Communist junk was reported sunk.

And General de Castries, the French commander at Dien Bien Phu said today that the fortress could have been saved from the Communists by "a very massive intervention of the American air force." De Castries says that an American air attack, in the early days of the seige of the French fortress, could have changed the battle.. in which the French ultimately surrendered. He feels that the Geneva agreement will lead to a general peace in Southeast Asia and "in the rest of the world."

The magazine Aviatian Age says today that [redacted] Russia now has based almost her entire fleet of long-range bombers...as well as other army and navy air forces..at airfields along the coast of the Arctic ocean. The private trade magazine says:"Like the United States, Soviet Russia views the polar regions as the main AVENUE for aerial warfare in the event of World War Three." Aviation Age says that a fewmonths ago not one Russian long range bomber squadron was known to be stationed in western or southern Russia.

~~And Navy Secretary Charles S. Thomas says Russia wants to be able to seize control of the seas from us before Russia starts any war. He says the Soviet navy is "slowly but surely" threatening our naval supremacy.~~

4A

The Soviet news agency Tass says Russia has carried out successful new tests of atomic weapons. Tass says Russia has obtained data to help Soviet scientists defend the country against any atomic attack.

Chairman Straws of ~~the~~ our Atomic Energy Commission says that so much emphasis is placed on the production of atomic weapons, and so little on peaceful uses of atomic energy, that this plays into the hands of Russian propagandists.

The Republican National Committee today told its party members that if the November election results in the net loss of one Republican senate seat, "the nation will swing back... leftward..to Trumanism."

Senator Mc Carthy said today that he will limit his campaigning this fall almost exclusively to radio and television speeches. He has decided his investigations "would be more effective than campaign speeches" in proving that the Republicans are making good their pledge to clean up "the mess in Washington." Mc Carthy does plan to make one speech in Omaha and two in Illinois.

The Agriculture Department says it lost a record sum of 419-million dollars on farm price supports in the last fiscal year... and could lose over one billion dollars more.

Here in New York, the Marciano-Charles heavyweight champaionship fight has been postponed again..to tomorrow night..because of rain.

Edward R. Murrow: September 16, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

Somewhere in the Bible there is a phrase that says, in effect: "The eyes of a fool are on the ends of the earth". We are concerned about Indochina, European unity - or lack of it - Formosa, Trieste, the disposition of the Russian Air Force. There is no shortage of distant matters giving rise to deep concern. But there is a situation near at hand which merits concern and ~~tension~~ attention. This week and next the public schools of this country will admit more than thirty and one-half million students. (That's a million-and-a-half more than last year.) More than four-and-a-half million will be entering the first grade. The position, unlike diplomatic negotiations, relative atomic strength and all the rest, can be simply stated. There are too few teachers, too many teachers who are not fully qualified to teach, classrooms are too crowded, some schools will be working three shifts, holding classes in cafeterias, churches, synagogues and in at least one case a converted chicken coop.

There is a shortage of almost a hundred and twenty-five thousand teachers, and this shortage must be made up from "emergency" teachers. Children are being cheated. Overcrowding is worse than it has been before. This year there will be about six-and-a-half percent fewer new teachers than last year. Also last year something like seventy-five thousand teachers quit their jobs for better pay and further opportunity. And the peak in students attending public schools will not come until 1960. The figures are not to be disputed. We require more teachers and more classrooms, which in turn means more money.

There is some reassurance today for the roughly nine million parents whose children have entered the first grade. A spokesman of the National Education Association said: "Twenty years ago we still had the idea children should progress exactly alike. Now we know that's impossible. I like to compare learning to read with learning to walk. Some youngsters may be able to walk at thirteen months, and others not until they're twenty months old. Yet, twenty years later the one who walked at thirteen months won't necessarily be the better walker. Reading is the same way. Children simply don't get ready to read at the same time." Doctor Robert Eaves, of the N.E.A. also says that the new crop of parents who came on after the war are showing far more interest in our schools. They're much more alert and much more concerned about education. There's an eagerness there.

Probably no country in the world pays more ~~XXXXXXXXXXXX~~ unanimous lip service to universal education than do we. It seems at times that we will do anything except pay for it. Teachers, like the rest of us, work for a living, but generally more is expected of teachers than is required of the ordinary workman. There is a tendency on the part of parents to assign their duties and responsibilities to the teacher. The teacher is expected to lead a more exemplary existence than is required of the rest of us. In ethics morals and example the teacher must be a first-class citizen. But when it comes to income, the teacher occupies a second-class position. There is considerable evidence to indicate that teachers behave pretty much like other mortals. Communities that pay good salaries and offer good working conditions are generally able to keep their teachers, and find good replacements. In communities where salaries are low, and conditions unfavorable, there is a teacher shortage, both of quantity and of quality. Well-prepared teachers go where the rewards and opportunities are best.

It seems to this reporter that the average citizen can do but little to influence or control directly most of the major issues that confront the nation. He can't advise Mr. Dulles in Bonn or London. He can't directly influence what the Russians are going to do. He can't measure the importance of a billion dollars more or less in the military budget. But he can recognize that we haven't got enough good schools with enough competent and well-paid teachers; about that he can do something, in the hope that his investment will pay dividends in terms of human beings better able to cope with the problems that will still be there, when they grow up.

7288

Dr. Eaves is undoubtedly right when he suggests that the child who walks at thirteen months and the one who doesn't walk till twenty months, may both walk equally well twenty years later. But the important thing, surely, is the direction in which they walk collectively. They can walk forward or backward. Their direction will be determined, in part at least, by what they know. There could be a new definition of S.O.S., and it could be: "Save Our Schools".

We [redacted] education. And no one placed a higher value on it than Joseph [redacted] when he said:"Education is a companion which no misfortune can depress, no crime can destroy, no enemy can alienate, no despotism can enslave. Without education, what is man ? A splendid slave, a reasoning savage." Bismarck put it this way:"The nation that has the schools has the future."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 17, 1954
7:45-8:00 P.M. E.S.T.

This is the news:

French Premier Mendez-France and British Foreign Secretary Eden today announced that they have agreed on some of the Eden plan for a 7-nation European Defense alliance. A joint communique says both men have agreed on the importance of strengthening the Atlantic community and achieving unity "in which the United Kingdom will play a full part." A French foreign office spokesman says this means agreement on the basic ideas of the Eden plan. And Eden..back in London..indicated that he does not yet have full French or American support for all phases of the plan to re-arm West Germany. The seven nations concerned with the Eden plan are: West Germany, Britain, France, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg. Despite the optimistic reports from Paris and London, my colleague Blair Clark reports from Paris by cable that no real solution has yet been found for West Germany's entry into the North Atlantic Treaty organization. And Clark quotes NATO diplomatic sources as saying that at the Mendez-France-Eden meeting little actual progress was made toward French acceptance of West Germany in the North Atlantic group...without discrimination.

In West Germany today, Secretary of State Dulles conferred with Chancellor Adenauer on how to give Germany soverignty and arms without alienating France. There has been no official report on the more than three hours of conference. When he arrived in Bonn today Mr. Dulles said only thet he is seeking a way to bring Germany into the "society of the free as an equal partner." And Chancellor Adenauer greeting him at the airport, said to the secretary: "The best Europeans come from the United States." Mr Dulles flies to London tomorrow to talk with Mr. Eden and Sir Winston Churchill.

He will not stop at Paris.

Some British newspapers today called this a "snub" to Premier Mendez-France. The Manchester Guardian refers to the decision as "political ineptitude" and a "studied insult to France." But for the second time, the State Department says this is not so. "No snub was intended and there has been none."

The West German parliament today heard charges from Socialist deputies that Chancellor Adenauer's system of what's called "secret decisions" is a danger to democracy in West Germany.

And Chairman Wiley of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said in Paris today: continued aid to Europe is not in the interest of the United States unless West Germany contributes to the defense of the free world.

In Italy, Vatican sources said today that Pope Pius has suffered a recurrence of his stomach trouble...a Swiss specialist has been at his summer residence for a week, treating the Pope.

In the Far East, Chinese Nationalist planes and warships again attacked the Red China coast near Quemoy. One Communist junk was reported sunk.

And General de Castries, the French commander of Dien Bien Phu said today that the fortress could have been saved from the Communists by "a very massive intervention of the American Air Force." De Castries says that an American air attack, in the early days of the siege of the French fortress, could have changed the battle in which the French ultimately surrendered. He feels that the Geneva agreement will lead to a general peace in Southeast Asia and "in the rest of the world."

The Magazine Aviation Age says today that Russia now has based almost her entire fleet of long range bombers ..as well as other army and navy air forces at airfields along the coast of the Arctic Ocean. The private-trade magazine says: "Like the United States, Soviet Russia views the polar regions as the main avenue for aerial warfare in the event of World War Three." Aviation Age says that a few months ago not one Russian long range bomber squadron was known to be stationed in western or southern Russia. The Soviet news agency Tass says Russia has carried out successful new tests of atomic weapons. Tass says Russia has obtained data to help Soviet scientists defend the country against any atomic attack.

Chairman Straws of our Atomic Energy Commission says that so much emphasis is placed on the production of atomic weapons, and so little on peaceful uses of atomic energy, that t is plays into the hands of Russian propagandists.

The Republican National Committee today told its party members that if the November election results in the net loss of one Republican senate seat, "the nation will swing back...leftward...to Trumanism."

Senator McCarthy said today that he will limit his campaigning this fall ammost exclusively to radio and television speeches. He has decided his investigations "would be more effective than campaign speeches" in proving that the Republicans are making good their pledge to clean up "the mess in Washington." McCarthy does plan to make one speech in Omaha and two in Illinois.

The Agriculture Department says it lost a record sum of 419 -million dollars on farm price supports in the last fiscal year ...and could lose over one billion dollars more.

Here in New York, the Marciano-Charles heavyweight championship fight has been postponed again...to tomorrow night...because of rain.

Somewhere in the Bible there is a phrase that says, in effect: "The eyes of a fool are on the ends of the earth." We are concerned about Indochina, European unity - or lack of it - Formosa, Trieste, the disposition of the Russian Air Force. There is no shortage of distant matters giving rise to deep concern. But there is a situation near at hand which merits concern and attention. This week and next the public schools of this country will admit more than thirty and one half million students. That's a million-and-a-half more than last year. More than four-and-a-half million will be entering the first grade. The position, unlike diplomatic negotiations, relative to atomic strength and all the rest, can be simply stated. There are too few teachers, too many teachers who are not fully qualified to teach, classrooms are too crowded, some schools will be working three shifts, holding classes in cafeterias, churches, synagogues, and in at least one case a converted chicken coop. There is a shortage of almost a hundred and twenty-five thousand teachers, and this shortage must be made up for in "emergency" teachers. Children are being cheated. Over crowding is worse than it has been before. This year there will be about six-and-a-half-percent fewer teachers than last year. Also last year something like seventy-five thousand teachers quit their jobs for better pay and further opportunity. And the peak in students attending public schools will not come until 1960. The figures are not to be disputed. We require more teachers and more classrooms, which in turn means more money.

There is some reassurance today for the roughly nine million parents whose children have entered the first grade. A spokesman of the National Education Association said:" Twenty years ago we still had the idea children should progress exactly alike. Now we know that's impossible. I like to compare learning to read with learning to walk. Some youngsters may be able to walk at thirteen months, and others not until they're twenty months old. Yet, twenty years later the one who walked at thirteen months won't necessarily be the better walker. Reading is the same way. Children simply don't get ready to read at the same time." Doctor Robert Eaves, of the N.E.A. also says that the new crop of parents who came on after the war are showing far more interest in our schools. They're much more alert and much more concerned about education. There's an eagerness there.

Probably no country in the world pays more unanimous lip sersive to universal education that we do. It seems at times that we will do andthing except pay for it. Teachers, like the rest of us, work for a living but generally more is expected of teachers than is required of the ordinary workman. There is a tendency on the part of parents to assign their duties and responsibilities to the teacher. The teacher is expected to lead a more exemplary existence than is required of the rest of us. In ethics, morals, and example the teacher must be a first-class citizen. But when it comes to income, the teacher occupies a second-class position.

There is considerable evidence to indicate that teachers behave pretty much like other mortals. Communities that pay good salaries and offer good working conditions are generally able to keep their teachers, and find good replacements. In communities where salaries are low, and conditions unfavorable, there is a teacher shortage, both of quantity and of quality. Well-prepared teachers go where the rewards and opportunities are best.

It seems to this reporter that the average citizen can do but little to influence or control directly most of the major issues that confront the nation. He can't advise Mr. Dulles in Bonn or London. He can't directly influence what the Russians are going to do. He can't measure the importance of a billion dollars more or less in the military budget. But he can recognize that we haven't got enough good schools with enough competent and well-paid teachers; about that, he can do something, in the hope that his investment will pay dividends in terms of human beings better able to cope with the problems that will still be there, when they grow up. Dr. Eaves is undoubtedly right when he suggests that the child who walks at thirteen months and the one who doesn't walk till twenty months, may both walk equally well twenty years later. But the important thing, surely, is the direction in which they walk collectively. They can walk forward or backward. Their direction will be determined, in part at least, by what they know. There could be a new definition of S.O.S., and it could be: "Save Our Schools".

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a minute with the Word for Today. but first, Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: No one placed a higher value on education that Joseph Addison when he said: "Education is a companion which no misfortune can depress, no crime destroy, no enemy can alienate, no despotism can enslave. Without education, what is man? A splendid slave, a reasoning savage." Bismarck put itthis way: "The nation that has the schools has the future."

Good Night and Good Luck"

Tuesday Sept. 13, 1954

This is the news:

Secretary of State Dulles today reported..in part..on the results of his secret conferences with West Germany's Chancellor Adenauer and British Foreign Minister Eden. In Bonn, Mr. Dulles and Adenauer issued a statement saying: Germany's soverignty should be restored... and she should be given full equality in a western alliance. And in London, Mr. Dulles joined with Mr. Eden in saying: West Germany must be re-armed quickly and brought into the family of free nations "on the basis of full equality." I should like to discuss these developments in a few minutes.

Former British Foreign Minister Morrison said today that there may be some emotional gratification but no realism in the slogan "no arms for Germany." Morrison, a Labor party leader, acknowledged..in a speech in France..that his party was split on German re-armament.

Pope Pius today told an American reporter that he is not yet fully recovered from the ailment that confined him to his apartment early this year. He said he is still suffering. His doctors have told him that he should be fully recovered by November.

In the Far East, both the Nationalist and Communist Chinese have announced. [redacted] their intentions to step up hostilities. Today, the Nationalists again bombarded Communist fortifications in the vicinity of Quemoy, and scouted coastal rivers on the mainland for any signs of an invasion buildup.

And the Russian newspaper Pravda said today that the seating of Red China in the United Nations is one of the most pressing problems in international relations.

[redacted]

In Washington today, Foreign Aid Chief Stassen said that we are helping build 125 new villages in Indo-China to take care of a growing stream of refugees from Communist rule. More than a quarter of a million persons have now come into South Viet Nam.

Former President Truman today sent a letter to a Democratic meeting in Indianapolis calling on voters to give President Eisenhower a Democratic congress. Mr. Truman said this would save the President "from the misdeeds of his own party." Mr. Truman charged that the worst thing the Republicans have done "is to weaken the position of the free nations in the fight against Communist imperialism." The former president, who has called the 80th Congress the worst congress, referred to the 83rd Congress as a "do-wrong, give-away Congress." And talking to reporters in Kansas City, Mr. Truman said he is now feeling very well and is within two pounds of his normal 172-pound weight.

Republican National Chairman Hall, commenting on the Truman Letter, said He doubts that the American people will follow the Truman advice. Hall said when the people consider the Truman Administration record on "Korea, corruption and communism in the world, they are very likely to do the opposite of what Mr. Truman suggests."

Vice President Nixon, campaigning in MISSOURI, said the Administration deserves a vote of confidence and a Republican congress because it ended the war in Korea and brought new hope to the world.

And Democratic National Chairman Mitchell says that "Generally speaking we have in the making the greatest Democratic sweep since 1936"--when the Republicans won only Maine and Vermont.

~~2~~

Republican Senator Flanders of Vermont charged tonight that Senator McCarthy has employed "a deliberate campaign to discredit and degrade" Senators who criticize him. Flanders says that since 1949 McCarthy's campaign [redacted] has been designed to drive those who critize him from public office..if possible. Flanders says a failure to censure McCarthy for this would leave "the Senate debased and unprotected from the vilest sort of demagogy and unprincipled attacks upon members." Mc Carthy was not immediately available for comment.

Dr. Elmer Hess, the president-elect of the American Medical Association said today that the handling of mental patients "approaches a national disgrace" in many parts of the country. He called for vigorous action by state and county medical societies to bring about improvements.

Here in New York, the TWICE-POSTPONED Marciano-Charles heavyweight champaionship fights goes on tonight. It will be broadcast over many of these stations at 11 p.m. eastern daylight time.

Western unity is not necessarily falling apart, because there are differences over the re-armament of Germany. Differences make news; sometimes it is frightening news. But differences can also make policy. In a free country, differences are a sign of healthy national life. They have much the same meaning in the international relations of the free world. Of course it would be fortunate if everybody agreed on Germany's role in Western security. But it also would be astonishing. Anyhow, they don't. Mr. Eden went touring European capitals because they don't. Mr. Dulles suddenly flew to Europe for the same reason. Mr. Eden didn't get all the differences ironed out. Neither has Mr. Dulles, though he and Mr. Eden agree on major points. But at this stage, the existence of differences is not in itself alarming. Already they are serving to clarify the issues.

All the Western governments say they favor German re-armament. What they differ over is how to do it, and on what terms. And the biggest trouble is over the limitations to be placed on German armed forces, weapons, and production. The German Republic expects sovereignty and equality. If it agrees to restrictions it wants them in the main to apply to the other Western countries. It will not insist on all of them applying to everybody, but it refuses to be put in a strait jacket or be made to look like an inferior.

In Bonn yesterday Mr. Dulles and Dr. Adenauer stressed the importance of European integration. They agreed that the goal mustn't be abandoned because of a single setback, the defeat of the European Defense Community. London at once began worrying about this statement. European integration means some kind of supra-nationalism. The British feel they cannot limit their sovereignty to join a united Europe.

Mr. Eden's plan is on the basis of alliances of fully sovereign states. Judging from the London communique, Mr. Dulles has accepted this approach. Germany is to be taken into the partnership of the Brussels treaty as one of six allies, then into NATO, again as an ally. In the Eden plan Britain will increase its contributions to European defense. As at first outlined Germany would have to accept more controls than the other allies. Mr. Eden was trying to overcome French fears, also the rising resistance to German re-armament in the British Labor Party. But for his part today he accepted the principle of full equality for Germany.

Mr. Eden was not able to win Premier Mendes-France all the way. The French leader asked for a whole series of guarantees affecting Germany, and asked that they be adopted first by the nine-power conference the end of the month, then by the full NATO meeting in October. The guarantees France wants appear to push Germany in a second-class status. And as France has a veto in NATO Germany cannot become a member unless France is satisfied with the guarantees.

Secretary Dulles and Dr. Adenauer talked about this possibility of a French veto of Germany in NATO. My colleague Richard Hottelet reports from Bonn that they reluctantly agreed that in the event of such a veto the other nations concerned must be ready to go ahead without France.

It is this mention of going ahead without France, that adds a dimension to the difficulties. Every reference to it and to the fact that Washington may be going through the threatened "agonizing re-appraisal" of its European policy infuriates some Europeans; they think it is bluffing.

But Secretary Dulles is under the influence of many forces in the capital. One can be mentioned, the Pentagon's scramble for money since the military budget was reduced. The three services are competing for their former share in a smaller pie. In this rivalry the possibility plays a part that some American divisions in Germany might be withdrawn and become available for service elsewhere as needed. Mr. Dulles is under pressure to shape a foreign policy that makes this withdrawal possible.

Another force that influences Mr. Dulles is the school of thought which regards the whole concept of European defense based on NATO to be out of date. At the time of the Korean crisis, NATO was the agreed answer. But the re-appraisal people contend that atomic weapons have made archaic a collective security depending heavily on integrated ground forces. The people who think this way are not running either the Pentagon or the State Department, but they are important enough not to be ignored. And Mr. Dulles appears to feel that it is not too dangerous to consider doing things without France.

What he is saying is that unless the set-up that takes the place of the European Defense Community is just as effective as the E.D.C. he wants no part in it. Germany has to be a first-class partner even if the other members have to accept the same limitations. And if this is not attainable, he does not think the defense of Europe is lost. Mr. Dulles still would prefer the E.D.C., so would Dr. Adenauer, and so would everybody but France. But he is not ready to please France by accepting something inferior.

It would help laymen to weigh these choices to know just how much atomic power has outmoded the principles of pre-atomic strategy, especially in Europe. Maybe that is the biggest question of all. But since the military experts themselves don't agree on it, one can see why the statesmen find it hard to do so.

Eleanor Roosevelt once remarked about international diplomacy:"Up to a certain point it is good for us to know that there are people in the world who will give us love and unquestioned loyalty. I doubt however if it is good for us to feel assured of this without the accompanying obligation of having to justify this devotion by our behavior."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

Swing Sept.17

Western unity is not necessarily falling apart because there are differences over the rearmament of Germany. Differences make news; sometimes it is frightening news. But differences can also make policy. In a free country differences are a sign of healthy national life. They have much the same meaning in the international relations of the free world. Of course it would be fortunate if everybody agreed on Germany's role in Western security. But it also would be astonishing. Anyhow, they don't. Mr. Eden went touring European capitals because they don't. Mr. Dulles suddenly flew to Europe for the same reason. Mr. Eden didn't get all the differences ironed out. Neither has Mr. Dulles, though he and Mr. Eden agree on major points. But at this stage, the existence of ~~the~~ differences is not in itself alarming. Already they are serving to clarify the issues.

¶ All the Western governments say they favor German rearmament. What they differ over is how to do it and on what terms. And the biggest trouble is over the limitations to be placed on German armed forces, weapons, and production. The German Republic expects sovereignty and equality. If it agrees to ~~accepts~~ restrictions it wants them in the main to apply to the other Western countries. It will not insist on all of them applying to everybody, but it refuses to be put in a straightjacket or be made to look like an inferior.

In Bonn yesterday Mr. Dulles and Dr.Adenauer stressed the importance of European integration. They agreed that the goal mustn't be abandoned because of a single setback, the defeat of the European Defense Community. London at once began worrying about this statement. European integration means some kind of supra-nationalism. The British feel they cannot limit their sovereignty to join a united Europe.

Mr. Eden's plan is on the basis of alliances of fully sovereign states. (Judging from the London communique Mr. Dulles has accepted this approach.) Germany is to be taken into the partnership of the Brussels treaty as one of six allies, then into NATO, again as an ally. In the Eden plan Britain will increase its contributions to European defense. As at first outlined Germany would have to accept more controls than the other allies. Mr. Eden was trying to overcome French fears, also the rising resistance to German rearmament in the British Labor party. But for his part today he accepted the principle of full equality for Germany. Mr. Eden was not able to win Premier Mendez-France all the way. The French leader asked for a whole series of guarantees affecting Germany, and asked that the be adopted first by the 9-power conference the end of the month, then by the full NATO meeting in October. The guarantees France wants appear to push Germany in a second-class status.

And as France has a veto in NATO Germany cannot become a member unless France is satisfied with the guarantees.

¶ Secretary Dulles and Dr. Adenauer talked about ~~the~~ this possibility of a French veto of Germany in NATO. Mr. Hottelet reports from Bonn that they reluctantly agreed that in the event of such a veto the other nations concerned must be ready to go ahead without France. ¶ It is this mention of going ahead without France that adds a dimension to the difficulties. ~~The possibility is emphasized by Mr. Dulles having by-passed Paris on this trip, and~~ ~~by~~ Every reference to it and to the fact that Washington may be going through the threatened "agonizing reappraisal" of its European policy. ~~This kind of talk~~ infuriates some Europeans, They do think it is bluffing. ~~for they have little understanding of what goes on in Washington.~~ policy that makes this withdrawal possible.

¶ But Secretary Dulles is under the influence ~~of the~~ many forces in the capital. One can be mentioned, ~~One is~~ the Pentagon's scramble for money since the military budget ~~has been~~ was reduced. The three services are competing for ~~the~~ their former share in a smaller pie. ~~It plays a part~~ In this rivalry the possibility plays a part that some American divisions in Germany might be withdrawn and become available for service elsewhere as needed. Mr.Dulles is under pressure to shape a foreign

¶ Another force that Mr Dulles is influences the school of thought which regards the whole concept of European defense based on NATO to be out of date. At the time of the Korean crisis, NATO was the agreed answer. But the reappraisal people contend that atomic weapons have made archaic a collective security depending heavily on integrated ground forces. The people who think this way are not running either the Pentagon or the State Department, but they are important enough not to be ignored. And Mr. Dulles appears to feel that it is not too dangerous to consider doing things without France. ¶ What he is saying is that unless the set-up that takes the place of the European Defense Community is just as effective as the EDC he wants no part in it. Germany has to be a firstclass partner even if the other members have to accept the same limitations. And if this is not attainable, he does not think the defense of Europe is lost. Mr. Dulles still would prefer the EDC, so would Dr. Adenauer, and so would everybody but France. But he is not ready to please France by accepting something inferior.

¶ It would help laymen to weigh these choices to know just how much atomic power has outmoded the principles of pre-atomic strategy, especially in Europe. Maybe that is the biggest question of all. But since the military experts themselves don't agree on it, one can see why the statesmen find it hard to do so.

Swing Sept.17

Western unity is not necessarily falling apart because there are differences over the rearmament of Germany. Differences make news; sometimes it is frightening news. But differences can also make policy. In a free country differences are a sign of healthy national life. They have much the same meaning in the international relations of the free world. Of course it would be fortunate if everybody agreed on Germany's role in Western security. But it also would be astonishing. Anyhow, they don't. Mr. Eden went touring European capitals because they don't. Mr. Dulles suddenly flew to Europe for the same reason. Mr. Eden didn't get all the differences ironed out. Neither has Mr. Dulles, though he and Mr. Eden agree on major points. But at this stage, the existence of ~~the~~ differences is not in itself alarming. Already they are serving to clarify the issues.

¶ All the Western governments say they favor German rearmament. What they differ over is how to do it and on what terms. And the biggest trouble is over the limitations to be placed on German armed forces, weapons, and production. The German Republic expects sovereignty and equality. It it ~~accepts~~ agrees to restrictions it wants them (in the main) to apply to the other Western countries. It will not insist on all of them applying to everybody, but it refuses to be put in a straightjacket or be made to look like an inferior.

In Bonn yesterday Mr. Dulles and Dr.Adenauer stressed the importance of European integration. They agreed that the goal mustn't be abandoned because of a single setback, the defeat of the European Defense Community. London at once began worrying about this statement. European integration means some kind of supra-nationalism. The British feel they cannot limit their sovereignty to join a united Europe.

Mr. Eden's plan is on the basis of alliances of fully sovereign states. (Judging from the London Communique Mr Dulles has accept this approach) Germany is to be taken into the partnership of the Brussels treaty as one of six allies, then into NATO, again as an ally.In the Eden plan Britain will increase its contributions to European defense. As at first outlined Germany would have to accept more controls than the other allies. Mr. Eden was trying to overcome French fears, also the rising resistance to German rearmament in the British Labor party. But for his part he accepted the principle of full equality for Germany. Mr. Eden was not able to win Premier Mendes-France all the way. The French leader asked for a whole series of guarantees affecting Germany, and asked that the be adopted first by the 9-power conference the end of the month, then by the full NATO meeting in October. The guarantees France wants appear to push Germany in a second-class status.

And as France has a veto in NATO Germany cannot become a member unless France is satisfied with the guarantees.

Secretary Dulles and Dr. Adenauer talked about ~~the~~ this possibility of a French veto of Germany in NATO. Mr. Hottelet reports from Bonn that they reluctantly agreed that in the event of such a veto the other nations concerned must be ready to go ahead without France. ¶ It is this mention of going ahead without France that adds a dimension to the difficulties. ~~The possibility is emphasized by Mr. Dulles having by-passed Paris on this trip, and by~~ Every reference to it and to the fact that Washington may be going through the threatened "agonizing reappraisal" of its European policy, ~~This kind of talk~~ infuriates some Europeans, they think it is bluffing. ~~for many lack understanding of what goes on in Washington.~~ policy that makes this withdrawal possible.

¶ But Secretary Dulles is under the influence of ~~two~~ many forces in the capital. One can be mentioned, ~~is~~ the Pentagon's scramble for money since the military budget ~~has been~~ was reduced. The three services are competing for ~~the same~~ their former share in a smaller pie. ~~It plays a part~~ In this rivalry the possibility plays a part that some American divisions in Germany might be withdrawn and become available for service elsewhere as needed. Mr.Dulles is under pressure to shape a foreign

¶ Another ~~The other~~ force that ~~is~~ influences Mr. Dulles is ~~him~~ the school of thought which regards the whole concept of European defense based on NATO to be out of date. At the time of the Korean crisis, NATO was the agreed answer. But the reappraisal people contend that atomic weapons have made archaic a collective security depending heavily on integrated ground forces. The people who think this way are not running either the Pentagon or the State Department but they are important enough not to be ignored. And Mr. Dulles appears to feel that it is not too dangerous to consider doing things without France. ¶ What he is saying is that unless the set-up that takes the place of the European Defense Community is just as effective as the EDC he wants no part in it. Germany has to be a firstclass partner even if the other members have to accept the same limitations. And if this is not attainable, he does not think the defense of Europe is lost. Mr. Dulles still would prefer the EDC, so would Dr. Adenauer, and so would everybody but France. But he is not ready to please France by accepting something inferior. ~~weaker.~~ much atomic power has outmoded the principles of pre-atomic strategy, especially in Europe. Maybe that is the biggest question of all. But since the military experts themselves don't agree on it one can see why the statesmen find it hard to do so.

¶ It would help laymen to weigh these choices to know just how

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 17, 1954
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

Secretary of State Dulles today reported..in part..on the results of his secret conferences with West Germany's Chancellor Adenhauer and British Foreign Minister Eden. In Bonn, Mr. Dulles and Adenauer issued a statement saying: Germany's soverignty should be restored...and she should be given full equality in a western alliance. And in London, Mr. Dulles joined with Mr. Eden in saying: West Germany must be re-armed quickly and brought into the family of free nations "on the basis of full equality." I should like to discuss thise developements in a few minutes.

Former British Foreign Minister Morrison said today that there may be some emotional gratification but no realism in the slogan "no arms for Germany." Morrison, a Labor party leader, acknowledged...in a speech in France..that his party was split on German re-armament.

Pope Pius today told an American reporter that he is not yet fully recovered from the ailment that confined him to his apartment early this year. He said he is still suffering. His doctors have told him that he should be fully recovered by November.

In the Far East, both the Nationalist and Communist Chinese have announced their intentions to step up hostilities. Today the Nationalists again bombarded Communist fortifications in the vicinity of Quemoy and scouted coastal rivers on the mainland for any signs of any invasion build-up.

And the Russian newspaper Pravda said today that the seating of Red China in the United Nations is one of the most pressing problems in international relations.

In Washington today, Foreign Aid Chief Stassen said that we are helping build 125 new villages in Indo-China to take care of a growing stream of refugees from Communist rule. More than a quarter of a million persons have now come into South Viet Nam.

Former President Truman today sent a letter to a Democratic meeting in Indianapolis calling on voters to give President Eisenhower a Democratic congress. Mr. Truman said this would save the President "from the misdeeds of his own party." Mr. Truman charges that the worst thing the Republicans have done "is to weaken the position of the free nations in the fight against Communist imperialism." The former president, who has called the 80th Congress the worst congress, referred to the 83rd Congress as a "do-wrong, give-away Congress." And talking to reporters in Kansas City, Mr. Truman said he is now feeling very well and is within two pounds of his normal 172-pound weight.

Republican National Chairman Hall, comenting on the Truman letter, said he doubts that the American people will follow the Truman advice. Hall said when the people consider the Truman administration record on "Korea, corruption and communism in the world, they are very likely to do the opposite of what Mr. Truman suggests."

Vice President Nixon, campaigning in Missouri, said the Administration deserves a vote of confidence and a Republican congress because it ended the war in Korea and brought new hope to the world.

And Democratic National Chairman Mitchell says that "Generally speaking we have in the making the greatest Democratic sweep since 1936 sinc the Republicans won only Maine and Vermont.

Republican Senator Flanders of Vermont charged tonight that Senator McCarthy has employed "a deliverate campaign to discredit and degrade"

Senators who critizize him. Flanders says that since 1949 McCarthy's campaign has been designed to drive those who criticize him from public office.. if possible. Flanders says a failure to censure McCarthy for this would leave "the Senate debased and unportected from the vilest sort of demagogy and unprincipled attacks upon members." McCarthy was not immediately available for comment.

Dr. Elmer Hess, the president-elect of the American Medical Association association said today that the handling of mental patients "approaches a national disgrace" in many parts of the country. He called for vigorous action by state and county medical societies to bring about improvements.

Here in New York, the twice-postponed Marciano-Charles heavyweight championship goes on tonight. It will be broadcast over many of these stations at 11 p.m. eastern daylight time.

Western unity is not necessarily falling apart, because there are differences over the re-armament of Germany. Differences make news: sometimes it is frightening news. But differences can also make policy. In a free country, differences are a sign of healthy national life. They have much same meaning in the international relations of the free world. Of course it would be fortunate if everybody agreed on Germany's role in Western security. But it also would be astonishing. Anyhow, they don't . Mr. Eden went touring European capitals because they don't. Mr. Dulles suddenly flew to Europe for the same reason. Mr. Eden didn't get all the differences ironed out. Neither has Mr. Dulles, though he and Mr. Eden agree on major points. But at this stage, the existence of differences is not in itself alarming. Already they are serving to clarify the issues.

All the Western governments say they favor German re-armament. What they differ over is how to do it, and on what terms. And the biggest trouble is over the limitations to be placed on German armed forces, weapons, and production. The German Republic expects soverignty and equality. If it agrees to restrictions it wants them in the main to apply to the other Western countries. It will not insist on all of them applying to everybody, but it refuses to be put in a strait jacket or be made to look inferior.

In Bonn yesterday Mr. Dulles and Dr. Adenauer stressed the importance of European integration. They agreed that the goal mustn't be abandoned because of a single setback, (the defeat of the European Defense Community.) London at once began worrying about this statement. European integration means some kind of supra-nationalism. The British feel they cannot limit their soverignty to join a united Europe.

Mr. Eden's plan is on the basis of alliances of fully soverign states. Judging from the London Communique, Mr. Dulles has accepted this approach Germany is to be taken into the partnership of the Brussels treaty as one of six allies, then into NATO, again as an ally. In the Eden plan Britain will increase its contributions to European defense. As at first outlined Germany would have to accept more controls than the other allies. Mr. Eden was trying to overcome French fears, also the rising resistance to German re-armament in the British Labor Party. But for his part today he accepted the principle of full equality for Germany.

Mr. Eden was not able to win Premier Mendes-France all the way. The French leader asked for a whole series of guarantees affecting Germany, and asked that they be adopted first, by the nine-power conference at the end of the month, then by the full NATO meeting in October. The guarantees Francewants appear to push Germany into a second-class status.

And as France has a veto in NATO Germany cannot become a member unless France is satisfied with the guarantees.

Secretary Dulles and Dr. Adenauer talked about this possibility of a French veto of Germay in NATO. My colleague Richard Hottelet reports from Bonn that they reluctantly agreed that in the event of such a veto the other nations concerned must be ready to go ahead without France.

It is this mention of going ahead without France, that adds a dimension to the difficulties. Every reference to it and to the fact that Washington may be going through the threatened "agonizing re-appraisal" of its European policy infuriates some Europeans; they think it is bluffing.

But Secretary Dulles is under the influence of many forces in the capital. One can be mentioned, the Pentagon's scramble for money since the military budget was reduced. The three services are competing for their former share in a smaller pie. In this rivalry the possibility plays a part that some American divisions in Germany might be withdrawn and made available elsewhere as needed. Mr. Dulles is under pressure to shape a foreign policy that makes this withdrawl possible.

Another force that influences Mr. Dulles is the school of thought which regards the whole concept of European defense based on NATO to be out of date. At the time of the Korean crisis, NATO was the agreed answer. But the re-appraisal people contend that atomic weapons have made archaic a collective security depending heavily on integrated ground forces. The people who think this are not running either the Pentagon or the State Department, but they are important enough not to be ignored. And Mr. Dulles appears to feel that it is not too dangerous to consider doing things without France.

What he is saying is that unless the set-up that takes the place of the European Defense Community is just as effective as the E.D.C. he wants no part of it. Germany has to be a first-class partner even if the other members have to accept the same limitations. And if this is not attainable, he does not think the defense of Europe is lost. Mr. Dulles still would prefer E.D.C., so would Dr. Adenauer, and so would everybody but France. But he is not ready to please France, by accepting something inferior.

It would help laymen to weigh these choices to know just how much atomic power has outmoded the principles of pre-atomic strategy, especially in Europe. Maybe that is the biggest question of all. But since the military experts themselves don't agree on it, one can see why the statesmen find it hard to do so.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a moment with the Word for Today. But first, Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: Eleanor Roosevelt once remarked about international diplomacy: "Up to a certain point it is good for us to know that there are people in the world who will give us love and unquestioned loyalty. I doubt however it it is good for us to feel assured of this without the accompanying obligation of having to justify this devotion by our behavior."

Good Night and Good Luck !

Monday, September 20, 1954

This is the news:

French Premier Mendez-France today made public his plan to eventually bring West Germany into the North Atlantic treaty organization. And the United States has accepted a British invitation to a 9-power conference in London..to work out plans for arming West Germany. I'd like to discuss these developments in a fewminutes.

Chinese Nationalist planes and ships today attacked the Communist-held mainland for the 18th day. The Nationalists claim they sank four red gunboats.

In South Korea, a former member of the armistice commission accused the United States of bad faith..because we are withdrawing another American Division...the 3rd...from Korea. The former negotiator, who accompanied President Rhee on his recent trip to Washington, says: "The stage is set for unification..but by the Communists." He told reporters:"Train us, arm us, equip us, and we will do thefighting ourselves. But the hasty withdrawal makes it impossible for us to be ready in time."

Former British Prime Minister Atlee arrived in San Francisco today on his way back to London from Red China. He told reporters that the Communist leaders of China "represent a great nationalist movement" which is "honest and efficient" in contrast to the government of Chiang Kai Shek.

And at the United Nations, American sources say the West is ready to counter-attack the expected move from Russia and India for admitting Red China to the U.N. American Ambassador Lodge has ALREADY charged that the Chinese Reds have carried out 39 "warlike acts of piracy" against planes and ships of seven nations.

In San Fransisco, Labor Secretary Mitchell accused the American Federation of Labor of unfair political opposition to the Eisenhower Administration. Addressing the annual A.F. of L. convention, Mitchell said that if the labor organization was not so unyeilding in its criticism of the Administration it would make more progress in achieveing its aims. He said: "In the past 20 months we have accomplished much for the working men and women of America and I can pledge to you that we will continue to do so." Earlier, A.F. of L. President Meany accused the Administration of doing nothing about unemployment. He said there seems to be a campaign throughout the nation to use slogans "to get the American people to believe that millions of people out of work is not important." The government says there are three million four hundred thousand unemployed.

And today the Labor Department reported signs that there will be a small pickup in employment this fall in about a third of the nation's major industrial areas. But a survey of the hiring plans of employers in 149 large industrial centers indicates "few significant changes in the labor market situation by late autumn."

The C.I.O. Steelworkers, meeting in Atlantic City, heard their President-- David J. McDonald call for a major new approach to trade unionism. He spoke of a "mutual trusteeship" in which the union and industry would work together. He said both are trustees of the steel-making industry and they are responsible for mutually profitable production. McDonald indicated that later in the week he would SPEAK ON reports that the Steelworkers may withdraw from the C.I.O.

Attorney General Brownell today ordered a special grand jury to investigate "possible bribery and other criminal conduct" in the federal housing program. He specifically wants evidence presented on the activities of Clyde L. Powell, who resigned as assistant commissioner of the Federal Housing Administration during a congressional investigation of the agency.

The President today returned to his desk at the summer White House in Denver after a six-day fishing holiday in the Rockies.

In Washington, Democratic Senator Jackson of Washington State, told reporters on his return from a campaign speaking tour, that people aren't talking much in public about foreign policy. But in private--he said--vast numbers are "worried.. very worried.." about Western Europe and the Far East.

In Chicago, hog prices were off 50 to 75 cents a hundred pounds. They dropped to the lowest point since February of last year.

And the Chilean government today declared a modified martial law through most of the country. President Carlos Ibanez says its evident that Communist elements planned to carry out a program of violence.

Edward R. Murrow: September 20, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

Today in Strasbourg, ~~French~~ Premier Mendes-France produced in general terms his plan to re-arm Germany - said he thought the new agreements could be signed before the first of the year. The French Premier believes that any agreement calling for Germany and France to provide troops for common defense must include Britain as a full partner. He is prepared to accept a ceiling on both the fighting forces and war production for each member of the Alliance. He wants supervision and control of arms production. And he apparently wants this new group to take over the distribution of American aid to member countries. "None of us", he said, "can keep up our military security without the help of the United States."

Blair Clark cables me from Strasbourg that the French Premier's speech was heard in almost icy silence by representatives of fifteen European nations. The treaty-drafting experts thought Mendes-France was at best being innocent when he said the new draft could be drawn up in a month, and then quickly submitted to the various parliaments for ratification.

There was a certain irony in today's meeting at Strasbourg, for it was there, four years ago, that Winston Churchill launched the idea of a European Army. At that time he was not Prime Minister, he was leader of the Opposition. Now the French, and other European nations, are saying to him,

"Make your own plan possible by joining it".

The word from Germany tonight is that the new French plan leaves much unclear and perhaps unacceptable to the Germans. The timetable for securing full sovereignty for Germany is very vague. The Germans contend that membership in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization is indispensable, because only in this way would Germany have a voice in the top policy-making group of the Western Alliance. The Germans regard anything less as unfair discrimination, which they will not accept. The Germans see another question mark resulting from today's speech by the French Premier. He was rather vague on the subject of the Saar. It was by no means clear whether he maintains the position of earlier French governments, which has been that the future of this coal-rich area must be solved before the Germans are re-armed.

The nine-power conference on German re-armament will convene in London a week from tomorrow. Our government has accepted the British invitation to attend. Secretary of State Dulles hopes to fly to London on Saturday, but this will depend on what happens at the United Nations during the next few days.

Presumably at that London meeting the French will spell out their proposals in considerable detail.

In this flurry of proposals, counter-proposals - this desperate search for a formula to permit the re-arming of Germany, a few hard facts should be borne in mind. The first is that had the British and American governments been willing to make the same commitments and take the same risks that they wanted the French to take, the European Defense Community would have been passed overwhelmingly by the French Parliament. The second fact is that our foreign policy was based upon the European Defense Community, and nothing else. We had no alternative, and we still haven't one that will work. (Or if we have, it is a carefully guarded secret.) The State Department and our diplomats abroad kept insisting that the French would agree to E.D.C., even though the overwhelming majority of experienced correspondents in France kept reporting that this would not happen. When it didn't happen, our attitude - officially, at least - was shocked, hurt surprise.

The re-arming of Germany is not just a matter of putting arms in the hands of twelve divisions, which from a military standpoint would be a welcome addition to the strength of the West. It will be, if it is done, the fountain-head of a new stream of history. The French remember their recent German history better than do we or the British, because they saw it at first-hand. It marched down their streets, and flattened their cities and towns.

There has been some talk of our re-arming the Germans and letting the French paddle their own canoe. A casual glance at the map, the ports, the lines of supply and communication, should be sufficient to destroy any such fantasy.

There is also a basic German problem of which the French are XXXXXX acutely aware - that great, dynamic powerhouse that is Germany, right in the middle of Europe has had much practise in playing off the East against the West. The dominant drive in German political affairs is the re-unification of the country. No German official of any party can be elected to office without ~~abdicating~~ advocating it. Germany can be re-united, either by war or by the making of a deal with the Soviet Union. There is nothing in history to prove that a reactionary, nationalistic West Germany - which might succeed the Adenauer administration - is not capable of making a deal with Communist Russia. It is well to remember the Molotov-Ribbentrop pact in the summer of '39, which gave Germany the freedom of maneuver she needed to launch the war. The Germans are a hard-working, impatient people - so are we; but their course record when they have guns in their hands is not encouraging. Military logic requires the re-armament of Germany. German history cries out for some pretty firm guarantees as to the direction in which those guns will be aimed. It will be surprising if next week's conference in London produces a formula acceptable to all concerned.

We are confronted with a situation in which the French fear the Germans and the Germans distrust the French. This ~~is unfortunate. Man~~ As Robert South once said:"Society is built upon trust and trust upon confidence in one another's integrity." Perhaps Arthur Schnitzler put it well when he remarked:"One can positively never be deceived if one mistrusts everything, even one's own scepticism."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 20, 1954
7:45- 8:00 P.M. E.S.T.

This is the news:

French Premier Mendez-France today made public his plan to eventually bring West Germany into the Nort Atlantic treaty organization. And the United States has accepted a British invitation to a 9-power conference in London..to work out plans for arming West Germany. Id like to discuss these developements in a few moments.

Chinese Nationalist planes and ships today attacked the Communist-held mainland for the 18th day. The Nationalists claim they sank four red gunboats.

In South Korea a former member of the armistice commission accused the United States of bad faith..because we are withdrawing another American Division ..the 3rd..from Korea. The former negotiator who accompanied President Rhee on his recent trip to Washington says: "The stage is set for unification... but by the Communists." He told reporters:"Train us, arm us, equip us, and we will do the fighting ourselves. But the hasty withdrawl makes it impossible for us to be ready in time."

Former British Prime Minister Atlee arrived in San Francisco today on his way back to London from Red China. He told reporters that the Communists leaders of China "represent a great nationalist movement" which is "honest and efficient" in contrast to the government of Chian Kai Shek.

And at the United Nations, American sources say the West is ready to counter-attack the expected move from Russia and India for admitting Red China to the U.N.. American Ambassador Lodge already has charged that the Chinese Reds have carried out 39 "warlike acts of piracy" against planes and ships of seven nations.

eration of Labor of unfair political poo

In San Francisco, Labor Secretary Mitchell accused the American Federation of Labor of unfair political opposition ot the Eisenhower Adminis tration. Addressing the annual A.F. of L. convention, Mitchell said that if the labor organization was not so unyeilding in its criticism of the Administration it would mane more progress in achienving its aims. He said: "In the past 20 months we have accomplished much for the working men and women of America. and I can pledge to you that we will continue to doso." Earlier, A.F. of L. President Meany accused the administration of doing nothing about unemployment. He said there seems to be a campaign throughout the nation to use slogans "to get the American people to believe that millions of people out of work is not important." The government says there are three million four hundred thousand unemployed.

And today the Labor Department reported signs that there will be a small pickup in employment this fall in about a third of the nation's major industrial areas. But a surbey of the hiring plans of employers in 148 large industrial centers indicates "few significant changes in the labor market situation by late autumn."

The C.I.O. Steelworkers, meeting in Atlantic City, heard their President--David J. McDonald call for a major new approach to trade unionism. He spoke of a "mutual trusteeship" in which the union and industry would work together. He said both are trustees of the steel-making industry and they are responsible for mutually profitable production. McDonald indicated that later in the week he would speak on reports that the Steelworkers may withdraw from the C.I.O. Attorney General Brownell today ordered a special grand jury to investigate "possible bribery and other criminal conduct" in the federal housing program. He specifically wants evidence presented on the activities of Clyde L. Powell, who resigned as assistant commissioner of the Federal Housing Administration during a congressional investigation of the agency.

The president today returned to his desk at the summer White House in Denver after a six-day fishing holiday in the Rockies.

In Washington, Democratic Senator Jackson of Washington State told reporters on his return from a campaign speaking tour that people aren't talking much in public about foreign policy. But in private -- he said-- vast numbers are "worried..very worried"..about Western Europe and the Far East.

In Chicago, hog prices were off 50 to 75 cents a hundred pounds. They dropped to the lowest point since February of last year.

And the Chilean government today declared a modified martial law throughout most of the country. President Carlos Ibanez says its evident that Communist elements planned to carry out a program of violence.

Today in Strasbourt, Premier Mendes-France produced in general terms his plans to re-arm Germany - said he thought the new agreements could be signed before the first of the year. The French Premier believes that any agreement calling for Germany and France to provide troops for common defense must include Britain as a full partner. He is prepared to accept a ceiling on both the fighting forces and war production for each member of the Alliance. He wants supervision and control of arms production. And he apparently wants this new group to take over the distribution of American aid to member countries. "None of us", he said, "can keep up our military security without the help of the United States."

Blair Clarke cables me from Strasbourg that the French Premier's speech was heard in almost icy silence by representatives of fifteen European nations. The treaty-drafting experts thought Mendes-France was at best being innocent when he said the new draft could be drawn up in a month, and then quickly submitted to the various parliaments for ratification.

There was a certain irony in today's meeting at Strasbourg, for it was there, four years ago, that Winston Churchill launched the idea of a European Army. At that time he was not Prime Minister, he was leader of the Opposition. Now the French, and other European nations, are saying to him, "Make your own plan possible by joining it."

The word from Germany tonight is that the new French plan leaves much unclear and perhaps unacceptable to the German. The timetable for securing full soverignty for Germany is very vague. The Germans contend that membership in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization is indispensable, because only in this way would Germany have a voice in the top policy -making group of the Western Alliance. The Germans regard anything less as unfair discrimination, which they will not accept. The Germans see another question mark resulting from today's speech by the French Premier. He was rather vague on the subject of the Saar. It was by no means clear whether he maintains the position of earlier French governments, which has been that the future of this coal-rich area must be solved before the Germans are re-armed.

The nine power-conference on German re-armament will convene in London a week from tomorrow. Our government has accepted the British invitation to attend. Secretary of State Dulles hopes to fly to London on Saturday, but this will depend on what happens at the United Nations during the next few days.

Presumably at that London meeting the French will spell out their proposals in considerable detail.

In this flurry of proposals and counter-proposals - this desperate search for a formula, to permit the re-arming of Germany, a few hard facts should be born in mind. The first is that had the British and American governments been willing to make the same commitments and take the same risks that they wanted the French to take, the European Defense Community would have been passed overwhelmingly by the French Parliament. The second fact is that our foreign policy was based upon the European Defense Community, and nothing else. We had no alternative, and we still haven't one that will work. Or if we have, it is a carefully guarded secret. The State Department and our diplomats abroad kept insisting that the French would agree to E.D.C., even though the overwhelming majority of experienced correspondents in France kept reporting that whis would not happen. When it did happen, our attitude - officially, at least - was shocked, hurt surprise.

The re-arming of Germany is not just a matter of putting arms in the hands of twelve divisions, which from a military standpoint would be a welcome addition to the strength of the West. It will be, if it is done, the fountain-head of a new stream of history. The French remember their recent German history better than we do or the British, because they saw it at first-hand. It marched down their streets, and flattened their cities and towns.

There has been some talk of our re-arming the Germans and letting the French paddle their own canoe. A casual glance at the map, the ports, the lines of supply and communication should be sufficient to destroy any such fantasy.

There is also a basic German problem of which the French are acutely aware - that great, dynamic powerhouse that is Germany, right in the middle of Europe had had much practice in playing off the East against the West. The dominant drive in German political affairs is the re-unification of the country. No German official of any party can be elected to office without advocating it. Germany can be reunited, either by war or by making a deal with the Soviet Union. There is nothing in history to prove that a reactionary, Nationalist West Germany - which might succeed the Adenauer administration - is not capable of making a deal with Communist Russia. It is well to remember that Molotov-Ribbentrop pact in the summer of '39, which gave Germany the freedom of maneuver she needed to launch the war. The Germans are a hard-working, impatient people - so are we; but their course record when they have guns in their hands is not encouraging. Military logic requires the re-armament of Germany. German history cries out for some pretty firm guarantees as to the direction in which those guns will be aimed. It will be surprising if the next week's nowference in London produces a formula acceptable to all concerned.

This is Ed Murrow. I'l be back in amminute with the Word for Today. But first, Bob Dixon;

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: We are confronted with a situation in which the French fear the Germans, and the Germans distrust the French. As Robert South once said; "Society is built upon trust, and trust, upon confidence in one another's integrity." Perhaps Arthur Schnitzler put it well when he remarked: "One can positively never be deceived if one mistrusts everything, even one's own scepticism."

Good night and Good Luck.

Tuesday, September 21, 1954

This is the news:

The United Nations General Assembly today voted not to consider this year the question of seating Communist China. Soon after the Assembly opened its 9th session Andrei Vishinsky of Russia demanded that the Assembly admit Red China at once. Ambassador Lodge then proposed that the question be put off until the end of the year. This was adopted by a vote of 43 to 11..with six nations abstaining. The Assembly then elected a Dutch diplomat, Dr. Eelco Van Kleffens to be its president. He received 45 votes..to three for a Prince of Thailand who withdrew yesterday. There were twelve nations not voting.

The President today approved a 100-million-dollar increase in military and economic aid for South Korea. The new program provides for training South Koreans to fly jets. And Foreign Aid Chief Stassen says the President has approved a plan to use about ten million tons of coal--mined in this country--to aid our allies. A spokesman for the United Mine Workers, calling this "a step in the right direction," estimates that almost 200-thousand hard and soft coal miners are now out of work.

In the Far East, Chinese Nationalist planes and ships again attacked the Communist-held mainland. And my colleague Bill Costello cables from Formosa that Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek regards the recent Communist shelling of Quemoy as the first in a series of attacks that will be launched against Formosa. Chiang told Costello he considers the Communist move primarily a military move..rather than political. And Chiang feels the enemy has not yet used jets in these attacks because the Communists have not finished the building of new jet runways in Fukien province. Chiang says his air force needs Sabrejets that have been promised for early delivery by the United States.

In Indo-China, 500 refugees from the north fought police in Saigon. Two men were killed. The French news agency says the refugees were demanding that they be returned to north Viet Nam...that will soon be completely under Communist rule. But the army chief of staff who is feuding with the Viet Nam premier said this was a demonstration against him and the army..promoted by the government. I'd like to examine the situation in Viet Nam in a few minutes.

The President today appealed to the people of all Iron Curtain countries to join Americans tomorrow in a day of prayer for world peace. A message broadcast by the Voice of America to Russia and her satellites says in part: "The world may be ringed with an act of faith so strong as to annihilate the cruel, artificial barriers erected by little men between the people who seeks peace on earth through the divine spirit."

At the summer White House, Mr. Eisenhower conferred with key people of the Republican National Committee. Later, Chairman Hall told reporters: he had outlined the political picture for the President... "it is a good picture but a hard fight." Hall said both former President Truman and Adlai Stevenson belong to the left-wing of the Democratic party. He said this wing controls the party. Tomorrow Mr. Eisenhower starts a (Flying) speech-making tour (of) the far West.

Secretary of Agriculture Benson said today politics played no part in his decision last week to ease farm production controls next year.

In Atlantic City, the C.I.O. Steelworkers approved a resolution accusing the Republican Administration "of either inaction or outright rejection" of the union's legislative proposals.

And Atomic Energy Commissioner Thomas E. Murray , who addressed the convention, suggested that the government build an atomic power plant..for peaceful purposes..in Japan. By locating the plant in Japan "the only land engulfed in the white flame of the atom" Murray feels the United States "would demonstrate to a grim and sceptical and divided world that OUR interest in nuclear energy is not confined to weapons. Murray said the hydrogen bomb has given man "the dreadsome power of world destruction" but it can also give man "the richest of material blessings."

And Representative HOLIFIELD of California, member of the congressional atomic energy committee, said today that Great Britain may be ahead of us in some aspects of peacetime atomic energy. HOLIFIELD, just back from a visit to Britain, said the British feel very strongly that their economic survival is tied to the development of cheap energy through fission. As a result they have concentrated and may be ahead of us in "some specialized field."

Here in New York, a grand jury indicted Henry (The Dutchman) Grunewald on five counts of perjury.. charging that he lied to a grand jury investigating tax frauds in the internal revenue bureau and other government agencies.

Edward R. Murrow: September 21, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

One of the perils of the cold war is that when a crisis is over the duties arising from it easily pass out of sight. That is true of Indochina. This country was partitioned at the Geneva Conference, one section was consigned to the Communist world, the other was to be non-Communist and completely free of France. But in the cold war probably nothing is finally settled or saved in a compromise with the Communists. They asked less at Geneva than they wanted, maybe they thought they would get it all in due course anyway. As things stand in Vietnam today they may do just that. Southern Vietnam is free so far as France is concerned. But it is anything but safe from the Communists.

Vietnam is in the news because of the clash between the Premier, ~~Ngo Din Zyem~~ and ~~the~~ his chief of staff, General Hinh, also because of the reported resignations of seven members of the ~~Zyem~~ cabinet yesterday. The tussle between premier and chief of staff is a rivalry of personalities. Politically it is not as significant as the cabinet resignations. The regime of Premier Zyem can hardly survive this break-up of his cabinet. Now the way is open to replace it with a regime including the three sects of Vietnam, (two of them religious,) that speak for a majority of the people. That may be fortunate, for if Zyem had clung to power, it might have driven the sects in despair back to the Vietminh with whom they had broken.

The basic trouble in Vietnam has been the effort to set up a central government led by personalities, or more accurately the single personality, Zyem. Another personality is the chief of state, Bao Dai, who appointed Zyem and has kept him in power. But Bao Dai is not governing. He still is away in France and is more of a symbol than a person.

When Zyem came into power he served a useful purpose. The existing regime was rotting with corruption and was pro-French, and hence unpopular. Zyem was anti-French and he was honest. It happens that he is a Catholic. The Catholics are a minority group in Vietnam and only part of the Catholics back Zyem today. The majority of southern Vietnamese belong to two other religious sects. One is made up of reformed Buddhists. The other is a locally developed kind of spiritualists. Between them they include more than half the population in the south. There is a third sect, with several hundred thousand members, mostly of military personnel, which actually controls to this day the region around Saigon.

None of these groups is represented in the government. We should understand that Vietnam does not have established political parties like ours. The people are served by these sects. They virtually run the local administrations in large parts of the country. They still have their private armies and at one time they were in league with the Vietminh or Communists against the French. When they found that the Communists were not nationalists, but themselves were working for a foreign power, they broke with them. Today they are the only organizations that appear to be able to keep Vietnam from being taken over by the Communists, either by force or infiltration. They resent Zyem's minority rule and his attempt to make a strong central government. It seems urgent that a strong and more representative government be set up. It should have a genuine parliament, and Bao Dai should become constitutional. The sects could be called together, draw up an agreed program, form a government and then hold elections.

A spokesman for this policy was in Washington today explaining it to American officials. He is Prince Boo-Hoi, cousin of Bao Dai, and a scientist belonging to the Radium Institute of the University of Paris. He came here to read a paper on the cause of cancer before the American Chemical Society. He was in Vietnam three weeks ago, and is mentioned as a possible successor XXXXXXXX to Premier Zyem. He denies that he is a candidate for the post or would accept it. He is a remarkably young-looking man, and says he will remain a scientist.

He says that his country will want American aid, chiefly technical assistance in developing land not now in full production. But he wants most of all an understanding of the political realities in his country. He asks that American influence be thrown to the side of a government with a broad base. Vietnam's internal affairs no longer are France's exclusive business. France is out of the picture as much as Britain is out of India, Burma and Ceylon, though French business interests remain in the same way that Britain's do in its former possessions.

Prince Boo-Hoi thinks there is little time left to broaden the government. Incidentally he warned against rejoicing over the large number of northern Vietnamese migrating to the South. He thinks many of them are coming with Communist encouragement, and are the start of infiltration. The fact that the refugees rioted today, with several fatalities, may bear out his suspicions.

But he is confident that if a grass roots government can be established soon enough, Vietnam will thrive, will keep Communism out.

These are tense days in which we're living. And as the situation in Vietnam beats proof, the mere existence of a political or military agreement does not guarantee peace. Thus, ~~the free world must be ever alert. For~~, As Lynn Landrum said:"Responsibility gravitates to the power that can carry out that responsibility. If you alone can do what ought to be done, then that oughtness rests on you. You can't dodge it."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

String

(1)

Sept 21

¶ One of the perils of the cold war is that when a crisis is over the duties arising from it easily pass out of sight. That is true of Indochina ~~Indonesia.~~ This country was partitioned at the Geneva Conference, one section was consigned to the Communist world, the other was to be non-Communist and completely free of France. But in the cold war probably nothing is finally settled or saved in a compromise with the Communists. They asked less at Geneva than they wanted, maybe they thought they would get it all in due course anyway. As things stand in Vietnam today they may do just that. Southern Vietnam is free so far as France is concerned. But it is anything but safe from the Communists.

N-Go-

¶ Vietnam is in the news because of the clash between the Premier N-G. Zin Zyem ~~Ngo Dinh Diem~~ and the chief of staff, General Hinh, also because of the reported resignations of seven members of the Zyem ~~Diem~~ cabinet yesterday. The tussle between premier and chief of staff is a rivalry of personalities. Politically it is not as significant as the cabinet resignations. The regime of Premier Zyem ~~Diem~~ can hardly survive this break-up of his cabinet. Now the way is open to replace it with a regime including the three sects of Vietnam, two of them religious, that speak for a majority of the people. That may be fortunate, for if Zyem ~~Diem~~ had clung to power it might have driven the sects in despair back to the Vietminh with whom they had broken.

¶ The basic trouble in Vietnam has been the effort to set up a central government led by personalities, or more accurately the single personality, Zyem ~~Diem.~~

Another personality is the chief of state, Bao Dai, who appointed Diem and has kept him in power. But Bao Dai is not governing. He still is away in France and is more of symbol than a person.

¶ When Diem came into power he served a useful purpose. The existing regime was rotting with corruption and was pro-French, and hence unpopular. Diem was anti-French and he was honest. It happens that he is a Catholic. The Catholics are a minority group in Vietnam and only part of the Catholics back Diem today. The majority of southern Vietnamese belong to two other religious sects. One is called Hoa Hao, and is of reformed Buddhists. The other is Cao Dai, a locally developed kind of spiritualists. Between them they include more than half the population in the south. There is a third sect, called Binh Xuyen, with several hundred thousand members, mostly of military personnel, which actually controls to this day the region around Saigon.

¶ None of these groups is represented in the government. We should understand that Vietnam does not have established political parties like ours. The people are served by these sects. They virtually run the local administrations in large parts of the country. They still have their private armies and at one time they were in league with the Vietminh or Communists against the French. When they found that the Communists were not nationalists, but themselves were working for a foreign power, they broke with them. Today they are the only organizations that appear to be able to keep Vietnam from being taken over by the Communists, either by force or infiltration. They resent Diem's minority rule and his attempt to make a strong central government. It seems urgent that a strong and more representative government be set up. It can start by being federal in nature, rather than centralized. It should have a genuine parliament, and Bao Dai should become constitutional. The sects could be called together, draw up an agreed program, form a government and then hold elections.

¶ A spokesman for this policy was in Washington today explaining it to American officials. He is Prince Bao Buu-Hoi, cousin of Bao Dai, and a scientist belonging to the Radium Institute of the University of Paris. He came here to read a paper on the cause of cancer before the American Chemical Society. He was in Vietnam three weeks ago, and is mentioned as a possible successor to Premier Diem. He denies that he is a candidate for the post or would accept it. He is a remarkably young-looking man, and says he will remain a scientist.

¶ He says

~~told this reporter at~~ [redacted] that his country will want American aid, chiefly technical assistance in developing land not now in full production. But he wants most of all an understanding of the political realities in his country. He asks that American influence be thrown to the side of a government with a broad base. Vietnam's internal affairs no longer are France's exclusive business. France is out of the picture as much as Britain is out of India, Burma and Ceylon, though French business interests remain in the same way that Britain's do in its former possessions.

Prince Buu-Hoi thinks there is little time left to broaden the government. Incidentally he warned against rejoicing over the large number of northern Vietnamese migrating to the South. He thinks many of them are coming with Communist encouragement, and are the start of infiltration. The fact that the refugees rioted today, with several fatalities, may bear out his suspicions.

But he is confident that if a grass roots government can be established, soon enough, Vietnam will thrive, will keep Communism out.

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 21, 1954

This is the news:

The United Nations General Assembly today voted not to consider this year the question of seating Communist China. Soon after the Assembly opened its 9th session Andrei Vishinsky of Russia demanded that the Assembly admit Red China at once. Ambassador Lodge them proposed that the question be put off until the end of the year. This was adopted by a vote of 43 to 11..with six nations abastining. The Assembly then elected a Dutch diplomat, Dr. Eelco Van Kleffens to be its president. He received 45 votes.. to three for a Prince of Thailand who withdrew yesterday. There were twelve nations not voting.

The president today approved a 100-million dollar increase in military and economic aid for South Korea. The new program provides for training South Koreans to fly jets. And Foreign Aid Chief Stassen says the President has approved a plan to use about ten million tons of coal--mined in this country --to aid our allies. A spokesman for the United Mine Workers, calling this "a step in the right direction," estimates that almost 200-thousand hard and soft coal miners are now out of work.

In the Far East, Chinese Nationalist planes and ships again attackd the Communist-held mainland. And my colleague Bill Costello cables from Formosa that Generalissimo Chiang Kai Chek regards the recent Communist shelling of Quemoy as the first in a series of attacks that will be launched against Formosa. Chiang told Costello he considers the Communist move primarily a military move..rather than political. And Chiang feels the enemy has not yet used jets in these attacks because the Communists have not finished the building of the new jet runways in Fulkien province.

Chiang says his air force needs Saberjets that have been promised for early delivery by the United States.

In Indo-China, 500 refugees from the north fought police in Saigon. Two men were killed. The French news agency says the refugees were demanding that they be returned to north Viet Nam..that will soom be completely under Communist rule. But the army chief of staff who is feauding with the Viet Nam premier said this was a demonstration against him and the army... promoted by the government. I'd like to examine the situation in Viet Nam in a few moments. The President today appealed to the people of all Iron Curatin countries to join Americans tomorrow in a day of prayer for world peace. A message broadcast by the Voice of America to Russia and her satellites says in part: "The world may be ringed with an act of faith so strong as to annihilate the cruel, artificial barriers erected by little men between the people who seek peace on earth through the divine spirit.

At the summer White House, Mr. Eisenhower conferred with key people of the Republican National Committee. Later, Chairman Hall told reporters: he had outlined the political picture for the President..."it is a good picture but a hard fight." Hall said both former President Truman and Adlai Seevenson belong to the left-wing of the Democratic party. He said this wing controls the party. Tomorrow Mr. Eisenhower statts a flying speech-making tour of the far West.

Secretary of Agriculture Benson said today politics played no part in his decssion last week to ease farm production controls next year.

In Atlantic City, the C.I.O. Steelworkers approved a resolution accusing the Republican Administration of "either inaction or outright rejection" of the union's legislative proposals.

And the Atomic Energy Commissioner, Thomas E. Murray who addressed the convention, suggested that the government build an atomic power plant.. for peaceful purposes..in Japan. By locating the plant in Japan "The only land engulfed in the white flame of the atom" Murray feels the United States "would demonstrate to a grim and skeptical and divided world that our interest in nuclear energy is not confined to weapons. Murray said the hydrogen bomb has given man "the dreadsome power of world destruction" but it can also give man "the richest material blessings."

And Representative Holifield of California, a member of the congressional atomic energy committee, said today that Great Britain may be ahead of us in some aspects of peacetime atomic energy. Holifield, just back from a visit to Britain, said the British feel very strongly that their economic survival is tied to the developement of cheap energy through fission. As a result they have concentrated and may be ahead of us in "some specialized field."

Here in New York, a grand jury indicted Henry (The Dutchman) Gruenwald on five counts of perjury. Charging that he lied to a grand jury investigating tax frauds in the internal revenue bureau and other government agencies.

One of the perils of the cold war is that when a crisis os over the duties arising from it easily pass out of sight. That is true of Indochina. This country was partitioned at the Geneva Conference, one section was consigned to the Communist world, the other was to be non-Communist and completely free of France. But in the cold war probably nothing is finally settled or saved in a compromise with the Communists. They asked less at Geneva than they wanted, maybe they thought they would get it all in due course anyway. As things stand in Vietnam today they may do just that. Southern Vietnam is free so far as France is concerned. But it is anything but safe from the Communists.

Vietnam is is the news because of the clash between the Premier Ngo Dinh-Diem and the chief of staff, General Hinh, also because of the reported resignations of seven members of the Diem cabinet yesterday. The tussle between premier and chief of staff is a rivalry of personalities. Politically it is not as significant as the cabinet resignations. The regime of Premier Diem can hardly survive this break-up of his cabinet. Now the way is open to replace it with a regime including the three sects of Vietnam, two of them religious, that speak for a majority of the people. That may be fortunate, for if Diem had clung to power it might have driven the sects in despair back to the Vietminh with whom they had broken.

The basic trouble in Vietnam has been the effort to set up a central governemnt led by personalities, or more accurately the single personality, Diem.

Another personality is the chief of state, Bao Dai, who appointed Diem and has kept him in power. But Bao Dai is not governing. He still is away in France and is more of a symbol than a person.

When Diem came into power he served a useful purpose. The existing regime was rotting with corruption and was pro-French, and hence unpopular. Diem was anti-French and he was honest. It happens that he is a Catholic. the Catholics are a minority group in Vietnam and only part of the Catholics back Diem today. The majority of southern Vietnamese belong to two other religious sects. One is called Hoa-Hao, and is made up of reformed Buddhists. The other is Cao Dye, a locally developed kind of spiritualists. Between them they include more than half the population on the South. There is a third sect, called Binh Xuyen, with several hundred thousand members, mostly of military personnel, which actually controls to this day the region around Saigon.

None of these groups is represented in the governemnt. We should understand that Vietnam does not have established political parties like ours. The people are served by these sects. They virtually run the local administrations in large parts of the country. They still have their private armies and at one time they were in league with the Vietminh or Communists were not nationalists, but themselves were working for a foreign power, they broke with them. Today they are the only organizations that appear to be able to keep Vietnam from being taken over by the Communists, either by force or infiltration. They resent Diem's minority rule and his attempt to make a strong central government. It seems urgent that a strong and more representative government be set up. It can start by being federal in nature, rather than centralized. It should have a genuine parliament, and Bao Dai should become constitutional. The sects could be called together, draw up and agreed program, form a government and then hold elections.

A spokesman for this policy was in Washington today explaining it to American officials. He is Prince Buu-Loi, cousin of Bao Dai, and a scientist belonging to the Radium Institute of the University of Paris. He came here to read a paper on the cause of cancer before the American Chemical Society. He was in Vietnam three weeks ago, and is mentioned as a possible successor to Premier Diem. He denies that he is a candidate for the post or would he accept it. He is a remarkably young-looking man, and says he will remain a scientist.

He says that his country will want American aid, chiefly technical assistance in developing land not now in full production. But he wants most of all an understanding of the political realities in this country. He asks that American influence be thrown to the side of a government with broad base. Vietnam's internal affairs no longer are France's exclusive business. France is out of the picture as much as Britain is out of India, Burma and Ceylon, though French business interests remain in the same way that Britain's do in its former psssessions.

Prince Buu-Hoi thinks there is little time left to broaden the government. Incidentally he warned against rejoicing over the large number of northern Vietnamese migrating to the South. He thinks many of them are coming with Communist engouragement, and are the start of infiltration. The fact that the refugees rioted today, with several fatalities, may bear out his suspicions.

But he is confident that if a grass roots government can be established, soon enough, Vietnam will thrive, will keep Communism out.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a minute with the Word for Today, but first, Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: These are tense days in which we're living. And as the situation in Vietnam bears proof, the mere existence of a political or military agreement does not guarantee peace. As Lynn Landrum said:"Responsibility gravitates to the power that can carry out that responsibility. If you alone can do what ought to be done, then that oughtness rests on you. You can't dodge it.

Good Night and Good Luck.

Wednesday September 22, 1954

This is the news:

General Gruenther said today, that Europe cannot be defended without German troops. The supreme commander of the North Atlantic Treaty organization told a group of French industrialists, that if the French demand too many safeguards against German re-armament, they will block any effective security system. And he warned against any move to establish what he called "a police state system" in West Europe, to guard against the dangers that might arise from the German re-arming.

A spokesman for the West German government said today that Chancellor Adenauer has decided to keep an open mind toward the new French plan for European unity.

Clement Atlee returned to London today, after his trip to Moscow and Communist China. The former British premier said he thinks the sooner the west gets rid of Chiang Kai Shek, and his Chinese Nationalist troops, the better. Atlee feels that the Nationalist island of Formosa presents "the biggest difficulty of all in the Orient." And he has the impression, that there's been a relaxation of tension in the Far East, since the Indo-China truce agreement at Geneva.

Admiral Pride, the commander of our 7th fleet off Formosa, visited Taipeh today. And the Communists renewed their bombardment of Quemoy island from the mainland. The Nationalists again attacked the Red China coast..sinking 5 enemy gunboats.

At the United Nations, Russia objected to a debate on the membership applications of the Indo-China kingdoms of Laos and Cambodia. But the matter was put on the General Assembly's agenda. Andrei Vishinsky wants this delayed until a political settlement has been reached on the IndoChina problem.

At Fort Sheridan, Illinois, Liuet. Col. Harry Fleming was found guilty of a charge of collaborating with the Communists while a prisoner of war in North Korea. An 11-mfficer court martial board found him innocent of a charge of informing on other prisoners..and innocent on a charge of conduct unbecoming an officer. Fleming, who pleaded innocent to all charges says:"I don't expect to lose in the end..right will prevail."

Vice President Nixon said in Minnesota today that the President and Secretary of State Dulles are "best qualified to meet the Communist threat and to attain an objective of peace without surrender."

Republican Chairman Hall, in New Jersey, says the anti-Eisenhower opposition in the 83rd congress was based on "scuttle, stymie and sabotage."

Here in New York, Franklin D. Roosevelt, Junior, HAS agreed to run for state attorney general on a ticket headed by Averell Harriman, the Democratic choice for governor.

Seaborn Collins, the commander of the American Legion, told the A.F. of L. convention in Los Angeles, that the free world is losing the struggle against Communism. He wants us to forbid the Communists to cross a defense line we fix. Collins added: "Obviously we have neither contained Communists nor captured the cold war initiative. That is why Legionnaires are concerned lest our announced policy of 'massive retaliation' terminate in 'massive appeasement.'" George Meaney, the A.F of L. president said the delegates were glad to hear someone else criticize the Administration. He referred to Monday's comments by Labor Secretary Mitchell that the A.F. of L. is too critical of the Administration.

The C.I.O. Steelworkers today urged Congress to raise the hourly minimum wage required by federal law from the present 75 cents to $1.25 . A resolution says the present mimimum is "inadequate to provide even a subsistence level of income."

In Washington, J. Mark Trice, the secretary of the Senate, said there's a possibility he will be instructed sometime today to send out telegrams calling a special session..to pass on a resolution to censure Senator McCarthy. Informed sources say the meeting may be called for a week from today.

The Army today awarded a 35-million-dollar contract for M-42 self-propelled guns to the Cadillac Division of General Motors.

A State Department spokesman says the United States now feels "cautious optpmism" about the possibility of a final settlement of the Trieste dispute between Yugoslavia and Italy.

And in Rome, the Communists have charged Premier Mario Scelba with full responsibility for the Wilma Montesi death scandal. The Communists demand that Scelba resign.

In Cleveland, the Indians, winners of the American League

pennat, beat the White Sox, 3 to 1, for their ~~[illegible]~~ 110th victory of the season..tying an American League record. And the Yankees announced that Casey Stengel has been signed to manage the second place winners for the next two years. In Brooklyn, Rookie lefthander Karl Spooner, making his first big league apparance as a Dodger, defeated the pennant winning Giants, three to nothing. Spooner, just up from Fort Worth, struck out 15 batters.

During the summer my colleague Charles Collingwood spoke with you over this microphone. For the last few weeks he's been on a busman's holiday...visiting France and Tunisia. Tonight's he's with us in the newsroom. What's going on over there, Charlie?

The report my colleague Charles Collingwood gave us would seem to underline something William Sumner once said:"Liberty is a conquest. It does not lie at the beginning of history and of the struggle of the human race on this earth; it lies at the end of it. And it is one of the richest and finest fruits of civilization."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

CHARLES COLLINGWOOD
FOR MURROW
22 September 1954

In France the great pre-occupation is, of course, the special French agony over the terms of German re-armament. ~~which has torn French opinion more bitterly than any issue since Petain's collaboration with the Germans.~~ But the problem of Europe is only the most painful of those pressing in upon France these days. After the tragic experience in Indo-China, a new struggle is shaping up in France's overseas empire, in North Africa. There the same tide of nationalism which is sweeping across so much of the underdeveloped areas of the world is threatening to overwhelm French interests as it did, with Communist help, in Indo-China.... But in North Africa, or more specifically in Tunisia, the French are trying to do what they did not do in Indo-China -- to grant the Nationalists enough of their demands to forestall another explosion, yet keep Tunisia within the structure of the free world. Mendes-France has offered Tunisia what amounts to internal autonomy and at this moment, French and Tunisian negotiators are meeting to hammer out the terms whereby the transfer of power will be effected.

And that is, I'm afraid a long-winded explanation of why I left Europe on this trip and the momentous negotiations on European defense, to go to North Africa..... t o investigate at first hand one of the classic ~~international~~ political processes of our time -- the transfer of power from a colonial nation to a subject nation.

17

Tunis, this September, does not have the atmosphere of a city which is the subject of a struggle for power. The sun shines hot, the Mediterranean is blue, and the French in their western clothes and the Tunisians in their flowing Arab robes, fezzez, turbans, and veils for the women rub elbows with apparent goodwill and lack of self-consciousness in the streets. But one night as we drove the few miles from Tunis to the site of the ancient vanished city of Carthage, a French official remarked casually that three months ago it would not have been safe to drive along that road at night. The fellaghas, the terrorists, might strike -- and did strike -- without warning. But today there is a kind of armistice while the negotiations go on. There is still some terrorist activity in the South, and a small but well organized so-called Army of liberation clashes periodically with French troops, but by and large, ~~the~~ Tunisia is calm. If, however, the current negotiations break down, both French and Tunisians are poised for trouble.... real trouble. The French have 60 thousand troops in Tunisia, a country of three and a half million people... That's three times the normal garrison, but they are prepared to fly more in at a moments notice if the situation should get out of hand.

But the French hope, and the Tunisians hope, that the situation will not get out of hand and that terms for internal autonomy can be peacefully arranged. There are powerful forces working for just such an eventuality. In the first place, Mendes-France is sincerely willing to make greater concessions than France has ever made over in a similar situation, and the Tunisians trust him. For one thing, he used to be the lawyer for the Neo-Destour, the Tunisian nationalist party, and so he knows them and they know him..... And then, there is the character of the Tunisian nationalist movement, the Neo-Destour. It is, as nationalist movements go, a sane and moderate one. This reporter has talked to a good many of the passionate, single-minded, and quite often pretty scary men who have directed the nationalist ferment in so many countries, and these Tunisian leaders I saw impressed me particularly with their moderation.... Let me give you an example. The first thing most countries fighting for their independence demand is control over their defense and their foreign affairs. But these are the two things the Tunisians say they are willing to let the French keep. "We have noticed," one of the Tunisian ministers told me, that small countries do not really handle their defense or their international relations anyway. We are glad to have France do that for us while we build a strong and healthy domestic government. Also, he said, we wish to orient ourselves with the Free World, and we are happy for France to continue to be the vehicle for that."

By the way, it should be said that Communism has no discernible influence whatever on the Tunisian nationalist movement. The Neo-Destour under its principal leader Bourguiba and his colleagues are anti-Communist, and what's more, they have so out-campaigned and out-organized the Reds, and taken the play away from them, that Communism just isn't an important factor in Tunisia's fight for independence.

The Tunisians greatly admire the United States, both because of our history and accomplishments, and because of a little-known wartime episode the Nationalists told me about. They say that when the Allied armies liberated Tunis in 1943, the French moved to crush the nationalist movement, but that the American consul in Tunis persoanlly intervened to save its leaders.... and for this they are eternally grateful.

There is real hope that Tunisia can be a successful experiment in the change from colonial to independent status... There is goodwill on the French side and moderation on the Tunisian side.... But there are also powerful factors working against compromise -- the French settlers who feel that their country, and all that they have created and worked for is being taken from them, are bitterly opposed to any change. And there are Arab extremists, impatient with the slow process of change, who are trying to push ~~pushing~~ the nationalists toward violence. If things do not work out, there may well be a bitter conflict which could shake the uneasy balance of world peace. But if the transfer of power is peacefully accomplished, it may be a guidepost toward the solution of some of the most critical problems which confront our world.

That's Tunisia today, Ed.

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
CBS RADIO NETWORK

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 22, 1954
7:45-8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

General Gruenther said today that Europe cannot be defended without German troops. The supreme commander of the North Atlantic Treaty organization told a group of French industrialists that if the French demand too many safeguards against German re-armament they will block any effective security system. And he warned against any move to establish what he called "a police state system" in West Europe to guard against the dangers that might arise from the German rearming.

A spokesman for the West German government said today that Chancellor Adenauer has decided to keep an open mind toward the new French plan for Europpean unity.

Clement Atlee returned to London today after his trip to Moscow and Communist China. The former British premier said he thinks the sooner the west gets rid of Chiang Kai Shek and his Chinese Nationalist troops the better. Atlee feels that the Nationalist island of Formosa presents "the biggest difficulty of all the Orient." And he has the impression that there's been a relaxation of tension in the Far East since the Indo-China truce agreement at Geneva.

Admiral Pride, the commander of our 7th Fleet off Formosa, visited Taipeh today. And the Communists renewed their bombardment of Quemoy Island off the mainland. The Nationalists again attacked the Red China coast...sinking 5 enemy gunboats.

At the United Nations, Russia objected to a debate on the membership applications of the Indo-China kingdoms of Laos and Cambodia. But the matter was put on the General Assembly's agenda. Andrei Vishinsky wanted.

this delayed until a political settlement had been reached on the Indo-China problem.

At Fort Sheridan, Illinois, Lieut. Col. Harry Fleming was found guilty of a charge of collaborating with the Communists while a prisoner of war in North Korea. An 11-officer court-martial board found him innocent of a charge of informing on other prisoners ..and innocent on the charge of conduct unbecoming an officer. Fleming, who pleaded innocent to all charges says:"I don't expect to lose in the end...Right will prevail."

Vice President Nixon said in Minnesota today that the President and Secretary of State Dulles are "best qualified to meet the Communist threat and to retain tn objective of peace without surrender."

Republican Chairman Hall, in Ner Jersey, says the anti-Eisenhower opposition in the 83rd congress was based on "scuttle, stymie and sabotage."

Here in New York, Franklin D. Roosevelt, Junior, has agreed to run for the state attorney general on a ticket headed by Averell Harriman, the Democratic choice for governor.

Seaborn Collins, the commander of the American Legion, told the A.F. of L.convention in Los Angeles, that the free world is losing the struggle against Communism. He wants us to forbid the Communists to cross a defense line we fix. Collins added:"Obviously we have neither contained Communists nor captured the cold war initiative. That is why Legionnaires are concerned lest our announced policy of massive retaliation terminate in "massive appeasment." Geroge Monney, the A.F. of L. president said the delegates were glad to hear someone else criticize the Administration. He referred to Monday's comments by Labor Secretary Mitchell the A.F. of L. is too critical of the Administration.

The C.I.O. Steelworkers today urged Congress to raise the hourly minimum wage required by federal law from the present 75 cents a $1.25. A resolution says the present minimum is "inadequate to provide even a subsistence level of income."

In Washington, J.Mark Price, the secretary of Senate, said there's a possibility he will be instructed sometime today to send out telegrams calling a special session..to pass on a resolution to censure Senator McCarthy. Informed sources say the meeting may be called for a week from today.

The Army today awarded a 35-million dollar contract for M-42 self-propelled guns to the Cadillac Division of General Motors.

A State Department spokesman says the United States now feels "cautious optimism" about the possibility of a final settlement of the Trieste dispute between Yugoslavia and Italy.

And in Rome, the Communists have charged Premier Marion Scelba with responsibility for the Wilma Montesi death scandal. The Communists demand that Scelba resign.

In Cleveland, the Indians, winners of the American League pennant, beat the White Sox, 3 to 1, for their 110th victory of the season..t the American League record. And the Yankees announced that Casey Stengel has signed to manage the second place winners for the next two years. In Brooklyn, rookie lefthander Karl Spooner, making his first big league appearance as a Dodger, defeated the pennant winning Giants, three to Spooner, just up from North, struck out 15 batters.

During the summer my colleague Charles Collingwood spoke with you over this microphone. For the last few weeks he's been on a busman's holiday...visiting France and Tunisia. Tonight he's with us in the newsroom. What's going on over there, Charlie?

In France the great pre-occupation is, of course, the special French agony over the terms of the German re-armament. But the Problem of Europe is only the most painful of those pressing in upon France these days. After the tragic experience in Indo-China, a new struggle is shaping up in France's overseas empire, in North Africa. There the same time of nationalism which is sweeping across so much of the underdeveloped area of the world is threatening to overwhelm French interests as it did, with Communist help, in Indo-China...But in North Africa, or more specifically in Tunisia, the French are trying to do what they did not do in Indo-China--to grant the Nationalists enough of their demands to forestall another explosion, yet keep Tunisia within the structure of the free world. Mendes-France has offered Tunisia what amounts to international autonomy and at this moment, French and Tunisian negotiations are meeting to hammer out the terms whereby the transfer of power will be effected.

And that is, I'm afraid a long-winded explanation of why I left Europe on this trip and the momentous negotiations on European defense, to go to North Africa...to investigate at first hand one of the classic political processes of our time -- the transfer of power from a colonial nation to a subject nation.

Tunis, this September, does not have the atmosphere of a city which is the subject of a struggle for power. The sun shines hot, the Mediterranean is blue, and the French in their western clothes and the Tunisians in their flowing Arab robes, fezzes, turbans, and veils for the women rub elbows with apparent goodwill and lack of self-consciousness in the streets. But one night as we drove the few miles from Tunis to the site of the ancient vanished city of Carthage, a French official remarked casually that three months ago it would not have been safe to drive along that road at night. The Fellaghas, the terrorists might strike -- and did strike --without warning. But today there is a kind of armistice while the negotiations go on. There is still some terrorist activity in the South, and a small but well organized so-called Army of Liberation clashes periodically with French troops, but by and large, Tunisia is calm. If, however, the current negotiations break down, both French and Tunisians are poised for trouble ..real trouble. The French have 60 thousand troops in Tunisia, a country of three and a half million people...That's three times the normal garrison, but they are prepared to fly in at a moment's notice if this situation should get out of hand.

But the French hope, and the Tunisians hope, that the situation will not get out of hand and that terms for international autonomy can be peacefully arranged. There are powerful forces working for just such an eventuality. In the first place, Mendes-France is sincerely willing to make greater concessions that France has ever made made in a similar situation and the Tunisians trust him. For one thing, he used to be the lawyer for the Neo-Destour, the Tunisian nationalist party, and so he knows them and they know him....and then, there is the character of the Tunisian nationalist movement, the Neo-Destour. It is, as nationalist movements go, a sane and moderate one. This reporter has talked to a good many of the passionate, single-minded, and quite often pretty scary men who have directed the nationalist ferment in so many other countries, and these Tunisian leaders I saw impressed me particularly with their moderation...Let me give you an example. The first thing most countries fighting for their independence do and is control over their defense and foreign affairs. But these are the two things the Tunisians say they are willing to let the French keep. "We have noticed," one of the Tunisian ministers told me, that small countries do not really handle their defense or their international relations anyway.

We are glad to have France do that for us while we build a strong and healthy domestic government. Also, he said, we wish to orient ourselves with the Free World, and we are happy for France to continue to be the vehicle for that".

By the way, it should be said that Communism has no discernible influence whatever on the Tunisian nationalist movement. The Neo-Destour under its principal leaders Bourguiba and his colleagues are anti-Communist and what's more, they have so out-campaigned and out-organized the Reds, and taken the play away from them, that Communism just isn't an important factor in Tunisia's fight for independence.

The Tunisians greatly admire the United States, both because of our history and accomplishments, and because of a little-known wartime episode the Nationalists told me about. They say that when the Allied armies liberated Tunis in 1943, the French moved to crush the nationalist movement, but the American consul in Tunis personally intervened to save its leaders..and for this they are eternally grateful.

There is real hope that Tunisia can be a successful experiment in the change from colonial to independent status...There is goodwill on the French side and moderation on the Tunisian side...But there are also powerful factors working against compromise -- the French settlers who feel that their country, and all that they have created and worked for is being taken from them, are bitterly opposed to any change. And there are Arab extremists, impatient with the slow process of change, who are trying to push the nationalists toward violence. If things do not work out, there may well be a bitter conflict which could shake the uneasy balance of world peace. But if the transfer of power is peacefully accomplished, it may be a guidepost toward the solution of some of the most critical problems which confront our world.

That's Tunisia today, Ed.

The report my colleague Charles Collingwood gave us would seem to underline something William Sumner once said: "Liberty is a conquest. It does not lie at the beginning of history and of the struggle of the human race on this earth; it lies at the end of it. And it is one of the richest and finest fruits of civilization."

Good Night and Good Luck.

Thursday, September 23, 1954.

This is the news:

Secretary of State Dulles today told the United Nations; we intend to go ahead with the President's plan for an international pool of atomic energy for peaceful purposes..even without the Russians. (I'd like to ~~review~~ summarize the Dulles' proposals in a few minutes.)

In Tokyo today, a Japanese fisherman died. His doctors listed him as possibly the world's first hydrogen bomb casualty, because he and other crewmen on his boat had been "dusted" by a hydrogen bomb we tested in the Pacific. Dr. John Morton, director of the American Atomic Bomb Casualty Commission, says the Japanese never allowed our experts to treat the fisherman..or even examine him. The Japanese radio and press are giving the story a good deal of attention. And although our ambassador has expressed our regrets, a leading Japanese official told reporters: "This is not the death of one man, but affects all mankind. The United States must show more sincerity in this tragedy." We have offered sympathy and compensation in the past.

~~Another atomic expert, Dr. John C. Bugher, of the atomic energy commission's medical division, said there have been too many reckless and uncritical predictions on what radiation from an A-bomb or an H-bomb will~~

~~do to heredity. He says: Its a [illegible] distortion of emphasis to predict monsters or the obliteration of mankind from radiation exposures. But he acknowledges that a sufficient amount of radiation can be fatal.~~

Red China's Premier Chou en Lai today broadcast a demand for the liberation of Nationalist Formosa. He wants the American 7th fleet "chased away" from Formosan waters..and says his people will never have peace if Formosa is not liberated.

And the State Department says the Chinese Communists want another conference on peace for Korea.

~~[redacted] who recently visited Russia, says the Kremlin now has mastered the internal situation in Russia, and will now be easier to deal with.~~

IN LONDON, ~~and~~ authoritative British sources say French Premier Mendez-France has agreed "in principle" to the simultaneous admission of West Germany to the Brussels alliance, and NATO..the North Atlantic treaty organization.

Foreign Secretary Eden told a political rally: [redacted] ~~[illegible]~~ unless the Germans are brought into the western alliance, they will go their own way.."and we know only too well what this has meant in the past."

Seven Polish seamen told British police today that they had staged a "Freedom Mutiny" on their trawler..beat up their political officer.. locked up the captain and other crewmen..and then sailed to shore to ask political asylum.

And the Russians in Berlin tonight demanded that the United States stop what they called "widespread espionage and criminal activities" in East Germany.

At Bitburg, in the French occupation zone of Germany, a jet fuel tank exploded killing at least 25 persons. Our army headquarters "rules out" sabotage.

Great Britain warned the United Nations today that if the General Assembly agrees to consider Greece's claims to the island of Cyprus, this would harm [redacted] political stability and peace in the whole Aegean area.

The President was in Oregon today. And while dedicating the 286-million-dollar Mc Nary dam he defended his Administration's power policies. He said: local public and private power agencies "can work in the public interest as well as ~~some far-off~~ or better than federal agency." [redacted] He said the "malignant growth of beaurocracy" comes from "the conversion of local regions into federal satellites." And earlier, the President told a political group:"Politics will have a field day if the Democrats succeed in capturing control of Congress." During the day the President made known his approval of Senator Ives as the Republican candidate for governor of New York.

In Washington, senate leaders postponed a decision on calling the Senate back to act on a proposed censure of Senator McCarthy. And Senate Secretary Trice told reporters that if no call is issued by next Wednesday he believes the issue will be put-off until after the election.

Here in New York, First army headquarters announced that "certain individuals now stationed or living in its eight-state command are under investigation on charges "growing out of their confinement as prisoners of war in Korea." First army area includes the six New England states, New Jersey and New York.

Lieut. Col. Harry Fleming--found guilty yesterday of collaborating with his Communist captors in Korea..today was sentenced to dismissal from the army..and forefeiture of all pay and allowances.

President David McDonald of the C.I.O. Steelworkers said today his union will stay in the C.I.O. He called for all American labor groups to join in immediate "organic unity." Labor Secretary Mitchell told the convention a merger of the C.I.O. and the A.F. of L. would be "good for industry and America." ~~And United Mine Workers President John L. Lewis sent the convention a telegram urging that the Steelworkers leave the C.I.O. Lewis added he would welcome the union into his United Mine Workers.~~

In Jefferson City, Missouri, four prisoners were killed, 30 prisoners and three guards injured, in the worst riot in the history of the Missouri State Penitentiary. ~~Some prison buildings were destroyed, with damages estimated at from three to five million dollars.~~ The prisoners apparently STARTED their uprising in protest against green watermelon served last night.

Here in New York, Edward Klauber, an associate director of the war-time Office of War Information, died today of a heart attack. He was 67. Mr. Klauber had been executive vice president of the Columbia Broadcasting System for 12 years. He played a prominent part in the development of radio news at CBS in the early 30's.

Edward R. Murrow: September 23, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

The big American speech in the general debate of the United Nations Assembly was made today by Secretary Dulles. Last year the big American speech was made by President Eisenhower, who used it to launch his unexpected proposal of an international bank of atomic energy and the development of the peacetime uses of atomic power. That program furnished Mr. Dulles with the central theme of his speech today, and he stressed and expanded the President's proposals. He also revealed that five months of Soviet silence on this subject had been broken by Moscow when the Russians learned that he was going to talk about the atomic pool today. A Soviet note was delivered yesterday that said the Kremlin is willing to renew discussions. But it did not, Mr. Dulles declared, give any hint that the Soviet had receded from its negative position. The United States, he said, is ready to renew discussions with the Russians, but it is not willing to delay doing something so as to see how the discussions turn out. He proposed four specific actions.

One is the creation of an international agency whose initial members will include nations from all regions of the world. It is hoped it will start work next year. Another is the calling of an international scientific conference to consider the whole subject of peacetime use of atomic energy, and should meet under the auspices of the United Nations next spring. Another action will be the opening next year by the United States of a reactor training school. In this, students from abroad will be able to learn the working principles of atomic energy in its application to peacetime uses. And a fourth action will be the invitation of a substantial number of medical and surgical experts from abroad to take part in the work of American cancer hospitals where atomic energy techniques are among the hopeful approaches to the control of cancer.

Mr. Dulles did not pretend that these four actions are going to solve the problems. "There is no miracle to be wrought overnight", he said. "But a program can be made and vitalized to assure that atomic energy can bring to millions a better way of life. To achieve that result is our firm resolve." # The United States is determined, he repeated, that President Eisenhower's proposal shall not languish until it dies. "It will be nurtured and developed", he said. "We shall press on in close partnership with those nations which, inspired by the ideals of the United Nations Charter, can make this great new force a tool of the humanitarian and the statesman, and not merely a fearsome addition to the arsenal of war."

While pressing forward now, Mr. Dulles said, he wished it perfectly clear that no nation is excluded from the planning. "As our proposals take shape", he said, "all nations interested in participating and willing to take on the responsibilities of membership will be welcome to join with us in the planning and execution of this program. Even though much is denied us by Soviet negation, nevertheless much remains that can be done." He regretted that the world was denied the immense relaxation of tension which might have occurred had the Soviet Union been willing to begin to co-operate with other nations on this subject.

He went on to tie in the Soviet refusal with the failure of the talks on disarmament. He referred to the work of the U.N. disarmament sub-committee that had met for weeks in London. The Soviet strategy there, he said, was the same as in dealing with the atomic bank proposal. The Kremlin insisted that the West first agree to renounce the use of all atomic weapons before negotiations could proceed. Had that been done, he pointed out, the Soviet Union, assured of its power supremacy, would be able to dominate the negotiations, and that, he said dryly, would hardly increase the security of any nation.

"We can only conclude", he said, "that the Soviet Union has no desire to negotiate on disarmament problems."

In his thirty-minute speech Mr. Dulles could only touch the high spots of American foreign policy. He praised the work of the Manila conference as having done more than extend the area of collective security, since it had ended the myth that there is inherent incompatability between East and West.

He concluded with recommendations that the United Nations in celebrating its tenth birthday next year do more than congratulate itself but make an effort to strengthen its weaknesses. He reminded the Assembly that when the United Nations was first organized, its founders had foreseen this need and had made possible a review of the Charter next year. He did not elaborate the changes he thought necessary. But in his address he stressed the importance of dealing regionally with threats to the peace, leaving the Security Council to be the court of last resort rather than the court of first instance. And he called attention to the urgent problems of membership. Fourteen nations, he said, now are debarred by the Soviet abuse of the veto. "And" he remarked, "they are not comparable with Communist China, which the United Nations has found guilty of aggression. They are truly peace-loving states."

The United Nations, as Mr. Dulles noted, is dedicated to peace. Stephen Vincent Benet summed up that objective in these words: "Grant us brotherhood, not only for this day but for all our years - a brotherhood not of words but of deeds. We are all of us children of the earth; grant us that simple knowledge. If our brothers are oppressed, then we are oppressed."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 23, 1954
7:45-8:00 P.M. E.S.T.

This is the news:

Secretary of State Dulles today told the United Nations; we intend to go ahead with the President's plan for an international pool of atomic energy for peaceful perposes...evenwihthout the Russians. I'd like to sumarize the Dulles' proposals in a few minutes.

In Tokyo today, a Japanese fisherman died. His doctors listed him as possibly the world'd first hydrogen bomb casualty because he and the other crewmen on his boat had been "dusted" by a hydrogen bomb we tested in the Pacific. Dr. John Morton, director of the American Atomic Bomb Casualty Commission, says the Japanese never allowed our experts to treat the fisherman...or even examine him. The Japanese radio and press are giving the story a good deal of attention. And although our ambassador has expressed our regrets, a leading Japanese official told reporters:"This is not the death of one man but affects all mankind. The United States must show more sincerity in this tragedy." We have offered sympathy and compensttions in the past.

Red China's Premier Chou en Lai today broadcast a demand for the liberation of Nationalist Formosa. He wants the American 7th Fleet "chased away" from Formosan waters..and says his people will never have peace if Formosa is not liberated.

And the State Department says the Chinese Communists want another conference on peace for Korea.

In London, authoritative British sources say French Premier Mendez-France has agreed "in principle" to the simultaneous admission of West Germany to the Brussels alliance and NATO..The North Atlantic treaty organization.

Foreign Secretary Eden told a political rally: unless the Germans are brought into the western alliance they will go their own way..."and we know only too well what this has meant in the past."

Seven Polish seamen told British police today that they had staged a "Freedom Mutiny" on their trawler...beat up their political officer..locked up the captain and other crewmen..and then sailed to shore to ask political asylum.

And the Russians in Berlin tonight demanded that the United States stop what they called "widespread espionage and criminal activities" in East Germany.

At Bitsburg, in the French occupation zone of Germany, a jet fuel tank exploded killing at least 25 persons. Our army headquarters "rules out " sabotage.

Great Britain warned the United Nations today that if the General Assembly agrees to consider Greece's claims to the island of Cyprus --this would harm political stability and peace in the whole Aegean area.

The President was in Oregon today. And while dedicating the 286-million dollar McNary dam, he defended his Administration's power policies. He said: local, public, and private power agencies "can work in the public interest as well as or better than some far-off federal agency. "He said the "malignant growth of beaurocracy" comes from "the conversion of local regions into federal satelites." and earlier, the President told a political group: "Politics will have a field day if the Democrats succeed in capturing control of Congress." During the day the President made known his approval of Senator Ives as the Republican condidate for governor of New York.

In Washington, senate leaders postponed a decision on calling the Senate back to act on a proposed censure of Senator McCarthy. And Senate Secretary Trice told reporters that if no call is issued by next Wednesday he believes the issue will be put off until after the election.

Here in New York, First Army headquarters announced that "certain individuals now stationed or living in its eight-state command are under investigation on charges "growing out of their confinement as prisoners of war in Korea." The First army area includes the six New England states, New Jersey and New York.

Lieut. Col. Harry Fleming--found guilty yesterday of collaborating with his Communist captors in Korea..today was sentenced to dismissal from the army..and forfeiture of all pay and allowances.

President David McDonald of the C.I.O. Steelworkers said today his union will stay in the C.I.O. He called for all American labor groups to join in immediate "organic unity." Labor Secretary Mitchell told the convention a merger of the C.I.O. and the A.F. of L. would be "good for industry and America."

In Jefferson City, Missouri, four prisoners were killed, 30 prisoners and three guards injured, in the worst riot in the history of the Missouri State Penitentiary. The prisoners apparently started their uprising in protest against green watermelon served last night.

Here in New York, Edward Klauber, an associate director of the wartime Office of War Information, died today of a heart attack. He was 67. Mr. Klauber had been executive vice president of the Columbia Broadcasting System for 12 years. He played a prominent part in the developement of radio news at CBS in the early 30's.

The big American speech in the general debate of the United Nations Assembly was made today by Secretary Dulles. Last year the big American speech was made by President Eisenhower, who used it to launch his unexpected proposal of an international bank of atomic energy and the developement of the peacetime uses of atomic power. That program furnished Mr. Dulles with the central theme of his speech today, and he stressed and expanded the President's proposals. He also revealed that five months of Soviet silence on this subject had been broken by Moscow when the Russians learned that he was going to talk about the atomic pool today. A Soviet note was delivered yesterday that said the Kremlin is willing to renew discussions. But it did not, Mr. Dulles declared, give any hint that the Soviet had receded from its negative position. The United States, he said, is ready to renew discussions with the Russians, but it is not willing to delay doing something so as to see how the discussions turn out. He proposed four specific actions.

One is the creation of an international agency whose initial members will include nations from all regions of the world. It is hoped it will start work next year. Another is the calling of an international scientific conference to consider the w ole subject of peacetime use of atomic energy, and should meet under the auspices of the United Nations next spring. Another action will be the opening next year by the United States of a reactor training school. In this, students from abroad will be able to learn the working principles of atomic energy in its application to peacetime uses. And a fourth action will be the invitation of a substantial number of medical and surgical experts from abroad to take part in the work of American cancer hospitals where atomic energy techniques are among the hopeful approaches to the control of cancer.

Mr. Dulles did not pretend that these four actions are going to solve the problems. "There is no miricle to be wrought overnight", he said. "But a program can be made and vitalized to assure that atomic energy can bring to millions a better way of life. To achieve that result is our firm resolve."

The United States is determined, he repeated, that President Eisenhower's proposal shall not languish until it dies. "It will be nurtured and developed," he said. "We shall press on in close partnership with those nations which, inspired by the ideals of the United Nations Charter , can make this great new force a tool of the humanitarian and the statesman, and not merely a fearsome addition to the arsenal of war."

While pressing forward now, Mr. Dulles said, he wished it perfectly clear that no nation is excluded from the planning. "As our proposals take shape", he said, "all nations interested in particitpating and willing to take th the responsibilities of membership will be welcome to join with us in the planning and execution of this program. Even though much is denied us by Soviet negation, nevertheless much remains that can be done." He regretted that the world was denied the immense relaxation of tension which might have occurred had the Soviet Union been willing to begin to co-operate with the other nations on this subject.

He went on to tie in the Soviet refusal with the failure of the talks on disarmament. He referred to the work of the U.N. disarmament sub-committee that had met for weeks in London. The Soviet strategy there, he said, was the same as in dealing with the atomic bank proposal. The Kremlin insisted that the West first agree to renounce the use of all atomic weapons before negotiations could proceed. Had that been done, he pointed out, the Soviet Union, assured of its power supremacy, would be able to dominate the negotiations, and that, he said dryly, would hardly increase the security of any nation.

"We can only conclude", he said, "that the Soviet Union has no desire to negotiate on disarmament problems."

In his thirty-minute speech Mr. Dulles could only touch the high spots of American foreign policy. He praised the work of the Manila conference as having done more than extend the area of collective security, since it has ended the myth that there is inherrent incompatability between East and West.

He concluded with recommendations that the United Nations in celebrating its tenth birthday next year do more than con ratulate itself but make an effort to strengthen its weaknesses. He reminded the Assembly that when the United Nations was first organized, its founders had foreseen this need and had made possible a review of the Charter next year. He did not elaborate the changes he thought necessary. But in his address he stressed the importance of dealing regionally wit threats to the peace, leaving the Security Council to by the court of last resort rather than the court of first instance. And he called attention to the urgent problem of membership. Fourteen nations, he said, now are debarred by the Soviet abuse of the veto. "and," he remarked, "they are not comparable with Communist China, which the United Nation has found guilty of aggression. They are truly peace-loving states."

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a minute with the Word for Today. But first, Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: The United Nations, as Mr. Dulles noted, is dedicated to peace. Stephen Vincent Benet summed up that objective in these words: "Grant us brotherhood, not only for this day but for all our years - a brotherhood not of words but of deeds. We are all of us children of the earth; grant us that simple knowledge. If our brothers are oppressed, then we are oppressed."

Good Night and Good Luck.

Friday Sept 24, 1954

This is the news:

The Senate will meet on November 8th..six days after the election...to consider censure charges against Senator McCarthy. Both Majority Leader Knowland and Minority Leader Lyndon Johnson of Texas have agreed to this. Knowland proposed the date, after the Watkins committee announced it has completed its report on the case, KNOWLAND said he wants the Senate to convene after the election, so that decisions can be made "in an atmosphere free from pre-election tensions." The Watkins committee says its report will be made public Monday. We're told it is a unanimous report.

Senator McCarthy's staff made it known today, that he is cancelling at least two of the three speaking engagements he had intended to fulfill, in this election campaign. An aide says he is under treatment for a sinus ailment.

The President did his campaigning in Los Angeles today. And he attacked those he described as "wisecracking so-called intellectuals", who go around the country criticizing all who do not agree with their concepts of government. The President defined an intellectual as "a man who takes more words than necessary, to tell more than he knows." In another speech, in Los Angeles, the president told the convention of the American Federation of Labor that he will remove the "union-busting" provisions of the Taft-Hartley law..and will give sympathetic consideration to all of organized labor's views. The President conceded that his Administration so far has failed to change the labor law. He said this could be blamed on "a solid Democratic vote in the Senate." Mr. Eisenhower was given what one reporter called "a politely warm reception." James McDevitt, the head of the A.F of L.'s political arm , said:"He didn't promise enough to satisfy us."

In Atlantic City, the C.I.O. Steelworkers voted today to change their constiuution and bar all Communists from membership..previously Communists were barred only from holding office in the union.

The government reported today that the cost of living went down two-tenths of a point in August. It had edged upward in three previous months.

The Atomic Energy Commission announces that new atomic tests will be held at its Nevada proving ground around February of next year.

And at the United Nations, the Steering Committee has voted unanimously to recommend that the General Assembly consider the new American proposals for peaceful uses of atomic energy. Vishinsky of Russia approved..after telling the committee that his country has not rejected the American proposals.

In China, Nationalist planes again attacked the Communist-held mainland..for THE 22nd straight day. And Wellington Koo, the Nationalist ambassador to Washington, said the Communists will probably [redacted] make a serious attempt to seize 37 small Nationalist-held islands off the Mainland. He said this could be expected "at any time." I'd like to review this situation in a fewminutes.

In West Germany today, Chancellor Adenauer. [redacted] t [redacted]..made a demand for full equality for Germany in any west European defense plan. He said:"Unless Germany is given full equality with its partners, it will be impossible to place German troops under foreign command..for example..the North Atlantic Treaty Organization." Adenauer refused to try to predict the outcome of [redacted] next week's London conference. He said:"The position of French Premier Mendes-France is not clear."

And in London, diplomatic sources say the United States has reached agreement with Great Britain and West Germany on "all essential details" for a new European defense plan.

The President today authorized an additional million dollars for relief work in those sections of Massachusetts hit by hurricanes. And Commerce Secretary Weeks denied that economies in the Weather Bureau had kept New England from being adequately warned of the approach of Hurricane Carol at the end of August. Rhode Island's Senator Green had accused the department of false economy. But Weeks said today the problem of Hurricane Carol was the fact that it changed direction and increased its speed during the night when radio, press and other media of communications were not in active operations..and therefore unable to spread the warning.

In California today, a brush fire described by one veteran fire fighter as "one of the worst in the history of Los Angeles county" swept over 500 acres. And in SIERRA City, California, three fire-fighters from the Folsom Prison Honor Camp were reported burned to death in another fire.

Edward R. Murrow: September 24, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

The big words about re-taking Formosa that Premier Chou En-lai used to the National People's Congress in Peiping yesterday are not going to be easy to swallow later on. So it begins to appear unlikely that the Chinese Communists are talking about Formosa simply for bargaining purposes. In a country where face counts for so much, a Premier would hardly be so categorical about Formosa having to be re-taken if he did not know of plans to re-take it.

At the time the Communists opened fire on the Quemoys (the Nationalist Islands off the mainland coast), the Manila conference was about to meet, and many thought this military activity was an attempt to impress the Manila negotiators. It seemed to be saying that it might mean a major war if a collective security system were set up.

But after the Manila treaty had been signed, the activity at Quemoy continued, and the talk about Formosa grew louder. Some observers thought that Chou wanted Formosa neutralized, so that Communist China could get into the U.N. and occupy the Security Council seat now held by the Nationalists. This seemed credible when the British Labor leader Clement Attlee came out of Communist China, after talks with Chou, and advocated the neutralization of Formosa. But Chou now calls Formosa sacred Chinese soil, says it is an internal Chinese problem and asserts that the Peiping regime will accept neither a United Nations trusteeship over Formosa nor its neutralization.

There is more than this binding language to support the theory that Chou means business when he talks about the Nationalists. Bill Costello, before leaving Formosa today, cabled me that the pundits searching for political explanations of the Quemoy incidents are obscuring the vital military significance of what is happening there. He has talked with some of the best military judges on Formosa, and learns that Communist artillery fire has done two things; it has knocked out the wharf on the western tip of Quemoy Island, and thus smashed the direct logistical link with Little Quemoy four miles away; and it has begun to blanket the smaller island with harrassing fire and long-range sniping, so that movement on Little Quemoy is possible only at night. High policy planners of the Nationalist government, he says, are impressed with the concentration of enemy gunfire on Little Quemoy. The latest barrage took place the day before yesterday, just half-an-hour after Costello and other correspondents had left. The Nationalist experts are sure the Communists will intensify the bombardment of the smaller island in the weeks ahead as part of the softening-up process. Then they foresee that a surprise amphibious attack on Little Quemoy will follow. The purpose would be to have the use of Little Quemoy as an artillery platform for the large-scale bombardment of Quemoy itself in advance of an invasion there. If the Communists hold Little Quemoy they can bring more than half of the larger island within range of heavy guns, and would be able to provide covering fire at the beaches on the north-central part of the island most favorable for amphibious landing.

Costello points out that the Nationalists do not anticipate Communist air attack. Chiang Kai Shek told him in an interview that the Communists had not finished the new runways for their jet planes in Fukien province. But he has other information that the Communists have six airfields along the coast near Quemoy, and possess possibly two thousand jet planes. Jet fighters in Canton and Hangchow are only forty minutes away. So, he says, enemy air could pulverize Quemoy if it wanted to launch an all-out attack. The Nationalists explain the absence of air attack on the islands by the doubt the Reds feel about what ~~the~~ our Seventh Fleet will do. The Reds know it will defend Formosa and the Pescadores, but are not sure it will intervene in the Quemoys. If the air is used, perhaps. If only artillery is used to prepare a landing, presumably not. How right they are in this estimate will not be known until a landing is attempted. The Americans have adopted a policy of silence on this score.

The military evidence strongly points to the invasion of the Quemoys, not right away but after prolonged artillery preparation. If the islands fall, the fate of Formosa will not be much affected, at least militarily. But if the Communists are afraid to risk using their air at the Quemoys, they may be still more unwilling to invite American intervention by attacking Formosa. The Nationalist experts, Costello reports, are sure the Reds have the capability of launching an attack against every part of the island. But they also are sure it will not be done at the price of starting a major war.

This analysis does not explain the big words Chou En-lai is using. It may be true that Chou can get the Quemoys without war with America. It is clear that he can have war with America if He wants it - by attacking Formosa. What no longer is clear is that he does not want war with America, not only over the Quemoys, but eventually over Formosa.

There has been no easing of tensions in the Pacific. ~~The cold war is still very evident~~. But we ~~must~~ continue to exert our efforts and energies toward peace. For as the Greek historian Po-lib-i-us put it: "When we conquer enemies by kindness and justice we are more apt to win their submission than by victory in the field. In the one case they yield only to necessity; in the other, by their own free choice."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
CBS RADIO NETWORK

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 24, 1954
7:45-8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

The Senate will meet on November 8th...six days after the elections... to consider censure charges against Senator McCarthy. Both Majority Leader Knowland and Minority Leader Lyndon Johnson of Texas have agreed to this. Knowland proposed the date after the Watkins committee announced it has completed its report on the case. Knowland said he wants the Senate to convene after the election so that decisions can be made "in an atmosphere free from pre-election tensions." The Watkins committee says its report will be made public Monday. We're told it is a unanimous report.

Senator McCarthy's staff made it known today that he is cancelling at least two of the three speaking engagements he had intended to fulfill in this election campaign. An aide says he is under treatment for a sinus ailment.

The President did his campaigning in Los Angeles today. And he attacked those he described as "wisecracking so-called intellectuals", who go around the country criticizing all who do not agree with their concepts of government. The President defined an intellectual as "a man who takes more words than necessary to tell more than he knows." In another speech, in Los Angeles, the president told the convention of the American Federation of Labor that he will remove the "union busting" provisions of the Taft-Hartley law..and will give sympathetic consideration to all of organized labor's views. The President conceded that his administration, so far, has failed to change the labor law. He said this could be blamed on a "solid Democratic vote in the Senate." Mr. Eisenhower was given what one reported called "a polightly warm reception." Ja es McDevitt, the head of the A.F. of L's political arm, said: "He didn't promise enough to satisfy us."

In Atlantic City, the C.I.O. Steelworkers voted today to change their constitution and bar all Communists from membership..previously Communists were barred only from holding office in the union.

The government reported today that the cost of living went down two-tenths of a point in August. It had edged upward in three previous months.

The Atomic Energy Commission announces that the new atomic tests will be held in its Nevada proving ground around February of next year.

And at the United Nations, the Steering Committee has voted to recommend that the General Assembly consider the new American proposals for peaceful uses of atomic energy. Vishinsky of Russia approved..after telling the committee that his country has not rejected the American proposals.

In China, Nationalist planes again attacked the Communist-held mainland, for the 22nd straight day. And Wellington Koo, the Nationalist ambassador to Washington, said the Communists will probably make a serious attempt to seize 37 small Nationalist-held islands off the Mainland. He said this could be expected "at any time." I'd like to review this situation in a few minutes.

In West Germany today, Chancellor Adenauer made a demand for full equality for Germany in any West European defense plan. He said: "Unless Germany is given full equality with its partners, it will be impossible to place German troops under foreign command..for example..the North Atlantic Treaty Organization." Adenauer refused to try to predict the outcome of next week's London conference. He said: "The position of French Premier Mendes-France is not clear."

And in London, diplomatic sources say the United States has reached agreement with Great Britain and West Germany on "all essential details" for a new European defense plan.

The President today authorized an additional million dollars for relief work in those sections of Massachusetts hit by hurricanes. And Commerce Secretary Weeks denied that economies in the Weather Bureau had kept New England from being adequately warned of the approach of Hurricane Carol. Rhode Island's Senator Green had accused the department of false economy. But Weeks said today: the problem of Hurricane Carol was the fact that it changed direction and increased its speed during the night when radio, press and other media of communications were not in active operations..and therefore unable to spread the warning.

In California today, a bush fire described by one veteran fire fighter as "one of the worst in the history of Los Angeles county" swept over 500 acres. And in Sierra City, California, three fire-fighters from Folsom Prison-Honor Camp were reported burned to death in another fire.

The big words about re-taking Formosa that Premier Chou-En-lai used to the National People's Congress in Peiping yesterday are not going to be easy to swallow later on. So it begins to appear unlikely that the Chinese Communists are talking about Formosa simply for bargaining purposes. In a country where face counts for so much, a Premier would hardly be so categorical about Formosa having to be re-taken if he did not know of plans to re-take it.

At the time the Communists opened fire on the Quemoys (the Nationalist Islands off the mainland coast), the Manila conference was about to meet, and many thought this military activity was an attempt to impress the Manila negotiators. It seemed to be saying, that it might mean a major war if a collective security system were set up.

But after the Manila treaty had been signed, the activity at Quemoy continued, and the talk about Formosa grew louder. Some observers thought that Chou wanted Formosa neautralized, so that Communist China could get into the U.N. and occupy the Security Council seat now held by the Nationalists. This seemed credible when the British Labor leader Clement Attlee came out of Communist China, after talks with Chou, and advocated the neautralization of Formosa. But Chou now calls Formosa sacred Chinese soil, says it is an internal Chinese problem and asserts that the Peiping regime will accept neither a United States trusteeship over Formosa nor its neautralization.

There is more than this binding language to support the theory that Chou means business when he talks about the Nationalists. Bill Costello, before leaving Formosa today, cabled me that the pundits searching for political explanations of the Quemoy incidents are obscuring the vital military significance of what is happening there. He has talked with some of the best military judges on Formosa and learns that Communist artillery fire has done two things; it has knocked out the wharf on the western tip of Quemoy Island and thus smashed the direct logistical link with Little Quemoy four miles away; and it has begun to blanket the smaller island with harassing fire and long-range sniping, so that movement on Little Quemoy is possible only at night. High policy planners of the Nationalist government, he says, are impressed with the concentration of enemy gunfire on Little Quemoy. The latest barage took place the day before yesterday, just half-an-hour after Costello and other correspondents had left. The Nationalist experts are sure the Communists will intensify the bombardment of the smaller island in the weeks ahead as part of the softening up process. Then they forsee that a surprise amphibious attack on Little Quemoy will follow. The purpose would be to have the use of Little Quemoy as an artillery platform for the large-scale bombardment of Quemoy itself in advance of the invasion there. If the Communists hold Little Quemoy they can bring more than half of the larger island within range of heavy guns, and would be able to provide covering fire at the beaches on the north-central part of the island most favorable for amphibious landing.

Costello points out that the Nationalists do not anticipate Communist air attack. Chiang Kai Shek told him in an interview that the Communists had not finished the new runways for their jet planes in Fukien province. But he has other information that the Communists have six airfields along the coast near Quemoy, and possess possibly two thousand jet planes. Jet fighters in Canton and Hangchow are only forty minutes away. So, he says, enemy air could pulverize Quemoy if it wanted to launch an all-out attack. The Nationalists explain the absence of air attack on the islands by the doubt the Reds feel about that our Seventh Fleet will do. The Reds know it will defend Formosa and the Pescadores, but are not sure it will intervene in the Quemoys. If the air is used, perhaps. Of only artillery is used to prepare a landing, presumably not. How right they are in this estimate will not be known until a landing is attempted. The Americans have adopted a policy of silence on this score.

The military evidence strongly points to the invasion of the Quemoys, not right away, but after prolonged artillery preparation. If the islands fall, the fate of Formosa will not be much affected, at least militarily. But if the Communists are afraid to risk using their air at the Quemoys, they may be still more unwilling to invite American intervention by attacking Formosa. The Nationalist experts, Costello reports, are sure the Reds have the capability of launching an attack against every pary of the island. But they also are sure it will not be done at the price of starting a major war.

This analysis does not explain the big words Chou En-lai is using. It may be true that Chou can get the Quemoys without war with America. It is clear that he can have war with America if he wants it - by attacking Formosa. What is no longer clear is that he does not want war with America, not only over the Quemoys, but eventually over Formosa.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a moment with the Word for Today. But first, Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: There has been no easing of tensions in the Pacivic. But we continue to exert our efforts and energies toward peace. For as the Greek historian Polibius put it: "When we conquer enemies by kindness and justice we are more apt to win their submission than by victory in the field. In the one case they yield only to necessity; in the other, by their own free choice.

Good Night and Good Luck.

Monday, Sept. 27, 1954

This is the news:

The Watkins Committee today unaimously recommended that the Senate ~~censure~~ censure Senator Mc Carthy. In examining the charges against him, the committee found definite reason for the Senate to censure McCarthy on some charges.. In other areas it felt there was not enough proof, or reason. In its long report the Watkins committee found that in some of his actions Mc Carthy has been: contemptuous...contumacious...denounciatory... obstructive...intemperate...vulgar...insulting ~~and unworthy of a Senator.~~ For other Mc Carthy actions, the committee found a degree of justification. I'll try to summarize the report in a fewminutes.

A Majority of the Senators contacted by reporters during the ~~night~~ day, have refused to express an opinion on the case they will debate after the election. Most of those available to reporters praise the Watkins committee..say they need time to study the report. A few... Republicans Welker of Idaho and Dirksen of Illinois either disagree with the charges or feel they are not sufficient for action. Democrat McCarran of Nevada says he'll vote against the report. And afew.. Democrats Robertson of Virginia, amd Hill of Alabama, say they will approve the report. ~~There is no comment yet from Senator McCarthy. But his lawyer says the Senator~~

Senator McCarthy was at the Bethesda Naval Hospital today. The Chicago Tribune says, it was told by the Senator, that he doesn't care if he's censured or not.. "But I will fight against establishing a precedent, that will curb investigative powers, and assist any Administration in power to coverup its misdeeds,"

[redacted]

In London today, Secretary of State Dulles warned French Premier Mendez-France that we will be forced to review our "forward" European defenses.. unless tomorrow's conference reaches an agreement on re-arming West Germany. And British Foreign Secretary Eden is said to have proposed that the allies speed up their timetable to get an agreement on freeing and re-arming the Germans.

Former Prime Minister Atlee today told the British Labor Party that Formosa should be turned over to Communist China.. that Generalissimo Chiang Kai Shek should be transferred to "some safe place"... that he thinks Red China "has a case" on Formosa. He said if the island is turned over to the Communists it would help "ease the fears" of both the United States and Red China. Atlee also wants the Chinese Communists admitted to the United Nations.

The Communist radio says Mao Tze-Tung has been re-elected by the so-called People's Congress as chairman of the so-called Republic. [redacted] The vice chairman is a surprise.. [redacted] General Chuh Teh, the Red army commander. Chou en Lai remains as premier.

Again today, Nationalist planes and ships attacked the Communist-held mainland.

And in Japan from 16 to 18-hundred persons are reported dead as the result of a typhoon which sank a ferry northern Japan. Fifty-eight Americans are reported among the dead or missing. Most of the dead were aboard five ferry boats which capsized in 180-mile-an-hour winds, and high seas.

Admiral Radford, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, said in Detroit today, that Secretary of State Dulles' "massive retaliation" Policy "still stands." Radford said that in event of an attack "we do not depend exclusively upon any one weapon or any one service, nor do we anticipate one kind of war."

The United States and Canada today announced plans to build a radar system across the top of the continent... as far north as it can be built. This will be designed to give us warning of any ENEMY planes coming across the Polar icecap.

At the United Nations, General Romulo of the Philippines called on the United States to make it clear that the international authority we have proposed to manage the peaceful development of atomic energy, be an agency of the United Nations..and not an American organization.

The American Federation of Labor today elected George Meany to his third term as president. And the convention denied Administration claims that the country is going through "its mildest post-war contraction". The union calls on the government to take steps to ~~spur~~ spur economic activity.

In Milford, Delaware, ten of eleven registered Negroes reported for class at the High School today.. but more than two-thirds of the school's 15-hundred white pupils stayed at home.

At sunset today Jewish people around the world marked Rosh Hashana.. the beginning of their High Holy Days. In this country the beginning of the Jewish new year also commemorates the 300th anniversary of the first Jewish settlement in the United States.

Edward R. Murrow: September 27, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

The Select Committee to study censure charges against Senator McCarthy has made its unanimous report. / Only three senators in the entire history of the Senate have been censured by their colleagues. / The Committee had little enough precedent to guide it. / The junior Senator from Wisconsin has not been censured by the Senate. What has happened is that a Select Committee has recommended that he should be censured on certain specific points. Whether you agree with the recommendation or not, it must be noted that the report is lucid, restrained and without ambiguity. Its language is both clear and vigorous.

A select committee is not the usual Senate committee where seniority rules. This one was carefully chosen - its members "selected" - meaning that each man was deemed to have special qualifications. Their task was to represent the entire Senate, without regard to the effect of their findings on the party in power, or the party seeking power. # Here is a summary of the charges considered by the Committee, and the findings reached by it.

It was charged that Senator McCarthy refused repeated invitations to appear before a Senate sub-committee; that he contemptuously refused to comply with its requests for information about some of his financial dealings. And that he ridiculed and defamed Senator Hendrikson in vulgar and base language, calling him "a living miracle without brains or guts."

The Committee concluded that Senator McCarthy's conduct toward the sub-committee and his statement about Senator Hendrikson was ~~XXXXXXXXX~~ contemptuous, contumacious and denunciatory without reason or justification. For this conduct it was recommended that he be censured by the Senate.

The second charge was that Senator McCarthy incited government workers to violate the law and executive orders by handing him secret government documents. ~~THE~~

The committee concluded that such action "tends to create a disruption of the orderly and constitutional functioning of the executive and legislative branches of the government, which tends to bring both into disrepute." "Such conduct cannot be condoned and is deemed improper." However, the committee gave Senator McCarthy the benefit of the doubt, and felt that this charge did not, under all the evidence, justify a resolution of censure.

The next charge had to do with the famous two-and-a-quarter-page F.B.I. letter which the Senator attempted to introduce in the Army-McCarthy hearings. That it was a spurious document, and that he was in possible violation of the espionage act. # The committee found that in offering to make public the contents of this classified document, Senator McCarthy "committed grave error." He manifested a high degree of irresponsibility. But the committee recognized that at the time Senator McCarthy was under the stress and strain of being tried or investigated, and under the circumstances it does not recommend censure by the Senate on this charge.

The next allegation against Senator McCarthy was that he had ridiculed his colleagues in the Senate, defaming them publicly in vulgar and base language. Specifically Senator Flanders, who had been called senile, and of whom Senator McCarthy had said, "they should get a man with a net and take him to a good quiet place". The Committee branded these remarks concerning Flanders as highly improper, but found that they were induced by Senator Flanders' conduct, and concluded that the remarks about Flanders do not constitute a basis for censure.

The final category of charges was whether Senator McCarthy should be censured for his treatment of General Zwicker. It was claimed that the Senator had impugned the loyalty, patriotism and character of the General, and that he resorted to abusive conduct in his interrogation of Zwicker. The Committee found that the conduct of the Senator toward the General was reprehensible; that he disclosed the proceedings of an executive session in violation of the rules of his own committee, and this was inexcusable. So the Committee recommends that for this conduct Senator McCarthy should be censured by the Senate.

The Committee dropped certain charges against Senator McCarthy, because it concluded that they were legally insufficient for Senate censure. But the report added: "We do not want to be understood as saying that this Committee approves of the conduct alleged."

The Select Committee also had something to say on the question of revising the rules for Senate committees. It proposes that, except in special circumstances, not less than two members of the committee be present to hear any witness; that witnesses are to be questioned only by committee members and authorized staff personnel; and no one shall be employed or assigned to an investigation until approved by the Committee. Testimony taken in executive sessions is not to be published in part or in summary, unless authorized by a majority vote of the Committee.

This was a bi-partisan select committee, three Republicans and three Democrats. The investigation was conducted in a judicial atmosphere. The Report was unanimous. In opening the hearings the Chairman, Senator Watkins, said: "We realize that the United States Senate in a sense is on trial, and we hope our conduct will be such as to maintain the American sense of fair play, and the high traditions and dignity of the United States Senate under the authority given it by the Constitution."

When the Senate reconvenes on November 8th, the entire body will decide whether or no the Select Committee has properly fulfilled that assignment. There is certain to be a lively debate, perhaps one of the most spectacular in the Senate's history.

Tonight Senators who are usually willing to utter at the drop of a question, are silent or equivocal; but their votes will have to be counted, if not before the election, then after it.

It would seem a number of Senator McCarthy's colleagues are putting into practice a bit of advice Plutarch once gave:"Silence at the proper season is wisdom, and better than any speech." But they must also be aware - as La Rochefoucauld was - that "there is an eloquent silence that serves sometimes to approve, sometimes to condemn; there is a mocking silence; there is a respectful silence."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
CBS RADIO NETWORK

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 27, 1954
7:45-8:00 P.M. E.S.T.

This is the news:

The Watkins Committee today unanimously recommended that the Senate censure Senator McCarthy. In examining the charges against him, the committee found definite reason for the Senate to censure McCarthy on some charges.. In other areas it felt there was not enough proof, or reason. In its long report, the Watkins committee found that in some of his actions McCarthy had been: contemptuous...contumacious...denunciatory...obstructive...intemperate...vulgar...insulting. For other McCarthy actions, the committee found a degree of justification. I'll try to summarize the report in a few minutes.

A Majority of the Senators contacted by reporters during the day have refused to express an opinion on the case they will debate after the election. Most of those available to reporters praise the Watkins committee...say they need time to study the report. A few...Republicans Welker of Idaho and Dirksen of Illinois either disagree with the charges or feel they are not sufficient reason for action. Democrat McCarran of Nevada says he'll vote against the report. And a few..Democrats Robertson of Virginia, and Hill of Alabama, say they will approve the report.

Senator McCarthy was at the Bethesda Naval Hospital today. The Chicago Tribune says it was told by the Senator that he doesn't care if he's censured or not..."But I will fight against establishing a precedent that will curb investigating powers and assist any administration in power to cover up its misdeeds."

In London today, Secretary of State Dulles warned French Premier Mendez-France that we will be forced to review our "forward" European defenses.. unless tomorrow's conference reaches an agreement on re-arming West Germany. And British Foreign Secretary Eden is said to have proposed that the allies speed up their timetable to get an agreement on freeing and re-arming the Germans.

Former Prime Minister Atlee told the British Labor Party that Formosa should be turned over to Communist China..that Generalissimo Chiang Kai Shek "has a case" on Formosa. He said that if the island is turned over to the Communists it would help "ease the fears" of both the United States and Red China. Atlee also wants the Chinese Communists admitted to the United Nations.

The Communist radio says Mao Tze-Tung has been re-elected by the so-called People's Congress as chairman of the so-called Republic. The vice chairman is a surprise. General Chuh Teh, the Red Army Commander. Chou En Lai remains an premier.

Again today, Nationalist planes and ships attacked the Communist-held mainland.

And in Japan from 16 to 18-hundred persons are reported dead as the result of a typhoon which sank a ferry off Northern Japan. Fifty-eight Americans are reported among the dead or missing. Most of the dead were aboard five ferry boats which capsized in 180-mile-an-hour winds, and high seas.

Admiral Radford, Chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, said today that Secretary of State Dulles' "massive retaliation" policy still stands." Radford said that in the event of an attack, "we do not depend exclusively upon any one weapon or any one service, nor do we anticipate one kind of war."

The United States and Canada today announced plans to build a radar system across the top of the continent as far north as it can be built. This will be designed to give us warning of any enemy planes coming across the Polar icecap.

At the United Nations, General Romulo of the Phillipines called on the United States to make it clear that the international authority we have proposed to manage the peaceful developement of atomic energy, be an agency of the United Nations,..not an American organization.

The American Federation of Labor today elected George Meany to his third term as president. And the convention denied Administration claims that the country is going through its mildest post-war contraction." The union calls on the government to take steps to spur economic activity.

In Milford, Delaware, ten of eleven registered Negroes reported for class at the High School today..but more than two thirds of the school's 15-hundred white pupils stayed at home.

At sunset today Jewish people around the world marked Rosh Hashana.. the beginning of their High Holy Days. In this country the beginning of the Jewish new year also commemorates the 300th anniversary of the first Jewish settlement in the United States.

The select committee to study censure charges against Senator McCarthy has made its unanimous report. Only three senators in the entire history of the Senate have been censured by their colleagues. The committee had little enough precedent to guide it. the junior Senator from Wisconsin has not been censured by the Senate. What has happened is that a Select Committee has recommended that he should be censured on certain specific points. Whether you agree with the recommendation or not, it must be noted that the report is lucid, restrained, and without ambiguity. Its language is both clear and vigorous.

A select committee is not the usual Senate committee where seniority rules. This one was carefully chosed - its members "selected" meaning that each man was deemed to have special qualifications. Their task was to represent the entire Senate, without regard to the effect of their findings on the party in power or the party seeking power.

Here is a summary of the charges considered by the Committee, and the findings reached by it.

It was charged that Senator McCarthy refused repeated invitations to appear before a Senate sub-committee; that he contemptuously refused to comply with its requests for information about some of his financial dealings. And that he ridiculed and defamed Senator Hendrikson in vulgar and base language, calling him a "living miracle without brains or guts."

The Committee concluded that Senator McCarthy's conduct toward the sub-committee and his statement about Senator Hendrikson was contemptuous contumacious, and denunciatory without reason or justification. For this conduct it was recommended that he be censured by the Senate.

The second charge was that Senator McCarthy incited government workers to violate the law and executive orders by handing him secret documents.

The committee concluded that such action "tends to create a disruption of the orderly and constitutional functioning of the executive and legislative branches of the government, which tends to bring both into dispepute." "Such conduct cannot be condoned and is deemed improper." However, the committee gave Senator McCarthy the benefit of the doubt, and felt that this charge did not, under all the evidence, justify a resolution of censure.

The next charge had to do with the famous two-and-a-quarter page F.B.I. letter which the Senator attempted to introduce in the Army-McCarthy hearings. That it was a spurious document, and that he was in possible violation of the espionage act.

The committee found, that in offering to make public the contents of this classified document, Senator McCarthy "committed grave error." He manifested a high degree of irresponsibility. But the committee recognized that at the time Senator McCarthy was under the stress ans strain of being tried or investigated, and under the circumstances it does not recommend censure by the Senate on this charge.

The next allegation against Senator McCarthy was that he had ridiculed his colleagues in the Senate, defaming them publicly in vulgar and base language. Specifically Senator Flander , who had been called senile, and of whom Senator McCarthy had said, "they should get a man with a net and take him to a good quiet place." The committee branded these remarks concerning Flanders as highly improper, but found that they were induced by Senator Flander's conduct, and concluded that the remarks about Flanders do not constitute a basis for censure.

The final category of charges was whether Senator McCarthy should be censured for his treatment of General Zwicker, It was claimed that the Senator had impugned the loyalty, patriotism and character of the General, and that he resorted to abusive conduct in his interrogation of Zwicker. The committee found that the conduct of the Senator toward the general was reprehensible; that he disclosed the proceedings of an executive session in violation of the rules of his own committee, and this was inexcusable. So the Committee recommends that for this conduct Senator McCarthy be censured by the Senate.

The committee dropped certain charges against Senator McCarthy, because it concluded they were legally insufficient for Senate censure. But the report added: "We do not want to be understood as saying that this Committee approves of the conduct alleged."

The Select Committee also had something to say on the question of revising the rules for Senate committees. It proposes that, except in special circumstances, not less than two members of the committee be present to hear any witness; that witnesses are to be questioned only by committee members and authorized staff personnel; and no one shall be employed or assigned to an investigation until approved by the Committee. Testimony taken in executive sessions is not to be published in part or in summary, unless authorized by a majority vote of the Committee.

This was a bi-partisan select committee, three Republicans and three Democrats. The investigation was conducted in a judicial atmosphere. The report was unanimous. In opening the hearings the Chairman, Senator Watkins, said: "We realize that the United States Senate in a sense is on trial, and we hope that our conduct will be such as to maintain the American sense of fair play, and the high tradition and dignity of the United States Senate under the authority given it by the Constitution."

When the Senate reconvenes on November 8th, the entire body will decide whether or not the Select Committee has properly fulfilled that assignment. There is certain to be a lively debate, perhaps one of the most spectacular in the Senate's history.

Tonight the Senators who are usually willing to utter at the drop of a question, are silent or equivocal; but their votes have to be counted, if not before the election, than after it.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a minute with the word for today. But first, Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: It would seem a number of Senator McCarthy's colleagues are putting into practice a bit of advice Plutarch once gave: "Silence at the proper season is wisdom, and better than any speech." But they must also be aware - as LaRoChefoucauld was - that "there is an eloquent silence that serves sometimes to approve, sometimes to condemn: there is a mocking silence; there is a respectful silence."

Good Night and Good Luck.

Tuesday, Sept. 28, 1954

This is the news:

The French have offered their plan to control the re-armament of West Germany. Premier Mendez-France has told the 9-power conference in London that an armaments authority should be set up to control both the production and supply of arms in West Germany, France, (Holland) Belgium Luxembourg and Italy. But West Germany's Chancellor Adenauer proposes that such controls be exercised by NATO..the North Atlantic Treaty Organization..with West Germany becoming a member of Nato. And the United States and Great Britain support the Adenauer plan. (I'd like to discuss the London meeting in a few minutes.)

The state department revealed today that for the past eight months we have held the former Number Two man in Communist Poland's security set-up. He's Josef Swee-ah-tlo.. who first sought political asylum of American authorities in West Berlin. Swiatlo was (IN WASHINGTON TODAY) permitted to say publicly that: resistance to Communist regimes is widespread throughout the Soviet satellites. But active revolt is almost impossible because "the Red Army is everywhere." This former top-ranking security officer also had some news on the mysterious disappearance five years ago of the American brothers, Noel and Herman Field, and Noel's wife.

He said Herman is in jail in Warsaw..Noel and his wife in prison in Hungary. And the State Department says it has asked Poland and Hungary to release the Fields' at the earliest possible date. Swaitlo says the Field brothers were accused by the Communists of spying for the United States. Both denied it. Swaitlo thinks they were Communist sympathizers... they had been helping Communist and non-Communist refugees escape from Czechoslovakia to the west. The former Polish security officer says the American brothers were used by the Communists in a purge trial in Hungary.

In this country, Army Chief of Staff RIDGWAY visited with the President in Denver and then told reporters again: that in an atomic war we would probably need more armed manpower than ever before. We would need enough men to replace entire units that might be wiped out.. and we would need more men because of the necessity of keeping our combat strength dispersed.

The President today denied reports that the Rural Electrification programs would be drastically cut next year. He said such statements, made by political opponents, ate "reckless and irresponsible."

And Mr. Eisenhower signed an order drastically increasing the punishment for members of the armed forces who are absent without leave.

Hereafter, more than 30 days of absence can result in dishonorable discharge and one year in prison. In the past these penalties could not be imposed BEFORE 60 days of unauthorized absence.

The International Monetary Fund--meeting in Washington--today voted to expel Czechoslovakia, the only Soviet satellite member. The Czechs are given until the end of the year to supply the economic data they have refused to produce on the grounds it might hurt their "national security."

And Treasury Secretary Humphrey told the monetary group that the free nations of the world must inspire confidence and be ready to pay "an attractive return" if they want to attract dollars for private investment.

Chairman Hall of the Republican National Committee said today that he thinks the McCarthy controversey will have no effect on the November elections. He said: "The American people are sick and tired of the whole situation." And Vice President Nixon said in Massachusetts that the Watkins committee which heard censure charges against McCarthy "conducted its hearings in a very admirable fashion." He said its report will carry "great weight" in the Senate.

The United States today promised "to do its share" in supporting a great majority of the French expeditionary force that is now in Indo-China.

General De Castries, the commander at Dien Bien Phu, said today that volunteer civilian American flyers who supplied his fortress from the air, enabled the French defenders to hold out an extra three weeks against Red attack.

At the United Nations, Thailand warned that the Chinese Communists are now preparing to infiltrate Thailand with subversive forces. The foreign minister predicted the Reds would come through ~~Indo-China~~ Viet Minh into his country.

When the World Series gets underway at the Polo Grounds tomorrow it will be Sal Maglie pitching for the Giants and Bob Lemmon for the Cleveland Indians.

Edward R. Murrow: September 28, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

The nine Foreign Ministers meeting in London - attempting to find some way of re-arming Germany that will be agreeable to all concerned - received an unexpected assist today from the British Labor Party meeting in Scarborough, in the north of England. Here is Howard K. Smith's record of what happened today:

TAPE: 3 min

(NOW BACK TO EM - NY)

The atmosphere in London at the end of the first day's meeting is one of cautious - very cautious optimism. The United States role in London follows a familiar pattern. We are urging all the European nations to agree on something. Mr. Dulles is not speaking openly of a revision of American policy in Europe; but that possibility is not absent from the minds of the statesmen in London. Mr. Dulles has given everyone to understand that the Europeans must work out their own plan. He is not trying to give orders as to what it should be, but he makes it clear that it must meet America's security needs. At the same time it has been made known in Washington - quietly but nevertheless publicly - that the Pentagon is preparing a plan under which the six divisions we now maintain in Germany could be withdrawn, and our defense of the Continent of Europe would be conducted from air and land installations on the fringes of the continent. This plan will be laid before the Security Council if the results achieved at London are not found to be adequate.

This is, in fact, the same threat or warning that has been used before, and without success. However, on this occasion the very real possibility that American troops might leave the Continent is contributing a note of urgency to the discussions in London. According to late despatches the outlook for the success of this conference is by no means hopeless; but the outlook has been good before and the problem has not changed. The closing of the gap between French and German views, a more complete association of Britain with the continental defense system has failed to happen before, and there is no assurance that it will happen now. Even if French Premier Mendes-France goes all the way to make agreement possible, there is no assurance that the French Assembly will support him. The French Premier has stated that if the Assembly refuses to approve whatever he signs in London, he will resign. And even his opponents in France, (excepting of course the Communists,) would agree that if he resigns, France will have rejected its last chance - at least for the time being - of a government of good sense, courage and realism. Mendes-France has presented a strong threat to the Assembly. He is a man prepared to gamble, but able to calculate his risks. The forces in France working against German re-armament are determined and desperate, and they may be willing to pay the price of domestic chaos to achieve their objective. It would be prudent to remember that whatever is agreed to in London will have to hurdle considerable obstacles in all of the capitals concerned. The narrowness of the vote favoring German re-armament at Scarborough today is eloquent indication of the division of opinion that exists in Britain.

Diplomatic negotiations...such as are going on in London...require both patience and perserverance. O. Byron Cooper once recalled " a noted specialist a long time ago said that his secret of success as a physician was keeping the patient's head cool and his feet warm. And it is just now becoming generally known that a hot head and cool feet are enough to bring disaster to even a well man."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

CBS RADIO DIVISION

EDWARD R. MURROW

Tuesday, Sep. 28, 1954
7:45-8:00 P.M.

MURROW: ... The nine foreign ministers meeting in London, attempting to find some way of rearming Germany, some way that will be agreeable to all concerned, received what might be called an unexpected assist today from the British Labor Party, meeting in Scarborough, in the north of England. Here is Howard K. Smith's record of what happened today.

SMITH: The Diplomats meeting in London got a valuable assist from this English seaside resort today. After a long, occasionally angry debate the British Labor Party in convention here voted for a resolution favoring a German contribution to Western defense and voted against an alternate resolution opposing German rearmament in any form. The Labor Party is the biggest political party in Western Europe. The Gallup Poll here in Britain says it can win an election and displace the Churchill Government, such is its strength at present. Wherefore those thruout Europe who seek to prevent German rearmament had hoped to see a bandwagon in that direction get started at Labor's convention here. Had the party voted to oppose German rearmament, the vote would no doubt have had great influence on the big Socialist parties and possibly other opposition parties in France and in Germany. Both Adenauer and Mendes-France might agree on some kind of treaty in London only to find opposition at home with an increased resolve not to ratify it, due to what the Labor party had done.

What gave drama to the vote here today was the fact that up until yesterday the general forecast was that Labor would vote against German rearmament. What changed the picture was that factor that figures occasionally in American political conventions: the smoke-filled room. Arthur Deacon (?), boss of the world's biggest union, the British Transport and General Workers, and a supporter of Attlee and of German rearmament, came out of just such a smoke-filled room the other nite and told us reporters, "We had a talk with the boys, and everything's going to be all right."

The "boys" were the British Woodworkers' Union, and their votes were just enough to turn the tide here today away from Aneurin Bevan, opponent of German rearmament, and to former Premier Attlee, the main supporter of German rearmament.

In the debate today, opponents of German rearmament made much of the fact that Left-wing opinion in Europe was allegedly on their side. Defending, Herbert Morrison, the deputy leader of the British Labor Party, said, no, Socialist opinion in Europe was not on their side. Tito of Yugoslavia, in particular, he said, had begged the Western nations to rearm the Germans.

When the votes on the main motion were counted today, the result was close as these votes go; for, for Attlee and German rearmament there were 3,270,000 votes, for Bevan's side, against German rearmament, were 3,022,000 votes. That is, out of more than six million votes cast, Attlee won by a majority of only 250,000. Both sides claimed a great moral triumph, but the right judgment was probably that of the uncommitted delegate here who said, "it's been a great day for Tito and for the Woodworkers' Union of Britain."

Back now to Ed Murrow in New York.

-30-

Ediphone trans./E. Scheiner

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
CBS RADIO NETWORK

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 28, 1954
7:45-8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

The French have offered their plan to control the re-armament of West Germay. Premier Mendez-France has told the 9-power conference in London that an armaments authority should be set up to control both the production and supply of arms in West Germany, France, Holland, Belgium, Luxembourg and Italy. But West Germany's Chancellor Adenauer proposes that such controls be exercised by NATO..the North Atlantic Treaty Organization..with West Germany becoming a member of Nato. And the United States and Great Britain support the Adenauer plan. I'd like to discuss the London meeting in a few minutes.

The state department revealed today that for the past eight months we have held the former Number Two Man in Communist Poland's security set-up. He's Joseph Swiatlo..who first sought political asylum of American authorities in West Berlin. In Washington today, Swiatlo was permitted to say publicly that: resistance to Communist regimes is widespread throughout the Soviet satellites. But active revolt is almost impossible because "the Red Army is everywhere," This former top-ranking security officer also had some news on the mysterious disappearance five years ago of the American brothers, Noel and Herman Field, and Noel's wife. He said Herman is in jail in Warsaw...Noel and his wife in prison in Hungary. And the State Department says it has asked Poland and Hungary to release the Fields at the earliest possible date. Swiatlo says the Field brothers were accused by the Communists of spying for the United States. Both denied it. Swiatlo thinks they were Communist sympathizers...they had been helping Communist and non-Communist refugees escape to the West. The former Polish security officer says the American brothers were used by the Communists in a purge trial in Hungary.

In this country, Army Chief of Staff Ridgeway visited with the President in Denver and then told reporters again: that in an atomic war we would need enough men to replace entire units that might be wiped out...and we would need more men because of the necessity of keeping our combat strength dispersed.

The President today denied reports that the Rural Electrification programs would be drastically cut next year. He said such statements, made by political opponents, are "reckless and irresponsible."

And Mr. Eisenhower signed an order drastically increasing the punishment for members of the armed forces who are absent without leave. Hereafter, more than 30 days of absence can result in dishonorable discharge, and one year in prison. In the past, these penalties could not be imposed before 60 days of unauthorized absence.

The International Monetary Fund -- meeting in Washington -- today voted to expel Czechoslovakia, the only Soviet Satellite member. The Czechs are given until the end of the year to supply the econimic data they have refused to produce on the grounds that it might hurt their "national security".

And Treasury Secretary Humphrey told the monetary group that the free nations of the world must inspire condidence and be ready to pay "an attractive return" if they want to attract dollars for private investment.

Chairman Hall of the Republican National Committee said today that he thinks the McCarthy controversy will have no effect on the November elections. He said: "The American People are sick and tired of the whole situation." And Vice President Nixon said in Massachusetts that the Watkins Committee which heard censure charges against McCarthy "conducted its hearings in a very admirable fashion." He said its report will carry "great weight" inthe Senate.

The United States today promised"to do its share" in supporting a great majority of the French expeditionary force that is now in Indo-China.

General De Castries, the commander at Dien Bien Phu, said today that volunteer civilian American flyers who supplied his fortress from the air, enabled the French defenders to hold out an extra three weeks against Red attack.

At the United Nations, Thailand warned that the Chinese Communists are now preparing to infiltrate Thailand with subversive forces. The foreign minister predicted the Reds would come through Viet Minh into his country.

When the World Series gets underway at the Polo Grounds tomorrow it will be Sal Maglie pitching for the Giants and Bob Lemmon for the Cleveland Indians.

The nine Foreign Ministers meeting in London - attempting to find some way of re-arming Germany that will be agreeable to all concerned - received an unexpected assist today from the British Labor Party meeting in Scarborough, in north England. Here is Howard K. Smith's record of what happened today:

SMITH: The diplomats meeting in London got a valuable assist from this English seaside resort today. After a long, occasionally angry debate the British Labor Party in convention here voted a resolution favoring a German contribution to Western defense and voted against an alternative resolution opposing German rearmament in any form. The Labor Party is the biggest political party in Western Europe. The Gallop Poll here in Britain says it can win an election and displace the Churchill Government, such is its strength at present. Wherefore those thruout Europe who seek to prevent German rearmament had hoped to see a bandwagon in that direction get started at Labor's convention here. Had the party voted to oppose German rearmament, the the vote would no doubt have had great influence on the big socialist parties and possibly other oppositoon parties in France and Germany.

Both Adenauer and Mendes-France might agree on some kind of treaty in London only to find opposition at home with an increased resolve not to ratify it, due to what the Labor party had done.

What gave drama to the vote here today was the fact that up until yesterday the general forecast was that Labor would vote against German rearmament. What changed the picture was that factor that figures occasionally in American political conventions: the smoke-filled room. Arthur Deacon, boss of the world's biggest union, the British Transport and General Workers, and a supporter of Attlee and of German rearmament, came out of just such a smoke-filled room the other nite and told us reporters, "We had a talk with the boys, and everything's going to be all right." The "boys" were the British Woodworkers Union, and their votes were just enough to turn the tide here today away from Anurian Bevan, opponent of German rearmament, and to former Premier Attlee, the main supporter of German rearmament.

In the debate today, opponents of German rearmament made much of the fact that Left-Wing opinion in Europe was allegedly on their side. Defending, Herbert Morrison, the deputy leader of the British Labor Party, said, no, Socialist opinion in Europe was not on their side. Tito of Yugoslavia, in particular, he said, had begged the Western nations to rearm the Germans.

When the votes of the main motion were counted today, the result was close as these votes go; for, for Attlee and German rearmament there were 3,270,000 votes; for Bevan's side, against German rearmament were 3,002,000 votes. That is, out of more than six million votes cast, Attlee won by a majority of only 250,000. Both sides claimed a great moral triumph, but the right judgement was probably that of the uncommitted delegate here who said, "it's been a great day for Tito and for the Woodworker's Union of Britain."

And now, Back to Ed Murrow in New York.

MURROW: The atmosphere in London at the end of the first day's meeting is one of cautious - very cautious optimism. The United States role in London follows a familiar pattern. We are urging all European nations to agree on something. Mr. Dulles is not speaking openly ov a revision of American policy in Europe; but that possibility is not absent from the minds of statesmen in London. Mr. Dulles has given everyone to understand that Europeans must work out their own plan. He is not trying to give orders as to what it should be, but he makes it clear that it must meet America's security needs. At the same time it has been made known in Washington - quietly but nevertheless publicly - that the Pentagon is preparing a plan under which the six divisions we now maintain in Germany could be withdrawn, and our defense in the continent of Europe would be conducted from air and land installations on the fringes of the continent. This plan will be laid before the security council if the results achieved at London are not found to be adequate.

This is, in fact. the same threat or warning that has been used before, and without success. However, on this occasion the very real possibility that American troops might leave the continent is contributing a note of urgency to the discussions in London. According to late dispatches the outlook has been good before and the problem has not changed. The closing of the gap between French and German views, a more complete association of Britain and the Continental defense system has failed to happen before and there is no assurance that it will happen now. Even if French Premier Mendes-France goes all the way to make agreement possible, there is no assurance that the French Assembly will support him. The French Premier has stated that if the Assembly refused to approve whatever he signs in London, he will resign. And even his opponents in France, excepting of course, the Communists would agree that if he resigns, France will have rejected its last chance - at least for the time being - of a government of good sense, courage and realism. Mendes-France has presented a strong threat to the Assembly. He is a man prepared to gamble, but able to calculate his risks. The forces in France working against German re-armament are determined and desperate, and they may be willing to pay the price of domestic chaos to achieve their objective. It would be prudent to remember that whatever is agreed to in London will have to hurdle considerable obstacles in all of the capitals concerned. The narrowness of the vote favoring German re-armament at Scarborough today is eloquent indication of the division of opinion that exists in Britain.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a moment with the Word for Today. But first, Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: Diplomatic negotiations..such as are going on in London..require both patience and perseverance. O. Byron Cooper once recalled " a noted specialist a long time ago said that his secret of success as a physician was keeping the patient's head cool and his feet warm. And it is just now becoming generally known that a hot head and cool feet are enough to bring disaster even to a well man."

Good Night and Good Luck.

Wed Sept 29 1954

This is the news:

Secretary of State Dulles today told our allies in Europe: "unless you can agree on a defense plan, you risk losing the continued presence of American troops on the Continent." Mr. Dulles made it clear to the other eight foreign ministers, that this could be their last chance to keep us committed to retain troops in West Europe. In a few minutes's I'd like to read to you the Secretary's own report on what he said..and the reaction he observed in the conference room.

British Foreign Secretary Eden, followed Mr. Dulles' speech, and pledged that his country will keep four divisions, and a tactical air force on the continent "indefinitely." Mr. Eden said the British would not withdraw their troops without the consent of the members of the Brussels agreement. ~~[illegible]~~ Eden called this "a very formidable step for Britain." And West Germany's Chancellor Adenauer called the offer "historic." He said the British had not taken such a stand for 200 years. Adenauer told reporters considerable progress was made at today's meeting. He is confident the foreign ministers will reach a satisfactory agreement on soverignty and re-arming West Germany. And French Premier Mendez-France said of the Dulles and Eden statements: "What we have heard represents a powerful contribution to the success of this conference and it deserves the gratitude of all of us." Mendez-France has been insisting that both the United States and Great Britain pledge to continue keeping their troops in West Europe.

[redacted]

In Trieste today, allied military government officials told reporters they expect an announcement within a fewdays on a settlement of the long Yugoslav-Italian dispute over Trieste. They say only a few technicalities remain to be settled.

Dispatches from Formosa reported today that Nationalist defenders of a small island group 120 miles northwest of Formosa have driven off what appeared to be an "invasion flotilla of several score Chinese Communist junks."

And in Korea, President Syngman Rhee charged that the U[redacted]

United States is "collapsing the front" with "no plans for filling the gaps" by withdrawing most of the American troops from Korea. Rhee said this pull-out will "lead to another Communist attack on South Korea as in 1950."

The United States today gave the United Nations Korean Reconstruction Agency a check for almost 10 and a half million dollars. This brings to 84-million the funds we have contributed to Korean Reconstruction [redacted]

General Van Fleet, the retired former commander of the 8th army in Korea, told a Senate committee today that the Chinese Communists must have had some assurance that we would not attack Red China. Van Fleet said otherwise the Chinese would not have entered the Korean war. [redacted] He guesses that the Communists might have secured the information "through some embassy source in Peiping."

Japanese Premier Yoshida passing through New York today to catch a ship to Europe, told reporters Red China's proposals for more trade with Japan are propaganda. And he doesn't put much stock in Russia's recent friendly overtures toward Japan.

~~The United States and France have agreed on future policy in China. The French will make a gradual withdrawal of their forces in Viet Nam. And we will consider the question of financial assistance for the French forces in addition to support for the forces of Viet Nam, Cambodia and Laos.~~

The summer White House at Denver today made public a brief statement on the President's health. A recent check-up showed that "all observations indicate that the President is maintaining an excellent state of health." In a special message to the nation's newspapers the President said today: "No institution is more necessary to our way of life than a free press." And the President was informed that almost all of the nation's railroads have agreed to a temporary 50 per cent cut in their frieght rates on the shipment of hay into 15 states hit by the drought.

Army Secretary Stevens, in Washington, disclosed today that the army plans to build up its combat divisions from 19 to 24 in the next two years. This will be done without increasing manpower. As a matter of fact..says Stevens..the army will continue to trim its overall manpower. The five new divisions will be created by converting five present training divisions..and by increased efficiency. The new divisions will not be up to full strength. Stevens also announced that in the future the Army will rotate men overseas on a unit basis rather than as individuals. [redacted]

Chairman Jenner of the Senate Rules Committee said today he is going to review certain phases of the Watkins' Committee inquiry into Senator McCarthy's conduct. Jenner, a friend of McCarthy's, says he wants to question Watkins on why..at one point in the hearing..Watkins "conducted a one-man hearing." This refers to the occassion when Watkins heard testimony, alone, from the Senate parliamentarian. Senator Watkins had no comment on the Jenner statement. Democratic Senator Fulbright, one of the three Senators who filed censure charges against McCarthy, said today he thinks the full Senate will approve the Watkins report. He said the Senate rarely refuses to support a committee which returns a unanimous report.

Veteran Democratic Senator Pat McCarran of Nevada died in Reno last night. He was 78. The President has sent a message of deepest sympathy to Mrs. McCarran.

~~Vice President Nixon said in Troy, New York today, that Adali Stevenson, Democratic Chairman Mitchell and Senator Morse of Oregon "are three men on a horse riding backwards." He said all three are united in their dedication to the philosophy of A.D.A.. Americans for Democratic Action.~~

Here in New York today the Giants won the first game of the World Series beating Cleveland, 5 to two. Dusty Rhodes of the Giants, a pinch-hitter, homered in the 10th inning with two men on base. It was the fourth pinch-hit home run in world series history. Tomorrow at the Polo Grounds, Early Wynn will pitch for Cleveland..and Johnny Antonelli, for the Giants.

Edward R. Murrow: September 29, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

My colleague Richard C. Hottelet, who is now covering the nine-power conference in London, tells us that at this afternoon's session of the conference, Secretary of State John Foster Dulles made a statement of the American position which was received at the time as an almost historic decision, and one which may well decide the outcome of the conference. # Rather than describe what was in that statement himself, Hottelet asked Secretary Dulles to give an account of it himself. This is what he said:

"I had the feeling this afternoon that it was a rather momentous occasion. We had reached the point, in our discussions, where we had been through with a lot of detail and the final point came: What would the United States do in relation to the program which was being discussed for Europe. I took that occasion to portray what I felt was the American position, the united American position, with reference to this matter, which was that as long as Europe was really itself working together, co-operating, and creating a unity in facing a decision which has so long plagued the Western world, that we were prepared to help. On the other hand, if they turned their back upon that and started again going their separate ways, starting again these cycles which have over the last century led to recurrent wars, then they could not expect continuing United States help. I said that if they could build, on the basis of the North Atlantic Treaty and of the Brussels treaties, a real unity, then I believed that the United States would continue to keep its forces in Europe as a symbol of our willingness to join with them in the defense of a united Europe. On the contrary, if they went the other way, then they could not expect a continuation of such help as they have been receiving over recent years. And I referred to the fact that the European Recovery Plan, the so-called Marshall Plan, had been based on the theory that it was to help unify Europe. The North Atlantic Treaty had been based on that premise, and also the military assistance which we have been giving, and if they expected a continuation of aid of that sort, and the presence of American troops in Europe, it was essential that they should do their part in really creating a unity in Europe. Without that, it would be inevitable that we would have to look in another direction."

Hottelet then asked Secretary Dulles what was the effect of his warning on the other Foreign Ministers present at the conference, and Mr. Dulles replied:

"Well, following my statement, there was a very important statement made by Mr. Eden, the British Foreign Secretary. He said that if the Continental countries really worked together to create unity, in accordance with the plans that we're working on here, that then the United Kingdom would be prepared to commit four divisions and tactical aircraft permanently to Europe, the continent of Europe, and would put them at the disposal of the Brussels Council and not take them out except with the consent of that council. That is a commitment of a British force to the Continent of Europe, which has a historic significance which has not been equalled for a long, long time - for a hundred years. And that follow-up of my statement gave an impact to the conference as a whole which, I think, will have an effect - certainly it should have an effect. The immediate response from the other seven Foreign Ministers was one of an expression of appreciation of our attitude, and of a desire to meet the conditions which would make it possible for them to have the help and backing from the United States and the United Kingdom, which they could not get if they go the way of disunity."

Hottelet then remarked to Secretary Dulles that two of the open questions in the organization of Western defense have been doubt as to America's position after E.D.C. failed, and should a new attempt at organization fail, and also a desire to commit Britain as closely to European defense as possible. These two steps having been taken this afternoon, what will be the effect on the conference? And Mr. Dulles replied:

"I would not want to make any prediction as to the effect on the conference other than to say that the conference is confronted with an XXXX historic decision: Either they go one way or they go the other. It's no longer possible, in my opinion, to vacillate as has been the case for so long. There must be a final decision. I hope and believe that the decision will be in favor of the unity of Europe, which is so vital to the United States itself. But that remains to be seen as we go ahead with the conference tomorrow and the day after."

Secretary of State Dulles has made it rather apparent that the time is near at hand when those attending the London conference must face facts and make some definite decisions. It is probably true, as La Rochefoucauld said that "our actions are like rhymes to which anyone can fit such lines as he chooses." But Thomas Fuller noted:"Brave actions never want a trumpet."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

EDWARD R, MURROW WITH THE NEWS
CBS RADIO NETWORK

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 29, 1954
7:45-8:00 P.M. E.S.T.

This is the news:

Secretary of State Dulles told our allies in Europe : unless you can agree on a defense plan you risk losing the continued presence of American troops on the Continent." Mr. Dulles made it clear to the other eight foreign mimisters that this could be their last chance to keep us committed to retain troops in West Europe. On a few minutes I'd like to read you the Secretary's own report on what he said..and the reaction he observed in the conference room.

British Foreign Secretary Eden, followed Mr. Dulles's speech, and pledged that his country will keep four divisions and a tactical air force on the continent "indefinitely". Mr. Eden said the British would not withdraw their troops without the consent of the members of the Brussels agreement. Eden called this "a very formidable step for Britain." And West Germany's Chancellor Adenauer called the offer "historic." He said the British had not taken such a stand for 200 years. Adenauer told reporters considerable progress was made at today's meeting. He is confident the foreign ministers will reach a satisfactory agreement in soverignty and re-arming West Germant, And French Premier Mendes-France said of the Dulles and Eden statements: "What we have heard represents a powerful contribution to the success of this conference and it deserves the gratitude of us all." Mendes-France has been insisting that both the United States and Great Britain pledge to continue keeping their troops in West Europe.

In Trieste today, allied military government officials told reporters they expect an announcement within a few days on a settlement of the long Yugoslav-Italian dispute over Trieste. They say only a few technicalities remain to be settled.

Dispatches from Formosa reported today that Nationalist defenders of a small island group 120 miles northwest of Formosa have driven off what appeared to be an "invasion flotilla of several score Chinese Communist junks."

And in Korea, President Syngman Rhee charged that the United States is "collapsing the front" with "no plans for filling the gaps" by withdrawing most of the American troops from Korea. Rhee said this pull-out will "lead to another Communist attack on South Krrea as in 1950.

The United States today gave the United Nations Korean Reconstruction Agency a check for almost ten and a half million dollars. This brings to 84-million the funds we have contributed to Kroean reconstruction.

General Van Fleet, the retired former commander of the 8th Army in Korea, told a Senate committee today that the Chinese Communists must have had some assurance that we would not attack Red China. Van Fleet said otherwise the Chinese would not have entered the Korean war. He guesses that the Communists might have secured the information "through some embassy in Peiping."

Japanese Premier Yoshida passing through New York today to catch a ship to Europe, told reporters Red China's proposals for more trade with Japan are propaganda. And he doesn't put much stock in Russia's friendly overtures toward Japan.

The summer White House at Denver today made public a brief statement on the President's health. A recent check-up showed that "all observations indicate that the President is maintaining an excellent state of health." In a special message to the nation's newspapers the President said today:

"No institution is more necessary to our way of life than a free press." And the President was informed that almost all of the nation's railroads have agreed to a temporary 50 per cent cut in freight rates on the shipment of hay into 15 states hit by the drought.

Army Secretary Stevens, in Washington, disclosed today that the army plans to build up its combat divisions from 19 to 24 in the next two years. This will be done without increasing manpower. As a matter of fact.. says Stevens...the army will continue to trim its overall manpower. The five new divisions will be created by converting five present training divisions ..and by increased efficiency. The new divisions will not be up to full strength. Stevens also announced that in the future the Army will rotate men overseas on a unit basis rather than as individuals.

Chairman Jenner of the Senate Rules Committee said today he is going to review certain phases of the Watkins Committee inquiry into Senator McCarthy's conduct. Jenner, a friend of McCarthy's, says he wants to question Watkins on why..at one point in the hearings..Watkins "conducted a one-man hearing" This refers to the occasion when Watkins heard testimony-alone- from the Senate parliamentarian. Senator Watkins had no comment on the Jenner statement. Democratic Senator Fulbright, one of the three Senators who filed censure charges against McCarthy, said today he thinks a full Senate will approve the Watkins report. He said the Senate rarely refuses to support a committee which returns a unanimous report.

Veteran Democratic Senator Pat McCarran of Nevada died in Reno last night. He was 78. The President has sent a message of deepest sympathy to Mrs. McCarran.

Here in New York today the Giants won the first game of the World Series by beating Cleveland five to two. Dusty Rhodes of the Giants, a pinch hitter, hammered on the 10th inning with two men on base. It was the fourth pinch-hit home run in world series history. Tomorrow at the Polo Grounds, Early Wynn will pitch for Cleveland..and Johnny Antonelli, for the Giants.

My colleague, Richard C. Hottelet, who is now covering the nine power conference in London, tells us that at thos afternoon's session of the conference, Secretary of State John Foster Dulles made a statement of the American position which was received at the time as an almost historic decision, and one which may well decide the outcome of the conference.

Rather than describe what was in the statement himself, Hottelet asked Secretary Dulles to give an account of it himself. This is what he said."

"I had the feeling this afternoon that it was a rather momentous occasion. We reached the point, in our discussions, where we had been throgh with a lot of detail and the final point came: What would the United States do in relation to the program which was being discussed for Europe. I took that occasion to portray what I felt was the American position, the united American position, with reference to this matter, which was, that as long as Europe was really itself working together, co-operating, and creating a unity if facing a decision which as so long plagued the Western world, that we are prepared to help. On the other hand, if they turned their back upon that and started again going their separate ways, starting again these cycles which have over the last century led to recurrent wars, then they could not expect continuing United States help. I said that if they could build, on the basis of the North Atlantic Treaty, and of the Brussels treaties, a real unity, then I believe that the United States would continue to keep its forces in Europe as a symbol of our willingness to join with them in the defense of a United Europe. On the contrary, if they went the other way, then they could not expect a continuation of such help as they have been receiving over recent years. And I referred to the fact that the European Recovery Plan, the so-called Marshall Plan, had been based on the theory that it was to help unify Europe. The North Atlantic Treaty had been based on that premise, and also the military assistance which we have been giving, and if they expected a continuation of aid of that sort, and the presence of American troops in Europe, it was essential that they should do their part in really creating a unity in Europe. Without that, it would be inevitable that we would have to look in another direction. "

Hottelet then asked Secretary Dulles what was the effect of his warning on the other Foreign Ministers present at the conference and Mr. Dulles replied:

"Well, following my statement, there was a very important statement made my Mr. Eden, the British Foreign Secretary. He said that if the Continental countries really worked together to create unity, in accordance with the plans that we're working on here, that then the United Kingdom would be prepared to commit four divisions and tactical aircraft permanently to Europe, the continent of Europe, and would put them at the disposal of the Brussels Council and not take them out accept with the consent of that council. That is a commitment of British force to the continent of Europe, which has a historic significance which has not been equalled for a long, long time - for a hundred years. And that follow-up of my statement gave an impact gave an impact to the conference as a whole which, I think, will have an effect - certainly should have an effect. The immediate response from the other seven foreign ministers was one of an expression of appreciation of our attitude, and of a desire to meet the conditions which would make it possible for them to have the help and backing from the United States and the United Kingdom, which they could not get if they go the way of disunity."

Hottelet then remarked to Secretary Dulles that two of the open questions in the organization of Western defense have been doubt as to America's position after E.D.C. failed, and should a new attempt at organization fail, and also a desire to commit Britain as closely to European defense as possible. These two steps having been taken this afternoon, what will be the effect on the conference? And Mr. Dulles replied:

"I would not want to make any prediction as to the effect on the conference other than to say that the conference is confronted with an historic decision: Either they go one way or they go the other. It's no longer possible, in my opinion, to vacillate as has been the case for so long. There must be a final decision. I hope and believe that the decision will be infavor of the unity of Europe, which is so vital to the United States itself. But that remains to be seen as we go ahead with the conference tomorrow and the day after."

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a moment with the Word for the Day. But first, Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: Secretary of State Dulles has made it rather apparent that the time is near at hand when those attending the London conference must face facts and make some definite decisions. It is probably true, as LaRochefoucauld said that "our actions are like our rhymes, to which anyone can fit such lines as he chooses." But Thomas Fuller noted: "Brave actions never want a trumpet."

Good Night and Good Luck.

Thursday Sept. 30, 1954.

This is the news:

Russia today offered the United Nations a new [redacted] and complicated disarmament plan. Among other things, it calls for a 50 per cent cut in armaments, and eventual prohibition of nuclear weapons. Ambassador Lodge told reporters: we will consider the proposal objectively "and with the sincere hope, that it will prove to be a real step toward a comprehensive, effective and workable disarmament." But, said Lodge, the test of good faith is still to come. Earlier, in his long speech, Vishinsky stressed the Soviet Union's desire for peaceful co-existence with the western world. He said: Russia is convinced "that all possibilitie are at hand, for reaching agreement on unsettled questions" if mutual soverignty, mutual respect and fullfillment of obligations are recognized. He said: the prospects for settling international questions are "indeed real and tangible."

In London today, the 9 western foreign ministers moved closer to their goal of bringing West Germany into the western defense plan. The allies have agreed on how they want to modify the Brussels treaty to admit both West Germany and Italy. A British spokesman says this means the London conference is "over the hump." And American officials who have been most cautious, agree with that.

In Rome, Italian Premier SCELBA'S [redacted] government today won a vote of confidence on the Wilma Montesi scandal. Premier Scleba accused the Communists of trying to overthrow the constitution with false claims of corruption in the Montesi case.

Pope Pius today urged that "every means" be sought by international agreements to prevent atomic war..except for "the strict demands of defense."

And at Groton, Connecticut, the world's first atomic submarine officially joined the Navy. The U.S.S. Nautilus was turned over by its builders the Electric Boat Co. Its expected that it will take a month or more before the Nautilus can make her first trial run. At today's ceremonies, Admiral Wright, commander of the Atlantic fleet issued a statement calling the atomic-powered submarine "an instrument of war.. a killer submarine with the primary task of whittling down the submarine menace."

At Fort Monmouth, Assistant Defense Secretary Quarles said that disloyalty among our militray scientists and [redacted] engineers "has been the rare exception, but unfair publicity about the exceptions has damaged all

And former Air Force Secretary Finletter in a new book published today called on the government to push for an enforced system of disarmament lest new weapons "destroy the United States." In his book, "Power and Policy", Finletter says:"Applied science for destruction is wholly out of hand; it is like a wild tiger running about the city streets."

The Washington Evening Post reports today that the Administration has ordered an investigation of the conduct of all government workers. The order issued by the Budget Director Hughes wants the detection of and prevention of "acts of impropriety, unethical conduct and other activities short of criminal violation." The Star says some federal officials are criticizng the order as creating "a snooping, gestapo-like set-up"..broad enough to permit investigation of an employe's private life.

Labor Secretary Mitchell acknowledged today that he has had some differences over policy with Commerce Secretary Weeks. Mitchell says he is a member of the President's team and can take care of himself...but he would be disturbed "if Commerce Department opinions on labor-relations-matters gained ascendency." Among his disagreements with Weeks, Mitchell cited the Commerce Department's desire to apply the antri-trust law to Unions..which are now exempt. Secretary Weeks has issued a statement saying his views and Mitchell's don't always coincide but they're both working together to advance the President's program.

The Justice Department today told Bethlehem Steel and Youngstown Sheet and Tube..the nation's second and sixth largest steel companies..that their proposed merger would violate the antitrust laws. Attorney General Brownell says there is at present "a substantial amount of competition" between the two companies in a number of products. Officials of Bethlehem say the merger would benefit the nation, the industry and stockholders. Yongstown officials are disappointed. They feel the merger would have increased competition.

Treasury Undersecretary Folsom said today: further tax cuts would be "unwise and irresponsible" until the Administration can reduce federal spending.

Senator McCarthy served official notice today that he will defend himself against the Watkins Committee's censure charges on the Senate floor.

In Milford, Delaware, a newly-elected Board of Education voted to remove 11 Negro students from the rolls of the formerly all-white Milford High School. The Board has decided to send the Negro students back to a Negro school "in the interest of the welfare of the children and the community as a whole." There has been a good deal of racial feeling in the community since Negroes were admitted to the all-white school.

And an examiner for the Interstate Commerce Commission ruled today that there is no federal law or constitutional provision which prohibits "reasonable segregation" of white and negro passengers traveling in interstate commerce.

Edward R. Murrow: September 30, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

The figures say that there were forty-nine thousand and ninety-nine people at the Polo Grounds this afternoon, when the New York Giants won the second game of the World Series from Cleveland, three to one. This reporter does not contest the score or the paid attendance, but if Miss Tallulah Bankhead is counted as only one, then it wasn't an honest count. Miss Bankhead is a powerful partisan, both with the vocal chords and the left elbow. And this reporter occupied the hazardous position to her left.

This is not a situation where careful contemplation of the national pastime is possible, or indeed permissible; so I shall merely try to tell you what happened.

A young man named Smith, wearing an Indian uniform, stood up there and hit Mr. Antonelli's first pitch somewhere up near the left field roof, for a home run. The crowd made appropriate noises. Miss Bankhead said: "I didn't see it". She seemed to think that made it illegal It was explained that the ball was out of the park and must be scored as a home run. To which she replied: "So what - there was nobody on base, was there?"

Then for a few innings it was what the sports writers call a pitchers' duel between New York's Johnny Antonelli and Cleveland's Early Wynn. Then up came Dusty Rhodes, who won the first game with a tenth inning homer, and he tied the score with a bloop single to center. Miss Bankhead announced that he, too, came from Alabama. / James A. Farley came over to ask if Miss Bankhead had actually switched her allegiance and was rooting for Cleveland, and was rewarded with a gentle though carefully placed kick. Somewhere about this time Willy Mays swung at three pitched balls, and then returned to his seat. Miss Bankhead insisted that he had all the rhythm of a ballet dancer, and she talked AT him as though he were a pair of dice.

Then along came the seventh inning, and up came Dusty Rhodes again - he was still from Alabama - and banged a home run to right. / At this point a vendor came around selling souvenirs - little fake silver loving cups. Miss Bankhead purchased nine, and then asked for a tenth. When I asked why she needed the tenth, she said maybe the Giants would use another pinch-hitter, and she wanted to be safe.

During these innings, Miss Bankhead was wrestling with a varied assortment of lucky pennies, mustard seeds encased in glass, and various other good luck charms. She was heard to complain of callouses on her fingers from squeezing the good luck pennies. At one point - I think it was just before Rhodes' homer, although I can't be sure, since things were a little confused - she asked an attendant for two pills. The attendant asked: "What kind?", and she responded: "Any kind".

Finally came the ninth inning. The score was three to one. Mr. Johnny Antonelli appeared to be tired. Miss Bankhead appeared ready to replace him at any time. She besought Willy to deal with every ball struck, whether it be out of [redacted] play, behind the batter and over the stands, or elsewhere. In this final inning Al Smith, who had hit that first ball, first inning homer, singled; Bobby Avila did the same; and Cleveland had two men on and no one out. Then the 24-year-old Antonelli threw three straight strikes past Larry Dobey. But Smith went to third, as the Giants missed what could have been a double play. It was close. Miss Bankhead gave it as her opinion that the man at first should have been out, the double play completed. She contended that the umpire was too far away from the play to call it properly. He was about three feet away - Miss Bankhead about seventy.

Then with men on first and third, and two out, up came Vic Wertz of the Indians, the leading hitter in the Series. At this point Miss Bankhead forebore to look - the strain was too great. She mumbled, and wrestled with those lucky coins and tokens, and asked an English friend in her cast of "Dear Charles" to tell her what happened on each pitch. Mr. Wertz continued to foul them off; Miss Bankhead continued not to look; but there developed a certain strain in Anglo-American relations, since Miss Bankhead was not altogether satisfied with the play-by-play account, insisting that she wanted to know the direction in which the ball had been struck.

Finally Mr. Wertz leaned in to one - a long, towering fly which was gathered in near the wall by Mr. Dusty Rhodes. The game was over. Miss Bankhead announced that the score in the Series now stood two to nothing in favor of Alabama - that she wouldn't have any voice for tonight's performance - and would we care to go to Monday's game at the Polo Grounds, although she thinks the Giants will clinch it in the next two in Cleveland. Given the week-end to recuperate, attendance at Monday's game might be possible.

This bit of advice might apply to Miss Tallulah Bankhead and others like her who are suffering through the Series. Its from Alexander Pope and Disraeli: "Blessed is he who expects nothing, for he shall never be disappointed...what we anticipate seldom occurs and what we least expect generally happens." We might add: Even in Alabama!

Good Nite and Good Luck!

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
CBS RADIO NETWORK

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 30, 1954
7:45-8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

Russia today offered the United States a new and complicated disarmament plan. Among other things it calls for a 50% cut in armaments and eventual prohibituon of nuclear weapons. Ambassador Lodge told reporters: We will consider the proposal objectively "and with the sincere hope that it will prove to be a real step toward a comprehensive, effective and workable armament." But, said Lodge, the test of good faith is still to come. Earlier, in his long speech, Vishinsky stressed the Soviet Union's desire for peaceful co-existence in the western world. He said: "Russia is convinced" that all possibilities are at hand for reaching agreement on unsettled questions" if mutual soverignty, mutual respect and fullfillment of obligations are recognized. He said: the prospects for settling international questions are "indeed real and tangible."

In London today, the 9 western foreign ministers moved closer to their goal of bringing West Germany into the western defense plan. The allies have agreed on how they want to modify the Brussels treaty to admit both Western Germany and Italy. A British spokesman says this means the London conference is "over the hump." And American officials who have been most cautious, agree with that.

In Rome, Italian Premier Scelba's government today won a vote of confidence on the William Montesi scandal. Premier Scelba accused the Communists of trying to overthrow the constitution with false claims of corruption in the Mostesi case.

Pope Pius today urged that "every means" be sought by international agreements to prevent atomic war...except for "the strict demands of defense"

And at Groton, Connecticut, the world's first atomic submarine officially joined the Navy. The U.S. S. Nautilus was turned over by its builders, the Electric Boat Company. Its expected that it will take a month or more before the Nautilus can make her first trial run. At today's ceremonies, Admiral Wright, commander of the Atlantic fleet, issued a statement calling the atomic-powered submarine "an instrument of war..a killer submarine with the primary task of whittling down the submarine menace."

At Fort Monmouth, Assistant Defense Secretary Quarles said that disloyalty among our military scientists and engineers "has been the rare exception, but unfair publicity about exceptions has damaged all."

And former Air Force Secretary Finletter in a new book published today called on the government to push an enforced system of disarmament lest new weapons "destroy the United States." In his book, "Power and Policy", Finletter says: "Applied science for destruction is wholly out of hand; it is like a wild tiger running about the city streets."

The Washington Evening Post reports today that the Administration has ordered an investigation of the conduct of all government workers. The order issued by Budget Director Hughes wants the detection of and prevention of "acts of impropriety, unethical conduct and other activities short of criminal violation." The Star says some federal officials are criticizing the order as creating "a snooping, gestapo-like set-up"..broad enough to permit investigation of an investigation of an employee's private life.

Labor Secretary Mitchell acknowledged today that he has had some differences over policy with Commerce Secretary Weeks. Mitchell says he is a member of the President's team and can take care of himself..but he would be disturbed "if Commerce Department opinions on labor-relations-matters gained ascendency." Among his disagreements with Weeks, Mitchell cited the Commerce Department's desire to apply the anti-trust law to Unions..which are now exempt. Secretary Weeks has issued a statement saying his views and Mitchell's don't always coincide byt they're both working together to advance the President's program.

The Justice Department today told Bethlehem Steel and Youngstown Sheet and Tube ..the nation's second and sixth largest steel companies .. that their porposed merger would violate the antitrust laws. Attorney General Brownell says there is at present "a substantial amount of competition" between the two companies in a number of products. Officials of Bethlehem say the merger would benefit the nation, the industry and stockholders. Youngstown officials are disappointed. They feel the merger would have increased competition.

Treasury Undersecretary Folsom said today: further tax cuts would be "unwise and irresponsible", until the Administration can reduce federal spending.

Senator McCarthy served official notice today that he will defend himself against the Watkins Cimmittee's censure charges on the Senate floor.

In Milford, Delaware, a newly-elected Board of Education voted to remove 11 Negroe students from the rolls of the formerly all-w ite Milford High School.

And an examiner if the Interstate Commerce Commission ruled today that there is no federal law or constitutional provision which prohibits "reasonable segregation" of white and negroe passangers travelling in interstate commerce.

The figures say that there were forty-nine thousand and ninety-nine people at the Polo Grounds this afternoon, when the New York Giants won the second game of the World Series from Cleveland, three to one. This reporter does not contest the score of the paid attendance, but if Miss Tallulah Bankhead is counted as only one, then it wasn't an honest count. Miss Bankhead is a powerful partisan, both with the vocal cords and the left elbow. And this reporter occupied the hazardous position to her left.

This is not a situation where careful contemplation of the national pastime is possible, or indeed permissable; so I shall merely try to tell you what happened.

A young man named Smith, wearing an Indian uniform, stood up there and hit Mr. Antonelli's first pitch somewhere near the left field roof, for a home run. The croud made appropriate noises. Miss Bankhead said: "I didn't see it." She seemed to think that made it illegal. It was explained that the ball was out of the park and must be scored a home run. To which she replied: "So what - there was nobody on base, was there?"

There for a few innings it was what the sports writers call a pitchers' duel between New York's Johnny Antonelli and Cleveland's Early Wynn. Then up came Dusty Rhodes, who won the first game with a tenth inning homer and tied the score with a bloop single to center. Miss Bankhead announced that he,too, came from Alabama. James A. Farley came over to ask if Miss Bankhead had actually switched her allegiance and was rooting for Cleveland, and was rewarded with a gentle though carefully placed kick. Somewhere about this time Willy Mays swung at three pitched balls, and then returned to his seat. Miss Bankhead insisted that he had all the rhythm of a ballet dancer, and she talked at him as though he were a pair of dice.

Then along came the seventh inning, and up came Dusty Rhodes again - he was still from Alabama - and banged a home run to right. At this point a vendor came around selling souviniers - little fake silver loving cups. Miss Bankhead purchased nine, and then asked for a tenth. When I asked her why she needed the tenth, she said maybe the Giants would use another pinch-hitter and she wanted to be safe.

During these innings, Miss Bankhead was wrestling with a varied assortment of lucky pennies, mustard seeds encased in glass, and various other good luck charms. She was heard to complain of callouses on her fingers from squeezing the good luck pennies. At one point - I think it was just before Rhodes homer, although I can't be sure, since things were a little confused - she asked an attendant for two pills. The attendant asked: "What kind?" and she responded: "Any kind".

Finally came the ninth inning. The score was three to one. Mr. Johnny Antonelli appeared to be tired. Miss Bankhead appeared ready to replace him at any time. She besought Willy to deal with every ball struck, whether it be out of play, behind the batter and over the stands, or elsewhere. In this final inning Al Smith, who had hit the first ball, first inning homer, singled; Bobby Avila did the same; and Cleveland had two men on and one out. Then the 24-year-old Antonelli threw three straight strikes past Larry Doby. But Smith went to third, as the Giants missed what could have been a double play. It was close. Miss Bankhead gave it as her opinion that the man at first should have been out, the double play completed. She contended that the umpire was too far away from the ball to call it properly. He was about three feet away - Miss Bankhead about seventy.

Then with men on first and third, and two out, up came Vic Wertz of the Indians, the leading hitter of the series. At this point Miss Bankhead forebore to look. The strain was too great. She mumbled, and wrestled with those lucky coins and tokens, and she asked an English friend in her cast of "Dear Charles" to tell her what happened on each pitch. Mr. Wertz continued to foul them off; Miss Bankhead continued not to look; but there developed a certain strain in Anglo-American relations, since Miss Bankhead was not altogether satisfied with the play-by-play account, insisting that she wanted to know the direction in which the ball had been struck.

Finally Mr. Wertz leaned into one - a long, towering fly which was gathered in near the wall by Mr. Dusty Rhodes. The game was over. Miss Bankhead announced that the score in the Series now stood two to nothing in favor af Alabama.- that she wouldn't have any voice for tonight's performance - and would we care to go to Monday's game at the Polo Grounds, although she thinks the Giants will clinch the next two in Cleveland. Given the week end to recuperate, attendance at Monday's game might be possible.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a moment with the Word for today. But first, Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: This bit of advice might apply to Miss Tallula Bankhead and others like her who are suffering through the series. It's from Alexander Pope and Disraeli: "Blessed is he who expects nothing, for he shall never be disappointed...what we anticipate seldom occurs, and what we least expect generally happens." We might add, even in Alabama.

Good Night and Good Luck.

Friday Oct 1, 1954

This is the news:

The French have upset the London conference..at least temporarily. Premier Mendez-France today demanded [redacted] tight controls on every aspect of the manufacture and distribution of arms in the west European agreement. The other eight ministers disagreed with him. West Germany's Chancellor Adenauer said this would be too [redacted] discriminatory. At this point--according to officials of three delegations at the meeting--Mendez-France "blew up." He said the other ministers did not give enough thought to his plan before turning it down. He said later:"I was one against eight..not an unusual experience for me." British Secretary Eden pointed out that his country had made a big concession in agreeing to keep troops on the Continent. A British spokesman said later this offer would be withdrawn if the conference fails. Secretary of State Dulles and others suggested a compromise. A French source says the Dulles plan "sounds interesting"..it will be considered tomorrow. [redacted] In London many of the delegation spokesmen who were optomistic last night, tonight are keeping their fingers crossed ..hoping a compromise can be worked out.

A Yugoslav foreign office spokesman said today that his country has agreed with Italy on "all the main points" for settling their dispute over Trieste. But an Italian foreign ministry spokesman says: "There is no immediate possibility of an agreement."

The French counter-espionage service said today that three high and trusted Defense officials have confessed leaking secret information from the French National Defense council.. A Police announcement does not say who received the information from the nation's military planning body. A late dispatch from Paris says the third man to be suspended was Jean Mons, the secretary general of the national defense COUNCIL.

The Czech government says it will release tomorrow the two Americans they have held on espionage charges. They are Lieut Richard Dries and Private George Pisk. The Czechs say they were arrested two weeks ago while spying on Czech territory.

At the United Nations today, Ambassador Lodge said we are willing to negotiate anywhere with the Russians on creating an atomic pool for peaceful purposes. I'd like to discuss the latest Soviet plan in a few minutes.

In Milford, Delaware, today white students returned to the high-schhol classes they had boycotted since Negroes were admitted. Just where [redacted] eleven Negro students will go to school has not yet been determined.

In Baltimore, more than 12-hundred students remained away from their classes. And some parents set up a picket line to protest the admission of Negroes to the schools. At one high school three Negro pupils were threatened.. one boy was punched in the face.. three white men were arrested. Mayor D'alesandro WARNED against any inflammatory action and asked everyone to be calm.

Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer today was unanimously re-elected director of the Institute for Advanced Study at Princeton, New Jersey. Last June the Atomic Energy Commission denied him access to government secrets. And a special board found him to [redacted] be a security risk although his loyalty was not questioned. [redacted]

One of those who voted to retain Oppenheimer at Princeton was Admiral Lewis Straws, president of the Institute and chairman of the Atomic Energy Committee.

[redacted]

Corporal Clyde Batchelor has been found guilty by a court martial of collaborating with the enemy in a Korean prison camp..and informing on other Americans. He's been sentenced to life in prison.

Former Democratic Representative Doughton died in Laurel Springs, North Carolina, today. He was 90. Doughton wrote many of the New Deal and Fair Deal tax bills and gave the country its first social security law as chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee.

In Colorado, Republican Governor Russell today named Republican Ernest S. Brown to succeed the late Democratic Senator McCarran. Apparently he will serve until the end of this year with a successor to be chosen in the November elections.

In Cleveland today the Giants did it again..took their third straight World Series game from the Indians. The score was six to two. And again Dusty Rhodes delivered a pinch-hit single that scored two runs. Tomorrow, Cleveland will use Bob Lemon, defeated in the first game, to try to stop the Giants. And Don Liddle will pitch for the Giants who are hoping to end it all with their fourth win.

Edward R. Murrow: October 1, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

Three years ago in Paris, Andrei Vishinsky told the Assembly of the United Nations, that he had read the disarmament proposals laid before the U.N. by the United States and its associates, and that they had made him sit up half the night laughing. / Yesterday, the same Mr. Vishinsky, again addressing a U.N. Assembly, himself made disarmament proposals that included some of the features of the Western plan, that he had found so laughable. What accounts for the right-about face? Or perhaps that question should be: Is it a right-about face?

In United Nations circles today, the Vishinsky offer was being given the liveliest attention. / The offer had broken new ground for the Soviet Union, and in a moment I shall sum up the concessions it appears to make. / But let me say that what first struck many Assembly delegates about it was its timing. It was made just as the London conference on re-arming Germany was reported to be heading for an unexpected success. / It is a success that still can be torpedoed, for the final details of the agreement cannot be signed and sealed at London. / The controls question, and the Saar, offer the opportunity for more delay. And the French Assembly, which rejected the E.D.C. might be swayed to reject German disarmament on the London pattern. The Vishinsky offer was considered to be an eleventh-hour attempt to flank the London conference.

Some of the French observers said they thought it had been timed too late, and might have achieved its purpose if it had been made a month earlier. But they had no doubt the offer was addressed primarily to the French, and secondarily to the British Labor Party faction opposed to German re-armament and to German Socialists. Mr. Vishinsky was understood to be telling Europe, that it was not necessary to arm Germany, since the policy of the Kremlin has become benign. But to make this picture convincing, Soviet resistance to Western disarmament proposals had to be changed to co-operation. And Mr. Vishinsky yesterday was going through gestures of co-operation.

Now for a look at the concessions. They are four in number.

First: The Kremlin no longer insists that nuclear weapons must be outlawed before ~~negotiations~~ talks on reductions in conventional arms can begin.

Second: Mr. Vishinsky proposes reductions in conventional arms in two stages. We had stipulated three stages, but the acceptance of the idea of stages is a concession.

Third: Mr. Vishinsky spoke of control of the ban on nuclear weapons and their manufacture as though it would be permanent. In previous offers the Soviet government had said that inspection must not be allowed to interfere with the "domestic life of a nation," which was a distinct hedge on the controls being effective. This time the hedge was omitted.

Fourth: The offer accepted the Anglo-French proposals made last June in disarmament commission talks in London, as a basis for negotiations. This means that the Soviet government does not insist in advance that reductions in conventional arms must be on a percentage basis. It could be that the Soviet government is getting ready to accept the Western thesis of balanced reductions, that is that relative military power has to be taken into account. For example, if we give up nuclear weapons in which we are strong, the Soviet Union would accept a bigger cut in its armed forces than we, since they are stronger in these.

We must be clear about it, Mr. Vishinsky did not adopt this thesis. All he did was not to reject it. What he spoke of was "an agreed norm" to which reductions are to be made. That is the key phrase of the offer. When it comes to negotiations, the Soviet Union can interpret a "norm" to be whatever it pleases. It is not committed to anything.

It should be noted that in the Vishinsky plan, nuclear weapons and their manufacture are to be prohibited six months or a year after the program starts, that is at the time when the first half of the reduction in conventional arms has been carried through. That would leave the United States without the balancing strength of nuclear weapons within six months or a year of the adoption of a disarmament plan. And at such a time, even if the Soviet Union should accept a bigger cut in its ground forces than ours, the Soviet Union would have military world supremacy.

There are many booby traps in the plan. But this is not a booby trap, it is an intrinsic part of the structure of the Vishinsky plan, there for all to see and for all who know anything about disarmament to understand.

The booby traps are in the undefined proposals. What are to be the controls? Will control machinery be set up before the prohibition of nuclear weapons comes into effect? The Vishinsky plan says "necessary powers" are to be given the agency which exercises controls. What are the "necessary" powers? The control of the reduction of conventional arms is to be reported to the U.N. Security Council, in which the Soviet Union has a veto. Will it insist on a veto on the nuclear controls as well?

Mr. Vishinsky has used purposely vague language. His friends can say what is not rejected outright, might be accepted. Further negotiations will quickly show how real that hope is.

Whatever the plan amounts to, it does open the way to negotiations. That is desirable. But that is the best that can be said for it at this time.

In matters of international diplomacy, it is not always easy to define the terminology - as witness Mr. Vishinsky's speech before the U.N. yesterday. Ovid once remarked that "we often cloak our weaknesses in big words." And this could well be the case with the Russians now. But, as Benjamin Franklin concluded:"Words may show a man's wit, but actions show his meaning."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

Three years ago in Paris Andre Vishinsky told the Assembly of the United Nations that he had read the disarmament proposals laid before the UN by the United States and its associates and that they had made him sit up half the night laughing. Yesterday, the same Mr.Vishinsky, again addressing a UN Assembly, himself made disarmament proposals that included some of the features of the Western plan that he had found so laughable. What accounts for the right-about face? Or perhaps the the question should be: Is it a ~~genuine~~ right-about face?

In Unnited Nations circles today the Vishinsky offer was being given the liveliest attention. The offer had broken new ground for the Soviet Union, and in a moment I shall sum up the concessions it appears to make. But ~~first~~ let me say that first what struck many Assembly delegates about it was its timing. It was made just as the London conference on rearming Germany was reported to be heading for an unexpected success. It is a success that still can be torpedoed, for the final details of the agreement cannot be signed and sealed at London. The controls question and the Saar offer the opportunity for sabotage. And the French Assembly, which rejected the EDC might be swayed to reject German disarmament on the London pattern. The Vishinsky offer was considered to be an eleventh-hour attempt to flank the London conference. ¶ Some of the French observers said they thought it had been timed too late, and might have achieved its purpose if it had been made a month earlier. But they had no doubt the offer was addressed primarily to the French, and secondarily to the British labor party and to German socialists faction opposed to German rearmament. Mr. Vishinsky was understood to be telling Europe that it was not necessary to arm Germany since the policy of the Kremlin has become benign. But to make this picture convincing Soviet resistance to Western disarmament proposals had to be changed to cooperation. And Mr. Vishinsky yesterday was going through gestures of cooperation.

¶ Now for a look at the concessions. They are four in number. ¶ First: The Kremlin no longer insists that nuclear weapons must be outlawed before negotiations on reductions in conventional arms can begin. ¶ Second: Mr. Vishinsky proposes reductions in conventional arms in two stages. We had stipulated three stages, but the acceptance of the idea of stages is a concession. ¶ Third: Mr. Vishinsky spoke of control of the ban on nuclear weapons and their manufacture as though it would be permanent. In previous offers the Soviet government had said that inspection ust not be allowed to interfere with the domestic life of a nation, which was a distinct hedge on the controls being effective. This time the hedge was omitted. ¶ Fourth: The offer accepted the Anglo-French proposals made last June in disarmament commission talks in London as a basis for negotiations. This means that the Soviet government does not insist in advance that reductions in conventional arms must be on a percentage basis. It could be that the Soviet government is getting ready to accept the Western thesis of balanced reductions, that is that relative military power has to be taken into account. For example, if we give up nuclear weapons in which we are strong, the Soviet Union would accept a bigger cut in its armed forces than we, since they are stronger in these. ¶ We must be clear about it, Mr, Vishinsky did not adopt this thesis. All he did was not to reject it. What he spoke of was "an agreed norm" to which reductions are to be made. That is the key phrase of the offer. When it comes to negotiations the Soviet Union can interpret a norm to be whatever it pleases. It is not committed to anything.

¶ It should be noted that in the Vishinsky plan nuclear weapons and their manufacture are to be prohibited six months or a year after the program starts, that is at the time when the first half of the reduction in conventional arms has been carried through. That would leave the United States without the balancing strength of nuclear weapons within six months or a year of the adoption of a disarmament plan, and at this time even if the Soviet Union should accept a bigger cut in its ground forces than ours, the Soviet Union would have military world supremacy. ~~This is~~

¶ There are many booby traps in the plan. But this is not a booby trap, it is an intrinsic part of the structure of the Vishinsky plan, there for all to see and for all who know anything about disarmament to understand.

¶ The booby traps are in the undefined proposals. What are to be the controls? Will control machinery be set up before the prohibition of nuclear weapons comes into effect? The Vishinsky plan says "necessary powers" are to be given the agency which exercises controls. What are the "necessary" powers? The control of the reduction of conventional arms is to be reported to the UN Security Council, in which the Soviet Union has a veto. Will it insist on a veto on the nuclear controls as well?

Mr.Vishinsky has used purposely vague language. Its friends can say what is not rejected outright might be accepted. Further negotiations will quickly show how real that hope is. Whatever the plan amounts to, it does open the way to negotiations. That is desirable. But that is the best that can be said for it at this time.

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
CBS RADIO NETWORK

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 1, 1954
7:45-8:00P.M. ,EST

This is the news:

The French have upset the London conference..at least temporarily. Premier Mendez-France today demanded tight controls on every aspect of the manufacture and distribution of arms in the West European agreement. The other eight ministers disagreed with him. West Germany's Chancellor Adenauer said this would be too discriminatory. At this point--according to official of three delegations at the meeting--Mendez -France "blew-up." He said the other ministers did not give enough thought to his plan, before turning it down. He said later: "I was one against eight..not an unusual experience for me." British Secretary Eden pointed out that his country has made a big concession in agreeing to keep troops on the Continent. A British spokesman said later this offer would be withdrawn if the conference fails. Secretary of State Dulles and others suggested a compromise . A French source says the Dulles plan "sounds interesting"..it will be considered tomorrow. In London many of the delegation spokesmen who were optimistic last night, tonight are keeping their fingers crossed..hoping a compromise can be worked out.

A Yugoslav foreign office spokesman said today that his country has agreed with Italy on all the mainpoints for settlingtheir dispute over Trieste. But an Italian foreign ministry spokesman says: "There is no immediate possib lity of an agreement."

The French counter-espionage service said today that three high and trusted Defense officials have confessed leakin secret information from the French National Defense council.. A Police announcement does not say who received the information from the nation's military planning body.

A late dispatch from paris says the third man to be suspended was Jean Mons, the secretary general of the Nationald Defense Council.

The Czech government says it will release tomorrow the two Americans they have held on espionage charges. They are Lieutenant Richard Dries and Private George Fisk. The Czechs say they were arrested two weeks ago while spying on Czech territory.

At the United Nations today, Ambassador Lodge said we are willing to negotiate anywhere with the Russians on creating an atomic pool for peaceful purposes. I'd like to discuss the latest Soviet plan in a few minutes.

In Milford, Delaware, today white students returned to the high-school classes they had boycotted since Negroes were admitted. Just where eleven Negro students will go to school has not yet been determined.

In Baltimore, more than 12-hundred students remained away from their classes. And some parents set up a picket line to protest the admission of Negroes to the schools. At one high school three Negro pupils were threatened... one boy was punched in the face..three white men were arrested. Mayor D'alesandro warned against any inflammatory action and asked everyone to be calm.

Dro. J Robert Oppenhemmer today was unanimously re-elected director of the Institute for advanced Study at Princeton, New Jersey. Last June the Atomic Energy Commission denied him access to governemnt secrets. And a special board found him to be a security risk although his loyalty was not questioned. One of those who boted to retain Oppenheimer at Princeton was Admiral Lewis Straws, president of the Institute and chairman of the Atomic Energy Committee.

Corporal Clyde Batchelor has been found guilty by a court martial of collaborating with the enemy in a Korean prison camp...and informing on other Americans. He's been sentenced to life in prison.

Former Democratic Representative Doughton died in Luurel Springs, North Carolina, today. He was 90. Doughton wrote many of the New Deal and Fair Deal tax bills and gave the country its first social security law as chairman of the House ways and Means Committee.

In Colorado, Republican Governor Russell today named Republican Ernest S. Brown to succeed the late Democratic Senator McCarran. Apparently he will serve until the end of this year with a successor to be chosen in the November elections.

In Cleveland today the Giants did it again...took their third straight World series game from the Indians. The score was six to two. And again Dusty Rhodes delivered a pinch-hit single what scored two runs. Tomorrow, Cleveland will use Bob Lemon, defeated in the first game, to try to stop the Giants. And Don Liddle will pitch for the Giants who are hoping to end it all with their fourth win.

Three years ago in Paris, Andrei Vishinsky told the Assembly of the United Nations, that he had read the disarmament proposals laid before the U.N. by the United States and its associates, and that they had made him sit up half the night laughing. Yesterday, the same Mr. Vishinsky, again addressing a U.N. Assembly, himself made the disarmament proposals that included some of the features of the Western plan that he had found so laughable. What accounts for the right-about face? Or perhaps that question should be: Is it a right-about face?

In United Nations circles today the Vishinsky offer was being given the liveliest attention. The offer had broken new ground for the Soviet Union, and in a moment I shall sum up the concessions it appears to make. But let me say that what first struck my Assembly delegates about it was its timing. It was made just as the London conference on re-arming Germany was reported to be heading for an unexpected success. It is a success that can be torpedoed, for the final details of the agreement cannot be signed and sealed at London. The controls question and the Saar offer the opportunity for more delay. And the French Assembly, which rejects the E.D.C. might be swayed to reject german disarmament on the London pattern. The Vishinsky offer was consider d to be an eleventh-hour attempt to flank the London conference.

Some French observers said they thought it had been timed too late, and might have achieved its purpose if it had been made a month earlier. But they had no doubt the offer was addressed primarily to the French, and secondarily to the British Labor Party faction opposed to German rearmament and to German Socialists. Mr. Vishinsky was understood to be telling Europe, that it wasnot necessary to arm Germany, since the policy of the Kremlin has become benign. But to make this picture convincing, Soviet resistance to Western disarmament porposals had to be changed to co-operation. And Mr. Vishinsky yesterday was going through gestures of co-operation.

NoW for a look at the concessions. They are four in number.

First: The Kremlin no longer insists that nuclear weapons must be outlawed before talks on reductions in conventional arms can begin.

Second: Mr. Vishinsky proposes reductions in conventional arms in two stages. We had stipulated three stages, but the acceptance of the idea of stages is a concession.

Third: Mr. Vishinsky spoke of control of the ban on nuclear weapons and their manufacture as though it would be permanent. In previous offers the Soviet government had said that inspection must not be allowed to interfere with the "domestic life of a nation," which was a distinct hedge on the controld being effective. This time the hedge was omitted.

Fourth: the offer accepted the Anglo-French proposals made last June in disarmament commission talks in London, as a basis for negotiations. This means that the Soviet government does not insist in advance that reductions in conventional arms must be on a percentage basis. It could be that the Soviet government is getting ready to accept the Western thesis of balanced reductions that is that relative military power has to be taken into account. For example, if we give up nuclear weapons, in which we are strong, the Soviet Union would accept a bigger cut in its armed forces than we, since they are stronger in these.

We must be clear about it, Mr. Vishinsky did not adopt this thesis. All he did was not to reject it. What he spoke of was "an agreed norm" to which reductions are to be made. That is the key phrase of the offer. When it comes to negotiations, the Sovier Union can interpret a "norm" to be whatever it pleases. It is not committed to anything.

It should be noted that in the Vishinsky plan, nuclear weapons and their manufacture are to be prohibited six months ar a year after the program starts, that is at the time when the first half of the reduction in conventional arms has been carried through. That would leave the United States without a balancing strength of nuclear weapons within six months or a year of the adoption of a disarmament plan. And at such a time, even if the Soviet Union should accept a bigger cut in its ground forces than ours, the Soviet Union whoul have military world supremacy.

There are many booby traps in the plan. But this is not a booby trap, it is an intrinsic part of the structure of the Vishinsky plan, there for all to see and for all who know anything about disarmament to understand.

The booby traps are in the undefined porposals. What are to be the controls? Will control machinery be set up before the prohibition of nuclear weapons comes into effect? The Vishinsky plan says "necessary powers" are to be given the agency which exercises controls. What are the "necessary powers? The control of the reduction of conventional arms is to be reported to the U.N. Security Council, in which the Soviet Union has a veto. Will it insist on a veto on the nuclear controls as well?

Mr. Vishinsky has used purposely vague language. His friends say what is not rejected outright might be accepted. Further negotiations will quickly show how real that hope is.

Whatever the plan amounts to, it does open the way to negotiations. That is desireble. But that is the best that can be said for it at this time.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a moment with the Word for Today. But first, Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: In matters of international diplomacy, it is not always easy to define the terminology - as witness Mr. Vishinsky's speech before the U.N. yesterday. Ovid once remarked that "we often cloak our weaknesses in big words." and this could well be the case with the Russians now. But, as Benjamin Franklin concluded:"Words may show a man's wit, but actions show his meaning."

Good Night and Good Luck.

Mon, Oct 4, 1954

This is the news:

The President said today, that the London agreement to re-arm West Germany, "may be one of the greatest diplomatic achivements of our time." At his headquarters in Denver, Mr. Eisenhower said the 9-power agreement has potentialities for "promoting security, propperity and peace in Europe, with the inevitable benefits of such a development on the United States, and the rest of the world." Mr. Eisenhower said it appears that when the agreement is ratified, it will preserve most of the values "inherent in the original European defense community proposal."

And Secretary of State Dulles told reporters in Washington, that he hopes the nation will support the agreement, because "it will be very much in our national interest." Just back from London--Mr. Dulles said the new agreement "can preserve and strengthen the Atlantic community, by giving it a hard core of European unity." ~~In his appeal for "support" Mr. Dulles seemed to be appealing to the Congress to lift the ban it recently voted on aid to France and Italy because they did not ratify the European army plan.~~

In Paris today, Liuet. General Orval R. Cook, the deputy ✓ @ 14 [illegible] – [illegible]

– at [illegible]

– [illegible] book – play
[illegible] dentist

– play orchestra for 32 stages
+ lear – [illegible] sound
Ed & [illegible]

– leg

She – [illegible] keep quiet
Cupin

– only first conductor (B)

– [illegible] Legonde 1st violin before he born

– Ed [illegible] 2 [illegible] closer to [illegible]

– "[illegible] you getting"
– conductor – Bata [illegible]

– Feel piccolo [illegible]
22 yrs ago [illegible]

– guy who gets [illegible] 4 years
[illegible] cos [illegible] two –

Sense [illegible]
– [illegible]
he does [illegible] –
7 to [illegible]

commander of our forces, told reporters that guns for the new Germany army are now stockpiled in Europe. General Cook said we now have "a great deal of equipment" for the proposed 12 division German army... in addition to air force stocks. They will be turned over to Germany only when all nine nations concerned ratify the London agreement. ~~General Cook also revealed that almost 76 million dollars has been set aside in military equipment orders and troop support items for West Germany. Of this more than seven and a half million is to be used to build arms for the North Atlantic treaty allies.~~

~~In [illegible] minutes [illegible] report from~~

~~and [illegible] on negotiations on the London agreement.~~

~~In Paris tonight, French security officers revealed that Jacques Duclos, the Communist party leader in the absence of Maurice Thorez, who is still in Moscow, Jacques Duclos will be summoned for questioning on how important French military secrets were leaked to the French Communists. Duclos returned from Moscow only three days ago.~~

Mary Fye
[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible] together

Blair
Bel 6-3436

Who he starts
[illegible] mouth
+ gets him.

~~In West Germany today, an army intelligence officer, who was held by the Czechs for two weeks, said he was put under heavy psychological pressure, including charges of spying, and threats that he might be kept in jail for a long time. Captain Richard Dmies of St. Albans, New York, said he and his jeep driver, Private George Rick of Austin, Texas, were not beaten or abused, but they were constantly threatened when they refused to reveal military secrets.~~

~~And~~ In East Berlin, the Communists produced two American brothers--Henry and James Starr of Westville, New Jersey--who announced that they sought asylum in East Germany, because they hate what they called America's "war policy." Their mother, Mrs. Grace Starr, says she's flabbergasted. ~~These two of her six sons were a bit radical, but no one took them seriously until now.~~ ~~Mrs. Starr~~ SHE says "the rest of us at home don't share the opinions" of her 30- and 31-year old sons in East Germany.

~~Italy and Yugoslavia today announced they will sign an agreement in London tomorrow, ending their nine-year dispute over Trieste. Under its terms, Zone A of the Free Territory, including the city of Trieste, will go to Italy. This is the zone that has been guarded by American and British troops. And Zone B will go to Yugoslavia. American~~

~~Ambassador Clare Boothe Luce said in Naples today that the United States feels this solution of the Trieste problem "will create a condition in which the whole of the Meditterranean area can be strengthened."~~

~~Israel announced today that she has asked the United Nations Security Council to consider her charge of "aggression" against Egypt. Israel charges that one of her freighters was seized by the Egyptians in the Suez Canal last week. Egypt says the freighter had opened fire on some Egyptians. Israel denies this.~~

At the U.N. today both Great Britain and France said the new Soviet proposals for atomic controls are a step forward. But both countries want to know exactly how far Moscow has moved toward an agreement with the West. ~~British Minister of State, Selwyn Lloyd, said apparently the Russians have moved toward the western proposals. "That," he said, "is a fact to be welcomed. But it may be the Russian resolution is put forward solely to confuse the domestic political situation in countries considering a German defense contribution." This stand was quickly endorsed by the French delegate~~

Defense Secretary Wilson conferred with the President in Denver

today. And later he told reporters: the number of security risks under investigation, or already ousted from the four-million-man military set-up "is happily quite small in percentages." ~~And in Pineville, Kentucky, Vice President Nixon said [redacted] that he has the facts and figures to back up his statement that "thousands of Communists and security risks have been removed from the federal payroll." Democratic National Chairman Mitchell has challenged the Vice President to name the Communists who have been kicked out of the government, or retract his statement. Mr. Nixon said today that figures to prove this have been and will be released in the usual course of events by the government..and not in political speeches.~~

In Washington today, the Supreme Court began its new term with a 24-minute ceremony. And the Justices who face a final decision on how to go about ending segregation in the nation's public schools, HOARD [redacted] tonight an ACCOUNT of the first demonstrations against segregation in the District of Columbia. Only recently the President said he hoped that the District's plan for ending segregation could be a model for other sections to follow. But [redacted] today, at two high schhols there were peaceful but noisy demonstrations against permitting Negroes to attend heretofore all-white schools. About a third of the students at the Anacostia High School gathered across the street from the school and booed 43 Negroes who entered the building. And at the McKinley High School , 150 protesting students waved signs reading:"Send them back to the plantation"..."back to africa"...and "we want segregation."

In Baltimore, at least nine schools reported demonstratuons against Negro students. About 2-thousand students gathered in front of the City Hall shouting protests and anti-Negro slogans. The demonstration was broken up by police after about ten minutes.

Herbert Hoover, Junior, today was sworn in as undersecretary of state, succeeding General Beedle Smith. Former President Hoover watched proudly as his son took the oath of office. ~~The young Hoover said he considered it a "great privilege" to serve under Secretary Dulles. Mr. Dulles said he considered it "extremely fortunate" to have Hoover working under him.~~

Senator McCarthy announced today that Francis P. Carr has resigned as executive director of McCarthy's permanent investigating subcommittee. Its understood Carr is going to work for a trucking firm with headquarters in New York.

In Hollywood today, Marilyn Monroe's attorney announced that her nine-month marriage to Joe Di Maggio is ended. She will sue the former Yankee star for divorce on the ground of mental cruelty..."incompatibility resulting from different career interests." Her lawyer says the two have reached a "pleasant understanding."

The French people today were assessing the London communique on how to get West Germany into the western alliance. And I've asked my colleague David Schoenbrun, to record for us the atmospehere in Paris tonight:

(runs 2;12..
cue "Back to EM")

Alex Kendrick cables me from Vienna tonite...that the official reaction to the London agreement.(in central Europe)is that a new period of co-operation and security has started for the old continent...But he repertes that many editorail writers seem to be tempted to stop in mid-sentence and ask themselves..what are we cheering about....The prospect of a new German army is inclined to chill those who have met the German army before...the Greeks Yugoslavs..the cheks,Danes,Austrians,French and Dutch....Kendrick reports the obvious when he says...the germans may have been granted full equality by their partners but they still have a long way to go to win back the confidence and esteem of those millions they so recently conquered...Many of the editorials smack of hysterical relief rather than genuine comfrt or confidence..Failure at London would probably have meant the end of the alliance...it now remains in business..but there will be much time for second thoughts....

The communist reaction was not violent..in fact it was rather tepid..Their propaganda campaign will undoutedly build up as the time approaches for consideration by the French assembly...Today, the communist press contents itself with the almost casual statement that the new German army will of course be used to seek the reconquest of the eastern territories...but there is no real open indignation...The communists appear to be playing this story in a most minor key...in an effort to make Vishinsky's latest U.N. disarmament proposals more appealing to more people....The question of what the Russians will now do is one concerning many Europeans....They could accept the division of Germany as permanent..and go ahead rearming the eastern zone and the rest of their satelites...But the Russians have staked much of their policy and more of their propaganda on preventing the rearmamnt of Germany...They may shortly try to turn defeat into victory by a bold diplomatic move.....In theory they might offer to accept the reunification of Germany on the western terms... (including free elections)..in return for the neutralisation of Germany..Such a proposal would find willing listners in Germany..and in France...and if it should be made shortly before the French debate it would create new confusion and doubt...The Russian aee is the reunification of Germany...they may not propose it..if they do so..it will probably not be done in good faith...but such an offer might still...even at this late date..upset many plans...It is always necessary to remember that in the realities of German politics..it is mandatory for all politicians to favour re-unification...The Russians could reckon that such an offer would at least produce considerable delay..and place a new strain on the western alliance...There would be demands in France and in Germany.. also in England that conversations be held with the Russians to Try to determine whether they were serious....Communist literature in recent years is shot thru with the contention that time is on their side..that the western alliance will eventually break up....it very nearly did.The Russians may well figure that an offer of reunification...even the they have no thought of going thru with it...for they would lose any free election in both zones of germany... that still such an offer would buy more time...create new divisions in western policy...Russian policy toward Germany has suffered a major defeat ...The communists are just as aware of that as we are...If they in fact believe that time is on their side..we must expect them in the coming weeks to do what they can to buy more time ..before the London agreement is ratified....

~~CB3375~~

NY OCT 4 1954

WORD

MURROW-ZOUSMER

NEWSROOM WCAU

~~HERES WORD WHICH WA CALLED AND ASKED US TO DO~~ THE VETERANS ADMINISTRATION IS OBSERVING "EMPLOY THE HANDICAPPED WEEK." IT HOPES TO CONVINCE EMPLOYERS THAT A PHYSICAL HANDICAP, NEED NOT BE A JOB HANDICAP. IF YOURE IN A POSITION TO HIRE SUCH A PERSON, DO IT. FOR AS SAMUEL JOHNSON ONCE SAID " TO IMPROVE THE GOLDEN MOMENT OF OPPORTUNITY, AND CATCH THE GOOD THAT IS WITHIN OUR REACH, IS THE GREAT ART OF LIFE". ~~END~~

[redacted]

Good Kelly

CBS RADIO DIVISION

EDWARD R. MURROW

Monday, Oct. 4, 1954
7:45-8:00 P.M.

MURROW: ... The French people today were assessing the London communique on how to get West Germany into the Western Alliance - and I've asked my colleague, David Schoenbrun, to record for us the atmosphere in Paris tonite.

SCHOENBRUN: This is a city where hope and fear are twin emotions. And tonite again France has a smile on her lips and a pang in her heart. The smile is for the future, for the promise of a lasting partnership with Great Britain on the Continent of Europe. The pangs are memories of the past, memories of what an armed Germany has done to France three times in seventy years. Yet there's fulsome praise here in Paris tonite for the London agreement to rearm Germany; it is praise for everybody concerned, for John Foster Dulles and Konrad Adenauer, as well as for France's own Foreign Minister. The Left-wing paper Combat, normally critical of America and Germany and opposed to German rearmament, pays tribute today to the statesmanship of the German Chancellor and the American Secretary of State in a front-page report on London.

But the real hero of France today is Anthony Eden. With rare unanimity the major spokesmen of French public opinion named Eden as the real architect of the London accord. For the last fifty years France has been trying to get Britain committed to the Continent. The French believe that World War II might have been avoided if Britain had been present on the Continent in the 1920s and '30s; and now, at last, Britain has taken that historic step - not only of military partnership but of political unity, for that's the real meaning of the British commitment to keep troops in Europe subject to a two-thirds majority vote of the Brussels Treaty members. A prominent Socialist Deputy told me in Paris this afternoon that EDC itself might have been passed if Britain had made that offer a month ago.

Now, the question: Will the London accords pass? Much will depend on the work of the experts who must transform the London act into a treaty. Much will depend on the agreement with Germany on the future of the Saar. But there's optimism on both counts tonite because of the dignified and statesmanlike conduct of Adenauer in London and the determination of Pierre Mendes-France to break the old deadlock once and for all.

This is David Schoenbrun recording in Paris. Now back to Edward R. Murrow.

-30-

Ediphone trans./E. Scheiner

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
CBS RADIO NETWORK

MONDAY, OCTOBER 4, 1954
7:45-8:00 P.M.,E.S.T.

This is the news:

The President said today that the London agreement to re-arm West Germany "may be one of the greatest diplomatic achievements of our time." At his headquarters in Denver, Mr. Eisenhower said the 9-power agreement has potentialities for "promoting security, prosperity and peace in Europe with the inevitable benefits of such a developement on the United States and the rest of the world." Mr. Eisenhower said it appears that when the agreement is ratified it will preserve most of the values "inherent in the original European defense community proposal."

And Secretary of State Dulles told reporters in Washington that he hopes the nation will support the agreement because "it will be very much in our national interest." Just back from London--Mr. Dulles said the new agreement "can preserve and strengthen the Atlantic community by giving it a hard core of European unity."

In Paris today, Lieutenant General Orval R. Cook, the deputy commander of our forces, told reporters that guns for the new Germany army are now stockpiled in Europe. General Cook said we now have "a great deal of equipment" for the proposed 12 division German army...in addition to air force stocks. They will be turned over to Germany only when all nine nations concerned ratify the London agreement.

In East Berlin, the Communists produced two American brothers --Henry and James Starr of Westville, New Jersey --who announced that they sought asylum in East Germany because they hate what they called America's "war polivy." Their mother, Mrs. Grace Starr, says she's flabbergasted. She says

"the rest of us at home don't share the opinions" of her 30 and 31 year old sons in East Germany.

At the U.N. today both Great Britain and France said the new Soviet proposals for atomic control are a step forward. But both countries want to know exactly how far Moscow has moved toward anagreement witht the West.

Defense Secretary Wilson conferred with the President in Denver today. And later he told reporters: the number of security risks under investigation, or already ousted from the four-million-man military set up "is happily quite small in percentages."

In Washington today, the Supreme Court began its new term with a 4 minute ceremony. And the Justices who face a final decision on how to go about ending segregation in the nation's public schools, heard tonight an account of the first demonstrations against segregation in the District of Columbia. Only recently the President said he hoped that the District's plan for ending segregation could be a model for other sections to follow. But today, at two high schools, there were peaceful but noisy demonstrations against permitting Negroes to attend heretofore all-white schools. About a third of the students at the Anacostia High School gathered across the street from the school and booed 43 Negroes who entered the building. And at McKinley High School, 150 protesting students waved signs reading: "Send them back to the plantations"..."back to Africa"...and "we want segregation."

In Baltimore, at least nine schools reported demonstrations against Negroe students. About 2-thousand students gathered in front of the City Hall shouting protests and anti-Negroe slogans. The demonstration was broken up by police after about ten minutes.

Herbert Hoover, Junior, today was sworn in as undersecretary of state, succeeding General Beedle Smith. Former President Hoover watched proudly as his son took the oath of office.

Senator McCarthy announced today that Francis P. Carr has resigned as executive director of McCarthy's permanent investigating subcommittee. Its understood Carr is going to work for a trucking firm with headquarters in New York.

In Hollywood today, Marilyn Monroe's attorney announced that her nine-month marriage to Joe Di Maggio is ended. She will sue the former Yankee star for divorce on the ground of mental cruelty..."incompatibility resulting from differenc career interests." Her lawyer says the two have reached a "pleasant understanding."

The French people today were assessing the London communique on how to get West Germany into the Western alliance. And I've asked my colleague David Schoenbrun, to record for us the atmosphere in Paris tonight:

SCHOENBRUN: This is a city where hope and fear are twin emotions. And tonite again France has a smile on her lips and a pang in her heart. The smile is for the future, for the promise of a lasting pertnership with Great Britain on the continent of Europe. The pangs are memories of the past, memories of what an armed Germany has done to France three times in seventy years. Yet there's fulsome praise here in Paris tonite for the London agreement to rearm Germany; it is praise for everybody concerned, from John Foster Dulles and Konrad Adenauer, as well as for France's own Foreign Minister. The Left-wing paper Combat, normally critical of America and Germany and opposed to German rearmament, pays tribute today to the statesmanship of the German Chancellor and the American Secretary of State in a front-page report on London.

But the real hero of France today is Anthony Eden. With rare unanimity the major spokesmen of French public opinion named Eden as the real architect of the London accord. For the last fifty years France has been trying to to get Britain committed to the Continent. The French believe that World War II might have been avoided if Britain had been present on the Continent in the 1920's and '30s; and now, at last, Britain has taken that historic step - not only of military partnership but of political unity, for that's the real meaning of the British commitment to keep troops in Europe subject to a two-thirds majority vote of the Brussels Treaty members. A prominent Socialist Deputy told me in Paris this afternoon that EDC itself might have been passed if Britain had made that offer a month ago.

Now, the question: Will the London accords pass? Much will depend on the work of the experts who must transform the London act into a treaty. Much will depend on the agreement with Germany on the future of the Saar. But there's optimism on both counts tonite because of the dignified and statesmanlike conduct of Adenauer in London and the determination of Pierre Mendes-France to break the old deadlock once and for all.

This is David Schoenbrun recording in Paris. Now back to Edward R. Murrow.

Alex Kendrick cables me from Vienna tonite...that the official reaction to the London agreement...(in central Europe)..is that a new period of co-operation and security has started for the old continent...But he reports that many editorial writers seem to be tempted to stop in mid-sentence and ask themselves..."what are we cheering about"...the prospect of a new German army is inclined to chill those who have met the German army before...the Greeks...Yugoslavs...the Czechs, Poles, Austrians, French and Dutch... Kendrick reports the obvious when he says...the Germans may have been granted full equality by their partners but they still have a long way to go to win back the confidence and esteem of those millions they so recently conquered...Many of the editorials smack of hysterical relief rather than genuine comfort or confidence..Failure at London would probably have meant the end of the alliance...it now remains in business..but there will be much more time for second thoughts...

The communist reaction was not violent..in fact it was rather tepid.. their propoganda campaign will undoubtedly build up as the time approaches for consideration of the French assembly....today, the Communist press contents itself with the almost casual statement that the new German army will of course be used to seek the reconquest of the eastern territories... but there is no real open indignation...The communists appear to be playing this story in a most minor key...in an effort to make Vishinsky's latest U.N. disarmament proposals more appealing to more people...The question of what the Russians will now do is one concerning many Europeans...They could accept the division of Germany as permanent...and go ahead rearming the eastern zone and the rest of their satelites...But the Russians have staked much of their policy and more of their propaganda on preventing the rearmament of Germany...They may shortly try to turn defeat into victory by a bold diplomatic move...In theory they might offer to accept the reunification of Germany on the western terms...(Including free elections)....in return for the neautralisation of Germany...Such a proposal would find willing listeners in Germany...and in Frnace...and if it should be made shortly before the French debate it would create new confusion and doubt...the Russian ace is the reunification of Germany...they may not propose it.. it they do so...it will probably not be done in good faith...but such an offer might still...even at this late date...upset many plans ..it is always necessary to remember that in the realities of German politics...it is mandatory for all politicians to favor re-unification..the Russians could reckon that such an offer would at least produce considerable delay

...and place a new strain on the western alliance...There would be demands in France and in Germany..also in England that conversations be held with the Russians to try to determine whether they were serious...Communist literature in recent years is shot through with the contention that time is on their side...that the western alliance will eventually break up.. it very nearly did . The Russians may well figure that an offer of reunification...even though they have no thought of going through with it... for they would lose any free election on both zones of Germany...that still such an offer would buy more time...create new divisions in Western policy... Russian policy toward Germany has suffered a major defeat..The Communists are just as aware of that as we are...If they in fact believe that time is on their side...we must expect them in the coming weeks to do what they can to buy more time...before the London agreement is ratified.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a moment with the Word for Today, but first, Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: The veterans administration is observing "Employ the Handicapped Week." It hopes to convince employers that a physical handicap need not be a job handicap. If you are in a position to hire such a person, do it. For as Samuel Johnson once said "To improve the golden moment of opportunity, and catch the good that is within our reach, is the great art of life."

Good Night and Good Luck.

Tuesday Oct. 5, 1954

This is the news:

The four thousand American troops in Trieste will start moving out at once. Major General Dabney, our commander in Trieste, made this announcement today after Italy and Yugoslavia ~~signed~~ initialed agreements ending their nine-year dispute. The Trieste free territory will be divided just about the way the occupation boundaries were set-up in 1945. Italy will get the key Adriatic port of Trieste and Yugoslavia will retain the zone she occupied at the end of World War Two. In a few minutes I'd like to discuss the settlement of this issue which Secretary of State Dulles says should open a new era of political tranquility ..and increase the security of all free European nations

In France today, Andre Baranes, a confessed communist spy, said ~~today~~ that last month Communist Boss Jacques Duclos turned down an offer of military secrets. Baranes says Duclos told him he already had more complete information. Baranes has admitted passing on to the Communists the proceedings of the French National Defense Committee during the seige of Dien Bien Phu.

Syria proposed today that Isreal be thrown out of the United Nations unless Isreal goes along with the General Assembly's original partition plan for Palestine.

And at the U.N. today, Ambassador Lodge accused Soviet Delegate Vishinsky of making "a gratuitous and wildly inaccurate " charge that our navy is responsible for attacks on shipping off the Communist China coast. Vishinsky had said we must share , with the Chinese Nationalists, responsibility for action off the Communist coast.. because we control those waters. Lodge said today that Vishinsky is "totally incapable of documenting his charge or producing any facts to show" American responsibility.

In Washington today the Senate Banking Committee heard a witness charge that Clyde L. Powell demanded, and was paid, 10-thousand dollars in cash to approve an increase in a federal housing administration loan committment. The witness was Albert Cassell, a Washington architect. Powell was formerly the director of rental housing for the F.H.A. Powell took the stand again today and refused, as he has in the past, to answer any questions. He claimed his constitutional right under the fifth amendment to avoid giving testimony that might incriminate him. Earlier, the committee heard a Washington book-maker testify that Powell bet 100 to 120-dollars a day on horses "almost every day" over a nine-month period in 1940 and 41. And a member of the General Accounting Office said Powell deposited 138-thousand dollars more than he received in government salary in the ten year period before he was fired.

The Navy said today that there will be at least a three-month delay in the trials of the atomic submarine Nautilus. This is due to construction trouble which came to light when a steam pipe burst aboard the sub last month.

The White House, in Denver, announced today that the President has called Republican congressional leaders to meet with him on Friday.. just before the President makes a radio and television campaign speech. White House News Secretary Snyder says this speech will be "the most important single event in the Republican campaign." And he says that inaddition to politics the President will discuss the international situation with the congressional leaders.

Democratic Chairman Mitchell charged today that Vice President Nixon is now taking Senator Mc Carthy's place as "the chief slanderer of the Democratic party.

Texas Democratic Governor Shivers said today that "for the last time" the national political parties have made the South "crawl in humiliating submission." Shivers says the South has for too long been ignored by one great party, and too quickly forgotten by the other. He calls on all 48 states to join in a battle for state's rights, which he calls "the last great safeguard of our individual liberty."

Here in New York today, the International Longshoremen's Association called a strike, that has brought almost all port activity to a standstill. Sevnty-one ships were caught in New York's port. The dispute apparently concerns a contract argument, over retroactive pay and arbitration.

The C.I.O. today ordered an immediate investigation to halt racketeering, or other abuses of welfare funds, by member unions. And the C.I.O. has pledged its full co-operation with "legitimate" government inquiries into alleged union welfare funds frauds.

In Baltimore today firm action by school and police officials seemed to have ended demonstrations against the mingling of white and negro students in the Baltimore schools. But in Washington protests against the integration of students spread to nine schools. And school officials reported that more than 28-hundred students were absent at one time or another from three high schools and six junior highs. About 100 white boys and girls congregated in front of the Supreme Court building but they left quickly under police orders.

Edward R. Murrow: October 5, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

The settlement of the Trieste issue is notable largely because it affects international relations in Middle and Southern Europe. In itself it is important only, because it disposes of a dangerous prestige issue. It had become one of the most inflammable of these issues in Europe. Intrinsically the future of Trieste is no great international concern. The British and American occupation troops are to be withdrawn, and replaced in three weeks by Italian troops. Italy keeps most of Zone One, Yugoslavia all of Zone Two and a bit more. Trieste will suffer economically. It may not for years have it so good as it had with eight thousand well-paid foreign soldiers in the town. Now it loses its international status, becomes the seventh ranking Italian port and its standard of living will go down. If it weren't for the prestige involved, the Italians would not be flying flags. They would silently accept the fact that they are losing what the Allies promised them at the time of the first DeGasperi election, which was the whole of the disputed territory, not just part of Zone One.

Tito's subjects were not as jubilant as the Italians. The agreement closely resembles the one announced just a year ago, which caused Tito to move up troops and bring negotiations to a sudden stop. There is a slight gain for Tito. He gets a slice of Zone One at Lazaretto. And he does not sign away future claims. But in reality he gains nothing of consequence, beyond a permanent right to Zone Two.

My colleague Alexander Kendrick vouches for it in a cable from Vienna that this agreement could have been signed at any date desired since July, and says it was saved up for its effect on the heels of an agreement on Germany. He calls it the second blow of the West's one-two punch, and demonstrates that the Western Alliance not only can prevent its breakdown, but can go forward to solidify its unity. He foresees not only that Italy's relations with the West will be strengthened. A mutual defense pact between Yugoslavia and Britain, and perhaps other Western powers, anticipated at the time of Tito's visit to London, may now become a reality.

Tito is not expected to join NATO, but he has expressed himself in recent private talks with Western visitors, as being interested in joining the Brussels treaty. The Brussels Treaty Organization has now become closely linked with NATO, so Yugoslavia, if it should join, would be virtually part of the NATO system.

That is one of the international possibilities opened up by the Trieste agreement. Another is, that Italy will join the Balkan defense system set up by Yugoslavia, Turkey and Greece. Italy wants this, so does Turkey.

Greece is less willing, though Marshal Papagos favors it, and probably can carry his parliament with him. Tito may have some trouble persuading his public to accept Italy, but he has been openly hinting at eventual Italian inclusion. Kendrick remarks that if ~~he~~ Tito can get away with normalizing relations with the Soviet Union and its satellites, he should be able to succeed in normalizing relations with Italy.

It may be, as Kendrick suggests, that the Trieste settlement was saved up, to add emphasis to Western strength at a dramatic moment. But it is not irrelevant to point to another prestige issue that must be resolved, whose influence on the future of Europe can be far greater than Trieste. It is the Saar.

There may be a pattern in Western policy. But surely there is one in Soviet policy, too. At Geneva Foreign Minister Molotov had a long private talk with Premier Mendez-France. He is believed to have impressed him with his ambitious plan for a four-power conference on the major issues of Europe. Molotov is said to have insisted on the defeat of any plans to put a German army in the Western European defense system. But he is believed to have offered ~~as quid pro quo~~ in exchange a generous peace in Indochina, and a right-about-face on the Western offers of disarmament.

France did get fairly generous peace terms in Indochina. France also rejected the European Defense Community. Vishinsky made his speech on disarmament at the U.N. Assembly last week. It may be sheer coincidence, but on the day of that speech Mendez-France nearly broke up the London conference, with his demands for controls of German arms and munitions. Eden had made French resistance unrealistic by the historic pledge to keep four British divisions on the continent. Yet up to the last minute before signing, Mendez-France was reported to be wavering.

Now comes the big test. It is the Saar issue, so hard to settle because it is a prestige issue, so much harder than the issue of Trieste. It may be quite unfair to string events together in this way, to see a possible design in them. But it is not unfair to say that if the Saar issue is settled it will be proof that both Mendez France and Dr. Adenauer are solidly behind the London defense program. And if either of them is not, it will show up in the Saar negotiations now starting.

The settlement of the Trieste issue...after much diplomatic maneuvering...reminds me of a bit of advice Mark Twain once gave: "A statesman, he said, gains little by the arbitrary exercise of iron-clad authority upon all occasions, for this wounds the just pride of his subordinates and thus tends to undermine his strength. A little concession, now and then, where it can do no harm, is the wiser policy."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
CBS RADIO NETWORK

TUESDAY, October 5, 1954
7:45-8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

The four thousand American troops in Trieste will start moving out at once. Major General Dabney, our commander in Trieste, made this announcement today after Italy and Yugoslavia initialed agreements ending their nine-year dispute. The Trieste territory will be divided just about the way the occupation boundaries were set-up in 1945. Italy will get the key Adriatic port of Trieste and Yugoslavia will retain the zone she occupied at the end of World War Two. In a few minutes I'd like to discuss the settlement of this issue which Secretary of State Dulles says should open a new era of political tranquility...and increase the security of all free European nations.

In France today, Andre Baranes, a confessed Communist spy, said that last month Communist Boss Jacques Duclos turned down an offer of military secrets. Baranes says Duclos told him he already had more complete information. Baranes has admitted passing on to the Communists the proceedings of the French National Defense Committee during the seige of Dien Bien Phu.

Syria porposed today that Israel be thrown out of the United Nations unless Israel goes along with the General Assembly's original partition plan for Palestine.

And at the U.N. today, Ambassador Lodge accused Soviet Delegate Vishinsky of making "a gratuitous and wildly inaccurate" charge that our navy is responsible for attacks on shipping off the Communist China Coast. Vishinsky had said we must share, with the Chinese Nationalists, responsibility for action off the Communist coast...because we control those waters. Lodge today that Vishinsky is "totaly incapable of documentating his charge or producing any facts to show" American responisbility.

In Washington today the Senate Banking Committee heard a witness charge that Clyde L. Powell demanded, and was paid, 10-thousand dollars in cash to approve an increase in a federal housing administration loan committment. The witness was Albert Cassell, a Washington architect. Powell was formerly the director of rental housing for the F.H.A. Powell took the stand again today and refused, as he has in the past, to answer any questions. He claimed his constitutional right under the fifth amendment to avoid giving testimony that might incriminate him. Earlier, the committee heard a Washinton book-maker testify that Powell bet 100 to 120-dollars a day on horses "almost every day" over a nine-month period in 1940 and 41. And a member of the General Accounting Office said Powell deposited 138-thousand dollars more than he received in governemnt salary in this ten year period before he was fired.

The Navy said today that there will be at least a three month delay in the trials of the atomic submarine Nautilus. This is due to construction trouble which came to light when a steam pipe burst aboard the sub last month.

The White House, in Denver, announced today that the President has calld Republican congressional leaders to meet with him on Friday.. just before the President makes a radio and television campaign speech. White House News Secretary Snyder says this speech will be "the most important single event in the Republican campaign." And he says that in addition to politics the President will discuss the international situation with the congressional leaders.

Democratic Chairman Mitchell charged today that Vice President Nixon is now taking Senator McCarthy's place as "the chief slanderer of the Democratic party.

Texas Democratic Governor Shivers said today that "for the last time" the national political parties have made the South "crawl in humiliating submission." Shivers says the South has for too long been ignored by one great party and too quickly forgotten by the other. He calls on all 48 states to join in a battle for state's rights which he calls "the last great safeguard of our individual liberty."

Here in New York today, the International Longshoremen's Association called a strike that has brought almost all port activities to a standstill. Seventy-one ships were caught in New York's port. The dispute apparently concerns a contract argument over retroactive pay and arbitration.

The C.I.O. today ordered an immediate investigation to halt racketeering or other abuses of welfare funds by member unions. And the C.I.O. has pledged its full co-operation with "legitimate" government inquiries into alleged union welfare fund frauds.

In Baltimore today firm action by school and police officials seemed to have ended demonstrations against the mingling of white and negroe students in Baltimore Schools. But in Washington protests against the integration of students spread to nine schools. And school officials reported that more than 28-hundred students were absent at one time or another from three high schools and six junior highs. About 100 white boys and girls congregated in front of the Supreme Court building but they left quickly under police orders.

The settlement of the Trieste issue is notable largely because it effects international relations in Middle and Southern Europe. In itself it is important only, because it disposes of a dangerous prestige issue.

It had become one of the most inflammable of these issues in Europe. Intrinsically the future of Trieste is no great international concern. The British and American occipation troops are to be withdrawn, and replaced in three weeks by Italian troops. Italy keeps most of Zone One, Yugoslavia all of Zone Two and a bit more. Trieste will suffer economically. It may not have it so good as it had with eight thousand well-paid foreign soldiers in the town. Now it loses its international status, becomes the seventh ranking Italian port and its standard of living will go down. If it weren't for the prestige involved, the Italians would not be flying flags. They would silently accept the fact that they are losing what the Allies promised them at the time of the first DeGasperi election, which was the whole of the disputed territory, not just part of Zone One.

Tito's subjects were not as jubilant as the Italians. The agreement closely resembles the one announced just a year ago, which caused Tito to move up troops and bring negotiations to a sudden stop. There is a slight gain for Tito. He gets a slice of Zone One at Lazaretto. And he does not sign away future claims. But in reality he gains nothing of consequence, beyond a permanent right to Zone Two.

My colleague Alexander Kendrick vouches for it, in a cable from Vienna, that this agreement could have been signed at any date desired since July, and says it was saved up for its effect on the heels of an agreement on Germany. He calls it the second blow of the West's one-two punch, and demonstrates that the Western Alliance not only can prevent its breakdown but can go forward to solidify its unity. He foresees not only that Italy's relations with the West will be strengthened. A mutual defense pact between Yugoslavia and Britain, and perhaps other Western powers, anticipated at the time of Tito's visit to London, may not become a reality.

Tito is not expected to join NATO, but he has expressed himself in recent private talks with Western visitors, as being interested in joining the Brussels treaty. The Brussels Treaty organization has now become closely linked with NATO, so Yugoslavia, if it should join, would be virtually part of the NATO system.

That is one of the international possibilities opened up by the Trieste agreement. Another is, that Italy will join the Balkan defense system set up by Yugoslavia, Turkey and Greece. Italy wants this, so does Turkey.

Greece is less willing, though Marshall Papagos favors it, and probably can carry his parliament with him. Tito may have some trouble persuading his public to accept Italy, but he has been openly hinting at eventual Italian inclusion. Kendrick remarks that if Tito can get away with normalizing relations with the Soviet Union and its satellites, he should be able to succeed in normalizing relations with Italy.

It may be, as Kendrick suggests, that the Trieste settlement was saved up, to add emphasis to Western strength at a dramatic moment. But it is not irrelevant to point to another prestige issue is resolved, whose influence on the future of Europe can be far greater than Trieste. It is the Saar.

There may be a pattern in Western policy. But surely there is one in Soviet policy too. At Geneva Foreign Minister Molotov had a long private talk with Premier Mendez-France. He is believed to have impressed him with his ambitious plan for a four-power conference on the major issues of Europe. Molotov is said to have insisted on the defeat of any plans to put a German army in the Western European defense system. But he is believed to have offered in exchange a generous peace in Indochina and a right-about face on the Western offers of disarmament.

France did get fairly generous peace terms in Indochina. France also rejected the European Defense community. Vishinsky made his speech on disarmament at the U.N. assembly last week. It may be sheer coincidence but on the day of that speech Mendez-France nearly broke up the London conference with his demands for controls of German arms and munitions. Eden had made French resistance unrealistic by the historic pledge to keep four British divisions on the continent. Yet up to the last minute before signing, Mendez-France was reported to be wavering.

Now comes the big test. It is the Saar issue, so hard to settle because it is a prestige issue, so much harder than the issue of Trieste. It may be quite unfair to string events together in this way to see a possible design in them. But it is not unfair to say that if the Saar issue is settled it will be proof that both Mendez-France and Dr. Adenauer are solidly behind the London defense program. And if either of them is not, it will show up in the Saar negotiations now starting.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a moment with the Word for today. But first, Bob Dixon.

DIXON: SCHERILL

MURROW: The settlement of the Trieste issue...after much diplomatic maneuvering...reminds me of a bit of advice Mark Twain once gave: "A statesman, he said, gains little by the arbitrary exercise of iron-clad authority upon all occasions, for this wounds the just pride of his subordinates and thus tends to undermine his strength. A little concession, now and then, where it can do no harm, is the wiser policy."

Good Night and Good Luck.

~~Thursday~~ ~~Oct 7~~ 1954.
Wed Oct 6

This is the news:

Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov today again called for negotiations with the western powers..toward removing all occupation forces from Germany. In an East Berlin speech Molotov said this would pave the way for eventual unification of Germany. I'd like to discuss Molotov's proposal in a few minutes.

In West Germany, Chancellor Adenauer's opponents..the Socialists.. were jubiliant over Molotov's expressed willingness to discuss "any new proposals" for all-German elections. The Socialists say this shows some sort of Russian retreat. They want the West to seize Molotov's offer. There was no comment from West German government officials.

At the United Nations today India proposed the start of direct negotiations by east and west Germans on the matter of unifying their country. The Indian delegate, Krishna Menon, also said his country will offer a plan to unify Korea. And he said Communist China must have a place in international conferences on Southeast Asia, on disarmament and other major problems if a lasting peace settlement is to be made.

Also at the United Nations today Isreal offered to enter into a series of non-aggression pacts with her Arab neighbors. Isreal proposes this as a first step toward ending mounting tension in the Middle East. Ambassador Eban urged nations outside of this area not to provoke an arms race in the Middle East "by premature and especially one-sided military arrangements."

In France today the cabinet authorized Premier Mendez-France to put "an eventual confidence vote" to the National Assembly.. based on the 9-power ~~Bong~~ London agreement for German re-armament and unification. And Mendez-France told an Assembly committee: Germany will be re-armed with or without Fench approval. The western allies are now waiting to see whether France will go along with them.

The French Communist leader, Jacques Duclos, today told a magistrate that he never did receive military secrets from an admitted police informer. And Duclos accused the informer...Andre Baranes..of being in the pay of what he called "an American organization." Baranes said he delivered secrets to Duclos.

In Washington today, Clyde Powell, the former federal housing administration official, said the attacks on him are just "politics." Attorney General Brownell has set-up a special division in the Justice Department to handle prosecution of housing cases. And Chairman Capehart of the Senate Banking Committee threatened to cite for contempt Alfred Kaskell, a New York builder who received almost 32-million dollars in Federal Housing Administration mortgages.

Washington school authorities said today that students who are absent while demonstrating against the integration of Negro and white students, will be ineligible to play on school teams and will not be permitted to enjoy other school "honors"...unless they're back in class by Friday morning. School Superintendent Hobart Corning acted after about 50 white students assembled before the Supreme Court building chanting "we want our rights." Corning appealed to parents to "use their mature leadership in ending a situation which has now become disagraceful and dangerous."

Chairman Kearns of a House education sub-committee said today that a survey of the nation indicates that from ten to twelve billion ~~(eq)~~ dollars are needed to place all school children in adequate classrooms. Kearns says the government program of contributing to school needs has proved satisfactory. He feels this has helped to prove that school construction is the answer to any phase of federal assistance to education.

The C.I.O. executive committee charged today that the President's economic program has been "a complete fizzle". The C.I.O. predicts this will be a major issue in the congressional election campaign.

Here in New York, 25-thousand striking longshoremen started going back to work after a two-day strike. Union leaders call it a clear-cut victory in their demands for retroactive wages and welfare payments. In return, the union agreed not to strike for 45 days. Officials say "everybody will be back to work tomorrow morning."

In Michigan City, Indiana, 39 prison guards have been suspended for ten days. These guards and others went on strike at the Indiana State Prison for better wages and working conditions. A State official calls the walkout a fizzle...says there's no need to call the militia.

Former President Hoover today returned to the Commerce Department where he spent eight years as secretary. He said these years..from 1921 to 1928..were "the happiest period of my life." And Mr. Hoover, speaking at a reunion of 871 persons who worked in the department when he was there said we are faced with a fortunate time in American history. He said: "During the past few years, scientific discovery, new inventions, improvements and methods have produced an industrial revolution in the United States. The productivity of the individual American has expanded fabulously in this very short period so that today our

Edward R. Murrow: October 6, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

Russian Foreign Minister Molotov made an important speech in Berlin tonight. He spoke before East German officials and representatives from a dozen Communist countries, including China. It was the Russian response to the London agreement to re-arm West Germany. The time was right, the place was right, the only question is whether the price was right. What Mr. Molotov offered was this: he said the Soviet Government declares today that it proposes anew to the Governments of the United States, Britain and France to conclude an agreement on the withdrawal of occupation troops from the territory of East and West Germany, and to solve this question immediately. Molotov said the acceptance of this proposal would ease the situation of the population in East as well as in West Germany for re-unification of the country.

Molotov also offered to discuss with the Western Powers their earlier proposals for free all-German elections. Molotov contended that the London decisions made German unification impossible - greatly increased the danger of a European war. He denounced again "aggressive circles in the United States", which he claimed were fostering a policy leading to a new war. He made it clear that his suggestion - immediate withdrawal of the occupation troops, and talks about free elections - were designed to block the London agreement on re-arming West Germany.

The White House said tonight the Russian proposal is another typical Russian trick. There is nothing new in it. If all troops were withdrawn from Germany it would leave East Germany with a tremendous police force, far in excess of the West German military organization. News Secretary Snyder said: "I don't believe there will be any comment from the President on this. It's just another old Russian trick." That is precisely what it is, but the question remains whether it will work. It is to be noted that Molotov offered inducements rather than making threats. The West Germans were offered something, instead of being threatened with something. Molotov held out the bait of the immediate withdrawal of the armies of occupation from both zones, and another four-power conference to talk about German unification.

The question isn't Molotov's sincerity, but whether the bait will be taken. Any occupied country has a burning desire for the armies of occupation to go home. Any divided country would like to be re-united. If Molotov can persuade enough people that another four-power conference has a reasonable chance of arriving at a German peace treaty, then he will have served his purpose, whether the conference is actually held or not.

His objective is to block, or at least delay the actual carrying out of the London agreements.

Molotov has at least three things in his favor as he makes this crucial gamble: the desire of most Germans for unification at practically any price. The second is the bait of peaceful co-existence with the prospect of markets for German goods stretching all the way to the China Sea. The third is the feeling of a great many Europeans that despite Anglo-American pledges of continuing participation in Continental defense, the time will come when isolationist pressure and budgetary pressure will reduce such participation.

Russian policy in the last couple of years has become highly predictable. They are obviously hoping that soft talk, the prospect of unification and the occupation armies going home, will influence a good many Germans, and will once again divide the ranks of the Western Powers. Those ranks, although apparently closed by the London agreements, may not be as solid as they seem. Mistrust and suspicion of the Germans will be a long time a-dying.

We may all be convinced, as this reporter is, that no offer Molotov makes can really bring about the re-unification of Germany. We may believe that the Russians not only don't want it, and will do anything to prevent it. Nevertheless, they must play the game of trying to persuade the Germans that they will allow it. The Russians must be expected to use every means to check German re-armament, short of war. But Molotov wasn't talking to us, or to Mr. Dulles and Mr. Eden. He was talking to the French Assembly, the German Bundestag and the Social Democrats, as well as to Dutch and Belgian Socialists and any number of other groups in Europe which will have the final say in the matter.

Clearly this is another Russian effort to buy time with words.

standard of living, despite all its burdens, is steadily advancing."

Republican Senator Bridges of New Hampshire said in his home state, that he is tired of being afraid of the Russians "and it is about time that the Russians started to be afraid of us." Bridges said: "I truly believe, that the only hope of peace for us is to return to the principles which made this nation great; to cease appeasement; to cease compromise on fundemntal principles."

Edward R. Murrow: October 6, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

Russian Foreign Minister Molotov made ~~an important~~ speech in Berlin tonight. He spoke before East German officials and representatives from a dozen Communist countries, including China. It was the Russian response to the London agreement to re-arm West Germany. The time was right, the place was right, the only question is whether the price was right. What Mr. Molotov offered was this: he said "the Soviet Government declares today that it proposes anew to the Governments of the United States, Britain and France to conclude an agreement on the withdrawal of occupation troops from the territory of East and West Germany, and to solve this question immediately. Molotov said the acceptance of this proposal would ease the situation of the population in East as well as in West Germany for re-unification of the country.

Molotov also offered to discuss with the Western Powers their earlier proposals for free all-German elections. Molotov contended that the London decisions made German unification impossible - greatly increased the danger of a European war. He denounced again "aggressive circles in the United States", which he claimed were fostering a policy leading to a new war. He made it clear that his suggestions - immediate withdrawal of the occupation troops, and talks about free elections - were designed to block the London agreement on re-arming West Germany.

The White House said tonight, the Russian proposal is "another typical Russian trick. There is nothing new in it." If all troops were withdrawn from Germany, it would leave East Germany with a tremendous police force, far in excess of the West German military organization. News Secretary Snyder said: "I don't believe there will be any comment from the President on this. It's just another old Russian trick." That is precisely what it is, but the question remains whether it will work. It is to be noted that Molotov offered inducements, rather than making threats. The West Germans were offered something, instead of being threatened with something. Molotov held out the bait of the immediate withdrawal of the armies of occupation from both zones, and another four-power conference to talk about German unification.

The question isn't Molotov's sincerity, but whether the bait will be taken. Any occupied country has a burning desire for the armies of occupation to go home. Any divided country would like to be re-united. If Molotov can persuade enough people, that another four-power conference has a reasonable chance of arriving at a German peace treaty, then he will have served his purpose, whether the conference is actually held or not.

His objective is to block, or at least delay the actual carrying out of the London agreements.

Molotov has at least three things in his favor as he makes this crucial gamble: the desire of most Germans for unification at practically any price. The second is the bait of peaceful co-existence with the prospect of markets for German goods stretching all the way to the China Sea. The third is the feeling of a great many Europeans that despite Anglo-American pledges of continuing participation in Continental defense, the time will come when isolationist pressure and budgetary pressure will reduce such participation.

Russian policy in the last couple of years has become highly predictable. They are obviously hoping that soft talk, the prospect of unification and the occupation armies going home, will influence a good many Germans, and will once again divide the ranks of the Western Powers. Those ranks, although apparently closed by the London agreements, may not be as solid as they seem. Mistrust and suspicion of the Germans will be a long time a-dying.

We may all be convinced, as this reporter is, that no offer Molotov makes can really bring about the re-unification of Germany. We may believe that the Russians not only don't want it, ~~and~~ but will do anything to prevent it. Nevertheless, they must play the game of trying to persuade the Germans that they will allow it. The Russians must be expected to use every means to check German re-armament, short of war. But Molotov wasn't talking to us, or to Mr. Dulles and Mr. Eden. He was talking to the French Assembly, the German Bundestag and the Social Democrats, as well as to Dutch and Belgian Socialists and any number of other groups in Europe which will have the final say in the matter.

Clearly this is another Russian effort to buy time with words.

The Russians, as they have frequently done in the past, are doing all that they can to burn up time, to delay the re-arming of Germany. For they know, as Charles Dickens pointed out:"Time is money - and very good money too, to those who reckon interest by it." But while these delaying tactics go on, we would do well to follow this warning from Shakespeare:"Make use of time; let not advantage slip."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
CBS RADIO NETWORK

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 6, 1954
7:45--8:00 P.M.

This is the news:

Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov today again called for negotiations with the western powers...toward removing all occupation forces from Germany. In an East Berlin speech Molotov said this would pave the way for eventual unification of Germany. I'd like to discuss Molotov's proposal in a few minutes.

In West Germany, Chancellor Adenauer's opponents...the Socialists.. were jubilant over Molotov's expressed willingness to discuss "any new proposals" for all-German elections. The Socialists say this shows some sort of Russian retreat. They want the West to seize Molotov's offer. here was no comment from West Germany Governemnt officials.

At the United Nateions today India proposed the start of direct negotiations by east and west Germans on the matter of unifying their country. The Indian delegate, Krishna Menon, also said his country will offer a plan to unify Korea. And he said Communist China must have a place in international conferences on Southeast Asia, on disarmament and other major problems is a lasting peace settlement is to me made.

Also at the United Nations today, Israel offered to enter into a series on non-aggression pacts with her Arab neighbors. Israel proposalsthis as a first step toward ending mounting tension in the Middle East. Ambassador Eban urged nations outside of this area not to provoke an arms race in the Middle East "by premature and especially one-sided milit [illegible] arrangements."

In France today the cabinet authorized Premier Mendez-France to put "an eventual confidence vote" to the National Assembly...based on the 9-power London agreement for German re-armament and unification. And Mendez-France told an Assembly committee: Germany will be re-armed with or without French approval. The western allies are now waiting to see whether France will go along with them.

The French Communist leader, Jacques Duclos, today told a magistrate that he never did receive military secrets from an admitted police informer and Duclos accused the informer...Andre Baranes..of being in the pay of what he called "an American organization." Baranes said he delivered secrets to Duclos.

In Washington today, Clyde Powell, the former federal housing administration official, said the attacks on him are just "politics". Attorney General Brownell has set-up a special division in the Justice Department to handle prosecution of housing cases. And Chairman Capehart of the Senate Banking Committee threatened to cite for contempt Alfred Kaskell, a New York builder who received almost 32-million dollars in Federal Housing Administration mortgages.

Washington school authorities said today that students who are absent while demonstrating against the integration of Negroe and white students, will be ineligible to play on school teams and will not be permitted to enjoy other school "honors"..unless they're back in class by Friday morning. School Superintendent Hobart Corning acted after 50 white students assembled before the Supreme Court building chanting "we want our rights". Corning appealed to parents to "use their mature leadership in ending a situation which has now become disgraceful and dangerous."

Chairman Kearns of a House education sub-committee said today that a survey of the nation indicates that from ten to twelve billion dollars are needed to place all school children in adequate classrooms. Kearns says the governemnt porgram of contributing ot school needs has proved satisfactory. He feels this has helped to prove that school construction is the answer to any phase of federal assistance to education.

The C.I.O. executive committee charged today that the President's economic program has been "a complete fizzle". The C.I.O. predicts this will be a major issue in the Congressional election campaign.

Here in New York, 25-thousand striking longshoremen started going back to work after a two-day strike. Union leaders call it a clear-cut victory in their demands for retroactive wages and welfare payments. In return, the union agreed not to strike for 45 days. Officials day "everybody will be back to work tomorrow morning."

In Michigan City, Indiana, 39 prison guards have been suspended for ten days. These guards and others went on a strike at the Indiana State Prison for better wages and working conditions. A State official calls the walkout a fizzle.. says there's no need to call the militia.

Former President Hoover today returned to the Commerce Department where he spend eight years as secretary. He said these years..from 1921 to 1928...were "the happiest period of my life." And Mr. Hoover, speaking at a reunion of 871 persons who worked in the department when he was there, said we are faced with a fortunate time in American history. He said: "During the past few years, scientific discovery, new inventions, improvements and methods have produced an industrial revolution in the United States. The productivity of the individual American has expanded fabulously in this very short period so that today our standard of living, despite all its burdens is steadily advancing.

Republican Senator Bridges of New Hampshire said in his home state that he is tired of being afraid of the Russians "and it is about time that the Russians started to be afraid of us." Bridges said "I truly believe that the only hope of peace for us is to return to the principles which made this nation great; to cease appeasement; to cease compromise on fundamental principles."

Russian Foreign Minister Molotov made a speech in Berlin tonight. He spoke before East German officials and representatives from a dozen Communist countries, including China. It was the Russian response to the London agreement to re-arm West Germany. The time was right, the place was right, the only question is, whether the price was right. What Mr. Molotov offered was this: he said the Soviet Government declares today that it proposes anew to the Governments of the United States, Britain and France to conclude an agreement on the withdrawal of occupation troops from the territory of East and West Germany, and to solve this question immediately. Molotov said the acceptance of this proposal would ease the situation of the population in East as well as in West Germany for reunification of the country.

Molotov also offered to discuss with the Western Powers their earlier proposals for free all-German elections. Molotov contended that the London decisions made German unification impossible - greatly increased the danger of a European war. He denounced again "aggressive circles in the United States", which he claimed were fostering a policy leading to a new war. He made it clear that his suggestions - immediate withdrawal of the occupation troops, and talks about free elections - were designed to block the London agreement on re-arming West Germany.

The White House said tonight the Russian proposal is "another typical Russian trick. There is nothing new in it." If all troops were withdrawn from Germany it would leave East Germany with a tremendous police force, far in excess of the West German military organization. News Secretary Snyder said: "I don't believe there will be any comment from the President on this. It's just another old Russian trick." That is precisely what it is, but the question remains whether it will work. It is to be noted that Molotov offered inducements rather than making threats. The West Germans were offered something, instead of being threatened with something. Molotov held out the bait of the immediate withdrawal of the armies of occupation from both zones, and another four-power conference to talk about German unification.

The question isn't Molotov's sincerity, but whether the bait will be taken. Any occupied country has a burning desire for the armies of occupation to go home. And divided country would like to be re-united. If Molotov can Persuade enough people that another four-power conference has a reasonable chance of arriving at a German peace treaty, then he will have served his purpose, whether the conference is actually held or not. His Objective is to block, or at least delay the actual carrying out of the London agreements.

Molotov has at least three things in his favor as he makes this crucial gamble: the desire of most Germans for unification at practically any price. The second is the bait of peaceful co-existence with the prospect of markets for German goods stretching all the way to the China sea. The third is the feeling of a great many Europeans that despite Anglo-American pledges of continuing participation in Continental defense, the time will come when isolationist pressure and budgetary pressure will reduce such participation.

Russian policy in the last couple of years had become highly predictable. They are obviously hoping that soft talk, the prospect of unification and the occupation armies going home, will influence a good many Germans, and will once again divide the ranks of the Western Powers. Those ranks, although apparently closed by the London agreements, may not be as solid as they seem. Mistrust and suspicion of the Germans will be a long time a-dying.

We may all be convinced, as this reporter is, that no offer Molotov makes can really bring about the reunification of Germany. We may believe that the Russians not only don't want it but will do anything to prevent it. Nevertheless, they must play the game of trying to persuade the Germans that they will allow it. The Russians must be expected to use every means to check German re-armament, short of war.

But Molotov wasn't talking to us, or to Mr. Dulles and Mr. Eden. He was talking to the French Assembly, the German Bundestag and the Social Democrats, as well as to the Dutch and Belgain Socialists and any number of other groups in Europe which will have the final say in the matter.

Clearly this is another Russian effort to buy time with words.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a moment with the Word for today. But first, Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: The Russians, as they have frequently done in the past, are doing all that they can to burn up time, to delay the re-arming of Germany. For they know, as Charles Dickens pointed out: "Time is money - and very good money too, to those who reckon interest by it." But while these delaying tactics go on, we could do well to follow this warning from Shakespeare: "Make use of time; let not advantage slip."

Good Night and Good Luck.

Thursday Oct 2, 1954

This is the news:

Vice President Nixon says the President will make a third major political speech before the November election. But MR. EISENHOWER is determined not to barnstorm on behalf of any individual Republican candidates. After meeting with the President in Denver, Mr. Nixon told reporters: he feels the President has been playing "exactly the right role" in the campaign... and will continue to play that role. In addition to tomorrow's nights radio-television address and one on election eve the President will make another big speech sometime this month. The Vice President feels it would be a mistake for the President to get personally involved in any local campaigns. He feels it will be a difficult fight for the Republicans but is confident they will win. And in answer to Democratic charges that as a Senator , Mr. Nixon in ten cases voted against positions the President has taken, Nixon said: "The President had looked over his record very carefully in 1952." Nixon says the Democrats are "swinging wildly and getting hysterical."

Another prominent Republican, Senator Knowland of California, said today he'd like to see the President take "on a heavier schedule of campaigning."

~~Also at Chicago, hog prices sank to a new low for the year. losses ranged from 25 to 50 cents a hundred pounds.~~

The government reported today that during September unemployment continued its gradual seasonal decline... the job picture remained stable for a third straight month.

The Atomic Energy Commission says it has approved "the form" of a controversial contract with the Dixon-Yates power group. And Chairman Langer of A Senate anti-monopoly committee and Democratic Senator Kefauver say the commission has not shown "the proper respect" for the subcommittee.

Attorney General Brownell says he will take prompt action against anyone who violates federal law in STUDENT strikes against the integration of white and Negro PUPILS. Washington school officials say a four-day student strike there is "busted."

A Federal Jury today accused Own Lattimore of lying when he testified that he has not been a follower of the Communist line..and has not been a promoter of Communist interests. The government sought the new indictment because the heart of a previous indictment against Lattimore was thrown out of court. This accused him of lying when he denied that he was a Communist sympathizer or any other kind of ~~promoter~~ (PROMOTER) of Communist interests. Lattimore issued a statement saying: he is a loyal American who has followed the dictates of his own conscience and not the commands of any foreign system. He added: "The indictment lays bare the fact that this prosecution is a direct and immediate threat to anyone and everyone who has ever written or spoken of foreign affairs and whom the government choses to attack for political reasons." Lattimore says the indictment's definition of a follower of the Communist line "includes anyone who expresses an opinion knowing that opinion is also shared by Russia." Lattimore says under this definition President Eisenhower and former Presidents Truman and Roosevelt could be cited for perjury.

A Senate committee investigating the housing situation, was told today that Democratic Representative Preston of Georgia made a net profit of more than 47-thousand dollars on an ~~investigation~~ INVESTMENT of approiximately 23-hundred dollars. Mayor William Bowen of Statesboro, Georgia..Preston's home town..said he held a one-third hidden interest in a housing firm on behalf of Preston. And Preston says at no time has he used his office to influence any official.

In West Germany today, Chancellor Adenauer won overwhelming parliamentary support in the Lower House for the western plan to bring Germany into the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. This was, in effect, a vote of confidence in Adenauer.

French Premier Mendez-France appealed to his National Assembly for approval of the London program. He said France must not retreat into isolation.. and cannot resist the unanimous London decision.

British Foreign Secretary Eden told his Conservative Party that Moscow has made every effort to draw the Germans to their side and prevent the allies from drawing Germany to the West. Eden said:"The Russians have consistently refused to agree to Germany being united except on terms which would result in a Communist minority being given power to subvert the whole state."

And in East Berlin today, Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov said again: the London plan is the main hinderance to re-uniting Germany... the west wants to keep Germany divided.

On Formosa today, Chiang Kai Shek told a reporter that if Russia intervened in any Nationalist invasion of Red China... his armies could whip the Russians. Chiang says this could be done because the Chinese people would rise and fight against the Soviets.

In Washington today there were reports that the United States has suggested to the Nationalists that they cease their attacks on Chinese Communist targets...in line with our policy to give Chiang Kai-Shek encouragement and assistance in defense... but to discourage him from other operations.

And here in New York, the Metropolitan Opera says it has signed Marian Anderson, the American contralto, to sing in an opera in January. She will be the first Negro singer ever to appear with a Metropolitan cast.

Edward R. Murrow: October 7, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

From time to time we have contended that it is necessary, even for those of us who work in radio and television, to be able to read - especially books. / There is a book recently published which is not pleasant reading; but it seems to this reporter to be important reading. / The title is: "Power and Policy". It is written by Thomas K. Finletter, and his credentials for writing it are very considerable. He was Special Assistant to the Secretary of State from '41 to '44. He was Secretary of the Air Force from '50 to '53. He has a wide knowledge and experience of diplomatic, economic and military affairs.

Mr. Finletter contends that unless we mend our ways, the supremacy in air atomic power which up to now has been ours, will shift to the Russians. He thinks this point will be reached during the year 1956. / He records the time when we were safe because we had the atom bomb and the Russians didn't. But in what he calls the second phase, the big bombs in Russian hands will become a vital threat to our safety. / When the Russian power becomes generally known, it may have a damaging effect on the will to resist in some nations that are still free. Mr. Finletter foresees a third phase, which will come in the early 1960's and possibly before - the supersonic guided missiles with hydrogen warheads.

He believes that the Russians may before long be in a position to strike the total blow against this country. When they ~~are~~ will be in a position to destroy our cities and industries, and simultaneously knock out enough of our air bases to prevent an overwhelming counter-attack. And he says the Russians are very busy working on a plan to do just that.

Mr. Finletter reminds us of a fact which apparently never really penetrated the public mind, in spite of much reporting on the subject from Korea, when he says the Russian-built MIG 15 is a first-class fighter, which in some respects gave better performance in Korea than the F 86 Sabre Jet.

We ought to give up the idea that the mere utterance of threats to use our atomic power can block the expansionist urge of the Chinese.

Mr. Finletter protests vigorously against the system of compromises which splits up the dollars available for the armed services between the Army, Navy and Air Force. This book is, quite frankly, special pleading for a massive increase in our air power. To those who contend we can't afford it, Mr. Finletter replies: "If we accept the proposition that there are certain ground divisions, or naval or air units which are indispensable to our national safety, it follows that we have to pay the price of having these forces, whatever this price may be."

The contention is that this nation can afford to pay whatever must be paid as the price of survival. Finletter dismisses the argument that atomic weapons are so terrible that they won't be used. And to those who point out that poison gas wasn't used in the last war, he says: "Gas is a special weapon for special conditions, and is not a decisive weapon".

He traces the history of efforts to achieve collective security or enforced peace, and concludes that the lesson of history is that when international organizations, which were the symbol of high hopes at the war's end, fail, the ~~root~~ route becomes fixed toward the next great war. He contends that we can't hide behind the admitted difficulty of dealing with the Russians; if there is a fraction of a percent of a chance that we might get the Russians to accept the plan we have not yet offered ~~XXXXXXXXXXXX~~ ~~XXX~~ the government of the United States owes it to the people of the country to take advantage of this possibility. The failure of the U.S. Government to drive hard for an enforced peace gives a first-class case to those who want a preventive war.

Mr. Finletter says: "There seems to be almost no doubt but that the known weapons of today, and of the future, may well, unless controlled, destroy the United States." Mr. Finletter demands that the American Government produce a plan for enforced disarmament. He says it "would be a shocker, because it would have to be enforceable against us as well as against Russia and against the rest of the world."

This book, "Power and Policy" will be regarded by some as "a shocker". There was a time in the history of warfare when soldiers being operated upon without anasthetics were given a bullet to bite upon. You may disagree with some of Tom Finletter's contentions and conclusions, but he has provided us with the bullet, and a warning.

Upon very rare occasions we attempt to sell a book. This is our effort to do so. The title is "Power and Policy", by Thomas K. Finletter.

~~[illegible]~~

This reporter has no financial interest in this book or the house that published it - merely a belief that it will cause you furiously to think.

We were talking of Thomas Finletter's new book: "Power and Policy." You will find in it some provocative reading - written by a man qualified to speak his mind. It was Emerson who once said:"Talent alone can not make a writer. There must be a man behind the book." That's true in this case, as is Longfellow's observation that "what a writer asks of his reader is not so much to like as to listen."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
CBS RADIO NETWORK

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 7, 1954
7:45-8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

Vice President Nixon says the President will make a third major political speech before the November election. But Mr. Eisenhower is determined not to barnstorm on behalf of any individual Republican candidates. After meeting with the President in Denver, Mr. Nixon told reporters: he feels the President has been playing "exactly the right role" in the campaign...and will continue to play that role. In addition to tomorrow night's radio-television address and one on election eve, the President will make another big speech sometime this month. The Vice President feels it would be a mistake for the President to get personally involved in any local campaigns. He feels it will be a difficult fitht for the Republicans but is confident they will win. And in answer to Democratic charges that as a Senator, Mr. Nixon in ten cases voted against positions the President has taken, Nixon said: The President had looked over his record very carefully in 1952. Nixon says the Democrats are "swinging wildly and getting hysterical".

Another prominent Republican, Senator Knowland of California, said today he'd like to see the President take "on a heavier schedule of campaigning."

The government reported today that during September unemployment continued its gradual seasonal decline...the job picture remained stable for a third straight month.

The Atomic Energy Commission says it has approved "the form" of a controversial contract with the Dixon-Yates power group. And Chairman Langer of a Senate anti-monopoly committee and Democratic Senator Kefauver says the commission has not shown "the proper respect" for the subcommittee.

Attorney General Brownell says he will take prompt action against anyone who violates federal law in student strikes against the integration of white and Negroe pupils. Washington school officials say a four-day student strike there is "busted."

A Federal Jury today accused Owen Lattimore of lying when he testified that he has not been a follower of the Communist line...and has not been a promoter of Communist interests. The governemnt sought the new indictment because the heart of a previous indictment against Lattimore was thrown out of court. This accused him of lying when he denied that he was a Communist sympathizer or any other kind of promoter of Communist interests Lattimore issued a statement saying: he is a loyal American who has followed the dictates of his own conscience and not the commands of any foreign system. He added: "The indictment lays bare the fact that this prosecution is a direct and immediate threat to anyone and everyone who has ever written or spoken of foreign affairs and whom the governemnt chooses to attack for political reasons." Lattimore says the indictment's definition of a follower of the Communist line "includes anyone who expresses an opinion knowing that opinion is also shared by Russia." Lattimore says under this definition President Eisenhower and former Presidents Truman and Roosevelt could be cited for perjury.

A Senate committee investigating the housing situation, was told today that Democratic Representative Preston of Georgia made a net profit of more than 47-thousand dollars on an investment of approximately 23-hundred dollars. Mayor William Bowen of Statesboro, Georgia..Preston's home town..said he held a one-third hidden interest in a housing firm on behalf of Preston. And Preston says at no time has he used his office to influence any official.

In West Germany today, Adenauer won overwhelming parliamentary support in the Lower House for the western plan to bring Germany into the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. This was, in effect, a vote of confidence in Adenauer.

French Premier Mendez-France appealed to his National Assembly for approval of the London program. He said France must not retreat into isolation...and cannot resist the unanimous London decision.

British Foreign Secretary Eden told his Conservative Party that Moscow has made every effort to draw the Germans to their side and prevent the allies from drawing Germany to the West. Eden said:"The Russians have consistently refused to agree to Germany being united except on terms which would result in a Communist minority being given power to subvert the whole state. "

And in East Berlin today, Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov said again: the London plan is the main hinderance to re-uniting Germany...the West wants to keep Germany divided.

On Formosa today Chiang Kai Shek told a reporter that if Russia intervened in any Nationalist invasion of Red China...his armies could whip the Russians. Chiang says this could be done because the Chinese people would rise and fight against the Soviets.

In Washington today there were reports that the United States has suggested to the Nationalists that they cease their attacks on Chinese Communist targets...in line with our policy to give Chiang Kai Shek encouragement and assistance in defense...but to discourage him from other operations.

And here in New York, the Metropolitan Opera says it has signed Marian Anderson, the American contralto, to sing in an opera in January, She will be the first Negro singer ever to appear with a Metropolitan cast.

From time to time we have contended that it is necessary, even for those of us who work in radio and television, to be able to read - especially books. There is a book recently published which is not pleasant reading; but it seems to this reporter to be important reading. The title is: "Power and Policy". It is written by Thomas K. Finletter, and his credentials for writing it are very considerable. He was special Assistant to the Secretary of State from '41 to '44. He was Secretary of the Air Force from '50 to '53. He has a wide knowledge and experience of diplomatic, economic and military affairs.

Mr. Finletter contends that unless we mend our ways, the supremacy in air atomic power which up to now has been ours, will shift to the Russians. He thinks this point will be reached during the year 1956. He records the time when we were safe because we had the atom bomb and the Russians didn't. But in what he calls the second phase, the big bombs in Russian hands will become a vital threat to our safety. When the Russian power becomes generally known, it may have a damaging effect on the will to resist in some nations that are still free. Mr Finletter foresees a third phase, which will come in the early 1960's and possibly before - the supersonic guided missiles with hydrogen warheads.

He believes that the Russians may before long be in a position to strike the total blow against this country. When they will be in a position to destroy our cities and industries, and simultaneously knock out enough of our air bases to prevent an overwhelming counter-attack. And he says the Russians are very busy working on a plan to do just that.

Mr. Finletter reminds us of a fact which apparently never really penetrated the public mind, in spite of much reporting on the subject from Korea, when he says the Russian-built MIG 15 is a first-class fighter, which in some respects gave better performance in Korea than the F86 Sabre Jet.

We ought to give up the idea that the mere utterance of threats to use atomic power can block the expansionist urge of the Chinese.

Mr. Finletter protests vigorously against the system of compromises which splits up the dollars available for the armed services between the Army, Navy, and Air Force. This book is, quite frankly, special pleading for a massive increase in our air power. To those who contend we can't afford it, Mr. Finletter replies: "If we accept the proposition that there are certain ground divisions, or naval or air units which are indespensable to our national safety, it follows that we have to pay the price of having these forces, whatever thes price may be."

The contention is that this nation can afford to pay whatever must be paid as the price of survival. Finletter dismisses the argument that atomic weapons are so terrible that they won't be used. And to those who point out that poison gas wasn't used in the last war, he says: "Gas is a special weapon for special conditions, and is not a decisive weapon."

He traces the history of efforts to achieve collectibe security or enforced peace, and concludes that the lesson of history is that when international organizations, which were the symbol of high hopes at the war's end fail, the route becomes fixed toward the next great war. He contends that we can't hide behind the admitted difficulty of dealing with the Russians; if there is a fraction of a percent of a chance that we might get the Russians to accept the plan we have not yet offered the government of the United States owes it to the people of the country to take advantage of this possibility . The failure of the U.S. Government to drive hard for an enforced peace gives a first-class case to those who want a preventive war.

Mr. Finletter says: "There seems to be almost no doubt but that the known weapons of today and of the future may well, unless controlled, destroy the United States." Mr. Finletter demands that the American Government produces a plan for enforced disarmament. He says it "would be a shocker, because it would have to be enforceable against us as well as against Russia and against the rest of the world."

This book, "Power and Policy" will be regarded by some as "a shocker". There was a time in the history of warfare when soldiers being operated upon without anasthetics were given a bullet to bite upon. You may disagree with some of Tom Finletter's contentions and conclusions, but he has provided us with the bullet, and a warning.

Upon very rare occasions we attempt to sell a book. This is our effort to do so. The title is "Power and Policy", by Thomas K. Finletter. This reporter has no financial interest in this book or the house that published it - merely a belief that it will cause you furiously to think.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a minute with the Word for Today, but first, Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: We were talking of Thomas Finletter's new book: "Power and Policy." You will find in it some provocative reading - written by a man qualified to speak his mind. It was Emerson who once said:"Talent alone can not can not make a writer. There must be a man behind the book." That's true in this case, as is Longfellow's observation that "what a writer asks of his reader is not so much to like as to listen."

Good Night and Good Luck.

Friday Oct 8/954

This is the news:

French Premier Mendez-France told his National Assembly today that the London agreement will bind Germany for 50 years..even if West Germany and Communist East Germany should be united. In his appeal for a free hand to negotiate the London agreement to a conclusion, the Premier hinted that America and Great Britain would go ahead without the French..if the Assembly balks. And he called for a vast agreement and a unity of deputies on this grave issue. (I'd like to discuss the German situation in a few minutes.)

The Italian Senate tonight gave Premier Scelba a 122 to 89 vote of confidence on the Italian-Yugoslav settlemenet of the Trieste quarrel. (It was the biggest vote Scleba has won since taking office last February.)

British Chancellor of the Exchequer Richard A. Butler today praised the Eisenhower Administration for helping keep the world-wide stirling area from suffering when American production slipped. He told a Conservative party conference that the wise foresight of the Eisenhower Administration kept the sterling area from suffering from a nine per cent fall in American production.

On Formosa today there was more criticism of a reported American action that has halted Nationalist attacks on Communist China. The semi-official China News says "the effect on morale and stamina of both civilians and military could be irreparable."

In Denver today, Vice President Nixon announced that the President will probably make a farm speech, somewhere in the midwest, before the November second election. Mr. Nixon says the President will appear before a non-political forum in the Middle West. Tonight, the President and the Vice President will speak to the nation. Nixon describes Mr. Eisenhower's talk as a "hard-hitting shot in the arm." for the Republican campaign.

House Speaker Martin said today he does not agree with Mr. Nixon's feeling that the President should stay out of individual congressional campaigns.

The Democrats won a victory in Nevada today when the state Supreme Court ordered an election in November to fill the unexpired term of the late DEMOCRATIC Senator McCarran. Republicans had sought to prevent a vote..to permit a Republican appointee of Republican governor RUSSELL to serve the remaining two years and three months of McCarran's term

Chairman Capehart of the Senate committee investigating federal housing practises said today "pressure" has been put on him not to investigate 60-thousand dollars in fees paid to two Washington men.. [redacted] Capehart says this pressure makes him "very suspicious" of the whole thing.

John Peurifoy, our former ambassador to Guatemala, told a House committee that Communists are still "a very real menace" in Latin America. He said the loss of their revolution in Guatemala represented a serious setback to the Kremlin and "not a final defeat."

The Senate-House atomic energy committee today decided to put-off until after the November election the controversial Dixon-Yates power contract.

Education Commissioner Samuel M. Brownell said today there is a need for a 15-million-dollar school construction program. And he believes it should be met largely on the state and local level. He said no single action by the federal government is going to take care of the problem.

The American Trucking Association today gave strong support to a proposed special federal agency to finance a 100-billion-dollar highway improvement program over the next ten years. General Lucius Clay, chairman of a special presidential committee studying highway problems, says the proposal is getting "serious consideration."

The Civil Service Commission reports that the average full-time federal employe on June 30th earned a base salary of $3,680 a year. More than three-fourths of the government's two and a third million employes earn less than 45-hundred dollars a year. Almost a fourth earn between three-thousand and thirty-five-hundred a year.

Senator McCarthy today named James Juliana to be acting staff director of his investigating committee at least until Congress meets in November. EARLIER, The committee Democrats [redacted] had told McCarthy: "We do not now consent to" the appointment.

Methodist Bishop G. Bromely Oxnam said today that those who resort to violence and refuse to obey the Supreme Court's ruling against segregation in the schools are "subversive." He said: "Resort to violence and refusal to OBEY the law is subversive and does more to undermine Democratic government than any Communist traitor can do."

Edward R. Murrow: October 8, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

In the dramatic struggle between West and East over Germany's future, it is well to see the time-table as clearly as the issues. The Nine-Power Conference reached its unanimous agreement in London last week, and usually when top ministers sit down and sign something the occasion has the ring of finality. And if the governments settled something about which they have been at odds, it seems all the more final. The London conference agreed to German re-armament after the sensational defeat of the European Defense Community by the French Assembly. London made the crumbling Western Alliance look solid again.

But on this occasion the top-level agreement cannot be considered final. It has to be accepted by the parliaments concerned, first as a policy, ultimately as a binding treaty. So one has to look at the time-table. The Bundestag and the French Assembly have been holding their debate on policy first of all. They were not debating a completed treaty, only a concept. They simply were clearing the way for a still undrafted treaty which ultimately they must ratify if Germany is to be re-armed.

The vote in the Bundestag gave Chancellor Adenauer a comfortable victory by a straight coalition majority. Only Social Democrats voted No.

In Paris tonight Premier Mendez-France called for a vote on confidence on the London agreement.. it will be held Tuesday morning.

It is necessary to stress the time-table if one is to understand the strategy being used to oppose the London agreement, for the fight is now over the time-table. The Soviet maneuvers appear to be aimed principally at postponing a decision on the agreement. Mr. Molotov timed his speech in Berlin the day before yesterday to come before yesterday's debate, and he aimed the speech directly at Germans by proposing unification and the end of foreign occupation. Mr. Molotov could hardly have hoped to have defeated the Adenauer government yesterday. Actually his speech helped the Chancellor, by convincing waverers in his coalition that they must stand by him. But he supplied the German Socialists with arguments for putting off ratification until a four-power conference is held. They made precisely the plea he must have hoped for. They insisted on a delay until it was demonstrated that a four-power conference could not succeed. And they promised that if the conference failed they would vote for re-armament.

The Kremlin hasn't won a delay yet in Bonn and isn't likely to do so in Paris right off. But this is like a chess game that hasn't reached the stage where a single move can produce the checkmate. More moves are needed. Observers foresee what moves Mr. Molotov can make. He can appear to be ready to edge toward truly free elections in Germany, whether he ~~actually~~ is ready or not. And in the United Nations, Mr. Vishinsky can appear to be ready to accept genuine control machinery over atomic production, and set it up before the ban on the manufacture of atomic weapons goes into effect. For that is the test of Soviet sincerity in accepting the Franco-British disarmament plan as a basis of discussion. He too can appear to be making concessions, whether he is really making them or not.

So far the Soviet strategy has been to suggest sensational concessions, but in the vaguest words. The vague words haven't produced the desired delay on the London agreement. But they can be made more precise. Mr. Vishinsky will face the challenge to be more precise in the debate next week of the Soviet disarmament offer. Mr. Molotov can be more precise about free elections in Germany in a new note now expected momentarily, that will propose a four-power conference. There is still time for these and other moves, for the treaties incorporating the London agreements can't be drafted or ratified for weeks.

What matters greatly in the interim is how people, as well as parliamentarians, see the situation. It is noteworthy that some of the strongest French criticism of the London agreement did not come from those who don't want Germany re-armed, but from those who want it done with still less nationalism. The fathers of the E.D.C. keep up their campaign. They don't want a German General Staff, or German divisions. They want a European Assembly elected by European voters that has final power over the Brussels Treaty Organization. They want a common European budget and an arms pool. But they do not seem ready to unseat Mendez-France if he does not insist on changes along these lines.

In the Paris debate today, these and many diverse views were heard. And in the Bundestag, too, the Socialist opposition appealed to quite contradictory elements. They played up to the pacifists who hate the prospect of conscription. They also held out hopes to the old-fashioned nationalists who think Germany may still become a great power and play East off against the West. They appealed to exiles who put unification ahead of every other interest.

It is hard to say yet whether Mr. Molotov made more friends in Germany than he lost with his speech. Much depends on how German opinion develops in the weeks ahead. Competent observers think the majority of the German people are behind the Adenauer policy today. But that is only as of today. For the competent observers also have an eye on the time-table.

The machinery of international politics is often extremely delicate. Because much that happens in diplomacy is determined by the unpredictability of the human mind. Dale Carnegie once remarked: "When dealing with people, let us remember that we are not always dealing with creatures of logic. We are dealing with creatures of emotion, creatures bustling with prejudices and motivated by pride and vanity."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

Swing October 8.

In the dramatic struggle between West and East over Germany's future, it is well to see the time-table as clearly as the issues. The Nine-Power Conference reached ~~ist~~ its unanimous agreement in London last week, and usually when top ministers sit down and sign something the occasion has the ring of finality. And ~~If~~ the governments settled something about which they have been at odds, it seems all the more final. The London conference agreed to German rearmament after the sensational defeat of the European Defense Community by the French Assembly. That made the crumbling Western Alliance look solid again.

But ~~[illegible]~~ on this occasion the top-level agreement cannot be considered final. It has to be accepted by the parliaments concerned, first as a policy, ultimately as a binding treaty. So one has to look at the time-table. The ~~[illegible]~~ Bundestag and the French Assembly ~~[illegible]~~ have been holding their debate on policy first of all. ~~[illegible]~~ ~~Historic as these [illegible]~~ ~~been it still is necessary to look at the time-table~~. They were not debating a completed treaty, only a concept. They simply were clearing the way for a still undrafted treaty which ultimately they must ratify if Germany is to be rearmed.

The vote in the Bundestag gave Chancellor

Adenauer a comfortable victory by a straight coalition majority. Only Social Democrats voted no. In Paris tonight

It is necessary to stress the time-table if one is to understand the strategy being used to oppose the London agreement, for the fight is now over the time-table. The Soviet maneuvers appear to be aimed principally at postponing a decision on the agreement. Mr. Molotov timed his speech in Berlin day before yesterday to come before yesterday's debate, and he aimed the speech directly at Germans by proposing unification and the end of foreign occupation. Mr. Molotov could hardly have hoped to have defeated the Adenauer government yesterday. Actually his speech helped the Chancellor, by convincing waverers in his coalition that they must stand by him. But he supplied the German socialists with arguments for putting off ratification until a four-power conference is held. They made precisely the plea he must have hoped for. They insisted on a delay until it was demonstrated that a four-power conference could not succeed. And they promised that if the conference failed they would vote for rearmament.

¶ The Kremlin hasn't won a delay yet in Bonn and isn't likely to do so in Paris right off. But this is like a chess game that hasn't reached the stage where a single move can produce the checkmate. More moves are needed. Observers foresee what moves Mr. Molotov can make. He can appear to be ready to edge toward truly free elections in Germany, whether he actually is ready or not. And in the United Nations, Mr. Vishinsky can appear to be ready to accept genuine control machinery over atomic production and set it up before the ban on the manufacture of atomic weapons goes into effect. For that is the test of Soviet sincerity in accepting the Franco-British disarmament plan as basis of discussion. He can appear to be making concessions whether he is really making them or not.

¶ So far the Soviet strategy has been to suggest sensational concessions, but in the vaguest words. The vague words haven't produced the desired delay on the London agreement. But they can be made more precise. Mr. Vishinsky will face the challenge to be more precise in the debate next week of the Soviet disarmament offer. Mr. Molotov can be more precise about free elections in Germany in a new note now expected momentarily, that will propose a four-power conference.

There is still time for these and other moves, for the treaties incorporating the London agreements can't be drafted or ratified for weeks.

¶ What matters greatly in the interim is how people, as well as parliamentarians, see the situation. It is noteworthy that some of the strongest French criticism of the London agreement did not come from those who don't want Germany rearmed, but from those who want it done with still less nationalism. The fathers of the EDC keep up their campaign. They don't want a German general staff, or German divisions. They want a European Assembly elected by European voters that has final power over the Brussels treaty organisation. They want a common European budget and an arms pool. But they do not seem ready to unseat Mendez-France if he does not insist on changes along these lines. ¶ In the Paris debate today these and many diverse views were heard. And in the Bundestag, too, the socialist opposition appealed to many contradictory elements. They played up to the pacifists who hate the prospect of conscription. They also held out hopes to the oldfashioned nationalists who think Germany may still become a great power and play East off against the West. They appealed to exiles who put unification ahead of every other interest.

It is hard to say yet whether Mr.Molotov made more friends in Germany than he lost with his speech. Much depends on how German opinion develops in the weeks ahead. Competent observers think the majority of the German people are behind the Adenauer policy today.But that is only as of today. For ~~good~~ The competent observers also have an eye on the time-table.

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
CBS RADIO NETWORK

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 8 , 1954
7:45-8:00 P M,E S T

This is the news:

French Premier Mendez-France told his National Assembly today that the London agreement will bind Germany for 50 years,.....even if West Germany and Communist East Germany should be united. In his appeal for a free hand to negotiate the London agreement to a conclusion, the Premier hinted that America and Great Britain would go ahead without the French... if the Assembly balks. And he called for a fast agreement, and a unity of deputies, on this grave issue. I'd like to discuss the German situation in a few minutes.

The Italian Senate tonight gave Premier Scelba a 122 to 89 vote of confidencdence on the Italian-Yugoslav settlement of the Trieste quarrel. It was the biggest vote Scelba has won since taking office in February.

British Chancellor of the Exchequer Richard A Butler today praised the Eisenhower administration for helping keep the world-wide stirling area from suffering when American production slipped. He told a Conservative Party conference that the wise foresight of the Eisenhower Administration kept the sterling area from suffering from a nine per cent fall in American production.

On Formosa today there was more criticism of a reported American action that has halted Nationalist attacks on Communist China. The semi-official China News says "the effect on morale and stamina of both civilians and military could be irreparable.

In Denver today, Vice President Nixon announced that the President will probably make a farm speech, somewhere in the midwest, before the November second election. Mr. Nixon says the President will appear before a non-political forum in the Middle West. Tonight, the President and Vice President will speak to the nation. Nixon describes Mr. Eisenhower's talk as a "hard -hitting shot in the arm." for the Republican campaign.

House Speaker Martin said today he does not agree with Mr. Nixon's feeling that the President should stay out of the individual congressional campaigns.

The Democrats won a victory in Nevada today when the state Supreme Court ordered an election in November to fill the unexpired term of the late Democratic Senator McCarran. Republicans had sought to prevent a vote.. to permit a Republican appointee of Republican governor Russell to serve the remaining two years and three months of McCarran's term.

Chariman Capehart of the Senate committee investigating federal housing practices said today "pressure" has been put on him not to investigate 60-thousand dollars in fees paid to two Washington men...Capehart says this pressure makes him "very suspicious" of the whole thing.

John Peurifoy, our former ambassador to Guatemala, told a House committee that Communists are still "a very real menace" in Latin America. He said the loss of their revolution in Guatemala represented a seroous setback to the Kremlin and"not a final defeat"

The Senate-House atomic energy committee today decided to put-off until after the November election the controversial Dixon-Yates power contract.

Education Commissioner Samuel L. Brownell said today there is a need for a 15-million dollar school conturction program. And he believes it should be met largely on the state and local level. He said no single action by the federal government is goin to take care of the problem.

The American Trucking Assosiation today gave strong support to a proposed special federal agency to finance a 100-billion dollar highway improvement program over the next ten years. General Lucius Clay, chairman of a special presidential committee studying highway problems, says the proposal is getting "serious consideration".

The Civil Service Commission reports that the average full-time federal employee on June 30th earned a base salary of $3,680 a year. More than Three-fourths of the governemnt's two and a third million employees earn less that 45-hundred dollars a year. Almost a fourth earn between three thousand and thirty-five hundred a year.

Senator McCarthy today names James Juliana to be acting staff director of his investigation committee at least until Congress meets in November. Earlier the committee Democrats had told McCarthy:"We do not now consent to the appointment.

Methodist Bishop Bromley Oxon said today that those who resort to violence and refuse to obey the Supreme Court's ruling againse segregation in the schools are "subversive". He said "Resort to violence and refusal to obey the law is subversive and does more to undermine Democratic government than any Communist traitor can do.

In the dramatic struggle between West and East over Germany's future, it is well to see the time-table as clearly as the issues. The Nine-Power Conference reached its unanimous agreement in London last week, and usually when top ministers sit down and sign something the occasion has the ring of finality. And if the governments settled something about which they have been at odds, it seems all the more final..The London conference agreed to German re-armament after the sensational defeat of the European Defense Community by the French Assembly. London made the crumbling Western Alliance look solid again.

But on this occasion the top-level agreement cannot be considered final. It has to be accepted by the parliaments concerned, first as a policy, ultimately as a binding treaty. Son one has to look at the time-table. The Bundestag and the French Assembly have been holding their debate on policy first of all. They were not debating a completed treaty, only a concept. They simply were clearing the way for a still undrafted treaty which ultimately they must ratify if Germany is to be re-armed.

The vote in the Bundestag gave Chancellor Adenauer a comfortable victory by a striight coalition majority. Only Social Democrats voted no. In Paris tonight Premier Mendez-France called for a vote of confidence on the London agreement. It will be held Tuesday morning.

It is necessary to stress the time-table if one is to understand the strategy being used to oppose the London agreement, for the fight is now at postponing a decision on the agreement. Mr. Molotov timed his speech in Berlin the day before yesterday to come before yesterday's debate, and he aimed the speech directly at Germans by proposing unification and the end of foreign occupation. Mr. Molotov could hardly have hoped to have defeated the Adenauer governement yesterday. Actually his speech helped the Chancellor, by convincing waverers in his coalition that they must stand by him. But he supplied the German Socialists with arguments for putting off ratification until a four-power conference is held. They made precisely the plea he must have hoped for. They insisted on a delay until it was demonstrated that a four-power conference could not succeed. And they promised that if the conference failed they sould vote for re-armament.

The Kremlin hasn't won a delay yet in Bonn and isn't likely to do so in Paris right off. But this is like a chess game that hasn't reached the stage where a single move can produce the checkmate. More moves are needed. Observers forsee what moves Mr. Molotov can make. He can appear to be ready to edge toward truly free elections in Germany, whether he is ready or not. And in the United Nations, Mr. Vishinsky can appear to be ready to accept genuine control machinery over atomic production, and set it up before the ban on the manufacture of atomic weapons goes into effect. For that is the test of a Soviet sincerity in accepting the France-British disarmament plan as a basis of discussion. He too can appear to be making concessions, whether he is really making them or not.

So far the Soviet strategy has been to suggest sensational concessions, but in the vagnest words. The vague words haven't produced the desired delay on the London agreement. But they can be made more precise. Mr. Vishinsky will face the challenge to be more precise in the debate next week of the Soviet disarmament offer. Mr. Molotov can be more precise about free elections in Germany in a new note now expected momentarily, that will propose a four-power conference. There is still time for these and other moves, for the treaties incorporating the London agreements can't be drafted or ratified.for weeks.

What matters greatly in the interim is how people, as well as parliamentarians, see the situation. It is noteworthy that some of the strongest French criticism of the London agreement did not come from those who don't want Germany re-armed, but from those who want it done with still less nationalism. The fathers of the E.D.C. keep up their campaign. They don't want Germany re-armend, but from those who want it done with still less nationalism. The fathers of the E.D.C. keep up their campaign. They don't want a German General Staff, or German divisions. They want a European Assembly elected by European voters that has final power over the Brussels Treaty Organization. They want a common European budget and an arms pool. But they don't seem ready to unseat Mendez-France if he does not insist on changes along these lines.

In the Paris debate today, these and many diverse views were heard, and in the Bundestag, too, the socialist opposition appealed to quite contradictory elements. They played up the pacifists who hate the prospect of conscription. They also held out hopes to the old-fashioned nationalists who think Germany may still become a great power and play East off against the West. They appealed to exiles who put unification ahead of every other interest.

It is hard to say yet whether Mr. Molotov made more friends in Germany than he lost with his speech. Much depends on how German opinion developes in the weeks ahead. Competent observers think the majority of the German people are behind the Adenauer policy today. But that is only as of today. For the competent obserbers also have an eye on the time-table.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a moment with the Word for Today. But first, Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: The machinery of international politics is often extremely delicate. Because much that happens in diplomacy is determined by the unpredictability of the human mind. Dale Carnegie once remarked: "When dealing with people, let us remember that we are not always dealing with creatures of logic. We are dealing with creatures of emotion, creatures bustling with prejudices, and motivated by pride and vanity."

Good Night and Good Luck.

Monday Oct 11, 1954

This is the news:

The Russians have agreed to pull their troops out of Port Arthur, the big Chinese naval base in Manchuria. A Chinese-Soviet communique says the Russians will leave by next June..after nine years of occupying the base that is 190 miles west of Korea. The communique also says: Moscow will extend further credit to Red China...both want "peaceful co-existence" with Japan...they call on Tokyo to get rid of American troops...suggest a new conference on Korea..demand that Red China be admitted to the UN.. and call on all American personnel to leave Formosa. Moscow and Peiping say the Russians forces can leave Port Arthur because of the end of the Korean war and "the establishment of peace" in Indo-China.

At the United Nations today, Britain and France asked Russia to explain just how Moscow would reduce arms and ban nuclear weapons. The British and French delegates asked Andrei Vishinsky a number of questions... Vishinsky promised specific answers later.

In Paris today, Socialist leaders indicated they are swinging to the support of Premier Mendez-France who wants a vote of confidence to "pursue negotiations" with the Allies on the London agreement to rearm West Germany. Apparently the premier has promised the Socialists a place in his government. With their support...105 seats in the 621 seat Assembly.. Mendez-France will in all likelihood win tomorrow's crucial vote.

Allied sources in West Germany say the three western allies have granted the Germans permission to operate their own civil air line.. starting with four German-piloted planes next March first.

In Washington today, the Civil Service Commission announced that almost 7-thousand persons have left the federal payroll under the government security program. Forty-three hundred resigned....26-hundred were fired. The Commission says that seventeen hundred and forty-three of these persons..resigned or fired..were suspected of subversive activities or subversive associations. Democratic leaders call this report "a hoax.. a desperate new effort to fool the public." And Republican National Chairman Hall says: "This Administration is cleaning up instead of covering up." I'd like TO examine the figures released today in a few minutes.

Republican headquarters in Indianapolis said today that the President will make a major farm speech in Indianapolis on Friday night.

In Buffalo, New York, the Public Health Cancer Association voted 13 to 3 to advise the public to stop smoking cigarets in order to reduce the incidence of lung cancer. The resolution says there is now sufficient evidence of a relationship between smoking cigarets and lung cancer. Dr. Mortin L. Levin, assistant New York health commissioner, says the Association is the first public cancer group to specifically advise the public against smoking cigarets. The group is composed of public health officers and professional persons working to combat cancer. About 24 of the members present did not take part in the 13 to 3 vote.

The Federal Trade Commission in Washington said today that "unlawful restraint of trade" by the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange "contributed to and promoted" a sharp increase in coffee prices early this year. The average retail price of a pound of coffee went up from 91 cents in December to $1.18 a pound in April. The F.T.C. says the coffee price increase "cannot be explained in terms of competitive laws of supply and demand." Vice President Leon Isreal of the Coffee Exchange denies the F.T.C. charges "as we have denied other unfair and inaccurate charges against the exchange in the past." He says the Exchange welcomes "any fair and impartial investigation" of its trading practises.

The Supreme Court held a brief and solemn session today to pay tribute to Associate Justice Robert H. Jackson, who died of a heart attack, at age 62, on Saturday. Chief Justice Warren spoke of Justice Jackson as "an able lawyer, statesman and jurist" ~~who~~ whose passing "leaves a great void--we shall miss greatly his wise counsel, his clarity of expression and his genial companionship."

It rained again in Chicago today.. almost seven inches of it in three days..and tonight's forecast is for more rain. Many industrial plants have curtailed or suspended their operations.. some 700 home owners have been flooded out..transportation was disrupted...in the heaviest rainfall the city has had in 69 years. The damage is estimated at ten million dollars in Chicago alone..with no estimate yet on damages in 62 suburban areas.

At the South Dakota State Penitentiary tonight, prisoners began rioting shortly after their evening meal. First reports from the prison, near Sioux Falls, South Dakota, say about 400 men are shouting and smashing dishes in the dining room.

Edward R. Murrow: October 11, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

The figures published today of separations from federal employment, in something more than a year's time, throw some light, but not a great deal, on the problem of getting subversives out of government. This is one of the hot topics in the election campaign. It is also one of the campaign's more obscure subjects. The figures released today are not going to cool off the topic very much, nor will they clarify it very helpfully. It still is a state secret how many government employees in the period covered were found to be subversives, that is, guilty of subversive activities, and fired for that reason. What we know is that some persons were dismissed under the security program, while some resigned before determination of their cases, and that a certain number of the dismissed and resigned came under the heading of subversives.

If one takes the total number separated, and the total number fired, those fired were 38 percent of the whole. If this percentage is applied to the total number separated as subversives, it results in a figure of 662. That may be a reasonable estimate of the number fired as subversives. Why one has to beat around the statistical bush in this way is a mystery. It would seem that the precise figure belonged to the public. It would seem so all the more in a political campaign when such figures have a bearing on what voters are being told.

Even this figure of a possible 662 subversives is not at all clear. For the heading includes those on whom information in the files indicates subversive activities, those having subversive associations and those belonging to subversive organizations. These are all lumped together as though they were on the same level of danger. There can be a far cry between a man who takes part in subversive activities, and one who only associates with a subversive. The doer cannot well be innocent, the associater may be. In saying this I am not suggesting that certain kinds of associations, or certain kinds of memberships, do not make a person unsafe for a sensitive job in the government. I am simply saying the headings are not on the same level. And these figures do not tell how many of the six hundred odd people separated from government were active subversives, and how many were unsafe for reason of their associations. The fairness of the procedure cannot be judged without knowing the evidence. But it looks loose to be lumping the unquestionably guilty and the possibly innocent as though they were more or less the same.

Besides, the official description speaks of the available evidence "indicating" subversion in one of the three categories. The word "indicating"

is not synonymous with "demonstrating" or "proving". One must hope that for the persons fired as subversives the indications were beyond a reasonable doubt. But in the hundreds of cases where persons resigned before a determination was reached, it is stretching things to assume all of them were subversives. ~~Many of them may not have belonged in the statistics at all.~~

Anyone hearing the talk about subversives in government may have formed the impression that they have been most numerous in the State Departments, the Information Administration and the Central Intelligence Agency. The figures tell quite a different story. Of the total of 6,926 separated from the government under the security program for the thirteen months ending last July 1st, about two-thirds, or 4,738, came from the Navy, the Veteran's Administration, the Army, the Post Office and the Air Force, in that order. The number supplied by the State Department, the Information Service and the C.I.A. is 351, or five percent of the total. There were five dismissals from the State Department, 207 resignations, involving seventy subversion cases. From the Information Service there were no dismissals and 64 resignations, involving 39 subversion cases. From the C.I.A. one man was dismissed, 74 resigned and not a single case of subversion was involved.

The poorest record for security was made by the Navy, with 1,361 separations, the Veteran's Administration came next with 1,253. The largest number of subversion cases was in the Army, with the Air Force next, the Navy following. Obviously the departments with the most employees would have the largest number of separations. But the picture of the danger of subversion in the government that comes from such figures is not the one usually shown in the political speeches.

The American Assembly, meeting at Arden yesterday, recommended taking the question of loyalty in government out of party politics. This Assembly is a body of business, educational and government leaders set up by President Eisenhower before he relinquished his post at Columbia University. They meet for week ends of study and discussion, and this week end were considering the Federal service. They were unhappy about the loyalty program and recommended a number of specific improvements. They urged the President to appoint a commission of outstanding citizens to seek the development of new standards and new methods of determining loyalty and security.

The existing loyalty program marked an improvement on what preceded it. But it, too, has not found a formula that combines security for the nation with justice for the government worker. It should not be impossible to find one.

There is a very real challenge to devise a loyalty program for those in government that does not jeopardize individual freedom. For, as William Penn once remarked:"Governments, like clocks, go from the motion men give them. And as governments are made and moved by men, so by them they are ruined too. But if men be good, government can not be bad."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

The figures published today of separations from federal employment, in something more than a year's time, throw some light, but not a great deal, on the problem of getting subversives out of government. This is one of the hot topics in the election campaign. It is also one of the campaign's more obscure ~~topics~~ subjects. The figures released today are not going to cool off the topic very much, nor ~~are~~ will they ~~going to~~ clarify it very helpfully. It still is a state secret how many government employes in the period covered were found to be subversives, that is, guilty of subversive activities, and fired for that reason. What one knows is that some persons were dismissed under the security program, while some resigned before determination of their cases, and that a certain number of the dismissed and resigned came under the heading of subversives.

¶ If one takes the total number separated, and the total number fired, those fired were 38 percent of the whole. If this percentage is applied to the total number separated as subversives, it results in a figure of 662. That may be a reasonable estimate of the number fired as subversives. Why one has to beat around the statistical bush in this way is a mystery. It would seem that the precise figure belonged to the public. It would seem so all the more in a political campaign when such figures have a bearing on what voters are being told.

Even this figure of a possible 662 subversives is not at all clear. For the heading includes those on whom information in the files indicates subversive activities, those having subversive associations and those belonging ti subversive organizations. These are all lumped together as though they were on the same level of danger. There can be a far cry between a man who takes part in subversive activities and one who only associates with a subversive. The doer cannot well be innocent, the associater may be. In saying this I am not suggesting that certain kinds of associations, or certain kinds of memberships, do not make a person unsafe for a sensitive job in the government. I am simply saying the headings are not on the same level. And these figures do not tell how many of the perhaps sixhundred odd people separated from government were active subversives, and how many were unsafe for reason of their associations. The fairness of the procedure cannot be judged without knowing the evidence. But it looks loose to be lumping the unquestionably guilty and the possibly innocent as though they were more or less the same. Besides, the official description speaks of the available evidence "indicating" subversion in one of the three categories. The word "indicating" is not synonymous with "demonstrating" or "proving". One must hope that for the persons fired as subversives the indications were beyond a reasonable doubt. But in the hundreds of cases where persons resigned before a determination was reached, it is stretching things to assume all of them were subversives. Many of them may not have belonged in the statistics at all. Anyone hearing the talk about subversives in government may have formed the impression that they have been most numerous in the State Departments, the Information Administration and the Central Intellgence Agency. The figures tell quite a different story. Of the total of 6,926 separated from the government under the security program for the thirteen months ending last July 1st, about twothirds, or 4,738, came from the Navy, the Veteran's Administration, the Army, the Posteffice and the Airforce, in that order. The number supplied by the State Department, the Information service and the CIA is 351, or five percent of the total. There were five dismissals from the State Department, 207 resignations, involving seventy subversion cases. From the Information service there were no dismissals and 64 resignations, involving 39 subversion cases. From the CIA one man was dismissed, 74 resigned and not a single case of subversion was involved. The poorest record for security was made by the Navy, with 1361 separations, the Veteran's Administration came next with 1253. The largest number of subversion cases was in the army, with the airforce next, the navy following. Obviously the departments with the most employes would have the largest number of separations. But the picture of the danger of subversion in the government that comes from such figures is not the one usually shown in the political speeches.

¶ The American Assembly, meeting at Arden yesterday, recommended taking the question of loyalty in government out of party politics. This Assembly is a body of bsuiness, educcational and government leaders set up by President Eisenhower before he relinquished his post at Columbia University. They meet for weekends of study and discussion and this weekend were considering the federal service. They were unhappy about the loyalty program and recommended a number of specific improvements. They urged the President to appoint a commission of outstanding citizens to seek the development of new standards and new methods of determining loyalty and security.

The existing loyalty program marked an improvement on what preceded it. But it, too, has not found a formula that combines security for the nation with justice for the government worker. It should not be too hard to find one.

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

MONDAY, OCTOBER 11, 1954
7:45-8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

The Russians have agreed to pull their troops out of Port Arthur, the big Chinese naval base in Manchuria. A Chinese-Soviet communique says the Russians will leave by next June...after nine years of occupying the base that is 190 miles west of Korea. The communique also says:Moscow will extodd further credit to Red China...both want "peaceful co-existence" with Japan...they call on Tokyo to get rid of American troops...suggest a new conference on Korea...demand that Red China be admitted to the UN.. and call on all American personnel to leave Formosa. Moscow and Peiping say the Russian forces can leave Port Arthur because of the end of the Korean war and the "establishment of peace" in Indo-China.

At the United Nations today, Britain and France asked Russia to explain just how Moscow would reduce arms and ban nuclear weapons. The British and French delegates asked Andrei Vishinsky a number of questions... Vishinsky promised specific answers later.

In Paris today, Socialist leaders indicated they are swinging to the support of Premier Mendez-France who wants a vote of confidence to "pursue negotiations" with the Allies on the London Agreement to rearm West Germany. Apparently the premier has promised the Socialists a place in his government. With their support...105 seats in the 621 seat Assembly...Mendez-France will in all likelihood win tomorrow's crucial vote.

Allied sources in West Germany say the three western allies have granted the Germans permission to operate their own civil air line...starting with four-German-piloted planes next March first.

In Washington today, the Civil Service Commission announced that almost 7-thousand persons have left the federal payroll under the government security program. Forty-three hundred resigned...26 hundred were fired. The Commission says that seventeen hundred and forty-three of these persons...resigned or fired...were suspected of subversive activities or subversive assosiation. Democratic leaders call this report "a hoax.. a desperate new effort to fool the public." And Republican National Chairman Hall says:"This Administration is cleaning up instead of covering up." I'd like to examine the figures released today in a few minutes.

Republican Headquarters in Indianapolis said today that the President will make a major farm speech in Indianapolis on Friday night.

In Buffalo, New York, the Public Health Cancer Association voted 13 to 3 to advise the public to stop smoking cigarets in order to reduce the incidence of lung cancer. The resolution says there is now sufficient evidence of a relationship between smoking cigarets and lung cancer. Dr. Martin L. Levine, assistant New York health commissioner, says the Association is the first public cancer group to specifically advise the public against smoking cigarets. The group is composed of public health officers and professional persons working to combat cancer. About 24 of the members present did not take part in the 13 to 3 vote.

The Federal Trade Commission in Washington said today that "unlawful restraint of trade" by the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange "contributed to and promoted" a sharp increase in coffee prices early this year. The average retail price of a pound of coffee went up fro 91 cents in December to $1.18 a pound in April. The F.T.C. says the coffee price increase "cannot be explained in terms of competitive laws of supply and demand." Vice President Leon Israel of the Coffee Exhhange denies the F.T.C. charges

"as we have denied other unfair and inaccurate charges against the Exchange in the past."

He says the Exchange welcomes "any fair and impartial investigation" of its trading practices.

The Supreme Court held a brief and solem session today to pay tribute to Associate Justice Robert H. Jackson who died of a heart attack, at age 62, on Saturday. Chief Justice Warren spoke of Justice Jackson as "an able lawyer, statesman and jurist" whose passing "leaves a great void--we shall miss greatly his wise counsel, his clarity of expression and his genial companionship."

It rained again in Chicago today...almost seven inches of it in three days...and tonight's forecast is for more rain. Many industrial plants have curtailed or suspended their operations...some 700 home owners have been flooded out...transportation was disrupted...in the heaviest rainfall the city has had in 69 years. The damage is estimated at ten million dollars. in Chicago alone...with no estimate yet on damages in 62 suburban areas.

At the South Dakota State Penitentiary tonight, prisoners began rioting shortly after their evening meal. First reports from the prison, near Sioux Falls, South Dakota, say about 400 men are shouting and smashing dishes in the dining room.

The figures published today of separations from federal employment, in something more than a year's time, throw some light, but not a great deal, on the problem of getting subversives out of government. This is one of the hot topics in the election campaign. It is also one of the campaign's more obscure subjects. The figures released today are not going to cool off the topic very much, nor will they clarify it very helpfully. It still is a state secret how many government employees in the period covered were found to be subversives, that is, guilty of subversive activities, and fired for that reason. What we know is that some persons were dismissed under the sucurity program, whole some resigned before the determination of their cases, and that a certain number of the dismissed and resigned came under the heading of subversives.

If one takes the total number separated, and the total number fired, those fired were 38 percent of the whole. If this percentage is applied to the total number separated as subversives, it results in a figure of 662. That may be a reasonable estimate of the number fired as subversives. Why one has to beat around the statistical busy in this way is a mystery. It would seem that the precise figure belonged to the public. It would seem so all the more in a political campaign when such figures have a bearing on what voters are being told.

Even this figure of a possible 662 subversives is not at all clear. For the heading includes whose on whom information in the files indicates subversive activities, those having subversive associations, and those belonging to subversive organizations. These are all lumped together as though they were on the same level of danger. There can be a far cry between a man who takes part in subversive activities, and one who only associates with a subversive. The doer cannot well be innocent, the associator may be. In saying this I am not suggesting that certain kinds of associations, or certain kinds of memberships, do not make a person unsafe for a sensitive job in the government. I am simply saying the headings are not on the same level. And these figures do not tell how many of the six hundred old people separated from government were active subversives, and how many were unsafe for reason of their associations. The fairness of the prodedure cannot be judged without knowing the evidence. But it looks loose to be lumping the unquestionably guilty and the possible innocent as though they were more or less the same.

Besides, the official description speaks of the available evidence "indicating" subversion in one of the three categories. The word "indicating" is not synonymous with "demonstrating" or "proving". One must hope that for the persons fired as subversives the indications were beyond a reasonable doubt. But in the hundreds of cases where persons resigned before a determination was reached, it is stretching things to assuse that all of them were subversives.

Anyone hearing the talk about subversifes in government may have formed the impression that they have been most numerous in the State Department, the Information Administration and the Central Intelligence Agency. The figures tell quite a different story. Of the total of 6,926 separated from the government under the security program for the thirteen months ending last July 1st, about two-thirds, or 4,730, came from the Navy, the Veteran's Administration the Army, the Post Office and the Air Force, in that order. The number supplied by the State Department, the Information Service and the C.I.A. is 351, or five percent of the total. There were five dismissals from the State Department, 207 resignations, involving seventy subversive cases. From the Information Service there were no dismissals and 63 resignations, involving 39 subversion cases. From C.I.A. one man was dismissed, 74 resigned and not a single case of subversion was involved. The poorest record for security was made by the Navy, with 1,361 separations, the Veteran's Administration came next with 1,253. The largest number of subversion cases was in the Army, with the Air Force next, the Navy following. Obviously the departments with the most employees would have the largest number of separations. But the picture of the danger of subversion in the government that comes from such figures is not the one actually shown in the political speeches.

The American Assembly, meeting at Arden yesterday, recommended taking the question of loyalty in the government out of party politics. This Assembly is a body of business, edutational and government leaders set up by President Eisenhower before he relinquished his post at Columbia University. They meet for week ends of study and discussion, and this week end were considering the Federal service. They were unhappy about the loyalty program and recommended a number of specific improvements. They urged the President to appoint a commission of outstanding citicens to seek the developement of new standards and new methods of determining loyalty and security.

The existing loyalty program marked an improvement on that preceded it . But it, too, has not found a formula that combines security for the nation with justice for the government worker. It should not be impossible to find one.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a moment with the Word For Today. But first, Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: There is a very real challenge to devise a loyalty program for those in government that does not jeopardize individual freedom. For, as William Penn once remarked:"Governments, like clocks, go from the motion men give them. And as Governments are made and moved by men, so by them they are ruined too. But if men are good, government can not be bad. Good Night and Good Luck.

Tuesday October 12, 1954
14925
4625

This is the news:

The President said today that he has never found Defense Secretary Wilson "in the slightest degree indifferent to human misfortune." The President's statement, issued in Denver, came almost 24 hours after Wilson, in Detroit, told a dog story at a news conference. C.I.O. President Reuther and many Democrats interpreted this to be a comparison of people to dogs. I'd like to review the story later. Today, two hours after the President's statement, Mr. Wilson said he intended "no invidious comparison likening people to dogs in any sense." And Democratic Chairman Mitchell charged that Wilson had "provided a vivid demonstration of a basic difference between the Republican and Democratic parties."

Former President Truman tonight sent a message to a Democratic fund-raising dinner in Washington charging that "the Republicans are a party OF special privilege and FOR special privilege." He called for the election of a Democratic Congress in November to reverse what he called "this dangerous trend."

In Paris today, the French National Assembly gave Premier Mendez-France a three-to-one vote of confidence on the London plan to re-arm western Germany. The vote was 350 to 113..with the Communists furnishing most of the opposition. At the same time, the Assembly gave the Premier authority to go ahead with the formation of a Western European Union. It asked Mendez-France to make "simultaneous and parallel" efforts to get a disarmament agreement between Moscow and the western world.

At the United Nations, we made it clear that the United States believes Soviet Delegate Vishinsky has "dispelled" hopes for agreeing on disarmament and atomic controls. American Delegate James J. Wadsworth called the new Soviet proposals "too vague and ambiguous." He said they'll need a great deal of clarification before they can become "really meaningful." At the same time, Wadsworth said, we consider the Russian proposals "an important step in the direction of an agreed disarmament program."

In South Africa today, Prime Minister Malan announced that he will retire from office on November 30th. The leader of a fight for racial segregation and white supremacy in South Africa...Malan said his decision is irrevocable. He gave no reasons.

And in India, Prime Minister Nehru said today he would like to "retire temporarily" as the head of his government. Nehru said he has no intention of "withdrawing into the wilderness"..but he is tired and would welcome an opportunity to regain a fresh outlook.

In Washington today, Chairman Bell of a Senate committee that has investigated coffee prices, said he will urge Congress to put controls on the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange. He says this might be a first step to bring back the nickle cup of coffee. Beall said sharp coffee price increases earlier this year cost the American people 293-million dollars. His committee is trying to find out "who got the profit"..growers..brokers..importers..wholesalers or retailers. But Gustavo Lobo, Junior, the president of the coffee exchange, told the committee that crop failures and not market manipulations caused the price increases. Right now--he said.. a housewives boycott is helping to force coffee prices down.

Owen Lattimore today pleaded innocent to an indictment accusing him of lying when he denied that he ever followed the Communist party line or promoted Communist causes.

In Alexandria, Virginia, Federal Judge Albert Bryan cut the bond of Joseph S. Petersen, Junior, despite government protests that the charge against Petersen is "just one step short of treason in seriousness." Petersen posted 10-thousand dollars..instead of the previous 25-thousand dollar bond.. and was let out of jail. He is a long-time employe of the National Security Agency and is charged with "obtaining secret documents with intent or reason to believe" they would be used to injure this country..or aid a foreign nation. John F. Reilly of the Justice Department said today that Petersen had available to him "some of the most sensative intelligence information available in this country." There has been no indication of what foreign country he is charged with aiding .

In Delaware, Attorney General H. Albert Young today asked a state court to return to the all-white Milford High School the eleven Negro students recently ordered to go elsewhere. Young said that a court order will give Delaware officials "the kind of decree where we can get those people who are tring to destroy our laws." He said if necessary Governor Boggs.. and the state's two Senators...Republican Williams and Democrat Frear.. will lead the Negro students back to the Milford school "by hand"..

The St. Louis Post-Dispatch reports today that the still secret Dixon-Yates contract contains provisions giving the private power group "a virtually risk-free guarantee of earning 9 per cent on invested capital of five and a half million dollars." The paper says one of its reporters has obtained access to a copy of the politically controversial contract

In South Dakota, a riot at the state penitentiary ended 22 hours after it started. The prisoners released two guards they had held as hostages.

Edward R. Murrow: October 12, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

According to the dictionary, the "dog days" come in July and August - hot and uncomfortable - so-called because the Dog Star rises and sets with the sun at that time. The political dog days came late this year, yesterday to be exact - three weeks before the election - ushered in by a casual comment made in Detroit yesterday by Defense Secretary Charles Wilson. The political weather is likely to remain "hot and uncomfortable" for some time.

Mr. Wilson was asked a question about unemployment. He said that about a year ago a group had complained to him that unemployment would be increased in a certain area, because draft requirements had been reduced, and a number of young men wouldn't have to go to Korea and fight. Mr. Wilson said he told the group: "The idea that a nineteen-year-old boy could be drafted and sent to Korea to be shot at - and he didn't have enough gumption to go a hundred miles and get himself a job - I don't go for that." And then Mr. Wilson added: "I've got a lot of sympathy for people where a sudden change, (unemployment), catches them. But I've always liked bird dogs better than kennel-fed dogs myself - you know, one who'll get out and hunt for food, rather than sit on his fanny and yell."

Mr. Walter Reuther, head of the C.I.O., immediately yelled to the President in a five-page telegram, saying Mr. Wilson should either apologize

apologize

or quit the Cabinet. George Meany, the President of the A.F. of L. said Mr. Wilson "showed a complete ignorance of what it means to be unemployed." Reporters made it clear that Mr. Wilson smiled when he made the comment, but the words carried farther than the smile.

The President issued a statement in Denver, saying he had never found Wilson in the slightest degree indifferent to human misfortunes."

In San Francisco, Vice President Nixon said: "Deeds are more important than mere words. The important thing is what's done about unemployment, not what is said about it."

Two Republicans engaged in close races for the Senate did not like Mr. Wilson's remarks. Senator Ferguson of Michigan was sharply critical, and Senator Leverett Saltonstall of Massachussetts said he was sorry Wilson had made the remark - "It's unfair to many of our good citizens."

Late this afternoon Mr. Wilson issued a statement. He thought he was in no danger in his own home town of having anything he said taken out of context and misinterpreted. He has always had the greatest sympathy and understanding for men and women who needed work and were ready and willing to work. He intended no invidious comparisons, nor insinuations likening people to dogs in any sense. Mr. Wilson said for anyone to imply "that I did, or under any circumstances would think that way is a complete distortion of the facts." He thinks a distorted version is being used by Democrats to misinterpret the full meaning of what he actually said. What he actually said is now clear, as recounted a minute ago. He wasn't comparing auto workers to dogs. But his phraseology, the smile notwithstanding, will bring no aid and comfort to Republican candidates where the labor vote is heavy.

It is not easy to tell exactly what Mr. Wilson meant by his reference to the nineteen-year-old boy, and his explanation throws little light on this point. He appeared to assume that a draft-age boy would find work, if he had the gumption to travel a hundred miles. Enemies of unemployment insurance in all lands have argued that way, as though in this complex mass-production, mass-employment world, every worker is sure to find work simply by going out and looking for it. It is difficult to tell whether Mr. Wilson was employing rather homely and blunt phraseology in a careless fashion, as he has done before; or whether he was expressing a social philosophy, as he either did or he didn't, when he said: "What's good for General Motors is good for America."

When Secretary Wilson was before the Senate Committee studying his confirmation as Secretary of Defense, he stressed the point that he was:

"making a great sacrifice to come down here". But he said: "I realize I am sort of drafted; that it is proper for you gentlemen to make up your minds whether I am Four F or not; maybe I have a flat head instead of flat feet." And when a legal point was being discussed, Mr. Wilson who is not with us remarked that he was not a lawyer, and added: "If I had a lawyer he would advise me not to take this job."

Mr. Wilson's remarks of yesterday, in context and without distortion, have delighted Democrats and distressed a considerable number of Republicans. So it is perhaps accurate to describe the remainder of the political campaign as "the dog days" - sure to be "hot and uncomfortable."

It would seem that Mr. Wilson has some precedent to go on in his comparative reference to dogs. Back in 37 b.c. Vergil acknowledged: "Knowing pups are like dogs and kids like goats, so used I to compare great things with small." But in 1663, Francis Hawkins warned: "Take heed that thou make no comparisons, and if anybody happened to be praised for some brave act or virtue, praise not another for the same virtue in his presence, for every comparison is odious."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 12, 1954
7:45-8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

The President said today that he has never found Defense Secretary Wilson "in the slightest degree indifferent to himan misfortune." The President's statement, issued in Denver, came almost 24 hours after Wilson, in Detroit, told a dog story at a news conference. C.I.O. President Reuther and many Democrats interpreted this to be a comparison of people to dogs. I'd like to review the story later. Today, two hours after the President's statement, Mr. Wilson said he intended "no invidious comparison likening people to dogs in any sense." and Democratic Chairman Mitchell charged that Wilson had "provided a vivid demonstration of a basic difference between the Republican and Democratic parties."

Former President Truman tonight sent a message to a Democratic fund-raising dinner in Washington charging that "the Republicans are a party OF special priviledge and FOR special priviledge." He called fhr the election of a Democratic Congress in November to reverse what he called "this dangerous trend."

In Paris today, the French National Assembly gave Premier Mendez-France a three-to-one vote of confidence in the London plan to re-arm Western Germany. the vote was 350 to 113...with the Communists furnishing most of the opposition. At the same time, the Assembly gave the Premier authority to go ahead with the formation of a Western European Union. It asked Mendez-Frnnce to make "simultaneous and parallel" efforts to get a disarmament agreement between Moscow and the Western world.

At the United Nations, we made it clear that the United States believes Soviet Delegate Vishinsky has "dispelled" hopes for agreeing on disarmament and atomic controls. American Delegate James J. Wadsworth called the new Soviet proposals "too vague and ambiguous." He sais they'll need a great deal of clarification before they can become "really maaningful." At the same time, Wadsworth said we consider the Russian proposals "an important step in the direction af an agreed disarmament program."

In South Africa today, Prime Minister Malan announced that he will retire from office on November 30th. The leader of a fight for racial segregation and white supremacy in South Africa ....Malan said his decision is irrevocable. he gave no reasons.

And in India, Prime Minister Nehru said today he would like to "retire temporarily" as the head of his government. Nehru said he has no intention of "withdrawing into the wilderness"...but he is tired and would welcome an opportunity to regain h fresh outlook.

In Washington today, Chairman Bell of a Senate committee that has investigated coffee prices, said he will urge Congress to put controls on the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange. He says this might be a first step to to bring back the nickle cup of coffee. Bell said sharp coffee price increases eralier this year cost the American people 293-million dollars. His committee is trying to find out "who got the profit"...growers...brokers...importers... wholesalers or retailers. But Gustavo Lobo, Junior, the president of the coffee exchange, told the committee that crop failures and not market manipulations caused the price increases. Right now...he said..a housewives' boycott is helping to force down coffee prices.

Owen Lattimore today pleaded innocent to an indictment accusing him of lying when he denied that he ever followed the Communist party line or promoted Communist causes.

In Alexandria, Virginia, Federal Judge Albert Bryan cut the bond of Joseph S. Peterson, Junior, despite government protests that the charge against Peterson is "just one step short of treasonousness." Peterson posted 10-thousand dollars...instead of the previous 25-thousand dollar bond...and was let out of jail. He is a long-time employee of the National Security Agency and is charged with "obtaining secret documents with intent or reason to believe" they would be used to injure this country...or aid a foreign nation. John F. Reilly of the Justice Department said today that Peterson had available to him "some of the most sensitive intelligence information available in this country." There has been no indication of what foreign country he is charged with aiding.

In Delaware, Attorney General H. Albert Young today asked a state court to return to the all-white Milford High school the eleven Negroe students recently ordered to go elsewhere. Young said that a court order will give Delaware officials "the kind of decree where we can get those people who are trying to destroy our laws." He said if necessary Governor Boggs...and the state's two Senators...Republican Williams and Democrat Frear will lead the Negroe students back to Milford school "by hand"..

The St. Louis Post-Dispatch reports today that the still secret Dixon-Yates contract contains provisions giving the private power group "a virtually riskfree guarantee of earning 9 percent on invested capital of five and a half million dollars." The paper says one of its reporters has obtained access to a copy of the politically controversial contract.

In South Dakota, a riot at the State Penitentiary ended 22 hours after it started. The prisoners released two guards they had held as hostages.

According to the dictionary, the "dog days" come in July and August - hot and uncomfortable - --so-called because the Dog Star rises and sets with the sun at that time. The political dog days came late this year, yesterday to be exact - three weeks before the election - ushered in by a casual comment made in Detroit yesterday by Defense Secretary Charles Wilson. The political weather is likely to remain "hot and and uncomfortable " for some time.

Mr. Wilson was akked a question about unemployment. He said that about a year ago a group had complained to him that unemployment would be increased in a certain area, because draft requirements had been reduced, and a number of young men wouldn't have to go to Korea and fight. Mr. Wilson said he told the group. "The idea that a nineteen-year old- boy could be drafted and sent to Korea to be shot at - and he didn't have enough gumption to go a hundred miles and get himself a job - I don't go for that." And then Mr. Wilson added: "I've got a lot of sympathy for people where a sudden change, (unemployment) catches them. But I've always liked bird dogs better than kennel-fed dogs myself - you know, one who'll get out and hunt for food, rather than sit on his fanny and yell."

Mr. Walter Reuther, head of the C.I.O., immediately yelled to the President in a five-page telegram, saying Mr. Wilson should either apolozize or quit the cabinet. George Meany, the President of the A.F. of L. said Mr. Wilson 'showed a complete ignorance of what it means to be unemployed." Reporters made it clear that Mr. Wilson smiled when he made the comment, but the words carried farther than the smile.

The President issued a statement in Denver, saying he had "never found Wilson in the slightest degree indifferent to human misfortunes."

In San Francisco, Vice President Nixon said: "Deeds are more important than mere words. The important thing is what's done about unemplyyment, not what is said about it."

Two republicans, engaged in close races for the Senate did not like Mr. Wilson's remarks. Senator Ferguson of Michigan was sharply critical, and Senator Leverett Saltonstall of Massachusetts said he was sorry Wilson had made the remark - "It's unfair to many of our good citizens."

Late this afternoon Mr. Wilson issued a statement. He thought he was in no danger in his own home town of having anything he said taken out of context and misinterpreted. He has always had the greatest sympathy and understanding for men and women who needed work and were ready and willing to work. He intended no invidious comparisons, nor insinuations likening people to dogs in any sense. Mr. Wilson said for anyone to imply "that I did, or under any circumstances would, think that way is a complete distoriton of the facts." He thinks a distorted version is being used by Democrats to mininterpret the full meaning of what he actually said. What he actually said is now clear, as recounted a minute ago. He wasn't comparing auto workers to dogs. But his phraseoloyy, the smile notwithstanding, will bring no aid and comfort to Republican candidates where the labor vote is heavy.

It is not easy to tell exactly what Mr. Wilson meant by his reference to the nineteen-year-old boy, and his explanation throws little light on this point. He appeared to assume that a draft-age boy would find work, if he had the gumption to travel a hundred miles. Enemies of unemployment insurance in all lands have argued that way, as though in this complex mass-production, mass-employment world, every worker is sure to find work simply by going out and looking for it. It is difficult to tell whether Mr. Wilson was employing rather homely and blunt phraseology in a careless-fashion, as he has done before; or whether he has expressing a social philosophy, as he either did or he didn't when he said:"What's good for General Motors is good for America."

When Secretary Wilson was before the Senate Committee studying his confirmation as Secretary of Defense, he stressed the point that he was: "making a great sacrifice to come down here." But he said: "I realize I am sort of drafted; that it is proper for your gentlemen to make up your minds whether I am Four F or not; maybe I have a flat head instead of flat feet." And when a legal point was being discussed, Mr. Wilson, who is not without humor, remarked that he was not a lawyer and added: "If I had a a lawyer he would advise me not to take this job."

Mr. Wilson's remarks of yesterday, in context, and without distortion, have delighted Democrats and distressed a considerable number of Republicans. So it is perhaps accurate to describe the remainder of the political campaign as "the dog days" - sure to be "hot and uncomfortable."

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a moment with the Word for Today. but first, Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: It would seem that Mr. Wilson has some precedent to go on in his reference to dogs. Back in 37 b.c. Vergil acknowledge:"Knowing pups are like dogs and kids like goats, so used I to compare great things with small." But in 1663, Francis Hawkins warned: "Take heed that thou make no comparisons and if anybody happened to be praised for some brave act or virtue, praise not another for the same virtue in his presence, for every comparison is odious."

Good Night and Good Luck.

Wednesday Oct 13, 1959

This is the news:

The Air Force announced today that it has ordered production of a faster-than-sound bomber. The announcement by Air Force Secretary Talbott came after Navy Secretary Charles S. Thomas said in Philadelphia that Russia now has faster-than-sound bombers. Talbott said the air force has ordered initial production of the Convair B-58 medium bomber, and also for 1-thousand mile an hour jet fighters. In addition we have ordered [redacted] a speed-up for the 600-mile an hour B-52 jet bomber. Talbott says the new contracts bring the total Air Force orders for planes, and related items, to more than one billion 200-million dollars since last July first.

Defense Secretary Wilson is going to make a speech [redacted] in Chicago tonight--after all. In the wake of his dog story yesterday, which some Republicans and many labor leaders took as an offense to the unemployed, Wilson's speech was doubtful at one point today. First, Illinois' Republican Governor Stratton made it clear he thought the speech should be cancelled. He said he didn't believe the Defense Secretary would be "in a position to properly represent the viewpoint" of the Eisenhower Administration or Stratton's own state administration. Later the Governor's aide said Stratton could be quoted as saying: "I won't be there"..at the Wilson dinner. Later, in Detroit, Wilson told reporters he was going through with his planned speech. He told reporters he had been on the phone to his office and Washington. And, he said, "The word in Washington is that I'm being cleared for "foot-in-mouth" disease and they're not quite sure how serious it is." At the Summer White House in Denver, News Secretary Snyder said he had been on the phone with Wilson and Republican National Chairman Hall. And then in Chicago, Illinois' Governor Stratton said he would attend the Wilson speech..introduce the secretary..because he's sure Wilson "will have some thing to say which will interest the audience and te American people." He then denied that he had authorized a statement saying he would not attend.

Senator Mc Carthy left the U.S. Naval Hospital today after a week's treatment for sinus trouble. He told reporters he thinks the Administration's farm program has "badly hurt" the Republican cause in the election. He called the program "inept and improper" and said the party was not sticking to its campaign promises. He Doesn't know whether the Republicans will "sneak through" in November. McCarthy says he supports all Republican candidates for office..except Clifford Case who is running for Senator in New Jersey. He said the reasons for his objections to Case, who is being opposed by a Conservative Republican group in New Jersey, will be made public before the election. Case has attacked McCarthy. And Case has had a personal endorsement from the President.

In Alaska today, the Democrats scored an overwhelming victory. And Congressional Delegate Bartlett says:"Alaska has almost always pointed the way the nation will vote in November."

In Denver, Republican Senator Watkins called on the President today. He later told reporters he got the impression that the President favors the appointment of "a career jurist" to replace the late Justice Jackson on the Supreme Court. (The President will be 64 years old tomorrow).

In Washington, UNited States Attorney Leo A. Rover has accused Federal District Judge Luther Youngdahl of having "a fixed, personal bias and prejudice" in favor of Owen Lattimore. Rover said in an affidavit that Judge Youngdahl, three-term former Republican governor of Minnesota, has a "fixed opinion" that Lattimore is innocent of perjury charges pending against him. Justice Department officials say for the government to accuse a judge of bias and prejudice is "unusual but not unprecedented." In the past Youngdahl dismissed four of the seven original counts against Lattimore.. (two counts were subsequently reinstated by a higher court.) Today, Lattimore's attorneys charged that the government's affidavit is "scandalous..an attempt to manipulate the administration of justice." There is no comment from Judge Youngdahl who was appointed to the bench by former President Truman.

The Justice Department says it is investigating 600 cases arising from the recent housing investigations. And it is getting from 10 to 15 new cases a day..most of them from the F.B.I.

And Hurricane Hazel, after moving through Haiti, has curved north northwest and is now headed in the general direction of the American mainland. Its now about 500 miles southeast of Miami..headed for San Salvador in the Bahamas.

Edward R. Murrow: October 13, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

The debate on the Soviet Union's disarmament proposals in the United Nations has gone far enough for stock to be taken of what Mr. Vishinsky has, and has not, offered. The United States delegation is doing this cautiously and conscientiously. If the Kremlin really wants to reduce armaments, under effective international control, that would be a most sensational event. But even if it did, Mr. Vishinsky might not say so at once, in unmistakable language. He might edge up to it. The Communists have perfected the art of slow-motion diplomacy, designed to squeeze the utmost possible out of any occasion. In appraising the Soviet offers the U.S. delegation must try to tell the difference between edging up to genuine disarmament, and merely exploiting a propaganda advantage.

The Kremlin is engaged in one of its most stupendous diplomatic efforts. It is trying to prevent Germany from being re-armed on the side of the West. Its only hope of success, lies in disrupting or paralyzing the Western Alliance, and the only way to do that, is to convince enough people that Western policy is dangerously suspicious, and that Soviet policy is sweetly reasonable. That is what the Kremlin is now up to, with an eye on German, French and British opinion in particular. The disarmament proposals are part of this campaign. ~~It is only fair to see that they are part of it,~~ whether or not the Kremlin is genuinely ready for a fresh approach to the basic problems of the atomic age.

SAY ?

But we should be able to see from Mr. Vishinsky's statements so far made, whether there is more to the disarmament proposals than propaganda. The U.S. spokesman, James J. Wadsworth, said in the debate yesterday: "The ray of hope created by the Soviet offer has been considerably dimmed, though not extinguished" by Mr. Vishinsky's answers to the questions pressed on him. That amounts to saying that so far there is enough in the Vishinsky offer to make good propaganda, but not more.

This judgment rests on several points in the Soviet proposal. Most important, is that the commission controlling nuclear weapons would have no power whatever to punish any violations it discovered. All it could do would be to report to the Security Council. There the veto exists. Mr. Vishinsky did point out that under the Charter a party to a dispute before the Council does not have a vote, which is to say, that if the Soviet Union were accused of a violation, it could not veto punishment by the Council. But since the Soviet position also is, that Communist China must have the Chinese seat on the Council, the Soviet Government could count on a veto even if not able to vote itself.

Another inadequacy of the Soviet plan, is that inspection of factories making conventional weapons would stop after a brief time. Mr. Vishinsky proposed two inspection commissions, one temporary, for conventional weapons, the other permanent, for nuclear weapons. The Western Powers want both inspections to be continuous.

Still another point, Mr. Vishinsky has not abandoned a percentage reduction as the way to cut armaments. All he has said is that he is willing to discuss other approaches. He said he disliked the Western suggestion of maximum sizes for national armies, much ~~XXXXXXXXXX~~X preferred percentage-wise cuts, but he spoke well of a proposal Secretary Acheson once made, to allow so many men per square mile of territory, and per mile of vulnerable frontier.

The one big concession Mr. Vishinsky appeared to make is in not insisting on banning nuclear weapons before other arms reductions are begun or controls are set up. But he ducked every opportunity to be clear, about what the Soviet government is ready to do to set up the controls in time. This is a key point for the West. If nuclear weapons are to be banned, the West insists that the control machinery must be ready and on the spot, when the ban goes into effect. To this Mr. Vishinsky said, well, let the establishment of controls and the ban be simultaneous. That may sound well, but Mr. Vishinsky did not say what it means. A ban is a single act, whereas setting up controls is a series of acts. Mr. Wadsworth pointed this out. At which point, he asked; are they to be simultaneous?

Obviously, agreement on such points should be possible given good will. But agreement also is impossible without good will. A revealing comment was made in today's debate by Paul Martin, the Canadian representative. He spoke guardedly, but critically, about any power making offers in disarmament that are contingent on something being done in another field of foreign policy. This was taken to refer to a private statement by Mr. Vishinsky, that the disarmament offer will be withdrawn, if the London agreement about Germany goes through.

The French Assembly now has voted for the London agreement in principle. It is reasonable to say that this vote might well have been different if Mr. Vishinsky's disarmament offer had been frank, clear and convincing. It was the French Socialists who really decided the Paris vote. True, they can still vote against ratification. And there still is time for Mr.

Vishinsky to improve his offer. But so far, he has not convinced the people he needed to convince, that the Soviet Union really is reversing its stand on disarmament.

Mr. Vishinksy, as he has repeatedly done in the past, refused again to state in a positive way what Russia is willing to do to set up controls on armament. Montaigne once remarked: "Be not ashamed to say what you are not ashamed to think." Mr. Vishinsky apparently agrees with neither Montaigne nor Emerson who concluded:"Frankness always invites frankness."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 13, 1954
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

The Air Force announced today that it has ordered production of a faster-than-sound bomber. The announcement by Air Force Secretary Talbott came after Navy Secretary Charles S. Thomas said in Philadelphia that Russia now has faster -than-sound bombers. Talbott said the air force has ordered initial production of the Convair B-58 medium bomber, and also for 1-thousand mile an hour jet fighters. In addition we have ordered a speed-up for the 600-mile an hour B-52 jet bombers. Talbott says the new contracts bring the total Air Force orders for planes and related items to more than one billion 200-million dollars. since last July fitst.

Defense Secretary Wilson is going to make a speech in Chicago tonight--after all. In the wake of his dog story yesterday which some Republicans and many labor leaders took as an offense to the unemployed, Wilson's speech was dourtful at one point today. First, Illinois' Republican Governor Stratton made it clear he thought the speech should be cancelled. He said he didn't beleive the Defense Secretary would be "in a position to properly represent the viewpoint" of the Eisenhower Administration or Stratton's own state administration. Later the Governor's aide said Stratton could be quoted as saying: "I won't be there"...at the Wilson dinner. Later, in Detroit, Wilson told reporters he was going through with his planned speech. He told reporters he had been on the phone to his office in Washington. And, he said, "The word in Washington is that I'm being cleared for "foot-in-mouth disease and they're not quite sure how serious it is." At the Summer White House in Denver, News Secretary Snyder said he had been on the phone with Wilson and Republican National Chairman Hall. And then in Chicago, Illinois Governor Stratton said he would attend the Wilson speech...introduce the secretary... because he's sure Wilson "will have some thing to say which will interest the audience and the American people." He then denied that he had authorized statement saying he would not attend.

Senator McCarthy left the U.S. Naval Hospital today after a week's treatment for sinus trouble. He told reporters he thinks the Administration's farm program has "badly hurt the Rupuclican cause in the election. He called the program "inept and improper" and said the party was not sticking to its campaign promises. He doesn't know whether the Republicans will "sneak through in November. McCarthy says te supports all Republican candidates for office...except Clifford Case who is running for Senator in New Jersey. He said the reasons for his objections to Case, who is being opposed by Conservative Republican group in New Jersey, will be made public before the election. Case has attacked McCarthy. And Case has had a personal endorsement from the President.

In Alaska today the Democrats scored an overwhelming victory. And Congressional Delegate Bartlett says:"Alaska has almost always pointed the way the nation will vote in November."

In Denver, Republican Senator Watkins called on the President today. He later told reporters he got the impression that the President favors the appointment of "a career jurist" to replace the late Justice Jackson on the Supreme Court. (The President will be 64 years old tomorrow)

In Washington, United States Attorney Leo A. Rover has accused Federal District Judge Luther Youngdahl of having "a fixed, personal bias and prejudice" in favor of Owen Lattimore. Rover said in an affidavit that Judge Youngdahl, three-term former Republican Governor of Minnesota, has a "fixed, opinion" that Lattimore is innocent of perjury charges pending against him." Justice Department officials say for the government to accuse a judge of bias and prejudece is "unusual but not unprecedented." In the past Youngdahl dismissed four of the seven original counts against Lattimore...two counts were subsequently reinstated by a higher court. Today, Lattimore attorneys charged that the governemnt's affidavit is "scandalous...an attempt to manipulate the administration of justice." There is no comment from Judge Youngdahl who was appointed bo the bench by former President Truman.

The Justice Department says it is investigating 600 cases arising from the recent housing investigations. And it is getting from 10 to 15 new cases a day...most of them from the F.B.I.

And Hurricane Hazel, after moving through Haiti, has curved north nort west and is now headed in the general direction of the American mainland. It is now about 500 miles southeast of Miami...headed for San Salvador and the Bahamas.

The debate of the Soviet Union's disarmament proposals in the United Nations has gone far enough for stock to be taken of what Mr. Vishinsky has, and has not, offered. The United States delegation is doing this cautiously and conscientiously. If the Kremlin really wants to reduce armaments, under effective international control, that would be a most sensational event. But even if it did, Mr. Vishinsky might not say so at once, in unmistakable language. He might edge up to it. The Communists have perfected the art of slow-motion diplomacy, designed to squeeze the utmost possible out of any occasion. In appraising the Soviet offers the U.S. delegation must try to tell the difference between edging up to genuine disarmament, and merely exploiting a propaganda advantage.

The Kremlin is engaged in one of its most stupendous diplomatic efforts. It is trying to prevent Germany from being re-armed on the side of the West. Its only hope of success, lies in disrupting or paralyzing the Western Alliance, and the only way to do that, is to convince enough people that Western policy is dangerously suspicious, and that Soviet policy is sweetly reasonable. That is what the Kremlin is now up to, with an eye on German French and British opinion in particular. The disarmament proposals are part of this campaign, Whether or not the Kremlin is genuinely ready for a fresh approach to the basic problems of the atomic age.

But we should be able to see from Mr. Vishinsky's statements so far made, whether there is more to the disarmament proposals than propaganda. The U.S. spokesman, James J. Wadsworth, said in the debate yesterday: "The ray of hope created by the Soviet offer has been considerably dimmed, though not extinguished." by Mr. Vishinsky's answers to the questions pressed on him. That amounts to saying that so far there is enough in the Vishinsky offer to make good propaganda, but not more.

This judgement rests on several points in the Soviet porposal. Most important, is that the commission controlling nuclear weapons would have no power whatever to punish any violations it discovered. All it could do would be to report to the Security Council. There the veto exists. Mr. Vishinsky did point out that under the Charter a party to a dispute before the Council does not have a vote, which is to say, that if the Soviet Union were accused of a violation,but could not veto punishment by the Council. But since the Soviet position also is, that Communist China must have the Chinese seat on the Council, the Soviet Government could count on a veto even if not able to vote itself.

Another inadequacy of the Soviet plan, is that inspection of factories making conventional weapons would stop after a brief time. Mr. Vishinsky proposed two inspection commissions, one temporary, for conventional weapons, the other permanent, for nuclear weapons. The Western Powers want both The Western Powers want both inspections to be continuous.

Still another point, Mr. Vishinsky has not abandoned a percentage reduction as the way to cut armaments. All he has said is that he is willing to discuss other apporaches. He said he disliked the Western suggestion of maximum sizes for national armies, much preferred percentage-wise cuts, but he spoke well of a proposal Secretary Acheson once made, to allow so many men per square mile of territory, and per mile of vulnerable frontier.

The one big concession Mr. Vishinsky appeared t make is in not insisting on banning nuclear weapons before other arms reductions are begun or controls are set up. But he ducked every opportunity to be clear, about what the Soviet Government is ready to do to set up the controls in time. This is a key point for the West. If nuclear weapons are to be banned, the West insists that the control machinery must be ready and on the spot, when the ban goes into effect. Th this Mr. Vishinsky said, "Well, let the establishment of controls and the ban be simultaneous. That may sound well, but Mr. Vishinsky did not say what it means. A ban is a single act, whereas setting up controls is a series of acts. Mr. Wadsworth pointed this out. At which point, he asked; are they to be simultaneous?

Obviously, agreement on such points should be possible given good will. But agreement also is impossible without good will. A revealing comment was made in today's debate by Paul Martin, the Canadian representative. He spoke guardedly, but critically, about any power making offers in disarmament that are contingent on something being done in another field of foreign policy. This was taken to refer to a private statement by Mr. Vishinsky that the disarmament offer will be withdrawn, if the London agreement about Germany goes through.

The French Assembly now has voted for the London agreemtnt in principle It is reasonable to say that this vote might well have been different if Mr. Vishinsky's disarmament offer had been frank, clear and convincing. It was the French Socialists who really decided the Paris vote. True, they can still vote against ratification. And there still is time for Mr. Vishinsky to improve his offer. But so far, he has not convinced the people he needed to convince, that the Soviet Union really is reversing its stand on disarmament.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back ina moment with the Word for Today. But first, Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: Mr. Vishinsky, as he has repeatedly done in the past, refused again to state in a positive way what Russia wi willing to do to set up controls on armament. Montaigne once remarked:"Be not ashamed to say what you are not ashamed to think." Mr Vishinsky apparently agrees with neither Montaigne nor Emerson who concluded: "Frankness always invites Frankness."

Good Night and Good Luck

Thurs, Oct 14, 1954

This is the news:

Another hurricane, the worst in recent years, is advancing toward the North Carolina Coast. At last report, the Weather Bureau put it 260 miles off the east coast of Central Florida... (400) miles south of Cape Hatteras, North Carolina. We're told its moving about 25 miles an hour..with winds up to 130 miles an hour. This one is Hurricane Hazel. And its already swept through Haiti..hit the Dominican Republic..and the Bahamas. An air force B-29 pilot...Captain William E. Harrell of New Jersey.. reports that the 130-mile an hour winds are "cutting the tops off all waves and making the ocean a continuous mass of white caps and frothing foam." Captain Harrel flew into hurricanes Carol, Edna and Dolly this year. But he reports that he "never saw anything like I saw today. The ocean on each side of Hazel's eye was a sheer white rippled sheet as far as I could see."

The storm is expected to hit the Cape Hatteras area late tonight or early tomorrow. Here in New York City, the chief meteorologist says "it presents a very definite threat to the entire Atlantic seabord."

New Englanders who have been hit by two hurricanes this year have been warned by the Boston Weather Bureau that Hazel's position and course

"makes it critical for New England."The hurricane could hit the New York area tomorrow. The Weather Bureau will know more about that later this evening.

The political storm created by Defense Secretary Wilson's dog story seems to be blowing over. In Chicago last night, Wilson said he was sorry he made "inept remarks". He said, "I made an unfortunate mistake bringing up those bird dogs the same time I was talking about people."

Vice President Nixon thinks it will all end up to the advantage of the Republican party. He says Wilson's remarks were distorted.. called this "diversionary tactics of the Dumbocrats."

C.I.O. President Reuther says he's pleased by Wilson's apology. And as some unions distributed cans of dog food at employment agencies, Reuther said:"In the final analysis, the people will judge the concern of Wilson and the Republican Administration by what they do rather than by what they say." The Moscow radio told its people that Mr. Wilson has called American unemployed "dogs". A commentator spent 400 words on what he called the "scandal." There was no accurate explanation of what Wilson actually did say..and no mention of his apology.

There was no comment on all this from the President who celebrated his 64th birthday at Denver receiving congratulation s from (HUNDREDS) of persons. He also received a number of gifts ranging from trout rods (TO) barbecue equipment...plus a Hereford calf that was sent to his farm in Gettysburg, Pennsylvania. Tomorrow the President ends his eight weeks of vacation and work at Denver and starts back for Washington. He makes a farm policy speech in Indianapolis tomorrow night.

Civil Service Commissioner George M. Moore said today that the Administration has fired 343 postmasters for "improper conduct." He told the National Association of Postmasters that not a single one of the 343 "was removed because of his political affiliation."

Two Democratic congressmen..Holifield of California and Durham of North Carolina say they will oppose an administration request for prompt clearance of the Dixon-Yates contract to move private power into the Tennessee Valley Administration (SYSTEM.) Vice President Nixon says criticism of the contract is "loose and generally erroneous." And the St. Louis Post-Dispatch reports that the Atomic Energy Committee 13 days ago made an urgent request to the Justice Department for its opinion on the legality of the contract. The newspaper says so far there has been no response from Attorney General Brownell.

Today, Brownell's aides said he has full confidence in United States Attorney Rover who is seeking to disqualify Federal Judge Youngdahl in the Owen Lattimore case.

The Supreme Court has agreed to decide whether the states, as well as the federal government, have the right to pass sedition laws that are designed to control subversion. Twenty eight states have asked the court to reverse a Pennsylvania state court ruling which casts doubt on the validity of anti-subversive laws passed by the states.

A Federal jury here in New York today indicted Corliss Lamont and two others for refusing to answer questions from the McCarthy committee. The others are: Attorney Abraham Unger and Albert Shadowitz of Nutley, New Jersey.

In Delaware, Vice Chancellor William Marvel has ruled that 10 Negro students "have a clear legal right" to attend the high school at Milford, Delaware...at least until their case goes through higher courts. The chancellor says he'll issue an injunction to restrain the Milford school board "from denying to plaintiffs because of color or race their vested rights" to attend the school.

Democratic Senator Mansfield of Montana today reported to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that the situation in Indo-China has deteriorated seriously. He says there is a danger of complete internal chaos in South Viet Nam. Mansfield urges immediate suspension of all American aid until we reappraise our present policies...in the event that the south Viet Nam government should fall. After spending two months in Indo-China the Senator says that according to best available estimates "some 25 per cent of American economic aid in the past went into areas which are now held by the Communists." He cites one instance where our help made possible major improvements to the Hanoi airport "now passed intact to the Communists." The runway there can handle heavy bombers "capable of striking at our bases in the Philippines."

At the United Nations today, Ambassador Lodge refused to accept a Communist China complaint charging us with aggression in Formosa. We have returned the complaint to Secretary-General Hammershuld saying: "the charge came from an authority which we do not recognize as a political entity and which already has been convicted of aggression by the General Assembly."

In London, Prime Minister Churchill called a special cabinet meeting to consider a two-week-old London dock strike which has seriously affected Great Britain's shipping industry. ONLY one ship is LOADING in the miles of London wharves. The dispute concerns overtime and working conditions. London has also been hit by a bus strike..with more than 12-thousand drivers and conductors demanding a minimum wage of 28-dollars a week...They now get twenty-two dollars and 19 cents.

Edward R. Murrow: October 14, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

Our European correspondents appear to be in a rather whimsical mood tonight - disposed to disregard continuing crises and the cost of cables. Bill Downs advises from Rome that Charlie Wilson's dogs are now running on the international track. In a rare demonstration of how an offhand remark can ring around the world, the British Broadcasting Corporation's Overseas Service is now carrying Mr. Wilson's apology, or explanation as the second story in its news bulletins. The lead story tells of plans - royal plans - to greet the ~~XXXXXX~~ Ethiopian Emperor. The Communist afternoon paper in Rome predicts a Democratic victory in both Houses of Congress, as a result of Mr. Wilson's remarks.

Italian correspondents cabling from Washington are telling their readers in Italy that Republican prospects have been diminished by Mr. Wilson's dogs.

From Vienna we have a ~~cable~~ DELAYED MESSAGE from Alexander Kendrick. He collects information and stories from behind the Iron Curtain. He says that the latest story goes as follows: The first Communist citizen says: "If they would only appoint Comrade Ivanof Minister of War, we would surely have lasting peace, and need fear no conflict." The second Communist citizen says: "How can you be so sure about that?" The first citizen replies:

"Because when he was Minister of Food, we had no food; when he was Minister of Construction, there was no construction; and when he was Minister for Consumer Goods, there were no consumer goods. He should ought to be made Minister of War."

And then Kendrick, (with a continuing disregard of what cables cost,) proceeds to inform us about a weight-lifting championship recently held in Vienna. He goes so far as to say that this spectacle symbolized to him the present state of international affairs in a pertinent way. He reports that twenty or more nations were partaking in this grunting and lifting contest, but the actual struggle was between two of them - the United States and the Soviet Union. Kendrick explains that this contest was designed to determine which could lift and hold aloft, the weightiest burden. He reports that the individual displays of muscle-flexing evoked admiration from the crowds and other contestants, but the final results were inconclusive. Both the Americans and the Russians went away believing they had won. Kendrick says the United States did win the big event, namely the heavy-weight class. And with that victory went the right to be called "Strongest in the World". But Kendrick, careful of his facts, though casual about cable costs, goes on to report that the Russians won out on points, for while we were concentrating on the main events - the heavy stuff - they were running away - piling up points - in the light-weight events in which we took no interest, and in which we weren't even represented.

At this point Mr. Kendrick permits himself an editorial comment by saying: "If that isn't an accurate picture of world relations, you can hit me with a bar bell."

We have not yet had time to attempt any deep analysis of Mr. Kendrick's cable, but on the surface it seems possible that we are in fact, as a nation, concentrating on winning the title, "Strongest in the World", while the Communists are nibbling at the edges, winning what might be called the light-weight events in which we take no interest, or in which we are not represented. Perhaps after all there is a moral somewhere in the outcome of this weight-lifting contest in Vienna, at least sufficient to justify the cost of Mr. Kendrick's cable.

This is the President's 64th Birthday. Edward Tuck once wrote:"Age is a quality of the mind - if you have left your dreams behind, if hope is cold, if ypu no longer look ahead, if your ambition's fires are dead, then you are old. But if from life you take the best, and if in life you keep the jest, if love you hold - then no matter how the years go by, no matter how the birthdays fly - you are not old."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

Edward R. Murrow: October 14, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

Our European correspondents appear to be in a rather whimsical mood tonight - disposed to disregard continuing crises and the cost of cables. Bill Downs advises from Rome that Charlie Wilson's dogs are now running on the international track. In a rare demonstration of how an offhand remark can ring around the world, the British Broadcasting Corporation's Overseas Service is now carrying Mr. Wilson's apology, or explanation as the second story in its news bulletins. The lead story tells of plans - royal plans - to greet the ~~XXXXXX~~ Ethiopian Emperor. The Communist afternoon paper in Rome predicts a Democratic victory in both Houses of Congress, as a result of Mr. Wilson's remarks.

Italian correspondents cabling from Washington are telling their readers in Italy that Republican prospects have been diminished by Mr. Wilson's dogs.

From Vienna we have a cable from Alexander Kendrick. He collects information and stories from behind the Iron Curtain. He says that the latest story goes as follows: The first Communist citizen says: "If they would only appoint Comrade Ivanof Minister of War, we would surely have lasting peace, and need fear no conflict." The second Communist citizen says: "How can you be so sure about that?" The first citizen replies:

"Because when he was Minister of Food, we had no food; when he was Minister of Construction, there was no construction; and when he was Minister for Consumer Goods, there were no consumer goods. He should ought to be made Minister of War."

And then Kendrick, with a continuing disregard of what cables cost, proceeds to inform us about a weight-lifting championship recently held in Vienna. He goes so far as to say that this spectacle symbolized to him the present state of international affairs in a pertinent way. He reports that twenty or more nations were partaking in this grunting and lifting contest, but the actual struggle was between two of them - the United States and the Soviet Union. Kendrick explains that this contest was designed to determine which could lift and hold up the weightiest burden. He reports that the individual displays of muscle-flexing evoked admiration from the crowds and other contestants, but the final results were inconclusive. Both the Americans and the Russians went away believing they had won. Kendrick says the United States did win the big event, namely the heavy-weight class. And with that victory went the right to be called "Strongest in the World". But Kendrick, careful of his facts though casual about cable costs, goes on to report that the Russians won out on points, for while we were concentrating on the main events - the heavy stuff - they were running away - piling up points - in the light-weight events in which we took no interest, and in which we weren't even represented.

At this point Mr. Kendrick permits himself an editorial comment by saying: "If that isn't an accurate picture of world relations, you can hit me with a bar bell."

~~XXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXX~~ We have not yet had time to attempt any deep analysis of Mr. Kendrick's cable, but on the surface it seems possible that we are in fact, as a nation, concentrating on winning the title, "Strongest in the World", while the Communists are nibbling at the edges, winning what might be called the light-weight events in which we take no interest, or in which we are not represented. Perhaps after all there is a moral somewhere in the outcome of this weight-lifting contest in Vienna, at least sufficient to justify the cost of Mr. Kendrick's cable.

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 14, 1954
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

Another hurricane, the worst in recent years, is advancing toward the North Carolina Coast. At last report the Weather Bureau put it 260 miles off the east coast of Central Florida 400 miles south of Cape Hatteras, North Carilina. We're told its moving about 25 miles an hour..with winds up to 130 miles an hour. This one, is Hurricane Hazel. And its already swept through Haiti...hit the Dominican Republic...and the Bahamas. An air force B-29 pilot...Catpain William E. Harrel of New Jersey...reports that the 130-mile an hour winds are "cutting the tops off all waves and making the ocean a continuous mass of white caps and frothing foam." Captain Harrell flew into Hurrinanes Carol, Edna and Dolly this year. But he reports that he "never saw anything like I saw today. The ocean on each side of Hazel's eye was a sheer white rippled sheet as far as I could see."

The storm is expected to hit the Cape Hatteras area late tonight or early tomorrow. Here in New York City, the chief meteroologist says "it presents a very definite threat to the entire atlantic seabord." New Englanders who have been hit by two hurricanes this year have been warned by the Boston Weather Bureau that Hazel's positiona and course "makes it critical for New England." The hurricane could hit the New York area tomorrow. The Weather Bureau will know more about that later this evening.

The political storm created by Defense Secretary Wilson's dog story seems to be blowing over. In Chicago last night, Wilson said he was sorry he made "inept remarks". He said: " I made an unfortunate mistake bringing up those bird dogs the same time I was talking about people."

Vice President Nixon thinks it will all end up to the advantage of the Republican party. He says Wilson's remarks were distorded...called this "diversionary tactics of the Dumbocrats."

C.I.O. President Reuther says he's pleased by Wilson's apology. And as some unions distributed cans of dog food at employment agencies, Reuther said: "In the final analysis the people will judge the concern of Wilson and the Republican Administration by what they do rather than by what they say." The Moscow radio told its people what Mr. Wilson has called American unimployed "dogs". A commentator spend 400 words on what he called the "scandal". There was no accurate explanation of what Wilson actually did syy...and no mention of his apology.

There was no comment on all this from the President who celebrated his 64th birthday at Denver receiving congratulations from hundreds of persons. He also received a number of gifts ranging from trout rods to barbeque equipment ...plus a Hereford calf that was sent to his farm in Gettysburg, Pennsylvania. Tomorrow the President ends his eight weeks of vacation and work at Denver and starts back for Washington. He makes a farm policy speech in Indianapolis tomorrow night.

Civil Service Commissioner George M. Moore said today that the Administration has fired 343 Postmasters that non a single one of the 343 "was removed because of his political affiliation."

Two Democratic congressmen...Holifield of California and Durham of North Carolina say they will oppose an administration request for prompt clearance of the Dixon-Yates contract to move private power into the Tennessee Valley Administration System. Vice President Nixon says criticism of the contract is "loose and generally erroneous." And the St. Louis Post-Dispatch reports that the Atomic Energy Committee 13 days ago made an urgent request to the Justice Department for its opinion on the legality of the contract. The newspaper says so far there has been no response from Attorney General Brownell.

Today, Brownell's aide said he has full confidence in United States Attorney Rover who is seeking to disqualify Federal Judge Youngdahl in the Owen Lattimore case.

The Supreme Court has agreed to decide whether the states, as well as the federal government, have the right to pass sedition laws that are designed to control subversion. Twenty eight states have asked the court to reverse a Pennsylvania state court ruling which casts doubt on the validity of anti-subversive laws passed by the states.

A Federal jury here in New York today indicated Corliss Lamont and two others for refusing to answer questions from the McCarthy committee. The others are: Attorney Abraham Unger and Albert Shadowitz of Nutley, New Jersey.

In Delaware, Vice Chancellor William Marvel has ruled that 10 Negroe students "have a clear legal right" to attend the high school at Milford, Delaware...at least until their case goes through higher courts. The chancellor says he'll issue an injunction to restrin the Milford school board "from denying to plaintiffs because of color or race their vested rights" to attend the school.

Democratic Senator Mansfield of Montana today reported to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that the situation in Indo-China has deteriorated seriously. He says there is a danger of complete internal chaos in South Viet Nam. Mansfield urges immediate suspension of all American aid until we reappraise our present policies...in the event that the South Viet Nam governmentshould fall. After spending two months in Indo-China the Senator says that according to best available estimates "some 25 per cent of the American economic aid in the past west into areas which are now held by the Communists." He cites one instance where our help made possible major improvements to the Hanoi airport "now passed intact to the Communists." The runway there can handle heavy bombers "capable of striking at our bases in the Philippines."

At the United Nations today, Ambassador Lodge refused to accept a Communist complaint charging us with aggression in Formosa. We have returned the complaint to Secretary General Hammershuld saying:"the charge came from anauthority which we do not recognize as a political entity and which already has been convicted of aggression by the General Assembly."

In London, Prime Minister Churchill called a special cabinet meeting to consider a two-week-old London dock strike which has seriously affected Great Britains shipping industry. Only one ship is loading in the miles of London wharves. The dispute concerns overtime and working conditions. London also has been hit by a bus strike...with more than 12-thousand drivers and conductors demanding a minimum wage of 28-dollars a week...they now get twenty-two dollars and 19 cents.

Our European correspondents appear to be in a rather whimsical mood tonight - disposed to disregard continuing crises and the cost of cables. Bill Downs advises from Rome that Charlie Wilson's dogs are now running on the international track. In a rare demonstration of how an offhand remark can ring round the world, the British Broadcasting Corporation's overseas Service is now carrying Mr. Wilson's apology, or explanation as the second story in its news bulletins. The lead story tells of pland - royal plans- to greet the Ethiopian Emperor. The Communist afternoon paper in Rome predicts a Democratic victory in both houses of Congress, as a result of Mr. Wilson's remarks.

Italian correspondents cabling from Washington are telling their readers in Italy that Republican prospects have been diminished by Mr. Nilson's dogs.

From Vienna we have a delayed message from Alexander Kendrick. He collects information and stories from behind the Iron Curtain. He says that the latest story goes as follows: The first Communist citizen says: "If they would only appoint Comrade Ivanof Minister of War, we would surely have lasting peace, and need fear no conflict." The second Communist citizen says: "How can you be so sure of that?" The first citizen replies: because when he was Minister of Food, we had no food; when he was Minister of Construction, there was no consturction; and when he was Minister for Consumer Goods, there were no consumer goods. He should ought to be made Minister of War."

And then Kendrick, with a continuing disregard of what cables cost, proceeds to inform us about a weight-lifting championship recently held in Vienna. He goes so far as to say that this spectacle symbolized to him the present state of international affairs in a pertinent way. He reports that twenty or more nations were partaking in this grunting and lifting contest but the actual struggle was between two of them - the United States and the Soviet Union. Kendrick explains that this contest was designed to determine which could left and hold aloft the weightiest burden. He reports that the individual desplays of muscle-flexing evoked admiration from the crowds and other contestants, but the final results were inconclusive. Both the Americans and the Russians went away believing they had won. Kendrick says the United States did win the big event, namely the heavy-weight class, and with that victory, won the right to be called "Strongest in the World." but Kendrick, careful of his facts though casual about cable costs, goes on to report that the Russians won out on points, for while we were concentrating on the main events - the heavy stuff - they were running away - piling up points - in the light-weight events in which we took no interest, and in which we weren't even represented.

At this point Mr. Kendrick permits himself an editorial comment by saying: "If that isn't an accurate picture of the world relations, you can hit me with a bar bell."

We have not yet had time to attempt any deep analysis of Mr. Kendrick's cable, but on the surface it seems possible that we are in fact, as a nation, concentration on winning the title "Strongest in the World", while the Communists are nibbling at the edges, winning what might be called the light-weight events in which we take no interest, or in which we are not represented. Perhaps after all there is a moral somewhere in the outcome of this weight-lifting contest in Vienna, at least sufficient to justify the cost of Mr. Kendrick's cable.

This is Ed. Murrow. I'll be back in a moment with the Word for Today. But first, Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: This is the President's 64th Birthday. Edward Tuck once wrote: "Age is a quality of mind - if you have left your dreams behind, if hope is cold, if you no longer look ahead, if your ambition's fires are dead, then you are old. But if from life you take the best, and if in life you keep the jest, if love you hold - then no matter how the years go by, no matter how the birthdays fly - you are not old."

"Good Night and Good Luck."

Friday Oct 15, 1954

This is the news:

Hurricane Hazel has now moved from Myrtle Beach, South Carolina, through MARYLAND. She's still going strong...and is still very dangerous. She's now expected to be passing through east-CENTRAL Pennsylvania on her way to New York state. Hazel registered winds up to 98 miles an hour in Washington..and dropped to 84 miles an hour west of Baltimore. The Baltimore Weather Bureau says Hazel is going northwest with winds of 50 to 60 miles an hour. Here in New York the weather Bureau reports gusts up to 80 miles an hour. The center of Hurricane Hazel is expected to pass from 80 to 100 miles west of this city later tonight. But we are warned not to take this "as a lessening influence so far as weather in the Metropolitican area is concerned." In her path northward, Hazel has killed at least five persons..injured many.. left thousands homeless and done damage in the millions. At NewPort News, the uncompleted 80-million-dollar battleship KENTUCKY is adrift in the waters of Hampton Roads. But a watchman abroad reports no danger. At Annapolis, a training ship with 50 to 100 men aboard broke her moorings and is now held in the Severn by sea anchors. A spokesman at Annapolis says: no danger to the men. In Washington, some precious old trees were knocked down on the Capitol grounds; windows were shattered...power lines and transportation disrupted. Government workers had been sent home early in the afternoon, and schools were closed. My colleague Ted Church has been spending most of the day at the Weather Bureau in Washington. And this is his report:

(3 mins return cue: This is ted church at the Weather Bureau in Washington.)

President Eisenhower ended his eight-week "work and play" vacation in Colorado today and flew to Indianapolis, where he will make a major address tonight on the Administration farm program. Mr. Eisenhower's speech is billed as non-partisan. It is being sponsored by the National Institute of Animal Agriculture which invited the President "to tell the nation's farmers the significance of a sound farm and food policy." After the speech, the President and Mrs. Eisenhower will fly on to Washington... weather permitting.

It was announced today that the President will make a political talk in New York City next Thursday night.

The President today accepted the resignation of Earl Coke as an assistant secretary of agriculture. He will be succeeded by Ervin L. Peterson, director of the Oregon State Agriculture Department.

The New York World-Telegram and Sun said tonight that charges linking a sister of Clifford P. (CASE), Republican candidate for the Senate from New Jersey, to Communist-front groups were due to "mistaken identity." Miss Bella V. Dodd, a former Communist leader, told the newspaper that she never said, nor did she ever mean to imply, that the Miss Case she knew was related to the Republican candidate. Her

Miss Case, Miss Dodd said, was a Columbia University professor who died in 1948. The Republican candidate's sister is a teacher at a girls school in Michigan... and is now under a physician's care. Candidate Case has referred to the charges against his sister as "gutter politics". He is preparing [redacted] a full reply.

Leaders of the C.I.O. and the A.F. of L. today agreed on plans to merge their two organizations into a single labor body. A committee preparing the groundwork for the merger has decided to unite [redacted] first, and then work out jurisdictional problems. A.F.of L. President Meany thinks the merger can be accomplished by the end of next year. C.I.O. President Reuther is also optimistic.

A truck strike that would paralyze much of the business of New York City is set for midnight tonight. The drivers are demanding a 25-cent-an-hour package increase. The trucking companies are offering 10 cents.

Efforts to settle the London dock strike collapsed tonight. And the government warned that Britain's food supplies are endangered. Forty-five hundred tugboatmen are scheduled to join the walkout on Sunday. Together with the spreading strike of busmen, the Churchill government is faced with its worst labor crisis [redacted] since it came to power, three years ago.

5

Russia told the U.N. General Assembly today that the United States is responsible for recent attacks by the Chinese Nationalists on the Red China coast. Soviet Delegate Vishinsky charged that the Nationalist attacks were supported by the U.S. Seventh Fleet... through its protection of the Formosa Straits... and that the United States should be directed to end what Vishinsky termed "these acts of aggression." U.S. Ambassador Lodge replied: "To say that the United States has engaged in any aggressive action in the area of Formosa... or anywhere else... is a plain lie."

My only excuse for talking about the hurricane is that Hazel is now harrassing us; ~~our lines to Washington, from which we hoped to bring you an eye-witness report, have failed~~; and because a few weeks ago this reporter spent a little time flying around in the eye of Hurricane Edna in a B-29. Hurricanes are considerably more impressive when viewed from the ground than from the air, but the net impression is pretty much the same.... a combination of helplessness and humility. There is no human power that can control, direct or influence a hurricane the puniness, the ineffectiveness of man with all his knowledge and scientific devices becomes apparent. There is no power to hold back the huge waves. The roof will come off the house of a man who has in his head all the secrets of ~~thermo-nuclear~~ atomic energy, quite as easily as it can be removed from the home of a humble working man. The falling tree or telephone pole will smash the newest air-conditioned limousine, or the most ancient jalopy with complete impartiality. There is an equality of danger, a companionship of fear, in a hurricane, comparable to that which exists in a night bombing raid.

When we were flying round inside the eye of Edna, in that unnatural quiet in the centre of the storm, I asked a weather expert how much energy he thought the thing was generating. And he said: "Who knows? there's no way of measuring it". But he thought it was the equivalent of a great many hydrogen bombs. And when I asked him what he thought would happen if a hydrogen bomb should be dropped into a full-blown hurricane, he laughed and said he didn't have the least idea, but he thought probably the hurricane would spit it right back.

On the ground the hurricane is a thing of terror, vicious and unpredictable, which often brings out the humanity, the compassion and neighborliness that somehow seems to come to the surface only during times of disaster - from the air it is a thing of solemn majesty in the centre, surrounded by frenzied fury. It is a place to reflect upon the limited capacity of the individual to determine his own fate, and to wonder what forces do indeed command it. There is a quiet in the eye of a hurricane, a serenity and a lack of pressure that can be seen in the faces of certain saints, or of men of great faith who are dying, and know it.

With all our scientific and technological advances no one has yet devised a method of opening a train window that is stuck, curing the common cold, or diverting a hurricane from its path.

At times of personal danger, some men pray, others are profane; each in his own way recognizing that they no longer exercise control over the forces at play. And each feels that indescribable sense of serenity when the stars come out again, when there is quiet, and light and life.

There are few things like a hurricane to cut a man down to size.

In Mark Twain's "A Tramp Abroad" there are these appropriate lines: "We watched the weather all through that awful night and kept an eye on the barometer for the least change, but there was none. Words can not describe the comfortx that that friendly, hopeful steadfast thing was in that season of trouble. It was a defective barometer. But if I should be in such a situation again, I would not wish for any barometer but that one."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

CBS RADIO DIVISION

EDWARD R. MURROW

Friday, October 15, 1954
7:45 - 8:00 P.M.

MURROW: ... My colleague, Ted Church, has been spending most of the day at the Weather Bureau, in Washington, and this is his report:

CHURCH: For a time, perhaps 25-minutes, Hurricane Hazel had the capital of the nation for its eye. It was an eerie feeling to know that in any direction one looked, the storm raged but here it was quiet. The top-side of the stormy wheel had passed, leaving considerable destruction throughout the city. The high tides of Chesapeake Bay backed up the Potomac River and famed Haines Point, visited by millions of Americans, is reported flooded. Then the bottom-side of the twister hit town. Although these winds were not expected to meet the nearly one hundred mile an hour challenge of the first wave, they seemed to be even worse. Seasone weathermen here view Hazel with an appreciative eye. As they tell it, "She has a long history, longer than most indeed, and when she hit the American mainland at the Carolinas ~~main~~ she sort of wound up and took off. She ~~got~~ gathered ~~her~~ speed and venom as she moved inland. Weather advisories, trying to see into the future, figured her for 35-mi. an hour, in northward movement, and she reeled off 50-miles an hour. Here at the United States weather station, at the National Airport in Washington, a cautious crew, under weatherman Rheinhardt C. Schmit, watched her movements closely, ~~doing~~ issuing special advisories more oftan than usual as reports poured in demonstrating the new strength and speed of the monster. And, unmistakably the charts showed Hazel headed straight for Washington. A close check of the radar screen showed it to be a shade to the West, but only a shade. But by this evening, brows began to clear slightly for Hurricane Hazel seemed to be showing some of the same characteristics of the tropical hurricane of September 17th, 1876. This one, like Hazel, came ashore in the North Carolina (sic) in North Carolina, generally near Wilmington. Its center, like Hazel's, passed directly over Washington between four and six o'clock; the present one was a shade late. The old gal, unlike most, then veered off to the northwest. Apparently, Hazel is not going completely to the northwest, but also she seems not going to the East. The best prediction available at broadcast time tonight is that Hazel will pass about one hundred miles due west of ~~New York~~ City, at about 9 o'clock tonight. As has been said, she is moving fast and experts think she'll be well into Canada by 7:30 tomorrow morning.

About fifteen minutes ago, the bureau took storm warnings down south of Delaware breakwater. Old residents here in Washington don't like to talk about it much, but there have been eight hurricanes whose eyes have passed directly overhead. What they will talk about for some time however, is how Hurricane Hazel broke one of the most unusual safety records ever run up by a major city. For fifty days, up until today, metropolitan Washington had not had a fatality due to an automobile accident. But at the ~~ak~~ height of the storm this afternoon, a 71-yr. old woman met death by auto on a stormy northeast Washington street, hit actually, I suppose, by Hurricane Hazel.

So the weather reports here have said Hurricane Hazel is a dangerous storm, and apparently still is. This is Ted Church at the Washington Weather Bureau, in Washington.

MURROW: Thank you, Ted Church.

(30)

Ed. trans. P. O.

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 15, 1954
7:45-8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

Hurricane Hazel has now moved from Myrtle Beach, South Carolina, thorugh Maryland. She's still going strong...and is still very dangerous. She'snow expected to be passing through east-central Pennsylbania on her way to New York State. Hazel registered winds up to 98 miles an hour in Washington...and dropped to 84 miles an hour west of Baltimore. The Baltimore Weather Bureau says Hazel is going northwest with winds of 50 to 60 miles an hour. Here in New York the weather Bureau reports gusts up to 80 miles an hour. The center of Hurricand Hazel is expected to pass from 80 to 100 miles west of this city later tonight. But we are warned not to take this "as a lessening influence so far as weather in the Metropolitan area is concerned." In her path northward Hazel has killed at least five persons...injured many...left thousands homeless and done damage in the millions. At Newport News the uncompleted 80-million dollar battleship Kentucky is adrift in the waters of Hampton roads. But a watchman aboard reports no danger. At Annapolis a training ship with 60 to 100 men aboard broke her moorings and is now held in Severn by sea anchors. A spokesman at Annapolis says no danger to the men. In Washin ton, some Precious old trees were knocked down on the Capitol grounds; windows were shattered... power lines and transportation disrupted. Government workers had been sent home early in the afternoon and schools were closed My colleague, Ted Church has been spending Most of the day at the Weather Bureau in Washington. And this is his report:

CHURCH: For a time, perhaps 25-minutes, Hurricane Hazel had the capital of the nation for its eye. It was an eerie feeling to know that in any direction one looked, the storm raged but here it was quiet. The top-side of the stormy wheel had passed, leaving considerable destruction throughout the city. The high tides of the Chesapeake Bay backed up the Potomac River and famed Haines Point, visited by millions of Americans, is reported flooded. Then the bottom-side of the twister hit town. Although these winds were not expected to meet the nearly one hundred mile an hour challenge of the first wave, they seemed to be even worse. Seasoned weathermen here view Hazel with an appreciative eye. As they tell it, "she has a long history, longer than most indeed, and when she hit the American mainland at the Carolinas she sort of wound up and took off. She gathered speed and venom as she moved inland. Weather advisories trying to see into the future, figured her for 35-miles an hour, in northward movement, and she reeled off 50-miles an hour. Here at the United States weather station, at the National Airport in Washington, a cautious crew, under weatherman Rheinhardt C. Schmit, watched her movements closely, issuing special advisories more often than usual as reports poured in demonstrating the new strength and speed of the monster. And, unmistakably the charts showed Hazel headed straight for Washington. A close check of the radar screen showed it to be a shade to the West, but only a shade. But by this evening, brows began to clear slightly for Hurricane Hazel seemed to be showing some of the same characteristics of the tropical hurricane of September 17th, 1876. This one, like Hazel, came ashore in the North Carolina, generally near Wilmington. Its center, like Hazel's , passed directly over Washington between four and six o'clock; the present one was a shade late. The old gal, unlike most, then veered off to the northwest. Apparently, Hazel is not going completely to the northwest, but also she seems not going to the East. The best prediction available at broadcast time tonight is that Hazel will pass about one hundred miles due west of New York City, at about 9 o'clock tonight. As has been said, she is moving fast and experts think she'll be well into Canada by 7:30 tomorrow morning.

About fifteen munutes ago, the bureau took storm warnings down south of the Delaware breakwater. Old residents here in Washington don't like to talk about it much, but there have been eight hurricanes whose eyes have passed directly overhead. What they willtalk about for some time however, is how Hurricane Hazel broke one of the most unusual safety records ever run up by a major city. For fifty days, up until today, metropolitan Washington had not had a fatality due to an automobile accident. But at the height of the storm this afternoon, a 71-year old woman met death by auto on a stormy northeast Washington street, it actually, I suppose, by Hurricane Hazel.

So the Weather reports here have said Hurricane Hazel is a dangerous storm and apparently still is. This is Ted Church at the Washington Weather Bureau in Washington.

MURROW: Thank you, Ted Church.

President Eisenhower ended his eight-week "work and play" vacation in Colorado today and flew to Indianapolis, where he will make a major address tonight on the administration farm program. Mr. Eisenhower's speech is billed as non-partisan. It is being sponsored by the Institute of Animal Agriculture which invited the President "to tell the nation's farmers the significance of a sound farm and food policy." After the speech the President and Mrs. Eisenhower will fly on to Washington...weather permitting.

It was announced today that the President will make a political talk in New York City next Thursday night.

The President today accepted the resignation of Earl Coke as an assistant secretary of agriculture. He will be succeeded by Ervin L. Peterson, director of the Oregon State Agriculture Department.

The New York World-Telegram and Sun said tonight that charges linking a sister of Clifford P. Case, Republican candidate for the Senate from New Jersey, to Communist-front groups were due to "mistaken identity." Miss Bella V. Dodd, a former Communist leader, told the newspaper that she never said, nor did she ever mean to imply, that the Miss Case she knew was related to the Republican candidate. Her Miss Case, Miss Dodd said, was a Columbia University professor who died in 1948. The Republican candidate's isster is a teacher at a girls school in Michigan...and is now under a physician's care. Candidate Case has referred to the charges against his sister as "gutter politics." He is preparing a full reply.

Leaders of the C.I.O. and the A.F. of L. today agreed on plans to merge their two organizations into a single labor body. A committee preparing the groundwork for the merger has decided to unite first, and then work out jurisdictional problems. A.F. of L. President Meany thinks the merger can be accomplished by the end of the next year. C.I.O. President Reuther is also optimistic.

A truck strike that would paralyze much of the business of New York City is set for midnight tonight. The drivers are demanding a 25-cent-an-hour package increase. The trucking companies are offering 10 cents.

Efforts to settle the London dock strike collapsed tonight. And the government warned that Britain's food supplies are endangered. Forty-five hundred tugboatmen are scheduled to join the walkout on Sunday. Together with the spreading strike of dusmen, the Churchill government is faced with its worst labor crisis since it came to power, three years ago.

Russia told the U. N. General Assembly today that the United States is responsible for recent attacks by the Chinese Nationalists on the Red China coast. Soviet Delegate Vishinsky charged taat the Nationalist attacks were supported by the U.S. Seventh Fleet...through its protection of the Formosa Straits...and that the United States should be directed to end what Vishinsky termed "these acts of aggression." U.S. Ambassador Lodge replied: "to say that the United States has engaged in any aggressive action in the area of Formosa...or anywhere else...is a plain lie."

My only excuse for talking about the hurricane is that Hazel is now harrassing us and a few weeks ago this reporter spent a little time flying around in the eye of Hurricand Edna in a B-29. Hurricanes are considerably more impressive when viewed from the ground than from the air, but the net impression is pretty much the same...a combination of helplessness and humility. There is no human power that can control, direct or influence a hurricane. The puniness, the ineffectiveness of man, with all his knowledge and scientific devices becomes apparent. There is no power to hold back the huge waves. The roof will come off the house of a man who has in his head all the secrets of atomic energy, quite as easily as it can be removed from the home of a humble working man. The falling tree or telephone pole will smash the newest air-contitioned limousine, or the most ancient jalopy, with complete impartiality. There is an equality of danger, a companionship of fear, in a hurricane, comparable to that which exists in a night bombing raid.

When we were flying around inside the eye of Edna, in that unnatural quiet on the center of the storm, I asked a weather expert how much energy he thought the thing was generating. And he said: "Who knows? There's no way to measure it." But he thought it was the equivalent of a great many hydrogen bombs. And when I asked him what he thought would happen if a hydrogen bomb should be dropped into a full-blown hurricane, he laughed and said he didn't have the least idea, but he thought probably the hurricane would spit it right back.

On the ground the hurricane is a thing of terror, vicious and unpredictabel, which often brings out the humanity, the compassion and the neighborliness that somehow seems to come to the surface only during times of disaster - from the air it is a thing of solemn majesty in the center, surrounded by frenzied fury. It is a place to reflect upon the limited capacity of the individual to determine his own fate, and to wonder what forces do indeed command it. There is a quiet in the eye of a hurricane, a serentiy and a lack of pressure that can be seen in the faces of certain saints or in men of great faith who are dying and know it.

With all our scientific and technological advances no one has yet devised a method of opening a train window that is stuck, curing the common cold, or diverting a hurricane from its path.

At times of personal danger, some men pray, others are profane; each in his own way recognizing that they no longer exercise control over the forces at play. And each feels that indescribably sense of serenity when the stars come out again, when there is quiet, and light and life.

There are few things like a hurricane to cut a man down to size.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a moment with the Word for Today, but first, Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

In Mark Twain's "A Tramp Abroad" there are these appropriate lines: "We watched the weather all through that awful night and kept an eye on the barometer for the least change, but there was none. Words cannot describe the comfort that that friendly, hopeful steadfast thing was in that season of trouble. It was a defective barometer. But if I should be in such a situation again, I would not wish for any barometer but that one."

Good Night and Good Luck.

Monday Oct 18, 1958

This is the news:

Vice President Nixon says the Republicans have the Congressional elections won.."if we mobilize our strength."/The Vice President spent 50-minutes discussing the campaign with the President./Then he told reporters, the election will be won or lost in the final two weeks of the campaign.# He said:"To put it bluntly, this is a campaign which cannot be won by the left-wing Democratic opposition./But it can be lost by Republicans, and those moderate Democrats who supported President Eisenhower two years ago, if they fail to organize and get the voters to the polls."

~~Nixon who has traveled 25 thousand miles campaigning in 28 states is starting a new swing into ten states.~~

The White House said today that the President has decided to make half-hour talks, instead of "brief remarks" when he visits New York, on Wednesday and Thursday./He speaks to a dinner, marking the 300th anniversary of the founding of the Jewish Faith in America... and at a dinner honoring the memory of the late Alfred E. Smith, the 1928 presidential nominee.

And Defense Secretary Wilson, who swore off political speeches, after his now famous dog-story in Detroit, has agreed to make another political speech in Dayton, Ohio on Wednesday.

In Salt Lake City, Republican Representative Douglas R. Srtingfellow, who has admitted that his story of being a wartime hero was a hoax, HAS formally resigned as a candidate for re-eltcion.

And the President's top economic adviser, Dr. Arthur F. Burns, chairman of the council of economic advisers, said today that the recent decline in employment and business "has been halted." Burns says the country has witnessed a remarkable achivement during a period when industrial production dropped nine per cent, spending by individuals increased substantially.

Methodist Bishop J. Bromley Oxnam told the Subversive Activities Control Board that Harvey Matusow, who frequently testified in investigations of Communism, had told him that he "has borne false witness." This was the second time Bishop Oxnam has told a government group that on two occassions Matusow asked forgiveness for false testimony. After the first such testimony Matusow said Bishop Oxnam was wrong. He could not be reached for comment today.

A grand jury met in Alexandria, Virginia, today to consider charges against Joseph W. Petersen, Junior, a former employe of the National Security Agency. Peterson was arrested by the F.B.I. on a charge of improperly obtaining secret government documents" with intent or reason to believe it would be used to injure this country or help a foreign nation.

And a Washington grand jury has filed a criminal contempt charge aginst Clyde L. Powell, former assistant commissioner of the Federal Housing Administration. Powell is accused of refusing to tell the jury whether he took with him when he left office, the official diaries of the [redacted] housing agency.

In Milford, Delaware, ten Negro [redacted] pupils today obeyed an order from the state Board of Education and reported for classes at an all-Negro school 16 miles from Milford. The students had been ousted from Milford's all-white high school.

Senate Majority Leader Knowland said in Atlantic City today that Former British Prime Minister Atlee displayed "the same kind of realism which Neville Chamberlain showed at Munich" in Atlee's recent suggestion that Formosa be turned over to the Chinese Communists. Knowland called this proposal "shocking."

Rescue workers in Canada today recovered more bodies of persons killed in Ontario, as a result of ~~the~~ Hurricane Hazel. Fifty-seven persons were killed in Canada..39 are missing. In this country there were 98 persons dead.

Here in New York, striking A.F. of L. teamsters claim that resistance to their demand for pay increases is collapsing on all sides. But the chairman of the employers group says, resistance to the union demands is 75 per cent effective in the city.

India's Prime Minister Nehru conferred with Communist Leader Ho Chi Minh in Hanoi today. Ho promised to respect the soverignty of the small Indo-Chinese states of Laos and Cambodia.

~~In Soviet-occupied East Germany, communist candidates for Parliament won 99 point three per cent of yesterday's votes. Last year the Communists announced a vote of 99 point six per cent.~~

In London, striking bus drivers were asked to return to work, so their union leaders could negotiate their demand for $28 a week. $4 more than they are now getting. And with the London dock areas paralyzed, the Communist-supported waterfront strike spread to Liverpool and BIRKENHEAD.

Edward R. Murrow: October 18, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

The reshuffling of the British Cabinet, announced over the week-end, brings some younger blood into the Government; but basically it means that Sir Winston Churchill intends to remain as Prime Minister indefinitely. He has again confounded the political pundits who have been predicting his retirement for over a year. What he did on the week-end was to re-arrange the shrubbery, and clear away a little underbrush. But the big oak tree in the middle still towers over everything else and is apparently indestructible. The ageing Anthony Eden remains the heir apparent, but his inheritance has again been delayed.

A recent cartoon in London shows Mr. Eden, white-haired and wheel-chaired with Sir Winston still jogging merrily along in front of him. Paul Niven cables me from London that the British press was amazed by the Cabinet shuffle, and some papers barely managed to be polite about it. The editorial in the London Times contemplates the "change which has still to come", and says it is embarrassing to discuss that change." The Gallup Poll, which enjoys a considerable reputation for accuracy in England, says three out of five voters believe Sir Winston should quit. He is rather deaf and walks slowly, but on the eve of his 80th birthday he shows little evidence of any real unfitness for his great office. He retains tremendous energy and capacity for work - still wakes up subordinates with phone calls in the middle of the night; still receives a stream of visitors, presides over meetings and sends out detailed memoranda. His swans, goldfish and dog Rufus continue to give him great pleasure. Sir Winston is currently sitting for a portrait which will be given him by the House of Commons on his 80th birthday. The artist is one of Britain's greatest, but the Prime Minister frequently gets up, with the excuse that he wants to stretch his legs, examines the canvas with a critical eye, and suggests minor and at times major improvements. There is no official or eye-witness confirmation for the story that Sir Winston gets up in the middle of the night and does a little work on the portrait himself. But it is stated, on pretty good authority, that he has acquiesced rather reluctantly in the proposed plans for his 80th birthday celebration. He is understood to contend, privately, that this celebration is premature and might more fittingly be delayed till his hundredth birthday. In any event, our political pundits in the future will be less willing to predict that he will quit.

This reporter's impression is that master of the English language though he is, Sir Winston is totally unfamiliar with the word.

Across the Channel, in France, the winds of optimism are blowing.

Mendes-France is being referred to as "the different Premier". He has lived dangerously - demonstrated that he's prepared to gamble politically, and that he is no prisoner of tradition. He has decided to confer with German Chancellor Adenauer at his week end retreat in Marly Forest, instead of at the Foreign Office. This is where the kings of France once went to shoot wild duck; and this week Mendes-France and Adenauer will be trying to snare the dove of peace. There will be a blind around the Marly Pavilion, a complete blackout on all news, for fear that a public controversy in the course of the negotiations might force either man to take an irreconcilable position. The first and biggest problem is that of the Saar. Last week Mendes-France sent one of his top advisors XXXX to Bonn, secretly, to talk with Adenauer's right-hand men. These conversations are described as "very successful."

Later this week, French and German leaders will join Dulles and Eden for four-power talks on German sovereignty. Then on Friday the full fourteen-nation North Atlantic Treaty Organization meets, but what they can do will depend upon what the French and German leaders have decided in that shooting lodge at Marly. Mendes-France will want a tighter integration of the armed forces on the Continent, tighter control for the supreme commander; and some scheme for an armaments pool, perhaps going so far as jointly owned and operated French-German armaments plants.

Mendes-France is still under very considerable pressure to open direct negotiations with the Russians for disarmament, and he is expected to press this view on Mr. Dulles and Mr. Eden.

David Schoenbrun cables me from Paris that some of the optimism may be due to the weather, for the roses are blooming in October; but he thinks there is more solid ground for the current French optimism. Schoenbrun says that Mendes-France has asked the Socialists to join his Cabinet next week. He has offered them the portfolios of Economic Affairs, Labor and Social Security. This would give the Socialists a strong hand in increasing the standard of living of the masses of the French people, which Mendes France insists is the best way of fighting Communist influence in France. This would mean that Edgar Faure, the present Finance Minister, would become the Foreign Minister.

If Mendes-France brings off the Socialist participation in his government, he will have a stable political majority, for in France the Socialists are among the most militant anti-Communists. So it appears tonight that if the international conference in Paris is not booby-trapped, the French Cabinet will be re-made next week, and Mendes-France may preside over the most stable government, with the most workable majority that any French Premier has had since the end of the war.

Maybe it's just the roses in October, but there's a lot of optimism in Paris tonight.

It would seem, ~~from all reports tonight,~~ that there is an unusual atmosphere of optimism in France; renewed hope that this troubled nation is finally resolving some of its difficulties. Lord Tweedsmuir once said:"There are many isms to perplex us - nazism, communism, fascism and so forth. But most of them will cancel each other out. There is only one ism that kills the soul and that is pessimism."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

Tuesday Oct 19 1954

This is the news:

The United States suspects that "the Soviet Union is planning world conquest behind its facade of disarmament statements." American Delegate Wadsworth told the United Nations political committee today that Andrei Vishinsky of Russia has refused to take the same steps this country would take to assure disarmament; that the Russian position has not changed on the matter of international control to watch out for violations of a disarmament treaty.

In Paris today, French Premier Mendez-France and West Germany's Chancellor Adenauer met for six hours. They reported some progress toward solving the settlement of their Sarr dispute..and agreement to expand their economic relations.

In Great Britain, the dock workers strike has spread to Hull..even though the government warned that it might have to use troops to man the docks. The government had warned the Communist-led strikers (about half of the nation's dock workers) that their strike threatens the British food supply and the economy. [redacted]

~~And the British government announced today that those two Comet~~ jet airline crashes--that took the lives of 56 persons--were due to "metal fatigue" resulting ~~from "tremendous pressures" built up in~~ the pressuried cabins of the ~~Comets. A report says~~ THAT AS [redacted] ~~a result, split-second~~ explosions blew passengers and crewmen through the sides of the plane before any distress signals could be sent. ~~The report says~~ the metal weakness can be corrected with only "minor" changes.

Here in New York tonight, Senator Ives, the Republican Candidate for governor charged that 24 years ago his Democratic opponent, Averall Harriman, was chairman of the board of directors of a firm that paid a 250-thousand dollar bribe to a judge. I'd like to review this charge AND THE HARRIMAN COMMENT [redacted] in a few minutes.

Vice President Nixon said tonight that the Eisenhower Administration inherited from the Truman administration all but one of the more than 150 State Department employes fired as security risks..for alleged subversive associations or sexual perversion. Mr. Nixon says the issue for the congressional election campaign is the same as it was in 1952:

"Should we continue the Truman policies or should we reject them and give America new leadership under President Eisenhower?" ~~He said, Trumanism, the Democratic record of "cover up" for Communists and other security risks, will be the issue in this campaign.~~

Treasury Secretary Humphrey says "unemployment is a matter of the greatest concern" to everyone in the Administration. He says: "We are working and planning in every way to reach the day when every man looking for work can find a job."

General Doolittle reported to the President today on a study he has led of the Central Intelligence Agency. He says: the C.I.A. is doing a creditable job and is exercising care to insure the loyalty of its personnel.

The State Department revealed today that it's the Netherlands government that is mixed up in the Petersen case. Joseph F. Petersen, Junior, is charged with improperly obtaining military secrets with intent or reason to believe they were to be used to injure this nation or for the advantage of a foreign nation. The State Department says: Peterson was NOT authorized to give the Dutch and secrets ..violated the law. The Dutch government says IT began exchanging secret information with us during World War Two. This continued for a few years after the war. The Dutch assumed the transmission of military secrets was authorized..that this was known by Petersen's superiors. The State Department says there is no reason to question the good faith of the Dutch..they co-operated completely in the Petersen investigation.

The Corning Glass Works said today that Dr. Edward U. Condon, former head of the U.S. Bureau of Standards, has been cleared by the Defense Department for access to government secrets. He once denied a House un-American activities committee charge that he was "the weakest link" in our atomic security chain.

Dr. Vannevar Bush, former head of the Office of Scientific Research, has told a House committee that the government's security risk program has wrecked the morale of scientists and slowed the development of new weapons.

The government today accused 17 health, hospital and accident insurance companies of misrepresenting the benefits they offer customers. The Federal Trade Commission says that in an investigation of nearly 900 other health and accident insurance companies, SHOWS hundreds of other cases of "false and misleading advertising". [redacted]. The Joint Committee on Health Insurance says: the government's complaint is not a definite ruling.. and does not imply that the 17 companies concerned are opposed to changing their advertising to remove the F.T.C. objections.

~~The Justice Department said today the time has come for the Interstate Commerce Commission to issue a flat ban against racial segregation of interstate travelers.~~

The State Department has awarded its highest service award... TO ~~the~~ Ambassador Loy Henderson, for his contributions to our foreign policy in the Near and Middle East...his execution of that policy.. and for his courage~~,~~ and leadership during the "dangerously unsettled period" in Iran.

Chairman Hendrickson of a Senate committee studying the effect television crime shows may have on teen-agers, , suggested today that the government police TV programs or THAT a TV "czar" be appointed to guard against anything ~~that~~ that might tend to increase juvenile delinquency. Merle S. Jones, a CBS Vice president, said he believes in "self-regulation and self-discipline" for the TV industry.

Edward R. Murrow: October 19, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

The British have agreed formally to get out of Suez. The treaty between Britain and Egypt signed today provides that the British garrison of eighty thousand men will be out of the Canal zone within twenty months. Some of the garrison will be returned to Britain to form a mobile reserve; the others will be transferred to the Island of Cyprus. After the troops leave, British civilian contractors will maintain certain military installations for the seven years that the treaty runs. There is a provision that if an outside power attacks Turkey, or an Arab state, the British have the right to re-occupy the bases in the Canal zone. The treaty stipulates that an attack by Israel on any of the Arab nations will not bring British armed forces back. The attack must come from what is called "an outside power", which of course means ~~only~~ Russia.

This treaty which takes British troops out of the Canal zone for the first time since 1882 has met with a mixed reception in Britain and in Egypt. The Right Wing of the Conservative Party in England has opposed it, on the grounds that it weakens Britain's world power. The fanatical Moslem brotherhood have attacked the Egyptian Government for agreeing that the British may return under certain circumstances. There was minor rioting in Cairo today, several people injured; the police made a number of arrests and blamed Communist agents and the Moslem brotherhood for the disorders.

The British will leave behind, at the end of the twenty-month period, some twelve hundred civilian technicians. They will turn over to the Egyptians ten airfields, but the Royal Air Force retains the right to fly over the Canal and to refuel in the zone. This action must be regarded, in purely military terms, as a net loss for the Western Powers. It might be called a calculated risk. Both Britain and the United States hope by this action to improve relations with Egypt and the Arab world, and to persuade them to abandon their attitude of neutrality in the cold war.

Sir Winston Churchill has presided over the liquidation of another small bit of the British Empire on which the sun still never sets. There may be something symbolic in the fact that today's treaty was signed by two young men, Egypt's Premier Nasser 35 and signing for Britain, 34-year-old Anthony Nutting, Minister of State. The British in the post-war years, in India, Burma, Pakistan and elsewhere, think they have had considerable success in giving up power while retaining influence. They, and we, clearly hope that this will be the case in Egypt.

Here in New York tonight, the two men who want to be Governor - Republican Senator Irving Ives, and Democrat Averell Harriman - show no disposition to compromise. Senator Ives, in a widely publicized television appearance, accused Harriman of being involved in a quarter-million dollar New York waterfront scandal in 1930. He contended that Harriman was Chairman of the Board of a shipping line; the venture was a failure. Harriman decided to unload; found a company willing to buy his ships; they had to have a lease on docks for their ships; they got the lease. The United States Attorney found that checks had been passed to a Brooklyn judge, totalling two hundred and fifty thousand dollars; that the checks came from Harriman's shipping company. According to Ives, Harriman said he knew nothing about it. "But", said Ives, "he was Chairman of the Board of Directors; it was his company. Minutes of the meetings showed the directors paid attention to such details as salaries of clerks and stenographers; but nothing about two hundred and fifty thousand dollars to a crooked judge, to get a lease of two of the great piers owned by the City of New York."

Ives said he understood why Harriman, during this period, changed from Republican to Democrat and became a big contributor.

No Comment for Harriman yet.

Mr Harriman has just issued the following statement —

Tonight's papers quote my opponent as saying: "I never fight so hard as when my back is to the wall." What he meant was that he plays fair only when he is ahead.

In his speech tonight he made a slanderous attack on my personal integrity in a desperate effort to bolster his faltering campaign. He abandoned his promise to carry on a discussion of the issues, and dug back into the newspaper filed of almost 25 years ago to re-hash a matter fully publicized at that time, involving the leasing of piers to a shipping company with which I was connected. [When this matter was first brought up I appeared before a Federal Grand Jury. I stated under oath that I had no knowledge of the payments that were said to have been made to Judge Vause. That was the truth. I deny completely and categorically that I ever paid, or knew of any improper payments to Vause or anyone else in connection with any pier lease or any other matter.] I have been privileged to serve my country in many important posts. On five occasions I have been approved by the United States Senate following Presidential appointments to various of these posts. [I deeply resent, and I believe the people will resent this faithless attack on my personal honor and integrity.]

The British are hopeful that even though they are pulling out of the Suez, Canal Zone they will be able to maintain some - if not all - of their influence in this area of the world. This will be determined to a large extent by a formula J.N. Hunt once drew up. Hunt concluded: "The depth of one's conviction measures the breadth of his influence." That still holds true.

Good Nite and Good Luck.!

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 19, 1954
7:45-8:00 P. M., EST.

This is the news:

The United States suspects that "The Soviet Union is planning world conquest behind its facade of disarmament statements." American Delegates Wadsworth told the United Nations political committee today that Andrei Vishinsky of Russia has refused to take the same steps this country would take to assure dismarament; that the Russian position has not changed on the matter of international control to watch out for violations of a disarmament treaty.

In Paris today, French Premier Mendez-France and West Germany's Chancellor Adenauer met for six hours. They reported some progress toward solving the settlement of their Saar ...and agreement to expand their dispute...and agreement to expand their economic relations.

In Great Britain, the dock workers strike has spread to Hull...even though the government warned that it might have to use troops to man the docks. The government had warned the Communist -led strikers (about half of the nation's dock workers) -- that their strike threatens the British food supply and economy.

Here in New York tonight, Senator Ives, the Republican Candidate for governor charged that 24 years ago his Democratic opponent, Averall Harriman, was chairman of the board of directors of a firm that paid a 250-thousand dollar bribe to a judge. I'd like to review this charge and the Harriman comment in a few minutes.

Vice President Nixon said tonight that the Eisenhower Administration inherited from the Truman administration all but one of the more than 150

State Department employees fired as security risks...for alleged subversive associations or sexual perversion. Mr. Nixon says the issue for the congressional election campaign is the same as it was in 1952:"Should we continue the Truman policies, or should we reject them and give America new leadership under President Eisenhower?"

Treasury Secretary Humphrey says "unemployment is a matter of the greatest concern " to everyone in the Administration. He says: "We are working and planning in every way to reach the day when every man looking for work can find a job."

General Doolittle reported to the President today on a study he has led of the Central Intelligence Agency. He says : the C.I.A. is doing a creditable job and is exercising care to insure the loyalty of its personnel.

The State Department revealed today that it is the Netherlands government that is mixed up in the Peterson case. Joseph F. Peterson, Junior, is charged with improperly obtaining military secrets with intent or reason to believe thay were to be used to injure this nation or for the advantage of a foreign nation. The State Department says: "Peterson was not authorized to give the Dutch any secrets....violated the law. The Dutch government says it began exchanging secret information with us during World War Two. This continued for a few years after the war. The Dutch assumed the transmission of military secrets was authorized...that this was known by Peterson's superiors. The State Department says there is no reason to question the good faith of the Dutch...they cooperated completely in the Peterson investigation.

The Corning Glass Works said today that Dr. Edward U. Condon, former head of the U.S. Bureau of Standards, has been cleared by the Defense Department for access to government secrets. He once denied a House un-American activities committee charged that he was "the weakest link" in our atomic security chain.

Dr. Vannevar Bush, former head of the Office of Scientific Research, has told a House committee that the government's security risk program has wrecked the morale of scientists and slowed developement of new weapons.

The government today accused 17 health, hospital and accident insurance companies of misrepresenting the benefits they offer customers. The Federal Trade Commission says that an investigation of nearly 900 other health and accident insurance companies shows hundreds of other cases of "false and misleading advertising." The Joint Committee on Health Insurance says: the government's complaint is not a definite ruling...and does not imply that the 17 companies concerned are opposed to changing their advertising to remove F.T.C. objections.

The State Department has awarded its highest service award...to Ambassador Loy Henderson for his contributions to our foreign policy in the Near and Middle East...his execution of that policy...and for his courage and leadership during the "dangerously unsettled period" in Iran.

Chairman Hendrickson of a Senate committee studying the effect television crime shows may have on teen-agers, suggested today that the government police TV programs or that a TV czar be appointed to guard against anything that might tend to increase juvinile delinquency. Merle S. Jones, a CBS Vice President, said he believes in "self-regulation and self-discipline" for the TV industry.

The British have agreed formally to get our of Suez. The treaty between Britain and Egypt signed today provides that the British garrison of eighty thousand men will be out of the Canal Zone within twenty months. Some of the garrison will be returned to Britain to form a mobile reserve; the others will be transferred to the Island of Cyprus. After the troops leave, British civilian contractors will maintain certain military installations for the seven years that the treaty runs. There is a provision that if an outside power attacks Turkey, or an Arab state, the British have the right to re-occupy the bases in the Canal Zone. The treaty stipulates that an attack by Israel on any of the Arab nations will not bring the British armed forces back. The attack must come from what is called "an outside power", which of course means Russia.

This treaty which takes British troops out of the Canal zone for the first time since 1882 has met with a mixed reception in Britain and in Egypt. The Right Wing of the Conservative Party in England has opposed it, on the grounds that it weakens Britains world power. The fanatical Moslem brootherhood have attacked the Egyptian Government for agreeing that the British may return under certain circumstances. There was minor rioting in Cairo today, several people injured; the police made a number of arrests and blamed Communist agents and the Moslem brootherhood for the disorders.

The British will leave behind, at the end of a twenty-month period, some twelve hundred civilian technicians. They will turn over to the Egyptians ten air fields, but the Royal Air Force retains the right to fly over the Canal and to refuel in the zone. This action must be regarded, in purely military terms, as a net loss for the Western powers. It might be called a calculated risk. Both Britain and the United States hope by this action to improve relations with Egypt and the Arab world, and to persuade them to abandon their attitude of neautrality in the cold war.

Sir Winston Churchill has presided over the liequidation of another small bit of the British Empire on which the sun still never sets. There may be something symbolic in the fact that today's treaty was signed by two young men, Egypt's Premier Nasser, 35 and signing for Britain, 34-yearoold Anthony Nutting. The British in the post-war years think they have had success in giving up power while retaining influence. They, and we, clearly hope that this will be the case in Egypt.

Here in New York tonight, the two men who want to be Governor - Republican Senator Irving Ives, and Democrat Averall Harriman - show no disposition to compormise. Senator Ives, in a widely publicized television appearance, accused Harriman of being involved in a quarter-million dollar New York waterfront scandal in 1930. He contended that Harriman was Chairman of the Board of a shipping line; the venture was a failure. Harriman decided to unload; found a company willing to buy his ships; they had to have a lease on docks for their ships; they got the lease. The United States Attorney found that checks had been passed to a Brooklyn judge, totalling two hundred and fifty thousand dollars; that the ckecks came from Harriman's shipping company. According to Ives, Harriman said he knew nothing about it. "But", said Ives, "he was Chairman of the Board of Directors; it was his company. Minutes of the meetings showed the directors paid attention to such details as salaries of clerks and stenographers; but nothing about two hundred and fifty thousand dollars to a crooked judge, to get a lease of two of the great piers owned by the City of New York."

Ives said he understood why Harriman, during this period, changed from Republican to Democrat and became a big contributor.

Mr. Harriman has just issued the following statement. When this matter was first brought up I appeared before a Federal Grand Jury. I stated under oath that I had no knowledge of the payments that were said to have been made to Judge Vause. That was the truth. I deny completely and categorically that I ever paid, or knew of any improper payment to Vause, or anyone else, in connection with any pier lease or any other matter. I have been priviledged to serve my country in many important posts. On five occasions

I have been approved by the United States Senate following Presidential appointments to various of these posts. I deeply resent, and I believe the people will resent this faithless attack on my personal honor and integrity.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a moment with the Word for Today. But first, Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: The British are hopeful that even though they are pulling out of the Suez Canal Zone, they will be able to maintain some - if not all - of their influence in this area of the world. This will be determined to a large extent by a formula J.N. Hunt once drew up. Hunt concluded: "The depth of one's conviction measures the breadth of his influence." That still holds true.

Good Night and Good Luck.

Wednesday Oct 20, 1954

This is the news:

The President will say tonight that our military forces will never be used to initiate a war against any nation..they will be employed "only for a defense of the free world." The President's speech, which will be broadcast later tonight over many of these stations at 11;30 [redacted] eastern time, is to [redacted] be made before [redacted] a dinner celebrating the 300th anniversary of Jewish settlement in this country. Mr. Eisenhower will outline a program of three avenues to peace which would be secure and just and "not bought at the expense of others." He says we must seek through the United Nations and other means to establish the conditions for honorable peace. We must promote the unity and collective [redacted] strength of other free peoples. And we must maintain enough military [redacted] strength to deter aggression and promote peace."

The President says we must maintain our "awesome power" in "today's uncertain world" so that we may "deal effectively and flexibly with whatever situations may arise." He SAYS [redacted] "the principle and continuing factor" that stands in the way of peace "is the persistently aggressive designs of Moscow and Peiping, which show no evidence of genuine change despite their professed desire to relax tensions and preserve peace." He says the breadth and scope of the Communist attack is continuing.."no weapon is absent from their arsenal, whether intended for the destruction of cities and people or for the destruction of truth, integrity, loyalty."

Earlier in the day, the President received an honorary degree at Trinity College, in Hartford, Connecticut. He said another war could not be measured in terms of victory or defeat but only "in a degree of destruction." Later the President attended a birthday party for Conneticut's Republican Governor Lodge, who is seeking re-election. He told an estimated 60-thousand persons he came to tell them what a "great governor" they have. He said "Lodge has done a worthy job in your service."

From Washington tonight, Democratic National Chairman Mitchell warned his party's candidates to run scared. He said overconfidence and complacency may rob them of the victory that is "within our grasp."

In Paris today, the four-power conference agreed to restore West Germany's soverignty as the first step toward re-arming her under a European security system. The agreement should be signed by the end of the week. There is still the possibility of a hitch..because French Premier France has served notice that he will not sign any agreements until the German's agree to French demands on the Saar border area.

British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden today was knighted by his queen. He became a Knight of the Garter, the highest order of British chivalry, at a touch of a golden sword. Eden is only the seventh commonor to be made a Knight of the Garter since 1700. Sir Winston Churchill is the only other living commoner member of the Order.

Britain's dock strike is still spreading. Today 2-thousand workers walked out at Southampton where the liners Queen Elizabeth and America were preparing to sail for New York. More than 43-thousand of the nation's 76-thousand dock workers are now on strike. And the basic issue is compulsory overtime. The men want to be able to decide whether or not they should continue work after they complete their 8-hour shifts. The employers want to be sure they can keep the dock workers on the job to insure quick handling of cargo and not to miss a favoring tide.

Selwyn Lloyd, British delegate to the United Nations, said today that progress has been made on disarmament..but agreement still must be reached on the essential points of a world-wide disarmament program.

In Alexandria, Virginia, Joseph S. Petersen, Junior, today pleaded not guilty to a charge that he obtained defense secrets with "intent or reason to believe" they would be used to injure this country or aid another. The indictment did not mention the Netherlands..the country Petersen is alleged to have given information on our "communication activities."

The F.B.I. today arrested ten Communist Purto Rican leaders... nine in San Juan and one in New York. They are charged with advocating the overthrow of the "government of the United States in Peurto Rico and the government of Puerto Rico" by force and violence.

The Federal Communications Commission today took the position that it would be dangerous and undemocratic for the government to censor television shows. Federal Communications Commissioner Hyde, speaking for the commission, told this to Senate investigators. Earlier the Senators heard Mrs. Clara Logan, president of the National Association for Better Radio and Television, protest that Television is pouring "mental poison" into the minds of young children. And two T.V. executives said adventure and crime programs have nothing to do with juvenile delinquency.

Occasionally an old friend drops in the office just before airtime, and we ask him to come into the studio ~~and~~ and chat a bit before the microphone. Tonight it is the General of the Army, Omar Bradley, a man for whom this reporter has admiration and respect without limit.

What are you doing these days -

Where send money? -

Why in Peace time.

At the end of the First World War, Will Rogers [redacted] Somewhat Bitterly — [redacted] wrote: "That old alibi about the country not being able to pay is all apple sauce. There is no debt in the world too big for this country to pay if they owe it. And the best insurance against another war is to take care of the boys who fought in the last one. You may want to use them again."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

CBS RADIO DIVISION

EDWARD R. MURROW

Wednesday, October 20, 1954
7:45-8:00 P.M.

MURROW: ... Occasionally an old friend drops into the office just before air time and we ask him to come into the studio and chat a bit before the microphone. Tonite it is General of the Army Omar Bradley, a man for whom this reporter has admiration and respect without limit.

What are you doing these days, General?

BRADLEY: Well, my principal job is Chairman of the Bulova Research and Developments Laboratories, where we're working on defense projects. But the thing that's taking most of my time right now is the job of chairman ... national campaign chairman for the United Defense Fund.

MURROW: Why do we need a United Defense Fund in peacetime, General?

BRADLEY: Well, the United Defense Fund includes the USO, which uses up over 75% of the budget. And we still have over three million men and women in service -- about a million of them are overseas -- and we'll probably have approximately that number for some time to come. And since they are scattered around the world, we think we must keep up the USO clubs, even tho we're not at war.

MURROW: Well now, you have something to sell, haven't you? The United Defense Fund and the USO. What about the money? Where should it come from?

BRADLEY: Well, we try to collect it thru the Community Chest, and this year we're participating in almost 1200 of the Community Chests around the country. We think it's a community problem because in past years they've helped take care of the welfare of these youngsters in the Boy Scouts and other youth activities; they're temporarily absent from the community for a couple of years; they're coming back - and we think it's just natural that the communities help take care of their own people while they're in service, many of them overseas.

MURROW: Well, then, what you're really asking, in military terms, is for people to beef up their contribution to their local Community Chest. Is that right?

BRADLEY: Yes, that is right. When they're contributing to their own Community Chest, just remember that this is one of the activities to which they are contributing and remember that they're helping their young people.

MURROW: Well, General Bradley, tell me this: after a long and distinguished career in the military, you retired - why did you take on this job anyway?

BRADLEY: Well, I still have a very strong feeling for our enlisted men, and if I can help in raising funds for the USO clubs around the world by joining in this year, why, I'm glad to contribute my services.

MURROW: Well, there are an awful lot of enlisted men who also have a very strong feeling about you. I wonder if we could talk about things other than the USO for a moment. What do you think about German participation in NATO? After all, you commanded the greatest army that ever fought the Germans. How do you feel about their participating in it now?

BRADLEY: Well, I've always felt that our defense line was in Europe. That's why we joined NATO. And I just don't think you can defend Europe without German participation - and I think we must have it in some form; whether it's EDC or some other form, that's up to our respective governments to work out, but I do think we must have German participation.

MURROW: Well, you're spending some time now, aren't you, General Bradley, on the matter of guided missiles. Is there anything that you can tell us about that within the limits imposed by secrecy?

BRADLEY: Well, we have a lot of guided missile projects in our laboratory. We're making very great progress on them. And, of course, I suppose every laboratory in the country has some part of a guided missile they're working on, because we have a lot of guided missiles and there are lots of parts to it. We are making progress, and I think that the use of guided missiles is going to affect the warfare of the future to a great extent.

It hasn't arrived yet, but it's improving all the time.

MURROW: And do you anticipate that the time will come when crewmen will not be required in bombers?

BRADLEY: Yes, I think it may well arrive, several years in the future, when you probably won't have a bomber manned with men, at least flying over the target. They may fly part way to the target and send in a guided missile from somewhere away from the target. But the idea of a bomber getting over the target, I think, in a few years will be replaced by guided missiles of some form.

MURROW: Well, General Bradley, a moment ago you were talking about the enlisted men. How do you feel on this matter of so-called fringe benefits being withdrawn or restricted?

BRADLEY: Well, I think we're driving a lot of our very best young officers and our non-commissioned officers out of the service by taking away these fringe benefits. A long time ago, when I was a young lieutenant, one of the advantages of the service was the fact that we had a retirement plan and we had fringe benefits. Now, practically all ~~the~~ industry and a lot of other people have retirement plans and they're increasing fringe benefits, and during that same time we're taking the fringe benefits away from the officers and the non-commissioned officers and we're driving a lot of them out of the service and we can ill-afford to lose them because they may be some of the future Eisenhowers and Marshalls and MacArthurs and Admiral Kings and so forth that we're losing - and we can ill-afford to lose them, in my opinion.

MURROW: It also reduces the number of reenlistments, too, doesn't it?

BRADLEY: Yes, that's where we're losing the non-commissioned officers. We spend years training a man and then we lose him. And those well-trained non-commissioned officers are really the backbone of the services and they don't reenlist; we have to train a new man.

MURROW: Well now, sir, let's go back, in the remaining thirty seconds, and do a commercial for the United Defense Fund, which includes the United Service Organization, the USO, the United Community Defense Services, the American Social Hygiene Association, the United Seamen's Service and the National Recreation Association. Did I get them right?

BRADLEY: You did.

MURROW: And the best way to contribute is to send your contribution to your local Community Chest. Is that right, General Bradley?

BRADLEY: That is right!

MURROW: Thank you very much indeed, sir, for coming in and chatting here this evening.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a moment with the word for today.

-30-

Ediphone trans./ES

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NEWYORK

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 20, 1954
7:45-8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

The President will say tonight that our military forces will never be used to initiate a war against any nation...they will be employed "only for a defense of the free world." The President's speech, which will be broadcast later tonight over many of these stations at 11:30 eastern time, is to be made before dinner celebrating the 300th anniversary of the Jewish settlement in this country. Mr. Eisenhower will outline a program of three avenues to peace which would be secure and just and "not bought at the expense of others." He says we must seek through the United Nations and other means to establish conditions for honorable peace. We must promote the unity and collective strength of other free peoples. And we must maintain enough military strength to deter agression and promote peace."

The President says we must maintain our " power" in "today's uncertain world" so that we may "deal effectively and flexibly with whatever situations may arise." He says "the principle and continuing factor" that stands in the way of peace "is the persistently aggressive designs of Moscow and Peiping, which show no evidence of genuine change, despite their preffessed desire to relax tensions and preserve peace." He says the breadth and scope of the Communist attack is continuing .."no weapon is absent from their arsenal, whether intended for the destruction of cities and people or for the destruction of truth, integrity, loyalty."

Earlier in the day, the President received an honorary degree at Trinity College, in Hartford, Connecticut. He said another war could not be measured in terms of victory or defeat but only "in a degree of destruction."

Later the President attended a birthday party for Connecticut's Republican Governor Lodge, who is seeking re-election. He told an estimated 60-thousand persons he came to tell them what a "great governor" they have. He said "Lodge has done a worthy job in your service."

From Washington tonight, Democratic National Chairman Mitchell warned his party's candidated to run scared. He said overconfidence and complacency may rob them of the victory that is "within our grasp."

In Paris today, the four power conference agreed to restore est Germany's soverignty as the first step toward re-arming her under a European security system. The agreement should be signed by the end of the week. There is still the possibility of a hitch...because French Premier France has served notice that he will not sign any agreements until the German's agree to French demands on the Saar border area.

British Froeign Secretary Anthony Eden was knighted by his queen. He became a Knight of the Garter, the highest order of British chivalry at a touch of a golden sword. Eden is only the seventh commoner to be made a Knight of the Garter since 1700. Sir Winston Churchill is the only other living commoner member of the Order.

Britaine's dock strike is still spreading. Today 2-thousand workers walked out at Southampton where the liners Queen Elizabeth and America were preparing to sail for New York. More than 43-thousnad of the nation's 76-thousand dock workers are now on strike. And the basic issue is compulsory overtime. The men want to be able to decide whether or not they should continue work afger they complete their 8-hour shifts. The employers want to be sure they can keep dock workers on the job to insure quick handling of cargo and not to miss a favoring tide.

Selwyn Lloyd, Britidh delegate to the United Nations, said today that progress had been made on disarmament...but agreement still must be reached on the essential points of world-wide disarmament program.

In Alexandria, Virginia, Joseph S. Peterson, Junior, today pleaded not guilty to a charge that he obtained defense secrets with "intent or reason to believe" they would be used to injure this country or aid another. The indictment did not mention the Netherlands...the country Peterson is alleged to gave given information on our "communication activities."

The F.B.I. today arrested ten Communist Puerto Rican leaders ..nine in San Juan and one in New York. They are charged with advocating the overthrow of the "government of the United States in Puerto Rico and the government of Puerto Rico" by force and violence.

The Federal Communications commission today took the position that it would be dangerous and undemocratic for the government to censor television shows. Federal Communications Commissioner Hyde, speaking for the commission, told this to Senate investigators. Earlier, the Senators heard Mrs. Clara Logan, president of the National Association for Better Radio and Television, protest that Television is pouring out "mental poison" into the minds of young children. And two T.V. executives said adventure and crime programs have nothing to do with junenile delinquency.

Occasionally an old friend drops in the office just before airtime and we ask him to come into the studio and chat a bit before the microphone. Tonight it is the General of the Army, Omar Bradley, a man for whom this reporter has admiration and respect without limit. What are you doing these days, General?

BRADLEY: Well, my principal job is Chairman of the Bulova Research and Developements Laboratories, where we're working on defense projects. But the thing that's taking most of my time right now is the job of chairman... national campaign chairman for the United Defense Fund.

MURROW: Why do we need a United Defense Fund in peacetime, General?

BRADLEY: Well, the United Defense Fund includes the USO, which uses up over 75% of the budget. And we still have over three million men and women in service --about a million of them are overseas -- and we'll probably have approximately that number for some time to come. And since they are scattered around the world, we think we must keep up the USO clubs, even though we're not at war.

MURROW: Well now, you have something to sell, haven't you? The United Defense Fund and the USO. What about money? Where should it come from?

BRADLEY: Well, we try to collect it through the Community Chest, and this year we're participating in almost 1200 of the Community Chests around the country. We think it's a community problem because in past years they've helped take care of the welfare of these youngsters in the Boy Scouts and other youth activities; they're temporarily absent from the community for a couple of years; they're coming back - and we think it's just natural that the communities help take care of their own people while they're in service, many of them overseas.

MURROW: Well, then, what you're really asking, in military terms, is for people to beef up their contribution to their local Community Chest. Is that right?

BRADLEY: Yes, That's right. When they're contributing to their own Community Chest, just remember that this is one of the activities to which they are contributing and remember that they're helping their young people.

MURROW: Well, General Bradley, tell me this: after a long and distinguished career in the military, you retired - why did you take on t is job, anyway?

BRADLEY: Well, I still have a very strong feeling for our enlisted men, and if I can help in raising funds for the USO clubs around the world by joining in this year, why, I'm glad to contirbute my services.

MURROW: Well, there are an awful lot of enlisted men who also have a very strong feeling about you. I wonder if we could talk about things other than the UPO for a moment. What do you think about German participation in NATO? After all, you commanded the greatest army that ever fought the Germans. How do you feel about their participating in it now?

BRADLEY: Well, I've always felt that our defense line was in Europe. That's why we joined NATO. And I just don't think you can defend Europe without German participation - and I think we must have it in some form; whether it's EDC or some other form, that's up to our respective governments to work out, but I do think we must have German participation.

MURROW: Well, you're spending some time now, aren't you, General Bradley, on the matter of guided missels. Is there anything you can tell us about within the limits imposed by secrecay?

BRADLEY: Well, we have a lot of guided missile projects in our laboratory. We're making very great progress on them. And, of course, I suppose every laboratory in the country has some part of a guided missile they're working on, because we have a lot of guided missiles and there are lots of parts to it. We are making progress, and I think that the use of guided missiles is going to affect the warfare of the future to a great extent. It hasn't arrived yet, but it's improving all the time.

MURROW: And do you anticipate that the time will come when crewmen will not be required in bombers?

BRADLEY: Yes, I think it may well arrive, several years in the future, when you probably won't have a bomber manned by men, at least flying over the target. They may fly part way to the target and then send in a guided missile from somewhere away from the target. But the idea of a bomber getting over the target, I think, in a few years will be replaced by guided missiles of some form.

MURROW: Well, General Bradley, a moment ago you were talking about the enlisted men. How do you feel on thes matter of so called fringe benefits being withdrawn or restricted?

BRADLEY: Well, I think we're driving a lot of our very best young officers and non-commissioned officers out of the service by taking away these from benefits. A long time ago, when I was a young lieutenant, one of the advantages of the service was the fact that we has a retirement plan and we had fringe benefits. Now, practically all industry and a lot of other people have retirement plans and they're increasing fringe benefits, and during that same time we're taking the fringe benefits away from the officers and the non-commissioned officers and we're origing a lot of them out of the service and we can ill afford to lose them because they may be some of the future Eisenhowers and Marshalls and Mac Arthurs and Admiral Kings and so forth that we're losing - and we can ill-afford to lose them, in my opinion.

MURROW: It also reduced the number of reenlistments, too, doesn't it?

BRADLEY: Yes, that's where we're losing the non-commissioned officers. We spend years training a man and then we lose him. And those well-trained non-commissioned officers are really the backbone of the services and they don't reenlist; we have to train a new man.

MURROW: Well now, sir, let's go back, in the remaining thirty seconds, and do a commercial for the United Defense Fund, which includes the United Service Organizttion, the USO, the United Community Defense Services, the American Social Hygiene Association, the United Seamen's Service and the National Recreation Association. Did I get them right?

BRADLEY: You did

MURROW: And the best way to contribute is to send your contribution to your local Community Chest. Is that right, General Bradley?

BRADLEY: That is right!

MURROW: Thank you very much indeed, sir, for coming in and chatting here this evening. This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a moment with the Word for Today. But first, Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: At the end of the First World War, Will Rogers wrote somewhat bitterly: "That applesauce about the country not being able to pay is all applesauce. There is no debt in the world too big for this country to pay if they owe it. And the best insurance against another war is to take care of the boys who fought in the last one. You may want to use them again.

Good Night and Good Luck.

Thursday, Oct 21, 1954

This is the news:

Nine western nations today agreed on the formation of a Western European Union. It will include German troops. In a few minutes I'd like to review this agreement reached in Paris today.

Here in New York tonight, the President will say that he'll ask Congress again to approve his program for voluntary health insurance. In a speech to the Alfred E. Smith Memorial Dinner, which will be broadcast over many of these stations at 10;30 p.m. eastern time, Mr. Eisenhower will say that his plan will "not become the entering wedge of socialized medicine." And he will criticize those whom he calls "beaurocratic extremists"...persons who would place all responsibility for the care of the sick on the federal government. Earlier today, on his New York visit, the President made a surprise three hour motor trip of this city. With Senator Ives, the Republican candidate for governor, and with Governor Dewey, he visited a number of highway, hospital and housing projects. And Mr. Eisenhower told party workers, the election of Ives is "tremendously important." And again he made it known that he is supporting Clifford Case, the Republican candidate for Senator in New Jersey.

Chairman Langer of the Senate Judiciary Committee said today that three years ago he investigated bribe charges against Averell Harriman, the democratic candidate for governor of New York. Langer, a Republican, says he found thse charges "entirely unsubstantiated." And he pointed out through an aide, that Senator Ives, who recently brought up the incident which occurred in the 1920's, [redacted] did not object to Harriman's nomination to be Mutual Security Administrator three years ago.

The Federal Housing Administration says it has suspended eleven employes for "improper activities"..not further defined. An official says all hold minor jobs.. none were connected with the "windfall profit" cases investigated by a Senate committee.

Another Senate committee today heard Arthur E. McClean, an Arkansas banker, call the Arkansas Power and Light Co. "a most corrupt and ruthless" arm of the Dixon-Yates public utility group. McClean said he was testifying in an attempt to keep the Administration from becoming involved in a national scandal. Arkansas Power and Light is a subsidiary of one of the companies that wants to build a plant to feed private power into the public power lines of the Tennessee Valley Authority.

The Navy today suspended the limited security clearance of Dr. Edward U. Condon, former head of the government's Bureau of Standards, who now works for the Corning Glass Works. Navy Secretary Thomas has ordered a further review of the clearance granted last July. Condon says: I have been fully cleared four times by four different boards. I shall be pleased to be cleared a fifth time."

In INDIANA the State Athletic Commission says professional boxers and wrestlers must sign non-communist oaths before they can appear in Indiana rings. The executive secretary of the commission says he doesn't feel that a state government department should further the livelihood of a Communist.

The United States and Pakistan announced today that we will give Pakistan 105-million dollars in eceonomic aid..five-times what we gave last year. And we'll probably spend another 50 million in military aid. Prime Minister Mohammed Ali, hurrying home from Washington because of political unrest in his country, called his talks in Washington "very profitable."

At the United Nations today, Andrei Vishinsky of Russia demanded that the General Assembly agree (TO AN IMMEDIATE) debate on his charge that the Chinese Nationalist island of Formosa is controlled by American military forces. He said our fleet is responsible for raids on Communist China and islands off the coast.

At Pearl Harbor, Admiral Stump, commander of our Pacific fleet, says Communist warships have been contacted in the Pacific..but none have showed hostile intent.

In London today, government officials reported that an "atmospehere of better will" prevailed at meetings designed to end the current strike of dock workers. Government circles hinted that the 18-day strike of some 44-thousand workers may soon end. Labor Minister Sir Walter Mockton again conferred with Prime Minister Churchill.

And from Stockholm today..word that the 1954 Nobel prize in medicine and physiology has been awarded to three American scientists for discovering new weapons in the fight against infantile paralysis.

For part of the background to this award, we take you to Charles Ashley in Boston:

(3 mins ending.. And Ed, that's the story of some of the activity at the Childrens Medical Center in Boston.)

Edward R. Murrow: October 21, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

Dispatches from Paris tonight indicate that the diplomats of nine nations are bulging with optimism. Smiling delegates are predicting that the final papers will be signed by Saturday. Agreement has been reached on the broad plans for restoring German sovereignty, ending the Allied occupation, and linking Germany militarily with the West. This means that Germany will regain her freedom, the right to create a half-million man German Army. Premier Mendes-France has withdrawn his demand that there be created an arms pool of all the member nations. Agreement in principle has been reached to admit Germany and Italy as members of the Brussels Alliance.

The French and Germans have reached agreement on the one issue that threatened to hold up the ~~agreement~~ signing - some kind of settlement of the Saar question. We do not yet know the terms of the settlement, but it has been reached.

This conference in Paris shaped up as pretty much a French-German conference, with the other Europeans, the United States and Britain pretty much sitting on the side lines wondering who was doing what to whom. There were long private conversations between French Premier Mendes-France and German Chancellor Adenauer - conversations held without aides or interpreters. (Mendes-France speaks excellent German.) Already there is evident a certain amount of concern on the part of the smaller European powers, lest this Franco-German dialogue result in an agreement to run the rest of Europe. There is some unofficial talk in Paris of the possibility of a Franco-German agreement involving cartels and division of markets. —German assistance in developing and exploiting French territory in North Africa. —A Franco-German combine could undercut and undersell Britain in the markets of the Middle and Far East. It could also give us some hot competition in the XXX South American markets.

Mendes-France in recent days hasn't appeared the least bit reluctant or fearful of the dangers involved in German re-armament. He has abandoned his earlier stand, demanding tight control on German civil aviation, as well as the uses to which the great Ruhr industries may be put. His political spokesmen have been beating the drums about vast plans for economic co-operation with Germany. The French Government appears to have abandoned, or at least suppressed its earlier fears that a German embrace can choke as well as comfort France and the rest of Europe.

While there is optimism in Paris tonight, there is also recognition that the signing of a paper does not alter the facts of history or geography. But if the agreement is in fact signed on Saturday, the Western Powers will have set something of a record for agreements reached; Trieste, Suez, and finally the nine-power agreement, which will be the result of almost three years of negotiation and compromise.

It would seem that after three years of negotiation and compromise Germany and France are about to reach an agreement few experienced observers had ever anticipated. But perhaps it's as Thoreau once said: "If one advances confidently in the direction of his dreams and endeavors to live the life which he has imagined, he will meet with a success unexpected in common hours."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

CBS RADIO DIVISION

EDWARD R. MURROW

Thursday, October 21, 1954
7:45-8:00 p.m.

MURROW: ..... And from Stockholm today word that the 1954 Nobel Prize in Medicine and Physiology has been awarded to three American scientists.for discovering new weapons in the fight against infantile paralysis. For part of the background to this award we take you to Charles Ashley in Boston.

ASHLEY: Here, in Boston, at the Children's Medical Center in the Back Bay, the team of three doctors headed by John F. Enders started their long, tedious job of isolating the polio virus in a test tube back in 1948. It's a story of perseverance, of indefatigible work, days and nights of watching test tubes, keeping incubators at the right temperature, and then finally success. It's told today in scientific language on the news wires so this correspondent wanted to know what happened in everyday words we all could understand, the better we hope to describe the long hours of work by these medical research men. The story as told this reporter just a few moments ago by Dr. Enders began back, as we said, in 1948. Dr. Enders with Dr. Weller and Dr. Frederick Robbins, who is now at the Western Reserve Medical School in Cleveland, were experimenting with mumps virus. They knew that research men for years had tried to isolate the polio virus. They knew it had been isolated in monkeys, but it was hard to work with. It had to be isolated in a test tube and they set about the task. First, they obtained some skin and muscle tissue, placed it in the test tubes and then into the incubators. These incubators were kept at body heat for months. The tissue lived and then polio virus was added. The virus killed the human cells and then came the endless hours, seven days and nights a week, of watching and testing. The first real break in the search came when the three doctors tried antibodies from people who had suffered infantile and had survived.

Into the test tubes went the antibodies and Dr.

Enders told us somehow mysteriously to him, he said, the tissues lived. No longer did the polio virus kill the bits of skin and muscle, and they had it. Dr. Enders said it must have been luck, but it was more than that, - it was an idea backed by more than five years of work; hundreds of trial tests and errors and finally the first simple and easy way to isolate the polio virus and to prove that antibodies could overcome polio. Then, of course, came the development of the Salk vaccine and the word that, while it's still too early to announce the results of the recent tests on children, the Infantile Foundation has enough confidence in the work of the three Boston doctors and the vaccine to spend money to vaccinate millions more next year.

Dr. Enders told us "it's still a mystery to us how it was done. We tried everything we could think of and finally we got it." Well, that in layman's language is the story of the ... how the Children's Hospital doctors made the discovery that may rank in history along with the work of Pasteur and the other great men of medical science, but that's not really the end of the story. Just a day ago, Dr. Enders told a meeting of medical men, told them cautiously, that his group thought they'd isolated the measles virus, too. Measles itself is not a serious disease, but complications are sometimes deadly.

And that's the story of some of the activities at the Children's Medical Center in Boston.

Ed. trans.-A.A.Cardiff (30)

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 21, 1954
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

Nine western nations today agreed on the formation of a Western European Union. It will include German troops. In a few minutes I'd like to review this agreement reached in Paris today.

Here in New York tonight, the President will say that he'll ask Congress again to approve his program for voluntary health insurance. In a speech to the Alfred E. Smith Memorial Dinner...which will be broadcast over many of these stations at 10:30 P.M., Eastern Time....Mr. Eisenhower will say that his plan will "not become the entering wedge of socialized medicine." And he will criticize those whom he calls "beaurocratic extremists"... persons who would place all responsibility for the care of the sick on the federal government. Earlier today, on his New York visit, the President made a surprise three hour motor trip of this city. With Senator Ives, the Republican candidate for governor, and with Governor Dewey, he visited a number of highway, hospital and housing projects. And Mr. Eisenhower told party workers the election of Ives is "tremendously important". And again he made it known that his is supporting Clifford Case, the Republican candidate for Senator in New Jersey.

Chairman Langer of the Senate Judiciary Committee said today that three years ago he investigated bribe charges against Averall Harriman, the democratic candidate for governor of New York. Langer, a Republican says he found the charges "entirely unsubstantiated." And he pointed out through an aide, that Senator Ives, who recently brought up the incident which occurred in the 1920's, did not object to Harriman's nomination to be Mutual Security Administrator three years ago.

The Federal Housing Administration says it has suspended eleven employees for "improper activities"...not further defined. An official says all hold minor jobs...non were connected with the "windfall profit" case investigated by a Senate committee.

Another Senate committee today heard Arthrr E. McClean, an Arkansas banker, call the Arkansas Power and Light Company "a most corrupt and ruthless" arm of the Dixon-Yates public utility group. McClean said he was testifying in an attempt to keep the Administration from becoming involved in a national scandal. Arkansas Power and Light is a subsidiary of one of the companies that wants to build a plant to feed private power into the public power iness of the Tennessee Valley Authority.

The Navy today suspended the limited sucurity clearance of Dr. Edward U. Condon, former head of the governments's Bureau of Standards, who now works for Corning Glass Works. Navy Secretary Thomas has ordered a further review of the clearance granted last July. Condon says: I have been fully cleared four times by four different boards. I shall be pleased to be cleared a fifth time."

In Indiana the State Athletic Commission says professional boxers and wrestlers must sign non-communist oaths before they can appear in Indiana rings. The executive secretary of the commission says he doesn't feel that a state government department should further the livelihood of a Communist.

The United States and Pakistan announced today that we will give Pakistan 105-million dollars in economic aid...five-times what we gave last year. And we'll probably spend another 50 million in military aid. Prime Minister Mohamed Ali, hurrying home from Washington because of political unrest in his country, called his talks in Washington, "very profitable."

At the United Nations today, Andrei Vishinsky of Russia demanded that the General Assembly agree to an immediate debate on his charge that the Chinese Nationalist island of Formosa is controlled by American military forces. He said our fleet is responsible for raids on Communist China and islands off the coast.

At Pearl Harbor, Admiral Stump, commander of our Pacific fleet, says Communist warships have been contacted in the Pacific..but none have showed hostile intent.

In London today, government officials reported that an "atmosphere of better will" prevailed at meetings designed to end the current strike of dock workers. Government circles hinted that the 18-day strike of some 44-thousand workers may soon end. Labor Minister Sir Walter Mockton again conferred with Prime Minister Churchill. And from Stockholm today...word that the 1954 Nobel prize in medicine and physiology has been awarded to three American scientists for discovering new weapons in the fight against infantile paralysis. For part of the background to this award, we take you to Charles Ashley in Boston:

ASHLEY: Here in Boston, at the Children's Medical Center in the Back Bay, the team of three doctors headed by John F. Enders started their long, tedious job of isolating the polio virus in a test tube back in 1948. It's a story of perseverance, of indefatigable work, days and nights of watching test tubes, keeping incubators at the right temperature, and then finally success. It's told today in scientific language in the news wires so this correspondent wanted to know what happened in everyday words we all could understand, the better we hope to describe the long hours of work by these medical research men. The story as told this reporter just a few moments ago by Dr. Enders bagan back , as we said, in 1948. Dr. Enders with Dr. Weller and Dr. Frederick Robbins, who is now at the Western Reserve Medical School in Cleveland, were experimenting with mumps virus. They knew that researchmen for years had tried to isolate the polio virus. They knew that it had been isolated in monkeys, but it was hard to work with. It had to be isolated in a test tube and they set about the task. First, they obtained some skin and muscle tissue, placed it in the test tubes and then into the incubators. These incubators were kept at body heat for months. The tissue lived and then polio virus was added. The virus killed the human cells and then came the endless hours, seven days and nights a week, of watching and testing. The first real break in the search came when the three doctors tried antibodies from people who had suffered infantile and had survived.

Into the test tubes went the antibodies and Dr. Enders told us somehow mysteriously to him, he said, the tissues lived. No longer did the polio virus kill the bits of skin and muscle, and they had it. Dr. Enders said it must have been luck, but it was more than that, it was an idea backed by more than five years of work, hundreds of trial tests and errors, and finally the first simple and easy way to isolate the polio virus and to prove that antibodies could overcome polio. Then, of course, came the developement of the Salk vaccine and the word that, while it's still too early to announce the results of the recent tests on children, the Infantile Foundation has enough confidence in the work of the three Boston doctors and the vaccine to spend money to vaccinate millions more next year.

Dr. Enders told us "it's still a mystery to us how it was done. We tried everything we could think of and finally we got it." Well, that in layman's language, is the story of how the Children's Hospital doctors made the discovery that may rank in history along with the work of Pasteur and the other great men of medical science, but that's not really the end of the story. Just a day ago Dr. Enders told a meeting of medical men, told them cautiously, that his group thought they'd isolated the measles virus, too.

Measles itself is not a serious disease, but complications are sometimes deadly.

And that's the story of some of the activities at the Children's Medical Center in Boston.

Dispatches from Paris tonight indicate that the diplomats of nine nations are bulging with optimism. Smiling delegates are predicting that the final papers will be signed by Saturday. Agreement was been reached on the broad plans for restoring German soverignty, ending tha Allied occupation, and linking Germany militarily with the West. This means that Germany will regain her freedom, the right to create a half million man German Army. Premire Mendes - France has withdrawn his demand that there be created an arms pool of all the member nations. Agreement in principle has been reached to admit Germany and Italy as members of the Brussels Alliance.

The French and Germans have reached agreement on the one issue that threatened to hold up the signing --some kind of settlement of the Saar question. We do not yet know the terms of the settlement, but it has been reached.

This conference in Paris shaped up as pretty much a French-German conference, with the other Europeans, the United States and Britain pretty much sitting on the side lines wondering who was doing what to whom. There were long private conversations between French Premier Mendes-France and German Chancellor Adenauer - conversations held without aides or interpreters. Mendes- France speaks excellent German. Already there is evident a certain amount of concern on the part of the smaller European powers, lest this "Franco-German dialogue" result in an agreement to run the rest of Europe. There is some unofficial talk in Paris of the possibility of a Franco-German agreement involving cartels and division of markets. German assistance in developing and exploiting French territory in North Africa. A Franco-German combine could undercut the undersell Britain in the markets of the Middle and Far East. It could also give us some hot competition in the South American markets.

Mendes-France in recent days hasn't appeared the least bit reluctant or fearful of the dangers involved in German re-armament. He has abandoned his earlier stand, demanding tight control on German civil aviation, as well as the uses to which the great Ruhr industries may be put. His political spokesmen have been beating the drums about vast plans for economic co-operati with Germany. The French Government appears to have abandoned, or at least suppressed its earlier fears that a German embrace can choke as well as comfort France and rhe rest of Europe.

While there is optimism in Paris tonight, there is also recognition that the signing of a paper does not alter the facts of history or geography. But if the agreement is in fact signed on Saturday, the Western Powers will have set something of a record for agreements reached; Trieste, Suez, and finally the nine-power agreement, which will be the result of almost three years of negotiation and compromise.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a moment with the Word for Today. But first, Bov Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: It would seem that after three years of negotiation and compromise, Germany and France are about to reach anagreement few experienced observers had ever anticipated. But perhaps it's as Thoreau once said: "If one advances condidently in the direction of his dreams and endeavors to live the life which he has imagined, he will meet with a success unexpected in common hours.

Good Night and Good Luck!

MURROW NEWS 10/22/54

This is — Friday, Oct 22, 1954

Diplomats in Paris are trying to break the deadlock between France and West Germany over the future of the Saar. French Premier Mendes-France, backed by the formal decision of his cabinet, announced today that he will sign none of the agreements regarding Germany, unless a settlement is reached on the Saar problem. Behind the scenes, the Western diplomats are working to rescue the Paris talks from failure. Secretary of State Dulles conferred this afternoon with British Foreign Secretary Eden.... and tonight Eden is having dinner with both Mendes-France and West German Chancellor Adenaur, in hope that they will find a formula for the future administration of the Saar territory, the single problem preventing final agreement. In historic decisions today, the Western powers.... including France... invited West Germany to join the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. And finally approved, was an agreement for ending the nine-year Allied occupation. Only the Saar problem remains. I should like to discuss these developments in a few minutes.

weather

The White House announced today that Mendes-France will have luncheon with President Eisenhower in Washington on November 18th. A White House spokesman said it is his "understanding" that the French premier will be in this country for at least two days. Chancellor Adenauer will be a White House guest next Thursday.

The President returned to Washington today after his two-day political tour of New York and Connecticut. Republican campaign leaders say they are pleased with the results. And Republican National Chairman Leonard Hall urged all [redacted] G.O.P. congressional [redacted] candidates to reaffirm their support of Mr. Eisenhower's security program.

[redacted] Republican Senator Welker OF IDAHO has ordered a meeting of [redacted] A Senate [redacted] Subcommittee in Boise, to question Glen Taylor, [redacted] Democratic candidate for the Senate. Welker says he wants [redacted] to investigate Taylor's alleged following of the Communist Party line in 1948, when he was a candidate for Vice President on the Progressive ticket.

And tonight Republican Governor Dewey of New York leveled a new charge at Averell Harriman, the Democratic candidate to succeed Dewey. [redacted]. Earlier this week, Harriman's Republican rival, Senator [redacted] Ives, charged that a shipping company headed by Harriman [redacted] once paid a [redacted] quarter-million-dollar bribe to a corrupt judge in order to obtain the lease for two New York City piers. Harriman [redacted] denied "completely and categorically" that he ever paid... [redacted] or knew of... any improper payment for pier leases. Tonight, Governor Dewey accused Harriman of being involved in a 15-million-dollar security deal in 1925. [redacted] Dewey said, Harriman and his associates "made millions of dollars and the investors lost millions." [redacted] The Republican governor said that although the case originated in 1925, it is in [redacted] Federal Court "right now"... because the investors are trying to get their money back. Harriman could not be immediately reached for comment.

Today, Senator Ives accused Republican Senator Langer of North Dakota of trying to "whitewash" Harriman. Langer said yesterday that he had investigated Ives' bribery charges against Harriman three years ago... and that he found the charges "entirely unsubstantiated."

And today Langer accused the Arkansas Power and Light Company of trying to intimidate the Senate subcommittee that has been investigating the Dixon-Yates contract. The North Dakota Republican is chairman of the subcommittee, and Arkansas Power and Light is a subsidiary of one of the Dixon-Yates companies which would supply power to the Atomic Energy Commission through the T.V.A. Langer issued his statement when he heard that Arkansas Light and Power had filed a 2-million-dollar damage suit against Arthur McLean, a Little Rock, Arkansas banker for making allegedly "malicious, false and slanderous" remarks. McLean testified yesterday that the company is the "most corrupt and ruthless corporation" that ever operated in Arkansas. He charged that it had resorted to bribery and coercion, and had sought to "dominate" the state. Today the subcommittee heard former Governor McMath of Arkansas suggest that the utility company recently boosted its rates to pave the way for bigger returns in connection with the Dixon-Yates contract... which has been approved but not yet signed. Counsel for the subcommittee said such testimony cannot be made the basis for a suit because it is "privileged matter."

At the U.N., Russia and the major Western powers today agreed on a draft resolution setting up new disarmament talks. The resolution says the question is now urgent... and calls for establishment of a subcommittee to reconsider all disarmament proposals made so far. As in the past, the talks would be behind closed doors.

Defense Secretary Wilson today criticized Americans who, he said, "are trying to scare our own people and... indirectly... the people of other nations" by rattling the atomic bomb. Wilson told the World Affairs Council in Los Angeles that "we can more profitably spend our time in analyzing our problems and doing something about them."

The Delaware State Supreme Court today held-up the injunction of a lower court that would HAVE allowED Negro students to attend the all-white high school at Milford. The State Supreme Court said it wished to retain the status quo, PENDING argument of an appeal by the Milford school board in December. The school board has urged postponement of de-segregation.

A ~~Navy hurricane hunter plane has explored that suspicious area~~ in ~~the Western Carribean. It found a few thunderstorms, but no hurricane.~~

In California, Governor Knight today appealed to the petroleum industry for a temporary shutdown of all refineries in Los Angeles County, in an all-out battle against smog. The governor said the shutdown would be in the nature of a test.

Theater magnate Charles Skouras died in Hollywood today at the age of 65. Charles Skouras arrived in New York in 1908 as a penniless Greek immigrant and became one of the highest salaried men in the world. Death was due to a heart ailment.

In Haiti, a landslide ~~is reported to have wiped out a small village,~~ with a loss of 260 lives. ~~There are no details on the disaster.~~

Edward R. Murrow: October 21, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

Last night it was reported here that the Germans and French had reached agreement on the Saar. That was generally believed, but it wasn't true. There was a new crisis this morning, and success or failure of the Paris Conference, involving fifteen nations and over four hundred million people in the Atlantic community, now depends directly on the future of the tiny coal-rich Saar land, no bigger than Rhode Island. There is a new chapter of history ready to be sent to the printers in Paris. It records not only the sovereignty of Germany and her military alliance with the West; it records contracts and agreements already drawn up, for a wide range of industrial, cultural and commercial co-operation between Germany and France. This includes joint armament plants, exchange of students, big contracts for Germany to buy French milk, wheat, sugar and meat; and a French agreement to remove trade quotas on hundreds of millions of dollars' worth of German products. All this, and more, hinges on the Saar settlement. Since the end of the late war this tiny territory has had political autonomy, but has been tied economically to France. This agreement, admittedly a temporary one, was engineered at the Foreign Ministers' Conference in Moscow in 1947 by John Foster Dulles, who was then advisor to Secretary of State General George Marshall.

In the past German Chancellor Adenauer has said that he was willing to renounce German territorial claims to the Saar, and wait for a final decision to be made when a German peace treaty is signed. The French fear a repetition of what happened in 1935, when under Nazi threats of invasion and German propaganda, the people of the Saar voted in a Plebiscite to return to Germany.

One set of figures will illustrate the importance of the Saar to France. French production of coal and steel, together with that of the Saar, represent about twenty-eight percent of the total European output. Germany and the Ruhr contribute about thirty-four percent. If the Saar were returned to Germany, the French would have about eighteen percent of the total European production, and the Germans forty-four percent.

In Paris both Adenauer and Mendes-France are claiming that they will have trouble with their own legislative bodies, if either gives more ground. Unofficially the Germans and the French are accusing each other of bad faith.

Dick Hottelet cables me from Bonn that this sudden crisis in Paris has added new fuel to the anti-French sentiment which flared up so strongly after the French Assembly killed the European Defense Community. He says ~~at~~ that this time Adenauer is backed by all political parties in Germany, and he would run into serious domestic political difficulties if he should concede any major points to the French. Nine Germans out of ten would consider it outright French blackmail. The present German Government and the German Constitution are strictly provisional. They are not authorized to dispose of German territory. Only a peace treaty, concluded by a re-united Germany, can conclusively settle territorial and constitutional questions. Thus, any solution for the Saar must legally and factually be only temporary. The Germans also demand full freedom for all political parties, including those advocating the return of the Saar to Germany. This the French will not agree to. The Germans also demand equal economic rights in the Saar, although they are willing that the French should continue to manage the currency and customs.

This present crisis is over a moth-eaten, much discussed and debated nineteenth century issue. Many Germans suspect that France is only using the Saar as a pretext to hold back the clock and keep Germany in continued subjugation. Many Frenchmen believe that the Germans are not to be trusted, that they covet the territory of the Saar as well as its coal and steel.

For the moment this is a case where negotiations of far-reaching importance - perhaps crucial to the defense of the Western world - have run into a wall of memory, suspicion, history and economics.

If agreement can be reached, it will probably have to be done in the broadest and most general terms, leaving the tough practical details for definition and resolution later on. For at this point, and primarily for domestic political reasons, neither Adenauer nor Mendes-France can afford what would appear to be a defeat on the issue of the Saar. And neither one can afford to pay the price of a victory for his point of view, because ~~it~~ the Price would involve the collapse of the West European union. That is why, in spite of this last-minute crisis, there remains considerable optimism tonight both in Paris and in Bonn.

The prospect of an agreement between France and Germany can only be regarded as a step forward in international diplomacy. ~~And speaking of progress~~, I'm reminded of something Macaulay once wrote:"Society, we believe, is constantly advancing in knowledge. The tail is now where the head was some generations ago. It is delightful to think that in due time the last of those who struggle in the rear of the great march will occupy the place now occupied by the advanced guard."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 22, 1954
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

Diplomats in Paris are trying to break the deadlock between France and West Germany over the future of the Saar. French Premier Mendes-France, backed by the formal decision of his cabinet, announced today that he will sign none of the agreements regarding Germany, unless a settlement is reached on the Saar problem. Behind the scenes, the Western diplomats are working to rescue the Paris talks from failure. Secretary of State Dulles conferred this afternoon with British Foreign Secretary Eden...and tonight Eden is having dinner with both Mendes-France and West German Chancellor Adenauer, in hope they will find a formula for the future administration of the Saar territory, the single problem preventing final agreement. In historic decisions today, the Western powers...including France...invited West Germany to join the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. And finally approved was an agreement for ending the nine year Allied occupation. Only the Saar problem remains. I should like to discuss these developements in a few minutes.

The White House announced today that Mendes-France will have luncheon with Presidnet Eisenhower in Washington on November 16th. A White House spokesman said it is his "understanding" that the French Premier will be in t is country for atleast two days. Chancellor Adenauer will be a White House guest next Thursday.

Republican Senator Walker of Idaho has ordered a meeting of a Senate Subcommittee, in Boise, to question Glen Taylor, Democratic candidate for the Senate. Walker says he wants to investigate Taylor's alleged following of the Communist Party line in 1948, when he was a candidate for Vice President of the Progressive ticket.

And tonight Republican Governor Dewey of New York leveled a new charge at Averall Harriman, the Democratic candidate to succeed Dewey. Earlier this week, Harriman's Republican rival, Senator Ives, charged that a shipping company, headed by Harriman, once paid a quarter-million dollar bribe to a corrupt judge in order to obtain the lease for two New York City piers. Harriman denied "completely and categorically" that he ever paid...or knew of... any improper payment for pier leases. Tonight, Governor Dewey accused Harriman of being involved in a 15-million -dollar security deal in 1925. Dewey said Harriman and his associates "made millions of dollars and the investors lost millions." The Republican governor said that although the case originated in 1925, it is in Federal Court "right now"...because the investors are trying to get their money back. Harriman could not be immediately reached for comment.

Today, Senator Ives accussed Republican Senator Langer of North Dakota of trying to "whitewash" Harriman. Langer said yesterday that he had investigated Ives bribery charges against Harriman three years ago...and that he found the charges "entirely unusbstantiated."

And today Langer accused the Arkansas Power and Light Company of trying to intimidate the Senate subcommittee that has been investigating the Dixon-Yates contract. The North Dakota Republican is chairman of the subcommittee, and Arkansas Power and Light is a subsidiary of one of the Dixon-Yates companies which would supply power to the Atomic Energy Commission through the T.V.A. Langer issued his statement when he heard the Arkansas Light and Power had filed a 2-million-dollar damage suit against Arthur McLean, a Little Rock, Arkansas, banker for making allegedly "malicious, false and slanderous" remarks. McLean testified yesterday that the company is the "most corrupt and ruthless corporation" that ever operatin in Arkansas.

He charged that it had resorted to bribery and coercion, and had sought to "dominate" the state. Today the sub-committee heard former Governor McMath of Arkansas suggest that the utility company recently boosted it rates to pave the way for bigger returns in connection with the Dixon-Yates contract.. which has been approved but not yet signed. Counsel for the subcommittee said such testimony cannot be made the basis for a suit because it is "privileldge matter".

At the U.N., Russia and the major Western powers today agreed on a draft resolution setting up new disarmament talks. The resolution says the question is now urgent...and calls for establishment of a subcommittee to reconsider all disarmament proposals made so far. As in the past, the talks would be behind closed doors.

Defense Secretary Wilson today criticized Americans who, he said, "are trying to scare our own poopel and...indirectly...the people of other nations" by rattling the atomic bomb. Wilson told the World Affairs Council in Los Angeles that "we can more profitably spend our time in analyzing our problems and doing something about them."

The Delaware State Supreme Court today held-up the injunction of a lower court that would have allowed Negro students to attend the all-white high school at Milford. The State Supreme Court said it wished to retain the status quo, pending argument of an appeal by the Milford school board in December. The school board has urged postponment of de-segregation.

In California, Governor Knight today appealed to the petroleum industry for a temporary shutdown of all refineries in Los Angeles County, in an all-out battle against smog. The governor said the shutdown would be in the nature of a test.

Theater magnate Charles Skouras died in Hollywood today at the age of 65. Charles Skouras arrived in New York in 1908 as a penniless Greek immigrant and became one of the highest salaried men in the world. Death was due to a heart ailment.

Last night it was reported here that the Germans and French had reached agreement on the Saar. That was generally believed, but it wasn't true. There was a new crisis this morning, and success or failure of the Paris Conference, involving fifteen nations and over four hundred million people in the Atlantic community, now depends directly on the future of the tiny coal-rich Saar land, no bigger than Rhode Island. There is a new chapter of history ready to be sent to the printers in Paris. It records not only the soverignty of Germany and her military alliance with the West; it records contracts and agreements already drawn up, for a wide range of industrial, cultural and commercial co-operation between Germany and France.

This includes joint armament plants, exchange of students, big contracts for Germany to buy French milk, wheat, sugar and meat; and a French agreement to remove trade quotas on hundreds of millions of dollars worth of German products. All this, and more, hinges on the Saar settlement. Since the end of the late war this tiny territory has had political autonomy, but has been tied economically to France. This agreement, admittedly a temporary one, was engineered at the Foreign Ministers' Conference in Moscow in 1947 by John Foster Dulles, who was then advisor to Secretary of State, General George Marshall.

In the past German Chancellor Adenauer has said that he was willing to renounce German territorial claims to the Saar, and wait for a final decision to be made when a German peace treaty is signed. The French fear a repitition of what happened in 1935, when under Nazi threats of invasion, and German propaganda, the people of the Saar voted in a plebiscite to return to Germany.

One set of figures will illustrate the importance of the Saar to France. French production of coal and steel, together with that of the Saar, represent about twenty-eight percent of the total European output. Germany and the Ruhr contribute about thirty-four percent. If the Saar were returned to Germany, the French would have about eighteen percent of the total European production, and the Germans forty-four percent.

In Paris both Adenauer and Mendes-France are claiming that they will have trouble with their own legislative bodies, if either gives more ground. Unofficially the Germans and the French are accusing each other of bad faith.

Dick Hottelet cables me from Bonn that this sudden crisis in Paris has added new fuel to the anti-French sentiment which flared up so strongly after the French Assembly killed the European Defense Community. He says that this time, Adenauer is backed by all political parties in Germany, and he would run into serious domestic political difficulties if he should concede any major points to the French. Nine Germans out of ten would consider it outright French blackmail. The present German Government and the German constitution are strictly provisional. They are not authorized to dispose of German territory. Only a peace treaty, concluded by a re-united Germany, can conclusively settle territorial and constitutional questions. Thus, any solution for the Saar must legally and factually be only temporary. The Germans also demand full freedom for all political parties, including those advocating the return of the Saar to Germany. This the French will not agree to. The Germans also demand equal economic rights in the Saar, although they are willing that the French should continue to manage the currency and customs.

This present crisis is over a moth-eaten, much discussed and debated nineteenth century issue. Many Germans suspect that France is only using the Saar as a pretext to hold back the clock and keep Germany in continued subjugation. Many Frenchmen believe that the Germans are not to be trusted, that they covet the territory of the Saar as well as its coal and steel.

For the moment this is a case where negotiations of far-reaching importance - perhaps crucial to the defense of the Western world - have run into a wall of memory, suspicion, history and economics.

If agreement can be reached, it will probably have to be done in the broadest and most general terms, leaving the tough practical details for definition and resolution later on. For at this point, and primarily for domestic political reason, neither Adenauer nor Mendes-France can afford what would appear to be a defeat on the issue of the Saar. And neither one can afford to pay the price of a victory for his point of view, because the price would involve the collapse of the West European union. That is why, in spite of this last-minute crisis, there remains considerable optimism tonight both in Paris and in Bonn.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a moment with the Word for Today. But first, Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: The prospect of an agreement between France and Germany can only be regarded as a step forward in international diplomacy. I'm reminded of something Macaulay once wrote: "Society, we believe, is constantly advancing in knowledge. The tail is now where the head once was some generations ago. It is delightful to think that in due time the last of those who struggle in the rear of the great march will occupy the place now occupied by the advanced guard.

Good Night and Good Luck.

Monday, Oct 25, 1954

This is the news:

Secretary of State Dulles tonight told the Cabinet and the nation, that he believes the new West European Defense Alliance will win the approval of the western Parliaments. In a fewminutes we'll hear a portion of [redacted] Mr. Dulles's remarks.

Before ~~Mr. Dulles~~ The SECRETARY made his report, [redacted], West Germany's Chancellor Adenauer told his people by radio that the London agreements guarantee that "we shall succeed in saving peace in Europe and the world and finally achieve "the re-unification of Germany. He said "The occupation period is ended and we are free." And in Bonn, the agreement to "Europeanize" the Sarr region was made public tonight. It shows that France and West Germany will be given equal opportunities to trade with the Sarr. That's the economic aim of the agreement. Politically, the Sarr will come under a neutral commissioner responsible to the West European Union until a final peace treaty with Germay is signed. Both France and West Germany may veto the selection of the commissioner.

In London, British Foreign Secretary Eden says western unity has "been massively reinforced" by the agreement to bring West Germany into the Atlantic alliance. He said the western powers are determined to negotiate with Russia from a position of strength.

In Washington tonight President Eisenhower will say that 1954 has been "our most prosperous peacetime year in history." He will say: "It is high time that this great land of ours put behind us the rash of fears that for so long have haunted some of us..fear of war..fear of unemployment..

fear of ourseveslves...fear of the future." Certainly," he says," we know that one such fear...fear of a paralyzing depression can safely be laid away." The President says the current unemployment in some areas is a "matter of deep concern to all of us." He says this exists as an aftermath of war and inflation.

Dr. Grover Ensley, director of the joint Congressional committee for the economic report, says that its reasonable to assume that by 1965 most Americans will be working at least four hours a week less than they're working now. He sees an increase of nearly 30 per cent in the buying power of consumers in the next ten years.

Vice President Nixon, campaigning in Arizona, said today that the only sure way to keep security risks out of government is to keep the Republican administration in power. And Democratic Senators Clements and Sparkman charge that the Republicans are waging a "nation-wide smear" drive in the last two weeks of the campaign. Republican National Chairman Hall says the Democrats are waging "the worst campaign of misrepresentation and distortion in the nation'shistory."

Hall says there will be "a lot more indictments and convictions" from what he calls "the billion dollar scandal" in housing. Housing Administrator Cole says the government is moving to recover almost 7-million dollars in windfall profits in five apartment projects in: Brooklyn, Columbus, Ohio...Wilimngton, Delaware..Los Angeles and San Antonio.

The Communist government of Poland announces that Herman Field, an American, has been released from prison--after five years--and given "full satisfaction." But no American officials know what the satisfaction is..or where Field is. The Warsaw radio says Field was a victim of a frame-up by Josef Swiatlo. The Poles describe this man as an American agent. Actually, Swiatlo is a former top official in the Polish security system who recently sought asylum in this country. Field is one of five members of his family missing behind the iron curtain. His brother Noel was arrested as a spy in Prague. Then Noel's wife disappeared when she went to hunt for him in Prague. Herman was taken next as he sought his brother and sister-in-law. Then Noel Field's daughter disappeared in Berlin while she was searching for Noel.

~~The Supreme Court today, in effect, upheld a lower court ruling against the Administration's right for power to remove federal jobs from civil service classifications and make the job-holders subject to firing.~~

A delegation of Jews, led by Isreal Goldstein, president of the American Jewish Congress, today urged Secretary Dulles to withhold military aid from Arab States..at least until there are "positive guarantees" of an Arab-Israeli peace.

Andrei Vishinsky told the United Nations that Russia will not permit an inspection of its territory by air..under a disarmament plan. He said he could imagine the clamor that would be raised if he were to propose that Russian planes fly over this country. American Delegate Wadsworth pointed out that the air inspection planes would be under a disarmament control group. We are willing to accept it..we want the Russians to go along. Vishinsky again denounced the London and Paris agreements on West Germany and said they are leading to new dangers.

The Yugoslav parliament today ratified the agreement with Italy on Trieste..and the Balkan alliance that binds Yugoslavia to Greece and Turkey in a pact to strengthen the defenses of southern Europe. Tito praised the role of the United States in trying to bring peace to the world.

In Great Britain, the dock strike went into its fourth week.. with 500 of Manchester's 23-hundred dock workers joining the walkout. There is no settlment in sight.

Fifteen minutes ago there ended the first Cabinet Meeting to be televised and broadcast. It consisted primarily of a report by Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, who gave a step-by-step review of recent diplomatic activities, including the London and Manila conferences. And then Mr. Dulles gave the Cabinet and the country his estimate of the achievements at Paris. We recorded a portion of Mr. Dulles's remarks for you; and you will hear questions from Secretary Hobby, Attorney General Brownell, and Secretary of Agriculture Benson. FIRST - MR DULLES

The President had a cabinet meeting televised to the American people for the first time tonight. And it was for the purpose of hearing a first hand report from Secretary of State Dulles. There's a line in the old Testament that reads: "A good report maketh the bones fat." [redacted] It will remain to be seen whether this holds true in this case.

Good Nite and Good Luck.

CBS RADIO DIVISION

EDWARD R. MURROW

Monday, October 25, 1954
7:45-8:00 p.m.

MURROW: ..... About fifteen minutes ago there ended the first Cabinet meeting to be televised and broadcast. It consisted primarily of a report by Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, who gave a step-by-step review of recent diplomatic activities, including the London and Manila conferences, and then Mr. Dulles gave the Cabinet and the country his estimate of the achievements at Paris. We recorded a portion of Mr. Dulles' remarks for you and you will hear questions from Secretary Hobby, Attorney General Brownell, and Secretary of Agriculture Benson.

First, Mr. Dulles.

DULLES: ..... They adopted the resolutions that I anticipated, dealing with the increased authority of the Supreme Commander for Europe, General Gruenther now, as you know, at the present time, which wold give him greater facilities to integrate the forces and the facilities that are assigned to him, so the result is that through these controls, which will partly be exercised through the Brussels Council and its agency, partly through SACEUR and his increased powers, there will be an integration in fact of the military strength of these continental powers which will be quite comparable, and I think equally effective, to that which was to be achieved under the European Defense Community Treaty.

Now, to turn to another pretty difficult problem and that was the problem of the Saar.

HOBBY: (voice inaudible) ..... for all you know that has been one of the most controversial areas in Europe for a long time, almost a hundred years.

DULLES: Well, Mrs. Hobby, it was a tough problem and it was the last problem to be solved and you can see from the way it was solved how hard it was to get it solved. In the first place, it was really only a problem directly between France and Germany. It had really concerned the rest of us in these other arrangements, but the French had taken the position that they wouldn't sign the ... any of these other agreements unless the Saar problem was solved and it dragged on and on and we got ... we got within twenty-four hours of the date when all these things were supposed to be signed up and there wasn't any agreement. Then, on Friday night Chancellor Adenauer and Mr. Mendes-France went into a session and they started at ten o'clock Friday evening and they sat together till three o'clock in the morning. Then, they broke up at three o'clock in the morning, still turning some of their work over to these famous hard-working experts. They took a few hours of repose and went back again into session the first thing Saturday morning and they were still in session and when we gathered at the Quai d'Orsay for the first signing of these things on the afternoon ... in the early afternoon at three o'clock we didn't know at that time whether they had come to an agreement or not or whether this ... all the ... all would blow up and you can imagine that we were a bit nervous as we stood around the Quai d'Orsay with our pens in our hands without knowing whether there was going to be anything to sigh or not.

Now, the agreement was reached through this intensive effort by these two leaders and it is another example of how they showed the statesmanship to put first things in first and to do away with this age-old problem so that now we have both the Saar and Trieste as two problems which are going ... are settled, I think, and are now going to be unsettling to this European situation.

SPEAKER: (inaudible) ..... Secretary, will this Paris agreement have to be ratified by the Parliaments of the nations that are involved?

DULLES: Yes, it will have to be, and that gives a chance for the pessimists ... I'm not including you, Mr. Attorney General ... gives a chance for the pessimists to say - Well, we're just going to be back where we were two or three years ago and we're going to go through the same delays and frustrations. I don't believe it's going to happen that way this time because

I think what has happened has educated everybody to the fact that there is no alternative this time to this present plan and, furthermore, we've thrown into the scales for positive action some elements that weren't there before. I refer particularly to this pledge by the United Kingdom, which is of tremendous importance, and also as I say the Saar and Trieste are no longer there to be unsettling of the whole situation. Mr. Mendes-France, who, by the way, I hope will be coming here a little later on has said repeatedly it's up to France to make good some of this time that's been lost and as you probably recall already after the London conference, between the London and the Paris conferences, they submitted the basic principles of the London agreement both to the Parliamentary bodies of France and of Germany and they were approved by a decisive majority and I think that those facts coupled with the goodwill and the fellowship which existed through those meetings and the absence of tension, that now is present for the first time almost between France and Germany, are a good augury and are going to indicate that there's probably going to be a positive result.

Now, of course, some of you may wonder how the ..... (interruption)

SPEAKER: (inaudible) ..... feels that the Soviet Union will react to the Paris agreements in particular. I agree with you that we .....

DULLES: Well, I would say that I feel pretty confident that the Soviet Union didn't like what's going on. In fact, that's an understatement of the day. What the Communists want is a Europe that is weak and divided and they're going to try to get that, but I don't think that they are going to succeed. This program we worked out in fact is going to protect Russia as much as it protects anybody else against the possible resurgence of German militarism and behind this program is a sense of urgency and momentum so that I don't believe the Soviet Union will be able to break it down. (? ?) When we create, and I hope we will, a position of solidity and strength for western Europe then there may be a new basis for discussion which doesn't exist at the present time. At least we can hope that then there can be talks more satisfactory than those that exist when the only object of the Soviet Union is by trick or device to try to break up European unity.

(30)

Ed.trans.-A.A.Cardiff

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

MONDAY, OCTOBER 25, 1954
7:45--8:00 P.M.

This is the news:

Secretary of State Dulles tonight told the Cabinet and the nation that he believes the new West European Defense Alliance will win the approval of the Western Parliaments. In a few minutes we'll hear a portion of Mr. Dulles's remarks.

Before the secretary made his report, West Germany's Chalcellor Adenauer told his people by radio that the London agreements guarantee that "We shall succeed in saving peace in Europe and the world and finally achieve "the re-unification of Germany". He said "The occupation period is ended and we are free." And in Bonn, the agreement to "Europeanize" the Saar region was made public tonight. It shows that France and West Germany will be given equal opportunities to trade with the Saar. That's the economic aim of the agreement. Politically, the Saar will come under a neautral commissioner, responsible to the West European Union until a final peace treaty with Germany is signed. Both France and West Germany may veto the selection of the commissioner. In London, British Foreign Secretary Eden says western unity has "been massively reinforced" by the agreement to bring West Germany into the Atlantic alliance. He said the western powers are determined to negotiate with Russia from a position of strength.

In Washington tonight President Eisenhower willsay that 1954 had been "our most prosperous peacetime year in yistory." He will say: "It is high time that this great land of ours put behind us the rash of fears that for so long have haunted sume of us...fear of war...fear of unemployment...fear of ourselves...fear of the future." "Certainly," he says, "we know that one such fear...fear of a paralyzing depression, can be safely laid away."

The President says the current unemployment in some areas is a "matter of deep concern to all of us." He says this exists as an aftermath of war and inflation.

Vice President Nixon, campaigning in Arizona, said today that the only sure way to keep security risks out of the government is to keep the Republican administration in power. And Democratic Senators Clements and Sparkman charge that the Republicans are waging a "nation-wide smear" drive in the last two weeks of the campaign. Republican National Chairman Hall says the Democrats are waging "the worst campaign of misrepresentation and distoriton in the nation's history."

Hall says there will be "a lot more indictments and convictions" from what he calls "the billion dollar scandal" in housing. Housing Administrator Cole says the government is moving to recover almost 7-million dollars in windfall profits in five apartment projects in: Brooklyn, Columbus, Ohio, ...Wilmington , Delaware...Los Angeles and San Antonio.

The Communist government of Poland announces that Herman Fields, an American, has been released from prison --after five years --and given "full satisfaction." But no American officials know what the satisfaction is... or where Field is. The Warsaw radio says Field was a victim of a frame-up by Joseph Swiatlo, The Poles describe this man as an American agent. Actually, Swiatlo is a former top official in the Polish security system who recently sought Asylum in this country. Field is one of five members of his family missing behind the iron curtain. His brother Noel was arrested as a spy in Prague. Then Noel's wife disappeared when she went to hunt for him in Prague. Herman was taken next, as he sought his brother and sister-in law. Then Noel Field's daughter disappeared in Berlin while she was searching for Noel.

Andrei Vishinsky told the United Nations that Russia will not permit an inspection of its territory by air...under a disarmament plan. He said he could imagine the clamor that would be raised if he were to propose that Russian planes fly over this country. American Delegate Wadsworth pointed out that the air inspection planes would be under a disarmament control group. We are willing to accept it...we want the Russians to go along. Vishinsky again denounced the London and Paris agreements on West Germany and said they wre leading to new dangers.

The Yugoslav parliament today ratified the agreement with Italy on Trieste...and the Balkan alliance that binds Yugoslavia to Greece and Turkey in a pact to strengthen the defenses of southern Europe. Tito praised the role of the United States in trying to bring peace to the world.

Fifteen minutes ago there ended the first Cabinet Meeting to be televised and broadcast. It consisted primarily of a report by Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, who gave a step-be-step review of recent diplomatic activities, including the London and Manilla conferences. And then Mr. Dulles gave the Cabinet and the country his estimate of the acheivements at Paris. We recorded a portion of Mr. Dulles's remarks for you; and you will hear questions from Secretary Hobby, Attorney General Brownell, and Secretary of Agriculture Benson. First --Mr. Dulles.

DULLES: They adopted the resolutions that I anticipated, dealing with the increased authority of the Supreme Commander for Europe, General Gruenther Now, as you know, at the present time, which would give him greater facilities to integrate the forces and facilities that are assigned to him, so the result is that through these controls, which will partly be exercised through the Brussels Council and its agency, partly through SACEUR and his increased powers, there will be an integration in fact of the military strength of these continental powers which will be quite comparable, and I think equally effective, to that which was to be achieved under the European Defense Community Treaty.

MURROW: Now, to turn to another pretty difficult problem and that was the problem of the Saar.

HOBBY: .....for all you know that has been one of the most controversial areas in Europe for a long time, almost a hundred years.

DULLES: Well, Mrs. Hobby, it was a tough problem and it was the last problem to be solved and you can see from the way it was solved how hard it was to get it solved. In the first place, it was really only a problem directly between France and Germany. It had really concerned the rest of us in those other arrangements, but the French had taken the position that they wouldn't sign the....any of these agreements unless the Saar problem was solved and it dragged on and on and we got...we got within twenty-four hours of the date when all these things were supposed to be signed up and there wasn't any agreement. Then, on Friday night Chancellor Adenauer and Mr. Mendes-France went into a session and they started at ten o'clock on Friday evening and they sat together till three o'clock in the morning. Then, they broke up at three o'clock in the morning, still turning some of their work over to those famous hard-working experts. They took a few hours of repose and went back again into session the first thing Saturday morning and they were still in session and when we gathered at the Quai d'Orsay for the first signing of these things on the afternoon...in the early afternoon at three o'clock we didn't know at that time whether they had come to an agreement or not or whether this .... all the...all would blow up and you can imagine that we were a bit nervous as we stood around the Quai d'Orsay with our pens in our hands without knowing whether there was going to be anything to sign or not.

Now, the agreement was reached through this intensive effort by these two leaders and it is another example of how they showd the statesmanship to put first things in first and to do away with this age-old problem so that now we have both the Saar and Trieste as two problems which are going ... are settled, I think, and are now going to be unsettling to this European situation.

SPEAKER .....Secretary, will this Paris agreement have to be ratified by the Parliaments of the nations that are involved?

DULLES: Yes, it will have to be, and that gives a chance for the pessamists ...I'm not including you, Mr. Attorney General...gives a chance for the pessimists to say - Well, we're just going to be back where we were two or three years ago and we're going to go through the same delays and frustrations. I don't believe it's going to happen that way this time because I think that has happened had educated everybody to the fact that there is no alternative this time to this present plan and, furthermore, we've thrown into the scales for positive action some elements that weren't there before. I refer particularly to this pledge by the United Kingdom, which is of tremendous importance, and also as I say the Saar and Trieste are no longer there to be unsettling of the whole situation. Mr. Mendes-France, who, by the way, I hope will be coming here a little later on has said repeatedly it's up to France to make good some of this time that's been lost and as you prabably recall already after the London conference, between the London and the Paris conferences, they submitted the basic principles of the London agreement both to the Parliamentary bodies of France and of Germany and they were approved by a decisive majority and I think that those facts coupled with the goodwill and the fellow-ship which existed through those meetings and the absence of tension, that now is present for the first time almost between France and Germany, are a good augury and are going to indicate that there's probably going to be a a positive result.

SPEAKER: .....feels that the Soviet Union will react to the Paris agreement in particular. I agree with you that we.....

DULLES: Well, I sould say that I feel pretty confident that the Soviet Union didn't like what's going on. In fact, that's an understatement of the day. What the Communists want is a Europe that is weak and divided and they're going to try to get that, but I don't think that they are going to succeed. This program is a sense of urgency and momentum so that I don't believe the Soviet Union will be able to break it down. When we create, and I hope we will, a position of solidity and strength for western Europe then there may be a new basis for discussion which doesn's exist at the present time. At least we can hope that then there can be talks more satisfactory than those that exist when the only object of the Soviet Union is by trick or device to try to break up European unity.

MURROW: This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a minute with the Word for Today. but first, Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: The President had a cabinet meeting televised to the American people for the first time tonight. And it was for the purpose of hearing a first hand report from Secretary of State Dulles. There's a line in the Old Testament that reads: "A good report maketh the bones fat." It will remain to be seen whether this holds turo in this case.

Good Night and Good Luck.

Tuesday, Oct 26, 1954

This is the news:

The Atomic Enery Commission says the Russians are conducting a series of atomic explosions. They started..in the Soviet Union..in mid-September and have "continued at intervals to the present." There has been some wide-spread "falling out" of radioactive materials..some in the United States but "insignificantly." There is no indication on how many explosions the Russians have set off...whether they were atomic or hydrogen explosions and where the "fall-out" occurred in this country.

Labor Secretary Mitchell says the Administration's "jobs without war" program has accounted for a new drop in unemployment of 358-thousand persons. He charges the Democrats with trying to scare voters in next Tuesday's election. Mitchell's speech was made as one of a number of Republican speeches designed to answer Democratic charges that workers are not now as well off as they were under Democratic Administrations. Earlier, Secretary Mitchell said that last month the average factory worker's buying power jumped to the highest September peak in ten years. And the Bureau of Labor Statistics reports that a one point three drop in food prices drove living costs down between the middle of August and the middle of September. The over-all drop was three-tenths of a point.

Another Mitchell..Democratic National Chairman Steven Mitchell.. today demanded free radio and television time for Adlai Stevenson to answer what Mitchell called "partisan political speeches" by the President before "non political audiences." Mitchell said, for example, that last night's televised cabinet meeting was "a charade for political purposes.. obviously contrived.. an advertising man's gimmick..an artful dodge to get partisan propaganda without paying the networks. The N.B.C. network has offered the Democrats free radio and television time on SATURDAY [redacted] by Stevenson . CBS President Frank Stanton has denied the Mitchell request. Stanton says it has been CBS policy not to provide time to reply to the President or his cabinet members reporting on their official activities. The ABC network also denied the request. ~~is considering Mitchell's request.~~

Adlai Stevenson, in Rochester, New York, said today that Right-wing Republicans are "primitives" who "take a strong stand for a weak government." He called for the election of a Democratic congress to "restore reason and confidence to the conduct of our foreign policy."

The White House says the President is considering a last-minute political tour.. the National Committee has asked him to do this...Mr. Eisenhower would like to.. but , says News Secretary Hagerty, "he has a lot of work to do here,too."

Today the President authorized the distribution of 8-million Christmas food packages to free nations around the world. About 35-million dollars will be spent on the food. (from government surplus stocks.) And it will cost about 5-million to package and transport it.

Senator Mc Carthy today accused Chairman Watkins, by name, and two other members of the Watkins committee, of being prejudiced against him. The committee had recommended that McCarthy be censured. Watkins says he is not going to be provoked into arguing the matter, before the Senate considers it. Democratic Senator Ervin, of North Carolina, a committee member, told reporters:"McCarthy is trying to try the committee..before the Senate gets around to trying him."

Thirteen Puerto Rican nationalists, convicted of conspiracy against the United States, today were sentenced to six years in prison.

At the United Nations, the Big Five atomic powers tonight agreed to reject India's demand for an armament truce until a disarmament treaty has been concluded.

Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons today that this is not the time to accept Russia's offer for a Big Four conference on German reunificaation. ~~Sir Winston said the western powers still must ratify the agreements to give Germany sovereignty and re-arm.~~

~~General Gruenther, commander of the North Atlantic forces, says N.A.T.O. today is three or four times stronger than it was four years ago. "and the increase in efficiency is greater still."~~

British and American forces today ended their nine-years of occupation of Trieste's Zone A..as Italian troops moved in.

In Egypt ~~Alexandria, Egypt~~, eight pistol shots were fired at Premier ~~Gamal Abdel~~ Nasser as he was addressing a rally celebrating the signing of the British-Egyptian Suez agreement. Nasser was not hurt, but two minor officials were slightly wounded.

More than 217 persons are dead as the result of cloudbursts and landlides in the ~~mountain~~ coastal hills of Italy's Gulf of Salerno.

And in POLAND, Herman Field, the American released yesterday after five years in prison , today told American authorities that he wants to remain in a sanitarium near Warsaw until he has regeained his health and composure. The Polish government now admits the charges against him were baseless.

Edward R. Murrow: October 26, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

One week remains before the mid-term election. I shall speak about the changing course of the campaign and about reported trends, but first I must mention a photograph in a New York newspaper the other day. It showed a naturalist at the zoo in the act of counting the hairs on the back of a bear. He was trying to discover how the bear was forecasting the severity of the coming winter. As long as there has been folklore it has been assumed that a bear knows what the winter will be like and grows his hair accordingly. Frankly I don't believe the theory has been thoroughly tested. When it comes to elections, the experts also count hairs. But in the department of elections there have been adequate tests - in 1948, for example - and we know that a forecast is not necessarily right.

All reports agree that there is a lack of intense interest in the election. Registrations were low with few exceptions, and where voters were sampled many said they were not going to the polls. A light vote in a mid-term election normally favors the opposition party. So this year a Democratic gain is indicated. The Republicans have changed their strategy in the course of the campaign, which is an apparent acknowledgement of a Democratic trend. At the start the Republicans focused on their achievements under President Eisenhower and asked the election of a Republican Congress to permit the completion of the program. President Eisenhower himself made this the keynote. He also ruled out the threat of Communists in government as a major issue.

Now the emphasis has shifted. Vice President Nixon is talking about the danger of Communists in government and correspondingly less about Republican achievements. In the last days the campaign is being sharpened. The political psychiatrists say this is being done deliberately to make people angry. There is a political axiom that people have to be angry before they will get out in great numbers and vote. The Republicans are sure that if they can only get the voters out they will win.

Reports from the field agree that in regions where unemployment is noticeable a rise in Democratic strength is expected. (This was before the improved employment figures were released in Washington.) Perhaps even more of a factor than unemployment has been the loss of overtime in industry. This has been widespread and doesn't show in statistics. Farm incomes also are down and this more than the issue of flexible price supports may be reducing normal Republican strength in farm states.

Before mentioning contests in close states, let me list the questions that can't be answered now but will be answered a week from today. One is whether voters can be made angry simply by changing the temper of speeches. Or can it be done by exploding last-minute charges, like those fired by Senator Ives & Gov. Dewey against Averell Harriman in New York? Or can it be done by introducing such novelties as televising a cabinet meeting?

There is the question how many voters already have made up their minds; suppose it is 90 percent, what proportion of the undecided 10 percent will vote Republican because of the changed Republican strategy? An important question is how strong is the pull of President Eisenhower's coat-tails. His popularity is high and steady. But he is not on the ticket, and a voter can't pick out his name and then vote the straight ticket. Another question is whether the appeal to give the President a Republican Congress is changing or holding many votes. And perhaps the most obscure but decisive question of all is whether there is a Democratic groundswell, as hinted by the elections in Maine and Alaska.

Answers to any of these questions could upset all the forecasts. But forecasts are definitely part of the picture. Many have been made of the result in the House, and all of the independent forecasts I have seen point to a Democratic victory with a majority anywhere from one to thirty, or even more.

It is harder to generalize about the Senate. The correspondents in the field of the New York Times reported that indications point to a net gain of three seats by the Democrats, (enough to gain control) The prediction is based on the Democrats winning four seats held by Republicans, and losing one Democratic seat. The lost seat would be in Ohio, where Senator Burke, appointed to replace the late Senator Taft, is believed to be slightly behind Republican George Bender. The Democratic victories indicated are in New Jersey, where Howell is believed ahead of Case, largely because of Republican disunity; in Kentucky where voters appear to prefer a beloved Alben Barkley to an able Senator Cooper; in Wyoming, where former Senator O'Mahoney is given the advantage over the Republican Harrison; and Nevada, where the McCarran heir, Alan Bible, is believed ahead of the interim Republican appointee Ernest Brown.

But almost everywhere races are regarded as close. Among these, Democrat Douglas is said to be leading in Illinois; Republican Ferguson in Michigan; Democrat Gillette in Iowa, Republican Saltenstall in Massachusetts, Republican Dworshak in Idaho, Democrat Carroll in Colorado, Democrat Frear in Delaware, Republican Cordon in Oregon. The contest in California is called a toss-up. Democrat Humphrey is reported well ahead in Minnesota.

But these are only the hairs in the back of the bear. And this reporter offers no sure way of knowing what the winter will be like, or who will win an election.

Will Rogers always took a dim view of politics. Or perhaps it wasn't politics so much as it was politicians. Whatever the case, on the week before the 1930 elections he wrote:"Come pretty near having two holidays of equal importance in the same week: Halloween and Election- and of the two election provides the most fun. On Halloween they put pumpkins on their heads. On election they don't have to."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 26, 1954
7:45-8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

The Atomic Energy Commission says the Russians are conducting a series of atomic explosiins. They started...in the Soviet Union..in mid-September and have "continued at intervals to the present". There has been some widespread "falling out" radioactive materials...some in the United States, but "insignificantly." There is no indication on how many explosions the Russians have set off...whether they were Atomic or hydrogen explosions and where the "fall-out " occurred in this country.

Labor Secretary Mitchell says the Administration's "jobs without war" program has accounted for a new drop in unemployment of 358-thousand persons. He charges the Democrats with trying to scare voters in next Tuesday's election. Mitchell's speech was made as one of a number of Republican speeches designed to answer Democratic charges that workers are not now as well off as they were under Democratic Administrations. Earlier, Secretary Mitchell said that last month the average factory worker's buying power jumped to the highest September peak in ten years. And the Bureau of Labor Statistics reports that one point three drop in food prices drove living costs down between the middle of August and the middle of September. The over-all drop was three-tenths of a point.

Another Mitchell...Democratic National Chairman Steven Mitchell..today demanded free radio and television time for Adlai Stevenson to answer what Mitchell called "partisan political speeches" by the President before "non-political audiences." Mitchell said, for example, that last night's televised cabinet meeting was "a charade for political purposes..obviously contrived...

an advertising man's gimmick...an artful dodge to get partisan propaganda without paying the networks. The N.B.C. network has offered the Democrats free radio and television time on Saturday. CBS President Frank Stanton has denied the Mitchell request. Stanton says it has been CBS policy not to provide time to reply th the President or his cabinet members reporting on their official activities. The ABC network also denied the request.

Adlai Stevenson, in Rochester, New York, said today that Right-wing Republicans are "primitives" who "take a strong stand for a weak government He called for the election of a Democratic congress to "restore reason and confidence to the conduct of our foreign policy."

The White House says the President is considering a last-minute political tour ... the National Committee has asked him to do this...Mr. Eisenhower would like to...but, says News Secretary Hagerty, "he has a lot of work to do here, too."

Today the President authorized the distribution of 8-million Christmas food packages to free nations around the world. About 35-million dollars will be spent on the food...from government surplus stocks. And it will cost about 5-million to package and transport it.

Senator McCarthy today accused Chairman Watkins, by name, and two other members of the Watkins committee, of being prejudeced against him. The committee had recommended that McCarthy be censured. Watkins says he is not going to be provoked into arguing the matter before the Senate considers it. Democratic Senator Ervin, of North Carolina, a committee member, told reporters "McCarthy is trying to try the committee...before the Senate gets around to trying him."

Thirteen Puerto Rican nationalists, convicted of conspiracy against the United States, today were sentenced to six years in prison.

At the United Sations, the Big Five atomic powers tonight agreed to reject India's demand for an armament truce until a disarmament treaty has been concluded.

Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons today that this is not the time to accept Russia's offer for a big Four conference on German reunification.

British and American forces today ended their nine-years of occupation of Trieste's Zone A ..as Italian troops moved in.

In Egypt, eight pistol shots were fired at Premier Nasser, as he was addressing a rally celebrating the signing of the British-Egyptian Suez Agreement. Nasser was not hurt but two minor officials were slightly wounded.

More than 217 persons are dead as the result of cloudbursts and landslides in the coastal hills of Italy's Gulf of Salerno.

And in Poland, Herman Field, the American released yesterday after five years in prison, today told American authorities that he wants to remain in a sanitarium near Warsaw until he has regained his health and composure. The Polish government now admits the charges against him were baseless.

One week remains before the mid-term election. I shall speak about the changing course of the campaign and about reported trends, but first I must mention a photograph in a New York newspaper the other day. It showed a naturalist at the zoo in the act of counting the hairs on the back of a bear. He was trying to discover how the bear was forecasting the severity of the coming winter. As long as there has been folklore it has been assumed that a bear knows what the winter will be like and grows his hair accordingly. Frankly I don't believe the theory has been throoughly tested. When it comes to elections, the experts also count hairs. But in the department of elections there have been adequate tests - in 1948, for example - and we know

All reports agree that there is a lack of intenst interest in the election. Registrationw sere low with few exceptions, and where voters were sampled many said they were not going to the polls. A light vote in a mid-term election normally favors the opposition party. So this year a democratic gain is indicated. The Republicans have changed their strategy in the course of the campaign, which is apparent acknowledgement of a Democratic trend. At the start the Republicans focused on their achievements under President Eisenhower and asked the election of a Republican Congress to permit the completion of the program. President Eisenhower himself made this keynote. He also ruled out the threat of the Communists in government as a major issue.

Now the emphasis has shifted. Vice President Nixon is talking about the danger of Communists in government and correspondingly less about Republican achievements. In the last days the campaign is being sharpened. The political psychiatrists say this is being done deliberately to make people angry. There is a political axiom that people have to be angry before they will get out in great numbers and vote. The Republicans are sure that if they can only get the voters out they will win.

Reports from the field agree that in regions where unemployment is noticeable a rise in Democratic strength is expected. This was before the improved employment figures were released in Washington. Perhaps even more of a factor than unemployment has been the loss of overtime in industry. This has been widespread and doesn't show in statistics. Farm incomes also are down and this more than the issue of flexible price suports may be reducing normal Republican strength in farm states.

Before mentioning contests in close states, let me list the questions that can't be answered now, but will be answered a week from today. One is whether voters can be made angry simply by changing the temper of speeches. Or can it be done by exploding last-minute charges, like those fired by Senator Ives and Governor Dewey against Averill Harriman in New York? Or can it be done by introducing such novelties as televising a cabinet meeting?

There is the question how many voters arready have made up their minds; suppose it is 90 percent, what proportion of the undecided 10 percent will vote Republican because of the changed Republican strategy? An important question is how strong is the pull of President Eisenhower's coat-tails. His popularity is high and steady. But he is not on the ticket, and a voter can't pick out his name and then vote straight ticket. Another question is whether the appeal to give the President a Republican Congress is changing or holding many votes. And perhaps the most obscure but decisive question of all is whether there is a Democratic groundswell, as hinted by the elections in Maine and Alaska.

Answers to any of these questions could upset all the forecasts. But forecasts are definitely part of the picture. Many have been made of the result in the House, and all of the independent forecasts I have seen point to a Democratic victory with a majority anywhere from one to thirty, or more.

It is harder to generalize about the Senate. The correspondents in the field of the New York Times reported that indications point to a net gain of three seats by the Democrats, enough to gain control. The prediction is based on the Democrats winning four seats held by Republicans, and losing one Democratic seat. The lost seat would be in Ohio, where Senator Burke, appointed to replace the late Senator Taft, is believed to be slightly behind Republican George Bender. The Democratic victories indicated are in New Jersey, where Howell is believed ahead of Case, largely because of Republican disunity; in Kentucky where voters appear to prefer a beloved Alben Barkley to an able Senator Cooper; in Wyoming, where former Senator O'Mahoney is given the advantage over the Republican Harrison; and Nevada, where the McCarran heir, Alan Bible, is believed ahead of the interim Republican appointee Ernest Brown.

But almost everywhere races are regarded as close. Among these, Democrat Douglas is said to be leading in Illinois; Republican Ferguson in Michigan; Democrat Gillette in Iowa, Republican Saltonstall in Massachusetts, Republican Dworshak in Idaho, Democrat Carroll in Colorado, Democrat Frear in Delaware, Republican Cordon in Oregon. The contest in Califonnia is called a toss-up. Democrat Humphrey is reported well ahead in Minnesota.

But these are only the hairs in the back of the bear. And this reporter offers no sure way of knowing what the winter will be like, or who will win an election.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a minute with the Word for Today. But first, Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: Will Rogers always took a dim view of politics. Or perhaps it wasn't politics so much as it was politicians. Whatever the case, on the week before the 1930 elections we wrote: "Come pretty near having two holidays of equal importance in the same week: Halloween and Election Day, and of the two, Election Day provides the most fun. On Halloween they put pumpkins on their heads. On Election Day, they don't have to."

Good Night and Good Luck.

Wednesday, Oct 27, 1954

This is the news:

The President said today that "there is better reason to hope for peace" THAN there was two years ago. He told reporters THAT when the time is appropriate..and we have reason to believe the Russians are sincere.. we will talk with Moscow to promote peace. But, he said, this is not the time...while work is in progress on the European defense structure.

The White House says the President will make a one-day campaign trip on Friday--by air. He'll visit Detroit, Cleveland, Louisville and Wilmington, Delaware. He'll speak at airports. He'll fly in the Presidential plane, but the Republican national committee will pay the bill.

At a news conference, Mr. Eisenhower said, he wanted to dramatize his desire to have everyone vote. He said he doesn't regard the Tuesday election, as a vote of confidence in him or his Administration. And he spoke of the voters apathy. A reporter asked if this could be due to "disenchantment" with the program of the past two years. The President, somewhat angry, said on the contrary, he has been told that one cause for the apathy, is too much SATISFACTION -- AMONG people who have what they want, under the Republican Administration. Mr. Eisenhower declined to predict the outcome of the election. But he said he hopes for a Congress that will help carry-out his program.

At his news conference the President [redacted] denied that there is any partisan political angle in a new program to have federal agencies report job vacancies to the Republican National Committee. [redacted] ~~ordered that party affiliation should have nothing to do with getting~~ [redacted] ~~jobs.~~

~~And~~ Mr. Eisenhower said he has been informed that the recent drop in unemployment signifies an upturn in the whole economy..It is not just seasonal. He also told the reporters that in the controversial Dixon-Yates power contract [redacted] the public is perfectly and splendidly protected.

The President also made reference to the arrival in Washington of West Germany's Chancellor Adenauer..called him one of the great statesmen of our time. AND [redacted], during the day THE PRESIDENT named Benjamin Oliver Davis, Junior, to be the first negro air force general. And he pledged federal assistance to help Los Angeles combat the most severe smog problem in its history.

The President's recent statements on the unemployment situation, and Labor Secretary Mitchell's report of a drop of 358-thousand in unemployed this month, today drew sharp reactions from the AF of L. and the C.I.O. George Meany, head of the A.F. of L. accuses Mitchell of "painting a rosy but innacurate picture..of using cheap and tawdry methods ..of prostituting his office in an attempt to assure a Republican victory on Tuesday." And Emil Rieve of the C.I.O. says the Administration's pre-election "assurances" are "nothing more than camouflage, persiflage and double-montage." Secretary Mitchell replied that Labor's leaders have chosen to ignore the facts and attack the Administration for "political considerations."

Republican National Chairman Hall today demanded that the NBC radio and television networks give the Republicans equal time to match the free time they promised Democratic Chairman Mitchell. But NBC appears to have withdrawn its offer to the Democrats. CBS and ABC turned down the Democratic request. And Chairman Mitchell asked CBS, in effect: do you want to treat both parties equally or do you not...do you want the voters to hear both sides of the political argument or do you not.

Here in New York, the Buffalo Evening News raised the question whether Averell Harriman, the Democratic candidate for governor, is eligible under the state's residence requirement laws. The News stated, and Republicans broadcast the possibility, that Harriman disqualified himself because he voted in a preferential primary in the District of Columbia in 1952. Then Harriman said: he did so vote..it was no secret..the balloting was financed by a Democratic committee...had no legal status.. and was just as if one had voted for a favorite baseball player.

Here in New York, the Buffalo Evening News has raised the question of whether Averall Harriman, the Democratic candidate for Governor is eligible under the residence requirement of the state laws. It appears that Harriman voted in a preferential primary in the District of Columbia in 1952. The Republicans say this makes it appear that he can not qualify for office in New York..where governors must have lived in the state for five continuous years. But the Democrats say the District of Columbia primary had no legal standing..didn't affect Harriman's New York residence.

Adlai Stevenson said in Delaware today that "the biggest surplus in America is the perishable Republican campaign promises of 1952. He called the Republican campaign issue "a (piece) of ugliness" which he summarized as "slander, epithets, accusations and communist in government."

The United Nations Political committee, in a rare East-West agreement, has decided to call for secret five-power talks on disarmament.

In London, Admiral Earl Mountbatten has been named First Lord of the Admiralty.

In Moscow, the Russians charge that Mrs. Karl Sommerlatte, wife of the second secretary at the American embassy, hit a Russian worker in the face..and pushed another. The Russians demand that she leave their country. The State Department says the Soviet story is not accurate.. that Mrs. Sommerlatte and the wife of the assistant naval attache at the embassy, actually were illegally detained and subjected to personal indignities. We have refused to accept the Soviet note and take "a very serious view" of the incident. It evidently occured while the two American women were attempting to photograph Russian children.

Edward R. Murrow: October 27, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

A natural caution usually tempers the eulogies a national leader receives in his lifetime. But some men can be given full dues, even before they are consigned to history. One of these is the guest of the United States today. # The work of Konrad Adenauer, Chancellor of the Federal Republic of Germany, is not finished. It cannot be, until the final pacts incorporating a sovereign and re-armed Germany in the Western Treaty Organization, have been ratified. He comes at a moment when the opposition to the Saar settlement is as strong as any he has encountered.

But enough has happened in Germany, and Europe, to make caution unnecessary in sizing up Dr. Adenauer. His story is one of the remarkable records of political achievement of our time. # In forty years, Germany had been the cause and prosecutor, of the two greatest wars men have ever fought. They made Germany the great enemy of all times. Yet today, nine years since the second world war ended, Germany is a welcomed friend. Moreover it is associated in the forward-looking task, of creating an integrated Europe, one of the aspirations of centuries, at last coming partially within view.

It is not my function to estimate just how much of this is due to Chancellor Adenauer. Obviously the friendship of Germany would have been impossible without the wise generosity of the Western victors. And in a democracy no single man is solely responsible for what a country does. But Dr. Adenauer's skill, drive and leadership are unusual and have made him unusually powerful. Few individuals are able to mould their country's thoughts and institutions as he has done. He helped inspire and draft the basic law, or constitution, of the Federal Republic. Thus post-war Germany came to experience democracy after years of a vicious dictatorship. He insisted on free play for the economic forces by which his country lives, and thus made possible a German recovery that has astounded the world. But best of all, he devoted himself without stint to bringing Germany into the free family of the West as a full working member.

In saying these things I am not unmindful of certain potentialities in Germany, some of them not so latent. I have seen ~~recent films of~~ marching Germans that looked like the revival of Nazi-ism. I have read German speeches that made me shiver. But I believe such things may be the measure of Dr. Adenauer's abilities. It has not been simple always to encourage and build up the constructive elements in German society, and to subdue those that would be destructive. Bigotry and passion can all too easily overpower moderation and wisdom. Under Dr. Adenauer the opposite has happened. All the credit does not belong to him, still one must wonder what Germany and Europe would have been like under a less moderate and less wise leader. The question is timely, for now he is 78 and still no one is in sight to carry on his work when he lays down the burdens of state.

Sir Winston Churchill once asked Dr. Adenauer what he would most wish if he had his choice. He instantly replied: "A strong France". He knew a strong France would not be afraid of Germany, and a weak one would dread Germany's rising power. And he saw that close association with France was essential if Germany was to belong to the West and be secure in that partnership. Today Dr. Adenauer is dealing with a stronger France, and Germany is on the way to the desired partnership. Much of the praise for that - if it is consummated - will go to Premier Mendes-France. But he will have to share it with Dr. Adenauer. The faith of this German in democracy, his vision of an integrated Europe and his renunciation of Germany's past have made the change in French opinion possible.

Dr. Adenauer was deputy mayor of Cologne in World War One. He was full mayor by the time Hitler came into power. The Nazis dismissed and then arrested him. He did not spend years in prison, but he put in the remaining time of the Hitler era in obscurity, much of it in his garden. After the war he was remembered and made mayor of Cologne again. Through a curious clumsiness the British dismissed him as mayor - for incompetence, I believe they said. Fortunately that threw him into national politics. As an eminent Catholic layman he rapidly came to head the Christian Democratic Party and was largely instrumental in the formation of the Republic.

Dr. Adenauer proved to be both statesman and politician. He knew how to maneuver, how to exploit advantage, how to wheedle, how to crack down, how to reconcile. In Bonn he often is called "The Old Fox." Once he was accused in the Bundestag of having ridden roughshod over the opposition in a foreign policy debate. He grinned as he said: "It is not altogether true". He can be high-handed, secretive and infinitely patient. But he has used these talents not simply to increase his power but to serve the interests of Germany and Europe as he conceived them.

At the time the French Assembly ditched the European Defense Community it looked as though Dr. Adenauer's work was ruined. Then Sir Anthony Eden pulled the Brussels treaty out of the lower drawer, and the integration of European defense could proceed. That was followed by French acceptance of the new organization. So now Dr. Adenauer is able to visit this country not only as a grateful friend, but as a prospective partner. This is the way peace ought to look. The respect which Germany now enjoys is personified in this man. It is understandable that many Europeans consider him the ablest German leader since Bismark. And if his work is successfully finished that may prove to be an understatement.

We were speaking of Chancellor Adenauer and how he ~~will~~ may be regarded by future historians. Walter Lippman and John Ruskin once ~~[illegible]~~ observed: ~~[illegible]~~:"No saint, no hero, no discoverer, no prophet, no leader, ever did his work cheaply and easily, comfortably and painlessly...and he only is advancing in life, whose heart is getting softer, whose blood warmer, whose brain quicker, and whose spirit is entering into living peace."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 27, 1954
7:45-8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

The President said today that "there is better reason to hope for peace" than there was two years ago. He told reporters that when the time is appropriate..and we have reason to believe the Russians are sincere..we will talk with Moscow to promote peace. But, he said, this is not the time... while work is in progress on the European defense structure.

The White House says the President will make a one-day campaign trip on Friday -- by air. He'll visit Detroit, Cleveland, Louisville and Wilmington, Delaware. He'll speak at airports. He'll fly in the Presidential plane but the Republican national committee will pay the bill.

At a news conference, Mr. Eisenhower said he wanted to dramatize his desire to have everyone vote. He siad he doesn't regard the Tuesday election as a vote of confidence in him or his administration. And he spoke of the voters apathy. A rpporter asked if this could be due to "disenchantment" with the program of the past two years. The President, somewhat angry, said on the contrary, he has been told that one cause for the apathy is too much satisfaction among people who have what they want under the Republican Administration. Mr. Eisenhower declined to predict the outcome of the election. But he said he hopes for a Congress that will help carry out his program.

At his news conference the President denied that there is any partisan political angle in a new program to have federal agencies report job vacancies to the Republican National Committee. And Mr. Eisenhower said he has been informed that the recent drop in unemployment signifies an upturn in the whole economy...it is not just seasonal. He also told the reporters that in the controversial Dixon-Yates power contract the public is perfectly an and splendidly protected.

The President also made reference to the arrival in Washington of West Germany's Chancellor Adenauer...called him one of the great statesmen of our time. And during the day the President named Benjamin Oliver Davis, Junior, to be the first negro air force general. And he pledged federal assistance to help Los Angeles to combat the most severe smog problem in its history.

The President's recent statements on the unemployment situation, and Labor Secretary Mitchell's report of a drop of 358-thousand in unemployed this month, today drew sharp reactions from the AF of L. and the C.I.O. George Meany, head of the A.F. of L. accuses Mitchell of "painting a rosy but inacurate picture...of using cheap and tawdry methods...of prostituting his office in an attempt to assure a Republican victory on Tuesday." And Emil Rieve of the C.I.O. says the Administration's pre-election "assurances" are "nothing more than camouflage, persiflage and double-montage." Secretary Mitchell replied that Labor's leaders have chosen to ignore the facts and attack the Administration for "political considerations."

Here in New York, the Buffalo Evening News raised the question whether Averill Harriman, the Democratic candidate for governor, is eligible under the state's residence requirement laws. The News stated, and Republicans broadcast the possibility that Harriman disqualified himself because he voted in a preferentialpprimary in the District of Columbia in 1952. Then Harriman said: he did so vote...it was no secret...the balloting was financed by a Democratic committee...had no legal status...and was just as if one had voted for a favorite baseball player.

Adlai Stevenson said in Delaware today that "the biggest surplus in America is the perishable Republican campaign promises of 1952. He called the Republican campaign issue "a piece of ugliness" which he summarizes as "slander, epithets, accusations and communist in government."

The United Nations Political committee, in a rare East-West agreement, has decided to call for secret five-power tlaks on disarmament.

In London, Admiral Earl Mountbatten has been named First Lord of the Admiralty.

In Moscow, the Russians charge that Mrs. Karl Sommerlattee, wife of the second secretary at the American embassy, hit a Russian worker in the face...and pushed another. The Russians demand that the leave their country. The State Department says the Soviet story is not accurate...that Mrs. Sommerlattee and the wife of the assistant naval attache at the embassy, actually were illegally detained and subjected to personal indignities. We have refused to accept the Soviet note and take "a very serious view" of the incident. It evidently occured while the two American women were attempting to photograph Russian children.

A natural caution usually tempers the eulogies of a national leader receives in his lifetime. But some men can be given full dues even before they are consigned to history. One of these is the guest of the United States today.

The work of Konrad Adenauer, Chancellor of the Federal Republic of Germany is not finished. It cannot be until the final pacts incorporating a soverign and re-armed Germany in the Western Treaty organization have been ratified. He comes at a moment when the opposition to the Saar settlement is as strong as any he has encountered.

But enough has happened in Germany and Europe to make caution unnecessary in sizing up Dr. Adenauer. His story is one of the remakrable records of political achievement of our time.

In forty years Germany had been the cause and prosecutor of the two greatest wars men have ever fought. They made Germany the great enemy of all times. Yet today, nine years since the second world war ended, Germany is a welcomed friend. Moreover it is associated in the forward-looking task of creating an integrated Europe, one of the aspirations of centuries, at last coming partially within view.

It is not my function to estimate just how much of this is due to Chancellor Adenauer. Obviously the friendship of German would have been impossible without the wise generosity of the Western victors. And in a democracy no single man is solely responsible for what a country does. But Dr. Adenauer's skill, drive and leadership are unusual and have made him unusually powerful. Few individuals are able to mould their country's thoughts and insiitutions as he has done. He helped inspire and draft the basic law, or consiitution, of the Federal Republic. Thus post-war Germany came to experience democracy after years of a vicious dictatorship. He isnisted on free play for the economic forces by which his country lives, and thus made possible a German recovery that has astounded the world. But best of all, he devoted himself without stint to bringing Germany into the free family of the West as a full working member.

In saying these things I am not unmindful of certain potentialities in Germany, some of them not so latent. I have seen marching Germans that looked like the revival of Nazism. . I have read German speeches that made me shiver. But I believe such things may be the measure of Dr. Adenauer's abilities. It has not been simple always to encourage and build up the constructive elements in German society, and to subdue those that would be destructive. Bigotry and passion can all too easily overpower moderation and wisdom. Under Dr. Adenauer the opposite has happened. All the credit does not belong to him, still one must wonder what Germany and Europe would have been like under a less moderate and less wise leader. The question is timely, for now he is 78 and still no one is in sight to carry on his work when he lays down the burdens of state.

Sir Winston Churchill once asked Dr. Adenauer what he would most wish if he had his choice. He instantly replied: "A strong France". He knew a strong France would not be afraid of Germany, and a weak one would dread Germany's rising power. And he saw that close association with France was essential if Germany was to belong to the West and be secure in that partnership. Today Dr. Adenauer is dealing with a stronger France, and Germany is on the way to the desired partnership. Much of the praise for that - if it is consumated - will go to Premier Mendes-France. But he will have to share it with Dr. Adenauer. The faith of this German in democracy, his vision of an integrated Europe, and his renunciation of Germany's past hame made the change in French opinion possible.

Dr. Adenauer was deputy mayor if Cologne in World War One. He was full mayor by the time Hitler came into power. The Nazis dismissed and then arrested him. He did not spend years in prison, but he put in the remaining time of the Hitler era in obscurity, much of it in his garden. After the war he has remembered and made mayor of Cologne again. Through a curious clumsiness of the British dismissed him as mayor - for incompetence, I believe they said. Fortunately that threw him into national politics. As an eminent Catholic layman he rapidly came to head the Christian Democratic Party and was largely instrumental in the formation of the Republic.

Dr. Adenauer proved to be both statesman and politician. He knew how to maneuver, how to exploit advantage, how to wheedle, how to crack down, how to reconcile. In Bonn he often is called "The Old Fox". Once he was accused in the Bundestag of having ridden roughshod over the opposition in a foreign policy debate. He grinned as he said: "It is not all together true." He can be high-handed, secretive and infinitely patient. But he has used these talents not simply to increase his power but to serve the interests of Germany and Europe as he conceived them.

At the time the French Assembly ditched the European Defense Community it looked as though Dr. Adenauer's work was ruined. Then Sir Anthony Eden pulled the Brussels treaty out of the lower drawer, and the integration of European defense could proceed. That was followed by the French acceptance of the new organization. So now Dr. Adenauer is able to visit this country not only as a grateful friend, bur as a prospective partner. This is the way peace ought to look. The respect which Germany now enjoys is personified in this man. It is understandable that many Europeans consider him the ablest German leader since Bismark. And if his work is successfully finished, that may prove to be an understatement.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a moment with the Word for Today, but first, Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: We were speaking of Chancellor Adenauer and how he may be regarded by future historians. Walter Lipman and John Ruskin once observed: "No saint, no leader, no hero, no prophet, ever did his work cheaply and easily, comfortably and painlessly...and he only is advancing in life whose heart is getting softer, whose blood warmer, whose brain quicker, and whose spirit is entering into living peace.

Good Night and Good Luck.

Thursday Oct 28 1954

This is the news:

The President tonight appealed for the election of a Republican Congress next Tuesday. In a political speech in Washington, Mr. Eisenhower said a Republican Congress is necessary "to keep our government from political fiddling while the world burns".. to keep us from "winding up in a hopeless jam".. He said "confusion can be avoided and steady progress assured only by electing a Republican majority to the Congress." He said the progressive program on which he was elected two years ago needs the reinforcements of 1954 votes.

Earlier, the President sent messages to all the Republican candidates for the Senate whom he will not be able to visit on his four-state air trip tomorrow. He sent his regrets.. and his hopes that he will see them all in the Senate next year.

The President also sent a letter to the campaigning Vice President Nixon telling him: no one could have done more effective work to help regain control of Congress. He said Mr. Nixon has done a tremendous job.

And the Vice President, in Beverly Hills, charged that Adlai

Stevenson--unintentionally--has spread pro-Communist propaganda and insulted the President. Mr. Nixon said Stevenson said recently that our eceonomy has been shrinking while the Soviet economy has been growing fast. Nixon said this "statement of praise for the Soviet economy" damages the cause of the free world. Stevenson's insult to the President--says Nixon--came when Stevenson charged that American prestige has suffered ALL around the world..and that our foreign policy has suffered from [redacted] "mismanagement amounting to genius."

Adlai Stevenson, in New Jersey, said that the President yesterday told a news conference he hadn't heard that the campaign had degenerated. Stevenson said:"I can't blame him for not reading Mr. Nixon's speeches." Stevenson also said the campaign has degenerated to such a point that in New Jersey the Republicans have taken to slandering each other. And Stevenson called the President's recent prediction of a "cold political war" if a Democratic congress is elected.. [redacted] "singularly unrealistic and ungrateful."

More political news: Senator McCarthy in a letter to William Randolph Hearst, Junior, says the Republican party "is bigger than ANY one man." He calls for the election of all republicans except Clifford Case, the Republican candidate for Senator in New Jersey. #. Republican Chairman Langer of the Senate Judiciary Committee says he'll hold a hearing in Washington tomorrow on the controversial Dixon-Yates contract. He disagrees with the President's statement that the ~~public~~ government's interest has been protected. #. Fred Mock, Republican candidate for Senator ~~from~~ FROM OKLAHOMA, ~~Oklahoma~~ says a talk with the President three weeks ago has convinced him that Mr. Eisenhower will support the controversial Bricker amendment restricting the president's treaty-making powers. # and here in New York, Averall Harriman, the Democratic candidate for governor, charged that Republican Candidate Ives and Governor Dewey have been using the technique of the Big Lie against him.. "to repeat the same lie over again, in many variations, despite denials and corrections."

The State Department says that if the Communist regime in North Vietnam forces us to close our consulate in Hanoi the Communists would be guilty of a flagrant violation of the Indo China truce.

American Ambassador to Moscow, Charles E. Bohlen, has called on the Kremlin to stress the seriousness with which we regard the Russian declaration that the wife of a secretary in our embassy is personally unacceptable to Moscow.

Republican Senator Margaret Chase Smith, arriving in Finland after a visit to Moscow, says she would not be surprised if relations between Moscow and Washington would be broken off at any time, by either side. She declined to elaborate.

The leaders of Great Britain's criplling dock strike have decided NOT to call it off..until they get further concessions.

The Royal Swedish Academy of Literature has awarded the 1954 Nobel prize for literature to Ernest Hemingway "for his powerful mastery, which has created a new style in modern literature, as recently demonstrated again in 'The Old Man and the Sea.' Hemingway.. now in Cuba says he's pleased and prodd..but he would have voted for Carl Sandburg.

In Denver, a federal grand jury has returned a six-count indictment charging Maurice E. Travers of the Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers union, with making false statements in denying COMMUNIST Party membership.

The Army, in San Antonio, has upheld the conviction of Corporal Clyde Batchelor for collaborating with the enemy in Korea. His life sentence was SHORTENED to twenty years.

Edward R. Murrow: October 28, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

It appears that something considerably more important than a shake-up of the Secret Police organization is going on behind the Iron Curtain. The most recent example was the release of the American citizen, Herman Field, who had been held for five years on charges that he was a spy. (He is now in a sanitarium near Warsaw.) But the case of Field is not an isolated one. There appears to be a concerted drive to rehabilitate, in some cases posthumously, literally scores of high Communist officials who were imprisoned, executed or otherwise purged during the last five years of Stalin's regime. If Field was not a spy, as was charged at the Slansky trial in Prague, then the whole elaborate pattern of Slansky's supposed connections with an American spy network falls to pieces.

Alex Kendrick reminds me from Vienna that there has been one common factor in all of the [redacted] satellite purge trials of the last five years. There was frequently some mention of an American spy ring or of Zionist agents; but the one thing they all had in common,-the men imprisoned or executed were so-called Titoists, or National Communists, as against Kremlin directed or more accurately, Stalinist Communists. But since Stalin's death Titoism is no longer anathema, and Nationalist Communism is no longer an evil. Yugoslavia and her Communist neighbors, including Russia, have normalized their relations. Anti-Tito propaganda has been halted. Anti-Tito refugee organizations in Moscow, Sofia, Bucharest and Budapest have been dissolved. The new crowd in the Kremlin continues to emphasize more consumer goods and better living standards. The men in the Kremlin are obviously trying to find the broadest possible base for their regime. The effort is being made to supplant the monolithic Stalinist Communism with Nationilist Communism. In short, Stalinism cannot exist without Stalin. It is necessary to try to undo what Stalin and Beria did in their last five years. This means that those purged or imprisoned in Poland, Hungary and Czechoslovakia - that is those that are still alive - must be rehabilitated and made respectable. This process can be clearly seen in Bulgaria and in the Soviet Union itself.

In Bulgaria recently at least a dozen National Communists, that is those who put their country above Moscow - men who had been disgraced and arrested in the purge of '49 - have been released from prison. More than that, they have been restored to the Communist Party Central Committee. One of them was widely known as the Number One Titoist of Bulgaria. Several Jews who were arrested during the anti-Semitic pogrom have also been released. But even more interesting is what's been happening in the Soviet Union itself. There were, of course, no Titoists there, because Stalin had eliminated all real and potential opposition. But there did still exist living links with the revolutionary tradition of Lenin's time. They were the symbols of a nationalist [redacted] non-Stalinist past. They were the old Bolsheviks; most of them disappeared during the great purges of '36 to '38. But during recent months no fewer than nineteen old Bolsheviks have been rehabilitated, re-furbished, in a sense brought back to life, and they have been given high decorations. Thirteen have received the Order of Lenin, and six have been awarded the Order of the Red Banner of Labor. Some of these men had been unheard of since 1936. The list includes Lenin's former secretary - the widow of Sverdlov, who was the first President of the Soviet Union - and a man who once hid Lenin during the Bolshevik Revolution. This process of re-forging ties with the old pre-Stalin past is being vigorously carried out by the Malenkov group for an obvious purpose. They hope to win more popular support in Russia and in the satellites, by offering another proof that Stalinism is dead.

In the satellite countries there aren't many old Bolsheviks going back thirty years. But their old Bolsheviks are the Rajks in Hungary, Slanskys in Czechoslovakia, Kostovs in Poland, and all the others who have been purged during the past five or six years. Now their ghosts are being summoned to aid the present Communist regime, to demonstrate that the Secret Police of the Stalin era framed them, and it is an effort to persuade the peoples of the satellite countries that they can be loyal Czechs, Poles or Hungarians, while at the same time being true Communists. It is an effort by the new men in Moscow to prove in terms of people that the rigid, brutal binding of the satellites to one man in Moscow is in fact being loosened.

This does not indicate any change in Russia's world-wide ambitions, or policies; merely a recognition by the new bosses that they had to loosen the reins on ancient nationalisms, or risk an explosion inside their own empire. [redacted] This may be only a temporary relaxation brought about by internal economic and nationalist pressures. And certainly there is nothing in it to cause any student of Russian affairs to conclude that their goal of world domination has been altered or abandoned.

Russian policy, from time to time, takes off in some strange directions. But the main course remains unchanged: world domination. Percival Wren once remarked that "power is the most intoxicating of all immortal drugs." ~~And no one is more aware of this than~~ the Russians ~~who~~ likewise know what Hazlitt meant when he said:"Want of principle is power. Truth and honesty set a limit to our efforts which impudence and hypocrisy easily overlap."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 28, 1954
7:45-8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

The President tonight appealed for the election of a Republican Congress next Tuesday. In a political speech in Washington, Mr. Eisenhower said a Republican Congress is necessary "to keep our government from political fiddling while the world burns"....to keep us from "winding up in a hopeless jam"...He said "confusion can be avoided and steady progress assured only be electing a Republican majority to the Congress." He said the progressive program on which he was elected two years ago needs the reinforcements of 1954 votes.

Earlier, the President send messages to all the Republican candidates for the Senate whom he will not be able to visit on his four-state air trip tomorrow. He sent his regrets ...and his hopes that he will see them all in the Senate next year.

The President also sent a letter to the campaigning Vice President Nixon telling him: no one could have done more effective work to help regain control of Congress. He said Mr. Nixon has done a tremendous job.

And the Vice President, in Beverly Hills, charged that Adlai Stevenson-- unintentionally -- has spread pro-Communist propaganda and insulted the President. Mr. Nixon said Stevenson said recently that our economy has been shrinking while the Soviet economy has been growing fast. Nixon said this "statement of praise for the Soviet economy" damages the cause of the free world. Stevenson's insult to the President -- says Nixon -- came when Stevenson charged that American prestige has suffered all around the world .. and that our foreign policy has suffered from "mismanagement amounting to genius."

Adlai Stevenson, in New Jersey, said that the President yesterday told a news conference he hadn't heard that the campaign had degenerated. Stevenson said: "I can't blame him for not reading Mr. Nixon's speeches." Stevenson also said the campaign has degenerated to such a point that in New Jersey the Republicans have taken to slandering each other. And Stevenson called the President's recent prediction of a "cold political war" if a Democratic congress is elected...."singularly unrealistic and ungrateful."

More political news: Senator McCarthy in a letter to William Randolph Hearst, Junior, says the Republican party "is bigger than any one man." He calls for the election of all republicans except Clifford Case, the Republican candidate for Senator in New Jersey.

Republican Chairman Langer of the Senate Judiciaty Committee says he'll hold a hearing in Washington tomorrow, on the controversial Dixon-Yates contract. He disagrees with the President's statement that the government's interest has been protected.

Fred Mock, Republican candidate for Senator from Oklahoma, says a talk with the President three weeks ago has convinced him that Mr. Eisenhower will support the controversial Bricker amendment restricting the president's treaty-making powers.

And here in New York, Averell Harriman, the Democratic candidate for governor, charged that Republican Candidate Ives and Governor Dewey have been using the technique of the Big Lie against him..."to repeat the same lie over again, in many variations, despite denials and corrections."

The State Department says that if the Communist regime in North Vietnam forces us to close our consulate in Hanoi, the Communist would be guilty of a flagrant violation of the Indo China truce.

American Ambassador to Moscow, Charles E. Bohlen, has called on the Kremlin to stress the seriousness with which we regard the Russian declaration, that the wife of a secretary in our embassy is personally unacceptable io Moscow.

Republican Senator Margaret Chase Smith, arriving in Finalnd after a visit to Moscow, says she would not be surprised if relations between Moscow and Washington would be broken off at any time, by either side. She declined to elaborate.

The leaders of Great Britain's crippling dock strike have decided NOT to call it off...until they get further concessions.

The Royal Sweedish academy of Literature has awarded the 1954 Nobel prize for literature to Ernest Hemingway "for his powerful mastery, which has created a new style in modern literature, as recently demonstrated again in 'The Old Man of the Sea'. Hemingway ...now in Cuba says he's pleased and proud..but he would have voted for Carl Sandburg.

In Denver, a federal grand jury has returned a six-count indictment charging Maurice E. Travers of the Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers union, with making false statements in denying Communist Party membership.

The Army, in San Antonio, has upheld the conviction of Corporal Batchelor for collaborating with the enemy in Korea. His life sentence was shortened to twenty years.

It appears that something considerably more important than a shake-up of the Secret Police organization is going on behind the Iron Curtain. The most recent example was the release of the American citizen, Herman Field, who had been held for five years on charges that he was a spy. He is now in a sanitarium near Warsaw. But the case of Field is not an isolated one. There appears to be a concentrated drive to rehabilitate, in some cases posthumously, literally scores of high Communist officials who were imprisoned, executed or otherwise purged during the last five years of Stalin's regime. If Field was not a spy, as was charged at the Slansky trial in Prague, then the whole elaborate pattern of Slankky's supposed connections with the American spy network falls to pieces.

Alex Kendrick reminds me from Vienna that there has been one common factor in all of the satellite purge trials of the last five years. There was frequently some mention of an American spy ring or of Zionist agents; but the one thing they all had in common, the men imprisoned or executed were so-called Titoists, or National Communists, as against Kremlin directed or more accurately, Stalinist Communists. But since Stalin's death Titoism is no longer anathema, and Nationalist Communism is no longer an evil. Yugoslavia and her Communist neighbors, including Russia, have normalized their relations. Anti-Tito propaganda has been halted. Anti-Tito refugee organizations in Moscow, Sofia, Bucharest and Budapest have been dissolved. The new crowd in the Kremlin continues to emphasize more consumer goods and better living standards. The men in the Kremlin are obviously trying to find the boradcast possible base for their regime. The effort is being made to supplant the monolothic Stalinist Communism with Nationalist Communism. In short, Stalinism cannot exist without Stalin. It is necessary to try to undo what Stalin and Beria did in their last five years. This means that those purged or imprisoned in Poland, Hungary and Czechoslovakia - that is those that are still alive - must be rehabilitated and me made respectable. This process can be clearly seen in Bulgaria and in the Soviet Union itself.

In Bulgaria recently at least a dozen National Communists, that is those who put their country above Moscow - men who had been disgraced and arrested in the purge of '49 - have been released from prison. More than that, they have been restored to the Communist Party Central Committee. One of them was widely known as as the Number One Titoist of Bulgaria.

Several Jews who were arrested during the anti-Semitic program have also been released. But even more interesting is what's been happening in the Soviet Union itself. There were, of course, no Titoists there, because Stalin had eliminated all real and potential opposition. But there did still exist living links with the revolutionary tradition of Lenin's time. They were the symbols of a nationalist non-Stalinist past. They were the old Bolsheviks; most of them disappeared during the great pruges of '36 to '38. But during recent months, no fewer than nineteen old Bolsheviks have been rehabilitated, re-furbished, in a sense brought back to life, and they have been given high decorations. Thirteen have received the Order of Lenin, and six have been awarded the Order of the Red Banner of Labor. Some of these men have been unheard of since 1936. The list includes Lenin's former secretary - the widow Sverdlov, who was the first President of the Soviet Union - and a man who once hid Lenin during the Bolshevik Revolution. This process of re-forging ties with the old pre-Stalin past is being vigorously carried out by the Malenkov group for an obvious purpose. They hoep to win more popular support in Russia and in the satellites, by offering another proof that Stalinism is dead.

In the sattelite countries there aren't many old Bolsheviks going back thirty years. But their old Bolsheviks are the Rajks in Hungary, Slanskys in Czechoslovakia, Kostovs in Poland, and all the others who have been purged during the past five or six years. Now their ghosts are being summoned to aid the present Communist regime, to demonstrate that the Secret Police of the Stalin era framed them, and it is an effort to persuade the peoples of the satellite countries that they can be loyal Czechs, Poles or Hungarians while at the same time being true Communists. It is an effort by the new men in Moscow to prove in terms of people that the rigid, brutal binding of the satellites to one man in Moscow is in fact being loosened.

This does not indicate any change in Russia's world-wide ambitions, or policies; merely a recognition by the new bosses that they had to loosen the reins on ancient nationalisms, or risk an explosion inside their own empire. This may be only a temporary relaxation brought about by internal economic and nationalist pressures. And certainly there is nothing in it to cause any student of Russian affairs to conclude that their goal of world domination has been altered or abandoned.

Russian policy, from time to time, takes off is some strange directions. But the main course remains unchanged: world domination. Percival Wren once remarked that "power is the most intoxicating of all immortal drugs." The Russians likewise know what Hazlitt meant when he said: "Want of principle is power. Thuth and honesty set a limit to our efforts which impudence and hypocricy ealily overlap."

Good Night and Good Luck.

Friday Oct 29 1954

This is the news —

President Eisenhower made a flying visit today to four crucial states, to help elect a Republican Congress. In Cleveland, Detroit, Louisville and Wilmington, Delaware, the President voiced support of local candidates... urged a big turnout on Tuesday... and said he would be hamstrung by a Congress under Democratic control. There were variations in the talks. At the Cleveland airport, Mr. Eisenhower told a crowd estimated between one and two thousand that the Republicans had rid the Government of corruption and subversion, and he blamed the decline in farm prices on the rigid price support program enacted by the Democrats. The crowd in Cleveland was apparently due to a heavy rain that had been falling there until up to the time of his arrival. In Detroit, the second stop, the sun came out momentarily and Mr. Eisenhower spoke to a much larger crowd, estimated at 30 thousand... in downtown Cadillac Square. Unemployment is a major campaign issue in Michigan, and the President said his Administration's policies had produced a "strong, stable, growing, expanding economy" and higher living standards. And he ridiculed what he called "the Democratic prophets of doom" who had predicted a depression. The President said that under the Democrats the only

Mr. Eisenhower said that when the Republicans took over in Washington they were "tired of hearing the word 'Communist', whenever it was mentioned, being called a Red herring." [redacted] said, The small turnout in Cleveland was apparently due to a heavy rain that had been falling there almost up to the time of the President's arrival.

In Detroit, the second stop, [redacted] the sun came out momentarily and Mr. Eisenhower spoke to a much larger crowd... estimated at 50-thousand... in downtown Cadillac Square. Unemployment is a major campaign issue in Michigan, and the President said his Administration's policies had produced a "strong, stable, growing, expanding economy" and higher living [redacted] standards. And he ridiculed what he called "the Democratic prophets of doom" who had predicted a depression. The President said that under the Democrats the only really prosperous years had been war years. He said the Republicans want no war prosperity.

At the third stop, Louisville, the President told an enthusiastic crowd at the airport that unemployment fell about 360-thousand last month. "Unemployment," he said, "is still going down and employment is still going up." And touching on the international situation, he said that if Western Europe ever fell to the Communists, the threat to the United States would be very grave indeed.

At Wilmington, Delaware, Mr. Eisenhower declared: "We are on the march... the crusade is still going on." And he said the vast majority of the American people still feel the way they did in 1952.

The President flew BACK to Washington TONIGHT.

Stephen Mitchell, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, today accused the President of waging a campaign of "fear and smear", in a desperate bid for election of a Republican Congress. Mitchell referred specifically to Mr. Eisenhower's "red herring" remark in Cleveland, which he termed "an improper and shameful thing." He said that until now Vice President Nixon had been the leader of what he called the "smear effort". But today, he said, "President Eisenhower himself joined in the Red smear in his airport speeches. It looks to me," Mitchell said, "as though Mr. Eisenhower had concluded the Republican record isn't good enough... that its popularity isn't what it was cracked up to be."

Here in New York City, Adlai Stevenson accused New York Republicans of resorting to "low blows" in their attacks on Averell Harriman, the Democratic candidate for governor. And this "ugliness", Stevenson said, is not being confined to the state of New York.

The weatherman has come up with a forecast for Election Day. He predicts that over most of the country it will be fair and cool. The only exception is New England and parts of New York State, where the prediction is rain.

The Agriculture Department announced today that the prices farmers received for livestock and produce fell almost 2 percent in the month ending October 15th. The decline was caused by a seasonal dip in hog prices, plus a "sharper than usual" drop in the price of citrus fruits. In the same period, the prices of those things which farmers buy dropped one-third of one percent.

Senator McCarthy predicted today that the Senate will vote to censure him when it meets November 8th... because, he said, "very few" members will consider the evidence with an open mind. A special Senate committee, headed by Republican Senator Watkins of Utah, has recommended that McCarthy be censured for contempt of a special elections subcommittee in 1952, for using vulgar language in denouncing Republican Senator Hendrickson, a member of the subcommittee, and for abusing Brigadier General Ralph W. Zwicker in the course of his investigation of Major Irving Peress.

McCarthy today made public a telegram to Senator Watkins, asking Watkins to testify before his investigations subcommittee on November 15th, regarding the Peress case. He wants to ask the Utah senator, what he knows about the promotion of Peress, an Army dentist, whom McCarthy has called "a Fifth Amendment Communist."

A federal judge today found Clyde Powell, the former F.H.A. official, guilty of criminal contempt of court, and sentenced him to a year's imprisonment. Powell had refused... on grounds of the Fifth Amendment... to answer questions put to him by a federal grand jury, investigating the housing scandals.

Housing Administrator Albert Cole announced today, that in order to speed the removal of race barriers, the Government henceforth will refuse federal aid to cities which "default on their obligations to minority citizens." ~~A national advisory conference on minority housing will be~~ called in December,... ~~to develop "practical, positive lines of continuing action", for providing minority families with them equal housing opportunities.~~

A Senate committee heard more testimony today on the controversial Dixon-Yates contract. Gordon Clapp, former chairman of the Tennessee Valley Authority, criticized the contract as "a bad financial arrangement... said it is unsound from an engineering viewpoint. And he said he regards the contract as "an effort to squeeze T.V.A. into submission to the private utilities, so they can in the future dictate their own terms." Democratic Senator Kefauver told the committee that only two members of the Atomic Energy Commission approved the contract. The commission has five members.

In a formal ceremony in Washington, Secretary of State Dulles and Chancellor Adenauer today signed a treaty of friendship, commerce and navigation between the United States and West Germany. ~~The State Department~~ described the signing as "another step toward improving the economic ~~welfare and strength of the European Community.~~"

Chancellor Adenauer addressed the National Press Club, and said that eventually there should be a non-aggression pact between East and West. But first, he said, the anti-Communist countries must secure their freedom by further bolstering their military and economic might. Adenauer's talk climaxed two days of conferences with American leaders. He will fly back to Germany Monday for the funeral of Hermann Ehlers, speaker of the lower house of the West German parliament. Ehlers, who was considered Adenauer's likely successor, died last night of a heart attack.

The Army announced today that "several batteries" of its new artillery rocket... capable of mounting an atomic warhead... will be sent to Europe in the next few months. The Army said it is "another step to provide the most effective weapons for the defense of the free world."

President Tubman of Liberia told the United Nations General Assembly today that lasting peace must be based on the inherent rights of all men to develop themselves without molestation. And if the United Nations is to succeed, he said, member nations must be willing to surrender a portion of their sovereignty.

Egypt today dissolved the Moslem Brotherhood... which was implicated in the attempt to assassinate Premier Nasser, three days ago. More than 500 members of the brotherhood have been arrested.

And F.B.I. agents in New York and Chicago, have arrested nine more members of the Puerto Rican Nationalist Party, on charges of conspiring to overthrow the government.

Edward R. Murrow: October 29, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

In the midst of all the politics, it is not amiss to point out that the future of this country is going to be considerably affected by other things than the outcome of Tuesday's election. One of these is the fulfilment of the agreements making the German Republic an armed member of the Western Alliance. Dr. Adenauer is here talking over the problems to be faced after ratification. At the same time Germany's acceptance of its new role is in more doubt than for a long time. This is because of the dislike of the concessions the German Chancellor made in the Saar. Judges on the spot hopefully report that Dr. Adenauer's majority will stand up when it comes to ratification. But they do not deny an element of uncertainty.

In Paris Premier Mendes-France is enlarging his government to include the Socialists, whose support he needs for his financial and social reforms. The Socialists want negotiations with the Soviet Union over Germany, as do the de Gaullists. They want them now, before ratification. Mendes-France is pledged not to conduct them till after ratification, without the consent of the other Western powers. So he must do some tight-rope walking. Technically he is committed both ways, to parallel negotiations, and to no negotiations before ratification. "We can conduct the two kinds of negotiations in parallel" he told the Assembly on October seventh. He was referring to negotiations for disarmament and for the re-armament of Germany. He assured the Assembly there was no risk in going ahead with German re-armament if it was proclaimed at the same time that France was ready to talk. "We are ready to talk in any case" he said, "and we proclaim this."

Mendes-France has a way to negotiate and not to negotiate without being caught off base. David Schoenbrun from Paris points out to me that he can talk through diplomatic channels, that is, through the French Ambassador in Moscow and the Soviet Ambassador in Paris, without violating his pledge. Diplomatic talks would not be parallel negotiations. What has been ruled out is a four-power conference on Germany before ratification. This Mendes-France himself is against. So the outlook for ratification is ~~excellent.~~ better than fair.

But if we are to be realistic we must no longer think of ratification by the French Assembly as the end of the road. Suppose France ratified before Italy did. Then parallel negotiations would be permissible before Italy acted. After the French Assembly ratified there could be talks with the Kremlin before the upper chamber, the French Council of State, also ratified. Everybody might ratify and a conference over Germany be held before the final act of depositing the ratifications. So there are several devices by which parallel negotiations are possible without Mendes-France breaking his word.

But even if the agreements are sincerely and completely accepted, the end is by no means in sight. Mendes-France told the Assembly: "You know, and the Soviet Union knows, that it will take time - two or three years, doubtless - before the London decisions regarding German re-armament come into effect. It is not too optimistic to hope that during this period negotiations will have progressed, and perhaps been completed, on the subject of disarmament and other great international questions."

In other words, two to three years of negotiation are due before it will be decided whether to go ahead with German re-armament or to modify it. So the ratification of that agreement, even if and when it comes, will not be the end of something, it will be the beginning of something. And what it begins will be the most exacting diplomatic test the West has undergone since the war. The West's bargaining position will be stronger with a ratified agreement on Germany. But more than that cannot now be promised.

The prospect of a period of sustained peace between Germany and France is a very real one at the moment. Skeptics would probably agree with Patrick Henry when he said:"I know of no way of judging the future but by the past." But the optimists would undoubtedly prefer to go along with Thomas Jefferson and his conclusion that "the dreams of the future are better than the history of the past."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 29, 1954
7:45--8:00 P.M., EST

This is the news:

President Eisenhower made a flying visit today to four crucial states, to help elect a Republican Congress. In Cleveland, Detroit, Louisville, and Wilmington, Delaware, the President voiced support of local candidates... urged a big turnout on Tuesday...and said he would be hamstrung by a Congress under Democratic control. There were variations in the talks. At the Cleveland airport, Mr. Eisenhower told a crowd estimated between one and two thousand, that the Republicans had rid the Government of corruption and subversion, and he blamed the decline in farm prices on the rigid price support program enacted ty the Democrats.

Mr. Eisenhower said that when the Republicans took over in Washington they were "tired of hearing the word 'Communist', whenever it was mentioned, being called a Red herring." The small turnout in Cleveland was apparently due to a heavy rain that had been falling there alsmost up to the time of the President's arrival. In Detroit, the second stop, the sun came out momentarily and Mr. Eisenhower spoke to a much larger crowd...estimated at 50-thousand...in downtown Cadillac Square. Unemployment is a major campaign issue in Michigan, and the President said his Administration's policies had produced a "strong, stable, growing, expanding economy" and higher living standards. And he ridiculed what he called "the Democratic prophets of doom" who had predicted a depression. The President said that under the Democrats the only really prosperous years had been war years. He said the Republicans want no war poosperity.

At the third stop, Louisville, the President told an enthusiastic crowd at the air port that unemploymnet fell about 360-thousand last month. "Unemployment," he said, "is still going down and employment is still going up." And touching on the international situation, he said, that if Western Europe ever fell to the Communists, the threat to the United States would be very grave indeed.

At Wilmington, Delaware, Mr. Eisenhower declared: "We are on the march... the crusade is still going on." And he said the vast majority of the American people still feel the way they did in 1952.

The President flew back to Washington tonight.

Stephen Mitchell, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, today accused the President of waging a campaign of "fear and smear", in a desperate bid for election of a Republican Congress. Mitchell referred specifically to Mr. Eisenhower's "red herring" remark in Cleveland, which he termed "an improper and shameful thing." He said that until now Vice President Nixon has been the leader of what he called the "smear effort". But today, he said, "President Eisenhower himself joined in the Red smear in his airport speeches. It looks to me," Mitchell said, "as though Mr. Eisenhower had concluded the Republican record isn't good enough...that its popularity isn't what it was cracked up to be."

Here in New York City, Adlai Stevenson accused New York Republicans of resorting to "low blows" in their attacks on Averall Harriman, the Democratic candidate for governor. And this "ufliness", Stevenson said, is not being confined to the state of New York.

The Agriculture Department announced today that the prices farmers received for livestock and produce fell almost 2 percent in the month ending October 15th. The decline was caused by a seasonal dip in hog prices, plus a "sharper than usual" drop in the price of citrus fruits. In the same period, the prices of those things which farmers buy dropped one third of one percent.

Senator McCarthy predicted today that the Senate will vote to censure him when it meets November 8th...because, he said, very few members will consider the evidence with an open mind.

McCarthy today made public a telegram to Senator Watkins, asking Watkins to testify before his investigations subcommittee on November 15th regarding the Prress case. He wants to ask the Utah senator what he knows about the promotion of Peress, an Army dentist, whom McCarthy has called "a Fifth Amendment Communist."

A federal judge today found Clyde Powell, the former F.H.A. official, guilty of criminal contempt of court and sentenced him to a year's imprisonment. Powell had refused...on grounds of the Fifth Amendment...to answer questions put to him ba a federal grand jury investigating the housing acandals.

Housing administrator Albert Cole announced today that in order to speed the removal of race barriers, the Government henceforth will refuse federal aid to cities which "default on their obligations to minority citizens."

A senate committee heard more testimony today on the controversial Dixon-Yates contract. Gordon Clapp, former chairman of the Tennessee Valley Authority, criticized the contract as "a bad financial arrangement...said it is unsound from tn engineering viewpoint. And he said he regards the contract as "an effort to squeeze T.V.A. into submission to the private utilities, so they can in the future dictate their own terms." Democratic Senator Kefauver told the committee that only two members of the Atomic Energy Commission approved the contract. The commission has five members.

In a formal ceremony in Washington, Secretary of State Dulles and Chancellor Adenauer today signed a treaty of friendship, commerce and navigation between the United States and West Germany.

Chancellor Adenauer addressed the National Press Club, and said that eventually there should be a non-aggression pact between West and East. But first, he said, the anti-Communist countries must secure their freedom by further bolstering their military and economic might. Adenauer's talk climaxed two days of conferences with American leaders. He will fly back to Germany Monday for the funeral of Hermann Ehlers, speaker of the lower house of the West German parliamnet. Ehlers, who was considered Adenauer's likely successor, died last night of a heart attack.

The Army announced today that "several batteries" of its new artillery rocket...capable of mounting an atomic warhead...will be sent to Europe in the next few months. The Army said it is "another step to provide the most effective weapons for the defense of the free world."

F.B.I. agents in New York and Chicago have arrested nine more members of the Puerto Rican Nationalist Party, on charges of conspiring to overthrow the government.

In the midst of all the politics, it is not amiss to point out that the future of this country is going to be considerabby affected by other things than the outcome of Tuesday's election. One of these is the fulfilment of the agreements making the German Republic an armed member of the Western Alliance. Dr. Adenauer is here talking over the problems to be faced after ratification. At the same time Germany's acceptance of its new role is in more doubt than for a long time. This is because of the dislike of the concessions the German Chancellor made in the Saar. Judges on the spot hopefully report that Dr. Adenauer's majority will stand up when it comes to ratification. But they do not deny an element of uncertainty.

In Paris Premier Mendes-France is enlarging his government to include the Socialists, whose support he needs hor his financeal and social reforms. The Socialists want negotiations with the Soviet Union over Germany, as do the De Gaullists. They want them now, before ratification. Mendes-France is pledged not to conduct them till after ratification, without the consent of the other Western powers. So he must do some tight-rope walking. Technically he is committed both ways, to parallel negotiations, and to no negotiations before ratification. "We can conduct the two kinds of negotiations in parallel" he told the Assembly on October seventh. He was referring to negotiations for disarmament and for the re-armament of Germany. He assured the Assembly there was no risk in going ahead with German re-armament if it was proclaimed at the same time that France was ready to talk. "We are ready to talk in any case" he said, "and to proclaim this."

Mendes-France has a way to negotiate and not to negotiate without bein cought off base. David Schoenbrun from Paris points out to me that he can talk through diplomatic channels, that is through the French Ambassador in Moscow and the Soviet Ambassador in Paris, without violating his pledge. Diplomatic talks would not be parallel negotiations. What has been ruled out is a four-power conference on Germany before ratification. This Mendes-France himself is against. So the outlook for ratification is better than fair.

But if we are to be realistic we must no longer think of ratification by the French Assembly as the end of the road. Suppose France ratified before Italy did. Then parallel negotiations would be permissible before Italy acted. After the French Assembly ratified there could be talks with the Kremlin before the upper chamber, the French Council of State, also ratified. Everybody might ratify and a conference over Germany be held before the final act of depositing the ratifications. So there are several devices by which parrllel negotiations are possible without Mendes-France breaking his word.

But even if the agreements are sincerely and completely accepted, the end is by no means in sight. Mendes-France told the Assembly: "You know, and the Soviet Union knows, that it will take time - two or three years, doubtless - before the London decisions regarding German re-armament come into effect. It is not to optimistic to hope that during this period negotiations will have progressed, and perhaps been completed, on the subject of disarmament and other great international questions."

In other words, two to three years of negotiations are due, before it will be decided whether to go ahead with German re-armament or to modify it. So the ratification of that agreement, even if and when it comes, will not be the end of something, it will be the beginning of something. And what it begins will be the most exacting diplomatic test the West has undergone since the war. The West's bargaining position will be stronger with a ratified agreement on Germany. But more than that cannot now be promised.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a moment with the Word for today. But first, Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: The prospect of a sustained peace between Germany and France is a very real one at the moment. Skeptics would probably agree with Patrick Henry when he said: "I know of no way of judging the future but by the past." But the optimists would undoubtedly prefer to go along with Thomas Jefferson and his conclusions that "the dreams of the future are better than the history of the past."

Good Night and Good Luck.

Monday November 1, 1954

This is the news:

An estimated 40 to 45 million persons are expected to vote tomorrow. The weathermen predict generally fair weather for most of the country.. And it will be chilly. Tonight, the President and the Vice President and Adlai Stevenson will make their final appeals to the voters. And on many radio and television stations you will hear candidates urging you to vote. Vice President Nixon today sent a statment to newspapers saying that "the fanatic left-wing clique of the Democratic party has conducted a dishonest campaign"...based on the "Big Lie" technique. He said: "They started by questioning the President's honesty. They are ending it by slyly impugning his patriotism." Nixon referred specifically to a Saturday speech by Adlai Stevenson in which Stevenson said that the President--by repeating the Republican argument that Democrats never brought the country prosperity except through war--was echoing Communist propaganda. Nixon called the Stevenson speech "one of the most vicious, scurrilous attacks ever made by a major political figure on the President of the United States." And White House News Secretary Hagerty told reporters he thought the Stevenson charge was "ridiculous."

Defense Secretary Wilson said today that military authorities are ending censorship in Korea. Wilson said that because of the stabilized military situation...and because we have reduced our forces in Korea, it is no longer necessary to censor news there. And the Defense Department disclosed today that 8th army headquarters will soon move from Korea to Japan. General Maxwell Taylor will become commander of all American ground forces in the Orient..that means Japan, Okinawa and Korea. American forces have been cut fifty per cent in the Far East since the Administration "new look" military policy was adopted. At peak strength last year we had ten [redacted] combat divisions [redacted] Now we have five in Korea.

Nine Chinese Communist bombers today attacked the Chinese Nationalist Tachen islands..200 miles north of Formosa. One plane was shot down. And at least five civilians were killed. The Peiping radio says Nationalist planes bombed the mainland opposite Formosa. The Communists claim they shot down two of the six attacking planes.

France today formally ended its 300-year foothold in India by handing over four small settlements to the New Delhi government.

In North Africa, at least 24 persons were killed over the week-end as Arab Nationalists and terrorists attacked more than thirty points in French North Africa.

The White House says American voluntary relief agencies are actively co-operating with Italian authorities in giving "every possible assistance" to the disaster areas around Salerno...hit by floods and landslides.

The people of Cuba today voted for president..after the last-minute withdrawal of Ramon Grau San Martin. The 72-year-old former President called the election a farce and asked voters to boycott the polls. President Batista, now unopposed for re-election, said Grau withdrew because he knew he could not win.

At the United Nations today, American Delegate Charles H. Mahoney, a Detroit insurance man, urged the U.N. members to provide military equipment, supplies and services to countries willing to join in fighting aggression but unable to finance their own force. Mahoney, the first Negro to represent us on the U.N's main political committee, said the U.N.'s effort in Korea would have received more universal support contributing members had not been required to equip their own forces.

And East Germany's Foreign minister..Dr. Walter Hallstein..said today that his country will not talk directly with the Russians on German reunification. He said the Bonn government would deal with Moscow only through the western powers.

The Navy says that more than 200 planes and 25 surface ships have been unable to find a navy Super-Constallation presumed to have gone down in the Atlantic with 42 persons aboard. The search will be continued tonight.

And the F.B.I. says its agents here in New York have arrested Martha Stone, age 44, who is identified as an underground leader of the Communist party. She disappeared from her home in Newark, New Jersey, in 1951. The F.BI. says her movements have been secret since then.

Edward R. Murrow: November 1, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

Tomorrow is election day. In a few minutes we will venture to offer advice as to what you should do on this day when the individual is sovereign. But first of all it might be worthwhile to make the effort to move backward through rivers of oratory and jungles of film, to September 14th. On that quickly forgotten day the Chairmen of the two National Committees solemnly pledged that in this election campaign, no one would be beastly to anybody else. It was to be a clean high-level, no-name-calling campaign - no personal vilification, no character defamation; neither Republican nor Democrat would engage in scurrilous attack, no malicious or unfounded accusations. It was, in truth, a document of noble sentiment, devoid of realism, ignoring political history. Republican Chairman Hall called it "an admirable pledge; it should be seriously and earnestly supported". Democratic Chairman Mitchell also signed the pledge; said he was "proud to conform to it." That was seven weeks ago.

You know what has happened since then. The President has been accused of being "thoughtless, careless", and even of putting out "standard Communist propaganda." The leader of the Democratic Party has been called "hysterical, scurrilous and vicious"; "soft on Communists"; "operating at a ward heeler level". Candidates have been called foreign agents. The Vice President "a liar", "a slanderer", "a McCarthy in a white collar." The pledge didn't take.

The vote is predicted as being "small". I could quote you figures for the rest of this program, proving that a small turn-out will operate to the disadvantage of the other Party. If you are Republican or Democrat, you can find support for your thesis in the figures of past elections.

Whatever the total turn-out, and whatever its effect may be, it will be small when compared to the figures chalked up in other nations where free men can still vote. Sir Norman Angell remarked several years ago: "Before men possessed the right to vote they were ready to die for it. Now when they've got it, a large proportion do not use it, especially if it rains on election day."

The biggest turn-out we ever had in this country was for the Presidential election in 1940, when Wendell Willkie was running against Franklin Roosevelt. At that time sixty-three percent of those who were eligible voted. The off year elections, such as this one, show a forty-two percent turn-out in 1950; thirty-eight percent in '46; thirty-four percent in '42. Compare those figures with these: In the last election in Italy, ninety-two percent of all the voters eligible went to the polls. In Britain the figure was seventy-six percent. And in both France and South Korea, ninety percent voted. It would seem that the right to vote is more completely appreciated in countries where that right has recently been lost, or placed in great danger. If we turn out only forty-two percent of the vote tomorrow, as we did in 1950, the remaining fifty-eight percent will have no right to complain, regardless of the outcome.

Now for certain suggestions regarding the best method for surviving the elections in good health, and reasonable spirits - no matter who wins. These come, not from this reporter but a most reputable and non-partisan organization, namely the Brooklyn Chapter of the American Red Cross. Things may be a little different in Brooklyn than elsewhere, for reference is made to: "The highly exciteable electorate of our community." In essence the advice consists of patience, fortitude, sobriety and a relaxed attitude. The Red Cross says, rather sternly, "avoid arguments like a plague." "Use placards, campaign pins and similar items for their intended purposes, and not as weapons. And above all, let the election officials and policemen handle disputes at the polling places. Taking matters into one's own hands can lead to nasty fights and injuries." But the Red Cross predicts that living will become most hazardous after the polls close. The advice here is: "control your temper and keep your pulse down as the results come in. Win or lose, each voter has to remain healthy for the rest of the year."

Now for some specific advice for those who celebrate or mourn. "While listening to returns, or reading about them, remain firmly seated. You don't want to fall out of your chair in the excitement, and suffer a fracture or severe sprain. Don't jump for joy - you might sprain your ankle. Be careful at parties; do your yelling when you're not eating, so you don't bite your ~~tongue~~ tongue, or hand, in the excitement. Be careful when slapping a fellow celebrant on the back, shoulder or head. This could cause bruises, contusions, or unexpectedly painful retaliation. It could also cause the man to swallow his false teeth, or some food, with a suddenness that leads to choking. Women should wear comfortable, low heels for both voting and celebrating." I don't quite understand that one, but that's what the Red Cross says. Also: "There should be no snake dances in subways, or on streets where traffic has not been ~~cut~~ shut off. People with bonfires and flares on the brain should remember that both are dangerous." "Losers should keep their tempers in check; fighting will get them nowhere except to emergency wards. Drowning either sorrows or joys should be avoided. Intoxication is an invitation to injury. Also it would be a good idea to make sure there is a Red Cross-trained first aider around when you listen to the returns." There endeth election day advice from the Red Cross.

No one knows, or is ever likely to know precisely what this campaign cost, but it was many years ago - and everything costs more now - that Will Rogers said: "Politics has got so expensive that it takes a lot of money even to get beat with." Happy election day to you, one and all.

While ~~the election results may change,~~ the basics of politics it would seem, remain pretty much the same through the years. 26 years ago, Will Rogers wrote:"The promising season ends on Tuesday and that same night the alibi season opens. To show you what campaign promises amount to, can you remember back a few weeks ago when the promise was made on both sides that the campaign was to be run on a high plane. The campaign ends Tuesday, but it will take two generations to sweep up the dirt."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

Oates -

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 1, 1954
7:45--8:00 P.M.

This is the news:

An estimated 40 to 45 million persons are expected to vote tomorrow. The weathermen predict generally fair weather for most of the country... And it will be chilly. Tonight, the President and the Vice President and Adlai Stevenson will make their final appeals to the voters. And on many radio and television stations you will hear candidates urging you to vote. Vice President Nixon today sent a statement to newspapers saying that "the fanatical left-wing clique of the Democratic party, has conducted a dishonest campaign" ..based on the "Big Lie" technique. He said: "They started by questioning the President's honesty. They are ending it by slyly impugning his patriotism." Nixon referred specifically to a Saturday speech by Adlai Stevenson in which Stevenson said that the President (by repeating the Republican argument that Democrats never brought the country prosperity except through war) was echoing Communist propaganda. Nixon called the Stevenson speech "one of the most vicious, scurrilous attacks ever made by a major political figure on the President of the United States." And White House News Secretary Hagerty told reporters he thought the Stevenson charge was "ridiculous."

Defense Secretary Wilson said today that military authorities are ending censorship in Korea. Wilson said that because of the stabilized military situation, and because we have reduced our forces in Korea, it is no longer necessary to censor news there. And the Defense Department disclosed today that the 8th Army headquarters will soon move from Korea to Japan. General Maxwell Taylor will cebome commander or all American ground forces in the Orient...that means Japan, Okinawa, and Korea. American ground forces have been cut fifty per cent in the Far East since the Administration "new look" military policy was adopted. At peak strength last year we had ten combat divisions. Now we have five in Korea.

Nine Chinese Communist bombers today attacked the Chinese Nationalist Tachen Islands...200 miles north of Formosa. One plane was shot down. And at least five civilians were killed. The Peiping radio says Nationalist planes bombed the mainland opposite Formosa. The Communists claim they shot down two of the six attacking planes.

France today formally ended its 300-year old foothold in India by handing over four small settlements to the New Delhi government.

In North Africa, at least 24 persons were killed over the week-end as Arab Nationalists and terrorists attacked more than thirty points in French North Africa.

The White House says American voluntary relief agencies are actively co-operating with Italian authorities in giving "every possible assistance" to the disaster areas around Salerno..hit by floods and landslides.

The people of Cuba voted for president today..after the last-minute withdrawal of Ramon Grau San Martin. The 72-year-old former president called the election a farce and asked voters to boycott the polls. President Batista, now unapposed for re-election, said Grau withdrew because he knew he could not win.

At the United Nations today, American Delegate Charles H. Mahoney, a Detroit insurance man, urged the U.N. members to provide military equipment, supplies and services to countries willing to join in fighting aggression but unable to finance their own force. Mahoney, the first Negro to represent us on the U.N.'s main political committee said the U.N.'s effort in Korea would have received more universal supoort if contributing members had not been required to equip their own forces.

And East Germany's Foreign minister..Dr. Walter Hallstein..said today that his country will not talk directly with the Russians on German reunification. He said the Bonn governemnt would deal with Moscow only trrough the western powers.

The Navy says that more than 200 planes and 25 surface ships have been unable to find a navy Super-Constellation presumed to have gone down in the Atlantic with 42 persons aboard. The search will be continued tonight.

And the F.B.I. says its agents here in New York have arrested Martha Stone, age 44, who is identified as an undergrownd leader of the Communist party. She disappeared from her home in Newark, New Jersey, in 1951, The F.B.I. says her movements have been secret since then.

Tomorrow is election day. In a few moments we will venture to offer advice as to what you should do on this day when the individual is soverign. But first of all it might be worthwhile to make the effort to move backward through rivers of oratory and jungles of film to September 14th. On that quickly forgotten day the chairmen of the two National Committees solemnly pledged that in this election campaign, no one would be beastly to anybody else. It was to ba a clean , high-level, no-name-calling campaign - no personal vilification, no character defamation; neither Republican nor Democrat would engage in scurrilous attack, no malicious or unfounded accusations. It was, in truth, a document of noble sentiment, devoid of realism, ignoring political history. Republican Chairman Hall called it "an admirable pledge; it should be seriously and earnestly supported." Democratic Chairman Mitchell also signed the pledge; said he was "proud to conform to it." That was seven weeks ago.

You know what has happened since then. The President has been accused of being "thoughtless, careless," and even of putting out "standard Communist propaganda." The leader of the Democratic party has been called "hysterical, scurrilous and vicious"; "soft on Communists"; "operating at a ward heeler level." Candidates have been called foreign agents. The Vice president "a liar", "a slanderer", "a McCarthy in a white collar." The pledge didn't take.

The vote is predicted as being "small". I could quote you figures for the rest of this program, proving that a small turn-out will operate to the disadvantage of the other party. If you are a Republican or Democrat, you can find support for your thesis in the figures of past elections.

Whatever the total turn-out, and whatever its effect may be, it will be small when compared to the figures chalked up in other nations where free men can still vote. Sir Norman Angell remarked several years ago: "Before men possessed the right to vote they were ready to die for it. Now when they'we got it, a large proportion do not use it, especially if it rains on election day."

The biggest turn-out we ever had in this country was for the Presidential election in 1940, when Wendell Wilkie was running against Franklin Roosevelt. At that time sixty-three percent of those who were eleigible voted. The off year elections, such as this one, show a forty-two percent turn-out in 1950; thirty-eight percent in '46; thirty-four percent in '42. Compare these figures with these: In the last election in Italy, ninety-two percent of all the voters elegible went to the polls. In Britain the figure was seventy-six percent. And in both France and South Korea, ninety percent voted. It would seem that the right to vote is more completely appreciated in countries where that right has recently been lost, or placed in danger. If we turn out only forty-two percent of the vote tomorrow, as we did in 1950, then the remaining fifty-eight percent will have no right to complain, regardless of the outcome.

Now for certain suggestions regarding the best method of surviving the elections in good health, and reasonable spirits - no matter who wins. These come, not from this reporter but a most reputible and non-partisan organization, namely the Brooklyn Chapter of the American Red Cross. Things may be a little different in Brooklyn than elsewhere, for reference is made to "The highly excitable electorate of our community." In essence the advice consists of patience, fortitude, sobriety and a relaxed attitude. The Red Cross says, rather sternly, "avoid arguments like a plague." "Use placards, campaign pins and similar items for their intended purposes, and not as weapons. And above all, let the election officials and policement handle disputes at the polling places. Taking matters into one's own hands can lead to nasty fights and injuries." But the Red Cross predicts that living will become most hazardous after the polls close. The advice here is:"control your temper and keep your pulse down as the results come in. Win or lose, each voter has to remain healthy for the rest of the year. "

Now for some specific advice for those who celebrate or mourn. "While listening to returns, or reading about them, remain firmly seated. You don't want to fall out of your chair in the excitement, and suffer a fracture or severe sprains. Don't jump for joy - you might sprain your ankle. Be careful at parties; do your yelling when you're not eating, so you don't bite your tongue or hand in the excitement. Be careful when slapping a fellow celebrant on the back, shoulder or head. This could cause bruises, contusions, or unexpectely painful retaliation. It could also cause the man to swallow his false teeth, or some food, with a suddenness that leads to choking. Women should wear comfortable, low heels for both voting and celebrating." I don't quite understand that one, tut that's what the Red Cross says. Also: "There should be no snake dances in subways, or on streets where traffic has not been shut off. People with bonfires and flares on the brain should remember that both are dangerous." "Loosers should keep their tempers in check; fighting will get them nowhere except to emergency wards. Drowning either sorrows or joys should be avoided. Intoxication is an invitation to injury. Also it would be a good idea to make sure there is a Red Cross-trained first aider around when you listen to the returns." Here endeth the election day advice from the Red Cross.

No one knows, or is ever likely to know precisely what this campaign cost, but it was many years ago- and everything costs more now - that Will Rogers said:"Politics has gotso expensive that it takes a lot of money even to get beat with." Happy election day to you, one and all.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a minute with the Word for Today. But first, Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: The basics of politics, it would seem, remain pretty much the same through the years. 26 years ago, Will Rogers wrote: The promising season ends on Tuesday and the same night the alibi season opens. To show you what campaign promises amount to, can youremember back a few weeks ago when the promise was made on both sides that the campaign would be run on a high plane. The campaign ends Tuesday, but it will take two generations to sweep up the dirt.

Good Night and Good Luck.

This Tuesday Nov 2, 1954

Scattered Election Returns.

In Kentucky, 35 per cent of the votes have now been counted in the normally Republican Lousiville-Jefferson County district. They show former Vice President Barkley with 26-thousand 500 votes to 25-thousand 800 for Republican Senator Cooper. Two years ago Senator Cooper won this district by 25-thousand votes.

And in the same district, Republican Representative Robsion is now trailing his Democratic opponent..Harrison M. Robertson by a few hundred votes. Two years ago the Republican won by ~~10~~ 14-thousand votes.

All through the day reports from various sections of the country reported heavy voting..despite campaign fears that voters might not be interested. Starting here in New York, the latest reports give us this summary: The New York state vote is described as "surprising." Despite rain and snow in up-state counties nearly half of the eligible voters were believed to have marked their ballots by noon. The voting was especially heavy in New York City's five boroughs. [They are normally Democratic.] But the Republicans found encouragement in an early turnout in the rural areas. ~~Senator Ives, the Republican candidate for Senator,~~ Governor described it this way: "Its Democratic weather but its good for Republicans, too."

Across the river in New Jersey early reports indicated a heavier turnout in normally Democratic counties than were reported from Republican counties.

Pennsylvania reports indicate a very heavy vote in the two big cities..Pittsburgh and Philadelphia. And despite snow and a chilling rain the experts were predicting a very heavy state vote.

~~Connecticut voters, too, showed no signs of the "apathy" we heard~~ so much about during the campaign. Community after community reported that during the morning and ~~early afternoon hours the voting equalled or~~ came close to the record-breaking off-year election of 1950.

Kentucky ~~reports a heavy turnout and the Democrats found~~ something ~~to cheer about when a snowfall, up to [illegible] inches, kept the traditionally Republican southeastern area of the state. But even there voting was generally heavy.~~

Ohio reports a heavy vote in its major cities..Cleveland, Columbus and Cincinnati.

In Illinois, we're told that the Chicago vote has been lighter than expected. But the usually-Republican suburban area vote is described as "exceedingly large." The political experts indicate that they expect the vote in Chicago, usually heavily Democratic, to be much less than in the record off-year.

~~In Detroit, too, the heaviest voting seems to be on the outskirts, which are normally Republican. In Michigan, too, despite raw weather and snowfall in upstate counties there were indications of a new state-wide off-year voting record.~~

~~Iowa voters turned out in apparently heavy numbers. Reports from Idaho speak of "vast numbers" voting early. Extremely heavy voting is reported from Las Vegas and the Reno areas which comprise about 70 per cent of Nevada's registered votes.~~

In Washington tonight, the President paid a brief visit to Republican National Headquarters..thanked the people working for him.. ~~and the dinner guests of Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Humphrey.~~ and then went to the White House to pick-up Mrs. Eisenhower who accompanied ~~The President is [illegible] plans to [illegible]~~ him to a dinner at the home of Treasury Secretary and Mrs. Humphrey.

And Democratic ~~[illegible]~~ National Chairman Mitchell ~~[illegible]~~ says he's determined to resign before the end of the year. ~~He told~~ reporters: "Let's get the election out of the way and then we'll proceed to elect a new chairman." He says he's eager to return to his family and his law practice after being away for two years.

We now have the vote count from almost one half of Delaware's precincts. They show Democratic Senator J . Allen Frear leading his Republican opponent by 40-thousand votes to 28-thousand.

And in the race for congressman at large, with half the votes counted, the Democratic candidate is leading the Republican by 9-thousand votes.

In the state of Kansas, where votes are counted early, Republican Senator Schoeppel has better than a three to two edge over his Democratic challenger. And that's with 15 per cent of the vote recorded.

The first returns from NewYork state show Democrat Averell Harriman running slightly ahead of Republican Senator Ives..for the governorship. One sixth of Onandaga county shows that Harriman is leading Ives by 18-hundred votes. Four years ago Republican Governor Dewey won this county by 37-thousand votes. Andthe first district reporting from normally Republican St. Lawrence county shows Harriman leading Ives...149 to 125.

In Connecticut, the first big ~~xx~~ city to complete its voting is Waterbury. And it has gone Democratic by almost 6-thousand votes. This is twice the figure that the Democrats rolled up in 1950 ~~w~~ gubernatorial election.

In Hartford, with 40 of the 45 districts in, Republican Governor Lodge [redacted] is trailing Abraham Ribicoff by 23-thousand [redacted] votes. Ribicoff is running slightly ahead of the Democratic pace of four years ago.

First reports from normally Democratic Cook County..the Chicago area.. show Senator Douglas, the Democrat, leading his Republican opponent by better than two-to-one in the city. Joseph Meek is leading Douglas by better than two-to One in the Chicago suburbs. The total figure at present..based on 300 of the state's 53-hundred precincts show:

Douglas...62-thousand, 800

Meek...32-thousand 400

a

At the United Nations today, the steering committee voted--without dissent--to recommend a full debate on Soviet charges of aggression and piracy against the United States and Nationalist China. The Nationalist delegate called this "nonsense" but he joined American Delegate Wadsworth in not voting against the proposal. Moscow charges that we are guilty of aggression against China from bases on Formosa. Britain's Sir Pearson Dixon explained that he sponsored a move to postpone the charge two weeks ago because he considered it "a cold war item, and we still do not see how any good can come from an Assembly discussion." Andrie Vishinsky said the charges have no connection with the cold war in which--he said--"the Soviet Union does not participate." Earlier, the Assembly's political committee, despite Soviet objections, approved a recommendation that all countries help provide equipment and supplies for United Nations forces that resist any future aggression.

b

Sir Winston Churchill today told the House of Commons that atomic and hydrogen bomb explosions have "a cumulative effect" on the atmospehere. He believes that "an undue number of them might have very serious effects." Sir Winston said he has been informed that 5-thousand years is "about the limit of the time during which the atmospehere would be affected." He was asked if Britain would propose that the United States and Russia discontinue their atomic and hydrogen bomb tests. Sir Winston said several proposals for the control of atomic energy are now before the United Nations and "it is there that the solution should be sought."

Chinese Communist planes today again attacked the Tachen Island group, 200 miles from the northern tip of Formosa. And Nationalist planes bombed the Communist mainland. There was no immediate report of casualties.

The United States says it is offering Iran 127-million dollars (IN LOANS) and grants to help the Iranian economy until its oil industry is brought (BACK) to full production.

II

Japanese Premier Yoshida arrived in New York today from Europe. He denied reports, that have appeared in Japanese papers, that he was on Election night - before the returns are in - is Perhaps a fitting occasion to speak about humility and to invite a wider use of the phrase: "I might be wrong". When the news is all gathered tonight, quite a number of persons will have been humbled, and still more who did not foresee the possibility will have been found wrong. The scope for humility is unusually large after a season in which pride has had such free rein. [An election campaign is normally a great spectacle of pride.] I am not suggesting that candidates should solicit votes by admitting they "might be wrong". A certain kind of pride has its moment and place in human affairs. But so has a certain kind of humility. And I am talking on this theme so as to quote a non-political address delivered in New York on Sunday that certainly was as notable as any of the political campaign. It was the convocation oration heard at the Bicentennial Convocation of Columbia University from the Columbia historian Dr. J. Bartlet Brebner.

Edward R. Murrow: November 2, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

Dr. Brebner pointed out that the dilemma between pride and humility is the most ancient and comprehendsive dilemma we know. "The vacillations between pride and humility", he said, "might decide what use is to be made of the knowledge of nuclear fission and fusion. The same might be said about the use of mass communications, or the production and consumption of goods or the organization and exercise of political power. In fact" he continued, "it is the agglomeration of physical power, social power, economic power and propagandistic power, as the potentially single prize for which artists in political power contend, that most alarms the community of scholars. For politics is an art of the immediate, and statesmanship, which rests on longer, deeper views, is rare."

Dr. Brebner found humility to be the needed counterbalance to pride. He said it not only offered a surer common footing for mankind, but may have been the means by which mankind has escaped destruction so far. He quoted Emersons complaint about the unwillingness to say: "I do not know". "And yet" he continued," since Emerson's time a common saying has struck root in the United States: 'I might be wrong'. Let us consider soberly the desirability of trying to make it a still commoner statement.

"During recent years" he went on, "a hurricane of investigations and persecutions has lashed those parts of the earth where men in political authority have conceived themselves to be compelled to maintain one set of values and to attack all others. Throughout these operations nothing has been more dreadful than the common assumption that every man must at all times be 'right'." Dr. Brebner called this the "insolent vainglory and and self-assurance" which the Greeks termed the "basic, suicidal sin."

"In our time" he said, "this sin may take the form of worshipping the power over nature, or over human nature, or the deification of a man, an economic entity, a political party or a state."

I should make it clear, Dr. Brebner was not primarily berating people in general or politicians in particular on account of their pride. He was exhorting one of the most distinguished assemblages of scholars ever gathered in this country. "Let us" he said, "exalt and extend our knowledge by all means" but let us also constantly assert our uncertainties, our ambiguities, and therefore our eternal need to know and to think more. If we do so it seems likely that non-academic persons will be quick to recognize that we and they are similar individuals, in the same boat on perilous waters, and that they will the more trustingly pool their skills with ours in guiding the voyage."

He closed with a peroration that seems to me peculiarly appropriate to be quoting on election night. "Finally" he said, "through humility we might expect to regain the salutory sense of the absurdity of man, laugh a little more at ourselves, and be better prepared to be laughed at. If we could thus offset our doom, and restore the balance of the comic and the tragic that is man's fate, it is at least conceivable that our poets, our prophets and our other artists might flourish in communion with a broader and more appreciative public than they have recently been able to enlist."

Here are more reports on the Harriman-Ives race for governor of New York. [redacted] With ten per cent of the vote in.. most of it from normally Republican up-state areas. [redacted] 60-

Democrat Harriman is running just about one thousand votes ahead of Republican Ives.

On election day, 1932, Will Rogers wrote:"There is only one redeeming thing about this election. It will be over at sundown. And when the votes are counted, let everybody, including the candidates, get into a good humor as quick as they got into a bad one. Let's all be friends again, for one of the evils of democracy is you have to put up with the man you elect whether you want him or not. That's why we call it Democracy.

Good Nite and Good Luck!

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 2, 1954
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

First, some scattered election returns. In Kentucky, 35 per cent of the votes have now been counted in the normally Republican Louisville -- Jefferson County district. They show former Vice President Barkley with 26-thousand votes to 25-thousand 800 for Republican Senator Cooper. Two years ago Senator Cooper won this district by 25-thousand votes.

And in the same district, Republican Representative Robison is now trailing his Democratic opponent ...Harrison M. Robertson by a few hundred votes. Two years ago the Republicans won by 14 thousand votes.

All through the day reports from various sections of the country reported heavy voting...despite campaign fears that voters might not be interested. Starting here in New York, the latest reports give us this summary: The New York state vote is described as "surprising". Despite rain and snow in upstate counties, nearly half of the eligible voters were believed to have marked their ballots by noon. The voting was especially heave in New York City's five boroughs. They are normally Democratic. But the Republicans found encouragement in an early turnout in the rural areas.

Across the river in New Jersey early reports indicated a heavier turnout in normally Democratic counties thanwere reported from Republican counties.

Pennsylvania reports indicate a very heavy vote in the two big cities... Pittsburgh and Philadelphia. And despite snow and a chilling rain the experts were predicting a very heavy state vote.

Ohio reports a heavy vote in its major cities..Cleveland, Columbus and Cincinnati.

In Illinoiswe're told that the Chicago vote has been lighter than expected. But the usually-Republican suburban area vote is described as "exceedingly large". The political experts indicate that they expect the vote in Chicago, usually heavily Democratic, to me much less than in the record off-year.

In Washington tonight, the President paid a brief visit to Republican National Headquarters...thanked the people working for him...and then went to the White House to pick-up Mrs. Eisenhower who accompanied him to a dinner at the home of Treasury Secretary and Mrs. Humphrey. And Democratic National Chairman Mitchell says he's determined to resign before the end of the year.

We now have the vote count from almost one half of Delaware's precincts. they show Democratic Senator J. Allen Frear leading his Republican opponent by 40 thousand votes to 28 thousand .

And in the race for congressman at large, with half the votes counted, the Democratic candidate is leading the Republican by 9-thousand votes.

In the state of Kansas, where votes are counted early, Republican Senator Schoeppel has better than a three to two edge over his Democratic challenger. And that's with 15 per cent of the vote recorded.

The first returns from New York state show Democrat Averell Harriman running slightly ahead of Republican Senator Ives..for the governorship. One sixth of Onandaga county shows that Harriman is leading Ives by 13-hundred votes. Four years ago Republican Governor Dewey won this county by 37-thousand votes. And the first district reporting from normally Republican St. Lawrence County shows Harriman leading Ives...149 to 125.

In Connecticut, the first big city to complete its voting is Waterbury. And it has gone Democratic by almost 6-thousand votes. This is twice the figure that the Democrats rolled up in the 1950 gubernatorial election.

In Hartford, with 40 of the 45 districts in, Republicnn Governor Lodge is trailing Abraham Rubicoff by 23-thousand votes. Rubicoff is running slightly ahead of the Democratic pace of four years ago.

Frist reports from normally Democratic Cook County...the Chicago area.. show Senator Douglas, the Democrat, leading his Republican opponent by better than two to one in the city. Joseph Meek is leading Douglas by better than two-to-one in the Chicago suburbs. The total figure at present..based on 300 of the state's 53-hundred precinct's show: Douglas...62 thousand, 800... Meek..32-thousand 400.

At the United Nations today, the steering committee voted--without dissent --to recommend a full debate on Soviet charges of aggression and piracy against the United States and Nationalist China. Earlier, the Assembly's political committee, despite Soviet objections, approved a remommendation that all countries help provide equipment and supplies for United Nations forces that resist any future aggression.

Sir Winston Churchill today told the House of Commons that atomic and hydrogen bomb explosions have "a cumulative effect" on the atomsphere. He believes that "an undue number of them might have very serious effects. " Sir Winston said he had been informed that 5-thousand years is "about the limit of the time during which the atmosphere could be affected." He was asked if Britain would propose that the United States and Russia discontinue their atomic and hydrogen bomb tests. Sir Winston said several proposals for the control of atomic energy are now before the United Nations and "it is there that the solution should be sought."

The United States sayd it is offering Iran 127-million dollars in loans and grants to help the Iranian economy until its oil industry is brought back to full production.

Election night - before the returns are in - is perhaps a fitting occasion to speak about humility and to invite a wider use of the phrase: " I might be wrong." When the news is all gathered tonight quite a number of persons will habe been humbled, and still more who did not foresee the possibility will have been found wrong. The scope for humility is unusually large after a season in which pride has had such free rein. An election campaign is normally a great spectacle of pride. I am not suggesting that candidates should solicit votes by admitting "they might be wrong." A certain kind of pride has its moment and place in human affairs. But so has a certain kind of humility. And I am talking on thos theme so as to quote a non-political address delivered in New York on Sunday that certainly was as notable as any of the physical campaign. It was the convocation oration heard at the Bicentennial Convocation of Columbia University from the Columbia historian, Dr. J. Bartlet Brebner.

Dr. Brebner pointed out that the dilemma between pride and humility is the most ancient and comprehensive dilemma we know. "The vacillations between pride and humility", he said, "might decide what use is to be made of the knowledge of nuclear fission and fusion. The same might be said about the use of mass communications, or the production and consumption of goods or the organization and exercise of political power. "In fact", he continued, "it is the agglomeration of physical power, social power, economic power, and propogandistic power, as the potentially single prize for which artists in political power contend, that most alarms the community of scholars. For politics is an art of the immediate, and statesmanship, which rests on longer, deeper views, is rare."

Dr. Brebner found humility to be the needed counterbalance to pride. He said it not only offered a surer common footing for mankind, but may have been the means by which mankind has escaped destruction so far. He quoted Emerson's complaint about the unwillingness to say: "I do not know". "And yet", he continued, "since Emerson's time a common saying has struck root in the United States: 'I might be wrong'. Let us consider soberly the desirability of trying to make it a still commoner statement.

"During recent years" he went on, "a hurricane of investigations and persecutions has lashed those parts of the earth where men in political authority have conceived themselves to be compelled to maintain one set of values and attack all others. Throughout these operations, nothing has been more dreadful that the common assumption that every man must at all times be 'right' " Dr. Brebner called this the "insolent vainglory and self-assurance" which the Greeks termed the "basic suicidal sin."

"In our time" he said, "this sin may take the form of worshipping the power over nature, or even human nature, or the deification of a man, an economic entity, a political party or a state."

I should make it clear, Dr. Brebner was not primarily berating people in general or politicians in particular on account of their pride. He was exhorting one of the most distinguished assemblages of scholars ever gathered in this country. "Let us" he said, "exalt and extend our knowledge by all means" but let us also constantly assert our uncertainties, our ambiguities, and therefore our eternal need to know and to think more. If we do so it seems likely that non-academic persons will be quick to recognize that we and they are similar individuals, in the same boat on perilous waters, and that they will the more trustingly pool their skills with ours in guiding the voyage."

He closed with a peroration that seems to me peculiarly appropriate to be quoting on election hight. "Finally" he said, "through humility we might expect to regain the salutatory sense of the absurdity of man, laugh a little more at ourselves, and be better prepared to be laughed at. If we could thus offset our doom, and restore the balance of the comic and the tragic that is man's fate, it is at least conceivable that our poets , our prophets and our other artists might flourish in communion with a broader and more appreciative public than they have recently been able to enlist."

Here are more reports on the Harriman-Ives race for governor of New York. With ten per cent of the vote in..most of it from normally Republican up-state areas..Democrat Harriman is running just about one thousand votes ahead of Rebublican Ives.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a moment with the Word for Today. but first, Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: On election day, 1932, Will Rogers wrote: "There is only one redeeming thing about this election. It will be over at sundown. And when the votes are counted, let everybody, including the candidates, get into a good humor as quick as they got into a bad one. Let's all be friends again, for one of the evils of democracy is you have to put up with the man you elect whether you want him or not. That's why we call it Democracy.

Good Night and Good Luck.

Wednesday, Nov. 3, 1954

This is the news:

There has been another later switch in the fight for control of the Senate. The Democrats definitely have recaptured the House of Representatives ..with 232 seats to 203 for the Republicans. That's a net gain of 17 Democratic seats.

And in the Senate race two contests are undecided. The Republicans must win both to retain control. The Democrats need but one. And tonight from Oregon comes word that Democratic Candidate Richard Neuberger is now leading Republican Senator Cordon by 95 votes. Neuberger had been trailing all through the day. Ninety-five per cent of the vote has been counted. This could develop into as close a contest as the New Jersey race, where Republican Clifford Case is leading his Democratic opponent, Charles Howell by from 200 to 14-hundred votes. (depending on whose unofficial count you accept) These figures are reported on the basis of complete returns from all precincts. Case has been in the lead through the day. And New Jersey voters are now assured that their ballots will be recounted..which could take two weeks.

Until we have the final, official, New Jersey and Oregon results, the situation will be this. The Democrats have 47 seats plus the vote of Oregon's Independent Senator Morse. That's 48..half the Senate. The Republicans have 46 sure seats. If they win both Oregon and New Jersey they too will have 48..and the vote of Vice President Nixon to break the tie and retain Republican control.

~~to break the tie and [redacted] the Republicans to keep control of the Senate.~~

~~In the House of Representatives, the Democrats have won [redacted] 232 seats, the Republicans 203. That's a Democratic [redacted] majority of 15 seats and [redacted] seats.~~

A number of contests were decided today and in a surprising number of cases the results were close. Michigan's Republican Senator Ferguson, chairman of his party's Senate policy committee, was defeated by Patrick Mc Namara, an A.F. of L. official. Ohio's Democratic Senator Burke was defeated by Republican Bender...by less than ten thousand votes among two and a half million counted. Illinois' Democratic Senator Douglas was re-elected. Massachusetts' Republican Senator Saltonstall was re-elected by some 45-thousand votes. Democratic Senator Murray of Montana has a lede of 2-thousand votes and former Democratic Senator O'Mahoney of Wyoming has been returned to the Senate by less than 3-thousand votes. And in Colorado, Republican Gordon Allot has defeated Democrat John Carroll.

The President told reporters today there were a lot of contests that astonished and surprised him. He doesn't feel his program was repudiated by the voters. He's going to co-operate with the opposition. I'd like to review some of Mr. Eisenhower's remarks in a few minutes.

On Wall Street, the traders who had anticipated a Democratic [redacted]e landslide went to work today, buying..and caused an estimated two and a half billion dollar increase in all listed shares.

Republican National Chairman Hall sees no trend or sweep in the election. Democratic Chairman Mitchell feels the Democrats are half-way back to the White House. [redacted] Aldia Stevenson feels its "a protent of things to come." Former President Truman feels the results were not overwhelming enough for the Democrats. Here in New York there will be a recount of Averell Harriman's Democratic victory for governor. He won by some 11- thousand votes. Republicans say some 7-thousand or more servicemen's votes have yet to be counted. In California, Democratic Representative Condon, barred from an atomic test as a security risk, has been defeated.

At his newsconference today, the President told reporters that we have sent a new proposal to Russia on the peaceful uses of atomic energy. Mr. Eisenhower said he hopes this message, following up his original proposal of a year ago, "will start a new phase" in American-Soviet negotiations. He said that during the first phase of negotiations "the Russians showed a lack of interest in co-operating [redacted]"

At the United Nations today, Dr. Mahmoud Azmi, chief of Egypt's delegation, collapsed and died of a heart attack in the Security Council. He had been defending his country against Isreal's charge that Egypt had seized an Isreali ship near the Suez Canal.

The Nobel Prize for Chemistry today was awarded to Dr. Linus Pauling of the California Institute of Technology. The award was given for his research into the hidden forces that glue together the building block of matter. Senator McCarthy has accused Dr. Pauling of being "a Communist fronter." The Noble Prize for physics goes to two German-born physicists..Professors Max Born, 72 , and Walter Bothe, 62. They were honored for 50 years of reasarch into the relationship between solid MATTER AND INVISIBLE RADIATION.

Edward R. Murrow: November 3, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

It is still too early to draw large conclusions about the meaning of the election, at least final ones. Some of the questions raised can be answered in part. One of these is how did it happen. The answer to that is that it happened for different reasons in different states, and not for any one reason in all of them. Rarely can there have been an election so governed by local conditions and so without pattern and consistency. I shall give examples of this in a moment.

But I should like to talk first about what now is in sight in the way of policy, for that is more important. It depends somewhat on the control of the Senate, and that may not be decided until the New Jersey recount has been made. Still it is legitimate to say that fears of a cold war between Congressional Democrats and the White House were disappearing today. President Eisenhower admitted that the word "chaos" which he had used to describe what would result if the Republicans lost Congress was "perhaps too strong". And he announced plans to consult Democratic leaders about his program in the same way he has consulted Republicans.

In foreign policy no basic change is in sight. President Eisenhower's desire for a more liberal trade policy and freedom to lower tariffs may be better received in the new Congress than the old. It might modify the policy in Asia if Senator Knowland no longer were majority leader in the Senate. But that would not necessarily mean the President's policy was changing, with which Senator Knowland has not always agreed. It simply would lessen the effect of the contradiction his statements have occasionally represented.

The President's program for the next two years as announced during the campaign was more liberal than for the first two. If he wins co-operation from the Democrats he might get as much of it passed as if he had his own majority. He might even fare better.

But the Democrats are sure not to neglect to build up their own position and tear down the Republican position to the best of their ability, with 1956 in view. But it is much more likely that they will do this by using their power to investigate than by using their power to obstruct. By controlling the House, the Democrats can investigate to their heart's content, even if they do not organize the Senate. And they are itching to get at it. It is a safe guess that the name Dixon-Yates will yet become a household word.

President Eisenhower did not establish a clear claim to decisive leadership by his interventions in the campaign. ~~Three of the four~~ most of the senators he flew to endorse were beaten, and Bender was saved only by a whisker. But this need not be a reflection on the President's influence. When one compares the results in the contests for governor, one finds the Democrats did somewhat better in them than in the Congressional races. The President did not go out to help governors except in New York. It seems a fair statement that the Republican Party can thank the President for its having done as well as it did in the congressional contests.

Right-wing Republicans may not agree, and some can be expected to blame the defeats on disunity in the Party, with special reference to the treatment given Senator McCarthy. But this thesis is strikingly offset by the situation in New Jersey. There we see the great paradox of the election. Clifford Case ~~was probably~~ may have been deprived of a tangible majority by the write-in votes given former Congressman Hartley, and Republicans who stayed home. ~~This was the last quiver of the right-wing revolt against Case as a liberal and an anti-McCarthy man.~~ Had these Republicans cared for unity most of all, Case would be in, ~~and Republican control of the Senate would be beyond challenge.~~

As I said, there is no single answer as to how the election happened to go the way it did. Probably the only generalization that makes sense is that in any mid-term election the opposition party usually scores moderate gains. But farmers in Minnesota elected Democrat Humphrey and in nearby Iowa defeated Democrat Gillette. True, they were different farmers, grain farmers in Minnesota where flexible price supports mattered, and hog-and-corn farmers in Iowa where flexible prices didn't matter so much. But what counted more than farm policy in Iowa was, for one thing, Gillette's age - he is 75; and then the ~~unusual~~ popularity of Eisenhower. The Republican claim to have made peace really won Iowa votes. The President's appeal for a Republican Congress had more effect in Iowa than perhaps anywhere else. Gillette had always been elected with the help of Republican votes. He got less of this help, and lost.

Industrial unemployment and lack of overtime in New England were not enough of a factor to beat Saltenstall in Massachusetts, or Bender in Ohio. But they routed Ferguson in Michigan. But one can be sure the bird-dog philosophy of Secretary Wilson, even quoted in its context, did not help Ferguson in Wayne County, which beat him.

One statement can be made without fear of contradiction - the overall outcome was not the result of apathy. More people voted than in any mid-term election in history, and when the final ~~XXXXXX~~ count is added up, it may surpass the forty-eight million mark of the 1948 presidential election. The voters did care, but what they cared about first of all was the local candidates they knew something about. Whatever else this election was, it was not a referendum. For a mid-term election is must count as a pretty healthy experience.

The Army today made a report to Senator McCarthy on the case of offormer Major Irving Peress., whom McCarthy has called a "fifth amendment Communist. The Army says: "exhaustive investigations have conclusively established that there was no collusion... conspiracy...or preferential treatment with respect to any of its actions" in the case of Peress. The full report is not yet available in our newsroom.

[redacted]

On November 11, 1928 Will Rogers wrote:"It's all over and what a relief. Of all the inconsistences, of all the back-tracking, of all the changing opinions, of all the waiting to see what the majority will do, of all the trading back and forth with each other for support! And what has it proved ? That this country runs in spite of parties. And if we didn't have to stop and play politics, any administration could almost make a garden of Eden out of us."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

Thursday November 4, 1958

This is the news:

The Democrats are now assured of controlling both the Senate and House in the next Congress. And through the day leaders of both parties were telling reporters what their plans are. The Democrat victory in the Senate came with the almost certain election of Richard Neuberger in Oregon. He leads by about (21-HUNDRED) votes. In New Jersey, Republican Case now has a margin of 3-thousand votes. His plurality increased during the day.

The two men who will probably lead the Democrats...Speaker Rayburn in the House and Senator Lyndon Johnson in the Senate..now reveal that last October 9th they wired the President that if the Democrats won control of the Congress they would not oppose him on a partisan basis. Johnson says the telegram was delivered, but not answerd. And the Texas Senator told reporters that his party will give better treatment to Indpendent Senator Morse than the Republicans gave him. It will be Morse's vote, together with 48 Democrats, that will give the Democrats control.

Here are some of the other comments on the future of Congress. Representative Rayburn wants to scrutinize what he calls "the whole give-away program" of the Eisenhoer Administration. Representative Cooley, who will head the House agriculture committee, promises a vigorous effort to repeal the Republican-sponsored flexible farm price support program. Representative Richards--slated to Become Chairman of the House foreign affairs committee--says he will re-appraise and re-evaluate the foreign aid program. Representative Cooper, scheduled to become chairman of Ways and Means, sees no reason why the Democrats cannot co-operate with the Administration on taxes. Veteran Senator George sees no serious change in foreign policy. (He will become head of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.) Attorney General Brownell says "there will be no let-up or change in major policies of the Administration as a result of the election." And Democratic Senator Johnston of South Carolina, who takes over the civil service committee, promises he'll get to the bottom of the Eisenhower employee security program. Senator Knowland... Republican leader in the senate.. says the Democrats have won an obvious victory..it cannot be regarded as a repudiation of the Eisenhower Administration. Knowland thinks Mr. Eisenhower will run for re-election in 1956. And he wishes the President had campaigned a little harder..started earlier..visited more states and stayed longer. Knowland says the Democrats "might develop some cleavages" in their own ranks. And he thinks his party should have made more use of Senator McCarthy during the campaign.

A.F. of L. President Meany says the results showed a strong "anti-Administration protest vote among the nation's workers." And Jack Kroll, of the C.I.O. political action committee, says the CIO broke even or better in victories of endorsed candidates.

Senator McCarthy said today the Senate will be holding what he called "a lynch party" when it starts to consider censuring him on Monday. And Mc Carthy is not happy with the Army's explanation of the Major Peress case. He says the Army has "some secret master they are protecting in the Pentagon."

And here in New York, for a second day the Stock Market went up. Valuations have now risen to three and a half billion dollars since Wednesday morning.

Two Administration officials today urged quick approval of the controversial Dixon-Yates power contract. Chairman Strauss of the Atomic Energy Committee says the contract is in the interests of all the people...and has been a victim of "misunderstandings and ~~misinterpret~~ misinterpretations." Budget Director ~~Rowland R.~~ Hughes says is is "a splendid example of the way private enterprise works." But Democratic Senator Anderson of New Mexico told the Senate-House atomic energy committee Dixon-Yates will "not venture one fifty-cent piece" in the new 107-million-dollar power plant it proposes to build under government contract. And Anderson says the contract does not provide for any guaranteed date by which the plant must be completed.

In San Diego today the world's fastest seaplane exploded over the bay while making a speed run. The pilot, Charles Richbourg, was taken from the water alive but died in a few minutes. The plane, the Convair Seadart, was considered one of the Navy's most secret air projects and the Navy ranked it as potentially its greatest weapon in aerial combat.

In Philadelphia, Arnold Johnson, a Chicago businessman, says he has bought the Philadelphia Athletics and will transfer the baseball team to Kansas City.

The United Nations General Assembly has approved new secret talks on disarmament and the prohibition of atomic weapons.

Edward R. Murrow: November 4, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

The election results are beginning to justify a few more generalizations. One of them arises from the Senate fight in Oregon and the election of Democratic Richard Neuberger. This gives the power issue its true size as one of the big differences between Republican and Democratic policy. Neuberger campaigned against turning power over to private interests to the extent advocated and proposed by the Republicans. There is more to this theme than just the chapter of the Dixon Yates contract, though that is important. For in that the Republicans were ruling out the growth of the T.V.A., by turning over to a private company the generation of power which the T.V.A. then would supply to the Atomic Energy Commission. But more is at stake than electric power. Grazing and timber lands, offshore oil, and finally the novel problem of using atomic energy for domestic purposes - all are involved. President Eisenhower has defined his policy as one recognizing both private and public rights in natural resources. Neuberger charged that the emphasis was all on private rights.

As it turned out, the Neuberger victory gave the Democrats control of the Senate, so they are not likely to ignore the issue that gave them the victory. And it may be one of the issues of the next presidential race.

The Neuberger victory makes possible another generalization. It appears to have lowered the prestige of Vice President Nixon as campaigner. He worked hard for Senator Cordon, as he did in the Mountain States and Far West. It was in this region that he was presumed to be making the chief contribution to a Republican victory. It was here that he switched themes and reinstated Communism in Government as an issue, and attacked the trustworthiness of Democrats.

If Oregon, Wyoming and Montana had elected Republicans to the Senate, as Colorado did, the Nixon line would have been given credit for the victory, and his success would have silenced most critics. But the Republicans lost three of these key contests. And while there is no evidence that the Nixon line actually contributed to the setback, the result in this region has rubbed off much of the Nixon lustre.

To the extent that Nixon's prestige went down, the prestige of Adlai Stevenson can be said to have gone up. He carried the brunt of his Party's national campaign, as Nixon had done. He worked tirelessly, and spoke effectively. Senator Douglas and Averell Harriman, two figures of national stature in the Party, both thanked him fervently for their victories. Both men were rivals of his in the last Democratic convention, and might be again. But for the present they are committed to the Stevenson leadership.

But more important even than Stevenson in the next two years of politics is Sam Rayburn, who will again become speaker of the House of Representatives. Mr. Rayburn's role now becomes one of peculiar and vital importance. It will fall to him more than anyone else to measure the co-operation to be given the Eisenhower Administration in the new Congress. This is a task not to be measured safely by Party interests alone. It needs statesmanship. Mr. Rayburn can become the essential partner in statesmanship with President Eisenhower. He and the President are old associates. They understand and like each other. Both are moderates, both have a world outlook. If the next years are fruitful in terms of legislation and foreign policy it will be the result, first of all, of the collaboration of these two men.

James Reston, writing in the New York Times, sees that this is so, but he issues a warning. Something needs to be repaired before the relationship between the two men can function. Mr. Rayburn was deeply offended by the charge of treason levelled against the Democrats by Republican spokesmen. "I can stand charges of crime and corruption" he is quoted as telling a private audience recently, "but charges suggesting treason are unforgiveable."

"Mr. Sam" writes Reston, "will be going to the White House Monday mornings from now on. He will be grave and courteous as always. But the day will come before long when he will take the occasion to make it clear that co-operation is only possible if the President sees to it that this particular aspect of the political battle is dropped."

Sam Rayburn has been in the House for forty-one years. He entered the day Woodrow Wilson was inaugurated in 1913. He already has served as Speaker longer than any American in history. He is a moderate, like the President, but he does not see eye to eye with him on all things. He does not like the wire-tapping legislation Attorney General Brownell has asked for. He does not like the Republican tax program, which he thinks favors the rich more than the poor. And like most of the nationally minded Democratic leaders he opposes a policy of reducing the budget at too great a cost in the expansion of the military establishment.

But these differences can be adjusted, if the air is cleared by eliminating the talk of Democratic treason. If this is done, it is not impossible that the new Congress can ring up more achievements than the session now passing into history.

We were speaking of the necessity for cooperation between the two parties if the President is to achieve any measure of success in Congress during the next two years. And this requires leadership. Tacitus once remarked: "The qualities specially belonging to a leader are reason and calm judgement." This would certainly apply to the new house speaker - Sam Rayburn, who probably knows only too well what Sir Walter Scott meant when he said: "Hail to the chief who in triumph advances."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 4, 1954
7:45 -- 8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the News:

The Democrats are now assured of controlling both the Senate and House in the next Congress. And through the day leaders of both parties were telling reporters what their plans are. The Democrat victory in the Senate came with the almost certain election of Richard Neuberger in Oregon. He leads by about 21-hundred votes. In New Jersey, Republican Case now has a margin of 3-thousand votes. His plurality increased during the day.

The two men who will probably lead the Democrats... Speaker Rayburn in the House and Senator Lyndon Johnson in the Senate..now reveal that last October 9th they wired the President that if the Democrats won control of the Congress they would not oppose him on a partisan basis. Johnson says the telegram was delivered, but not answered. And the Texas Senator told reporters that his party will give better treatment to Independent Senator Morse than the Republicans gavi him. It will be Morse's vote, together with 48 Democrats, that will give the Democrats control.

Here are some of the other comments on the future of Congress. Representative Rayburn wants to scrutinize what he calls "the whole give-away program" of the Eisenhower Administration." Representative Cooley, who will head the House agriculture committee, promises a vigorous effort to repeal the Republican - sponsored flexible farm price support program. Representative Richards --slated to become chairman of the House foreign affairs committee -- says he will re-appraise and re-evaluate the foreign aid program. Representatibe Cooper, scheduled to become chairman of the Ways and Means, sees no reason why the Democrats cannot co-operate with the Administration on taxes. Veteran Senator George sees no serious change in foreign policy. He will become head of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. Attorney General Brownell says "there will be no let-up or change in major policies of the Administration as a result of the election." And Democratic Senator Johnston of South Carolina, who takes over the civil service committee, promises he'll get to the bottom of the Eisenhower employee security program. Senator Knowland..Republican leader in the senate...says the Democrats have won an obvious victory...it cannot be regarded as a repudiation of the Eisenhower Administration. Knowland thinks Me. Eisenhower will run for re-election in 1956. And he wishes the President ahd campaigned a little harder...started earlier...visited more states and stayed longer. Knowland says the Democrats "might develope some cleavages" in their own ranks. And he thinks his party should have made more use of Senator McCarthy during the campaign.

A.F.of L. President Meany says the results showed a strong "anti-Administration protest vote among the nation's workers." And Jack Kroll, of the C.I.O. political action committee, says the CIO broke even, or better in victories of endorsed candidates.

Senator McCarthy said today that Senate will be holding what he called "a lynch party" when it starts to consider censuring hi on Monday. And McCarthy is not happy with the Army's explanation of the Major Peress case. He says the Army has "some secret master they are protecting in the Pentagon."

And here in New York, for a second day, the Stock Market went up. Valuations have now risen to three and a half billion dollars since Wednesday morning.

Two Administration officials today urged quick approval of the controversial Dixon-Yates power contract. Chairman Strauss of the Atomic Energy Committee says the contract is in the interests of all the people..

and has been a victim of "misunderstandings and misinterpretations." Budget Director Hughes says is is a splendid example of the way private enterprise works." But Democratic Senator Anderson of New Mexico told the Senate-House atomic energy committee Dixon-Yates will "not venture one fifty-cent peice" in the new 107 million dollar power plant it proposes to build under government contract. And Anderson says the contract does not provide for any guaranteed date by which the plant must be completed.

In San Diego today the world's fastest sea pland exploded over the bay while making a speed run. The pilot, Charles Cichbourg, was taken from the water alive, but died an a few minutes. The plane, the Convair Seadart, was considered one of the Navy's most secret air projects and the Navy ranked it as potentially its greatest weapon in aerial combat.

In Philadelphia, Arnold Johnson, a Chicago businessman says he has bought the Philadelphia Athletics and will transfer the baseball team to Kansas City.

The United Nations General Assembly has approved new secret talks on disarmament and the prohibition of atomic weapons.

The election results are beginning to justify a few more generalizations One of them arises from the Senate fight in Oregon and the election of Democratic Richard Neuberger. This gives the power issue its true size as one of the big differences between Republican and Democratic policy. Neuberger campaigned against turning power over to private interests to the extent advocated and proposed by the Republicans. There is more to this theme than just the chapter of the Dixon Yates Contract, though that is important. For in that the Republicans were ruling our the growth of the T.V.A., by turning over to a private company the generation of power which the T.V.A. then would supply to the Atomic Energy Commission. But more is at stake than electric power. Grazing and timber lands, offshore oil, and finally the novel problem of using atomic energy for domestic purposes - all are involved. President Eisenhower had defined his policy as one recognizing both private and public rights in natural resources. Neuberger charged that the emphasis was all on private rights.

As it turned out, the Neuberger victory gave the Democrats control of the Senate, so they are not likely to ignore the issue that gave them the victory. And it may be one of the issues of the next presidential race.

The Neuberger victory makes possible another generalization. It appears to have lowered the prestige of Vice President Nixon as a campaigner. He worked hard for Senator Cordon, as he did in the Mountain States and the Far West. It was in this region that he was presumed to be making the chief contribution to a Republican victory. It was here that he switched themes and reinstated Communism in Government as an issue, and attacked the trustworthiness of Democrats.

If Oregon, Wyoming and Montana had elected Republicans to the Senate, as Colorado did, the Nixon line would have been given credit for the victory, and his success would have silenced most critics. But the Republicans lost three of these key contests. And while there is no evidence that the Nixon line actually contributed to the setback, the result in this region has rubbed off much of the Nixon lustre.

To the extent that Nixon's prestige went down, the prestige of Adlai Stevenson can be said to have gone up. He carried the brunt of his Party's national campaign, as Nixon had done. He worked tirelessly, and spoke effectively. Senator Douglass and Averall Harriman, two figures of national stature in the Party, both thanked him fervently for their victories. Both men were rivals of his in the last Democratic convention, and might be again. But for the present they are committed to the Stevenson leadership.

But more important even than Stevenson in the next two years of politics is Sam Rayburn, who will again become speaker of the House of Representatives. Mr. Rayburn's role now becomes one of the peculiar and vital importance. It will fall to him more than anyone else to measure the co-operation to be given to the Eisenhower Administration in the new Congress. This is a task not to be measured safely by Party interests alone. It needs statesmanship. Mr. Rayburn can become the essential partner in statesmanship with President Eisenhower. He and the President are old associates. They understand and like each other. Both are moderates, both have a world outlook. If the next years are fruitful in terms of legislation and foreign policy it will be the result, first of all, of the collaboration of these two men.

James Reston, writing in the New York Times, sees that this is so, but he issues a warning. Something needs to be repaired before the relationship between the two men can function. Mr. Rayburn was deeply offended by the charge of treason levelled against the Democrats by Republican spokesmen. "I can stand charges of crime and corruption" he is quoted as telling a private audiance recently, "but chargessuggesting treason are unforgiveable."

"Mr. Sam" writes Reston, "will be going to the White House Monday mornings from now on. He will be grave and courteous as always. But he day will come before long when he will take the occasion to make it clear that co-operation is only possible if the President sees to it that this particular aspect of the political battle is dropped."

Sam Rayburn has been on the House for forty-one years. He entered the day Woodrow Wilson was inaugurated in 1913. He already has served as Speaker longer than any American in history. His is a moderate, like the President, but he does not see eye to eye with him on all things. He does not wire -tapping legislation Attorney General Brownell has asked for. He does not like the Republican tax program, which he thinks favors the rich more than the poor. And like most of the nationally minded Democratic leaders he opposes a policy of reducing the budget at too great a cost in the expansion of the military establishment.

But these differences can be adjusted, if the air is cleared by eliminating the talk of Democratic treason. If this is done, it is not impossible that the new Congress can ring up more achievements than the session now passing into history

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a minute with the Word for Today, bur first, Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: We were speaking of the necessity for the cooperation between the two parties if the President is to achieve any measure of success in Congress during the next two years. And this requires leadership. Tacitus once remarked: "The qualities specially belonging to a leader are reason and calm judgement." This would certainly apply to the new house speaker - Sam Rayburn -- who probably knows only too well what Sir Walter Scott meant when he said: "Hail to the chief who in triumph advances."

Good Night and Good Luck!

Friday, November 5, 1954

6-1
6-1
6-1

This is the news:

The United States today proposed sharing atomic materials and know-how with all countries that want to join an international atomic energy agency. Ambassador Lodge told the United Nations--in a speech I'd like to review in a few minutes--that the door is still open for Russian co-operation.

The President today invited both Republican and Democratic leaders of Congress to meet with him at the White House on November 17th. The leaders of both parties will be fully advised on developments in our foreign relations. Majority Leader Knowland called on the President today and later told reporters: Mr. Eisenhower is eager to establish "close cordial and constructive " relations with the Democrats.

In Bonham, Texas, today Sam Rayburn, who is going to be speaker of the House, and Senator Johnson of Texas, who is going to be Senate majority leader conferred on the organization of a Democratic congress. Speaker Rayburn later told reporters:"Some Democratic leaders are rather bitter about the charges of 'pinks' and 'left-wingers' in the party. We feel that there are just as many patriotic Democrats as there are patriotic Republicans." Rayburn said the House Democrats will co-operate with the Administration but "a great deal will depend on the attitude of the Administration." And Senator Johnson said: "If we oppose anything it will be on principle, not personalities. We will take the attitude that what is good for the country is good for the Democrats." And Senator Johnson said the Democrats will give the Dixon-Yates power contract "a thorough ventilation."

Democratic Senator Gore of Tennessee charged today that the sponsors of the contract (MISUSED) the President and the Atomic Energy Committee. Gore said the President is involved in what he called "an unprecedented way." He said the contract reeks of "subsidy and guaranteed profits." Under this contract Dixon-Yates would build a steam plant and deliver power to the Tennessee Valley Authority to replace TVA power that is supplied to the Atomic Energy Committee. Senator Gore says that the proposal does not yet have the approval of a majority of the Atomic Energy Commissioners or the T.VA. Republican Chairman Cole of the congressional atomic energy committee said "There is nothing Congress can do to stop this contract from going into affect" unless the President changes his mind. Senator Gore insisted there are a number of things Congress can do.

Secretary of State Dulles today fired John Paton Davies a veteran service officer who has had 23 years of experience. Mr. Dulles says he agrees with the unanimous finding of a five-member special security hearing board. Mr. Dulles says [redacted] neither he nor the Board found Davies "disloyal in the sense of having any Communist activity" or consciously helping an enemy of the United States. But the Board did decide that Davies "demonstrated a lack of judgement, discretion and reliability." Mr. Dulles said one thing the Board objected to was Davies "disregard of proper forebearance and caution in making known his dissents outside privileged boundaries. And Davies says he will not contest the finding "nor seek to compare" his record with others. Davies added: "There has been enough recrimination. I am not prepared to add to it and thereby detract from the strength of my country in its mortal struggle with the Communist enemy. I must be content to let history be my judge." The controversey over Davies apparently arose from his association with our attempts after World War Two to restore order in China.

In West Germany today, Chancellor Adenauer told his cabinet he will agree to ask France to re-open negotiations on the bitterly disputed Franco-German agreement on the Sarr. Adenauer bowed to a revolt in his own government. During the recent 9-power conference French Premier Mendez-France warned [redacted] THAT France would not ratify the German re-armament treaty unless it was accompanied by a settlement of the future of the Sarr. And Mendes-France repeated this today to his foreign affairs committee.

In Washington, the Defense Department added another 24 names to the casualty list of the Korean war..making it a total of 142, 091. And the Air Force reports that four men, missing almost two years since their B-29 bomber was shot down in Korea, recently sent letters home.

India's Prime Minister Nehru returned to New Delhi today from a 10-day visit to Communist China. He said the visit had [redacted] "an improving affect" on the world situation. Informed sources say Nehru told the Communists he expected them to negotiate for Formosa and not attempt an invasion of the Chinese Nationalist fortress. Nehru also told reporters in New Delhi he has never talked about retiring..just about leaving the prime ministership.

Edward R. Murrow: November 5, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

The acute problems of the atomic age are usually more hinted at than explained by those conducting national and international affairs. Today at the United Nations, Ambassador Lodge departed from the pattern to speak boldly about the possible benefits of atomic energy to the human race. His speech had some of the qualities of a good lecture; it was vivid, informed and authoritative. He was speaking in support of President Eisenhower's proposal for an International Atomic Energy Agency.

Until recently this could be described as an international bank or pool of nuclear materials. But pooled ownership no longer is a central feature of it. Mr. Lodge does not propose that the Agency should actually own nuclear materials which it would distribute for peaceful uses. Instead it will arrange for approved national projects to receive materials direct from the states donating them. That makes it a clearing-house rather than a bank or pool. Mr. Lodge said the structure had been changed because the Soviet Union objected to the original idea.

But before reporting more about the Lodge speech I should call attention to a unanimous vote in the General Assembly yesterday, ~~for~~ asking the five leading atomic powers to revive the subcommittee on disarmament and the control of conventional and nuclear weapons. The Soviet Union was one of the powers sponsoring the proposal, and much store has been laid on the achievement of unanimity with the Soviet bloc on this fresh approach. But the unanimity so far is mostly on procedure. Now the realities of nuclear destructiveness are being taken behind closed doors for many months of the stiffest kind of negotiations.

One can speak of the bright side and the dark side of atomic power, the side of peaceful uses and the side of destructive uses. About the bright side the public apparently is to learn a great deal, for the Eisenhower plan now is to be debated at length in the United Nations, and if it is adopted a great many national and international activities will be ~~engendered.~~ Possible!

But about the dark side there will be no such enlightenment. The debate in that field will be held in secret. No doubt that is unavoidable, since agreement on such a delicate and momentous subject can hardly be engineered in public. But in the end the public has to know and approve of what is proposed to assure its survival. A better idea of the perils of the atomic age, and of the possibilities of control will be needed for a great many people to endorse the needed political action. Knowledge about the bright side of atomic power will help when the time comes. But it is a paradox that the United Nations should consign the discussion of atomic destructiveness to a secret room, while raising the curtain on the discussion of atomic usefulness.

Mr. Eisenhower meant the new international agency to be a kind of proving ground of good will, where mutual suspicions could be dispelled and co-operation could be demonstrated. It was his first idea that controlled disarmament in nuclear weapons would be easier after we had shown the Soviet leaders we could work together harmoniously for peaceful atomic uses. That no longer can count as the chief motive. The agency now is just a practical scheme to stimulate the study of the peaceful uses, arrange for building small reactors in many parts of the world and distribute nuclear materials for approved projects.

As Mr. Lodge spelled out the proposal, the United Nations is not to set up the Agency. It will be created by negotiations and treaties among interested states. But he assured the delegates that it would stand in relation to the U.N. as do other specialized agencies. It would consult and co-operate with other U.N. bodies, as well as with the national atomic energy organizations and the already existing European Nuclear Research Organization. In this way, Mr. Lodge said, he hoped that unending arguments and insuperable vetoes could be avoided.

Mr. Lodge's exposition of the peaceful uses of atomic energy started with the story of isotopes, of which he said 50,000 shipments have already been made by the Atomic Energy Commission to factories, laboratories, and universities, some of them abroad. Isotopes, he explained, serve two general purposes, the changing of living things by radiation; and as tracers. Under the first heading he told about killing cancerous cells, preserving food for storage, and speeding up the development of new agricultural strains. He told how isotopes as tracers are used in manufacture, in keeping flat sheets at a constant thickness, in finding flaws in welding and riveting, in testing the flow of oil through pipelines, in learning how growing plants absorb fertilizer and in studying effective feed for poultry. He outlined a dozen remarkable uses in medicine, and foresaw a time when the process of plant growth will be understood so that food at last can be made of common chemicals. And finally he spoke of the development of electrical power.

It is a moving subject. Still more fabulous progress is to be expected. But the future of mankind surely will be affected more immediately by the negotiations on disarmament. And here, the hopes ~~cannot yet be~~ de~~scribed as~~ ~~sanguine~~ for success must be regarded as dim.

As Ambassador Lodge suggested today, the time has come for man to re-evaluate himself in the shadow of the atom. ~~Appropriately~~, Samuel Johnson once remarked:"Those, who in the confidence of superior capacities or attainments, neglect the common maxims of life, should be reminded that nothing will supply the want of prudence; and that negligence,long continued, will make knowledge useless and genius contemptible."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 5, 1954
7:45-- 8:00 P.M., E.S.T.,

This is the news:

The United States today proposed sharing atomic materials and know-how with all countries that want to join an international atomic energy agency. Ambassador Lodge told the United Nations -- in a speech I'd like to review in a few minutes -- that the door is still open for Russian co-operation.

The President today invited both Republican and Democratic leaders of Congress to meet with him at the hite House on November 17th. The leaders of both parties will be fully advised on developements in our foreign relations. Majority Leader Knowland called on the President today and later told reporters: Mr. Eisenhower is eager to establish "close, cordial and constructive" relations with the Democrats.

In Bonham, Texas, today Sam Rayburn, who is going to be speaker of the House, and Senator Johnson of Texas, who is going to be Senate majority leader, conferred on the organization of a Democratic congress. Speaker Rayburn told reporters: "Some Deoocratic leaders are rather bitter about the charges of 'pinks' and 'left-wingers' in the party. We feel that there are just as many patriotic Democrats as there are patriotic Republicans." Rayburn said the House Democrats will co-operate with the Administration but "a great deal will depend on the attitude of the Administration." And Senator Johnson said: "If we oppose anything it will be on principal, not personalities. We will take the attitude that what is good for the country is good for the Democrats." And Senator Johnson said the Democrats will give the Dixon-Yates power contract "a thorough ventilation."

Democratic Senator Gore of Tennessee charged today that the sponsors of the contract misused the President and the Atomic Energy Committee. Gore said the President is involved in what he called "an unprecedented way". He said the contract reeks of "subsidy and guaranteed profits." Under this contract Dixon-Yates would build a steam plant and deliver power to the Tennessee Valley Authority to replace TVA power that is supplied to the Atomic Energy Committee. Senator Gore says the proposal does not yet have the approval of a majority of the Atomic Energy Commissioners or the TVA Republican Chairman Cole of the Congressional Atomic energy Committee said "There is nothing Congress can do to stop this contract from going into affect." unless the President changes his mind. Senator Gore insisted there are a number of things Congress can do.

Secretary of State Dulles today fired John Paton Davies, a veteran service officer who has had 23 years of experience. Mr. Dulles says he agrees with the unanimous finding of a five-member special security hearing board. Mr. Dulles says neither he nor the board found Davies "disloyal in the sense of having any Communist activity" or consciously helping an enemy of the United States. But the Board did decide that the Davies "demonstrated a lack of judgement, discretion and reliability." Mr. Dulles said one thing the board objected to was Davies "disregard of proper forebearance and caution in making known his dissents outside priviledged boundaries. And Davies says he will not contest the finding "nor seek to compare" his record with others. Davies added: "There has been enough recrimination. I am not prepared to add to it and thereby detract from the strenght of my country in its mortal struggle with the Cummunist enemy. I must be content to let history be my judge." The controversy over Davies apparently arose from his association with our attempts after World War Two to restore order in China.

In West Germany today, Chancellor Adenauer told his cabinet he will agree to ask France to re-open negotiations on the bitterly disputed Franco-German agreement on the Saar. Adenauer bowed to a revolt in his own government. During the recent 9-power conference French Premier Mendes-France warned that France would not ratify the German re-armament treaty unless it was accompanied by a settlement of the future of the Saar. And Mendes-France repeated this today to his foreign affairs committee. In Washington, the Defense Department added another 24 names to the casualty list of the Korean war..making it a total of 142,091. And the Air Force reports that four men, missing almost two years since their b-29 bomber was shot down in Korea, recently sent letters home.

India's Prime Minister Nehru returned to New Delhi today from a 10-day visit to Communist China. He said the visit had "an improving affect" on the world situation. Informed sources say Nehru told the Communists he expected them to negotiate for Formosa and not attempt an invasion of the Chinese Nationalist fortress. Nehru also told reporters in New Delhi he has never talked about retiring...just about leaving the prime ministership.

The acute problems of the atomic age are usaally more hinted at than explained by those conducting national and international affairs. Today at the United Nations, Ambassador Lodge departed from the pattern to speak boldly about the possible benefits of the atomic energy to the human race. His speech has some of the qualities of a good lecture; it was vivid, informed, and authoritative. He was speaking in support of the President's proposal for an International Atomic Energy Agency.

Until recently this could be described as an international bank, or pool of nuclear materials. But pooled ownership no longer is a central feature of it. Mr. Lodge does not propose that the Agency should actually own nuclear materials which it would distribute for peaceful uses. Instead it will arrange for approved national projects to receive materials direct from the states donating them. That makes it a clearing-house rather tnan a bank or pool. Mr. Lodge said the structure had been changed because the Soviet Union objected to the original idea.

But before reporting more about the Lodge speech I should call attention to a unanimous vote in the General Assemply yesterday, asking the five leading atomic powers to revive the sub committee on disarmament and the control of conventional and nuclear weapons. The Soviet Union was one of the powers sponsoring the proposal, and much store has been laid on the achievement of unanimity with the Soviet bloc on this fresh approach. But the unanimity so far is mostly on procedure. Nor the realities of nuclear destructiveness are being taken behind closed doors for many months of the stiffest kind of negotiations.

One can speak of the bright side and the dark side of atomic power, the side of peaceful uses and the side of destructive uses. About the bright side the public apparently is to learn a great deal, for the Eisenhower plan now is to be debated at length in the United Nations, and if it is adopted a great many national and international activities will be possible.

But about the dark side there will be no such enlightenment. The debate in that field will be held in secret. No doubt that is unavoidable, since agreement on such a delicate and monumentous subject can hardly be engineered in public. But in the end the public has to know and approve of what is proposed to assure its survival. A better idea of the perils of the atomic age, and of the possibilities of control, will be needed for a great many people to endorese ahe needed political action. Knowledge about the bright side of atomic power will help when the time comes. But it is a paradox that the United Sations should consign the discussion of atomic destruvtiveness to a secret room, while raising the curtain on the discussion on atomic usefulness.

Mr. Eisenhower meant the new international agency to be a kind of proving ground of good will, where mutual suspicions could be dispelled and the co-operation could be demonstrated. It was his first idea that controlled disarmament in nuclear weapons would be easier after we had shown the Soviet leaders we could work together harmoniously for peaceful atomic uses. That no longer can count as the chief motive. The agency now is just a practical scheme to stimulate the study of the peaceful uses, arrange for guilding small reactors in many parts of the world and distribute nuclear materials for approved projects.

As Mr. Lodge spelled out the proposal, the United Nations is not to set up the Agency. It will be created by negotiations and treaties among interested states. But he assured the delegates that it would stand in relation to the U.N. as do other specialized agencies. It would consult and co-operate with other U.N. bodies, as well as with the national atomic energy organizazations, and the already existing European Nuclear Research Organization.

In this way, Mr. Lodge said, he hoped that unending arguments and insuperable vetoes could be avoided.

Mr. Lodge's exposition of the peaceful uses of atomic energy started with the story of isotopes, of which he said 50,000 shipments have already been made by the Atomic Energy Commission to factories, laboratories, and universities, some of them abroad. Isotopes, he explained, serve two general purposes, the changing of living things by radiation; and as tracers. Under the first heading he told about killing cancerous cells, preserving food for storage, and speeding up the developement of new agricultural strains.

He told how isotopes as tracers are used in manufacture, in keeping flat sheets at a constant thickness, in finding flaws in welding and riveting, in testing the flow of oil through pipelines, in learning how growing plants absorb fertilizer and in studying effective feed for poultry. H outlines a dozen remarkable uses in medicine, and foresaw a time when the process of plant growth will be understood so that food, at least can be made of common chemicals. And finally he spoke of the developement of electrical power.

It is a moving subject. Still more fabulous progress is to be expected. But the future of mankind surely will be affected more immediately by the negotiations on disarmament. And here the hopes for success must be regarded as dim.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a minute with the Word for Today. But first, a word from Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: As Ambassador Lodge suggested today, the time has come for man to re-evaluate himself in the shadow of the atom. Samuel Johnson once remarked: "Those, who in the confidence of superior capacities or attainments, neglect the common maxims of life, should be reminded that nothing will supply the want of prudence; and that negligence, long continues, will make knowledge useless and genius contemptible."

Good Night and Good Luck.

Monday, November 8, 1954

This is the news:

The United States has demanded "moral and material" reperattions from the Soviet Union..for a B-29 bomber, shot down over Japanese territory. We say: the (PLANE) and its eleven man crew was less than three miles off the Japanese coast when two Migs approached and started firing. The Russians say we violated their territory, that their Migs were going to ask us to leave when the B-29 bomber, on a photo-mapping mission, opened fire. Ten men parachuted to safety. The (11th) Lieut Angéulo of Los Angeles, drowned when his (Parachute) became ensnarled.

The President , speaking in Boston today, referred to this as a (provocation. He told the National Council of Catholic Women that the "specter of war looms less threateningly now", despite such provocations as the Russian attack on our plane. Mr. Eisenhower said: Fathers and mothers of America rejoice that the possibility of permanent peace is more promising than in any time in recent years." He added: "To attain enduring peace while living in freedom must be the over-riding goal of American foreign policy."

2

The President today nominated Circuit Court Judge John Marshal Harlan to the supreme court..to replace the late Justice Jackson. John Marshal Harlan is 55..his grandfather sat on the Supreme Court from 1877 to 1911. Harlan is a [redacted] native of Chicago..attended Princeton and the New York Law School, and Oxford. In 1951 he served as chief counsel to Governor Dewey's Crime Commission. He has had long experience in the private practise of law and he represented Du Pont in a recent anti-trust case in Chicago. Judge Harlan was appointed to the federal circuit court last March. That has been his only experience on the bench.

The president also named Joseph Campbell, a member of the atomic energy commission, to be comptroller general..succeeding Lindsay Warren who retired last spring because of illness. Campbell, [redacted] a former official of Columbia University, where Mr. Eisenhower once served as president, is an accountant by profession. The job of comptroller general pays $17,500 for 15 years.

The President also named Theophil Carl Kammholz , a 45-year-old Chicago attorney to be general counsel of the National Labor Relations Board..beginning in December when the term of George J. Bott expires.

Labor Secretary Mitchell said today he's going to form a committee of union leaders to advise him on legislation and other matters. Mitchell, who was the target of much labor criticism in the recent election campaign, said he'll also set up a seperate committee of employer representatives. He thinks it's better to get the views of both groups--independently--rather than in a joint committee.

The Senate today started debate on a committee proposal to censure Senator McCarthy. Before packed galleries, McCarthy today centered his attention on the recommendation that he be censured for using "vulgar" language against Senator Hendrickson. McCarthy called this "imbecilic"..."fantastic" and "ridiculous beyond words." The Senator also called "completely improper" a last-minute change in the committee's report. Chairman Watkins said it was technical in nature and later McCarthy told reporters it didn't make any major difference. Before the debate started McCarthy told reporters that even if the Senate censures him he will continue "fighting the DIRTIEST fighters in the world until the Communists win or until we die."

At the United Nations today, Andrei Vishinsky indicated that Russia will try to get the veto power if it participates in the President's plan to use atomic power for peace. Vishinsky also indicated he wants a ban on all nuclear weapons. Ambassador Lodge made clear our opposition to any veto power in the atomic plan. And he pointed out that the suggested ban on atomic weapons should be considered by the United Nations group considering disarmament. The French today endorsed the President's plan with Delegate Jules Moch saying "it calls for our gratitude toward the United States for its initiative on the question of developing peaceful uses of atomic energy."

In India today the working committee of India's top Congress Party agreed to let Prime Minister Nehru step down from the party chairmanship. But the committee told Nehru his suggested resignation as prime minister is "inconceivable."

The Washington Post and Times-Herald reported today that President Eisenhower personally over-ruled a recommendation by the Joint Chiefs of staff on what we should do about the Chinese situation. The newspaper says the Joint Chiefs recommended that our planes be ordered to bomb Red China if the Communists open an all-out attack on Nationalist-held Quemoy island. The President over-ruled this, even though it had been endorsed by Secretary of State Dulles as well as the Joint Chiefs. There is no comment from the White House.

The American League today officially approved the shift of the Philadelphia Athletics to Kansas City. And Arnold Johnson, the new owner, agreed to sell his interests in the Yankee stadium, home of the New York Yankees, within 90 days.

Bill Costello - just back from Asia -

Ed, this was my third trip in five years, covering Asia from one end to another. And I have nohesitation in saying this was the most exciting trip of all. It was exciting because for the first time in the last fifteen years, I saw real evidence that the standard of living in Asia is beginning to rise. I don't want to exaggerate that idea. No one should imagine that the people of Asia are yet beginning to live well. Not at all...for there is still tremendous poverty in most countries. What was impressive was the fact that primitive economies are at long last beginning to pull themselves up out of the mud. By comparison with any earlier period -- either before or after the war -- there is something like prosperity in most parts of Asia.

You notice the change right away at the airports, at the hotels, in the restaurants. Just little things. In Bangkok, for example, they've built a new airport terminal building --and in Rangoon and Karachi they've got new buildings under construction. Since the partition of India and Pakistan in 1947, the population of Karachi has increased from 300 thousand to a million and a half -- that's an increase of five times -- and by now there is some kind of a dwelling for most of the million and a half in the capital. In hotels in almost every country, there is new table linen, new sugar-bowls and salt-and-pepper shakers. A glance around the principal cities of Asia is enough to show that enough paint has been spread to float a small navy. It's the same with soap -- and scrub rags. In 1946, every rag was being worn by someone, and a bar of soap was worth a junior king-sized ransom; today most of the foul odors are gone; a good deal of the grit and grime has been washed away. Building after building is being cleaned and painted and repaired. Old furniture is being thrown out and replaced with new pieces. People are more neatly dressed than I have ever seen them in Asia. That doesn't mean: expensively dressed. For the most part, men and women wear simple cotton ~~xxxxxxxx~~ garments, but all except the common manual laborers keep so clean and tidy it's evident they have more than one dress, or more than one pair of pants.

And in some countries there is such an outpouring of energy that it's almost unbelievable...energy devoted to new construction,and industrialization programs, and public works of all kinds. In Bangkok it's particularly noticeable; practically the entire city is having its face lifted -- new sewers, new storm drains, new sidewalks, and roadways, and canal embankments, new barracks, and office buildings, and government offices and even new land -- land that's being lifted up above flood level by digging the ~~ix~~ canals deeper. Even in Saigon, the capital of war-torn Vietnam, one has an impression that people are building actively and hopefully for the future. The political outlook may be bleak -- it is difficult to see how the divided country can remain prosperous and progressive; but people seem to have stopped computing the mathematical odds. The country is underpopulated, and there is room for expansion; on the strength of that assurance, people are plunging ahead in a spirit of blind faith in the future. Everyone seems to have a plan for that future -- ~~xx~~ and nobody nowadays even mentions that old familiar bromide of the old colonial days -- oriental fatalism. If there ever was anything like fatalism in Asia, somebody seems to have given it a decent, quiet burial. There are still traditionalists and backward-looking people who balk at progressive measures -- but ~~xxx~~ ~~xxx~~ their voices are being drowned out by the optimists, those who have faith in tomorrow. One of the evidences of progress and prosperity is ~~xxxxxxx

It is the fact that there are serious shortages of consumer goods in some countries, notably Pakistan. The fact, of course, is that programs for the production of consumer goods have had to start at a very fundamental level, -- in such projects as hydroelectric power development, in irrigation, in the construction of cement factories and metal fabrocating plants. While this development is taking place, payrolls are increased; the people have more purchasing power -- but there is no corresponding increase in the amount of consumer goods on the market. This means people have money to spend, and nothing to buy -- a fact that creates unrest and resentment. It was because of this feeling that the United States recently agreed to give Pakistan 80 million dollars worth of consumer goods. Emergency measures have to be taken to tide the backward countries over their growing pains during this period of expansion and development.

It is not true that Asia is drifting toward communism. Even in India friends spent much of their time telling me gleefully how they are defeating communism. The standard of living is going up -- the rate is painfully slow, but there is still an opportunity for the free nations of the capitalist world to profit by the new trend in free Asia.

As my colleague, Bill Costello, has pointed out, the battle for Asia has not been lost. And the free nations of the world can still meet the challenge of Communism there. Philip Bailey once offered some good advice: "Live in deeds, not years; in thought, not breath; in feelings, not in figures on a dial. Do not count time by heart-throbs. He most lives, who thinks most, feels the noblest, acts the best."

Good Nite and Good Luck.

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 8, 1954
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

The United States had demanded "moral and material" reperations from the Soviet Union..for a B-29 bomber shot down over Japanese territory. We say: the plane and its eleven man crew was less than three miles off the Japanese coast when two Migs approached and started firing. The Russians say we violated their territory; that their Migs were going to ask us to leave when the B-29 bomber, on a photo-mapping mission, opened fire. Ten men parachuted to safety. The 11th , Lt. Angeulo of Los Angeles, drowned when his parachute became ensnarled.

The President, speaking in Boston today, referred to this as a provocation. He told the National Council of Catholic Women that the "spectre of war looms less threateningly now" despite such provocations as the Russian attack on our plane. Mr. Eisenhower said: Fathers and mothers of America rejoice that the possibility of permanent peace is more promising than in any time in recent years. " He added: "To attain enduring peace while living in freedom, must be the over-riding goal of American foreign policy."

The President today nominated Circuit Court Judge John Marshall Harlan to the Supreme Court..to replace the late Justice Jackson. John Marshall Harlan is 55...his grandfather sat on the Supreme Court from 1877 to 1911. Harlan is a native of Chicago. ..attended Princeton and the New York Law School, and Oxford. In 1951 he served as chief counsel to Governor Dewey's Crime Commission. He was had long experience in the private practise of law and he represented Du Pont in a recent anti-trust case, in Chicago. Jusde Harlan was appointed to the federal circuit court last March. That has been his only experience in the bench.

The President also named Joseph Campbell, a member of the atomic energy commission, to be comptroller general...succeeding Lindsay Warren, who retired last spring because of illness. Campbell, a former official of Columbia University, where Mr. Eisenhower once served as president, is an accountant by profession. The job of comptroller general pays $17,500 for 15 years.

The President also named Theophil Carl Kammholz, a 45-year-old Chicago attorney to be general counsel of the National Labor Relations Board...beginning in December when the term of George J. Bott expires.

Labor Secretary Mitchell said today he's going to form a committee of union leaders to advise him on legislation and other matters. Mitchell, who was the target of much labor criticism in the recent election campaign, said he'll also set up a separate committee of employer representatives. He thinks it's better to get the views of both groups -- independently -- rather than in a joint committee.

The Senate today started debate on a committee proposal to censure Senator McCarthy. Before packed galleries, McCarthy today centered his attention on the recommendation that he be censured for using "vulgar" language against Senator Hendrickson. McCarthy called this "imbecillic"..."fantastic" and "ridiculous beyond words." The Senator also called "completely improper" a last-minute change in the committee's report. Chairman Watkins said it was technical in nature and later McCarthy told reporters it didn't take any difference. Before the debate started McCarthy told reporters that even if the Senate censures him, he will continue fighting the dirtiest fighters in the world until the Communists win or until we die."

At the United Nations today, Andrei Vishinsky indicated that Russia will try to get the veto power if it participates in the President's plan to use atomic power for peace. Vishinsky also indicated he wants a ban on all nuclear weapons. Ambassador Lodge made clear our opposition to any veto power in the atomic plan. And he pointed out that the suggested ban on atomic weapons should be considered by the United Nations group considering disarmament. The French today endorsed the President's plan with Delegate Jules Moch saying "it calls for our gratitude toward the United States for its initiative on the question of developing peaceful uses of atomic energy."

In India today the workin committee of India's top Congress Party agreed to let Prime Minister Nehru step down from the party chairmanship. But the committee told Nehru his suggested resignation as prime minister is "inconceiveable".

The Washington Post and Times Herald reported today that President Eisenhower personally over-ruled a recommendation by the Joint Chiefs of Staff on what we should do about the Chinese situation. The newspaper says the Joint Chiefs recommended that our planes by ordered to bomb Red China if the Communists open an all-out attack on the Nationalist-held Quemoy island. The President over-ruled this, even though it had been endorsed by Secretary of State Dulles as well as the Joint Chiefs. There is no comment from the White House.

The American League today officially approved the shift of the Philadelphia Athletics to Kansas City. And Arnold Johnson, the new owner, agreed to sell his interests in the Yankee stadium, home of the New York Yankees, within 90 days.

My old friend and colleague, Bill Costello, who is usually stationed in Washington, is just back from a trip to Asia. Bill--

COSTELLO: Ed, this is my third trip in five years, covering Asia from one end to another. And I have no hesitation in saying this was the most exciting trip of all. It was exciting because for the first time in the last fifteen years, I saw real evidence that the standard of living in Asia is beginning to rise. I don't want to exaggerate that idea. No one should imagine that the people of Asia are yet beginning to live well. Not at all.. for there is still tremendous poverty in most countries. What was impressive was the fact that primitive economies are at long last beginning to pull themselves up out of the mud. By comparison with any earlier period -- either before or after the war -- there is something like prosperity in most parts of Asia.

You notice the change right away at the airports, at the hotels, in the restaurants. Just little things. In Bangkok, for example, they've built a new airport terminal building -- and in Rangoon and Karachi thy've got new buildings under construction. Since the partition of India and Pakistan in 1947, the population of Karachi has increased from 300 thousand to a million and a half -- that 's an increase of five times -- and by now there is some kind of dwelling for most of the million and a half in the capital. In hotels in almost every country, there is new table linen, new sugar-bowls and salt-and pepper shakers. A glance around the principal cities of Asia is enough to show that enough paint has been spread to float a small navy. It's the same with soap -- and scrub rags. In 1946, every rag was being worn by someone, and a bar of soap was worth a junior king-sized ransome; today most of the foul odors are gone; a good deal of the grit and grime has been washed away, Building after building is being cleaned and painted and repaired. Old furniture is being thrown out and replaced with new pieces. People are more neatly dressed than I have ever seen them in Asia. That doesn't mean: expensively dressed. For the most part, men and women wear simple cotton garments, but all except the common manual laborers keep so clean and tidy it's evident they have more than one dress, or more than one pair of pants.

An in some countries there is such an outpouring of energy that it's almost unbelievable ...energy devoted to new construction, and industrialization programs, and public works of all kinds. In Banghok it's particularly noticeable; practically the entire city is having its face lifted--up above flood level by digging the canals deeper. In in Saigon, the capital of war-torn Vietnam, one has an impression that people are building actively and hopefully for the future. The political outlook may be bleak -- it is difficult to see how the divided country can remain prosperous and progressive; but people seem to have stopped computing the mathematical ical odds. The country is underpopulated, and there is room for expansion; on the strength of that assurance, people are plunging ahead in a spirit of blind faith in the future. Everyone seems to have a plan for that future -- and nobody nowadays even mentions that old familiar bromide of the old colonial days -- oriental fatalism. If there ever was anything like fatalism in Asia, somebody seems to have given it a decent, quiet burial. There are still traditionalists and backward-looking people who balk at progressive measures -- but their voices are being drowned out by the optimists, those who have faith in tomorrow. One of the evidences of progress and prosperity is a fact that outwardly seems to contradict itself.

It is the fact that there are serious shortages of consumer goods in some countries, notably Pakistan. The fact, of course, is that programs for the production of consumer goods have had to start at a very fundamental level -- in such projects as hydroelectric power developement, in irrigation, in the construction of cement factories and metal fabricating plants. While this developement is taking place, payrolls are increased; the people have more purchasing power -- but there is no corresponding increase in the amount of consumer goods on the market. This means people have money to spend, and nothing to buy -- a fact that creates unrest and resentment. It was because of this feeling that the United States recently agreed to give Pakistan 80 million dollars worth of consumer goods. Emergency measures have to be taken to tide the backward countries over growing pains during the period of expansion and developement.

It is not true than Asia is drifitng toward communism, Even in India friends spend much of their time telling me gleefully how they are defeating Communism. The standard of living id going up -- the rate is painfully slow, but there is still an opportunity for the free nations of the capitalist world to profit by the new trend in free Asia.

MURROW: This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a moment with the Word for Today, but first, a word from Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCAIL

MURROW: As my colleague Bill Costello has pointed out, the battle for Asia has not been lost. And the free nations of thw rorld can still meet the challenge of Communism there. Philip Bailey once offered some good advice; "Live in deeds, not years; in thought, not breath; in feelings, not in figures on a dial. Do not count time by heart-throbs. He most lives who thinks most, feels the noblest, acts the best."

Good Night and Good Luck!

Tuesday November 9, 1954

This is the news:

The Watkins committee today formally introduced in the senate a resolution to Censure Senator McCarthy. And Mc Carthy released a speech he has prepared for tomorrow's meeting. McCarthy charges the Watkins committee is "the unwitting handmaiden of the Communist party.. an involuntary agent of the party..imitated Communist methods in writing its report..has done the work of the Communist party..and co-operated in the achivement of Communist goals. The Senator said he is not saying that the Watkins committee "knowingly did the work of the Communist party." Mc Carthy charges the committee "distorted, misrepresented and omitted in its effort" to manufacture reasons to advise the Senate to cesnure him. And the committee charged today that McCarthy's conduct was "contemptuous, contumacious and denunciatory without reason or justification" in the way he failed to co-operate with a Senate subcommittee in 1951. The committee also charges that McCarthy "intemperately abused" General Zwicker and acted in a "reprehensible way." The debate continues tomorrow.

Secretary of State Dulles said today that the President has made it unmistakably clear that a preventive war with the Soviet Union could never be accepted as American policy. And the Secretary told reporters we are considering giving fighter escorts to our planes that fly near Communist territory. The Joint Chiefs of Staff are now considering this. The Secretary said our B-29 bomber, shot down by Russian Migs on Sunday, had authority to shoot back.. the pilot made a hairline decision against doing so. And Mr. Dulles said it was a similar hairline decision by Ambassador to Moscow Bohlen that led him to go to a Russian party in Moscow after he had at least fragmentary reports of the attack on our plane. Bohlen did not have instructions from Washington.

Mr. Dulles also told reporters he will not make public the record of the case of John Paton Davies, dismissed after 23 years in the foreign service, because of "lack of judgement, discretion and reliability." Mr. Dulles said some of this is secret..and it wouldn't be fair to reveal just parts of it.

Communist China charged today that six waves of American air force planes flew over her south coast last Sunday. Peping radio called this "new encroachment on China's territorial air."

Prime Minister Churchill said in London today: he thinks East and West should try to "live in a friendly way with each other". He said "we don't agree with Communism"..with its oppression and one-party system. But, so long as the Soviet people want that kind of government and "don't engage us, then I think its a matter for them to decide for themselves."

The French National Assembly today gave a vote of confidence to Premier- Mendez-France..just four days before his scheduled departure for a visit to the United States and Canada. But it was the smallest margin he has received yet. [redacted]. The issue was on the budget..with many deputies wanting more funds to be spent than Mendez-France suggested.

At the United Nations, here in New York, A Swedish delegate..Rickard Sandler...asked the United States whether we have found any way to prevent the diversion of atomic materials from peaceful to warlike purposes. Sandler said such a development would be [redacted] revolutionary because an International agency, as proposed by the President, could then distribute atomic materials without the risk that they could be used as weapons. American sources indicate we may make a statement tomorrow.

The Joint congressional atomic energy committee has decided to [redacted] vote tomorrow [redacted] on a Democratic proposal to give the controversial Dixon-Yates contract "a quiet burial." The Democrats want to ask the Atomic Energy Commission to side-track the issue until the Democrats take control of Congress in January. Senate Democratic Leader Johnson of Texas says the contract can be given a quiet burial if it's delayed until next year. Today, Governor Frank Clement of Tennessee warned the congressional committee that the contract is "part of a national conspiracy on the part of private power companies to destroy the Tennessee Valley Authority." And Alex Radin, general manager of the American Public Power Association, called the contract "an opening wedge in the crippling" of T.V.A.

Dr. Albert Einstein says in a letter published in the Reporter Magazine that he wouldn't want to become a scientist, scholar or teacher if he had to do it all over again. He says he'd chose to be a plumber or a peddler "in the hope to find that modest degree of independence still available under present circumstances."

Edward R. Murrow: November 9, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

The future of Asia in the cold war is not easy to discuss in simple terms. Premier Yoshida of Japan, in a talk in Washington yesterday, succeeded in being simple, by producing an economic yardstick to measure the problem. He saw the economic development of Communist China as the great danger to the free nations of Asia, and that they could be pulled into the Communist world by the sheer force of gravitation. The only way to prevent it, he said, was for the free nations to have an economic development of their own equal power. Communist China, he pointed out, is creating capital twice as fast, on a per capita basis, as the states of Southeast Asia, and thus building up an economic pull ten times as strong. It was doing this by drawing down the blinds and putting the screws on its people. Yet he foresaw the free nations falling to the Communists without a struggle unless they were able to offset this ~~gravitational~~ PULLING power. Since the amount now being spent in assisting the free ASIAN states is four hundred million dollars a year, it would take around four billion dollars a year to keep from losing the cold war.

Mr. Yoshida did not suggest that the United States should shoulder this enormous investment alone, as we did in Europe under the Marshall Plan. He wanted it done by the whole free world, working co-operatively, either through the Colombo plan, or something like the O.E.E.C., the Organization for European Economic Co-operation. Secretary Dulles at his NEWS conference today, said that plans for an enlarged economic program were being worked out for discussion with Premier Yoshida. The Colombo powers just finished their annual meeting, so the subject of adequate aid is under consideration. But it is telling no secrets to say that nothing like an annual four billion dollar investment is on the agenda.

It will help an understanding of the Asian problem to divide it into two parts. Part One has to do with keeping the cold war cold; Part Two has to do with winning it if it is kept cold. Premier Yoshida was talking about Part Two, about winning it. He did not dramatize his assertions. He did not say: see here, you had better start thinking in terms of four billion dollars a year, otherwise Japan and all the other free nations of Asia will be sucked into the Communist world. Nor did he try to tell his American hosts what it would mean to lose the cold war. Undoubtedly he assumed that Americans know this already, as some of them do. Yet he was speaking in a country that is looking almost exclusively on Part One of the Asian problem, the part of keeping the cold war cold. And he was doing so at a moment when this country is excited by vivid and immediate difficulties.

One of these is the shooting down of the U.S. plane by Soviet fighters, which Senator Knowland said today was deliberately done to make Americans lose face in Asia. Another is the danger of the outbreak of hostilities between Chinese Communists and Nationalists over the Nationalist-held islands, and what American policy should be in that event.

Senator Knowland is indignant because Ambassador Bohlen went to a State dinner in Moscow after learning about the plane incident, and Secretary Dulles was at pains to explain that Bohlen learned only part of the facts at the last moment, and had to make up his own mind whether to stay away from the dinner without instructions in the matter. There was more interest at the Dulles NEWS conference in this episode than in what Premier Yoshida had said.

President Eisenhower, speaking in Boston yesterday, did not let the plane incident weaken his confidence that the prospect for world peace is improving. He is entitled to his confidence, since he himself has been responsible for guiding American policy away from dangers that could end in hot war. He went against weighty advice in ruling out the use of U.S. Naval air power in the relief of Dienbienphu. He went against similarly weighty advice to veto the use of Nationalist Chinese air power deep over the Chinese mainland, and a commitment to contribute American air power to defend Quemoy against invasion. Instead, Chiang Kai Shek was informed that he must not expect American support to put him back on the mainland, and this concept is delaying the completion of a mutual assistance pact with Nationalist China.

President Eisenhower, in going against weighty advice in ruling out actions in Asia that might lead to general war, is living up to his reputation as a peace president. I might say in passing that use was made of this reputation during the recent political campaign, and it accounted for some of the Republican vote, especially in the Middle West. It is simply journalistic accuracy to point out that what the President has done to preserve peace has not been partisan. Certainly the stand he took over intervention in Indochina, and in limiting Nationalist China, is not the product of Republican dogma. Important members of his party, as well as military experts, preferred and prefer a different course.

The President has focussed attention on the necessity of preventing world war because he believes such a war cannot be won by either side. Once policy has been guided safely into the waters of moderation, he will be free to turn attention to the other part of the Asian problem, that of winning the cold war. And then the words of Premier Yoshida can sink in. What the visitor from Japan outlined was a colossal task which this country is now not even ready to think about.

There are undoubtedly those who will argue that in helping to establish a stable government in Japan, we are simply strengthening the hand of a former enemy. But in a more moderate mood, George Eliot once remarked: "The most solid comfort one can fall back upon is the thought that the business of one's life is to help in some small way to reduce the sum of ignorance, degredation and misery on the face of this beautiful earth."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

The future of Asia in the cold war is not easy to discuss in simple terms. Premier Yoshida of Japan, in a talk in Washington yesterday, succeeded in being simple by producing an economic yardstick to measure the problem. ~~That is,~~ He saw the economic development of Communist China as the great danger to the free nations of Asia, and that they could be pulled into the Communist world by the sheer force of gravitation. The only way to prevent it, he said, was for the free nations to have an economic development of their own of equal power. Communist China, he pointed out, is creating capital twice as fast, on a per capita basis, as the states of Southeast Asia, and thus building up an economic pull ten times as strong. It was doing this by drawing down the blinds and putting the screws on its people. Yet he foresaw the free nations falling to the Communists without a struggle unless they were able to offset this gravitational power. Since the amount now being spent in assisting the free states is four hundred million dollars a year, it would take around four billion dollars a year to keep them from losing the cold war.

Mr.Yoshida did not suggest that the United States should shoulder this enormous investment alone, as we did in Europe under the Marshall Plan. He wanted it done by the whole free world, working cooperatively, either through the Colombo plan, or something like the OEEC, the Organisation for European Economic Cooperation. Secretary Dulles at this press conference today, said that plans for an enlarged economic program were being worked out for discussion with Premier Yoshida. And as the Colombo powers just finished their annual meeting, so the subject of adequate aid is under consideration. But it is telling no secrets to say that nothing like an annual four billion dollar investment is on the agenda.

¶ It will help an understanding of the Asian problem to divide it into two parts. Part One has to do with keeping the cold war cold, Part Two has to do with winning it if it is kept cold. Premier Yoshida was talking about Part Two, about winning it. He did not dramatize his assertions. He did not say: see here, you had better start thinking in terms of four billion dollars a year, otherwise Japan and all the other free nations of Asia will be sucked into the Com unist world. Nor did he try to tell his American hosts what it would mean to lose the cold war. Undoubtedly he assumed that Americans know this already, as some of them do. Yet he was speaking in a country that is looking almost exclusively on Part One of the Asian problem, the part of keeping the cold war cold. And he was doing so at a moment when this country is excited by vivid and immediate difficulties. One of these is the shooting down of the US plane by Soviet fighters, which Senator Knowland said today was deliberately done to make Americans lose face in Asia. Another is the danger of the outbreak of hostilities between Chinese Communists and Nationalists over the Nationalist-held islands, and what American policy should be in that event. Senator Knowland is indignant because Ambassador Bohlen went to a State dinner in Moscow after learning about the plane incident, and Secretary Dulles was at pains to explain that he learned only part of the facts at the last moment, and had to make up his own mind whether to stay away from the dinner without instructions in the matter. There was more interest at the Dulles press conference in this episode than in what Premier Yoshida had said.

President Eisenhower, speaking in Boston yesterday, did not let the plane incident weaken his confidence that the prospect for world peace is improving. He is entitled to his confidence, since he himself has been responsible for guiding American policy away from dangers that could end in hot war. He went against weighty advice in ruling out the use of US naval air power in the relief of Dienbienphu. He went against similarly weighty advice to veto the use of Nationalist Chinese airpower deep over the Chinese mainland, and a commitment to contribute American airpower to defend Quemoy against invasion. Instead, Chiang Kai Shek was informed that he must not expect American support to put him back on the mainland, and this concept is delaying the completion of a mutual assistance pact with Nationalist China.

¶ President Eisenhower, in going against weighty advice in ruling out actions in Asia that might lead to general war, is living up to his reputation as a peace president. I might say in passing that use was made of this reputation during the recent political campaign, and it accounted for some of the Republican vote, expecially in the Middle West. It is simply journalistic accuracy to point out that what the President has done to preserve peace has not been partisan. Certainly the stand he took over intervention in Indochina, and in limiting Nationalist China, is not the product of Republican dogma. Important members of his party, as well as military experts, preferred and prefer a different course.

¶ The President has focussed attention on the necessity of preventing world war because he believes such a war cannot be won by either side. Once policy has been guided safely into the waters of moderation, he will be free to turn attention to the other part of the Asian problem, that of winning the cold war. And then the words of Premier Yoshida will sink in. What The Visitor from Japan outlined was a colossal task which this country is now not even ready to think about.

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 9, 1954
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

The Watkins committee today formally introduced in the Senate a resolution to Censure Senator McCarthy. And Mc Carthy released a speech he has prepared for tomorrow's meeting. McCarthy charges the Watkins committee is "the unwitting handmaiden of the Communist party..."...an involuntary agent of the party...imitated Communist methods in writing its report...has done the work of the Communist party...and co-operated in the achievement of Communist goals. The Senator said he is not saying that the Watkins committee "knowingly did the work of the Communist party." McCarthy charges the committee "distorted, misrepresented and omitted in its effort" to manufacture reasons to advise the Senate to censure him. And the committee charged today that McCarthy's conduct was "contemptuous, contumacious, and denunciatory without reason or justification" in the way he failed to cooperate with a Senate subcommittee in 1951. The committee also charges that McCarthy "intemperately abused" General Zwicker and acted in a "reprehensible way." The debate continues tomorrow.

Secretary of State Dulles said today that the President has made it clear that a preventive war with the Soviet Union could never be accepted as American policy. And the Secretary told reporters we are considering giving fighter escorts to our planes that fly near Communist territory. The Joint Chiefs of Staff are now considering this. The Secretary said our B-29 bomber, shot down by Russian Migs on Sunday, had the authority to shoot back. The pilot made a hairline decision against doing so. And Mr. Dulles said it was a similar hairline decision by Ambassador to Moscow Bohlen that led him to go to a Russian party in Moscow after he has at least fragmentary reports of the attack on our plane. Bohlen did not have instructions from Washington.

Mr. Dulles also told reporters he will not make public the record of the case of John Paton Davies, dismissed after 23 years in the foreign service, because of "lack of judgement, discretion and reliability." Mr. Dulles said some of this is secret ...and it wouldn't be fair to reveal just parts of it.

Communist China charged today that six waves of American air force planes flew over her south coast last Sunday. Peping radio called this "new encroachment on China's territorial air."

Prime Minister Churchill said in London today: he thinks East and West should try to "live in a friendly way with each other." He said "we don't agree with Communism" ..with its oppression and one-party system. But, so long as the Soviet people want that kind of government and "don't engage us, then I think it's a matter for them to decide for themselves."

The French National Assembly today gave a vote of confidence to Premier Mendez-France...just four days before his scheduled departure for a visit to the United States and Canada. But it was the smallest margin he has received yet. The issue was on the budget ..with many deputies wanting more funds to be spent than Mendez-France suggested.

At the United Nations, here in New York, a Sweedish delegate ..Rickard Sandler...asked the United States whetner we have found any way to prevent the diversion of atomic materials from peaceful to warlike purposes. Sandler said such a developement would be revolutionary, because an international agency, as proposed by the President, could then distribute atomic materials without the risk that they could be used as weapons. American sources indicate we may make a statement tomorrow.

The Joint congressional atomic energy committee has decided to vote tomorrow on a Democratic proposal to give the controversial Dixon-Yates contract "a quiet burial". The Democrats want to ask the Atomic Energy Commission to side-track the issue until the Democrats take control of Congress in January. Senate Democratic Leader Johnson of Texas says the contract can be given "a quiet burial" if it is delayed until next year. Today, Governor Frank Clement of Tennessee warned the congressional committee that the contract is "part of a national conspiracy on the part of private power companies to destroy the Tennessee Valley authority." And Alex Radin, general manager of the American Public Power Association, called the contract "an opening wedge in the crippling of T.V.A."

Dr. Albert Einstein says in a letter published in the Reporter Magazine that he wouldn't want to become a scientist, scholar or teacher if he had to do it all over again. He says he'd chose to be a plumber or a peddler "in the hope to find that modest degree of independence still available under present circumstances.

The future of Asia in the cold war is not easy to discuss in simple terms. Premier Yoshida of Japan, in a talk in Washington yesterday, succeeded in being simple, by producint an economic yardstick to measure the problem. He saw the economic developement of Communist China as the great danger to the free nations of Asia, and that they could be pulled into the Communist world by the sheer force of gravitation. The only way to prevent it, he said, was for the free nations to have an economic development of their own equal power. Communist China, he pointed out, is creating capital twice as fast, on a per capita basis, as the states of Southeast Asia, and thus building up an economic pull ten times as strong. It was doing this, by drawing down the blinds and putting the screws on its people. Yet he foresaw thr free nations falling to the Communists without a struggle unless they are able to offset this pulling power. Since the amount now being spent in assisting the free Asian states is four hundred million dollars a year, it would take around four billion dollars a year to keep from losing the cold war.

Mr. Yoshida did not suggest that the United States should shoulder this enourmous investment alone, as we did in Europe under the Marshalll Plan. He wanted it done by the whole free world, working co-operatively, either through the Colombo plan, or something like the O.E.E.C...the organization for European Economic Co-operation. Secretary Dulles at his news conference today, said that plans for an enlarged economic program were being worked out for the discussion with Premier Yoshida. The Colombo powers just finished their Annual meeting, so the subject of adequate aid is under consideration. But it is telling no secrets to say that nothing like an annual four billion dollar investment is on the agenda.

It will help an understanding of the Asian problem to divide it into two parts. Part one, has to do with keeping the cold war cold; part two has to do with winning it if it is kept cold. Premier Yoshida was talking about part two, about winning it. He did not dramatize his assertions. He did not say: see here, you ahd better start thinking in terms of four billion dollars a year, otherwise Japan and all the other free nations of Asia will be sucked into the Communist world. Nor did he try to tell his American hosts what it would mean to lose the cold war. Undoubtedly he assumed that Americans know this already, as some of them do. Yet he was speaking in a country that is looking almost exclusively on part one of the Asian problem, the part of keeping the cold war cold. And he was doing so at a moment when this country is excited by vivid and immediate difficulties.. One of these is the shooting down of the U.S. plane by Soviet fighters, which Senator Knowland said today was deliberately done to make Americans lose face in Asia. Another is the danger of the outbreak of hostilities between Chinese Communists and Nationalists over the Nationalist-held islands, and what American policy should be in that event.

Senator Knowland is indignant because Ambassador Bohlen went to a State dinner in Moscow after learning about the plane incident, and Secretary Dulles was at pains to explain that Bohlen learned only part of the facts at the last moment, and had to make up his own mind whether to stay away from the dinner without instructions in the matter. There was more interest at the Dulles news conference in this episode than in what Premier Yoshida had said.

President Eisenhower, speaking in Boston yesterday, did not let the plane incident weaken his confidence that the prospect for world peace is improving. He is entitled to his confidence, since he himself has been responsible for guiding American policy away from dangers that could end in hot war. He went against weighty advice in ruling out the use of the U.S. Naval air power in the relief of Dienbienphu. He went against similarly weighty advice to veto the use of Nationalist Chinese air power deep over the Chinese mainland, and a commitientment to contribute American air power to defend Quemoy against invasion. Instead, Chiang Kai Shek was informed that he must not expect American support to put him back on the mainland, and this concept is delaying the completion of a mutual assistance pact with Nationalist China.

President Eisenhower, in going against weighty advice in ruling out actions in Asia that might lead to general war, is living up to his reputation as a peace president. I might say in passing that use was made of this reputation during the recent political campaign, and it accounted for some of the Republican vote, especially in the Middle West. It is simply journalistic accuracy to point out that what the President has done to preserve peace had not been partisan. Certainly the stand he took over intervention in Indochina, and in limiting Nationalist China, is not the product of Republican dogma. Important members of his party, as well as military experts, preferred and prefer a different course.

The President has focussed attention on the necessity of preventing world war because he believes such a war connot be won by either side. Once policy has been guided safely into the waters of moderation, he will be free to turn attention to the other part of the Asian problem, that of winning the cold war. And then the words of Premier Yoshida can sink in. What the visitor from Japan outlined was a collosal task which this country is now not even ready to think about.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a moment with the Word for Today, but first a word from Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCAIL

MURROW: There are undoubtedly those who will argue that in helping to establish a stable government in Japan, we are simply strentthining the hand of a former enemy. But in a more moderate mood, George Eliot once remarked: "The most solid comfort one can fall back upon is the thought that the business of one's life is to help in some small way to reduce the sum of ignorance, degredation and misery on the face of this beautiful earth."

Good Night and Good Luck!"

Wednesday, Nov. 10, 1954

This is the news:

The President took occasion three times in a busy day to emphasize his desire for peace. To a meeting of the National Conference of Christians and Jews he said: "A decent, lasting and just peace for all men" is his chief personal goal and that of all his associates in the Administration. He added: "Without the conception of the dignity of man founded on religious faith, we are sunk." Then--in a message to the Senate asking for approval of the Manila agreement, (the Southeast Asia Collective Security Pact), the President said it is "designed to promote security and peace in southeast Asia and the southwest Pacific by deterring Communist and other aggression in that area." He called the pact an "important link" in free world defenses.

And at his news conference, when questioned about the recent shooting-down of one of our bombers by Russian Migs, the President impressed most of the reporters with what they described as his calm and non-belligerent attitude. He approved the State Department's protest to Moscow, but he was "softer in tone" than Secretary of States Dulles was yesterday. The President said: our plane had a right to be where it was..but the area is a disputed border area.. there are some cloudy features in this incident. Mr. Eisenhower thinks the Russians seem more conciliatory over this incident than they have been towards similar past incidents. The President described it all as a very complicated tricky problem. He made it clear that we are the aggreived party and entitled to a courteous answer. But he also said: it isn't a clear cut thing where one can say "this must be so; that is that."

While Mr. Eisenhower found these occasions to stress his desire for peace, the Senate was getting into full stride on its debate over whether or not to censure Senator McCarthy. My colleague Wells Church spent most of the day watching and listening to that debate from the Senate radio gallery. Wells, what went on in the Senate today?

(runs 4 minutes ending: It starts again tomorrow at noon")

The President ~~is now on his way, by plane to~~ HAS ARRIVED AT his home in Abilene, Kansas, to dedicate the Eisenhower Memorial Museum. Before he left Washington he attended the dedication of the Marine Corps' war memorial near Arlington cemetery. The Memorial is a LARGE statue of the five Marines and one Sailor who raised the flag on IWO Jima in World War Two. And on this 179th anniversary of the Corps, Marine Commandant

General Shepherd called the memorial "not just a monument to the departed past but a graphic message to the future."

Earlier in the day at his news conference, the President told reporters he has friends among Democratic leaders and he anticipates no difficulty in going over mutual problems with them. And Mr. Eisenhower denied reports that this government has issued any orders to the Chinese Nationalists on Formosa. He said there's not an atom of truth in such statements. The American government treats its partners as partners..not as someone to give orders to. The President was told that the Russians may be outdistancing us in educating science students. And he said he believes the federal government could support some scholarships for science students... but not through any particular institutions. He suggested we might support scholarships to outstanding universities.

The President took note of the controversial Dixon-Yates power contract both at his news conference and later in a message to Chairman Cole of the Joint atomic energy committee. At the news conference he told reporters if the contract has fallen into political controversey, it is not his fault. He hasn't chagged his mind about it because nothing better has been offered. He deplores any effort to inject politics into any business organization of the government. He's interested in what's fair to the country. And he'll stick to Dixon-Yates until a better program is found to handle the situation.

Later, the congressional atomic energy committee turned down a Democratic move to block immediate signing of the contract. The Democrats wanted to put off until January, when they will control the Senate, any signing of this contract to feed private power into Tennessee Valley Authority Lines. The vote was ten to 8 with the Republicans agreeing to table the Democratic proposal.

After this vote, the President's letter to Chairman Cole was released. It called for quick acceptance of the contract..if the members find the actual terms satisfactory. The President contended that the principle of using private rather than public power to supplement energy resources of the T.V.A. Area represents justice to the country as a whole. He said: if the government takes full responsibility for the T.V.A. area then the rest of the country is entitled to similar treatment.

And Democratic Senator Anderson, a committee member, says

the Atomic Energy Committee and Dixon-Yates have now agreed to what he calls four major changes in the contract..to benefit the government. Anderson says this shows how "desperate the Administration is to cool the excitement over the plan...and how open hearings and open discussion can gain important concessions for the government.

The Air Force said today it has grounded all of our F-100 supersonic jet fighter planes as a result of three recent crashes. [redacted] was [redacted] An air force spokesman says the planes are being grounded "as a precautionary measure pending completion of a thorough investigation." The first deliveries on the 800-mile per hour jets...the Air Force's newest interceptor planes..began only last week.

The Department of Agriculture reports that 1954 crop production edged up slightly during October.. But severe drought in some areas of the [redacted] country and federal crop controls held this year's farm output well below 1952 and 1953 levels.

In Indo-China today, the Communist regime in the north is reported to have ordered its troops to prevent the flight to freedom of some 20 to 40-thousand native Catholic and Buddhist refugees. The United Press reports from Saigon that this apparently is Ho Chi Minh's answer to the armistice control commission's rejection of his demand that French warships be barred from aiding the refugees.

And the Chinese Communist radio says General Su Yu.. who advocates an attack to "Liberate Formosa" has been named chief of staff of the Chinese army. Four other new generals have been appointed to high positions in a high-level military shake-up.

In Korea, President Rhee says his people want "no foreign governments or foreign nationals" to dabble in elections seeking to unite north and south Korea. Rhee called on all friendly nationals "not to take up the Korean question until they "consult him and receive his agreement.

WORD FOR TODAY November 10, 1954.

Presumably the Senate is trying to get at the truth or falsity of charges against Senator McCarthy. In theory this should involve the application of logic. But already we begin to see what Mark Twain meant when he said: "Logic is logic; and by disregarding its laws even Emperors ... can be beguiled into making charges which should not be ventured upon except in the shelter of plenty of lightning-rods."

Goodnight and Good Luck!

CBS RADIO DIVISION

EDWARD R. MURROW

Wednesday, November 10, 1954
7:45-8:00 p.m.

MURROW: ..... While Mr. Eisenhower found these occasions to stress his desire for peace, the Senate was getting into full stride on its debate over whether or not to censure Senator McCarthy. My colleague, Wells Church, spent most of the day watching and listening to that debate from the Senate Radio Gallery.

Wells, what went on in the Senate today?

CHURCH: Probably the best way to tell you what it looked like in the Senate today, Ed, is to suggest that some of the confusion and indecision that came with the elections results somehow got wiped ... wiped off on the United States Senate. One real day of battle can't indicate a winner obviously, but cloakroom and corridor talk can still indicate Senator McCarthy's position is not as bad as it seemed to be before the special session convened. As just an example of the cloakroom talk, one reliable source told this reporter he wouldn't be surprised if the debate did go on until Christmas and, furthermore, he suspected the Republicans would be just as happy as not to shut (shunt-?)-(sic) the whole problem off into the laps of the triumphant Democrats. Certainly, all agreed there was a lack of fire in the debate today. They acted as though they wished it over and done with. No one but Senator McCarthy seemed to want to fight about the matter and even his vigorous punching at the sedate and thoroughly even-tempered Senator Watkins, of Utah, didn't disturb the even tenor of senatorial waves. In a dry, unemotional tone, the slightly ill Senator Watkins outlined the Committee report and then for more than an hour held his own nicely in a quiet battle of wits with Senator McCarthy. McCarthy's old tactic of asking the same question over and over again until some shred of confirmation of some point is elicited didn't work well at all today.

Over and over again Senator McCarthy attacked the legality of the Gillette Committee and over and over again Senator Watkins replied that on behalf of the honor of the Senate he, McCarthy, should have gone to the Committee to testify, or, Watkins once said "do you know what the charges were?" "That was the imprtant thing. You should have gone to the Committee or at least to the Senate itself to ask for redress."

On the other side of the aisle, Senator Fulbright, one of McCarthy's accusers, nodded his head emphatically in agreement. On the attacks on the select Committee which McCarthy said were stacked against him Watkins replied he had never worked with more honest men, men to whom it was clearly painful to find it necessary to vote in favor of censure of a Senate colleague. Later in the day, Senator Case, also defended the integrity of the Committee, noting that he, Case, was fond of McCarthy personally, that they had both been Marines, but that the Committee did its work fairly, even if with a heavy heart. Even daily worker agreement with the decisions was not good reason for welching on duty, he said. Senator Butler defended McCarthy. The latter was of great assistance when Butler defeated Millard Tydings, saying among other things that Senators who got involved in investigations of Communism invariably received more insults than in any other pursuit. He thought this fact should have been inserted alongside the Zwicker material in the select Committee report. The other Senator from Utah, Wallace F. Bennett, told Senators picking out a scapegoat wouldn't regain the dignity of the Senate; the Senators must look within themselves for the answer, he said.

The galleries were full, generally quiet and attentive. Between thirty and forty-five Senators were always in the chamber and defeated Senator John Sherman Cooper was given a warm welcome when he came in. The only time the galleries laughed out loud was when Senator Case agreed that Vermont Senator Flanders calling McCarthy not only Hitler but "Dennis the Menace" was really not cricket either. Anyway, that's the story, Ed, and it starts again tomorrow at noon.

Ed.trans.AA.Cardiff (30)

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 10, 1954
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

The President took occasion three times in a busy day to emphasize his desire for peace. To a meeting of the National Conference of Christians and Jews he said: "A decent, lasting and just peace for all men", is his chief personal goal and that of all his associates in the Administration. He added: "Without the conception of the dignity of man, founded on religious faith, we are sunk." Then -- in a measage to the Senate asking for approval of the Manila agreement...the Southeast Asia Collective Securtiy Pact... the President said it is "designed to promote security and peace in southeast Asia and the southwest Pacific by deterring Communist and other aggression in that area. "He called the pact an "important link" in free world defenses.

And it his news conference, when questioned about the recent shooting-down of one of our bombers by Russian Migs, the President impressed most of the reporters with what they described as his calm and non-belligerant attitude. He approved the State Department's protest to Moscow; but he was "softer in tone" than Secretary of State Dulles was yesterday. The President said: our plane had a right to be where it was...but the area is a disputed border area...there are some cloudy features in this incident. Mr. Eisenhower thinks the Russians seem more conciliatory over this incident than they have been towards similar past incidents. The President described it all as a very complicated tricky problem. He made it clear that we are the aggrieved party and entitled to a courteous answer. But he also said: it isn't a clear cut thing where one can say "this must be so; that is that."

While Mr. Eisenhower found these occasions to stress his desire for peace, the Senate was getting into full stride on its debate over whether or not to censure Senator McCarthy. My colleague, Wells Church, spend most of the day watching and listening to that debate from the Senate Radio Gallery. Wells, what went on in the Senate today?

CHURCH: Probably the best way to tell you what it looked like is the Senate today, Ed, is to suggest that some of the confusion and indecision that came with the elections results somehow got wiped..wiped off on the United States Senate. One real day of battle can't indicate a winner obviously, but cloak room and corridor talk can still indicate Senator McCarthy's position is not as bad as it seemed to be before the special session convened. As just an example of the cloakroom talk, one reliable source told this reporter he wouldn't be surprised if the debate did go on until Christmas and, further more, he suspected the Republicans would be just as happy not to shunt the whole problem off into the laps of the triumphant Democrats. Certainly, all agreed there was a lack of fire in the debate today. They acted as though they wished it over and done with. No one but Senator McCarthy seemed to want to fight about the matter and even his vigorous punching at the sedate and thoroughly even-tempered Senator Watkins, of Utah, didn't disturb the even tenor of senatorial waves. In a dry, unemotional tone, the slightly ill Senator Watkins outlined the Committee report and then for more than an hour held his own nicely in a quiet battle of with Senator McCarthy. McCarthy's old tactic of asking the same question over and over again until some shred of confirmation of some point is elecited didn't work at all well today.

Over and over aginr Senator McCarthy attacked the legality of the Gillette Committee and over and over again Senator Watkins replied that on behalf of the honor of the Senate he, McCarthy, should have gone to the Committee to testify, or, Watkins once said "do you know what the charges were?" "That as the important thing. You should have gone to the Committee or at least to the Senate itself to ask for redress."

On the other side of the aisle, Senator Fulbright, one of McCarthy's accusers, nodded his head emphatically in agreement. On the attacks on the select Committee which McCarthy said were stacked against him Watkins replied he had never worked with more honest men, men to whom it was clearly painful to find it necessary to vote in favor of censure of a Senate colleague. Later in the day, Senator Case also defended the integrity of the Committee, noting that he, Case, was fond of McCarthy personally, that they had both been Marines, but that the Committee did its work fairly, even if with a heavy heart. Even Daily Worker agreement with the decisions was not good reason for welching on duty, he said. Senator Butler defended McCarthy. The latter was of great assistance when Butler defeated Millard Tydings, saying among other things that Senators who got involved in the investigations of Communism invariably received more insults than in any other pursuit..He thought this fact should have been inserted alongside the Zwicker material in the select Committee report. The other Senator from Utah, Wallace F. Bennett, told Senators picking out a scapegoat wouldn't regain the dignity of the Senate; the Senators must look within themselves for the answer, he siad.

The galleries were full, generally quiet and attentive. Between thirty and forty-five Senators were always in the chamber and defeated Senator John Sherman Cooper was given a warm welcome when he came in. The only time the galleries laughed out loud was when Senator Case agreed that Vermont Senator Flanders calling McCarthy not only Hitler but "Dennis the Menace" was really not cricket either. Anyway, that's the story, Ed, and it starts again tomorrow at noon.

MURROW: The President has arrived at his home in Abilene, Kansas, to dedicate the Eisenhower Memorial Museum. Before he left Washington he attended the dedication of the Marine Corps' war memorial near Arlington cemetery. The memorial is a large statue of the five Marines and one sailor who raised the flag on Iwo Jima in World War Two. And on this 179th anniversary of the Corps, Marine Commandant, General Shepherd called the memorial "not just a monument to the departed past but a graphic message to the future."

Earlier in the day at his news conference, the President told reporters he has friends among Democratic leaders and he anticipates no difficulty in going over mutual problems with them. And Mr. Eisenhower denied reports that this government has issues any orders to the Chinese Nationalists on Formosa. He said there's not an atom of truth in such statements. The American governemtn treats its partners as partners..not as someone to give orders to. The President was told that the Russians may be outdistancing us in educating science students. And he said he believes the federal government could support some scholarships for science students..but not through any particular institutions. He suggested we might support scholarships to outstanding universities.

The President took note of the controversial Dixon-Yates power contract both at his news conference and later in a message to Chairman Cole of the Joint Atomic Energy Committee. At the news conference th told reporters if the contract had fallen into political controversey, it ws not his fault. He hasn't changed his mind about it because nothing better has been offered.

He deplores any effort to inject politics into any business organization of the government. He's interested in what's fair to the country. And he'll stick to Dixon-Yates until a better program is found to handle the situation.

Later, the congressional atomic energy committee turned down a Democratic move to block immediate signing of the contract. The Democrats wanted to put off until January, when they will control the Senate, any signing of this contract to feed private power into Tennessee Valley Authority Lines. The vote was ten to 8 with the Republicans agreeing to table the Democratic proposal.

After this vote, the President's letter to Chairman Cole was released. It called for quick acceptance of the contract..if the members find the actual terms satisfactory. The President contended that the principle of suing private rather than public power to suppliment energy resources of the T.V.A. Area represents justice to the country as a whole. He said: if the government takes full responsibility for the T.V.A. area then the rest of the country is entitled to similar treatment.

And Democratic Senator Adnerson, a committee member, says the Atomic Energy Committee and Dixon-Yates have now agreed to what he calls four major changes in the contract...to benefit the government. Anderson says this shows how "desperate the Administration is to cool the excitement over theplan...and how open hearings and open discussion can gain important concessions for the government.

The Air Force said today it has grounded all of tur F-100 supersonic jet fighter planes as a result of three recent crashes. An air force spokesman says the planes are being grounded "as a precautionary measure pending completion of a thorough investigation." The first deliveries on the 800-mile per hour jets...the Air Force's newest interceptor planes ...began only last week.

The Department of Agriculture reports that 1954 crop production edged up slightly during October...but severe drought in some areas of the country and federal crop controls held this year's farm output well below 1952 and 1953 levels.

In Indo-China today, the Communist regime in the north is reported to have ordered its troops to prevent the flight to freedom of some 20 to 40 thousand native Catholic and Buddhist refugees. The United Press reports from Saigon that this apparently is Ho Chi Minh's answer to the armistice control cammission's rejection of his demand that French warships be barred from aiding the refugees.

And the Chinese Communist radio says General Su Yu ..who advocates an attack to "Liberate Formosa" has been made chief of staff of the Chinese army. Four other new generals have been appointed to high positions in a high-level military shake-up.

In Korea, President Rhee says his people want "no foreign governments or foreign nationals" to dabble in elections seeking to unite north and south Korea. Rhee called on all friendly nationals "not to take up the Korean question; until they "consult him and receive his agreement".

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a moment with the Word for Today. But first, a word from Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: Presumably the Senate is trying to get at the truth or falsity of the charges against Senator McCarthy. In theory this should involve the application of logic. But already we begin to see what Mark Twain meant when he said: "Logic is logic; and by disregarding its laws, even Emperors ...can be beguiled into making charges which should not be ventured upon except in the shelter of plenty of lightning rods."

Thursday, November 11, 1954

This is the news:

The President today looked forward to the continuation of "a great and glorious America." And Air Force Secretary Talbott warned, that modern nuclear weapons can now abolish in a night "a whole civilization." The President spoke at Abilene..dedicating the Eisenhower Memorial Museum, and paying tribute to "the priceless gift of freedom." And Secretary Talbott spoke at the Arlington National Cemetery on this first observance of Veterans Day..known for the past 35 years as Armistice Day. I'll try to discuss Veterans Day in a few moments.

Some 50-thousand persons became American citizens today, wherever Americans could conduct the proper ceremonies..from Ebbets Field to Guam. And Attorney General Brownell, at the Brooklyn naturalization cermonies, announced plans for cutting the detention time of immigrants or aliens, who have to be sent back to their native lands.

In the Senate, the debate on whether to censure Senator McCarthy opened with a suggestion, that a decision might better be postponed until after the new Congress meets in January. And it closed with Chairman Watkins of the committee that recommended censure, wondering if he, instead of McCarthy, was on trial. It was Republican Senator Capehart of Indiana who suggested putting off a vote until January. But Republican Leader Knowland disagreed. Republican Senator Dirksen of Illinois also favors continuing the debate, but he said he's distressed by what he called the theatrical atmospehere in the Senate..the tension in the air.. and the crowds. Many people ARRIVED IN Washington today for a National Rally for McCarthy to be held in Constitution Hall tonight.

Republican Senator Case, a member of the Watkins committee, called on McCarthy to set forth, temperately, his criticism of the Senate committee that investigated McCarthy in 1951. And he warned McCarthy that "unconsidered statements might further complicate" his situation. Then..with Senator Hendrickson presiding..Senator Case again called on McCarthy to withdraw a statement he had made against Hendrickson..that the New Jersey senator was "a living miracle with neither brains nor guts." Case called this wholly unwarranted.. a slander. During the debate, Senator McCarthy, taking note that there were few Democrats on the floor, said it looked like "an organized boycott" of some speeches. McCarthy said all the Senators HAVE accepted travel expenses to Washington..they should listen to the debate. Democratic Senator Holland of Florida said

Mc Carthy was making an unpleasant task much more difficult. Then Democratic Senator Lehman tried to introduce a broadcast by Eric Sevareid praising John Paton Davies, recently fired from the State Department. Mc Carthy objected. He said:"I will object to any euology of a Communist being placed in the record." Lehman said Secretary of State Dulles is on record saying there is no question about Davies' loyalty or patriotism. And Democratic Senator Chavez said: there are millions of Americans as patriotic as McCarthy. He said McCarthy has charged the six Senators of the Watkins committee as pro-Communists. He added:"I do not like it. I do not intend to have it occur on the floor of the Senate anymore." Apparently this was a reference to McCarthy's charge that the Watkins committee was the "unwitting handmaiden" of Communists. Republican Senator Welker said he didn't know where Chavez got HIS idea. And then when McCarthy charged that Chairman Watkins would not answer his questions, Watkins said:"I wonder sometimes if I'm on trial." He said McCarthy "never quite gets around to being tried himself." The debate continues tomorrow.

The Atomic Energy Commission today signed the disputed contract with Dixon-Yates..with last-minute changes to hold down profits, AND [redacted] meet some OTHER Democratic objections.

Secretary of State Dulles told a Senate committee he would like quick approval of the Southeast Asian pact. He said the Chinese Communists are still displaying "aggressive tendencies", despite their "protestations of peace."

Highly reliable sources in Washington, say Soviet Premier Malenkov recently informed Ambassador Bohlen and the British ambassador, that he is concerned over the intensity of the cold war...wants to establish more normal relations..and to keep "incidents" from being blown-up.

In France today, the Socialist party voted six to one, to support the agreements to re-arm and free West Germany. ADDED TO [redacted] the coalition bloc, this means a substantial majority for ratification of the agreements. And Jean MONET [redacted] announced that he is resigning as chief executive of the European Coal and Steel Community--the Schuman Plan--because he wants freedom of action and speech "for the realization of European unity."

Edward R. Murrow: November 11, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

The change of Armistice Day to Veterans' Day has sharpened the meaning of this annual observance. It has become a wider acknowledgement of service, and of gratitude for it. Like no other holiday, it directs attention to the truth that the community cannot survive without service by the individual and that this service may have to be rendered to the extremes of sacrifice. This country and its institutions live today because of service and sacrifice. Today has been a solemn occasion for many to realize how their own kindred have given their lives to this service, and also how vast is the number of those who have done so.

Today has been the first nationally observed Veterans' Day. But it also has been another "first", the first Veterans' Day observed in the hydrogen age. I point that out because the development of nuclear weapons has profoundly changed the concepts by which veterans in the past were called up for service.

Air Secretary Harold Talbott, speaking at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington Cemetery today called attention to the new dimensions of destruction now available. "The weapons which claimed the brave young men who lie here were formidable enough" he said, "and yet they were puny compared with the weapons of the nuclear age. These can lay waste an entire continent - men, women and children, even the beasts and vegetation. # They can abolish in a single night not only an army, not only a nation, but a whole civilization." In his position as Air Secretary, he said, he has intimate knowledge of these weapons. "Some of them" he added, "are of such awful power that even the men who build them cannot fully visualize the carnage that would follow their use."

It solves nothing simply to state the measure of available destruction. Mr. Talbott pointed to the need of religion if nations are to keep the new weapons from being used. Analysis is also appropriate in political terms. The new weapons have made certain political ideas obsolete, and new ones have to be developed to replace them. In the past, wars were the ultimate use of national power to serve national ends. Regardless of whether the ends were or were not worthy, wars were fought for a profit of some kind, material, political or spiritual.

During peacetime, governments dealt with one another in the shadow of this potential use of power. The task of diplomacy was to use this power implicitly, and to postpone as long as it was possible or wise the test of war. But war was a test and in some way it paid to be a victor, for victory meant survival.

What has changed in the nuclear age, particularly in the hydrogen age, is that a great war -(which any war is likely to become)- no longer can fulfil national ends, or bring any kind of profit. The coalition or nation which strikes awaits the same fate as the coalition or nation that is struck. If the two sides have the same weapons and means to use them, war is not a test of a superior power by an inferior power.

That being so, the purpose of diplomacy has changed. It is not to postpone or find the right time for a test of relative power. It can have only one long-term purpose, to eradicate the power, to "dismantle" it. And that is what the Western nations seek in their proposal of disarmament, not only in the field of nuclear weapons, but of all weapons. It also is why they cannot be satisfied by piecemeal or percentage reductions that leave the land powers, with their huge populations, in control of the world.

This is one of the most delicate and sensitive tasks statesmen have ever faced. And it is not being faced with visible results today because Moscow and Peiping are working to perfect a new kind of war, one that will not result in worldwide annihilation. This is the small, local war or conflict, waged with irregular forces by which Communist power can be extended. This kind of war is vividly in evidence in Indochina today despite the recent truce. In Indonesia this week the Communists nearly gained the right to recruit armed volunteers to supplement the regular army. The government barely managed to veto the plan and may have to yield later on.

Leaders in Moscow and Peiping speak urbanely about peaceful co-existence, and nobody needs to doubt they really want to make all-out war impossible. But they go on developing the techniques of infiltration and local conspiracy, for which there is no immediate reply but local power, and that the West does not command. The West can oppose through economic aid, but that may come too late.

On Veterans' Day it would be a happy assignment to say that peace is nearer than ever before. Perhaps it is, but if so, it is only for the grim reason that total destruction also is nearer than ever before. It would be pleasant to report tangible reasons for promising success of the West's efforts to dismantle all military power capable of being used for aggression. But other than a few phrases, such as are heard at Soviet banquets, and vague hints thrown out at the United Nations, there is nothing to tell about. The structure of the power world remains unchanged, and the destructiveness of nuclear weapons continues to rise. And probably the only service for peace within reach of individuals is to have the faith to go on working for it, not by denying or belittling the difficulties, but by being dedicated to surmount them.

WORD FOR TODAY November 11, 1954.

"Here rests in honored glory an American soldier known but to God". Hy Phillips quotes those lines from the monument, in his column tonight; and then he writes: "Kid, you are an emblem and a symbol, black or white, rich or poor, hero or just a guy who did his best. You have much to say to us, and you could tell us off." But we can say little to you, except: "Thanks, soldier, and we're sorry we haven't been exactly worth it."

Goodnight and Good Luck!

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 11, 1954
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

The President today looked forward to the continuation of "a great and glorious America." And Air Force Secretary Talbott warned that modern nuclear weapons can not abolish in a night "a whole civilization." The President spoke at Abilene..dedicating the Eisenhower Memorica Museum, and paying tribute to "the priceless gift of freedom." And Secretary Talbott spoke at the Arlington National Cemetery on this first observance of Vererans Day... known for the past 35 years as Armistice Day. I'll try to discuss Veteran's Day in a few moments.

Some 50-thousand persons became American citizens today, wherever Americans could conduct the proper ceremonies..from Ebbets Field to Guam. And Attorney General Brownell, at the Brooklyn naturalization ceremonies, announced plans for cutting the detention time of immigrants or aliens who have to be sent back to their native lands.

In the Senate, the debate on whether to censure Senator McCarthy opened with a suggestion that a decision might better be postponed until after the new congress meets in January. And it closed with Chairman Watkins of the committee that recommended censure wondering if he, instead of McCarthy, was on trial. It was Republican Senator Capehart of Indiana who suggested putting off a vote until January. But Republican Leader Knowland disagreed. Republican Senator Dirksen of Illinois also favors continuing the debate; but he said he's distressed by what he called the theatrical atmosphere in the Senate..the tension in the air..and the crowds. Many people arrived in Washington today for a National Rally for McCarthy to be held in Constitution Hall tonight.

Republican Senator Case, a member of the Watkins Committee, called on McCarthy to set forth, temperately, his criticism of the Senate committee that investigated McCarthy in 1951. And he warned McCarthy that "unconsidered statements might further complicate" his situation. Then..with Senator Hendrickson presiding..Senator Case again called on McCarthy to withdraw a statement he had made against Hendrickson ..that the new Jersey senator was "a living miracle with neither brains nor guts." Case called this wholly unwarranted..a slander. During the debate, Senator McCarthy, taking note that there were few Democrats on the floor, said it looked like "an organized boycott" of some speeches. McCarthy said all the Senators have accepted travel expenses to Washington..they should listen to the debate. Democratic Senator Holland of Florida said McCarthy was making an unpleasant task much more difficult. Then Democratic Senator Lehman tried to introduce a broadcast by Eric Sevareid praising John Paton Davies, recently fired from the State Department. McCarthy objected. He said: "I will object to any eulogy of a Communist being placed in the record." Lehman said Secretary of State Dulles is on record saying there is no question about Davies' loyalty or patriotism. And Democratic Senator Chavez said: There are millions of Americans as patriotic as McCarthy. He said McCarthy has charged the six senators of the Watkins committee as pro-Communists. He added: I do not like it. I do not intend to have it occur on the floor of the Senate anymore. Apparently this wasa reference to McCarthy's charge that the Watkins Committee was the "unwitting handmaiden" of Communists. Republican Senator Welker said he didn't know where Chavez got his idea. And then when McCarthy charged that Chairman Watkins would not answer his questions, Watkins said: "I wonder sometimes if I'm on trial." He said McCarthy "never quite gets around to being tried himself." The debate continues tomorrow.

The Atomic Energy Commission today signed the disputed contract with Dixon-Yates..with last minute changes to hold down profits, and meet some other objections.

Secretary of State Dulles told a Senate committee he would like quick approval of the Southeast Asian pact. He said the Chinese Communists are still displaying "aggressive tendencies", despite their "protestations of peace."

Highly reliable sources in Washington say Soviet Premier Malenkov recently informed Ambassador Bohlen and the British Ambassador that he is concerned over the intensity of the cold war...wants to establish more normal relations...and to keep "incidents" from being blown-up.

In France today, the Socialist party voted, six to one, to support the agreements to re-arm and free West Germany. Added to the coalition bloc, this means a substantial majority for ratification of the agreements. And Jean Monet announded that he is resigning as chief axecutive of the European Coal ans Steel Community --the Schuman Plan --because he wants freedom of action and speech "for the realization of European unity."

The change of Armistice Day to Veterans' Day has sharpened the meaning of this annual observance. It has become a wider acknowledgement of service, and gratitude for it. Like no other holiday, it directs attention to the truth, that the community cannot survive without service by the individual and that this service may have to ve rendered to the extremes of sacrifice. This country an its institutions live today because of service and sacrifice. Today has been a solemn occasion, for many to realize how their own kindred have given their lives to this service, and also how vast in the number of those who have done so.

Today has been the first nationally observed Veteran's Day. But it also has been another "first," the first Veterans' Day observed in the age. I point that out because the developement of nuclear weapons has profoundly changed the concepts by which veterans in the past were called up for service.

Air Secretary Harold Talbott, speaking at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington Cemetery today called attention to the new dimensions of destruction now available. "The weapons which claimed the brave young men who lie here were formidable enough" he said, "and yet they were puny co,-pared with the weapons of the nuclear age. There can lay waste an entire continent - men, women and children, even the beasts and vegitation.

They can abolish in a single night not only an army, not only a nation, but a whole civilization." In his position as Air Secretary, he said, he has intimate knowledge of these weapons. "Some of them" he added, "are of such awful power that even the men who build them cannot fully visualize the carnage that would follow their use."

It solves nothing simply to state the measure of available destruction. Mr. Talbott pointed to the need of religion if nations are to keep the new weapons from being used. Analysis is also appropriate in political terms. The new weapons have made certain political ideas obsolete, and new ones have to be developed to replace them. In the past, wars were the ultimate use of national power to serve national ends. Regardless of whether the ends were ar were not worthy, wars were fought for a profit of some kind, material, political or spiritual

During peacetime, governments dealt with one another in the shadow of this potential use of power. The task of diplomacy was to use this power implicitly, and to postpone as long as it was possible or wise, the test of war. But war was a test and in some way it paid to be a victor, for victory meant survival.

What has changed in the nuclear age, particularly in the hydrogen age, is that a great war - which any war is likely to become - no longer can fulfil national ends, or bring any kind of profit. The coalition or nation which strikes, awaits the same fate as the coalition or nation that is struck. If the two sides have the same weapons, and means to use them, war is not a test of superior power but by an inferior power.

That being so, the purpose of diplomacy has changed. It is not to postpone or find the right time for a test of relative power. It can have only one long-term purpose, to eradicate the power, to "dismantle" it. And that is what the Western nations seek in their proposal of disarmament, not only in the field of nuclear weapons. It also is why they cannot be satisfied by piecemeal or percentage reductions that leave land powers, with their huge populations, in control of the world.

This is one of the most delicate and sensitive tasks statesmen have ever faced. And it is not being faced with visible results today because Moscow and Peiping are working to perfect a new kind of war, one that will not result in worldwide annihilation. This is the small, local war, or conflict, waged with irregular forces by which Communist power can be extended. This kind of war is vividly in evidence in Indochina today, despite the recent truce. In Indonesia this week the Communists nearly gained the tight to recruit armed volunteers to supplement the regular army. The government barely managed to veto the plan and may have to yield later on.

Leaders in Moscow and Peiping speak urbanely about peaceful co-existence, and nobody needs to doubt that really want to make all-out war impossible. But they go on developing the techniques of infiltration and local conspiracy, for which there is no immediate reply but local power, and that the West does not command. The West can oppose through economic aid, but they may come too late.

On Veterans' Day it would be a happy assignment to say that peace is nearer than ever before. Perhaps it is, but if so, it is only for the grim reason that total destruction also is nearer than ever before. It would be pleasant to report tangible reasons for promising success of the West's efforts to dismantle all military pwerr capable of being used for aggression. But other than a for phrases, such as are heard at Soviet banquets, and vague hints thrown out at the United Nations, there is nothing to tell about. The structure of the power world remains unchanged, and the destructiveness of nuclear weapons continues to rise. And probably the only service for peace within reach of individuals is th have faith to go on working for it, not by denying or belittling the difficulties, but be being didicated to surmount them.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a minute with the Word for Today. But first, a word from Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: "Here rest in honored glory an American soldier known but to God". Hy Phillips qootes those lines from the monument, in his column tonight; and then he writes:"Kid, you are an emblem and a symbol, black or white, rich or poor, hero or just a guy who did his best. You have much to say to us, and you could 'tell us off'. But we can say little to you, except: 'Thanks, soldier, and we're sorry we haven't always been exactly worthy."

Good Night, and Good Luck.

Friday, November 12, 1954

This is the news:

The debate on censure charges against Senator McCarthy has gone through its third day. In support of McCarthy, Republican Senator Welker read a letter written by Democratic Senator Johnson, describing General Zwicker as having been "evasive and resentful" in his testimony before McCarthy's investigations subcommittee. McCarthy's "abuse" of Zwicker is one of the points on which censure of the Wisconsin senator was recommended. Johnson acknowledged he did write the letter... dated August 28... but said his opinion of Zwicker was completely changed by the general's later testimony before the censure committee. Johnson said he is now convinced that Zwicker told all he could within the limits placed on him by presidential directive. Another member of the censure committee, Democratic Senator Stennis of Mississippi, took the floor and accused Senator McCarthy of pouring "slush and slime" on the good name of the United States Senate, and said his conduct must be condemned in the interest of political morality. He said McCarthy should "prove" that the committee (as McCarthy had charged) had been the "unwitting handmaiden of the Communist Party." McCarthy replied that he had purposely said the censure committee had not "knowingly" aided the party.

Late in the day, Republican Senator Carlson of Kansas, ~~another~~ A THIRD member of the censure committee, said that McCarthy's "abuse and insults" will become standard Senate procedure, if the censure move fails. / Republican Senator Goldwater of Arizona defended McCarthy, saying that F.B.I. Director Hoover [redacted] "undoubtedly" will be the victim of the next attack, if McCarthy is censured. Then he urged McCarthy [redacted] to "walk over" to Republican Senator Hendrickson of New Jersey and say he was sorry he had [redacted] once called Hendrickson " a living miracle, with neither brains nor guts." McCarthy did not move. Debate will continue on Monday.

Chairman Strauss of the Atomic Energy Commission testified today that the atomic weapons program has not been hurt by the Dixon-Yates controversy. Strauss told the Congressional atomic committee... looking into the Dixon-Yates power contract that was signed yesterday... that the weapons program is expanding at an unprecedented rate. Thomas Murray, a member of the Atomic Energy Commission, testified last Saturday that the contract fight [redacted] had "diverted" the commission from its primary job of staying ahead of Russia in weapons development.

At the United Nations today, Russia's Andrei Vishinsky said that Moscow would "like" to participate in President Eisenhower's atoms-for-peace program. In a speech lasting [redacted] nearly two hours, Vishinsky said the proposed atomic pool should be inside the United Nations and subject to the Security Council. Russia, he said, [redacted] "warmly supports" the development of peaceful uses for atomic energy. The American delegate, Henry Cabot Lodge, said he was glad to hear Vishinsky express such a view, [redacted] but did not want [redacted] "to see this matter bogged down in the veto." Lodge will make his formal reply next week, probably on Monday.

The general conference of the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization opened today in Montevideo, with Russia in attendance for the first time. India urged that more aid be sent to underdeveloped countries, as the best means of avoiding war.

The Navy announced today that America's newest guided missile, nicknamed the Terrier, was "successfully employed" yesterday in fleet exercises off Norfolk, Virginia. The supersonic weapon is designed primarily for interception of enemy aircraft at sea.

Sources close to Secretary of State Dulles said today that he is prepared to name a Democrat as a consultant on foreign policy, if Democratic leaders name someone he deems qualified. According to these sources, Dulles does not, himself, intend to take the initiative in proposing that a Democrat join his staff.

White House Secretary James Hagerty said today a report that President Eisenhower has promised Republican leaders to run again in 1956 is not true... called it "a lot of nonsense". A story to that effect appeared today in the Akron Beacon-Journal. The paper said it got the information from "a person very close to the President." Mr. Eisenhower spent the day duck hunting near Toledo, Ohio, as the guest of Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey.

Queen Mother Elizabeth ended her American tour today with a luncheon at the College of William and Mary, in Williamsburg, Virginia... and then flew to Ottawa for her Canadian visit. She sails from New York next Thursday.

In Paris, Premier Mendes-France has shuffled his cabinet. There are no Socialists in the new government. Mendes-France refused to bow to their terms... which called for his acceptance of practically the whole Socialist program.

Edward R. Murrow: November 12, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

Two decisions reached in Europe yesterday have gone most of the way to assure ratification of the treaties to bring the German Republic into the North Atlantic Defense system. Both were made by Socialists. The British Parliamentary Labor Party voted to approve the Paris treaties, and the French Socialist Party authorized its deputies in the Assembly to vote for ratification.

In England the action of Labor members of Parliament confirmed the victory of former Prime Minister Attlee at the recent Labor Party Conference in support of German re-armament, and made it more substantial. At the Party meeting he squeaked through by the narrowest of margins [redacted] And in the last vote by the Parliamentary Party on the subject he won by only 113 to 104. Yesterday his majority was 124 to 72.

The Attlee victory is of course a Bevan defeat. The left wing leader yesterday tried a flank attack on ratification by proposing that it be postponed until after talks with Soviet leaders on German unification. But this lost 115 to 82. As a result the treaty should be accepted in the House of Commons without a formal vote. That does not mean that the agreement will not be subjected to sharp criticism during the debate, especially by Labor members. The decision to leave four British Divisions indefinitely on the Continent, adds a permanent annual burden to the British budget, and also requires the retention of conscription, both of which are hardly minor matters in British politics. But this was the British price, to get France to agree to German re-armament, and the House of Commons, after chewing on the cost, will swallow it.

It should be mentioned that Aneurin Bevan's defeat does not tidy up the mess within the Labor Party. He is now a roundly beaten man, and he is out of the running, at least for the present, as successor to Mr. Attlee as leader of the Party. But as sometimes happens in politics, he can become dangerously powerful, as the result of defeat. He heads a considerable band of zealous leftwingers, who will follow him if he walks out of the Party. His wife, Jenny Lee, is one of the editors of the leftwing weekly, The Tribune, who are under censure for criticizing the party leadership's actions during the dock strike. If Bevan walks out, Labor will probably be too badly split to win the next general election. If he stays in, and unity is restored, a Labour victory seems quite possible. But Bevan does not compromise easily, and the majority of the party will not compromise to keep him happy. So it remains to be seen, whether he will carry his independence to the length of bringing his party down to defeat. He has to choose between doing this and accepting a back seat for quite a while.

The action of the French socialists in supporting the re-armament of Germany also leaves a political mess, but it is quite a different kind. It is one that threatens to trip up Premier Mendes France one day, rather than the Socialists. Mendes France needs the Socialists for more than their votes for the German treaties. He needs them to sponsor his labor and economic reforms. But the French Socialist Party for most of its history has ducked ministerial responsibility. It prefers to stay out of coalition governments and wait for the time when it can dominate policy and make it out-and-out socialist. Mendes France offered the Socialists six seats in the Cabinet, including two major portfolios. He hoped the six would come in as individuals, not representatives of the party. But the party yesterday voted that the only condition on which Socialists could enter the government was that Mendes France adopt as his own the main planks of the Socialist platform. This he cannot do without sacrificing the more conservative elements in his coalition, so the vote was just a polite way of turning down the Premier's invitation.

Premier Mendes France so far has ridden from success to success under cloudless skies, making history in this respect for post-war France. Now he must note the forming of a storm. It still is a long way off, but he now knows he may have to experience the defeat of his government, like those who preceded him, because it is not possible to build a coalition in France today that includes everybody between the Communists and the extreme right. The question of taking the Socialists into the Cabinet has been put off till the Premier returns from the visit to Canada and the United States, that starts this week end.

With France and Britain virtually certain to ratify the new treaties, the one area of doubt about them is Germany. Private talks between German and French officials on the Saar have re-opened, and until they have finished German ratification cannot be predicted with complete confidence. But Chancellor Adenauer is a great tactician as well as a statesman, and his friends are not afraid he will lose. This week he patched up a difference within his coalition by acceding to demands for higher relief payments made by the Refugee Party. He himself assured an American visitor that the treaties would be ratified in Bonn by mid-January, and by all the signatories by the end of February. It may not be over-optimistic to say that success looks more likely than a defeat for the treaty.

WORD FOR TODAY November 12, 1954.

In the course of the current Senate debate certain reputations may be damaged, others enhanced. There is an old proverb that "A wounded reputation is seldom cured". And it was Richard Bentley who wrote: "It is a maxim with me that no man was ever written out of reputation but by himself. ~~But there is, of course, another way of looking at the subject;~~ ~~For~~ And there is another old proverb that reads: "Reputation is often got without merit, and lost without fault."

Goodnight and Good Luck!

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 12, 1954
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the News:

The debate on censure charges against Senator McCarthy has gone through its third day. In support of McCarthy, Republican Senator Welker read a letter written by Democratic Senator Johnson, describing General Zwicker as having been "evasive and resentful" in his testimony before McCarthy's investigations subcommitte.. McCarthy's "abuse" of Zwicker is one of the points on which censure of the Wisconsin senator was recommended. Johnson acknowledged he did write the letter...dated August 28..but said his opinion of Zwicker was completely change by the general's later testimony before the censure committee. Johnson said he is now convinced that Zwicker told all he could within the limits placed on him by presidential directive. Another member of the censure committee, Democratic Senator Stennis of Mississippi, took the floor and accused Senator McCarthy of pouring "slush ans slime" on the good name of the United States Senate, and said his conduct must be condemned in the interest of polital morality. He said McCarthy should "prove" that the committee, (as MCCarthy has charged),had been the "unwitting handmaiden of the Communist party." McCarthy replied that he had purposely said the censure committee had not "knowingly" aided the party.

Late in the day, Republican Senator Carlson of Kansas, a third member of the censure committee, said that McCarthy's "abuse and insults" will become standard Senate procedure, if the censure move fails. Republican Senator Goldwater of Arizona defended McCarthy, saying that F.B.I. Director Hoover "undoubtedly" will be the victim of the next attack of McCarthy is censured. Then we urged McCarthy to "walk over" to Republican Senator Hendrickson of New Jersey and say he was sorry he had called Hendrickson "a living miracle, with neither brains nor guts." McCarthy did not move. Debate will continue on Monday.

Chairman Strauss of the Atomic Energy Commission testified today that the atomic weapons program has not been hurt by the Dixon-Yates controversy. Strauss told the Congressional atomic committee...looking into the Dixon-Yates power contract that was signed yesterday..that the weapons program is expanding at an unprecedented rate. Thomas Murray, a member of the Atomic Energy Commission, testified last Saturday that the contract fight had "diverted" the commission from its primary job of staying ahead of Russia in weapons developement.

At the United Nations today, Russia's Andrei Vishinsky said that Moscow would "like" to participate in President Eisenhower's atoms-for -peace program. In a speech lasting nearly two hours, Vishinsky said the proposed atomic pool should be inside the United Nations and subject to the Security Council. Russia, he said, "warmly supports" the developement of peaceful uses for atomic energy. The American delegate, Henry Cabot Lodge, said he was glad to hear Vishinsky express such a view, but did not want "to see this matter bogged down in the Veto." Lodge will make his formal reply next week., probably on Monday.

The Navy announced today that America's newest guided missile, nicknamed the Terrier, was "successfull employed" yesterday in fleet exercises off Norfolk, Virginia. The supersonic weapon is disigned primarily for interception of enemy aircraft at sea.

Sources close to Secretary of State Dulles said today that he is prepared to name a Democrat as a consultant on foreign policy, if Democratic leaders name someone he deems qualified. According to these sources, Dulles does not, himself, intend to take the initiantive in proposing that a Democrat join his staff.

White House Secretary James Hagerty said today a report that President Eisenhower has promised Republican leaders to run again in 1956 is not true.. called it "a lot of nonsense." A story to that effect appeared today in the Akron Beacon-Journal. The paper said it got the information from "a person very close to the President." Mr. Eisenhower spent the day duck hunting near Toledo, Ohio, as the guest of Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey.

Queen Mother Elizabeth ended her American tour today with a luncheon at the College of William and Mary, in Williamsburg, Virginia...and then flew to Ottowa for her Canadian visit. She sails from New York next Thursday.

In Paris, Premier Mendss-France has shuffled his cabinet. There are no Socialists in the new government. Mendes-France refused to bow to their terms...which called for his acceptance of practically the whole Socialist program.

Two decisions reached in Eruope yesterday have gone most of the way to assure ratification of the treaties to bring the German Republic into the North Atlantic Defense system. Both were made by Socialists. The British Parliamentary Labor Party voted to approve the Paris treaties, and the French Socialist Party authorized its deputies in the Assembly to vote for ratification.

In England the action of Labor members of Parliament confirmed the victory of former Prime Minister Attlee at the recent Labor Party Conference is support of German re-armament, and made it more substantial. At the Party meeting he squeaked through by the narrowest of margins . And in the last vote by the Parliamentary Party on the subject he won by only 113 to 104. Yesterday his majority was 124 to 72.

The Attlee victory is of course a Bevan defeat. The left wing leader yesterday tried a flank attack on ratification by proposing that it be postponed until after talks with Soviet leaders on German unification. But this lost 115 to 82. As a result the treaty should be accepted in the House of Commons without a formal vote. That does not mean that the agreement will not be subjected to sharp criticism during the debate, especially by Labor members. The decision to leave four British divisions on the continent indefinitely adds a permanent annual burden to the Britishbudget, and also requires the retention of conscription, both of which are hardly minor matters in British politics. But this was the British price to get France to agree to German re-armament, and the House of Commons, after chewing on the cost, will swallow it.

It should be mentioned that Aneurian Bevan's defeat does not tidy up the mess within the Labor Party. He is now a roundly beaten man, and he is out of the running, at least for the present, as successor to Mr. Attlee as leader of the Party. But as sometimes happens in politics, he can become dangerously powerful as a result of the defeat. He heads a considerable band of zealous leftwingers, who will follow him if he walks out of the Party. His wife, Jenny Lee, is one of the editors of the leftwing weekly, the Tribune, who are under cunsure for criticizing the party leadership's actions during the dock strike. If Bevan walks out, Labor will probably be too badly split to win the next general election. If he stays in, and unity is restored, a labor victory seems quite possible. But Bevan does not compromise easily, and the majority of the party will not compromise to keep him happy. So it remains to be seen whether he will carry his independence to the length of bringing his own party down to defeat. He has to choose between doing this and accepting a back seat for quite a while.

The action of The French socialists in supporting the re-armament of Germany also leaves a political mess, but it is quite a different kind. It is one reason that threatens to trip up Premier MendesFrance one day, rather than the socialists. Mendes-France needs the Socialists for more than their votes for the German treaties. He needs them to sponsor this labor and economic reforms. But the French Socialist Party for most of its history has ducked ministerial responsibility. It prefers to stay out of coalition governments and wait for the time when it can dominate policy and make it out-and-out socialist. Mendes-France offered the Socialists six seats in the cabinet, including two major portfolios He hoped the six would come in as individuals, not representatives of the party. But the party yesterday voted that the only condition on which Socialists could enter the government was that Mendes France adopt as his own the main planks of the Socialist platform. This he cannot do without sacrificing the more conservative elements in his coalition, so the vote was just a polite way of turning down the Premier's invitation.

Premier Mendes France so far has ridden from success to success under cloudless skies making history in this respect for post-war France. Now he must note the forming of a storm. It still is a long way off, but he now knows he may have to experience the defeat of his government, like those who preceded him, because it is not possible to build a coalition in France, today that includes everybody between the Communists and the extreme right. The question of taking the Socialists into the cabinet has been put off til the Premier returns from the visit to Canada and the United States, that starts this week end.

With France and Britain virtually certain to ratify the new treaties, the one area of doubt about them is Germany. Private talks between German and French officials on the Saar have re-opened, and until they have finished, German ratification cannot be predicted with complete confidence. But Chancellor Adenauer is a great tactician as well as a statesman, and his friends are not afraid he will lose. This week he patched up a difference within his coalition by acceding to demands for higher relief payments made by the Refugee Party. He himself assured an American visitor that the treaties would be ratified in Bonn by mid-January, and by all the signatories by the end of February. It may not be over-optimistic to say that success looks more likely than a defeat for the treaty.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a moment with the Word for Today. But first, a word from Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: In the course of the current Senate debate certain reputations may be damaged, others enhanced. There is an old proberb that "A wounded reputation is seldom cured." and it was Richard Bentley who wrote: "It is a maxim with me that no man was ever written ort of reputation but by himself." And there is another old proberb that reads:"Rep tation os often got without merit, and lost without fault."

Good Night and Good Luck.

Monday November 15, 1954

This is the news:

The Atomic Energy Commission has allocated 100 kilograms of fissionable material to serve as fuel for atomic reactors abroad. United Nations Ambassador Lodge told the U.N. today that these 220 pounds of fissionable material have been allocated under the President's "atoms-for-peace" plan. Lodge says this is enough to activate a considerable number of reactors throughout the world. Presumably the materials will be earmarked for transfer to a proposed international agency. Earlier, Andrie Vishinsky revealed that Russia has given the western powers a series of amendments to the American-supported resolution setting up such an agency.

And Senator Knowland, the Senate majority leader, charged today that Russia is pushing the idea of "peaceful co-existence" as a trojan horse to gain time for an atomic stalemate. He said this will result in ultimate Communist victory. Knowland wants congressional committees to call the nation's state and defense officials to inquire into our present policy.. and to determine...as he put it.. "whether the clear and present danger which appears to me to exist is such that a basic change in the direction of our policy is warranted."

The President today sent the Senate--for action in January--new treaties to bring West Germany closer to the western defense system. He said this would "serve the cause of peace and freedom in the world as a whole."

And British Foreign Secretary Eden told the House of Commons that Britain will push for ratification of the agreements and will not be "deflected" by a Soviet proposal for a conference on European security. I'd like to discuss the Russian proposal in a few minutes.

In the Senate today, Republican Senator Case of SOUTH Dakota.. a member of the Watkins committee.. SAID he's changed his mind and will not vote to cesnure Senator McCarthy for what the committee called "repeated abuse" of General Zwicker. Case says a letter to Chairman Watkins from Army Secretary Stevens has given him a new view of the Major Peress case. And Senator Case says this was the first positive evidence that the Army gave Peress an honorable discharge after receiving a letter from Mc Carthy asking for court martial proceedings. McCarthy, sitting as chairman of his subcommittee, questioned Senator Watkins on what he knows about the Peress case. Watkins said that last June Army Secretary Stevens gave the Mundt committee the names of all officers involved. Watkins said McCarthy should question the 30-odd persons named. McCarthy said nothing would be gained by calling four or eight doctors from the Surgean Generals office. Watkins said he's convinced that General Zwicker was not responsible... that his committee had uncontradcited evidence to prove this. Watkins also suggested that the honorable discharge of Peress could have been an honest mistake or a faulty system. He's against condemning anyone without trial. And he said, apparently McCarthy would not be satisfied "unless he could find someone who could be shot or hung." McCarthy charged that Watkins was dereilect in his duty for not agreeing that someone ought to be blamed in the Peress case.. that the Pentagon is sheilding "the secret master" who promoted Peress. #

And on the Senate floor--- Republican Senator Jenner of Indiana charged, that "the strategy of censure (against McCarthy) was initiated by the Communist conspiracy." He said the Communists are attacking in the Senate chamber, "attacking unceasingly with one purpose, to destroy the legistlative power." And Democratic Senator Ervin of North Carolina, a member of the Watkins committee, said McCarthy's argument, that he's under attack because of his anti-Communist campaign "has no more substance than the shadow of a dream." Ervin said that McCarthy appartently feels that "everyone who disapproves of his disorderly behavior, is doing the work of the Communist party. "Ervin continued:" McCarthy besmirches throughout the land the reputation of all Senators who dare oppose him." He called on the Senate to censure McCarthy to show the people that the Senate cannot be intimidated. And Ervin said McCarthy ought to be expelled from the Senate for his "foul and fantastic charges " against the Watkins committee. Ervin said he would not PUSH THIS. [redacted].

Governor Dewey announced today that he would become [redacted] senior partner of one of the country's largest law firms---Dewey, Ballantine, Bushby, Palmer and Wood..when he leaves the state capital AT ALBANY on January first.

On Formosa, the Chinese Nationalists pledged "the severest possible blows" for the sinking of one of [redacted] their destroyer escorts by [redacted] Communist torpedo boats. Twenty-eight men are missing.

And Egypt's Revolution Council charges that General Naguib, ousted from the presidency over the week-end, has co-operated with Communists and other fanatics in an effort to overthrow the government of Premier Gamal Abdel Nasser.

Edward R. Murrow: November 15, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

The arrival of the Soviet note calling for a conference on European security was no surprise, but it is not enough to regard it simply as a last-minute attempt to prevent ratification of the Paris agreement on re-arming Germany. Moscow knew before it sent the note that the Western governments would not attend a conference before the agreement was safely ratified. Then why was it sent? Was it to get publicity? Was it to give the opponents of German re-armament something positive to talk about? Was it only propaganda? Comments from Washington and other capitals suggest that it was.

But it is prudent to read more into the note. A conference before ratification is out of the question, but a conference of some kind after ratification not only is possible, it is ~~almost certain~~ probable. That being so, the Soviet note is helping ~~the~~ to shape thoughts along the lines the Kremlin wants. If and when a conference meets, the world will be expecting something along these lines to be talked about. The idea of a mutual security system in Europe embracing all nations will be more familiar.

The Kremlin knows that German re-armament will not spring into being the moment it is authorized. It will take at least two years to set up the German army of five hundred thousand men. It may take a year longer if every recruit is tested for his loyalty to the Republic. The Soviet Government naturally would prefer to prevent ratification of the Paris agreement. But if it can't do that it hopes to produce a situation after ratification in which re-armament is not carried through.

A conference of the Big Four powers on German unification appears to be due after ratification. Whether this could turn into a general European conference on security depends altogether on what the Big Four decides about Germany. If the Soviet Government should come up with a major concession, if for example it should accept genuinely free elections in East Germany, or suddenly offer to sign an Austrian treaty, the re-armament of West Germany would be slowed down. Anything that could result in a union between East and West Germany is bound to have that effect, for a united Germany is not bound by the Paris agreement. A united Germany would be altogether free to decide for itself whether it wants to become part of the North Atlantic defense organization. Signing an Austrian treaty also would slow down German re-armament, for it would prove that the "new look" in Soviet policy goes ~~far~~ below the surface.

My mention of free elections in East Germany and the signing of an Austrian treaty is purely hypothetical. There is not the slightest indication that the Kremlin is preparing to meet the West with these or any other genuine concessions. But if the Kremlin doesn't come up with something at a four-power conference its campaign to slow down German re-armament will stall. So concessions of some kind are to be expected. And the West must be ready to attach the right value to anything the Kremlin offers. That will call for alertness, and for more public interest and awareness than is now to be found in any Western country, our own included. If the unexpected should happen and the Kremlin be ready to make genuine concessions, the opportunity must be weighed with all objective wisdom so as not to be lost. But if, as is more likely - judging from experience - the Russians offer something that is more rhetoric than reality, that too must be demonstrated to people everywhere, if the propaganda battle is not to be lost.

Right now it is not too early to get used to the idea that ratification of German re-armament isn't the end of the chapter on that subject. We have grown used to considering the London and Paris agreements as terminals, and not simply milestones. But while ratification would be a victory for the West, and a big one, the meaning of the victory at this point would be mostly in what it prevents. If there should be no ratification the Soviet position would be incomparably stronger, for the Western alliances would be coming apart. But ratification by itself is not a final Soviet defeat. The Kremlin still has time and the opportunity to stave that off. Treaty ratification is not what changes the power relationship in Europe in favor of Western defense, it takes treaty fulfilment to do that. And what the Soviet Union has been working day and night to prevent is treaty fulfilment. We must expect it to continue to work for it after ratification just as actively as it has up to this hour.

Most of the European leaders are looking forward to talks with the Soviet Union after ratification. Prime Minister Churchill makes no secret of having such aspirations. Premier Mendes France not only believes in their necessity but he cannot hope to keep his hold on French affairs if he is not ready to examine ~~with an open mind~~ anything the Russians propose. That is even more true of Premier Scelba in Italy, where the largest Communist party in the West is ready to exploit any reluctance over coming to an understanding with the Soviet world.

And in this country anticipation of these talks may explain President Eisenhower's statements about the improved outlook for peace, and his ~~unemployed~~ moderation in talking in his ~~press~~ NEWS conference about the shooting down by Soviet fighters of an American plane over Japanese waters. (Probably here, as elsewhere, the end of the road to ratification is seen to be the beginning of the road to negotiation.) The Russians appear to have adopted a milder tone - but there is nothing to indicate that their ultimate objective has changed. -

These words were written by James Allen. He was not addressing himself to statesmen, but he might have when he said:"Into your hands will be placed the exact results of your own thoughts; you will receive that which you earn, no more, no less. You will fail, remain or rise with your thoughts, your vision, your ideal. You will become as small as your controlling desire, as great as your dominant aspiration."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 15, 1954
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

The Atomic Energy Commission has allocated 100 kilograms of fissionable material to serve as fuel for atomic reactors abroad. United Nations Ambassador Lodge told the U.N. today that these 220 pounds of fissionable material have been allocated under the President's "atoms-for-peace" plan. Lodge says this is enough to activate a considerable number of reactors throughout the world. Presumably the materials will be earmarked for trasnfer to a proposed international agency. Earlier, Andrie Vishinsky revealed that Russia has given the western powers a series of amendments to the American - supported resolution setting up such an egency.

And Senator Knowland, the Senate majority leader, charged today that Russia is pushing the idea of "peaceful co-existence" as a trojan horse to gain time for an atomic stalemete. He said this will result in ultimate Communist victory. Knowland wants congressional committees to call the nation's state and defense officials to inquire into present policy..and to determine..as he put it.."whether the clear and present danger which appears to me to exist is such that a basic change in the direction of our policy is warranted."

The President today sent the Senate--for action in January-- new treaties to bring West Germany closer to the western defense system. He said this world "serve the cause of peace and freedom in the world as a whole."

And British Foreign Secretary Eden told the House of Commons that Britain will push for ratification of the agreements and will not be "deflected" by a Soviet proposal for a conference on European security. I'd like to discuss the Russian proposal in a few minutes.

In the Senate today, Republican Senator Case of South Dakota...a member of the Watkins committee...said he's changed his mind and will not vote to censure Senator McCarthy for what the committee called "repeated abuse" of General Zwicker. C se says a letter to Chairman Watkins from Army Secretary Stevens has given him a new view of the Major Peress case. And Senator Case says this was the first positive evidence that the Army gave Peress an honorable discharge after receiving a letter from McCarthy asking for court martial proceedings. McCarthy, sitting as chairman of his subcommittee, questioned Senator Watkins on what he knows about the Peress case. Watkins said that last June Army Secretary Stevens gave the Mundt committee the names of all officers involved. Watkins said McCarthy should question the 30-odd persons named. McCarthy said nothing would be gained by calling four or eight doctors from the Surgeon Generals office. Watkins said he's convinced that General Zwicker was not responsible...that his committee had uncontradicted evidence to prove this. Watkins also suggested that the honorable discharge of Peres could have been an honest mistake or a faulty system. He's against condemming anyone without trial. And hs said apparently McCarthy would not be satisfied "unless he could find someone who could be shot or hung." McCarthy charged that Watkins was derilict in his duty for not agreeing thatsomeone ought to be blamed for the Peress case...that the Pentagon is shielding "the secret master" who promoted Peress.

And on the Senate floor--Republican Senator Jenner of Indiana charged that "the strategy of censure (against McCarthy) was initiated by the Communist conspiracy." He said the Communists are attacking in the Senate chamber, "attacking unceasingly with one purpose, to destroy the legislative power." And Democratic Senator Ervin of North Carolina, a member of the Watkins committee said McCarthy's argument that he's under attack because of his anti-Communist campaign "has no more substance than the shadow of a dream." Ervin said that McCarthy apparently feels that "everyone who disapproves of his disorderly behavior is doing the work of the Communist party". Ervin continued "McCarthy besmirches throughout the land the reputation of all Senators who dare oppose him" he called on the Senate to censure McCarthy to show the people that the Senate cannot be intimidated. And Ervin said McCarthy ought to be expelled from the Senate for his "foul and fantastic charges" against the Watkins committee. Ervin said he would not push this.

Governor Dewey announced today that he would become senior partner of one of the country's largest law firms--Dewey, Ballantine, Bushby, Palmer and Wood....when he leaves the state capital at Albany on January first.

On Formosa, the Chinese Nationalists pledged "the severest possible blows" for the sinking of one of their destroyer escorts by Communist torpedo boats. Twenty-eight men are missing.

And Egypt's Revolution Council charges that General Naguib, ousted from the presidency over the week-end, has co-operated with the Communists and other fanatics in an effort to overthrow the government of Premier Gamal Abdel Nasser.

The arrival of the Soviet note calling for a conference on European security wan no surprise, but it is not enough to regard it simply as a last-minute attempt to prevent ratification of the Paris agreement on re-arming Germany. Moscow knew before it sent the note that the Western governments would not attend a conference before the agreement was safely ratified. Then why was it sent? Was it to bet publicity? Was it to give opponents of German re-armament something positive to talk about? Was it only propaganda? Comments from Washington and other capitals suggest that it was.

But it is prudent to read more into the note. A conference before ratification is out of the question, but a conference of some kind after ratification not only is possible, it is probably. That being so, the Soviet note is helping to shape thoughts along the lines the Kremlin wants. If and when a conference meets, the world will be expecting something along these lines to be talked about. The idea of a mutual security system in Europe embracing all nations will be more familiar.

The Kremlin knows that German re-armament will not spring into being the moment it is authorized. It will take at least two years to set up the German army of five hundred thousand men. It may take a year longer in every recruit is tested for his loyalty to the Republic. The Soviet Government natuallly would prefer to prevent ratification of the Paris agreement. But if it can't do that, it hopes to produce a situation after ratification in which re-armament is not carried through.

A conference of the Big Four powers on German unification appears to be due after ratification. Whether this could turn into a general European conference on security depends altogether on what the Big Four decide about Germany, If the Soviet Government should come up with a major concession, if for example it should accept genuinely free elections in East Germany, or suddenly offer to sign an Austrian treaty, the re-armament of West Germany would be slowed down. Anything that could result in a union between East and West Germany is bound to have that effect, for a united Germany is not bound by the Paris agreement. A united Germany would be altogether free to decide for itself whether it wants to become part of the North Atlantic defense organization. Signing an Austrian treaty also would slow down German re-armament, for it would prove that the "new look" in Soviet policy goes below the surface.

My mention of free elections in East Germany and the signing of an Austrian treaty is purely hypothetical. There is not the slightest indication that the Kremlin is preparing to meet the West with these or any other genuine concessions. But if the Kremlin doesn't come up with something at a four-power conference, its campaign to slow down German re-armament will stall. So concessions of some kind are to be expected. And the West must be ready to attach the right value to anything the Kremlin offers. That will call for alertness, and for more public interest and awareness that is now to be found in any Western country, owr own included. If the unexpected should happen and the Kremlin be ready to make genuine concessions, the opportunity must be weighed with all objective wisdom so as not bo be lost. But if, as is more likely - judging from experience - the Russians offer something that is more rhetoric than reality, that too must be demonstrated to people everywhere, if the propaganda battle is not to be lost.

Right now it is not too early to get used to the idea that ratification of German re-armament isn't the end of the chapter on that subject. We have grown used to considering the London and Paris agreements as terminals, and not simply milestones. But while ratification would be a victory for the West, and a big one, the meaning of the victory at this point would be mostly in what it prevents. If there should be no ratification the Soviet position would be incomperably stronger, for the Western alliances would be coming apart. But ratification by itself is not a final Soviet defeat. The Kremlin still has time and the opportunity to stave that off. Treaty ratification is not what changes the power relationship in Europe in favor of Western defense, it takes treaty fulfilment to do that. And what the Soviet Union has been working day and night to prevent is treaty fulfilment. We must expect it to continue to work for it after ratification just as actively as it has up to this hour.

Most of the European leaders are looking forward to talks with the Soviet Union after ratification. Prime Minister Churchill makes no secret of having such aspirations. Premier Mendes France not only believes inn their necessity but he cannot hope to keep his hold on French affairs if he is not ready to examine anything the Russians propose. That is even more true of Premier Scelba in Italy, where the lrgest Communist party in the West is ready to exploit any reluctance over coming to an understanding with the Soviet world.

And in this country anticipation of these talks may explain President Eisenhower's statements about the improved outlook for peace, and his moderation in talking in his news conference about the shooting down by Soviet fighters of an American plane over Japanese waters. Probably here, as elsewhere, the end of tee road to ratification is seen to be the beginning of the road to negotiation. The Russians appear to have adopetd a milder tone - but there is nothing to indicate that their ultimate objective has changed.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a minute with the Word for Today, but first, a word from Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: These words were written by James Allen. He was not addressing himself to statesmen, but he might have been when he said: "Into your hands will be placed the exact results of your own thoughts; you will receive that which you earn, no more, no less. You will fail, remain, or rise with your thoughts, your vision, your ideal. You will become as small as your controlling desire, as great as your dominant aspiration."

Good Night and Good Luck.

Tuesday, November 16, 1954

This is the news:

Republican Senator Bennett of Utah says he will introduce a new censure charge against Senator McCarthy.. a charge that he has attacked the Watkins Committee and Chairman Watkins. Bennett said he will do this to defend the honor of Watkins..who is also a Utah Republican. The announcement came after Senator Watkins told the SENATE that if no other member of the Senate filed the new charge..he would. Watkins said Mc Carthy has called him "cowardly and stupid.." and charged the committee members with being "unwitting handmaidens of the Communists." In a speech to the Senate, Watkins said the insults upon him and his committee were actually insults on all members of the Senate. He asked: "What are you going to do about it?" He asked why Mc Carthy didn't explain his finances to a Senate committee in 1951. He doesn't believe that any other Senator would have refused to testify when his integrity and honor were so involved. Senator Mc Carthy, (who was not present for the Watkins speech,) later told reporters that the whole situation is getting "curioser and curioser." Mc Carthy said: "If they're going to bring a new censure motion every time I defend myself, it looks like we're going to be here indefinitely." And Senate Leader Knowland told reporters that two, three or four discussions are going on over a compromise on the censure charges.

Yesterday Senator Knowland broke into the McCarthy debate to suggest that Congress review our foreign policy..to see if any basic changes are needed. Today, Democratic Senator Hennings accused Knowland of spreading "confusion and doubt" about our foreign policy. And Secretary of State Dulles told reporters he sees no need for any emergency review. Mr. Dulles also said he supports the President's view that we must find a modus vivendi.. a way of living with the Russians until disputes can be settled. He said there will be Communists and anti-Communists in the world for years to come.

And the President, addressing a meeting of Land Grant Colleges, said the only way we can find a just and lasting peace is for better understanding between the peoples of the United States and the Soviet Union. Mr. Eisenhower said one of the problems of the world is the lack of Russian understanding of American motives and the lack of American appreciation of Russian culture and history.

Defense Secretary Wilson told his news conference that we must live in peaceful co-existence with the Russians or look forward to war. ~~He was asked if he favored co-existence and replied: "I don't know what you~~

~~can do about it. We're all on the same planet. It must be done."~~

And Secretary Dulles--at his newsconference..said again that any Communist attack on the Chinese Nationalist stronghold on Formosa would mean hostilities with the United States. And, he said, our 7th fleet could conceivably go into action to defend the Tachen Islands, 200 miles north of Formosa.

Here in New York, Deputy Undersecretary of State Robert Murphy said the Communist Chinese, for the first time, are now exercising increased control over Communist parties in the free countries of Asia.

The Hungarian news agency announced tonight that Communist Hungary has freed Noel and Herta Field, American citizens who vanished behind the iron curtain five years ago. Field is a former state department employe..and brother of Herman Field, who was freed from a Polish Communist prison last month. The Hungarians now say charges against Noel and Herta Field have proved unfounded . A State Department spokesman says their release "was not unexpected."

The Moscow Radio said today that Russia and her satellites "will not stand by" to permit the re-armament of West Germany. The Russians say they will "examine further necessary measures" if the West ignors the latest Soviet call for an All-European security conference.

~~In Washington, the President today received the Frank H. Lahey award for leadership in medical education and said the medical professions is one "we don't want the get under the dead hand of government beaurocracy."~~

The Interstate Commerce Commission today received a recommendation from Examiner Howard Hosmer that it prohibit the "continuance of racial segregation on interstate passenger trains." He said this violates the Interstate commerce act which provides that there shall be no "undue or unreasonable prejudice or disadvantage" among passengers. Another I.C.C. examiner has held that there is no law which prohibits "reasonable segregation" of white and Negro passengers traveling in interstate commerce.

At the United Nations today, Great Britain joined the United States in earmarking atomic material for use under the President's ~~atomic~~ atoms-for-peace plan. The British have allocated 44 pounds of fissionable material. Yesterday we offered 220 pounds.

Edward R. Murrow: November 16, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

The topic for the debating competition in United States colleges for the current school year is the diplomatic recognition of Communist China. That means that the pros and cons of this ~~lively~~ important issue will be presented and heard across the continent. But it will not be heard at West Point and Annapolis, and debaters from these two schools have been forbidden to discuss the topic on other campuses.

The Army withdrew the West Point debating team from competing with the Newark colleges of Rutgers University and explained (in these words): "It is the Department of the Army policy not to have U.S. Military Academy cadets involved in debate on such a controversial subject, on which in any event national policy has already been established."

The Navy banned the discussion of the subject some months ago. It gave as its reason that one side or other would have to argue the affirmative of the recognition issue, and the Department of the Navy went on to say that this would be tantamount to arguing the Communist philosophy and party line. "The Academy's young men in uniform" the statement continued, "are being trained to be naval officers. And to argue, even in debate, the Communist doctrine would be to make them liable to misrepresentation, as well as providing the Reds a tremendous propaganda device."

One must hope that these two far-reaching pronouncements are clear to those who made them, but they leave this reporter in considerable perplexity. For one thing, the Army in so many words suggests that a subject can be too controversial to debate. That is saying that a subject can be too debatable to debate, for the word "debate" is a synonym for controversy. When the Rutgers debate was called off the West Point authorities suggested substituting a discussion of the merits of agricultural subsidies. Does the Army consider this a good question because it is not too controversial? If so, the Army has no idea how controversial the issue of farm prices is in this country.

The Army goes on to say it is against a subject on which national policy already has been established. This reasoning is even harder to follow. It sounds as though the Army believed that something controversial that has become national policy is sacrosanct, is not subject to change and not open to re-examination. But if this is what the Army means, how could it propose to debate agricultural subsidies? National policy on farm prices also has been established.

The Army ruling is not novel. It simply is novel in a democracy, where policies of all kinds are open to debate and change, right down to the constitution itself. Where the idea is not novel is in the totalitarian countries. There policy is made at the top and has to be accepted by all underlings; there what has been established as national policy is sacrosanct, and is not to be re-examined.

To close off areas of discussion to future officers not only is undemocratic, it may be very short-sighted. For in the world of today, army and naval officers are more and more being drafted to assist in making national policy. Shouldn't a future Eisenhower be trained early to examine both sides of questions, especially in the field of established policy?

There seems to be an innuendo in the two rulings that officers would serve better if they did not examine the pros and cons of national policy. That hardly fits the concept of the citizen army. And when a democracy does something undemocratic, experience shows that this makes mighty good material for Red propaganda.

But saying this only adds to the confusion, for the Navy used the same argument to justify suppressing the debate. The Naval authorities said, in this connection, that if a future naval officer argued in favor of recognizing Red China, even if only in a debate, he would be arguing the Communist philosophy and party line.

This seems to mean that an Annapolis debater can only discuss the pros and cons of American policies that the Communists do not oppose. The moment the Communists object the question has only two sides, the American and Communist side, and the debater must shut up. If this ruling were followed, no debater at Annapolis would be allowed to examine or argue many complex and controversial subjects in foreign policy. To name only two, he would be forbidden to debate the re-armament of Germany, or the supra-national control of arms reductions and nuclear weapons.

President Eisenhower last week spoke out bluntly in rejection of anyone openly preaching destruction of the United States form of government by violence. But, he went on, anyone who openly wanted to talk philosophy, an economy or a social order, he thought that if we didn't examine them we were confessing a fear which he, for one, did not feel. He said he believed the United States system would be upheld by our people in the face of open and exhaustive discussion. This was said without reference to the debate tabus, which weren't yet in the news.

It is not known who initiated the debating policy at West Point and Annapolis. Debaters at Annapolis told debaters at Princeton it had been the State Department, and Secretary Dulles, an eminent alumnus of Princeton at once received a telegram of protest. But the State Department denied that it originated the policy. One thing is certain, it did not come from West Point's most eminent graduate, Dwight D. Eisenhower.

It would seem that whoever is responsible for calling off the debate on the recognition of Communist China is pretty much in agreement with Oscar Wilde's contention that "conversation should touch everything and concentrate on nothing." However, Joseph Joubert once had occasion to remark:"It is better to debate a question without settling it, than to settle it without debate."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

EDWARD R. MURROW
CBS . RADIO NETWORK

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 16, 1954
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

Republican Senator Bennet of Utah says he will introduce a new censure charge against Senator McCarthy ...a charge that he has attacked the Watkins Committee and Chairman Watkins. Bennet said he will do this to defend the honor of Watkins...who is also a Utah Republican. The announcement came after Sanator Watkins told the Senate that if no other member of the Senate filed the new charge...he would. Watkins said McCarthy has called him "cowardly and stupid"..and charged the committee members with being "unwitting handmaidens of the Communists." In a speech to the Senate, Watkins said the insults upon him and his committee were actually insults on all members of the Senate. He said: "What are you going to do about it " He asked why McCarthy didn't explain his finances to a Senate committee in 1951. He doesn't believe that any other Senator would have refused to testify when his integrity and honor were so involved. Senator McCarthy, who was not present for the Watkins speech, later told reporters that the whole situation is getting "curioser and curioser." McCarthy said: "If they're going to bring a new censure motion every time I defend myself it looks like we're going to be here indefinitely." And Senate Leader Knowland told reporters that two, three or four discussions are going on over a compramise on the censure charges.

Yesterday Senator Knowland broke into the McCarthy debate to suggest that Congress review our foreign policy... to see if any basic changes are needed. Today, Democratic Senator Hennings accused Knowland of spreading "confusion and doubt" about our foreign policy. And Secretary of State Dulles told reporters he sees no need for any emergency review. Mr. Dulles also said he supports the President's view that we must find a modus vivendi..a way of living with the Russians until disputes can be settled. He said there will be Communists and anti-Communists in the world for years to come.

And the President, addressing a meeting of Land Grant Colleges, said the only way we can find a just and lasting peace is for better understading between the peoples of the United States and the Soviet Union. Mr. Eisenhower said one of the problems of the world is the lack of Russian understanding of American motives and lack of American appreciation of Russian culture and history.

Defense Secretary Wilson told his news conference that we must live in peaceful co-existence with the Russians or look forward to war. And Secretary Dulles -- at his news conference...said again that any Communist attack on the Chinese Nationalist stronghold on Formosa would mean hostilities with the United States. And, he said, our 7th Fleet could conceivably go into action to defend the Tachen Islands, 200 miles north of Formosa.

Here in New York, Deputy Undersecretary of State Robert Murphy said the Communist Chinese, for the first time, are now exercising increased control over Communist parties in the free countries of Asia.

The Hungarian news agency announced tonight that Communist Hungary has freed Noel and Herta Field, American citizens who vanished behind the iron curtain five years ago. Field is a former state department employee.. and brother of Herman Field, who was freed from a Polish Communist prison last month. The Hungarians now say charges against Noel and Herta Field have proved unfounded. A State Department spokesman says their release "was not unexpected."

The Moscow Radio said today that Russia and her sattelites "will not stand by" to permit the re-armament of West Germany. The Russians say they will "examine further necessary measures" if the West ignores the latest Soviet call for an All-European security conference.

The Interstate Commerce Commission today received a recommendation from Examiner Howard Hosmer that it prohibit the "Continuance of racial segregation on interstate passenger trains." He said this violates the Interstate commerce act which provides that there shall be no "undue or unreasonable prejudice or disadvantage " among passengers. Another I.C.C. examiner has held that there is no law which prohibits "reasonable segregation" of white and Negro passengers traveling in interstate commerce.

At the United Nations today, Great Britain joined the United States in earmarking atomic material for use under the President's atoms-for-peace plan. The British have allocated 44 pounds of fissionable material. Yesterday we offered 220 pounds.

The topic for the debating competition in United States colleges for the current school year is the diplomatic recognition of Communist China. That means that the pros and cons of this important issue will be presented and heard across the continent. But it will not be heard at West Point and Annapolis, and debaters from these two schools have been forbidden to discuss the topic on other campuses.

The Army withdrew the West Point debating team from the competition with the Newark colleges of Rutgers University and explained (in these words): "It is the Department of the Army policy not to have U.S. Military Academy cadets involved in debate on such a controversial subject, on which in any event national policy has already been established."

The Navy banned the discussion of the subject some months ago. It gave as its reason that one side or other would have to argue the affirmative of the recognition issue, and the Department of the Navy went on to say that this would be tantamount to arguing the Communist philosophy and party line. "The Academy's young men in uniform" the statement continued, "are being trained to be naval officers. And to argue, even in debate, the Communist doctrine would be to make them liable to misrepresentation, as well as providing the Reds with a tremendous propaganda device."

One must hope that these two far-reaching pronouncements are clear to those who made them, but they leave this reporter in considerable perplexity. For one thing, the Army in so many words suggests that a subject can be too controversial to debate. That is saying that a subject can be too debatable to debate, for the word "debate" is a synonym for controversy. When the Rutgers debate was called off the West Point authorities suggested substituting a discussion of the merits of agricultural subsidies. Does the Army consider this a good question because it is not too controversial? If so, the Army has no idea how controversial the issue of farm prices is in this country.

The Army goes on to say it is against a subject on which national policy already has been established. This reasoning is even harder to follow. It sounds as though the Army believed that something controversial that has become national policy is sacrosanct, is not subject to change and not open to re-examination. But if this is what the Army means, how could it propose to debate agricultural subsidies? National policy on farm prices also has been established.

The Army ruling is not novel. It simply is novel in a democracy, where policies of all kinds are open to debate and change, right down to the constitution itself. Where the idea is not novel is in the totalitarian countries. There policy is made at the top and has to be accepted by all underlings; there what has been established as national policy is sacrosanct, and is not to be re-examined.

To close off areas of discussion to future officers not only is undemocratic, it may be very short-sighted. For in the world of today, army and naval officers are more and more being drafted to assist in making national policy. Shouldn't a future Eisenhower be trained early to examine both sides of questions, especially in the field of established policy?

There seems to be an innuendo in the two rulings that officers wuuld serve better if they did not examine the pros and cons of national policy. That hardly fits the concept of the citizen army. And when a democracy does something undemocratic, experience shows that this makes mighty good material for Red propaganda.

But saying this only adds to the confusion, for the Navy used the same argument to justify suppressing the debate. The Naval authorities said, in this connection, that if a future naval officer argued in favor of recognizing Red China , even if only in a debate, he would be arguing the Communist philosophy and party line.

This seems to mean that an Annapolis debater can only discuss the pros and cons of American policies that the Communists do not oppose. The moment the Communists object,the question has only two sides, the American and Communist side, and the debater must shut up. If this ruling were followed, no debater at Annapolis would be allowed to examine or argue many complex and controversial subjects in foreign policy. To name only two, he would be forbidden to debate the re-armament of Germany, or the supra-national control of arms reductions and nuclear weapons.

President Eisenhower last week spoke out bluntly in rejection of anyone openly preaching destruction of the United States form of government by violence. But, he went on, anyone who openly wanted to talk philosophy, an economy or social order, he thought that if we didn't examine them, we were confessing a fear which he, for one, did not fee. He said he believed the United States system would be upheld by our people in the face of open and exhaustive discussion. This was said without reference to the debate tabue, which weren't yet in the news.

It is not known who initiated the debating policy at West Point and Annapolis. Debaters at Annapolis told debaters at Princeton it had been the State Department, and Secretary Dulles, an eminent alumnus of Princeton at once received a telegram of protest. But the State Department denied that it originated the policy. One thing is certain, it did not come from West Point's most eminent graduate, Dwite D. Eisenhower.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a minute with the Word for Today. But first, a word from Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: It would seem that whoever is responsible for calling off the debate on the recognition of Communist China is pretty much in agreement with Oscar Wilde's contention that "conversation should touch everything and concentrate on nothing." However, Joseph Joubert once had occasion to remark: "It is better to debate a question without settling it, than to settle it without debate."

Good Night and Good Luck.

Wednesday November 17, 1954

This is the news:

The President today asked Democrats and Republicans in Congress to work together on foreign and defense policies for the best interests of our nation. At a White House (MEETING) with the 22 top Republicans and Democrats in the Congress, Mr. Eisenhower said "it was essential to have a continuing bipartisan (APPROACH") to foreign affairs and defense." White House Secretary Hagerty, who relayed this to reporters after the two and a quarter hour meeting, issued a formal statement outlining what Mr. Eisenhower said. And the Democrats, who also listened to a long briefing by Secretary of State Dulles, later told reporters they agreed that co-operation was essential...provided they are consulted on major policy decisions ahead of time. Senator George, who is slated to become head of the Foreign Relations Committee, says the President promised such advance consultation "so far as that is practical." A number of participants in the meeting said there was no discussion of Republican Senator Knowland's plea for a review of our policies.

French Premier Mendez-France arrived in Washington today and was met at the airport by Vice President Nixon and Secretary Dulles. The premier said he is optimistic that the free world is making steady progress toward peace. I'd like to review the background of Mendez-France in a few minutes.

There was a new development today in the debate on censuring Senator Mc Carthy. The Senator went to Bethesda hospital for treatment of an injured elbow. A hospital official says he might be there for several days. The official says Mc Carthy banged his right elbow against a glass table-top last Saturday...it is swollen and painful. Mc Carthy's hospitalization has raised the problem of whether the debate on his conduct should continue in his absence. Republican Senator Case of South Dakota says this raises "serious questions of the Senate's courtesy and attitude toward a fellow senator." Case says if Mc Carthy does not return to the Senate tomorrow this will "be the subject of some consideration." And Republican Senator Jenner says he'll look favorably on any proposal to call off the debate until Mc Carthy returns. Republican Senator Dirksen said earlier he planned to present "some kind of modification" of the censure resolution tomorrow.

The Justice Department said today it will not appeal from a ruling by Federal Judge Youngdahl who has refused to disqualify himself in the perjury trial of Owen Lattimore. United States Attorney Rover who had accused Youngdahl of "a fixed personal bias and prejudice" in favor of Lattimore says the decision not to appeal was made by his Department. Judge Youngdahl had called the charge "scandalous."

The State Department today warned Moscow that we will "provide the necessary [redacted] defensive protection" for American planes in the Far East --unless the Russians stop "unprovoked attack" by their planes. The warning was in a second protest we sent Moscow over the shooting down of one of our photographic bombers on November seventh.

At the United Nations, the Russians agreed to take part in arranging for an international scientific conference...planned as part of the President's atoms-for-peace proposal. And India offered to give "considerable quantities" of uranium to the plan..if she gets guarantees that it will not be used to make atomic weapons.

The American minister in Budapest...Christian Ravndal..said today that he is at the disposal of Noel and Herta Field...freed by the Hungarian Communist government after five years in prison. Our officials now know where the Fields are but would not reveal this to reporters.

British Foreign Secretary Eden today asked the House of Commons to approve the Paris agreement for the (Re-ARMAMENT) of West Germany. He said this would be "a deterrent action..to ensure that there shall be no war." He said the West must either approve this or watch West Germany be "sucked into the Soviet system."

The State Department says Ambassador to Russia Bohlen is coming home next week "solely for consultation"..presumably to report on Russia's campaign for "peaceful co-existence."

Here in New York, the Stock Market went up again today setting another 25-year high. For the past 14 months the market has been advancing steadily. And in the two weeks since Election there has been an upward momvement with few pauses. Today was the 7th time in eight sessions that the market average has reached a new 25-year peake.

Edward R. Murrow: November 17, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

The man who is described as the most popular French Premier since Clemenceau arrived in Washington for a brief visit late this afternoon. Pierre Mendes-France, well-known by name and reputation, is still a comparative stranger in this country. It is only a short while ago that he shocked Americans by permitting the European Defense Community to die in the French Assembly, and thereby brought American policy in Europe to a jolting stop. But Washington quickly revised its opinion of him when the London and Paris conferences produced agreement on German re-armament and the Premier undertook to stand or fall by its ratification. His stock rose still more when he joined in rejecting the Soviet bid to an all-European conference on security.

It is only natural that Washington should see Premier Mendes-France through the eyes of American interests, hoping and expecting to find that he wants the same free world with the same free values as do Americans. Those who know him best vouch for him on that score. They promise that if differences develop now or later they will be over details, not principles.

There seems to be some contradiction between the inner nature of Mendes-France and the remarkable popularity he now enjoys. For he is not the dramatic type of leader and certainly not theatrical. He has the searching brilliance of a cold and piercing light. He is logical and incisive. He is Probably the best debater in Europe, and something of a phenomenon in that he can snatch victory from defeat by debating. But he does it with intellect, without the techniques of others who have swept parliaments and masses into enthusiasm. He is not passionate, not mystical, not given to pouring out fervently rhetorical passages.

The French would not be captivated by Mendes-France simply because he reasons. Lots of French politicians do that and do it well. In the few months since he came into power he gave France a new climate. It had been a nation half paralyzed by inner differences. Under Mendes-France it sprang into action. Someone in Paris is quoted as exclaiming that at last one can open a newspaper and find the name of a Frenchman in the page one headlines.

Mendes-France went to Geneva to make peace in Indochina, and made it. He went to Brussels to get the E.D.C. modified to meet French objections. He failed, but refused to bow. He weighed his own power in refusing, and he proved to be right. At London, the British paid the price for agreement they had steadfastly withheld. And at the Paris conference he obtained an agreement on the Saar that his predecessors could not get. He was not too engrossed by world affairs to fly to Tunis and offer the nationalists a compromise more generous than any other French Premier has dared to make.

His fame and popularity rest on such actions, but foreign affairs or colonial affairs are not his true love. He is an economist. His chief reason for wanting peace and security is to clear the way for sound economic reforms. He knows what it takes to make France prosperous, and he considers it his real task to bring it about. It is because of his faith in restoring to France health, prosperity and power that he has won his hold over the people. He reports to the people regularly by radio. As a speaker he may not be magnetic, but he is lucid. And what he talks about, he does. The approval he has won from the people is now so great that his Assembly critics have to go slow in opposing him. He has critics galore. A man who wins debates and acts ruthlessly is bound to make enemies. Mendes-France has plenty.

But saying all this does not give too good an idea of this visitor. Here are some facts about him. He is young, 47. He works incredibly hard. His aides speak wearily of his hundred-hour week. He hates to waste time at social or state functions, and ducks as many as he can. He drinks milk. That is not because he is a fanatic about temperance, but he believes the French drink too much for the nation's good, and is seeking ways to cut down consumption of hard liquor. He produced a kind of minor revolution recently by stepping up the milk ration in the army.

He is a man with many close associates and hardly any intimates. That is, he is not lonely but he is solitary. The close associates call him Pierre, not Mr. Premier, but that is as intimate as they get. He has around him dedicated experts on many subjects, but they are not a brain trust. They supply him the facts and analyze the facts. But he makes the decisions, usually without consulting them. He decides swiftly and then orders action. His associates then have to follow through on the action.

He was a brilliant boy, taking doctorates in law and economics simultaneously at 21. He once was France's youngest deputy, and became its youngest minister, serving briefly in Leon Blum's cabinet. During the war he was in the air force, left France for North Africa and was imprisoned for desertion by Vichy. The courts only recently anulled the conviction. He was briefly in De Gaulle's government too, but resigned over financial policy. These two aloof men somehow have kept up a mountain-top sort of association.

The name Mendes is the family name. It is an old Jewish family; one branch has been established for centuries in Portugal. The France in his name signifies simply that he belongs to the French branch. He has a handsome wife, and two sons, aged twenty and eighteen. - For the Present at Least, he can speak for France with real authority. -

Premier Mendes France comes to this country well-equipped for the job at hand: ~~to solidify [redacted] his nation and guns.~~ Lord Chesterfield, some 2-hundred years ago, noted appropriately:"The Frenchman who, with a fund of virtue, learning and good sense, has the manners and good breeding of his country, is the perfection of human nature." In a not altogether perfect world, in which we live, Mendes France can surely be regarded as a pretty solid citizen.

Good Nite and Good Luck!

The man who is described as the most popular French premier ~~in France~~ since Clemenceau arrived in Washington for a brief visit late this afternoon. Pierre Mendes-France, wellknown by name and reputation, is still a comparative stranger in this country. It is only a short while ago that he shocked Americans by permitting the European Defense Community to die in the French Assembly and thereby brought American policy in Europe to a jolting stop. But Washington quickly revised its opinion of him when the London and Paris conferences produced agreement on German rearmament and the premier undertook to stand or fall by its ratification ~~by the Assembly.~~ His stock rose still more when he joined in rejecting the Soviet ~~offer of~~ bid to an all-European conference on security.

¶ It is only natural that Washington should see Premier Mendes-France through the eyes of American interests, hoping and expecting to find that he wants the same free world with the same free values as do Americans. Those who know him best vouch for him on that score. They promise ~~are confident~~ that if differences develop now or later ~~during his talks in Washington~~ they will be over details, not principles.

¶ There seems to be some contradiction between the inner nature of Mendes-France and the remarkable popularity he now enjoys. For He is not the dramatic type of leader, and certainly not the theatrical ~~[illegible]~~ He has the searching brilliance of a cold and piercing light. He is logical and incisive. He is the best debater in Europe, and some thing of a phenomenon in that he can snatch victory from defeat by debating. But he does it with intellect, without the techniques of others ~~[illegible]~~ who have swept parliaments and masses into enthusiasm. He is not passionate, not mystical, not given to ~~capable of~~ pouring out fervently rhetorical passages.

¶ The French would not be captivated by Mendes France simply because he reasons. Lots of French politicians do that and do it well. In the few months since he came into power he gave France a new climate. It had been a nation half-paralyzed by inner differences. Under Mendes-France it sprang into action. Someone in Paris is quoted as exclaiming that at last one can open a newspaper and find the name of a Frenchman in the page one headlines. ¶ Mendes-France went to Geneva to make peace in Indochina and made it. He went to Brussels to get the EDC modified to meet French objections. He failed but refused to bow. He weighed his own power in refusing and he proved to be right ~~about it.~~ In ~~the~~ London, ~~conference~~ the British paid the price for agreement they had steadfastly withheld. And at the Paris conference he obtained an agreement on the Saar that his predecessors had not c[illegible]. He was not too engrossed by world affairs to fly to Tunis and offer the nationalists a compromise more generous than any French premier had dared to make.

His fame rests on such actions, but foreign affairs [illegible] or colonial affairs are not his true love. He is an economist. His chief reason for wanting peace and security is to clear the way for sound economic reform in his hand. He knows what it takes to make France prosperous, and this he regards as his real task. It is because of his faith in restoring to France health, prosperity and power that he has won his hold over the people. He reports to the people regularly by radio. As speaker [illegible] magnetic, but he is lucid [illegible] talks about he does. The approval he has won from the people is now so great that his Assembly critics have to go slow in opposing him. He has [illegible]. A man who wins debates and acts ruthlessly is bound to [illegible] make enemies. Mendes France has plenty.

But saying all this does not give too good an idea of the [illegible]. Here are some facts about him. He is young, 47. He works incredibly hard. His aides speak wearily of his 100 hour week. He hates to waste time at social or state functions, and ducks as many as he can. He drinks milk. That is not because he is a fanatic about temperance, but he believes the French drink too much for the nation's good, and is seeking ways to cut down consumption of hard liquor. He produced a kind of minor revolution recently by stepping up the milk ration in the army.

He is a man with many close associates and hardly any intimate friends. That is, he is not lonely but he is solitary. The close associates call him Pierre, not Mr. Premier, but that is as intimate as they get. He has around him dedicated experts on many subjects, but they are not a brain trust. They supply him the facts and analyze the facts. But he makes the decisions, usually without consulting them. He decides swiftly and then orders action. His associates then have to follow through on the action.

He was a brilliant boy taking doctorates in law and economics simultaneously at 21. He once was France's youngest deputy, and became its youngest minister, serving briefly in Leon Blum's cabinet. During the war he was in the air force, left France for North Africa and was imprisoned for desertion by Vichy. The courts only recently anulled the conviction. He was briefly in DeGaulle's government too, but resigned over financial policy. These two aloof men somehow have kept up a mountain-top sort of association.

The name Mendes is the family name. It is an old Jewish family, one branch has been established for centuries in Portugal. The France in his name signifies simply that he belongs to the French branch. He has a handsome wife, and two sons, aged twenty and eighteen.

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 17, 1954
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T

This is the news:

The President today asked Democrats and Republicans in Congress to work together on foreign and defense policies for the best interests of our nation. At a White House meeting with 22 top Republicans and Democrats in the Congress, Mr. Eisenhower said "it was essential to have a continuing bipartisan approach" to foreign affairs and defense".

White House Secretary Hagerty, who relayed this to reporters after the two and a quarter hour meeting, issued a formal statement outlining what Mr. Eisenhower said. And the Democrats, who also listened to a long briefing by Secretary of State Dulles, later told reporters they agreed that co-operation was essential ...provided they are consulted an major policy decisions ahead of time. Senator George, who is slated to become head of the Foreign Relations Committee, says the Rresident promised such advance consultation "so far as that is practical." A number of participants in the meeting said there was no discussion of Republican Senator Knowland's plea for a review of our policies.

French Premier Mendez-France arrive in Washington today and has met at the airport by Vice president Nixon and Secretary Dulles. The premier said he is optimistic that the free world is making steady progress toward peace. I'd like to review the back ground of Mendez-France in a few minutes.

There was a new developement today in the debate on censuring Senator McCarthy. The Senator went to Bethesda Hospital for treatment of an injured elbow. A hospital official says he might be there for several days. The official says McCarthy banged his right elbow against a glass table-top last Saturday...it is swollen and painful. McCarthy's hospitalization has raised the problem of whether the debate on his conduct should continue in his absence. Republican Senator Case of South Dakota says this raises "serious questions of the Senator's courtesy and attitude toward a fellow senator." Case says if McCarthy does not return to the Senate tomorrow this will "be the subject of some consideration." And Republican Senator Jenner says he'sl look forward favorably on any proposal to call off the debate until McCarthy returns. Republican Senator Dirksen said earlier he planned to present "some kind of modification" of the censure resolution tomorrow.

The Justice Department said today it will not appeal from a ruling by Federal Judge Youngdahl who has refused to disqualify himself in the perjury trial of Owen Lattimore. United States Attorney Hover who had accused Youngdahl of "a fixed personal bias and prejudice" infavor of Lattimore says the decision not to appeal was made by his Department. Judge Youngdahl had called the charge "scandalous."

The State Department today warned Moscow that we will "provide the necessary defensive protection" for American planes in the Far East --unless the Russians stop "unprovoked attack" by their planes. The warning was in a second protest we sent to Moscow over the shooting down of one of our photographic bombers on November Seventh.

At the United Nations, the Russians agreed to aake part in arranging for an international scientific conference...planned as part of the President's atoms-for-peace proposal. And India offered to give "considerable quantities" of uranium to the plan..if she gets guarantees that it will not be used to make atomic weapons.

The American minister in Budapest..Christian Ravndal....said today that he is at the disposal of Noel and Herta Field...freed by the Hungarian Communist government after five years in prison. Our officials now know where the Fields are but would not reveal this to reporters. British Foreign Secretary Eden today asked the House of Commons to approve the Paris agreement for the re-armament of West Germany. He said this would be a "deterrent action...to ensure or watch West Germany be "sucked into the Soviet system."

The State Department says Ambassador to Russia Bohlen is coming home next week "solely for consultation"...presumably to report on Russia's campaign for "peaceful co-existence."

Here in New York, the Stock Market went up again today setting another 25-year high. For the past 14 months the market has been advancing steadily. And in the two weeks since Election there has been an upward movement with few pauses. Today was the 7th time in eight sessions that the marked average has reached a new 25-year peak.

The man who is described as the most popular French premier since Clemenceau arrived in Washington for a brief visit late this afternoon. Pierre Mendes-France, well-known by name and reputation, is still a comparative stranger in this country. It is only a short while ago that he shocked Americans by permitting the European Defense Community to die in the French Assembly, and thereby brought American policy in Europe to a jolting stop. But Washington quickly revised its opinion of him when the London and Paris conferences produced agreement on German re-armament and the Premier undertook to stand or fall by its ratification. His stock rose still more when he joined in rejecting the Soviet bid to an all-European conference on security.

It is only natural that Washington should see Premier Mendes-France through the eyes of American interests, hoping and expecting to find that he wants the same free world with the same free values as do Americans. Those who know him best vouch for him on that score. They promise that if differences develop now or later they will be over details, not principles.

There seems to be some contradiction between the inner nature of Mendes-France and the remarkable populatity he now enjoys. For he is not the dramatic type of leader and certainly not theatrical. He has the searching brilliance of a cold and peiecing light. He is logical and incisive. He is probably the best debater in Europe, and something of a phenomenon, in that he can snatch victory from defeat by debating. But he does it with intellect, without the techniques of others who have swept parliaments and masses into enthusiasm. He is not passionate, not mystical, not given to pouring out fervently rhetorical passages.

The French would not be captivated by Mendes-France simply because he reasons. Lots of French politicians do that and do it well. In the few months since he came into power he gave France a new climate. It had been a nation half paralyzed by inner diff rences. Under Mendes-France it sprang into action. Someone in Paris is quoted as exclaiming that at last one can open a newspaper and find the name of a Frenchman in the page one headlines.

Mendes-France went to Geneva to make peace in Indochina, and made it. He went to Brussels to get the E.D.C. modified to meet French objections. He failed, but he refused to bow. He weighed his own power in refusing, and he proved to be right. At London, the British paid the price for agreement they had steadfastly withheld. And at the Paris conference he obtained an agreement on the Saar that his predecessors could not get. He was not too engrossed by world affairs to fly to Tunis and offer the nationalists a compromise more generous than any other French Premier has dared to make.

His fame and popularity rest on such actions, but foreign affairs or colonial affairs are not his true love. He is an economist. His chief reason for wanting peace and security is to clear the way for sound economic reforms. He knows what it takes to make France prosperous, and he considers at his real task to bring it about. It is because of his faith in restoring to France health, prosperity and power that he has won his hold over people. He reports to the poeple regularly by radio. As a speaker he may not be magnetic, but he is lucid. And what he talks about, he does. The approval he has won from the people is now so great that his Assembly critics have to go slow in opposing him. He has critics galore. A man who wins debates and acts ruthlessly is bound to make enemies. Mendds-France has plenty.

But saying all this does not give too good an idea of this visitor. Here are some facts about him. He is young, 47. He works incredibly hard. His aides speak wearily af his hundred hour week. He hates to waste time at social or state functions, and ducks as many as he can. He drinks milk. That is not because he is a fanatic about temperance, but because he believes the French drink too much for the nation's good, and is seeking ways to cut down consumption of hard liquor. He produces a kind of minor revolution recently by stepping up the milk ration in the army.

He is a man with many close assosiates and hardly any intimates. That is, he is not lonely, but he is solitary. The close associates call him Pierre, not Mr. Premier, but that is as intimate as they get. He has around him dedicated experts on many subjects, but they are not a brain trust. They supply him the facts and analyze the facts. But he makes the decisions, usually without consulting them. He decides swiftly and then orders action. His associates then have to follow through on the action.

He was a brilliant boy, taking doctorates in law and economics simultaneously at 21. He once was France's youngest deputy, and became its youngest minister, serving briefly in Leon Blum's cabinet. During the war he was in the air force, left France for North Africa and was imprisoned for desertion by Vichy. The courts only recently annulled the conviction. He was briefly in De Gaulle's government too, but resigned over financial policy. These two aloof men somehow have kept up a mountain-top sort of association.

The name Mendes is the family name. It is an old Jewish family; one branch has been established for centuries in Portugal. The France in his name signifies simply that he belongs to the French branch. He has a handsome wife, and two sons, aged twenty and eighteen. For the present, at least, he can speak for France with real authority.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a minute with the Word for Today. But first, a word from Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: Premier Mendes France comes to this country well-equipped for the job at hand: Lord Chesterfield, some 2-hundred years ago, noted appropriately: "The Frenchman who, with a fund of virtue, learning and good sense, has the manners and good breeding of his country, is the perfection of human nature." In a not all together perfect world in which we live, Mendes-France can surely be regarded as a pretty solid citizen.

Good Night and Good Luck.

Thursday, November 18, 1954

This is the news:

Great Britain today became the first nation to approve the Paris agreement on re-arming West Germany. The vote was 264 to 4. Most of the Labor Party members..except for the four voting against the agreement..abstained. The vote came after Foreign Secretary Eden called on the House to let Britain's decision be made "clearly, so that the whole world can understand it."

In Washington today the Senate voted to take an eleven-day recess, in its debate on censuring Senator McCarthy. The vote was 76 to 2.. with Democratic Senators Lehman and Fulbright voting against the recess. The Senate was informed today by its physician, Dr. George W. CALVER, that Senator Mc Carthy is suffering from an infection in his injured right elbow.. HIS ARM must be kept in a splint for at least five days... then he'll need five days of special treatment. Dr. Calver says, that if McCarthy is released from the hospital before November 29, he might suffer permenent injury. Senate Leader Knowland says Mc Carthy's lawyer has informed him, that the Senator did not want the recess. Mc Carthy is also described, by his counsel, as unable to conduct his own defense. Senators Lehman and Fulbright were agreeable to a postponment but only until next Monday. As Lehman put it: he wanted "to be merciful but not to postpone the day of judgement." Fulbright asked for assurances from Knowland that there would be a final vote on censure before December 24th..when the special Senate session must expire. Knowland declined any such assurance. And Democratic Senator Lyndon Johnson made it clear that when the recess ends he will insist that the Senate meet early and stay late to take final action on the censure charges. Otherwise, he said, the world will think that the greatest deliberative body in the world cannot come to a conclusion on a matter of morality and conduct. [redacted] Before the vote was taken Republican Senator Hendrickson of New Jersey who had been described by McCarthy as "a living miracle with neither brains nor guts" told the Senate his views on a possible McCarthy apology. He said such an apology should go not to him but to the Senate elections subcommittee before which McCarthy refused to appear. Hendrickson said: if he were maligned then the Senate was maligned or worse; if he were slandered then the Senate was truly slandered. [redacted] [redacted] And a Democrat, SENATOR Johnson of Colorado..said he wants TO amend the censure resolution to make it clear that the Senate (CONDEMNS) the Communist party and will continue to investigate the party. Johnson said he wants the Communists to know that any vote to censure McCarthy does not imply softness towards Communists.

[redacted]

In a speech not connected directly with the McCarthy debate, Republican Senator Jenner of Indiana charged that Defense Secretary Wilson has fallen for what he called "the political booby-trap of peaceful co-existence with Russia." Jenner said:"Co-existence is war. Our only (CHOICE) is to stop propping up the Soviet Union and Communist China and withdraw diplomatic recognition of Russia."

Senator Kefauver said today that he will oppose the nomination of Willard F. Libby to be a member of the Atomic Energy Commission. Libby is a chemist-physicist at the University of Chicago. Kefauver is not questioning his scientific qualifications but he says Libby doesn't know how to run an electric power business. After Libby said he endorses the controversial Dixon-Yates agreement, Kefauver said: "As long as the Atomic Energy Commission is going to be in the power business, I'm going to oppose any member who doesn't have the qualifications to run a power generating plant or pass on questions involved in the power brokerage business."

Federal Judge Youngdahl today asked the Justice Department to admit it was wrong in accusing him of bias in the Lattimore case. Youngdahl filed a memorandum in the district court in Washington saying he regretted that the government had decided not to appeal his refusal to remove himself from the case. He said such an appeal could have helped ease what he called the Justice Department's "thrust against the integrity and independence of the judiciary."

Air Force Secretary Talbott today called for a 25 per cent "across the board" pay increase for all servicemen who re-enlist. He said this would cost the air force 350-million a year. It would cost all the services one billion dollars a year. Talbott says he's alarmed at the number of men leaving the armed forces every year for better paying jobs in private industry. He wants to give them an incentive to re-enlist.

The Justice Department today dropped charges of conspiring to defraud the government against Brigadier General Julius C. Holmes, a state department career officer, and E. Stanley Klein, a New York financier. The charges were dropped because a similar charge against another defendent in the surplus tanker deal, Joseph E. Casey, had been dismissed on the grounds that Casey had acquired immunity by testifying before a grand jury. But indictments are still pending against Aristotel Onassis, a Greek shipowner, two other individuals and six corporations.

At the United Nations today, seven western nations introduced a resolution calling for an immediate start on the President's atoms-for-peace plan. Its indicated that Russia will vote for the resolution.

Queen Mother Elizabeth sailed for her home today with a prayer that "our countries may go forward with deepening understanding, with courage to bear our common burdens and a firm resolve to uphold the ideals we hold so dear."

In Budapest, American officials saw Noel and Herta Field at a secret hideway today..reported that they seemed to be well off, except that Noel is suffering from a stomach ailment. The Fields asked help in maintaining their privacy.

Edward R. Murrow: November 18, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

When statesmen meet there is always an agenda, formal or informal - a list of questions to be discussed. It is not difficult to outline the major subjects ~~to be~~ covered in ~~the~~ conversations between Premier Mendes-France and President Eisenhower --WHICH STARTED TODAY. There will be the whole question of ratification of the Paris agreements linking Germany to the West. There will be talk about the future of Vietnam, and the whole policy to be taken up in Southeast Asia. There is bound to be talk about trade and tariffs. But in conversations of this kind it is also a matter of two men measuring each other.

Mendes-France left Paris persuaded that there is no major basic cleavage between American and French policy. His intimates also say that the French Prime Minister is entirely convinced that President Eisenhower is a peace-loving man who will countenance no rash adventures, and will not block any reasonable arrangements anywhere. Mendes-France is concerned to convince the President that he is exactly the same kind of man, and is not at heart a neutralist or a ~~XXXXXXXXXXX~~ fellow-traveller. In fact, an intimate advisor of Mendes-France told my colleague Dave Scheonbrun, in Paris, that this was the French Premier's number one objective in this American visit.

The two men will undoubtedly talk about French troubles in North Africa. Mendes-France understands the traditional sympathy in this country for nationalist movements demanding independence anywhere; and he understands our concern for the security of our atom bomb bases in North Africa. He will argue that he is not a traditional colonialist, and is sincerely trying to bring about substantial reforms in North Africa. And he will contend that he deserves our help rather than hindrance.

The word from Paris is that Mendes-France has no clearcut program for what remains of Indochina, that he is worried about certain pressures in this country aimed at making Vietnam a military bastion. He does not favor any prolonged delay in holding the elections in Vietnam that were promised in the Geneva agreement. The situation in Vietnam is approaching chaos,and civil war remains a possibility. For this situation Mendes-France is in part responsible for failing to take vigorous steps to create a real government of national union, with a concrete program. The French leader feels that no real solution of the Indo-chinese problem can be found, except as part of a general Far Eastern settlement with China. He is likely to press for diplomatic recognition of China, and a deal involving guarantees that the present situation in Korea and Indochina will be continued; and also that Formosa shall in some fashion be neutralized. In short, he will advocate a sort of package deal with the Chinese Communists, and it is on this point that Franco-American agreement will be difficult and probably impossible. But in this whole area Mendes-France is as much searching for ideas as he is advocating a specific point-by-point program.

On the economic side the French Premier again has no special detailed proposals. But he will do some talking about reducing American tariffs, and will ask for a greater future emphasis on contracts for armaments and loans to replace outright grants and handouts.

Perhaps one of the most important subjects to be discussed - important at least from the French point of view - is the subject of the Saar. On this Mendes-France is expected to ask for an Anglo-American guarantee that the deal with Germany over the Saar will be adhered to. In this vital matter of French relations with Germany, Mendes-France has several irons in the fire. He probably hasn't chosen which one to use, for he is an improvisor. He could pin French foreign policy to the West European union counting on Britain to act as a counterweight against the resurgence of German power. He could use the French alliance with this country under the North Atlantic Treaty Organization as a pivot of French policy, in the hope of keeping the Germans in check. Or, he could take the big gamble and shoot the works on real Franco-German economic and cultural union. There are men in his government and in the French Parliament who support these various alternatives. Mendes-France hasn't made up his own mind - he may even try to work all three in tandem. But the primary purpose of his visit is to persuade President Eisenhower that they both want to live in the same kind of world.

There would seem to be no question that the free nations of the world are united in their desire for peace. But as Dorothy Thompson once remarked:"Peace has to be created in order to be maintained. It is the product of Faith, Strength, Energy, Will, Sympathy, Justice, Imagination, and the triumph of principle. It will never be achieved by passivity and quietism."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 18, 1954
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

Great Britain today became the first nation to approve the Paris agreement on rearming West Germany. The vote was 264 to 4. Most of the Labor Party members..except for the four voting against agreement..abstained. The vote came after Foreign Secretary Eden called on the House to let Britain's decision be made "clearly so that the whole world can understand it."

In Washington today the Senate voted to take an eleven day recess in its debate on censuring Seantor McCarthy. The vote was 76 to 2. With Democratic Senators Lehman and Fulbright voting against the recess. The Senate was informed today by its physician, Dr. George W. Calver, that Senator McCarthy is suffering from an infection in his injured right elbow.. his arm must be kept in a splint for atleast five days ..then he'll need five days of special treatment. Dr. Calver says that if McCarthy is released from the hospital before November 29, he might suffer permanent injury. Senate Leader Knowland says McCarthy's lawyer has informed him that the Senator did not want the recess. McCarthy is also described, by his counsel, as unable to conduct his own defense. Senators Lehman and Fulbright were agreeable to a postmonment but only until next Monday.
As Lehman put it: he wanted "to be merciful, but not postpone the day of judgement." Fulbright asked for assurances from Knowland that there would be a final vote on censure before December 24th...when the special Senate session might expire. Knowland declined any such assurance. And Democratic Senator Lyndon Johnson made it clear that when the recess ends he will insist that the Senate meet early and stay late to take final action on the censure charges. Otherwise, he said, the world will think that the greatest deliberative body in the world cannot come to a conclusion on a matter of morality and conduct. Before the vote was taken Republican Senator Hendrickson of New Jersey who had been described by McCarthy as "a living miracle with neither brains nor guts" told the Senate his views on a possible McCarthy apology. He said such an apology should go not to him, but to the Senate elections subcommittee before which McCarthy refused to appear. Hendrickson said: it he were maligned then the Senate was maligned or worse; if he were slandered then the Senate was truly slandered. And Democratic Senator Johnson of Colorado..said he wants to amend the censure resolution to make it clear that the Senate condemns the Communist party and will continue to investigate the party. Johnson said he wants the Communists to know that nay vote to censure McCarthy does not imply softness toward Communists.

In a speech not connected directly with the McCarthy debate, Republican Senator Jenner of Indiana charged that Defense Secreatry Wilson has fallen for what he called "the political booby-trap of peaceful co-existence with Russia." Jenner said: "Co-existence is war. Our only choice is to stop propping up the Soviet Union and Communist China and withdraw deplomatic recognition of Russia."

Senator Kefauver said today that he will oppose the nomination of Willard F. Libby to be a member of the Atomic Energy Commission. Libby is a chemist-physicist at the University of Chicago. Kefauver is not questioning his scientific qualifications but he says Libby doesn't know how to run an electric power business. After Libby said the endorses the controversial Dixon-Yates agreement, Kefauver said: "As long as the Atomic Energy Commission is going to be in the power business, I'm going to oppose any member who doesn't have the qualifications to run a power generating plant or pass on questions involved in the power brokerage business.

Federal Judge Youngdahl today asked the Justice Department to admit it was wrong in accusing him of bias in the Lattimore case. Youngdahl filed a memorandum in the district court in Washington saying he regretted that the government had decided not to appeal his refusal to remove himself from the case. He said such an appeal could have helped ease what he called the Justice Department's "thrust against the integrity and independence of the judiciary."

Air Force Secretary Talbott today called for a 25 percent "across the board" pay increase for all servicemen who re-enlist. He said this would cost the air force 350-million a year. It would cost all the services one billion dollars a year. Talbott says he's alarmed at the number of men leaving the armed forces every year for better paying jobs in private industry. He wants to give them an incentive to re-enlist. The Justice Department today dropped charges of conspiring to defraud the government against Brigadier General Julius C. Holmes, a state department career officer, and E. Stanley Klein, a New York financier. The charges were dropped because a similar charge against another defendent in the surplus tanker deal, Joseph E. Casey, had been dismissed on the grounds that Casey had acquired immunity by testifying before a grand jury. But the indictments are still pending against Aristotel Onassis, a Greek shipowner, two other individuals, and six corporations.

At the United Nations today, seven western nations introduced a resolution calling for an immediate start on the President's atoms-for-peace plan. Its indicated that Russia will vote for the resolution.

Queen Mother Elizabeth sailed for her home today with a prayer that "our countries may go forward with deepening understanding, with courage to bear our common burdens and a firm resolve to uphold the ideals we hold so dear."

In Budapest, American officials saw Noel and Herta Field at a secret hideaway today.. reported that they seemed to be well off except Noel is suffering from a stomach ailment. The Fields asked help in maintaining their privacy.

When the statesmen meet there is alwass an agenda, formal or informal - a list of questions to be discussed. It is not difficult to outline the major subjects covered in the conversations between Premier Mendes-France and President Eisenhower....which started today. There will be the whole question of ratification of the Paris agreements linking Germany to the West. There will be talk about the future of Vietnam, and the whole policy to be taken up in Southeast Asia. There is bound to be talk about trade and tariffs. But in conversations of this kind it is also a matter of two men measuring each other.

Mendes-France left Paris persuaded that there is no major basic cleavage between American and French policy. His intimates also say that the French Prime Minister is entirely convinced that President Eisenhower is a peace-loving man who will countenance no rash adventures, and will not block any reasonable arrangements anywhere. Mendes-France is concerned to convince the President that he is exactly the same kind of man, and is not at heart a neautralist or fellow-traveller. In fact, an intimate advisor of Mendes-France told my colleague Dave Schoenbrun, in Paris, that this was the French Premier's number one objective in this American visit.

The two men will undoubtedly talk about French troubles in North Africa. Mendes-France understands the traditional sympathy in this country for nationalist movements demanding independence anywhere; and he understands our concern for the security of our atom bomb bases in North Africa. He will argue that he is not a traditional colonialist, and is sincerely trying to bring about substantial reforms in North Africa. And he will contend that he deserves our help rather than hinderance.

The word from Paris is that Mendes-France has no clearcut program for what remains of Indochina; that he is worried about certain pressures in this country aimed at making Vietnam a military bastion. He does not favor any prolonged delay in holding the elections in Vietnam that were promised in the Geneva agreement. The situation in Vietnam is approaching chaos, and civil war remains a possibility. For this situation Mendes-France is in part responsible for failing to take vigorous steps to create a real government of national union, with a concrete program. The French leader feels that no real solution of the Indo-Chinese problem can be found, except as part of a general Far Eastern settlement with China. He is likely to press for diplomatic recognition of China, and a deal involving guarantees that the present situation in Korea and Indochina will be continued; and also that Formosa whall in some fashion be neautralized. In short, he will advocate a sort of package deal with the Chinese Communists, and it is on this point that Franco-American agreement will be difficult and probably impossible. But in this whole area Mendes-France is as much searching for ideas as he is advocating a specific point-by point program.

On the connomic side the French Premier again has no special detailed proposals. But he will do some talking about reducing American tarriffs, and will ask for a greater future emphasis on contracts for armaments and loans to replace outright grants and handouts.

Perhaps one of the most important subjects to be disucssed - important at least from the French point of view - is the subject of the Saar. On this Mendes-France is expected to ask for an Anglo-American guarantee that the deal with Germany over the Saar will be adhered to. In this vital matter of French relations with Germany, Mendes-France has several irons in the fire. He probably hasn't chosen which one to use, for he is an improvisor. He could pin French foreign policy to the West European union counting on Britain to act as a counterweight against the resurgence of German power. He could use the French alliance with this country under the North Atlantic Treaty Orgaiization as a pivot of French policy, in the hope of keeping the Germans in check. Or, he could take the big gamble and shoot the works on real-Franco-German economic and cultural union. There are men in his government and in the French Parliament who support these various alternatives. Mendes-France hasn't made up his own mind - he may eventry to work all three in tandem. But the primary purpose of his visit is to persuade President Eisenhower that they both want to live inethe same kind of world.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a moment with the Word for Today. But first a word from Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: There would seem to be no question that the free nations of the world are united in their desire for peace. But as Dorothy Thompson once remarked: "Peace has to be created in order to be maintained. It is the product of Faith, Strength, Energy, Will, Sympathy, justice, Imagination, and the triumph of principle. It will never be achieved by passivity and quietism ."

Good Night and Good Luck!

Murrow 7:45 P.M., Nov. 19, 1954

Friday, November 19, 1954

This is the news.

French Premier Mendes-France today denounced Russia's proposal for a European security conference as "childish, unrealistic and even dangerous." Mendes-France spoke in English before the National Press Club in Washington, after a two-hour meeting with Secretary Dulles at the State Department. He rejected the idea of a European conference now, but said the West must always stand open-minded... ready to seize any "reasonable proposal" offered by Russia and the Communist bloc. And he promised that France will never seek "solitary meetings" with the Russians, but will always act in concert with her allies. Mendes-France said: "Spectacular and global settlements may be unlikely. However, by finding solutions to specific tensions, we may gradually approach the solution of our larger problems." He pledged that, as a point of honor, France will ratify the Paris agreements rearming Western Germany.

In Bonn, the Paris accords were approved today by the cabinet of West German Chancellor Adenauer... but only after a bitter fight led by members opposed to Europeanizing the Saar. The agreements now go to the West German parliament, where ratification is expected around the first of the year. ~~The British House of Commons approved the agreements yesterday.~~

Finland today accepted Russia's bid for a European conference, [redacted] provided all the other invited nations also participate. #

At the United Nations, hopes for an immediate vote on President Eisenhower's atoms-for-peace plan had to be abandoned when Krishna Menon of India said he wanted to discuss the subject further on Monday.

Vice Admiral Combs, commander of the United States Sixth Fleet in the Mediterranean, told a reporter today it would be "a good assumption" that the ships of his task force are equipped with atomic weapons. He said the Sixth Fleet has a "tremendous potential... We are ready to go at any time."

Admiral Lewis Strauss, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, said today he disagrees with those who believe that international tensions will lead to a world reduced to a radio-active cinder. Addressing the F.B.I. Academy in Washington, Strauss said: "I believe that solutions are possible. I do not believe that the Creator permitted man to evolve to this point only to use science to destroy, at one breath, all that he has achieved---indeed, all the evidence of God's love and grace."

The United States and Canada revealed today... in a joint announcement... that a new, billion-dollar "radar chain" will be built across Northern Canada, to warn both countries of sneak attack. Seven radar stations belonging to the warning system already have been constructed in the Alaska area.

British Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery arrived in New York today for a two-week visit in the United States. Montgomery will do some lecturing at Columbia University, and confer with military leaders in Washington. He will spend Thanksgiving with President and Mrs. Eisenhower at Augusta, Georgia.

In Augusta today, an Army court martial convicted Second Lieutenant Charles Anderson of mistreating trainees by ordering one man hung from a tree by his ankles, and prescribing excessive physical exercise for other men under his command. He was sentenced to dismissal from the service and forfeiture of all pay and allowances.

The Bethesda Naval Hospital reports "only a little improvement" in the condition of Senator McCarthy, who is suffering from an injury to his right elbow. The hospital says McCarthy's case is not "ordinary" traumatic bursitis, since the senator continued to use his arm several days after the injury occurred. A hospital spokesman denied that McCarthy is critically ill. The injury has forced postponement of Senate debate on the censure charges against McCarthy until November 29. Despite talk of a filibuster to kill the censure move, Republican Majority Leader Knowland says he is "certain" the issue will be resolved before the Christmas deadline.

The government charged today... in a civil anti-trust suit... that the Radio Corporation of America has monopolized patent rights in the radio and television industry. R.C.A. replies that the agreements, on which the suit is based, "are the same agreements which were approved by the courts and the Goverhment in 1932, and have since been twice upheld by the courts."

The National Labor Relations Board ruled unanimously today that a company which gives economic reasons for rejecting a wage demand, must produce financial records to support its argument. The ruling came in a case involving the Truitt Manufacturing Company of Greensboro, North Carolina, and the A.F.L. iron workers union.

Edward R. Murrow: November 19, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

The debate on so-called peaceful co-existence continues to make news, but the debaters do not agree on the facts in the case. Senator Knowland, who launched the debate, argues that if atomic stalemate is reached between the United States and the Soviet Union, the Kremlin will launch "Operation Nibbling" and try to take over the ~~peripheral~~ Neighboring countries bite by bite. His thesis is that atomic stalemate will be reached some time between 1957 and 1960. He doesn't spell out what he would do between now and the hour when stalemate is reached. Obviously he wants a showdown of some kind. He denies that he wants preventive war, so he must believe that a showdown might produce victory without war. Or he may believe that if it doesn't, there is little point in putting off the ~~defeat.~~ ultimate Test.

His argument rests on there being time before the stalemate is reached. But what if a stalemate already exists? Senator Knowland has information about the atomic race not available to this reporter. But he doesn't have information not available to President Eisenhower and Secretary Dulles. And they rule out a showdown that could lead to atomic war. The President is positive that such a world war ~~already~~ would mean defeat for both sides. So he judges that the atomic stalemate is here, at any rate in effect.

If this is so, it doesn't change Senator Knowland's prediction, it only changes his timetable. Instead of waiting till 1957 or 1960 to prepare "Operation Nibbling", the Communists would be working on it now. And that is what they seem to be doing in Asia first of all. And it seems more realistic to hold the debate on that assumption.

Until recently the United States had atomic power that could deter "Operation Nibbling" if it involved military aggression. Now the Soviet Union has atomic power that deters our atomic power. And, in a sense, we are where we were before we had our atomic power exclusively. Today the Communists can choose where to extend their dominion, and naturally they do it where they have greater local power. If they should do it by old-fashioned military aggression that probably would unite the non-communist world against them, most neutrals included. Aggression would invite the danger of self-destruction. So it is probable that "Operation Nibbling" now works by techniques that do not involve open aggression. Certainly the Communists are masters of the methods of expanding without overt attack. And that is cold war. And that, in a sense, is where we came in.

If co-existence means simply that we and the Communists aren't going to destroy each other by all-out atomic war, it has not ceased to mean that the Communists will go on trying to expand by measures other than open war. Senator Jenner declared yesterday that Secretary Wilson had fallen into a booby trap in saying that the alternative to co-existence was war. The choice, said the Senator, is not peaceful co-existence or war; co-existence IS war. If by war he means cold war, he and Secretary Wilson surely agree and there is no argument. Nobody in Washington is saying the cold war is over or likely to be over. Washington would like it to be over; that is, it would welcome genuine co-operation from the Soviet Union in working out effectively controlled disarmament, in re-uniting Germany on a foundation of freedom and security, and in restoring Austria to independence. Washington would rejoice if the Chinese Communists would halt infiltration in non-Communist countries in Asia, and devote themselves to inner development. Prime Minister Nehru talked about this on his recent visit to ~~Peking,~~ Beijing and when he came back reported that Mao Tse-tung and Chou En-lai had given assurances on this score. But he spoke without enthusiasm, as though to say: time will tell. But Mr. Nehru had put his finger on the crucial issue.

This reporter hears a great deal of talk about improved prospects for peace in the uneasy co-existence now being shared with the Communist world. If by this is meant simply that the chances of all-out world war have declined, that seems to fit the facts, especially the facts about the safety of counting on the deterrent power of atomic weapons. But if it means that there is promise that the cold war will end soon, he must say he sees no evidence of it.

In theory the cold war could end in one of two ways: The West could give up its support of the free regions on the ~~periphery~~ edge of the Communist countries, and so condemn itself to ultimate and inevitable defeat without war. That is out of the question. Or it could end by the Communists abandoning the policy of expansion. That they can hardly do and remain Communists. In between these two stark alternatives is the possibility of reducing tensions by taking steps in one direction or the other. As the West grows stronger the Communists find that a policy of expansion is less promising. But if the West shows itself weakening - or growing blind - one must expect "Operation Nibbling" to go into high gear. It might not be open-war nibbling, but only the indirect twentieth-century kind of conquest.

It may be a bleak thought to say that the cold war may go on for a generation. But it also can be cause for special gratitude that if it goes on it can do so without let-up, without surrender of principle, and ~~not~~ perhaps without the danger of ending in total destruction.

The problems of co-existing in a world divided by ideologies is one not easily resolved. But as Edward Bulwer-Lytton once remarked:"There is one form of hope which is never unwise and which certainly does not diminish with the increase of knowledge. In that form it changes its name and we call it Patience." Marie Curie put it another way when she said:"Life is not easy for any of us. But what of that ? We must have perserverance and above all confidence in ourselves."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 19, 1954
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

French Premier Mendes-France today denounced Russia's proposal for a European security conference as "childish, unrealistic and even dangerous." Mendes-France spoke in English before the National Press Club in Washington, after a two-hour meeting with Secretary Dulles at the State Department. He rejected the idea of a European conference now, but he said the West must always stand open-minded,..ready to seize any "reasonable proposal" offered by Russia and the Communist bloc. And he promised that France will never seek "solitary meetings" with the Russians, but will always act in concert with her allies. Mendes-France said: "Spectacular and global settlements may be unlikely. However, by finding solutions to specific tensions, we may gradually approace the solution of our larger problems." He pledged that, as a point of honor, France will ratify the Paris agreements rearming West Germany.

In Bonn, the Paris accords were approved today by the cabinet of West German Chancellor Adenauer..but only after a bitter fight led by members opposed to Europeanizing the Saar. The agreements no go to the West German parliament, where ratification is expected around the first of the year.

Finland today accepted Russia's bid for a European conference, provided all the other invited nations also participate. At the United Nations, hopes for an immediate vote on President Eisenhower's atoms-for-peace plan had to be abandoned when Krishna Menon of India said he wanted to discuss the subject further on Monday.

Vice Admiral Combs, commander of the United States Sixth Fleet in the Mediterranean, told a reporter today it would be "a good assumption" that the ships of his task force are equipped with atomic weapons. He said the Sixth Fleet has a "tremendous potential...we are ready to go at any time."

Admiral Lewis Strauss, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission,said today he disagrees with those who believe that international tensions will lead to a world reduced to a radio-active cinder. Addressing the F.B.I. Academy in Washington, Strauss said: "I believe that solutions are possible. I do not believe that the Creator permitted man to evolve to this point only to use science to destroy at one breath, all that he has achieved -- indeed, all the evidence of God's love and grace."

The United States and Canada revealed today..in a joint announcement.. that a new, billion-dollar "radar chain" will be built across Northern Canada to warn both countries of a sneak attack. Seven radar stations belonging to the warning system already have been constructe in the Alaska area.

British Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery arrived in New York today for a two-week visit in the United States. Montgomery will do some lecturing at Columbia University and confer with military leaders in Washington. He will spend Thanksgiving with President and Mrs. Eisenhower at Augusta, Georgia.

In Augusta today, an Army court martial convicted Second Lieutenant Charles Anderson of mistreating trainees by ordering one man hung from a tree by his ankles, and prescribing excessive physical exercise for other men under his command. He was sentenced to dismissal from the service and forfeiture of all pay and allowances.

The Bethesda Naval Hospital reports "only a little improvement" in the condition of Senator McCarthy, who is suffering from an injury to his right elbow. The hospital says McCarthy's case is not "ordinary" traumatic bursitis, since the senator continued to use his arm several days after the injury occurred. A hospital spokesman denied that McCarthy is critically ill. The injury has forced postponement of the Senate debate on the cisnsure charges against McCarthy until November 29th. Despite talk of a filibuster to kill the censure move, Republican Majority Leader Knowland says he is "certain" the issue will be resolved before the Christmas deadline.

The government charged today...in a civil anti-trust suit..that the Radio Corporation of America has monopolized patent rights in the radio and television industry. R.C.A. replies that the agreements, on which the suit is based, "are the same agreements which were approved by the courts and the government in 1932, and have since been twice upheld by the courts."

The National Labor Relations Board ruled unanimously today that a company which gives economic reasons for rejecting a wage demand must produce financial records to support its argument. The ruling came in a case involving the Truitt Manufacturing Company of Greensboro, North Carolina, and the A.F. of L. iron workers union.

The debate on so-called peaceful co-existence continues to make news, but the debaters do not agree on the facts in the case. Senator Knowland, who launched the debate, argues that if the atomic stalemate is reached, between the United States and the Soviet Union, the Kremlin will launch "Operation Nibbling" and try to take over the neighboring countries bite by bite. His thesis is that atomic stalemate will be reached some time between 1957 and 1960. He doesn't spell out what he would do between now and the hour when stalemate is reached. Obviously he wants a showdown of some kind. He denies that we wants preventive war, so he must believe that a showdown might produce victory without war. Or he may believe that if it doesn't, there is little point in putting off the ultimate test.

His argument rests on there being time before the stalemate is reached But what if a stalemate already exists? Senator Knowland has information about the atomic race not available to this reporter. But he doesn't have information not available to President Eisenhower and Secretary Dulles. And they rule out a showdown that could lead to atomic war. The President is positive that such a world war would mean defeat for both sides. So he judges that the atomic stalemate is here, at any rate in effect.

If this is so, it doesn't change Senator Knowland's prediction, it only changes his timetable. Instead of waiting till 1957 or 1960 to prepare "Operation Nibbling", the Communists would be working on it now. And that is what they seem to be doing in As a first of all. And it seems more realistic to hold the debate on that assumption.

Until recently the United States had atomic power that could deter "Operation Nibbling" if it involved military aggression. Now the Soviet Union has atomic power that deters our atomic power. And, in a sense, we are where we were before we had our atomic power exclusively. Today the Communists can choose where to extend their dominion, and naturally they do it where they have greater local power. If they should do it by old-fashioned military aggression that probably would unite the non-communist world against them, most neautrals included. Aggression would invite the danger of self-destruction. So it is probably that "Operation Nibbling" now works by techniques that do not involve open aggression. Certainly the Communists are masters of the methods of expanding without overt attack. And that is cold war. And that, in a sense, is where we came in.

If co-existence means simply that we and the Communists aren't going to destroy each other by all-out atomic war, it has not ceased to mean that the Communists will go on trying to expand by measures other than open war. Senator Jenner declared yesterday that Secretary Wilson had fallen into a booby trap in saying that the alternative to co-existence was war. The choice, said the Senator, is not peaceful co-e istence or war; co-existence IS war.

If by war he means cold war, he and Secretary Wilson surely agree and there is no argument. Nobody in Washington is saying the cold war is over or likely to be over. Washington would like it to be over; that is, it would welcome genuine co-operation from thw Soviet Union in working out effectively controlled disarmament, in re-uniting Germany on a foundation of freedom and security, and in restoring Austria to independence. Washington would rejoice if the Chinese Communists would halt infiltration in non-communist countries in Asia, and devote themselves to inner developement. Prime Minister Nehru talked about this on his recent visit to Beiping and when he came back reported that Mao Tse-tung and Chou En-lai had given assurances on this score. But he spoke without enthusiasm, as though to say: time will tell. But Mr. Nehru had put his finger on the crucial issue.

This reporter hears a great deal of talk about improved prospects for peace in the uneasy co-existence not being shared with the Communist world. If by this is meant simply that the chances of all-out world war have declined that seems to fit the facts, especially the facts about the safety of counting on the deterrent power of atomic weapons. But if it means that there is promise that the cold war will end soon, he must say he sees no evidence of it.

In theory, the cold war could end in one of two ways: the West could give up its support of the free regions on the edge of the Communist countries, and so condemn itself to ultimate and inevitable defeat without war. That is out of the question. Or it could end by the Communists abandoning the policy of expansion. That they can hardly do and remain Communists.

In between these two stark alternatives is the possibllity of reducing tensions by taking steps in one direction or the other. As the West grows stronger, the Communists find that a policy of expansion is less promising.

But is the West shows itself weakening - or growing blind - one must expect "Operation Nibbling" to go into high gear. It might not be open-war nibbling, but only the indirect twentieth-century kind of conquest.

It may be a bleak thought to say that the cold war may go on for a generation. But it also can be cause for specialgratitude that if it goes on it can do so without let-up, without surrender of principle, and perhaps without the danger of ending in total destruction.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a minute with the Word for Today. But first, a word from Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: The problems of co-existing in a world divided by ideologies is one not easily resolved. But as Edward Bulver-Lytton once remarked "There is one form of hope which is never unwise and which certainly does not diminish with the increase of knowledge. In that form it changes its name and we call it Patience." Marie Curie put it another way when she said: "Life is not easy for any of us. But what of that? We must have perseverance and above all confidence in ourselves.

Good Night and Good Luck.

Monday, November 22, 1954

This is the news:

Andrei Vishinsky died today of a heart attack. Russia's 70-year-old chief delegate to the United Nations collapsed at the Soviet delegation headquarters while preparing a speech for delivery at the United Nations later in the day. The body will be returned to Moscow for burial. There is no comment from the White House. Secretary of State Dulles, extending his condolences to Mrs. Vishinky and her daughter, said Vishinsky was "an able and vigorous advocate of his country's policies." Ambassador Lodge said Vishinsky represented his country with "extraordinary energy and resourcefullness." American and United Nations diplomats are (AGREED) that Vishinsky's death will signal no marked change in East-West relations. He had long been regarded as a mouthpiece for Foreign Minister Molotov and others who made Kremlin policy.

Announcement of Vishinsky's death was made an hour after French Premier Mendez-France had addressed the General Assembly. I'd like to review his speech later. And the French premier said later of Vishinsky's death: "At his grave I place the memory of the days gone by when all of us, side by side, were striving for common victory."

The military leaders of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization met in Washington today and completed a scheduled two-day meeting at one long five-hour session. The committee announced that it has reviewed the size and make-up of western defense forces and considered the future role of new weapons. Another meeting has been scheduled for next month.

Foreign Aid Director Stassen said today that we have started informal converations with our European allies in an effort to get help to build up the free nations of Asia. Stassen says such a program would have "great world significance." He feels that the west European nations have ~~sufficient~~ sufficiently recovered from the effects of World War Two so that they could join us in helping improve living conditions in friendly nations in Asia.

The Supreme Court today decided not to hear arguments on what to do about ending segregation in the schools until it has a ninth member. The President has named Federal Judge John Marshal Harland to replace the late Justice Jackson. But a Senate judiciary subcommittee has put off action until January at the request of Senator Eastland, Mississippi Democrat. The court had scheduled arguments on how and when to end segregation in schools to start December sixth. But this has been delayed

"in view of the absence of a full court."

The court ruled unanimously today that federal and state legislatures have almost unlimited power to order the redevelopment of slum areas. Justice Douglas said for the court that the rights of property owners are satisfied when they receive just compensation for their property. And he added that "subject to specific constitutional limitations, when legislatures have spoken, the public interest has been declared in terms well-night conclusive."

Bethesda naval hospital reported today that Senator McCarthy "continues to show slight improvement and his condition is still satisfactory." And Republican Senator Capehart of Indiana took issue with Democratic Senator Fulbright of Arkansas who said he had "grave suspicions" that McCarthy is not as ill as represented. Capehart called this "very undignified...impugning not only a United States Senator but the motives of a Congressional doctor." Mrs. McCarthy asked NBC for free television time for her husband to discuss the censure motion against him. NBC turned down the request.

The President today signed an order that would give greater job security to 450-thousand government workers. It will grant these people civil service career status..or conditional career status. Chairman Young of the Civil Service Commission says its his guess that about half of the affected 450-thousand employes have been hired since the Eisenhower Administration took office.

Democratic National Chairman Mitchell says the party has deposited 75-thousand dollars with Ohio officials for a recount of 75-hundred polling places in the state. Mitchell predicts that a recount will overturn the election of Republican George Bender to the Senate. Right now, Bender has a margin of six thousand votes over Senator Burke, a Democrat. Mitchell says there are "strong indications of errors and irregularities " in the count."

Former President Hoover flew to West Germany today and received a warm welcome from Chancellor Adenauer. The chancellor called Mr. Hoover "the savior of Germany"...."one of the great men of the world who has placed himself in the service of humanity." The German press is paying tribute to Mr. Hoover for having twice saved Germany by famine relief..after both world wars.

The Chinese Nationalists said today that their warships had beaten off an attempt by Chinese Communists to attack Tachen island, 200 miles north of Formosa. The Nationalists say they ~~sank~~ SANK two red warships and sent eleven others fleeing. At the ~~same~~ same time, the Japanese report that two of their fishing vessels were fired upon and sunk by an unidentified ship in roughly the same area that the Chinese Nationalists describe..and at roughly the same time. The Japanese have asked the Chinese Nationalists to help investigate.

South Korea's provost marshal today told the Communist Czech and Polish members of the Truce Commission to get out of South Korea in a week..accusing them of spying. But the United Nations command says we will protect both men with "all means at our disposal."

Edward R. Murrow: November 22, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

French Premier Mendes-France talked for a little more than half-an-hour today to the Assembly of the United Nations. He suggested a Big Four meeting to be held in Paris next May - the meeting to include Britain, France, the United States and the Soviet Union. He suggested May because he feels by that time all nations concerned will have ratified the agreements to re-arm and free West Germany. The French Premier praised President Eisenhower's Atoms for Peace program, and said France would co-operate in it.

A State Department spokesman in Washington appeared to back up Mendes-France, when he said that after the agreements had been ratified it will be necessary to ascertain whether a conference with the Soviet Union would offer reasonable prospects of success.

Mendes-France rejected out of hand the recent Russian proposal for a security conference involving some twenty-five nations, which the Russians wanted to hold this month. He termed this proposal "a propaganda move".

In Moscow, the Communist newspaper Pravda, a sheet which in the past has dealt with Mendes-France in careful and respectful tones, today called him "an enemy of European security". It said he had become "an instrument of American aggressive plans".

In the months between now and the proposed meeting in May, the French Premier wants the international situation studied and explored in a calm fashion, and through normal diplomatic channels, removed from what he called "the passionate reactions of over-excited public opinion." He wants to create a climate of confidence. And he told the Russians that agreement on a peace treaty for Austria would help greatly in creating that climate.

David Schoenbrun cables me from Paris tonight that the reaction there is one of growing disappointment. Apparently the French had expected something more daring and dramatic from Mendes-France. Even in the French Foreign Office the speech is being referred to as "very clever", which in French terms is a devastating criticism. There had been built up in France the expectation that Mendes-France would make some spectacular proposition involving a freeze on world armaments at present levels, and a proposal that serious study be given to the possible saturation of the atmosphere as a result of recent H-Bomb explosions.

There was released in Paris today the report of a leading French scientist, Nobel Prize winner Prince Debroy. He told the French Academy of Science that the minimum security level of atomic saturation has already been reached and possibly exceeded. He warned that great danger already exists to animal and vegetable life, with the possibility that the heredity of the human race has already been affected.

It is traditional that French Premiers are in trouble when they leave home. Mendes-France is now under pressure from the De Gaullists on the extreme right to the Socialists on the left, to initiate talks with the Russians. He demonstrates political courage in insisting that the German agreements must be ratified before there be talks with the Russians. But his political problems are not confined to the German agreements, nor to conversations with the Russians. He views his primary problem as the domestic economy of France, and in this area - as in the foreign field - he has moved with great speed. But the toughest political issue he will face when he gets home has to do with North Africa. His Parliament won't let him liquidate North Africa, as he did Indochina; but that isn't what he wants to do. He wants to put through profound and far-reaching social and political reforms, which he believes to be the only way to win the loyalty of the North Africans, and so prevent another Indochina. Force probably won't work any better in North Africa than it did in Indochina, although a lot of Frenchmen still think it will. Mendes-France has promised drastic reforms for North Africa, but only after he has established law and order.

The trouble appears to be that his Parliament will support him on establishing law and order by force, but will not support him when it comes to real and effective colonial reforms. There is a very considerable body of French opinion which holds that Africa is so much nearer France than Indochina, and is therefore more easily controlled.

At the moment it appears that Mendes-France has sound political ground under his feet when it comes to the question of ratifying the agreements on Germany. And the greatest political danger is to be found in the increasing unrest and violence in North Africa.

The young and vigorous French Premier has one thing in common with the ancient Adenauer in Germany - political discussion in both countries pretty well comes to a halt when someone asks the question: "Who else is there?"

Mendes-France, in the past few months, has been confronted with a seemingly endless string of crises. Yet, through it all, he has exhibited tremendous strength of leadership. Somehow, I'm reminded of these lines from Henry James, who once remarked: "Ideas are, in truth, forces. Infinite, too, is the power of personality. A union of the two always makes history."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 22, 1954
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

Andrei Vishinsky died today of a heart attack. Russia's 70-year-old chief delegate to the United Nations collapsed at the Soviet delegation headquarters while preparing a speech for delivery at the United Nations later in the day. The body will be returned to Moscow for burial. There is no comment from the White House. Secretary of State Dulles, extending his condolences to Mrs. Vishinsky and her daughter, said Vishinsky was "an able and vigorous advocate of his country's policies." Ambassador Lodge said Vishinsky represented his country with "extraordinary energy and resourcefullness." American and United Nations diplomats are agreed that Vishinsky's death will signal no marked change in East-West relations. He had long been regarded as a mouthpiece for Foreign Minister Molotov and others who made Kremlin policy.

Announcement of Vishinsky's death was made an hour after French Premier Mendez-France had addressed the General Assembly. I'd like to review his speech later. And the French premier said later of Vishinsky's death: "At his grave I place a memory of days gone by when all of us, side by side, were striving for common victory."

The military leaders of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization met in Washington today and completed a scheduled two-day meeting at one long five hour session. The committee announced that it has reviewed the size and make-up of western defense forces and considered the future role of new weapons. Another meeting has been scheduled for next month.

Foreign Aid Director Stasses said today that we have started informal conversations with our European allies in an effort to get help to build up the free nations of Asia. Stassen says such a program would have "great world significance." He feels that the west European nations have sufficiently recovered from the effects of World War Two so that they could join us in helping improve living conditions of friendly nations in Asia.

The Supreme Court today decided not to hear arguments on what to do about ending segregation in the schools until it has a ninth member . The President has named Federal Judge John Marshall Harland to replace the late Justice Jackson. But a Senate judiciary subcommittee has put off action until January at the request of Senaotr Eastland, Mississippi Democrat. The court had scheduled arguments on how and when to end segregation in schools to start December sixth. But this has been delayed "in view of the absence of a full court."

The court ruled unanimously today that federal and state legislatures have almost unlimited power to order the redevelopement of slum areas. Justice Douglas said for the court that the rights of property owners are satisfied when they receive just compensation for their property. And he added that "subject to specific constitutional limitations, when legislatures have spoken, the public interest has been declared in terms well-nigh conclusconclusive."

Bethesda Naval Hospital reported today that Senator McCarthy "continues to show slight improvement and his condition is still satisfactory." And Republican Senator Capehart of Indiana took issue with Democratic Senator Fulbright of Arkassas who said he had "grave suspicions" that McCarthy is not as ill as represented. Capehart called this "very undignified...impugning not only a United States Senator but the motives of a Congressional doctor." Mrs. McCarthy asked NBC for free television time for her husband to discuss the censure motion against him. NBC turned down the request.

The President today signed an order that would give greater job security to 450 thousand government workers. It will grant these people civil service career status..or conditional career status. Chairman Young of the Civil Service Commission says its his guess that about half of the affected 45--thousand employees have been hired since the Eisenhower Administration took office.

Democratic National Chairman Mitchell says the party has deposited 75-thousand dollars with Ohio officials for a recount of 75-hundred polling places in the state. Mitchell predicts that a recount will overturn the election of Republican George Bender of the Senate. Right now, Bender has a margin of six thousand votes over Senator Burke, a Democrat. Mitchell says there are "strong indications of errors and irregularities "in the count".

Former President Hoover flew to West Germany today and received a warm welcome from Chancellor Adenauer. The chancellor called Mr. Hoover "the savior of Germany"..."one of the great men of the world who has placed himself in the service of humanity." The German press is paying tribute to Mr. Hoover for having saved Germany by famine relief after both world wars.

The Chinese Nationalists said today that their warships had beaten off anattempt by Chinese Communists to attack Tachen Island, 200 miles north of Formosa. The Nationalists say they sank two red warships and sent eleven others fleeing. At the same time the Japanese report that two of their fishing vessels were fired upon and sunk by an unidentified ship in roughly the same area that the Chinese Nationalists describe..and at roughly the same time. The Japanese have asked the Chinese Nationalists to help investigate.

South Korea's provost marshal today told the Communist Czech and Polish members of the Truce Commission to get out of South Korea in a week..accusing them of spying. But the United Nations command says we will protect both men with "all means at our disposal."

French Premier Mendes-France talked for a little more than half-an-hour today to the Assembly of the United Nation. He suggested a Big Four meeting to be held in Paris next May - the meeting to include Britain, France, the United States and the Soviet Union. He suggested May, because he feels by that time all nations concerned will have ratified the agreements to re-arm and free West Germany. The French Premier praised President Eisenhower's Atoms for Peace program, and said France would co-operate in it.

A State Department spokesman in Washington appeared to back up Mendes-France, when he said that after the agreements had been ratified it will be necessary to ascertain whether a conference with the Soviet Union would offer reasonable prospects of success.

Mendes-France rejected out of hand the recent Russian proposal for a security conference involving some twenty-five nations, which the Russians wanted to hold this month. He termed this proposal "a propaganda move."

In Moscow, the Communist newspaper Pravda, a sheet which in the past has dealt with Mendes-France in careful and respectful tones, today called him "an enemy of European security". It said he had become "an instrument of American agrressive plans."

In the months between now and the proposed meeting in May, the French Premier wants the international situation studied and explored in a calm fashion, and through normal diplomatic channels, removed from what he called "the passionate reactions of over-excited public opinion." He wants to create a climate of confidence. And he told the Russians that agreement on a peace treaty for Austria would help greatly in creating that climate.

David Schoenbrun cables me from Paris tonight that the reaction there is one of growing disappointment. Apparently the French had expected something more daring and dramatic from Mendes-France. Even in the French Foreign Office the speech is being referred to as "very clever", which in French terms is a devastating criticism. There had been built up in France the expectation that Mendes-France would make some spectacular proposition involving a freeze on world armaments at present levels, and a porposal that serious study be given to the possible saturationof the atmosphere as a result of recent H-Bomb explosions.

There was released in Paris today the report of a leading French scientist, Nobel Prize Winner Prince Debroy. He told the French Academy of Science that the minimum security level of at mic saturation has already been reached and possible exceeded. He warned that great danger already exists to animal and vegetable life, with the possibility that the heredity of the human race already has been affected.

It is traditional that French Premiers are in trouble when they leave home. Mendes-France is now under pressure from the De Gaullists on the extreme right, to the Socialists on the left, to initiate talks with the Russians. He demonstrates political courage in insistin that the German agreements must be ratified before there be talks with the Russians. But his political problems are not confined to the German agreements, nor to conversations with the Russians. He views his primary porblem as the domestic economy of France, and in this area - as in the foreign field - he has moved with great speed. But the toughest political issue he will face when he gets home has to do with North Africa. His Parliament won't let him liquidate North Africa as he did Indochina; but that isn't what he wants to do. He wants to put through profound and far-reaching social and political reforms, which he believes to be the only way to win the loyalty of the North Africans, and so prevent another Indochina. Force probably won't work any better in North Africa than it did in Indochina, although a lot of Frenchmen still think it will. Mendes-France has promised drastic reforms for North Africa, but only after he has established law and order.

The trouble appears to be that his Parliament will support him on establishing law and order by force, but will not support him when it comes to real and effective colonial reforms. There is a very considerable body of French opinion which holds that Africa is so much nearer France than Indochina and is therefore more easily controlled.

At the moment it appears that Mendes-France has sound political ground under his feet when it comes to the question of ratifying the agreements on Germany. And the greatest political danger is to be found in the increasing unrest and violence in North Africa.

The young and vigorous French Premier has one thing in common with the ancient Adenauer in Germany -political discussion in both countries pretty well comes to a halt when someone asks the question: "Who else is there?"

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a minute with the Word for Today. But first, a word from Bob Dixon.

DIXON: (COMMERCIAL

MURROW: Mendes France, in the past few months, has been confronted with a seemingly endless string of crises. Yet, through it all, he has exibited tremendous strength of leadership. Somehow, I'm reminded of these lines from Henry James, who once remarked: "Ideas are, in truth, forces. Infinite, too, is the power of personality. A union of the two always makes history."

Good Night and Good Luck.

Tuesday, November 23, 1954.

This is the news:

The Chinese Communists have sentenced 13 Americans to prison terms ranging from four years to life. The Peiping radio says all 13 - reported missing on aerial missions during the Korean war - were found guilty on spy charges. The two highest Americans officers sentenced are Colonel John Knox Arnold of Maryland and Major William Baumer of [redacted] Pennsylvania. They were commander and second-in-command of a B-29 bomber shot down in January of 1953. ~~Two non-military men were given long terms. John Thomas Downey of New Britain was sentenced to life in prison and Richard G. Fecteau of Lynn, Massachusetts was sentenced to 20 years. These two civilians are described as "American espionage agents."~~

In Washington, the State Department says it is filing the strongest possible protest with the Chinese Communist government. We call the charges "trumped up." And the Defense Department says they are "utterly false", and accuses the Communists of "bad faith, insincerity and amorality.

At the United Nations today the western nations and Russia agreed with all other U.N. members in approving the President's atoms-for-peace plan. They CALLED FOR negotiations for an international atomic agency to supervise the program.

The President said today that he sees nothing to indicate any fundemntal change in Russia's attitude. He told reporters: the greatest error we could make would be to lose sight of Russia's objective..world revolution and the dominance by the Communists of a centrally controlled world state. Mr. Eisenhower said he is not taking anything for granted with respect to Moscow's talk of peaceful co-existence. ~~And the President said he is not in favor of any Big Four conference until the Paris agreement is signed, until there is a promise of fruitfulness and until we have time to prepare for such a conference.~~

Mr. Eisenhower also revealed that he understands that the Supreme Court is trying to devise some sort of decentralized method to put into effects its order ending segregation of white and Negro children in the schools. And he said that he, personally, would not forbid Annapolis and West Point cadets of Midshipmen to debate the question whether Red China should be admitted to the United Nations. Such debates have been banned at both schools. The President would let the men argue as strongly as they wanted to argue. And he told White House reporters it would be in the best interests of the country for the Senate to confirm as fast as possible those nominations he has made that do not arouse any deep or real

CONTROVERSY. (But the Senate Judiciary Committee voted unanimously to put off until January consideration of Judge John Marshal Harlan to be a member of the Supreme Court.)

French Premier Mendez-France said here in New York today that under the provisions of the Paris agreements "a united Europe may become a living reality sooner than many people think." In a minute, I'd like to discuss some of the reactions to Mendez-France's speech to the United Nations yesterday.

The government today sued Greek Ship Owner..Aristotle Socrates Onassis and nine others. They're accused of committing fraud to take-over 16 of our war suprplus ships. The government is also suing for 20-million the group is said to have made in profits. An attorney for Onassis says the charge is unfounded and will be fought in court.

A Congressional committee on defense production has accused the United States Tin Corporation of misrepresentation and deliberate concealment of vital information in getting government-backed loans of almost 3-million dollars. The money was to be used for a tin operation in Alaska.

E. A. Darr, the president of the Reynolds Tobacco Company, said today that there is not "a single shred of substantial evidence" to link cigaret smoking and lung cancer directly. Darr says: the anti-cigaret proponents "have relied upon assumptions."

On the Stock Exchange, industrial shares made history when their average climbed above the 1929 all-time record-high peak.

Warden Fred Wilkinson at the federal penitentiary at Lewisburg says Prisoner William Remington has been attacked with a brick concealed in a stocking. Remington suffered multiple lacerations of the face and head, lost much blood and suffered a probable fractured skull. Remington is serving a three-year term for perjury. The warden did not reveal the reason for the attack.

Bethesda Naval Hospital says a small amount of fluid has been removed from Senator McCarthy's injured elbow but "this is not considered technically to be an operation." Yesterday McCarthy told a photographer that the elbow has been operated on.

Sir Winston Churchill said in England today that before World War Two ended he ordered Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery to stack captured

German arms.."so that they could easily be issued again to German soldiers whom we would have to work with if the Soviet advance continued into Europe. "

In Brazil, Treasury Secretary Humphrey told the Inter-American Economic Conference that the President feels the good neighbor policy is no longer sufficient.... the President asked for dedication to the policy of "the good partner."

Edward R. Murrow: November 23, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

The proposal to hold a four-power conference, after the ratification of the mutual defense treaties in Western Europe, was today the main topic of comment in European capitals. The proposal was the high spot of Premier Mendes-France's address at the United Nations yesterday, and it drew immediate response in Washington and London. Washington agreed to the idea of a conference, but only if it looked as though it would be fruitful. But the State Department did not endorse the French Premier's suggestion that the Soviet Army be given an extension of its occupation of Austria to two years as an inducement to sign the Austrian treaty before a conference. Under the Austrian treaty now awaiting Soviet signature the Red Army must get out in 90 days. Obviously Washington is not ready to give up the 90 day clause, although at Berlin the Austrians said they would settle for an extension to 18 months just to get a treaty and to have a date for evacuation finally set.

The British reaction to the proposal was somewhat less favorable than the American, which may surprise those who think Sir Winston Churchill is pressing hard for Big Four talks at the highest level. The British point out that by May - the date Mendes-France mentioned for a conference - German re-armament would not have begun. They prefer to negotiate with the Russians when it can be done from a position of greater strength. The British also do not like the suggestion of extending the occupation of Austria for two years just to get a treaty signed. They say that a note is being drafted in reply to Mr. Molotov's latest request for an all-European conference in which the Soviet government is urged to prove good faith by signing the Austrian treaty as it stands, as well as agreeing to free elections in Germany. This note was to have been signed by Britain, the United States and France. Now Mendes-France is offering a concession on his own, and the British regard that as weakening Allied solidarity.

The Paris reaction to the speech is one of disappointment. The Premier worked nearly all night re-writing it, and turned up thirty minutes late to deliver it. This is attributed in Paris to his having shown the text to Secretary Dulles. The Premier's home critics say he felt he had to bow to certain objections raised by Mr. Dulles. What these were is not disclosed, and little is being said either in Washington or Paris about differences. It is stated in Washington that the May date for a conference was not in the draft which Mr. Dulles read, so that he is not even indirectly committed to it.

The Mendes-France proposal has focused on the possibility of negotiations after ratification, and outlined the direction the talks could take. The Soviet reply to ratification, he foresees, will be to arm East Germany openly.

Very well, he says in effect, let the East set up a defense system like that of the West. But let it be sure that it works the same way. He stresses that the arming of the West, Germany included, is unique in being not only purely defensive but also controlled armament. No member of NATO under the Paris treaty can take separate action, and no state can ~~unilaterally~~ by its own decision increase its armed strength. He considers this a kind of preview of the control of armaments both sides can apply in Europe. So he urges the East to adopt the same terms, including an equal amount of publication. If both sides have controlled armament, he points out that in time the controls could be transformed into a binding contract. And when that happens, the same procedures could be adopted in wider areas, and ultimately for the whole world.

In the eyes of Mendes-France it is no contradiction to hope that German re-armament, even when it becomes a reality, can lead to a system of arms control on both sides. And then in time it can be extended to deal with reductions in the agreed levels of armed strength.

It is a familiar doctrine that the one way to assure peace is to control armaments. Obviously the effective control of armaments would lead to greater confidence and would ease tensions. But the trouble about the doctrine is that it takes increased confidence to get armament controls in the first place. That's what has made progress toward disarmament in the United Nations so difficult. Mendes-France doesn't start with a treaty of controls accepted in advance by both sides. He starts with controls adopted by the West of its own forces, and an invitation to the East to do likewise. If the East declines, then it may be idle to hope for an understanding. But if both sides accept limitation in the size of their armies in Europe, then confidence grows and a situation is created that could lead to a contract.

Perhaps the French Premier already sees himself as mediating this kind of settlement. His suggestion that the Red Army should stay in Austria for two years looks like an attempt to interest the Kremlin in it. It may even be that the Kremlin has already hinted through diplomatic channels that it might buy an Austrian treaty on such terms in preparing for a four-power conference.

Whatever the new proposal amounts to, it can be described as ~~ingenious~~ resourceful. For it keeps the pledge of Mendes-France to re-arm Germany and to negotiate with the Russians at the same time.

In international diplomacy, statesmen are not always governed by idealism or principles. And it is not always easy to follow this bit of advice John Quincy Adams once gave:

"Always vote for a principle, HE SAID though you vote alone and you may cherish the sweet reflection that your vote is never lost." BUT, AS Junius put it:"Integrity in men is to be measured by their conduct, not by their professions."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

Edward R. Murrow: November 23, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

The proposal to hold a four-power conference, after the ratification of the mutual defense treaties in Western Europe, was today the main topic of comment in European capitals. The proposal was the high spot of Premier Mendes-France's address at the United Nations yesterday, and it drew immediate response in Washington and London. Washington agreed to the idea of a conference, but only if it looked as though it would be fruitful. But the State Department did not endorse the French Premier's suggestion that the Soviet Army be given an extension of its occupation of Austria to two years as an inducement to sign the Austrian treaty before a conference. Under the Austrian treaty now awaiting Soviet signature the Red Army must get out in 90 days. Obviously Washington is not ready to give up the 90 day clause, although at Berlin the Austrians said they would settle for an extension to 18 months just to get a treaty and to have a date for evacuation finally set.

The British reaction to the proposal was somewhat less favorable than the American, which may surprise those who think Sir Winston Churchill is pressing hard for Big Four talks at the highest level. The British point out that by May - the date Mendes-France mentioned for a conference - German re-armament would not have begun. They prefer to negotiate with the Russians when it can be done from a position of greater strength. The British also do not like the suggestion of extending the occupation of Austria for two years just to get a treaty signed. They say that a note is being drafted in reply to Mr. Molotov's latest request for an all-European conference in which the Soviet government is urged to prove good faith by signing the Austrian treaty as it stands, as well as agreeing to free elections in Germany. This note was to have been signed by Britain, the United States and France. Now Mendes-France is offering a concession on his own, and the British regard that as weakening Allied solidarity.

The Paris reaction to the speech is one of disappointment. The Premier worked nearly all night re-writing it, and turned up thirty minutes late to deliver it. This is attributed in Paris to his having shown the text to Secretary Dulles. The Premier's home critics say he felt he had to bow to certain objections raised by Mr. Dulles. What these were is not disclosed, and little is being said either in Washington or Paris about differences. It is stated in Washington that the May date for a conference was not in the draft which Mr. Dulles read, so that he is not even indirectly committed to it.

The Mendes-France proposal has focused on the possibility of negotiations after ratification, and outlined the direction the talks could take. The Soviet reply to ratification, he foresees, will be to arm East Germany openly.

Very well, he says in effect, let the East set up a defense system like that of the West. But let it be sure that it works the same way. He stresses that the arming of the West, Germany included, is unique in being not only purely defensive but also controlled armament. No member of NATO under the Paris treaty can take separate action, and no state can unilaterally increase its armed strength. He considers this a kind of preview of the control of armaments both sides can apply in Europe. So he urges the East to adopt the same terms, including an equal amount of publication. If both sides have controlled armament, he points out that in time the controls could be transformed into a binding contract. And when that happens, the same procedures could be adopted in wider areas, and ultimately for the whole world.

In the eyes of Mendes-France it is no contradiction to hope that German re-armament, even when it becomes a reality, can lead to a system of arms control on both sides. And then in time it can be extended to deal with reductions in the agreed levels of armed strength.

It is a familiar doctrine that the one way to assure peace is to control armaments. Obviously the effective control of armaments would lead to greater confidence and would ease tensions. But the trouble about the doctrine is that it takes increased confidence to get armament controls in the first place. That is what has made progress toward disarmament in the United Nations so difficult. Mendes-France doesn't start with a treaty of controls accepted in advance by both sides. He starts with controls adopted by the West of its own forces, and an invitation to the East to do likewise. If the East declines, then it may be idle to hope for an understanding. But if both sides accept limitation in the size of their armies in Europe, then confidence grows and a situation is created that could lead to a contract.

Perhaps the French Premier already sees himself as mediating this kind of settlement. His suggestion that the Red Army should stay in Austria for two years looks like an attempt to interest the Kremlin in it. It may even be that the Kremlin has already hinted through diplomatic channels that it might buy an Austrian treaty on such terms in preparing for a four-power conference.

Whatever the new proposal amounts to, it can be described as ingenious. For it keeps the pledge of Mendes-France to re-arm Germany and to negotiate with the Russians at the same time.

Swing Nov.23

The proposal to hold a four-power conference after the ratification of the mutual defense treaties in Western Europe was today the main topic of comment in European capitals. The proposal was the high spot of Premeir Mendes-France's address at the United Nations yesterday, and it drew immediate response in Washington and London. Washington agreed to the idea of a conference, but only if it looked as though it would be fruitful. But State Department did not endorse the French premier's suggestion that the Soviet army be given an extension of its occupation of Austria to two years as an inducement to sign the Austrian treaty before a conference. Under the Austrian treaty now awaiting Soviet signature the Red Army must get out in 90 days. Obviously Washington is not ready to give up the 90 day clause, although at Berlin the Austrians said they would settle for an extension to 18 months just to get a treaty and to have a date for evacuation finally set.

The British reaction to the proposal was somewhat less favorable than the American, which may surprise those who think Sir Winstin Churchill is pressing hard for Big Four talks at the highest level. The British point out that by May--the date Mendes-France mentioned for a conference, German rearmament would not have begun. They prefer to negotiate with the Russians when it can be done from a position of greater strength. The British also do not like the suggestion of extending the occupation of Austria for two years in ~~recompense for getting~~ just to get a treaty signed. They say that a note is being drafted in reply to Mr.Molotov's latest request for an all-European conference in which the Soviet government is urged to prove good faith by singing ~~an~~ the Austrian treaty as it stands, as well as agreeing to free elections in Germany. This note was to have been signed by Britain, The United States and France. Now Mendes-France is offering a concession on his own, and the British regard that as weakening ~~the~~ Allied solidarity of ~~the Allies~~.

The Paris reaction to the speech is one of disappointment. The premier worked nearly all night rewriting it, and turned up 30 minutes late to deliver it. This is attributed in Paris to his having shown the text to Secretary Dulles. The Premier's home critics say he felt ~~he should~~ had to bow to certain objections raised by Mr. Dulles. What these were is not disclosed, and little is being said either in Washington or Paris about differences. It is stated in Washington that the May date for a conference was not in the draft which Mr.Dulles read, so that he is not even indirectly committed to it.

The Mendes France proposal has focused on the possibility of neggotiations after ratification, and outlined the direction the talks could take. The Soviet reply to ratification, he foresees, will be to arm East Germany openly. Very well, he says in effect, let the East set up a defense system like that of the West. But let it be sure that it is the same system. He stresses that the arming of the West, Germany included, is unique in being not only defensive but also controlled armament. No member of NATO under the Paris treaty can take separate action, and no state can unilaterally increase its armed strength. He considers this a kind of preview of the control of armaents both sides can apply in Europe. So he urges the East to adopt the same terms, including an equal amount of publication. If both sides have controlled armament, he points out that in time the controls could be transformed into a binding contract. And when that happens, the same procedures could be adoptedin wider areas, and ultimately for the whole world.

In the eyes of Mendes France is is no contradiction to hope that German rearmament, even when it becomes a reality, can lead to a system of arms control on both sides. And then in time it can be extended to deal with reductions in the agreed levels of armed strength.

¶ It is a familiar doctrine that the one way to assure peace is to control armaments. Obviously the effective control of armaments would lead to greater confidence and would ease tensions. But the trouble about the doctrine is that it takes increased confidence to get armament controls in the first place. That is what has made progress toward disarmament in the United Nations so difficult. Mendes-France doesn't start with a treaty of controls accepted in advance by both sides. He starts with controls adopted by the West of its own forces, and an invitation to the East to do likewise. If the East declines, then it may be idle to hope for an understanding. But if both sides accept limitation in the size of their armies in Europe, then confidence grows and a situation is created that can lead to a contract.

¶ Perhaps the French premier already sees himself as mediating this kind of settlement. His suggestion that the Red Army should stay in Austria for two years looks like an attempt to interest the Kremlin in it. It may even be that the Kremlin has already hinted through diplomatic channels that it might buy an Austrian treaty on such terms in preparing for a four power conference.

Whatever the new proposal amounts to, it can be described as ingenious. For it keeps the pledge of Mendes France to rearm Germany and to negotiate with the Russias at the same time.

Wednesday, November 24, 1954

This is the news:

The President says we are doing everything humanly possible "within peaceful means" to get back the Americans now held in Chinese Communist prisons. This was revealed by White House Secretary Hagerty who relayed the President's message to Mrs. Hurley Baumer, of Lewisburg, Pennsylvania, whose son, Major William Baumer, has been sentenced to eight years in a Chinese prison. And the State Department has informed our consul general in Geneva to demand a face-to-face meeting with Red China's consul general to protest China's imprisonment of 13 Americans on "trumped up" spy charges. Switzerland is a neutral area in which our government and the Communists are represented. Radio Peiping today added details to yesterday's charges. The Communists say that since 1951 in addition to the 13 Americans sent to prison, and five others killed when their planes were shot down..they have killed or captured 212 Chinese Nationalists. The Communists say the Americans and the Nationalists were spies.. The Communists say they all had special espionage training.. and tried to set up guerrilla bases in China. The Communists say some of the Chinese were former officers in Chiang Kai Shek's army. And Radio Peiping adds that many of the so-called agents were "sent and air-dropped by the United States Central Intelligence Agency.

In Washington, Republican Senator Butler of Maryland told reporters the State and Defense departments has "consistently" pleaded with him during the year to withhold any criticism of our efforts to get the release of all Americans captured tduring the Korean war. (Many of the men now held by the Chinese were captured during the war.) But now, Senator Butler says the government must decide what measures to take "without delay, without compromise and without piecemeal appeasement." And here in New York, (ANTHONY) Nutting, the chief of the British delegation to the United Nations calls the detention of the 13 Americans "outrageous"...and promises that Great Britain will do all in its ppower "to mitigate this greivous wrong."

Air Force Secretary Talbott said today that we cannot rely on anti-aircraft guided missiles to protect this country against enemy bombers. And he said he's not satisfied with the efficiency of interceptor planes. Talbott says he thinks its just about impossible , with present weapons, to intercept long-range (GUIDED) missiles traveling at the rate of 35-hundred miles an hour. He said this would be like pitching needles from the opposite endsof a ball "in the hope the needles might collide." Air Secretary Talbott says it may be that our Strategic Air Force bombers may be enlarged. But right now a single bomber can carry an explosive load equal to the destructive power carried by all the air forces in World War Two. And Talbott says he "does not believe" that an enemy bomber could get across Alaska without being picked up by our radar stations.

The White House says that former Budget Director Dodge is making a study for the President on the organization...co-ordination and development.. of our foreign economic policy. Dodge is not forming policy. But he's making a study to be incorporated in the President's state of the union message to the Congress.

Attorney-General Brownell today asked the Supreme Court to let the lower courts supervise the integretaion of white and Negro students in the nation's public schools. The Department suggested no deadline for a court decision but it urged that integration should be achieved as "promptly as feasible." The Department suggests that the problems of putting white and Negro students in the same school--where they do not now attend the same school--will vary from area to area. Therefore, the program should be carried out by school authorities under the supervision of the lower federal courts..with the Supreme Court still retaining jurisdiction. The Justice Department also suggests that the lower courts require school authorities to submit detailed reports on their progress..periodically.

William Remington died today in the federal penitentiary at Lewisburg, after being beaten by two inmates with a brick while he was asleep. Remington was serving time after being found guilty of perjury in connection with a Communist spy case. The F.B.I. has accused two men of the murder..George Junior McCoy of Virginia and Robert C. Parker of Washington. Both had been convicted for stealing automobiles. The F.B.I. has not announced the motive for the crime. Mrs. Remington, who lives here in New York, told reporters: her husband was never a Communist.. "a couple of the people down there got whipped up over the accusations against him and this is what caused them to attack him." She added: "This is not a tragedy of mine alone..but also of the country. It is terrible that something like this can happen."

The government announced today that the cost of living went down again in October..for the third straight month. It is now at the lowest level since June of 1953. Falling food prices were mainly responsible for the fractional decline which cost a million and a third auto, aircraft and farm equipment workers a penny an hour in their pay.

The Stock Market today rose to a new high on the heaviest volume in nearly four years.

And the President and his family are now at Augusta, Georgia, for a long Thanksgiving week-end...accompanied by British Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery.

Mr. Eisenhower's departure from Washington came at a time when many Washington diplomatic experts were taking note of a change of climate in our foreign policy. My colleague Dan Schorr has been following this story closely and tonight we asked him to summarize it for you:

(runs 5 mins.. ending.. And that Ed, is what we face on this thanksgiving eve.)

One more news item from London: A British secret agent testified today that a Russian diplomat had sent a 27-year-old British clerk--named John Clarence--to spy on American naval headquarters and other American offices in London. The case came to light when Clark lost a briefcase containing a document headed "Embassy of the Soviet Union." He's being tried on charges of recording British military information "calculated to be useful to the enemy." #

Here in New York, Franklin D. Roosevelt, Junior, has turned down an appointment to the Administration of Governor-elect Harriman./ Roosevelt--the only Democrat defeated for state-wide office on November second--says he wants to resume his private law practise.

Tomorrow is Thanksgiving. And if it is your lot to carve up the turkey, you'll appreciate this observation by Bill Nye who said: "It is not alone the fact that the amateur carver misses the joints and tries to cut through the largest bones that fills him with regret and his lap full of sage and onions. It is the horrible thought that the entire company is looking at him."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

CBS RADIO DIVISION

EDWARD R. MURROW

Wednesday, Nov. 24, 1954
7:45-8:00 P.M.

MURROW: ... Mr. Eisenhower's departure from Washington came at a time when many Washington diplomatic experts were taking note of a change of climate in our foreign policy. My colleague Dan Schorr has been following this story closely. And tonite we asked him to summarize it for you.

SCHORR: Moscow radio told the Russian people today that President Eisenhower has refused to enter into four-power talks before the agreements for German rearmament and West European union are ratified. It did not report that French Premier Mendes-France and Britain's Anthony Eden have said substantially the same thing. And Moscow added that once these agreements go into effect, negotiations on German unification would have no point. For once it's the Soviet which must bear the onus of rejecting a conference. Instead of proclaiming its readiness to meet the Communists after ratification, our Administration could have adopted a policy of refusing to meet them at all, a policy that might have been more popular with Senator Knowland and some others in Congress. It chose to ~~xxxx~~ state its policy in terms that would bring unity with France and Britain. Behind that policy was the calculation that the Russians probably would not want to negotiate on the basis of a sovereign West Germany on her way towards being rearmed. For one thing, the purpose of the Soviets in most conferences since World War II has been to stall Western action until the tide would run in their favor. After German rearmament started, the Russians would be negotiating from weakness. They could give up East Germany in return for a guarantee of German neutrality, but that would mean trading valuable real estate, a slave population and uranium mines for a promise. And the Russians don't usually exchange concrete advantages for promises. And being obliged to give up East Germany under such conditions of Western strength might start a chain reaction that could lead to disintegration of the whole Soviet satellite system.

If this was the State Department's calculation, it has apparently paid off. It's one of the fruits of a new climate of American relations with our Allies, a climate in which we talk of partnership with our Allies, not agonizing reappraisal of them, in which the slogan "coexistence" is replaced instead of "massive retaliation". In this climate there's a feeling of give and take with our friends, a tolerance of differences, and when a question is too tough for immediate agreement it's postponed and nobody goes away mad.

When Mendes-France, after consulting Secretary of State Dulles on his United Nations speech, added, without consultation, a proposal for a conference with the Russians next May, the State Department didn't like the date but remained unruffled. When Mendes-France proposed to Mr. Eisenhower and Dulles, as Paris reports say he did, a moratorium on atomic and hydrogen bomb experiments and ran into American opposition, he dropped the question for the time being. When Mendes-France became convinced he'd get nowhere in proposing recognition of Red China, he didn't even raise the question. For behind disagreements on tactics -- and they are many -- there is now a basic agreement among the Western Big Three on the prospects in the cold war, what we really face in the way of coexistence. That word has been so much abused and confused.

Our leaders are now convinced there's no early prospect of a shooting war but that we're in for a long period of political, economic and propaganda warfare, what some call "competitive coexistence". In the preparations for the long haul it's symptomatic that the North Atlantic Chiefs of Staff on Monday took less than five hours, instead of two days as scheduled, to study military plans for the next year. But today the White House announced that former Budget Director Dodge is reviewing the Government's foreign economic policy. Foreign Aid Director Harold Stassen has called on our West European friends to join in an economic development program for Asia. The State Department says plans are being made for a meeting in Bangkok, Thailand, early next year of the .....? pact nations, even before the pact has been ratified, to take action against Communist subversion.

In the kind of war that looms ahead, the victories will be tallied not in terms of cities destroyed or armies vanquished but in terms of whether India has enough food, whether Japan has markets for her goods, whether Europe can earn dollars by trade and investment, whether nationalist aspirations in North Africa can be satisfied. It will be a hard war to fight because it will call for coolness, patience, determination and, above all, concerted action with our allies. Moscow by proclaiming that there's no point to a conference after Germany is rearmed has in effect announced her intention of waging this ceaseless struggle. The weapons of the Communists are various. One is to try to uproot the fragile flower of American partnership with the free nations. Many American officials believe that Red China in announcing the execution and imprisonment of Americans is seeking to goad us into intemperate statements and threats of reprisal that will frighten our allies and make them shy away from us. From some members of Congress today came demands for drastic action. But Mr. Eisenhower says that everything possible is being done with peaceful means to liberate the imprisoned Americans. That phrase "peaceful means" seems intended to assure our allies that we are keeping cool. Patience and fortitude may not be a very satisfying slogan emotionally, but it's the cost of partnership that we need in a long, hard cold war.

And that, Ed, is what we face on this Thanksgiving Eve.

MURROW: That was Dan Schorr reporting from Washington.

-30-

Ediphone trans./E. Scheiner

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 24, 1954
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

The President says we are doing everything humanly possible "within peaceful means" to get back the Americans now held in Chinese Communist prisons. This was revealed by White House Secretary Hagerty who relayed the President's message to Mrs. Hurley Baumer, of Lewisburg, Pennsylvania, whose son, Major William Baumer, has been sentenced to eight years in a Chinese prison. And the State Department has informed our consul general in Geneva to demand a face-to-face meeting with Red China's consul general to protest China's imprisonment of 13 Americans on "trumped up" spy charges. Switzerlad is a neautral area in which our government and the Communists are represented. Radio Peiping today added details to yesterday's charges. The Communists say that since 1951 in addition to the 13 Americans sent to prison, and five others killed when their planes were shot down..they have killed or captured 212 Chinese Nationalists. The Communists say the American and the Nationalists were spies...The Communists say the Americans and the Nationalists were spies...The Communists say they all had special espionage training...and tried to set up guerilla bases in China. The Communists say some of the Chinese were former officers in Chiang Kai Shek's army. And Radio Peiping adds that many of the so-called agents were "sent and air-dropped by the United States Central Intelligence Agency.

In Washington, Republican Senator Butler of Maryland told reporters the State and Defense Departments had "consistently" pleaded with him during the year to withhold any criticism of our efforts to get the release of all Americans captured during the Korean war. But now, Senator Butler says the government must decide what measures to take "without delay, without - compromise, and without piecemeal appeasement." And here in New York, Anthony Nutting, the chief of the British delegation to the United Nations, calls the detention of the 13 Americans "outrageous"...and promises that Great Britain will do all in its power "to mitigate this grievous wrong."

Air Force Secretary Talbott said today that we cannot rely on anti-air craft guided missiles to protect this country against enemy bombers. And he said he's not satisfied with the efficiency of interceptor planes. Talbott says he thinks its just about impossible, with present weapons, to intercept long-range guided missiles traveling at the rate of 35-hundred miles an hour. He said this would be like pitching needles from the opposite ends of a hall "in hope the needles might collide." Air Secretary Talbott says it may be that our Strategic Air Force bombers may be enlarged. But right now a single bomber can carry an explosive load equal to the destructive power carried by all the air forces in World War Two. And Talbott says he "does not believe" that an enemy bomber could get across Alaska without being picked up by our radar stations.

The White House says that former Budget Director Dodge is making a study for the President on the organization...co-ordination, and developement... of our foreign economic policy. Dodge is not forming policy. But he's making a study to be incorporated in the President's state of the union message to Congress.

Attorney-General Brownell today asked the Supreme Court to let lower courts supervise the integration of white and Negro students in the nation's public schools. The Department suggested no deadline for a court decision but it urged that integration should be achieved as "promptly as feasible." The Department suggests that the problems of putting white and negro students in the same shcool --where they do not now attend the same school -- will vary from area to area. Therefore, the program should be carried out by school authorities under the supervision of the lower federal courts... with the Supreme Court still retaining jurisdiction. The Justice Department also suggests that thw lower courts require school authorities to submit detailed reports on their progress...periodically.

William Remington died today in the federal penitentiary at Lewisburg, after being beaten by two inmates with a brick while he was asleep. Remington was serving time after being found guilty of perjury in connection with a Communist spy case. The F.B.I. has accused two men of the murder... George Junior McCay of Virginia and Robert C. Parker of Washington. Both had been convicted for stealing automobiles. The F.B.I. has not announced the motive for the crime. Mrs. Remington, who lives here in New York, told reporters: her husband was never a Communist.."a couple of the people down there got whipped up over the accusations against him and this is what caused them to attack him." She added: "This is not a tragedy of mine alone..but also of the country. It is terrible that something like this can happen."

The government announced today that the cost of living went down again in October..for the third straight month. It is now at the lowest level since June 1953. Falling food prices were mainly responsible for the fractional decline which cost a million and a third auto, aircraft and farm equipment workers a penny an hour in their pay.

The Stock Market today rose to a new high on the heaviest volume in nearly four year..

And the President and his family are now at Augusta, Georgia, for a long Thanksgiving week-end..accompanied by British Field Marshal Viscount Mongomery.

Mr. Eisenhower's departure from Washington came at a time when many Washington diplomatic experts were taking vote of a change of climate in our foreign policy. My colleague Dan Schorr has been following this story closely and tonight we asked him to summarize it for you:

SCHORR: Moscow radio told the Russian people today that President Eisenhower has refused to enter into four-power talks before the agreements for German rearmament and West European union are ratified. It did not report that French Premier Mendes-France and Britain's Anthony Eden have said substantially the same thing. And Moscow added that once these agreements go into effect, negotiations on German unification would have no point. For once it's the Soviet which must bear the onus of rejecting a conference. Instead of proclaiming its readiness to meet the Communists after ratification, our Administration could have adopted a policy of refusing to meet them at all, a policy that might have been more popular with Senator Knowland and some others in Congress. It chose to state its policy in terms that would bring unity with France and Britain. Behind that policy was the calculaion that the Russians probably would not want to negotiate on the basis of a soverign West Germany on her way towards being rearmed. For one thing, the purpose of the Soviets in most conferences since World War II has been to stall Western action until the tide would run in their favor. After German rearmament started, the Russians would be negotiating from weakness. They could give up East Germany in return for a guarantee of German neautrality, but that would mean trading valuable real estate, a slave populaion and uranium mines for a promise. And the Russians don't usually exchange concrete advantages for promises. And being obliged to give up East Germany under such conditions of Western strength might start a chain reaction that could lead to disintegration of the whole Soviet satellite system.

If this was the State Department's calculation, it has apparently paid off. It's one of the fruits of a new climate of American relations with our Allies, a climate in which we talk of partnership with our Allies, not agonizing reappraisal of them, in which the slogan "coexistence" is replaced instead of "massive retaliation". In this climate there's a feeling of give and take with our friends, a tolerance of differences, and when a question is too tough for immediate agreement it's postponed and nobody goes away mad.

When Mendes-France, after consulting Secretary of State Dulles on his United Nations speech, added, without consultation, a proposal for a conference with the Russians next May, the State Department didn't like the date but remained unruffeled. When Mendes-France proposed to Mr. Eisenhower and Dulles, as Paris reports say he did, a moratorium on atomic and hydrogen bomb experiments and ran into American opposition, he dropped the question for the time being. When Mendes-France became concinced he'd get nowhere in proposing recognition of Red China, he didn't even raise the question. For behind disagreements on tactics-- and they are many -- there is now a basic agreement among the Western Big Three on the prospects in the coldwar, what we really face in the way of coexistence. That word has been so much abused and confused.

Our leaders are now convinced there's no early prospect of a shooting war but that we're in for a long period of political, economic and propaganda warfare, what some call "competitive coexistence". In the preparations for the long haul it's symptomatic that the North Atlantic Chiefs of Staff on Monday took less than five hours, instead of two days as scheduled, to study military plans for the next year. But today the White House announced that former Budget Director Dodge is reviewing the Governments foreign economic policy. Foreign Aid Director Harold Stassen has called on our West European friends to join in an economic developmnet porgram for Asia. The State Department says plans are being made for a meeting in Bangkok, Thailand, early next year.

In the kind of war that looms ahead, the victories will be tallied not in terms of cities destroyed or armies vanquished but in terms of whether India has enough food, whether Japan has markets for her goods, whether Europe can earn dollars by trade and investment, whether nationalists aspirations in North Africa can be satisfied. It will be a hard war to fight because it will call for coolness, patience, determination and, above all, concerted action with our allies. Moscow by proclaiming that there's no point to a conference after Germany is rearmed has in effect announced her intention of waging this ceaseless struggle. The weapons of the Communists are various. One is to try to uproot the fragile flower of American partnership with free nations. Many American officials believe that Red China in announcing the execution and imprisonment of Americans is seeking to goad us into intemperate statements and threats of reprisal that will frighten our allies and make them shy away from us. From some members of Congress today came demands for drastic action. But Mr. Eisenhower says that everything possible is being done with peaceful means to liberate the imprisoned Americans. That phrase "peaceful means" seems intended to assure our allies that we are keeping cool. Patience and fortitude may not be a very satisfying slogan emotionally, but it's the cost of partnership that we need in a long, hard cold war.

And that, Ed, is what we face on this Thanksgiving Eve.

MURROW: That was Dan Schorr reporting from Washington. One more news item from London: A British secret agent testified today that a Russian diplomat had sent a 27-year-old British clerk --named John Clarence -- to spy on American naval headquarters and other American offices in London.

The case came to light when Clark lost a briefcase containing a document headed "Embassy of the Soviet Union." He's being tried on charges of recording British Military information, "Calculated to be useful to the enemy."

Here in New York, Franklin D. Roosevelt, Junior, has turned down an appointment to the Administration of Governor elect Harriman. Roosevelt -- the only Democrat defeated for state-wide office on November Second --says he wants to resume his private law practice.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a moment with the Word for Today. But first, a word from Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERICAL

MURROW: Tomorrow is Thanksgiving. And if it is your lot to carve the turkey, you'll appreciate this observation by Bill Nye who said: "It is not alone the fact that the amateur carver misses the joints and tries to cut through the largest bones that fills him with regret and his lap full of sage and onions. It is the horrible thought that the entire company is looking at him." Good Night and Good Luck.

Thurs Nov 25 - Thanksgiving

1954

To Edward R. Murrow
% Lowell Thomas
Pawling, N.Y.

This is the news:

The President today assured relatives of the 13 Americans held by the Chinese Communists that our government is "using every feasible means" to get them released. In telegrams sent from the Augusta National Golf Club where he's spending the Thanksgiving holiday, the President expressed his profound sympathy.. gave assurances that we are making strong efforts to secure proper treatment for the prisoners and said he is truly distressed by their imprisonment.

And at the United Nations, Ambassador Lodge issued a statement accusing Communist China of "a new act of barbarism." He said the imprisonment of the 13 Americans on trumped-up spy charges "adds still another item to the long list of reasons why the unspeakable gang in Peiping is unfit to sit in the United Nations." Lodge said the sentencing of the 13 Americans has "aroused indignation Not only Among the American people but all over the free world."

And the British government today called the Chinese Communist action outrageous. The Foreign Office , which has been using a conciliatory tone toward the Communists, now accuses Peiping of acting in bad faith in deliberately hiding the fact that the Americans are prisoners. This has been concealed for more than a year since the Korean armistice agreement. ~~The British also say the Chinese are violating the Geneva convention on the treatment of prisoners of war.~~

(more)

From Communist China today came another defense of the Red action. Peiping says the sentencing of the 13 Americans was "absolutely necessary and just." The Communists accuse the United States of using Formosa and islands off the South China coast as bases for espionage. And the Chinese Reds say they have "depositions" from the prisoners fully exposing what the Chinese call " the aggressive American clique."

Attorney General Brownell, speaking at the Thanksgiving Day observance of the American Society in Brazil, warned today that "Communism is always ready, we cannot afford to be less so." Brownell said the Communist efforts to damage American prestige abroad have never endagered American-Brazil friendship. ~~And at the Inter-American congress meeting in Brazil, Assistant Secretary of Commerce Anderson asked that Latin American publics work harder for the American~~

~~tourists dollar. Anderson said this is "an important potential source of foreign exchange.~~

In Lewisburg, Pennsylvania, today Acting Warden Wilkinson said he does not feel an anti-communist feeling was the motive for the murder of William Remington in the FEDERAL penitentiary at Lewisburg. Wilkinson said:"We don't feel we are experiencing that in the prison." He said the inmates are "quite angry" over Remington's death. The F.B.I. has not yet suggested a motive for the attack on Remington by two automobile theives .

In West Germany, Chancellor Adenauer said he's confident that German unification can be achieved by negotiations with Russia. But he said this can be done only after West German rearmament has forged a solid western defense alliance.

~~And the East German communist press accuses Britain's Prime Minister Churchill of starting preparations for a Third World War before World War Two ended.~~

(more)

Throughout his nation today, and wherever Americans are stationed overseas, our second peactime Thanksgiving was celebrated with prayers of gratitude..parades and feasting. One of our colleagues..Charles Ashley..observed the holiday by taking his young son, Jeff, on a tour of Plymouth..the rock..and the museums and the sites. Ashley, who works in Boston, a sked questions..and Young Jeff recalled what he had been taught at school. Here is a recording made on their trip..the Ashleys.

(runs 7;10 ending... Now back to Ed Murrow)

That was Charles Ashley, our correspondent in Boston, recording from Plymouth..with the aide of his 6-year-old son, Jeff.

Tonight the Voice of America is bredcasting direct to thepeople of the Soviet Union a Thanksgiving day appeal from Republican Senator Flanders of Vermont. Flanders is saying:"We Americans have no ambition to conquer any people. We covet no one's territory. And yet we are spendin huge sums of money in arms, armaments and armies. Why? " Because-- ays Flanders.. since the end of the war the Russian government has onquered people after people, and we do not think it is right. We therefore feel is necessary to army ourselves to protect the areas of the earth that your government has not conquered."

(more)

This is Ed Murrow..I'll be back in a moment with the word for today. But first here is Bob Dixon.

Perhaps nothing sums up the aspirations of those pilgrims who landed at Plymouth Rock better than these words by Daniel Webster;"Let our object be our country. And, by the blessing of God, may that country itself become a vast and splendid monument, not of oppression and terror, but of wisdom, of peace and of liberty, upon which the world may gaze with admiration forever."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

CBS RADIO DIVISION

EDWARD R. MURROW

Thursday, Nov. 25, 1954
7:45-8:00 P.M.

MURROW: ... One of our colleagues, Charles Ashley, observed the holiday by taking his young son, Jeff, on a tour of Plymouth, the rock, the museum and the sights. Ashley, who works in Boston, asked questions and young Jeff recalled what he had been taught at school. Here is a recording made on their trip. The Ashleys:

ASHLEY: Now we're here in Plymouth, on the waterfront. We're standing under a canopy by an iron rail. Now, Jeff, down in that pit, what is that?

JEFF: Plymouth Rock.

ASHLEY: And what happened on Plymouth Rock?

JEFF: The foreign souvenir-hunters came and chipped most of it away, and then the Pilgrims came and landed.

ASHLEY: You mean the Pilgrims landed on Plymouth Rock and then the souvenir-hunters came and took it all away - and that's why it's in this big pit with these iron railings around it, huh?

JEFF: Yes.

ASHLEY: Jeffie, do you know why the Pilgrims came over here from England?

JEFF: They wanted to worsh' like they wanted to.

ASHLEY: They wanted to what? Worship?

JEFF: Yes.

ASHLEY: Well, that's fine. They wanted to worship God like they wanted to.

Well, here today, this Thanksgiving Day, it's cold and windy in Plymouth Harbor; it's very quiet down here now this morning, because we're recording in the morning. One single boat is moored out here in the harbor. It's a sea-going ketch, black hull, a racing, cruising ketch. People are coming in, parking their cars and walking down here to the Plymouth Rock under this canopy. And from here, we turn our back to the sea and we see First Street, Port Street and the main streets of Plymouth that lead up to the hill to the Town House and the burial ground.

Jeff, these streets of Plymouth, these streets of old Plymouth these streets and ways ... Isn't there something that your teacher taught you last year, when you were only a first-grader, about up and down old Plymouth Town?

JEFF: Yes.

ASHLEY: How does that go?

JEFF: (sings)

ASHLEY: Well, Jeff, that was back when you were only a first-grader. Now you're a second-grader and you know more. Let's go walking along those crooked paths and ways and see the historical relics left by the Pilgrims.

From the waterfront, walking up the Pilgrims' original First Street, now renamed Laden Street, we come first to the original burial ground. On the top of the burial ground is a statue of Massasoit, the Indian who helped the Pilgrims, those who did survive that first horrible winter, who helped them celebrate that first Thanksgiving. Right near the statue of Massasoit, Jeff, this big monument marks the first burying ground in Plymouth of the passengers of the Mayflower. Of the 104 passengers, more than half died. And it says ... it's very hard to read, but it says: "Here, under cover of darkness, the fast dwindling company laid their dead, levelling the earth above them, lest the Indians should learn how many were in the graves. History records no nobler venture for faith and freedom than that of this Pilgrim band. In weariness and painfulness, in watchings, often in hunger and cold they laid the foundations of a state wherein every man, thru countless ages, should have liberty to worship God in his own way. May their example inspire thee to do they part in perpetuating and spreading the lofty ideals of our republic thruout the world." That's where the Pilgrims who died that first winter, Jeff, are buried.

JEFF: That's where the Pilgrims of the first winter ... that tough, horrible winter were buried.

ASHLEY: That's right, dear. And over here is the big statue of the Indian, Massasoit, who helped the others live. And he was there at their first Thanksgiving, with the other friendly Indians.

JEFF: Yes.

ASHLEY: Now, Jeffie, we're in Pilgrim Hall in Plymouth, surrounded by hundreds and hundreds of mementos, relics, dishes, swords, muskets and all the things that the Pilgrims had. And right here in the center, Jeffie, we're standing in front of a boat. It's a boat, oh, about four, five feet long, and it's a model boat - but it's a great big model boat. Do you know what boat that is?

JEFF: The Mayflower.

ASHLEY: How can you tell it's the Mayflower, son?

JEFF: Because I can read that sign.

ASHLEY: (laughs) That's the best way. And do you know what the Mayflower is famous for? How did the Pilgrims get over here?

JEFF: By the Mayflower.

ASHLEY: That's right. They came from England. What do you think of that boat?

JEFF: It looks beautiful. But I didn't know they carried their tenders so big.

ASHLEY: Oh, those are the longboats, son; they're not tenders. Today the tenders are little boats that we tow behind ... (unintelligible) bring them up on deck. That's the longboat. When the Pilgrims came, the Mayflower didn't come right up to Plymouth Rock; the longboat did. And when Miles Standish and the party went looking for water, they used that longboat.

JEFF: They had to go in water to ... If they went looking for water, they had to go ... they couldn't use the boat on land, so why didn't they use a car or the things they had to go around? Because if they're looking for water, you have to use a boat and you're in water.

ASHLEY: The days of the Pilgrims, son, they didn't have automobiles; they had to walk. They didn't have any horses, they didn't have any bicycles; they had to walk all thru these woods, and it was cold in wintertime.

JEFF: Oh, gee. I wouldn't like to be a Pilgrim.

ASHLEY: Well, son, you've seen as much of Plymouth as you can in one day. It'd take a week, probably, to see everything, all the old houses. You've seen Plymouth Rock, the Mayflower, the first house, the first fort and many other things. What do you think of it all, Jeff?

JEFF: Gee, I'm glad I'm not a Pilgrim.

ASHLEY: Why, Jeff?

JEFF: Well, they had .....? odd things, like the fort, the gardens? You had to get four things and put them in and then you had to use a block and tackle to get the garden back. (?) It's hard. I'm sure .....? Pilgrim like that lady .....? because she's a Pilgrim, and I would-n't like to be like she is.

ASHLEY: Jeffrey, in school they taught you a song about Thanksgiving. Do you remember it?

JEFF: Yes. (sings)

ASHLEY: Thank you, son!

Now back to Ed Murrow.

MURROW: That was Charles Ashley, our correspondent in Boston, recording from Plymouth with the indispensable aid of his six-year-old son, Jeff.

-30-

Ediphone trans./E. Scheiner

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 26, 1954
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

The President today assured relatives of the 13 Americans held by the Chinese Communists that our government is "using every feasible means" to get them released. In telegrams sent from the Augusta National Golf Club where he's spending the Thanksgiving holiday, the President expressed his profound sympathy ..gave assurances that we are making strong efforts to secure proper treatment for the prisoners and said he is truly distressed by their imprisonment.

And at the United Nations, Ambassador Lodge issues a statement accusing Communist China of "a new act of barbarism". He said the imprisonment of the 13 Americans on trumped-up spy charges "adds still another item to the long list of reasons why the unspeakable gang in Peiping is unfit to sit in the United Nations." Lodge said the sentencing of the 12 Americans has "aroused indignation not only among the American people but all over the free world."

And the British government today called the Chinese Communist action outrageous. The Foreign Office, which had been using a conciliatory tone toward the Communists now accuses Peiping of acting in bad faith.in deliberately hiding the fact that the Americans are prisoners. This has been concealed for more than a year since the Korean armistice agreement.

From Communist China today came another defense of the Red action. Peiping says the sentencing of the 12 Americans was "absolutely necessary and just." The Communists accuse the United States of using Formosa and the islands off the South China coast as bases for espionage. And the Chinese Reds say they have "depositions" from the prisoners fully exposing what the chinese call "the aggressive American clique."

Attorney General Brownell, speaking at the Thanksgiving Day observance of the American Society in Brazil warned today that "Communism is always ready, we can not afford to be less so." Brownell said the Communist efforts to damage American prestige abroad have endangered American-Brazil Friendship.

In Lewisburg, Pennsylvania, today Acting Warden Wilkinson said he does not feel an anti-Communist feeling was the motive for the murder of William Remington in the Federal penitentiary at Lewisburg.

Wilkinson said: "We don't feel we are experiencing that in the prison." He said inmates are "quite angry" over Remington's death. The F.B.I. has not yet suggested a motive for the attack on Remington by two automabile thieves.

In West Germany Chancellor Adenauer said he's confident that German unification can be achieved by negotiations with Russia. But he said this can be done only after West German rearmament has forged a solid western defense alliance.

Throughout this nation today, and wherever Americans are stationed overseas, our second peacetime Thanksgiving was celebrated with prayers of gratitude..parades and feasting. One of our colleagues..Charles Ashley.. observed the holiday by taking his young son, Jeff, on a tour of Plymouth.. the rock..and the museums and the sites. Ashley, who works in Boston, asked the questions...and young Jeff recalled what he had been taught at school. Here is a recording made on their trip.....the Ashleys.

ASHLEY: Now we're here in Plymouth, on the waterfront. We're standing under a conopy by an iron rail. Now, Jeff, down in that pit, what is that?

JEFF: Plymouth Rock

ASHLEY; And what happened on Plymouth Rock?"

JEFF: The foreign souvenire hunters came and chipped most of it away, and then the Pilgrims came and landed.

ASHLEY: You mean the Pilgrims landed on Plymouth Rock and then the souvenire hunters came and took it all away - and that's why it's in this big pit with the iron railing aoound it, huh?

JEFF: Yes.

ASHLEY: Jeffie, do you know why the Pilgrims came over here from England?

JEFF: They wanted to worship like they wanted to.

ASHLEY: They wanted to what? Worship?

JEFF: Yes.

ASHLEY: Well, that's fine. They wanted to worship God like they wanted to. Well, here today, this Thanksgiving Day, it's cold and windy in Plymouth Harbor; it's very quiet down here now this morning, because were recording in the morning. One single boat is moored out here in the harbor. It's a sea-going ketch, black hull, a racing, cruising ketch. People are coming in, parking their cars and walking down here to the Plymouth Rock under this canopy. And from here, we turn our back to the sea and we see First Street, Port Street and the main streets of Plymouth that lead up the hill to the Town House and burial ground.

Jeff, these streets of Plymouth, these streets of old Plymouth..these streets and ways..isn't there something that your teacher taught you last year, when you were only a first-grader, about up and down old Plymough Town?

JEFF: Yes

ASHLEY: How does that go?

JEFF: (sings)

ASHLEY: Well, Jeff, that was back when you were only a first-grader. Now you're a second-grader and you know more. Let's go walking along those corrked paths and ways and see the historical relics left by the Pilgrims.

From the waterfront, walking up the Pilgrims' original First Street, not renamed Leden Street, we come first to she original burial ground. On the top of the burial ground is a statue of Massassoit, the Indian who helped the Pilgrims, those who did survive the first hrrrible winter, who helped them celebrate the first Thanksgiving. Right near the statue of Massasoit, Jeff, this big monument marks the first burying ground in Plymouth of the passengers of the Mayflower. Of the 104 passengers, more than half died. And it says...it's very hard to read, but it says: "Here, under cover of darkness, the fast dwindling company laid their dead, levelling the earth above them, lest the Indians should learn how many were in the graves. History records no nobler venture for faith and freedom than that of this Pilgrim band. In weariness and painfulness, in watchings, often in hunger and cold they laid the foundations of a state wherein every man, thro countless ages, should have liberty to worship God in his own way. May their example inspire thee to do thy part in perpetuating and spreading the lofty ideals of our republic throughout the world." That's where the Pilgrims who died that first winter, Jeff, are buried.

JEFF: That's where the Pilgrims of the first winter...that tough, horrible winter were buried.

ASHLEY: That's right, dear. And over here is the big statue of the Indian, Massasoit, who helped the others live. And he was there at their first Thanksgiving, with the other friendly Indians.

JEFF: Yes.

ASHLEY: Now, Jeffie, we're in Pilgrim Hall in Plymouth, surrounded by hundreds and hundreds of mementos, relics, dishes, swords, muskets and all the things that the Pilgrims had. And right here in the center, Jeffie, we're standing in front of a boat. It's a boat, oh, about four, five feet long, and it's a model boat - but it's a great big model boat. Do you know what boat that is?

JEFF: The Mayflower.

ASHLEY: How can you tell it's the Mayflower, son?

JEFF: Because I can read that sign.

ASHLEY: That's the best way. And do you know what the Mayflower is famous for? How did the Pilgrims get over here?

JEFF: By the Mayflower.

ASHLEY: That's right. They came from England. What do you think of that boat?

JEFF: It looks beautiful. But I didn't know they carried their tenders so big.

ASHLEY: Oh, those are the longboats, son: they're not tenders. Today the tenders are little boats that we tow behind.....That's the longboat. When the Pilgrims came, the Mayflower didn't come right up to Plymouth Rock; the longboat did. And when Miles Standish and the party went looking for water, they used that longboat.

JEFF: They had to go in water too..if they wend looking for water, they had to go....they couldn't use the boat on land, so why didn't they use a car or the things they had to go around? Because if they're looking for water, you have to use a boat and you're in water.

ASHLEY: The days of the Pilgrims, son, they didn't have automobiles; they had to walk. They didn't have any horses, they didn't have any bicycles;

JEFF: Oh, gee, I wouldn't like to be a Pilgrim.

ASHLEY: Well, son, you've seen as much of Plymouth as you can in one day. It'd take a week, probably, to see everything, all the old houses. You've seen Plymouth Rock, the Mayflower, the first house, the first fort and many other things. What do you think of it all, Jeff?

ASHLEY: Why, Jeff?

JEFF: Well, they had....odd things, like the fort, the gardens. You had to get four things and put them in and then you had to use a block and tackle to get the garden back. It's hard. Im sure.

ASHLEY: Jefferey, in school they taught you a song about Thanksgiving. Do you remember it?

JEFF: Yes. (sings)

ASHLEY: Thank you, son. And now, back to Ed Murrow.

MURROW: That was Charles Ashley, our correspondent in Boston, recording from Plymouth with the indispensable aid of his six-year-old son, Jeff.

Tonight the Voice of America is broadcasting direct to the people of the Soviet Union a Thanksgiving day appeal from Republican Senator Flanders of Vermont. Flanders is saying: "We Americans have no ambition to conquer any people. We covet no one's territory, And yet we are spending huge sums of money in arms, armaments, and armies. Why? "Because ..says Flanders.. since the end of the war the Russian government has conquered people after people, and we do not think it is right. We therefore feel is is necessary to arm ourselves to protect the areas of the earth that your government has not conquered."

This is Ed Murrow....I'll be back in a moment with the Word for Today. But first, here is Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: Perhaps nothing sums up the aspirations of those pilgrims who landed at Plymouth Rock better than these words by Daniel Webster; "Let our object be our country. And, by the blessing of God, may that country itself become a vast and splendid monument, not of oppression and terror, but of wisdom of peace and of liberty, upon which the world may gaze with admiration forever."

Good Night and Good Luck!

Friday, November 26, 1954

This is the news:

The United States demanded today that the Chinese Communists release "forthwith" the 13 Americans they hold on trumped-up spy charges. We have sent our demand to the Chinese through the British. It says the Communist charges of espionage are "without foundation".. that the detention of the 13 men violates the Korean armistice and international rules for treating war prisoners. And it adds: "The Chinese Communist authorities should bear in mind that the long list of outrages against American nationals, which the American people have borne with restraint thus far, is significantly extended" by the announcement of the imprisonment of the 13 Americans. ~~At almost the same time we were relaying our note, the Chinese Communist radio was claiming that all of the 13 men have confessed to being spies, receiving special training in espionage and guerrilla warfare.~~

~~And today the Chinese Communists stormed a small Nationalist-held island in the Formosa strait. They were driven off. I'd like to discuss this attack in a few minutes.~~

At the United Nations today, the premier of south Korea called on

And at the United Nations we have asked that all 60 members be given a copy of our note. This was the second step in what diplomatic observers feel is a prelude to an American demand for United Nations action against Red China.

The Chinese Communists said today that all 13 men have confessed to being spies.

And today the Communists attacked a small Nationalist-held island in the Formosa strait. They were driven off. I'd like to discuss this manuver in a few minutes.

At the United Nations, the premier of South Korea called on the Russians to permit north and south Korea to be joined in a unified democratic country--as proof of Communist appeals for peaceful co-existence.

An official French source in Saigon told reporters today that the Communist Vietminh is moving war material across the border from China..in violation of the Geneva agreement on Indo-China.

Prime Minister Nehru told Indian scientists today that atomic energy "is much too dangerous a thing for a private agency to develop." He said apart from its possible use for war, the peaceful use of atomic energy can be "converted into some other use which is dangerous."

The Atomic Energy Commission says the French government has asked us for "reasonable compensation" for five abandoned patent applications dealing with uranium fission. [This is the first time any foreign power has brought such a claim.]

President Eisenhower and Austrian Chancellor Julius Rabb announced that they have agreed to continue their efforts to get a treaty providing for the withdrawal of all occupation troops from Austria "at an early and fixed date."

And the President announced some diplomatic shifts resulting from the retirement of Jefferson Caffrey, our ambassador to Cairo. He will be replaced by Henry A. Byroade, the present assistant secretary of state for Middle East Affairs. And Byroade's place will be taken by George V. Allen, presently ambassador to India. The President did not nominate a new ambassador to India.

Senator Mc Carthy's lawyer says the Senator will be at his desk when the Senate on Monday resumes considering censure charges against him. [redacted] Its also revealed that the Senator took a Thanksgiving Day drive through Washington yesterday, and he might arrange to speak to a pro-McCarthy rally here in New York Monday night.

The F.B.I. said today that a third person is involved in the slaying of convicted perjurer William Remington at the Lewisburg Penitentiary. He's 17-year-old Lewis Cagle, Junior, of Chattanooga. The F.B.I. says Cagle and two other convicts "planned to ransack Remington's room and the assault took place while there."

At the Inter-American economic conference in Brazil, 15 of the 20 Latin American nations called for the negotiation of an international agreement on coffee..including both producing and consuming countries. But American Delegate Willis Armstrong said it would be "totally useless" to submit such a proposal to the American delegation.

Lieut General Hobart R. Gay, commanding general of the 5th army, today affirmed the conviction of Lieut. Col. Harry Fleming. Fleming was found guilty of collaborating with the enemy while a prisoner of war in North Korea. The case now goes to a rewview board in the army judge advocate general's office in Washington.

In Berlin today, former President Hoover said the dangers of war have decreased but Communism is "still trying to destroy the very foundations of civilization." He called for moral and spritual resistance to Communism with religion the first bastion of defense.

And a committee representing 20 CHRISTIAN and Jewish soci@ties in West Germany reported today that there was a dangerous revival of anti-semitism and nationalism in the country.

Edward R. Murrow: November 26, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

The attempt of Chinese Communists to invade Wuchiu, one of the tiniest of Nationalist-held islands, has made headlines all over America that are much blacker than the operation by itself justifies. Wuchiu is one of a large number of coastal islands too small for formal defense, and occupied by ~~only~~ irregular forces when occupied at all. Some of the coastal islands have been prizes in a kind of running checker game of occasional moves, leaps and captures. The game could be played only with small forces, and normally didn't reach the stratosphere of world politics. [But this time it did.]

But before examining what it may mean, it is well to get the measure of the operation itself. Wuchiu is a mile long, and half-a-mile wide; is uninhabited save for some fishing folk; and is ten miles from a larger island held by the Communists. The Communists descended on Wuchiu in the middle of the night, with motorized junks covered by gunboats. It still is not clear whether they actually landed men. At first the Nationalists said they did, and the men were thrown into the sea. Later an official report said only that several junks were sunk by Nationalist planes, and that the operation failed.

The meaning of the operation can only be surmised. It may have been just a training expedition. Maybe it was meant to find out how the Seventh Fleet would react. If so, it learned only that the Seventh Fleet wasn't around to react. It is not far-fetched to assume that the Communists knew the attack would make headlines in America and would aggravate a sense of rising crisis in relations with the United States. In an already tense situation they had struck a major blow for discord in sentencing the U.S. airmen for espionage. And then they tried an actual landing on a Nationalist island. And that brings to a head a sharp issue.

This is not the big and final issue of recognition, which would not be served by a crisis and ~~would~~ could become possible only in an atmosphere of friendliness. The issue now uppermost is the future of the Chinese Nationalists. Peiping has promised the Chinese people to re-take Formosa. The United States has re-affirmed its pledge to protect the island, so Peiping knows it can't re-take it without war with the United States, which it doesn't want. But if Peiping is not to get back Formosa it must have something to show in its stead. It needs it badly. It would like to have the coastal islands.

These islands are more than symbols. They have real strategic value. Without them the Nationalists could not easily maintain the blockade of the Fukien Coast. This blockade is important, for there is no through land transportation between Foochow and Canton, and the Communist airfields opposite Formosa can only get gasoline ~~from the~~ by sea. Without gasoline any attack on Formosa would be hampered, and indeed Communist air power in the entire region made ineffective. But if the islands are important to the defense of Formosa, they are equally important for an offense against the mainland. And that is an even greater reason why the Communists want them.

The present Communist aggressiveness would be less understandable if United States policy toward the Nationalists had not changed. Not so long ago the Administration encouraged the Chiang regime to believe in a future attack on the mainland. The phrase, "The unleashing of Chiang" was officially used in Washington. Now the role of Chiang has been revised. President Eisenhower denies that the Generalissimo was ordered to do or not to do something. But nobody denies he was told we do not want war with Communist China. And though Chiang has asked publicly and privately that we guarantee the defense of the coastal islands, we have said nothing publicly to satisfy him. Our intentions have not been disclosed, and the only deterrent to the Communists is that they have not been sure what we intend to do about the islands.

This week President Eisenhower designated former Budget Director Dodge to prepare an extensive economic aid program for Asia. This is part of a new Administration doctrine officially called "competitive co-existence", or to use the President's name for it, Modus Vivendi. Either version is the opposite of short-term crisis leading possibly to war.

Now the Communists have taken a step that seems to say they do not feel deterred by the Seventh Fleet in acting against coastal islands. And so do not fear war over the islands. It is a small step. It can be reversed without damage. But it also can be followed by a longer step somewhere else. And it is a legitimate speculation that the Communists now hope to get the islands, lift the blockade of the Fukien Coast and offset the prestige defeat of not getting Formosa. And all this would be done with flamboyant gestures of contempt for America.

If that is the game, it would be a calculated risk. Americans are angry over the ~~conviction~~ jailing of the airmen, and Peiping is playing into the hands of Senator Knowland in his campaign against co-existence under any name. But most Americans also want to stay out of war in Asia, and President Eisenhower's moderation, even though it is being put to the test, has wide support. It could be a shrewd calculation — but it is also as dangerous as a loaded gun.

The Communists, in addition to having to maintain morale at home, are also faced with the problem of losing prestige abroad. William Summner once remarked:"If you want war, nourish a doctrine - the most frightful tyrants to which men ever are subject. Doctrines get inside of a man's own reason and betray him against himself. Civilized men have done their fiercest fighting for doctrines."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 26, 1954
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

The United States demanded today that the Chinese Communists release "forthwith" the 13 Americans they hold on trumped-up spy charges. We have sent our demand to the Chinese through the British. It says the Communist charges of espionage are "without foundation".. that the detention of the 13 men violates the Korean armistice and international rules for treating war prisoners. And it adds: "The Chinese Communist Authorities should bear in mind that the long list of outrages against American nationals, which the American people have borne with restraint thus far, is significantly extended" by the announcement of the inprisonment of lhe 13 Americans. And at the United Nations we have asked that all 60 members be given a copy of our note. This was the second step in what diplomatic observers feel is a prelude to an American demand for United Nations action against Red China.

The Chinese Communists said today that all 13 men have confessed to being spies.

And today the Communists attacked a small Nationalist-held island in the Formosa strait. They were driven off. I'd like to discuss this maneuver in a few minutes.

At the United Nations, the premier of South Korea called on the Russians to permit north and south Korea to be joined in a unified democratic country -- as proof of Communist appeals for peaceful co-existence.

An official French source in Saigon told reporters today that the Communist Vietminh is moving war material across the border from China ..in violation of the Geneva agreement on Indo-China.

Prime Minister Nehru told Indian scientists today that atomic energy "is much to dangerous a thing for a private agency to develop." He said, apart from its possible use for war, the peaceful use of atomic energy can be "converted into some other use which is dangerous."

The Atomic Energy Commission says the French government has asked us for "reasonable compensation" for five abandoned patent applications dealing with uranium fission. This is the first time any foreign power has brought such a claim.

President Eisenhower and Austrian Chancellor Julius Raab announced that they have agreed to continue their efforts to get a treaty providing for the withdrawal of all occupation troops from Austria "at an early and fixed date."

And the President announced some diplomatic shifts resulting from the retirement of Jefferson Caffrey, our ambassador to Cairo. He will be replaced by Henry A. Byroade, the present assistant secretary of state for Middle East Affairs. And Byroade's place will be taken by George V. Allen, presently ambassador to India. The President did not nominate a new ambassador to India.

Senator McCarthy's lawyer says the Senator will be at his desk when the Senate on Monday resumes considering censure charges against him. It also revealed that the Senator took a Thanksgiving Day drive through Washington yesterday and he might arrange to speak to a pro-McCarthy rally here in New York Monday night.

The F.B.I. said today that a third person is involved in the slaying of convicted perjurer William Reminton at the Lewisburg Penitentiary. He's 17-year-old Lewis Cagle, Junior, of Chattanooga. The F.B.I. says Cagle and two other convicts "planned to ransack Remington's room and the assault took place while there."

At the Inter-American economic conference in Brazil 15 of the 20 Latin American nations called for the negotiation of an international agreemtnt on Coffee..including both producing and consuming countries.But American Delegate Willis Armstrong said it would be "totally useless" to submit such a proposal to the American delegation.

Lieutenant General Hobart R. Gay, commanding general of the 5th Army, today affirmed the conviction of Lieutenant Colonel Harry Fleming. Fleming was found guilty of collaborating with the enemy while a prisoner of war in North Korea. The case now goes to a review board in the army judge advocate general's office in Washington.

In Berlin today, former President Hoover said the dangers of war have decreased but Communism is "still trying to destroy the very foundations of civilization." He called for moral and spiritual resistance to Communism with religion the first bastion of defense.

And a committee representing 20 Christian and Jewish sociaties in West Germany reported today that there was a dangerous revival of anti- semitism and nationalism in the country.

The attempt of Chinese Communists to invade Wuchiu, one of the tiniest of Nationalist-held islands, has made headlines all over America that are much blacker than the operation by itself justifies. Wuchiu is one of a large number of coastal islands too small for formal defense, and occupied by irregular forces when occupied at all. Some of the coastal islands have been prizes in a kind of running checker game of occasional moves, leaps and captures. The came could be played only with small forces, and normally didn't reach the stratosphere of world politics. But this time it did.

But before eximining what it may mean, it is well to get the measure of the operation itself. Wuchiu is a mile long, and half-a-mile wide; is uninhabited save for some fishing folk; and is ten miles from a larger island held by the Communists. The Communists descended on Wuchiu in the middle of the night, with motorized junks cobered by gunboats. It still is not clear whether they actually landed men. At first the Nationalists said they did, and the men were thrown into the sea. Later an official report said only that several junks were sunk by Nationalist planes, and that the operation failed.

The meaning of the operation can only be surmised. It may have been just a training expedition. Maybe it was meant to find out how the Seventh Fleet would react. If so, it learned only that the Seventh Fleet wasn't around to react. It is not far-fetched to assume that the Communists knew the attack would make headlines in America and would aggravate a sense of rising crisis in relations with the United States. In an already tense situation they had struck a major blow for discord in sentencing the U.S. airmen for espionage. And then they tried an actual landing on a Nationalist island. And that brings to a head a sharp issue.

This is not the big and final issue of recogntion, which would not be served by a crisis and could become possible only in an atmosphere of friendliness. The issue not uppermost is the future of the Chinese Nationalists. Peiping has promised the Chinese people to re-take Formosa. The United States has re-affirmed its pledge to protect the island, so Pieping knows it can't retake it without war with the United States, which it doesn't want. But if Peiping is not to get back to Formosa it must have something to show in its stead. It needs it badly. It would like to have the coastal islands.

These islands are more than symbols. They have real stratigic value. Without them the Nationalists could not easily maintain the blockade of the Fukien Coast. This blockade is important, for there is no through land transportation between Foochow and Canton, and the Communist airfields opposite Formosa can only get gasoline by the sea. Without gasoline any attack on Formosa would be hampered, and indeed Communist air power in the entire region made ineffective. But if the islands are important to the defense of Formosa, they are equally important for an offense against the mainland. And that is an even greater reason why the Communists want them.

The present Communist aggressiveness would be less understandable if United States policy toward the Nationalists had not changed. Not so long ago the Administration ecourraged the Chiang regime to believe in a future attack on the mainland. The phrase, "the unleashing of Chiang" was officially used in Washington. Now the role of Chiang has been revised. President Eisenhower denies that the Generalissimo was ordered to do or not to do something. But nobody denies he was told we do not want war with Communist China. And though Chiang has asked publicly and privately that we guarantee the defense of the coastal islands, we have said nothing publicly to satisfy him. Our intentions have not been disclosed, and the only deterrent to the Communists is that they have not been sure what we intend to do about the islands.

This week President Eisenhower designated former Budget Director Dodge to prepare an extensive economic aid program for Asia. This is part of a new Administration doctrine officially called "competitive co-existence", or to use the President's name for it, Modus Vivendi. Either version is the opposite of short-term crisis leading possibly to war.

Now the Communists have taken a step that seems to say they do not feel deterred by the Seventh Fleet in acting against coastal islands. And so do not fear war over the islands. It is a small step. It can be reversed without damage. But it also can be followed by a longer step somewhere else.

And it is a legitimate speculation that the Communists now hope to get the islands, lift the blockade of the Fukien Coast and offset the prestige defeat of not getting Formosa. And all this would be done with flamboyant gestures of contempt for America.

If that is the game, it would be a calculated risk. Americans are angry over the jailing of the airmen, and Peiping is playing intothe hands of Senator Knowland in his campaign against co-existence under any name. But most Americans also want to stay out of war in Asia, and President Eisenhower's moderation, even though it is being put to the test, has side support. It could be a shrewd calculation -but it also as dangerous as a loaded gun.

The Communists, in addition to having to maintain morale at home, are also faced with the problem of losing prestige abroad. William Sumner once remarked: "If you want war, nourish a doctrine - the most frightful tyrants to which men ever are subject. Doctrines get inside of a man's own reason and betray him against himslef. Civilized men have done their fiercest fighting for doctrines.

Good Night and Good Luck.

Monday, November 29, 1954

This is the news:

The Senate agreed today to wind up debate and start voting on Wednesday on the question of censuring Senator McCarthy. The proposal was made by McCarthy.

~~This is the news:~~

~~Senator McCarthy proposed today that the Senate limit debate, after Wednesday, on the resolution to censure him.~~ But Republican ~~Senator Langer~~ of ~~North Dakota objected..and this was enough to shelve the McCarthy proposal~~ FDR. In a speech to the Senate, McCarthy said he has been blunt at times. But he never meant to hurt anyone's feelings. He said the charges against him boil down to the accusations that he has used "discourteous and offensive words." But Democratic Senator Lehman disagrees..says the charges against McCarthy go far beyond the mere language used...that McCarthy [redacted] reflected on the loyalty and good faith of every Senator. And Democratic Senator Johnson of Colorado, calling on the Senate to continue to investigate Communism said that McCarthy "has violated both Senate custom and [redacted] decorum AND generally offended against good order and decent respect for the rights and feelings of his colleagues." Republican Senator Mundt said McCarthy's speech was in "the nature of a retraction or personal apology." But McCarthy had made it clear he was not compromising.. — not making any apologies for the views he holds. And Republican Senator Bennett of Utah today introduced an additional charge..holding that McCarthy should be censured for the language he used about the Watkins committee.

~~committee.~~

Secretary of State Dulles is making a foreign policy speech in Chicago tonight. It will be heard over many of these stations at 11;30 p.m. eastern time. And today the United States..politely [redacted] BUT emphatically..told Russia THAT our 7th fleet ships and planes will continue to keep a CLOSE [redacted] watch over all shipping around Formosa. And the United States joined Great Britain and France in sending Russia a five-point plan for East-West settlements in Europe. We rejected a Soviet INVITATION [redacted] to a European Security conference..which opened in Moscow today.

At that conference, Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov told the delegates..from 7 Communist-ruled European countries and six of the Soviet Union's Republics..that they should form a formal eastern bloc. This bloc, to include East Germany, would counter the western alliance contemplated in the Paris agreements. [redacted] Molotov said the western decision to re-arm West Germany is a "perilous course, dangerous for peace" in Europe. He called on the countries represented to "consolidate their forces and considerably strengthen them in case the Paris agreements are ratified."

The United States today delivered its first shipment of Sabrejet fighters to the Chinese Nationalists on Formosa. An American source says four jets were delivered today..more are due shortly.

And in Seoul, South Korean President Rhee signed a controversial constitutional amendment that permits him to seek re-election as president as often as he wishes. The change applies only to Rhee.

The President returned to Washington today from his Thanksgiving week-end at Augusta. And the White House made public a personal letter the President has written to Prime Minister Sir Winston Churchill who celebrates his 80th birthday tomorrow. The President said he spoke for all Americans in hailing Sir Winston as "world statesman, unconquerable warrior in the cause of freedom, as our proven friend of many valiant years." Tonight over many of these stations..at 10 p.m. eastern time.. CBS RADIO will present a compression of certain remarks made by Sir Winston over the past 45 years.

Dr. Eelco Van Kleffens, of the Netherlands, president of the United Nations General Assembly, asked tonight for a return to international law as a basis for international relations. He says that ever since the start of World War Two there has "been a striking and highly UN desireable neglect " of international law in the conduct of international relations.

The top executives of the National Council of Churches reported to the council's biennial assembly today that Christianity [redacted] at present is struggling in a riptide of both "instiutional strength" and fierce disruptive forces that threaten its influence. They say it is uncertain whether the churches are more or less influential in American life than they were in previous generations.

In Vatican City, Pope Pius has been confined to his bed and placed on a strict diet after being [redacted] stricken with gastric [redacted] disturbances and hiccups for the second time this year. The Pope , who is 78 has been told by his physicians that rest is [redacted] indispensable.

And in Chicago today funeral services were held for Dr. Enrico Fermi, who died yesterday of cancer. He was 53 years old.

Edward R. Murrow: November 29, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

We still do not know in what form the story of the birth of the atomic age will reach posterity, (assuming there will be a posterity.) But it is not too early to know that Enrico Fermi will rank among its founding fathers. He has been called the father of the atomic bomb, he not only discovered some of the first principles which made the bomb possible, but helped perfect the bomb itself at Los Alamos. But the first atomic pile or furnace which he devised and built under the stadium at the University of Chicago also made possible the use of atomic energy like any other energy for the peaceful work of the world. And as a gifted young physicist in Italy Dr. Fermi had been the first to demonstrate that an element could be changed into another element, and so made possible the creation of isotopes, with untold promise of peacetime uses.

The atomic age had many founding fathers and the story is involved. But Fermi's part is clear. He had been the first to slow down the speed of neutrons and show that an atom could be more accurately hit by slow than swift ones.

It was this discovery that won him the Nobel Prize in 1938. And it was the trip to Stockholm to collect the prize that enabled him to move on to New York to accept a teaching post at Columbia University. He had planned to leave for free America for some time. The Nobel Prize financed the change, and just in time. For Mussolini had just adopted Hitler's anti-Semitic laws, and Mrs. Fermi was Jewish. Dr. Fermi managed to get her a passport that did not reveal her race, so she got through Germany safely. From Stockholm he went on to New York, and arrived at a most fortunate moment. For he was just two weeks ahead of Nils Bohr, the Danish physicist, who came with the secret news that two German scientists had carried Dr. Fermi's experiments a step further and discovered that if neutrons were fired at uranium, the uranium atom was split in two parts. That was the first recognized atomic fission. Fermi and others quickly put the German discovery to the test and verified it. At once he tried to interest the Navy Department in the possibility of developing an explosive based on uranium fission. But nothing had happened by the Summer of 1939, when he and his associates saw the possibility that Hitler might make the atomic bomb first and conquer the world. He and two other physicists went to see Dr. Einstein, to bring him up to date on the frightening developments, and Dr. Einstein signed a letter about them to President Roosevelt. This was the start of what ultimately became the two billion dollar Manhattan Engineer District which produced the atomic bomb.

Mrs. Fermi has written about her husband's work in building the atomic pile, first at Columbia, then at Chicago. Her husband never told her what he was doing. In Chicago, one day, her husband's colleagues came to the house and one after another seized his hand and said: "Congratulations". She asked one of the physicists why her husband was being congratulated. "He has just sunk a Japanese Admiral", he said. "You are making fun of me", she protested. "Do you think anything is impossible to Enrico", the colleague asked. Later she interrogated her husband. "Did you really sink a Japanese Admiral?" "Did I?" he asked back. "So you did" she asserted. "Didn't I?" he retorted. All she could think of was that he had discovered some kind of death ray, and she never knew what had happened until two-and-a-half years later, when the war was over, and he brought her the Smyth Report.

The news about which Dr. Fermi was congratulated was somewhat less obscurely reported to President Conant at Harvard, then head of the Office of Scientific Research and Development. Dr. Arthur Compton called him by long distance and improvised a communication in code. "The Italian navigator has reached the New World", he said. "And how did he find the natives?" asked Dr. Conant. "Very friendly", reported Dr. Compton.

The story of the lighting of the first atomic furnace will be told as long as stories can be listened to, for it was one of the most dramatic moments in the unfolding of human knowledge. To quote Dr. Einstein: "For the first time in history men will use energy that did not come from the sun." The power developed was only half a watt, but the first atomic pile proved that the atomic bomb was a possibility, that atomic energy released by fission could be controlled and utilized as power, and that a machine could be built that would permit the creation of new elements at will.

It is the good fortune of this country that Dr. Fermi sought asylum in 1938. Under the present immigration laws he might not be admissable. For though he had not been politically active as a Fascist, he was one of the scientists chosen by Mussolini for his first Academy of Science. His exclusion would be shared by other immigrant founding fathers of the atomic age. This is just another reminder that the New Age has begun with dire portent as well as unlimited possibilities of benefit.

Anton Chekov once took a long look about the world ~~and the progress~~ ~~it was making~~ and then concluded:"We fret ourselves to reform life, in order that posterity may be happy, and posterity will say as usual - in the past it used to be better, the present is worse than the past." Perhaps Herb Graffis was trying to say much the same thing when he remarked:"Strange that progress jumps at inventing atomic bombs but is stopped cold by a heavy snowstorm."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 29, 1954
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

The Senate agreed today to wind up debate and start voting on Wednesday on the question of censuring McCarthy. The proposal was made by McCarthy. In a speech to the Senate, McCarthy said he was been blunt at times. But he never meant to hurt anyone's feelings. He said the charges against him boil down to the accusations that he has used "discourteous and offensive words." But Democratic Senator Lehman disagrees...says the charges against McCarthy to far beyond the mere language used...that McCarthy reflected on the loyalty and good faith of every Senator. And Democratic Senator Johnson of Colorado, calling on the Senate to continue to investigate Communism said that McCarthy "has violated both Senate custom and decorum...and generally offended against good order and decent respect for the rights and feelings of his colleagues." Republican Senator Mundt said McCarthy's speech was in "the nature of a retraction or personal apology." But McCarthy had made it clear he was not compromising...not making any apologies for the views he holds. And Republican Senator Bennett of Utah today introduced an additional charge..holding that McCarthy should be censured for the lan uage he used about the Watkins committee.

Secretary of State Dulles is making a foreign policy speech in Chicago tonight, It will be heard over many of these stations at 11:30 p.m., eastern time. And today the United States...politely but emphatically..told Russia that our 7th fleet ships and planes will continue to keep a close watch over all shipping around Formosa. And the United States joined Great Britain and France in sending Russia a five-point plan for East-West settlements in Europe. We rejected a Soviet invitation to a European Security Conference.. which opened in Moscow today.

At that conference, Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov told the delegates ..from 7 Communist-ruled European countries and six of the Soviet Union's Republics...that they should form a formal eastern bloc. This bloc to include East Germany, would counter the western alliance contemplated in the Paris agreements. Molotov said the western decision to re-arm West Germany is a "perilous course, dangerous for peace" in Europe. He called on the countries represented to "consolidate their forces and considerably strengthen them in case the Paris agreements are ratified."

The United States today delivered its first shipment of Saberjet fighters to the Chinese Nationalists on Formosa. An American source says four jets were delivered today ,...more are due shortly.

And in Seoul, South Korean President Rhee signed a controversial constitutional amendment that permits him to seek re-election as presedent as often as he wishes. The change applies only to Rhee.

The President returned to Washington today from his Thanksgiving weekend at Augusta. And the White House made public a personal letter the President has written to Prime Minister Sir Winston Churchill who celebrates his 80th birthday tomorrow. The President said he spoke for all Americans in hailing Sir Winston as "world statesman, unconquerable warrior in the cause of freedom, as our proven friend of many valiant years." Tonight over many of these stations ...at 10 p.m. eastern time...CBS Radio will present a compression of certain remarks made by Sir Winston over the past 45 years.

Dr. Eelco Van Kleffans, of the Netherlands, president of the United Nations General Assembly, asked tonight for a return to international law as a sasis for international relations. He says that ever since the start of World War Two there has "been a striking and highly undesireable neglect" of international law in the conduct of international relations.

The top executives of the National Council of Churches reported to the council's biennial assembly today that Christianity at present is struggling in a rip tide of both "institutional strength" and fierce disruptive forces that threaten its influence. They say it is uncertain whether the churches are more or less influential in American life than they were in previous generations.

In Vatican City, Pope Pius had been confined to his bed and placed on a strict diet after being stricken with gastric disturbances and hiccups for the second time this year. The Pope, who is 78, has been told by his physicians that rest is indispensable.

And in Chicago today funeral services were held for Dr. Enrico Fermi, who died yesterday of cancer. He was 53 years old.

We still do not know in what form the story of the birth of the atomic age will reach posterity, assuming there will be a posterity. But it is not too early to know that Enrico Fermi will rank abong its founding fathers. He had been called the father of the atomic bomb, he not only discovered some of the first principles which made the bomb possible, but helped perfect the bomb itself at Los Alamos. But the first atomic pile or furnace which he devised and built under the stadium at the University of Chicago also made possible the use of atomic energy like any other energy for the peaceful work of the world. And as a gifted young physicist in Italy Dr. Fermi had been the first to demonstrate that an element could be changed into another element, and so made possible the creation of isotopes, with untold promise of peacetime uses.

The atomic age had many founding fathers and the story is involved. But Fermi's part is clear. He had been the first to slow down the speed of neautrons and show that an atom could be more accurately hit by slow than swift ones.

It was this discovery that won him the Nobel Prize in 1938. And it was the trip to Stockholm to collect the prize that enabled him to move on to New York to accept a teaching post at Columbia University. He had planned to leave for free America for some time. The Nobel Prize financed the change, and just in time. For Mussolini had just adopted Hitler's anti-Semitic laws and Mrs. Fermi was Jewish. Dr. Fermi managed to get her a passport that did not reveal her race, so she got through Germany safely. From Stocklolm he went on to New York, and arrived at a most fortunate moment. For he was just two weeks ahead of Nila Bohr, the Danish physicist, who came with the secret news that two German scientists had carried Dr. Fermi's experiments a step further and discovered that if neautrons were fired at uranium, the uranium atom was split in two parts. That was the first recognized atomic fission. Fermi and others quickly put the German discovery to the test and verified it. At once he tried to interest the Navy Department in the possibility of developing an explosive based on uranium fission. But nothing happened by the Summer of 1939, when he and his associates saw the possibility that Hitler might make the atomic bomb first and conquer the world. He and two other physicists went to see Dr. Einstein, to bring him up to date on the frightening developements, and Dr. Einstein signed a letter about them to President Roosevelt. This was the start of what ultimately became the two billion dollar Manhattan Engineer District which produced the atomic bomb.

Mrs. Fermi has written about her husband's work in building the atomic pile, first at Columbia, then at Chicago. Her husband never told her what he was doing. In Chicago, one day, her husband's colleagues came to the house and one after another siezed his hand and said: "Congratulations."

She asked one of the physicists why her husband was being congratulated. "He has just sunk a Japanese Admiral", he said. "You are making fun of me," she protested. "Do you think anything is impossible for Enrico", the colleague asked. Later she interrogated her husband. "Did you really sink a Japanese Admiral?" "Did I?" he asked back. "So you did" she asserted. "Didn't I?" he retorted. All she could think of was that he had discovered some kind of death ray, and she never knew what had happened until two-and a-half years later, when the war was over, and he brought her the Smyth Report.

The news about which Dr. Fermi was congratulated was somewhat less obscurely reported to President Conant at Harvard, then head of the Office of Scientific Research and developement. Dr. Arthur Compton called him by long distance and improvised a communication in code. "The Italian navigator has reached the New World", he said. "And how did he find the natives?" asked Dr. Conant. "Very friendly", reported Dr. Compton.

The story of the lighting of the first atomic furnace will be told as long as stories can be listened to, for it was one of the most dramatic moments in the unfolding of human knowledge. To quote Dr. Einstein: "For the first time in history men will use energy that did not come from the sun." The power developed was only half a watt, but the first atomic pile proved that the atomic bomb was a possibility, that atomic energy released by fission could be controlled and utilized as power, and that a machine could be built that would permit the creation of new elements at will.

It is the good fortune of this country that Dr. Fermi sought asylym in 1938. Under the present immigration laws he might not be admissible. For though he had not been politically active as a Fascist, he was one of the scientists chosen by Mussolini for his first Academy of Science. His exclusion would be shared by other immigrant founding fathers of the atomic age, This is just another reminder that the New Age has begun with dire portent as well as unlimited possibilities of benefit.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a moment with the Word for Today. But first, a word from Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: Anton Chekov once took a long look abut the world and then concluded: "We fret ourselves to reform life, in order that posterity may be happy, and posterity will say as usual - in the past it used to be better, the present is worse than the past." Perhaps Herb Graffis was trying to say much the same thing when he remarked: "Strange that progress jumps at inventing atomic bombs but it is stopped cold by a heavy snowstorm."

Good Night and Good Luck.

Tuesday, November 30, 1954

This is the news:

The President agrees with Secretary of State Dulles that AN AIR OR naval [redacted] blockade of Communist China would amount to "war actions." Mr. Dulles said last night, that we want to use peaceful means to sustain our international rights.. and those of our citizens... rather than resorting to "war actions." White House Secretary Hagerty TODAY told reporters [redacted] the President agrees. And Senate Majority Leader Knowland, who suggested the blockade, say he'll support any effective alternate PLAN that will secure the release of the 13 Americans now in Red China's jails. Knowland also said his split with the Administration's foreign policy is not as great as some would make it appear to be. Mr. Dulles promised [redacted] vigorous action to get the release of the 13 Americans. Knowland says he'll wait to find out what this will be.

We have now told Red China that we are indignant over "their deliberate flouting of international agreements and civilized practises"-- in the way the [redacted] handled the 13 Americans. This message was communicated by an American official in Geneva. The Chinese refused to accept the protest. And the Communist radio today broadcast details purporting to prove that two of the imprisoned Americans were spies.

In Washington tonight, reporters were told that the Administration will ask Congress for authority to join in [redacted] new economic program to help the free nations of South Asia and the Far East. West European nations will be asked to join. There's no suggestion yet on how big the [redacted] will be.

The Senate today heard [redacted] opposing views on whether to censure Senator McCarthy. Democratic Senator Fulbright of Arkansas said his colleagues must demonstrate their honor and self-respect by rebuking Mc Carthy for having "shaken confidence in schools, the churches and [redacted] government." But Republican Senator Mundt said if McCarthy is [redacted] the Communists will misrepresent it as a retreat in the fight against Communism. Fulbright said Mc Carthy has "so preyed upon the fears and hatreds of the uninformed and credulous people that he has started a prairie fire" which neither mm he nor anyone else may be able to control. He said since this debate started the character of his mail has changed. Fulbright said: "It is no longer criticism, it is unadulterated hate, vituperation and abuse. It is highly emotional, irrational and designed to intimidate and over-awe" the [redacted]. And Senator Mundt, [redacted] said that to censure McCarthy for his alleged abuse of General Zwicker would "shrivel and shrink" the prestige of Congress as against what he called the "arrogance" of executive agencies. Mundt said that through the New Deal years Congress lost power to the executive branch of government...because Congress didn't dare stand up. He says he will have no part of what he called "this new surrender." And Mundt warned Southern Senators to beware. He said there was "a hidden bomb" in the censure resolution that "someday is going to explode all over Dixie".. [redacted] Mundt [redacted] called for what he described as a "third course" in the censure debate. He would set up new rules for investigating committees and have a study made on a code of conduct for Senators,.on and off the Senate floor. Republican Senator Martin of Pennsylvania says he'll vote against censure..has long admired McCarthy's Americanism. And new Senator Brown of Nevada said censure would establish dangerous proecedents limiting Congressional investigations.

Defense Secretary Wilson says the next Congress will be asked to extend the draft law for four years beyond its expiration date..now set for the end of June. Wilson says Congress will also be asked to set-up a modified universal military training program.. to train 100-thousand men a year for six-months periods and then assign them to reserve outfits. Wilson will also ask for pay increases for military men..ranging FROM [redacted] three to six per cent of present schedules.

Field Marshal Montgomery said in Los Angeles today that the United States must be ready to "take it".. and to strike back..if we are to survive in the years of "co-existence with conflict" we face in the future. He said history will measure American success "not so much by the quantity of your dollars as by the quality of your leadership."

~~Great Britain and the Commonwealth [illegible] the free world today honored a British leader, Sir Winston Churchill on his 80-th birthday. I'd like to review the occasion in a minute.~~

South Africa's governing Nationalist party today chose Johannes Strydom mm to be the new prime minister. He favors a stern policy of racial segregation.. would abandon use of the English language.. and make his country a Republic. Its not clear whether he wants South Africa to remain in the British Commonwwealth of Nations.

Edward R. Murrow: November 30, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

The British are an emotional, sentimental people, with a great fondness for antiquity. The sentiment and the emotion are seldom displayed, but it happened in London today. The occasion was the 80th birthday of Sir Winston Churchill - a flood of gifts, a joint session of Parliament, non-partisan oratory, a portrait, a fund that may go to three million dollars - all in honor of perhaps the most considerable man to walk the stage of history in our time. His own island, wrapped in the Atlantic mists, was never ~~XXXX~~ a large enough stage for him to play upon. He has served six sovereigns; his experience of war extends from the last full-dress cavalry charge to the Hydrogen Bomb. For 52 years he has sat in the House of Commons. He has not always been right; but never has he been ambiguous.

Today was the most memorable public occasion of his life. Today, in recalling the war years, he said: "The people's will was resolute and remorseless. I only expressed it. They had the lion's heart; I had the luck to be called upon to give the roar."

This ancient aristocrat, born in the tranquil, serene Victorian era, has spent much of his life as a man of war. His recognition of the enemy's freedom was sure and certain. His faith in constitutional procedure was never shaken. During the late war Sir Winston Churchill presided over a coalition government, equipped with dictatorial powers, and was scrupulous in his regard for the authority of the House of Commons. His political obituary was being written when he had scarce passed 40. He sat for years in the House, warning of the menace of Nazi-ism, while the big clock above the Speaker's Chair ticked off the wasted hours. He was a lonely but not a bitter man, always enjoying the cut and thrust of parliamentary debate, where no man was his match. When he came to power in the Spring of 1940, he brooked no recriminations about the past, lest the future thereby be lost. He mobilized the English language and sent it into battle, to steady his fellow-countrymen and hearten those Europeans upon whom the long dark night of tyranny had descended. He understood the first principle of war, which is to recognize the enemy; and had Hitler invaded Hell Mr Churchill would have found opportunity in the House of Commons to make passing and not altogether unfavorable reference to the Devil.

He is both a humble and an arrogant man. Once, after a particularly savage night raid on the East End of London, he walked and scrambled over hills of broken brick, through puddles of shattered glass; and the gallant, grimy Londoners ceased their digging for buried bodies, and cheered him.

And he said with bewilderment in his voice, and tears in his eyes: "They act as though I had brought them a great victory."

I am sure that if he could pluck one year from the incredible eighty, and print it indelibly in the pages of history, he would choose that one year when Britain stood alone, while those who were half asleep became half prepared. He would choose it, not because of his rhetoric, not because of the Battle of Britain, or the steadiness of the civilian population; but rather because democratic processes, the rights of the individual, did not shrivel or shrink even when held so near the fire of total war.

The British Prime Minister is both a gambler and a crying man - Mr. Lincoln did considerable crying too. One of the greatest gambles in the history of warfare occurred in the Autumn of 1940, when he stripped the Island of its pitiful remnants of armor - most of it had been lost at Dunkirk - and shipped it round the Cape to Egypt.

When the German beam was on London, guiding their bombers in, he would drive up from the country for no other reason than to be there with the other subjects of the King. There was a grim gaiety about the man; a certain fascination with physical danger; a restless, roving mind which caused him to be concerned about minute details - memoranda showering right and left, reading: "Pray inform me on this matter within 24 hours" - telephone calls to Cabinet Ministers in the middle of the night. And always the ability to savor and taste a well-turned phrase, to polish it until it would come out in the House of Commons in a fashion described by a friend as "a thunderous and well-rehearsed improvisation."

When victory had been achieved his fellow-countrymen turned him out to grass. With one brilliant exception he did not complain. His mind had changed on very few subjects, and it was a time of change. He wrote and he painted, and sought power again. Finally it was his. Scarred and toughened as he was by political wars, the charge that hurt most in that last campaign was that he was a man of war not to be trusted with power. He remains the man of war seeking peace. Younger men, waiting for him to lay down the heavy burdens of office, grow old and impatient while waiting. He moves with uncertain steps; some of the fire has gone from his voice; but his language continues to illuminate the political scene in England and abroad. He said today: "I am now nearing the end of my journey, but I hope I still have some services to render". His services to date have not been inconsiderable, for men who love freedom, and indeed those who now enjoy it, are considerably in his debt. [redacted]

He has enriched our language and fortified our heritage.

When the definitive history of our times is written, there will be a special place in it for Sir Winston Churchill, who in 1943, speaking of nations as well as individuals, said:"The price of greatness is responsibility." Perhaps Sir Winston was too modest to conclude, as Thomas Fuller once did, that "Great hopes make great men." Whatever the case, Will Rogers put it well when he said:"It is great to be great, but it is greater to be human."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 30, 1954
7:45--8:00 P. M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

The President agrees with Secretary of State Dulles that an air or naval blockade of Communist China would amount to "war actions"..Mr. Dulles said last night that we want to use peaceful means to sustain our international rights...and those of our citizens...rather than resorting to "war actions." White House Secretary Hagerty today told reporters the President agrees. And Senate Majority Leader Knowland who suggested the blockade, says he'll support any effective alternate plan that will secure the release of the 13 Americans now in Red China's jails. Knowland also said his split with the Administration's foreign policy is not as great as some would lake it appear to be. Mr. Dulles promised vigorous action to get the release of the 13 Americans. Knowland says he'll wait to find out what this will be.

We now have told Red China that we are indignant over "their deliberate flouting of international agreements and civilized practices."...in the way they handled the 13 Americans. This message was communicated by an American official in Geneva. The Chinese refused to accept the protest. And the Communist radio today broadcast details purporting to prove that two of the imprisoned Americans were spies.

In Washington tonight, reporters were told that the Administration will ask Congress for authority to join in a new economic program to help the free nations of South Asia and the Far East. West European nations will be asked to join. There's no suggestion yet on how big the project will be.

The Senate today heard opposing views on whether to censure McCarthy. Democratic Senator Fulbright of Arkansas said his colleagues must demonstrate their honor and self-respect by rebuking McCarthy for having "shaken confidence in schools, the churches and government." But Republican Senator Mundt said if McCarthy is censured the Communists will misrepresent it as a retreat in the fight against Communism. Fulbright said McCarthy aas "so preyed upon the fears and hatreds of the uninformed and credulous people that he has started a prarie fire" which neither he nor anyone else may be able to control. He said since this debate started the character of his mail has changed. Fulbright said: "It is no longer criticism, it is unadulterated hate, vituperation and abuse. It is highly emotional, irrational and designed to intimidate and over-awe" the Senate. And Senator Mundt said that to censure McCarthy for his alleged abuse of General Zwicker would "shrivel and shrink" the prestige of Congress as against what he called the "arrogance" of executive agencies. Mundt said that through the New Deal years Congress lost power to the executive branch of government..because Congress didn't dare stand up. He says he will have no part of what he called "this new surrender." And Mundt warned Southern Senators to beware. He said there was " a hidden bomb" in the censure resolution that "someday is going to explode all over Dixie". Mundt called for what he described as a "third course" in the censure debate. He would set up new rules for investigation committees and have a study made on a code of conduct for Senators...on and off the Senate floor. Republican Senator Martin of Pennsylvania says he'll vote against censure...has long admired McCarthy's Americanism. And new Senator Brown of Nevada said censure would establish dangerous precedents limiting Congressional investigations.

Defense Secretary Wilson says the next Congress will be asked to extend the draft law for four years beyond its expiration date...now set for the end of June. Wilson says Congress will also be asked to set-up a modified universal military training program ..to train 100-thousand men a year for six-months periods and then assign them to reserve outifts. Wilson will also ask for pay increases for military men...ranging from three to six percent of present schedules.

Field Marshal Montgomery said in Los Angeles today that the United States must be ready to "take it"..and to strike back...if we are to survive in the years of "co-existence with conflict" we face in the future. He said history will measure American success "not so much by the quantity of your dollars as by the quality of your leadership."

South Africa's governing Nationalist party today chose Johannes Strytom to be the new prime minister. He favors a stern policy of racial segregation...would abandon use of the English language..and make his country a republic. It's not clear whether he wants South Africa to remain in the British Commonwealth of Nations.

The British are an emotional, sentimental people, with a great fondness for antiquity. The sentiment and the emotion are seldom displayed, but it happened in London today. The occasion was the 80th birthday of Sir Winston Churchill - a flood of gifts, a joint session of Parliament, nonpartisan oratory, a portrait, a fund that may go to three million dollars - all in honor of perhaps the most considerable man to talk the stage of history in our time. His own island, wrapped in the Atlantic mists, was never a large enough stage for him to play upon. He has served six soverigns; his experience of war extends from the last full-dress calalry charge to the Hydrogen Bomb. For 52 years he has sat in the House of Commons. He hasnot always bee right; but never has he been ambiguous.

Today was the most memorable public occasion of his life. Today, in recalling the war years, he said: "The people's will was resolute and remoreseless. I only expressed it. They had the lion's heart, I had the luck to be called upon to give it the roar."

This ancient aristocrat, born in the tranquil, serene Victorian era, has spent much of his life as a man of war. His recognition of the enemy's of freedom was sure and certain. His faith in constitutional procedure was never shaken. During the late was Sir Winston Churchill presided over a coalition government, equipped with dictatorial powers, and was scrupulous in his regard for the authorith of the House of Commons.

His political obituary was being written when he had scarcely passed 40. He sat for years in the House, warning of the menace of Nazi-ism, while the big clock above the Speaker's Chair ticked off the wasted hours. He was a lonely but not a bitter man, always enjoying the cut and thrust of parliamentry debate, where no man was his match. When he came to power in the Spring of 1940, he brooked no recrimination about the past, lest the future thereby be lost. He mobilized the English language and sent it into battle, to steady his fellow-countrymen and hearten those Europeans upon whom the long dark night of tyranny had descended. He understood the first principle of war, which is to recognize the enemy; and had Hitler invaded Hell, Mr. Churchill would have found opportunity in the House of Commons to make pasing and not altogether unfavorable reference to the Devil.

He is both a humble and an arrogant man. Once, after a particularly savage right raid on the East End of London, he walked and scrambled over hills of broken brick, through puddles of shattered glass; and the gallant grimy Londoners ceased their digging for buried bodies, and cheered him. And he said with bewilderment in his voice, and tears in his eyes: "They act as though I had brought them a great victory."

I am sure that if he could pluck one year from the incredible eighty, and print it indelibly in the pages of history, he would choose that one year when Britain stood alone, while those who were half asleep became half prepared. He would choose it, not because of his rhetoric, not because of the Battle of Britain, or the steadiness of the civilian population; but rather because democratic processes, the rights of the individual, did not shrivel or shrink even when held so near the fire of total war.

The British Prime Minister is both a gambler and a crying man - Mr. Lincoln did considerable crying too. One of the greatest gambles in the history of warfare occurred in the Autumn of 1940, when he stripped the Island of its pitiful remnants of armor - most of it had been lost at Dunkirk - and shipped it aound the Cape to Egypt.

When the German beam was on London, guiding their bombers in, he would drive up from the country for no other reason than to be there with the other subjects of the King. There was a grim gaity about the man; a certain fascination with physical danger; a restless, roving mind which caused him to be concerned about minute details - memorandum showering right and left , reading : "Pray inform me on this matter within 24 hours" - telephone calls to Cabinet Ministers in the middle of the night. And always the ability to savor and taste a well-turned phrase, to polish it until it would come out in the House of Commons in a fashion described by a friend as a "Thunderous and well-rehearsed improvisation."

When victory had been achieved his fellow-countrymen turned him out to grass. With one brilliant exception he did not complain. His mind had changed on very few subjects, and it was a time of change. He wrote and he painted, and sought power again. Finally it was his. Scarred and toughened as he was by political wars, the charge that hurt most in that last campaign was that he was a man of war not to be trusted with power. He remains the man of war seeking peace. Younger men, waiting for him to lay down the heavy burdens of office, grow old and impatient while waiting/

He moves with uncertain steps; some of the fire has gone from his voice; but his language continues to illuminate the political scene in England and abroad. He said today: "I am now nearing the end of my journey, but I hope I still have some services to render". His services to date have not been inconsiderable, for men who love freedom, and indeed those who now enjoy it, are considerably in his debt. He has enriched our language and fortified our heritage.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a minute with the Word for Today. But first, a word from Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: When the definite history of our times is written, there will be a special place in it for Sir Winston Churchill, who in 1943, speaking of nations as well as individuals, said: "The price of greatness is responsibility." Perhaps Sir Winston was too modest to conclude, as Thomas Fuller once did that "Great hopes make great men." Whatever the case, Will Rogers put it well when he said: "It is great to be great, but it is greater to be human."

Good Night and Good Luck.

Wednesday, December 1, 1954

This is the news:

The Senate of the United States has voted to censure one of its members - something it has done on only three previous occasions. My colleague, Ted Church, has been following the Senate activity throughout a long day which has still not ended. He's up in the radio gallery now. What's happening at the moment, Ted ?

RETURN CUE:

"And that's what's been going on here in Washington today."

This evening, Senator McCarthy told newsmen he's relieved the vote is being taken, so he can get back to his investigation of alleged subversives. He said the number supporting him was greater than he expected...that he had no plans to basically change his behavior...and that the censure vote will not hurt him politically because, McCarthy said "the American people know I am being censured for exposing Communists."

The possibility of a blockade of the China coast came in for more comment today. Secretary of State Dulles told a news conference that he has contacted members of the United Nations on peaceful means of safeguarding American citizens---such as the thirteen imprisoned by Communist China. If these peaceful means fail, he said, we may consider a naval blockade.

Earlier, Senators McCarthy and Jenner had joined in the call for a blockade. McCarthy said it might be done without the use of any of our warships---that we could merely cut off aid to any of our allies who are trading with Communist China.

~~Jenner told the Senate that the Chinese action against the prisoners "is perilously close to an act of war". And he favors a blockade rather than submitting the issue to the UN.~~

The matter came up in the UN political committee during the Korean debate. Russia said Communist China and North Korea should be invited to take part in the discussions. And the Polish delegate went so far as to say that Communist China were invited, [redacted] might be ready to talk about those 13-American prisoners. The United States, leading the opposition to such an invitation, said the action against the prisoners is one reason why Red China should not be invited. [redacted] British Minister Anthony Nutting agreed, arguing that since the Communists rejected UN authority at the Geneva conference on Korea, it is hardly fitting to invite them now.

In Moscow, Communist China made her contribution to the Russian-sponsored European security conference, warning that if the United States and its allies go to war against the Communist countries, "they will suffer a fate worse than Hitler's". The Chinese Communist Ambassador said his country stands shoulder-to-shoulder with Russia, whose power has become greater than ever before in history. And he echoed previous speakers in favoring formation of an East German army if the West Germans are rearmed.

Further action was announced for strengthening Nationalist held Formosa against any possible Communist attack. Secretary Dulles told a Washington news conference that we have signed a new mutual defense treaty with Chiang Kai-Shek's government. Under that treaty, the United States would take retaliatory action against the China mainland if the Communists do attack Formosa. He explained that it would not necessarily mean a general war with atomic bombs falling all over the map. But he said that any such retaliatory action would be severe enough to show the attacker he would lose more than he would gain. The treaty, he said, follows the pattern of other American security pacts in the Pacific and throws a mantle of protection around Formosa, the Pescadores, and Western Pacific islands under our jurisdiction. He added that, like the Korean mutual defense treaty and the Manila pact, the Formosa agreement will provide "another link for the defense by the free peoples of the Western Pacific against Communist aggression.

Incidentally, our Defense Department announces that control of THE 7th Fleet has been shifted back to the Commander in Chief of the Pacific, in a move paralleling the withdrawal of five Army divisions from Korea since the shooting war ended. The announcement points out, however, that our forces will still be available in case they have to be re-assigned. And the shift will not change the mission of the naval patrol which has operated in the Formosa straits since the Korean war started.

In Britain's House of Commons, Prime Minister Churchill spoke of another war. He admitted to questioning Laborites that he has not been able to find that controversial message on rearming beaten German troops against the Russians in the closing days of World War-2. He said that when he mentioned the incident in a recent speech, he thought he had sent such a message and that it had been published. It has not turned up however, and the Prime Minister admitted that his memory might have failed him---that the message may never have been sent at all.

(Here) In New York, Adlai Stevenson---the Democratic Presidential candidate in 1952---came back into the news. He was retained by the Radio Corporation of America as counsel in a suit brought against RCA by the Zenith Corporation. Zenith is asking 16-million dollars in damages in a monopoly charge against RCA.

A federal grand jury in Scranton, Pennsylvania has indicted three prisoners at Lewisburg penitentiary on a general charge of murder in the death of former government economist William Remington. Remington was beaten to death in his prison room 10-days ago. One of the three indicted is a 17-year old who was to be released from the prison next Monday.

The government has made another move aimed at saving money where its automobiles are concerned. President Eisenhower signed an executive order reducing the number of the cars used for some civilian purposes. The White House estimates that the order will save the government, eventually, about 40-million dollars a year.

The government also took steps to further protect the unemployed until they can find jobs. Labor Secretary Mitchell wrote to state Governors, asking them to act through their legislatures to boost both the amount and duration of unemployment compensation [redacted] benefits. To illustrate the need for such action, Mitchell pointed out that during the first nine-months of this year, more than a million-and-a-quarter unemployed ran through all the jobless benefits they had coming without finding new employment.

~~In Cleveland, the state has rested its case against Dr. Samuel Sheppard. The judge is now considering a defense motion for dismissal or a directed verdict of acquittal.~~

The Senate tonight is in the process of reprimanding one of its ~~colleagues.~~ members. And it brings to mind something La Bruyere once said: "Discourtesy does not spring merely from one bad quality, but from several - foolish vanity, from ignorance of what is due to others, from indolence, from stupidity, from distraction of thought, from contempt of others, from jealousy." That was from Bruyere, not the United States Senate!

Good Nite and Good Luck!

CBS RADIO DIVISION

EDWARD R. MURROW

Wednesday, December 1, 1954
7:45-8:00 p.m.

MURROW: This is the news! The Senate of the United States has voted to censure one of its members, something it has done on only three previous occasions. My colleague, Ted Church, has been following the Senate activity throughout a long day, which has still not ended. He's up in the Radio Gallery now.

What's happening at the moment, Ted?

CHURCH: Well, Ed, almost exactly half-an-hour ago the Senate adjourned until teno'clock tomorrow morning. For a time it looked as though this special session on the McCarthy censure charges might wind up tonight, but, with early votes showing a stiff majority in favor of censure and some Democrats wanting to go to the Democratic meeting in New Orleans, it was decided to go over until tomorrow and they do expect to finish then. The day has been a tense one. There's hardly been a chuckle worth nothing. The galleries and the floor have been filled throughout the day, which went with no recess for lunch. The leadership seemed determined to make things move. It was obvious that it wasn't an easy task for some of the Senators to make up their minds. Senator Everett Dirksen, of Illinois, probably McCarthy's staunchest supporter, said flatly it was a political battle, a legislative matter, not judicial. The session got under way early, well before ten o'clock this morning. The first speaker was Senator Prescott Bush, the Connecticut Republican. Like several others today, he made his position quite clear. He said he had early misgivings about Senator McCarthy, but that he thought he was doing some good inalerting the nation to the dangers of Communism, but he saw, too, that McCarthy was doing harm and it wasn't long, he said, until he was aware that if you did not go along with McCarthy blindly you were charged with being a Communist or a sympathizer or a fool. He coined a name for the Watkins select committee; called it "the brave, unworthy six," and in a voice which broke a bit he said he could not stand silent in the Senateand hear one of the bravest men he ever knew, Senator Arthur Watkins, called a coward. He said if we go along with McCarthy we will have a Senate of dictators, each making his own rules. That, he considered a government of men and not of law.

As to the millions of petitions he suggested they best be sent to McCarthy to persuade him to treat his fellow-Senators properly.

Senator Gillette, the Iowa Democrat, who was defeated in the last election, delivered a plea for a more dignified Senate, more like the Senate he knew of the past. He said he was afraid something sinister had entered the Senate and it worried him. (coughing) Excuse me! Watkins made a final talk as the voting (unintelligible), repeating his earlier attitude about McCarthy designating him as stupid and a coward. He called it dastardly. Senator Dirksen delivered the only really entertaining ... if I may use that word ... entertaining address of the day. He spoke twice in offering an amendment, actually a substitute to clear McCarthy, and his was a truly impassioned speech. He admitted Joe McCarthy was an alley-fighter,but he said it was fantastic that the leading Red hunter in the United States should be punished by his colleagues just because he used some salty language. Then, he quoted from Senate history a series of mighty salty remarks made by Senators, past and present. How thin-skinned we have become, he remarked. He reminded the Senate it was Christmas and that the strains of "Hark, the Herald Angels Sing" should move Senators to compassion, which brought smiles to some faces on the floor. Later, when he introduced his amendment, he said censure was too great a punishment. In the future, he said, people would point at McCarthy and say: "There goes McCarthy. His colleagues censured him." That, said Dirksen, is real punishment. He said McCarthy had broken no rule, but immediately thereafter Senator Sam Ervin, of North Carolina, a member of the select committee, read that section of the Constitution which gives the rules for the creation and conduct of the Senate and House, which goes: "Each House can punish its members for disorderly behavior." What, asked Ervin, could be more disorderly than McCarthy's talk about our Committee? If that's not disorderly,

God help this country when someone does act disorderly.

There was much more, but they finally got to three o'clock and the voting. The first vote came on the Dirksen amendment, as I said, really a substitute which went down to a surprising 66-21 defeat. It was quite evident right there that things were going to move a lot faster than anyone thought. The McCarthy forces were well organized. Senator Mundt, of South Dakota, was next. He wanted to disavow McCarthy's language but also to make rules that would apply to all Senators. That took an even worse beating, 74-15. Senator Bridges came next. These latter two were not debated much at all. Bridges offered an amendment whichin effect would have cleared McCarthy completely. It went down, 58-20. A bit later they reached the vote on the committee measure which condemns McCarthy for his treatment of the Gillettee Committee and the vote on it stood 67-20 in favor of the condemnation. The most interesting thing about the votes was the solidity of the Democrats; not one strayed from the fold. The Republicans, of course, split and the highest number voting for McCarthy was, I believe, 21.

And that, Ed, is what's been going on here in Washington today.

Ed.trans.-A.A.Cardiff (30)

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 1, 1954
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

The Senate of the United States has voted to censure one of its members, something it has done on only three previous occasions. My colleague, Ted Church, has been following the Senate activity throughout a long day, which still has not ended. He's up in the Radio Gallery now. What's happening at the moment, Ted?

CHURCH: Well, Ed, almost exactly half-an-hour ago the Senate adjourned until ten O'Clock tomorrow morning. For a time it looked as though this special session on the McCarthy censure charges might wind up tonight, but, with early votes showing a stiff majority in favor of censure and some Democrats wanting to go to the Democratic meeting in New Orleans, it was decided to go over until tomorrow and they do expect to finish then. The day has been a tense one, There's hardly been a chuckle worth noting. The galleries and the floor have veen filled throughout the day, which went with no recess for lunch. The leadership seemed determined to make things move. It was obvious that it wasn't an easy task for some of the Senators to make up their minds. Senator Everett Dirksen, of Illinois, probably McCarthy's staunchest supporter, said flatly it was a political battle, a legislative matter, not judicial. The session under way early, well before ten O'Clock this morning. The first speaker was Senator Prescott Bush, the Connecticut Republican. Like several others today, he made his position quite clear. He said he had early misgivings about Senator McCarthy, but that he thought he was doing some good in alerting the nation to the dangers of Communism, but he saw, too, that McCarthy was doing harm and it wann't long, he said, until he was aware that if you did not go along with McCarthy blindly you were charged with being a communist or a sympathizer or a fool. He coined a name for the Watkins select Committee; called "the brave, unworthy six," and in a voice which broke a bit he said he could not stand silent in the Senate and hear one of the bravest men he ever knew, Senator Arthur Watkins, called a coward. He said if we go along with McCarthy we will have a Senate of dictators, each making his own rules. That, he considered a government of men and not of law.

As to the millions of petitions he suggested they best be sent to McCarthy to persuade him to treat his fellow-Senators properly.

Senator Gillette, the Iowa Democrat, who was defeated in the last election, delivered a plea for a more dignified Senate more like the Senate he knew of the past. He said he was afraid something sinister had entered the Senate and it vorried him. (caughing) Excuse me! Watkins made a final talk as the voting (unintelligible), repeating his earlier attidude about McCarthy designating him as stupid and a coward. He called it dastardly. Senator Dirksen delivered the only really entertaining...if I may use that word...entertaining address of the day. He spoke twice in offering an amendment, actually a substitute to clear McCarthy, and his was a truly impassioned speech. He admitted Joe McCarthy was an alley-fighter, but he said it was fantastic that the leading Red hunter in the United States should be punished by his colleagues just because he used some salty language. Then, he quoted from Senate history a series of mighty salty remarks made by Senators, past and present. How thin-skinned we have become, he remarked. He reminded the Senate it was Christmas and that the strains of "Hark, the Herald Angels Sing" whould move Senators to compassion, which brought smiles to some faces on the floor. Later, when he introduced his amendment, he said censure was too great a punishment. In the future, he said, people would point at McCarthy and say: "There goes McCarthy. He colleagues censured him." That, said Dirksen, is real punishment. He said McCarthy had broken no rule, but immediately thereafter Senator Sam Ervin, of North Carolina, a member of the select committee, read that section of the Constitution which gives the rules for the creation and conduct of the Senate and House, which goes: "Each House can punish its members for disorderly behavior." What, asked Ervin, could be more disorderly that McCarthy's talk about our Committee? If that's not disorderly, God help this country when someone does act disorderly.

There was much more, but they finally got to three o'Clock and the voting. The first vote came on the Dirksen Amendment, as I said, really a substitute which went down to a surprising 66-21 defeat. It was quite evident right there that things were going to move a lot faster than anyone thought. The McCarthy forces were well organized. Senator Mundt, of South Dakota, was next. He wanted to disavow McCarthy's language but also to make rules that would apply to all Senators. That took an even worse beating, 74-15. Senator Bridges came next. There later two were not debated much at all. Bridges offered an amendment which in effect would have cleared McCarthy completely. It went down, 58-20. A bit later they reached the vote on the committee measure which condemns McCarthy for his treatment of the Cillette Committee and the vote on it stood 67-20 in favor of the condemnation. The most interesting thing about the votes was the solidity of the Democrats; not one strayed from the fold. The Republicans, of course, split and the highest number voting for McCarthy was, I believe, 21.

And that, Ed, is what's been going on here in Washington today.

MURROW: This evening, Senator McCarthy told newsmen he's relieved the vote is being taken, so he can get back to his investigation of alleged subverrives. He said the number supporting him was greater than he expected.. that he had no plans to basically change his behavior..and that the censure vote will not hurt him politically because, McCarthy said, "the American people know I am being censured for exposing Communists."

The possibility of a blockade of the China coast came in for more comment today. Secretary of State Dulles told a news conference that he has contacted members of the United Nations on peaceful means of safeguarding American citizens --such as the thirteen imprisoned by Communist China. If these peaceful means fail, he said, we may consider a naval blcokade.

Earlier, Senators McCarthy and Jenner had joined in the call for a blockade. McCarthy said it might be done without the use of any of our warships ---that we could merely cut off aid to any of our allies who are trading with Communist China.

The matter came up in the UN political committee during the Korean debate. Russia said Communist China and North Korea sahould be invited to take part in the discussions. And the Polish delegate went so far as to say that Communist China if invited; might be ready to talk about those 13-American prisoners. The United States, leading the opposition to such an invitiation, said the action against the prisoners is one reason why Red China should not be invited. British Minister Anthony Nutting agreed, arguing that since the Communists rejected UN authority at the Geneva conference on Korea, it is hardly fitting to invite them now.

In Moscow, Communist China made her contribution to the Russian sponsored European security conference, warning that if the United States and its allies go to war against the Communist countries "they will suffer a fate worse than Hitler's" The Chinese Communist Ambassador said his country stands shoulder-to shoulder with Russia. whose power has become greater than ever before in history. And he echoed proeious speakers in favoring formation of an East German army, if the West Germans are rearmed.

Further action was announced for strengthening Nationalist held Formosa against any possible Communist actack. Secretary Dulles told a Washinton news conference that we have signed a new mutual defense treaty with Chiang Kai-Shek's government. Under that treaty, the United States would take retaliatory action against the China mainland if the Communists do attack Formosa. He explained that it would not necessarily mean a general war with atomic bombs falling all over the map. But he said that any such retaliatory action would be severe enough to show the attacker he would lose more than he would gain. The treaty, he said, follows the pattern of other American security pacts in the Pacific, and throws a mantle of protection around Formosa, the Pescadores, and Western Pacific Islands under our juristiction. He added that, likethe Korean mutual defense treaty and tha Manila pact, the Formosa agreement will provide "another link for the defense by the free peoples of the Western Pacific against Communist Agression.

Incidentally, our Defense Department announces that control of the 7th fleet has been shifted back to the Commander in Chief of the Pacific, in a move paralleling the withdrawal of five Army divisions from Korea since the shooting war ended. The announcement points out, however, that our forces will still be available in case they have to be re-assigned. And the shift will notchange the mission of the naval patrol which has operated in for Formosa straits since the Korean war started.

In Britains's House of Commons, Prime Minister Churchill spoke of another war. He admitted to questioning Laborites that he was not been able to find the controversial message on rearming beaten German troops against the Russians in the closing days of World War 2. He said that when he mentioned the incident in a recent speech, he thought he had sent such a message and that it had been published. It has not turned up however, and the Prime Minister admitted that his memory might have failed him --that the message may never have been sent at all.

Here in New York, Adlai Stevenson --the Democratic Presidential candidate in 1952 --came back into the news. He was retained by the Radio Coporation of America as counsel in a suit brought against RCA by Zenith Corporation. Zenith is asking 16-million dollars in damages in a monopoly charge against RCA.

A federal grand jury in Scranton, Pennsylvania has indicated three prisoners at Lewisburg penitentiary on a general charge of murder in the death of former government economist William Remington. Remington was beaten to death in his prison room 10 days ago. One of the three indicated is a 17-year old who was to be released from the prison next Monday.

The government has made another move aimed at saving money where its automobiles are concerned. President Eisenhower signed an executive order reducing the number of cars used for some civilian purposes. The White House estimates that the order will save the government, eventually, about 40-million dollars a year.

The government also took steps to further protect the unemployed until they can find jobs. Labor Secretary Mitchell wrote to state governors asking them to act thorugh their legislatures to boost both the amount and duration of unemployment compensation benefits. To illustrate the need for such action Mitchell pointed out that during the first nine-minths of this year, more than a million -and-a quarter unemployed ran through all the jobless benefits they had coming without finding new employment.

Thes is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a minute with the Word for Today. But first, a word from Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: The Senate tonight is in the process of repremanding one of its members. And it brings to mind something LaBruyere once said: "Discourtesy does not spring merely from one bad quality, but from several - foolish vanity, from ignorance of what is due to others, from indolence, from stupidity, from distraction of thought, from contempt of others, from jealousy." That was from Bruyere, not the United States Senate.

Good Night and Good Luck.

Thursday - December 2, 1954

This is the news.....

The United States Senate has condemned Senator McCarthy for "obstructing constitutional processes," and [redacted]tending to bring the Senate into dishonor and disrepute and to impair its dignity. The vote - 67 to 22. The Democrats all voted to condemn the Senator; the Republicans split down the middle. Senator McCarthy, the fourth Senator in our history to be so disciplined, loses none of his rights and privileges as a Senator. #

Pope Pius is reported near death tonight - a heart collapse with complications.

Eight Communist nations meeting in Moscow decided to combine their armed forces under a joint command, if the West goes ahead with plans to re-arm West Germany.

The United States will ask the United Nations to help secure the release of Americans now held in Communist China.

Loy Henderson, our Ambassador to Iran, has been named Deputy Under-Secretary of State.

The United States and Nationalist China today signed a mutual security pact of indefinite duration. ~~An attack against the territories of either country~~ We declare that an attack on Formosa would be "dangerous to our peace and safety, and the Chinese Nationalists say the same thing about us.

~~TAPE CUE~~

The President, at his news conference today, discussed the jailing of 13 Americans by the Chinese Communists. He noted that the Communists never do anything without a purpose. And then, as we recorded it, ~~the~~ Mr. Eisenhower ~~President~~ spoke with unusual candor about the job of being President

(TAPE RUNS 8.40) (COMES AT: 7.47.00)

RETURN CUE:

"...the safety of her men and soldiers no matter where we send them."

Pres. of U.S talking about his job,

In Brazil the Inter-American Economic Conference ended today. Senator Wiley thinks it has done "a bang-up job"; that we proved that the forty billion dollars we spend for national defense each year is spent also in defense of Latin America and the free world.

Dick Hottelet cables me from Berlin that today's Russian threat to establish an East German Army is being laughed off as a piece of cheap melodrama. East Germany already has a sizeable army - reliably estimated at a hundred-and-twenty thousand men, including about a thousand armored combat vehicles - some two thousand pieces of artillery, including heavy stuff and rocket batteries.

Organisation, training tactics are all strictly along Russian lines; uniforms and unit designations are all in Soviet colors. So-called Russian advisors are to be found everywhere in the Eastern zone. And the unified command in the Communist countries in the East has existed for years in fact, if not in name. The best opinion in Germany is that this gesture is very hollow indeed and will not delay German ratification of the Paris agreements.

The Russians lost a diplomatic round at the United Nations today, when Anthony Nutting speaking for Britain turned down a Russian proposal for a new Korean peace conference. He thought it offered no hope; said that the U.N. and the Communists agree that they want a unified, independent and democratic career; but independent in the Soviet sense means independent of the United Nations; and democratic as the Russians use the word means "essentially Communist." So long as both sides can't agree on single words, there is no point in having a conference.

The President today expressed with simple dignity a hope that all of us share: that through calmness and with perserverance we can avoid another war. John Locke once remarked:"The most precious of all possessions is the power over ourselves - power to withstand trial, to bear suffering, to front danger, the power to follow our convictions however resisted by menace and scorn, the power of calm reliance in scenes of darkness and storms."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

CBS RADIO DIVISION

EDWARD R. MURROW

Thursday, December 2, 1954
7:45-8:00 p.m.

MURROW: ..... And, then, as we recorded it, Mr. Eisenhower spoke with unusual candor about the job of being President.

EISENHOWER: Now, if this is a deliberate attempt out there, as it appears to be, to goad us into some impulsive action in the hope of dividing us from our allies, breaking down and destroying all the work that has been going on over the past years to build up a true coalition of free governments, then it certainly makes a mockery of the softer tone that has been used in Russia toward western Europe at times lately even approaching the tone of blandishment. Now, we must not forget what the aims of Communism have always been, announced by themselves, - to divide the free world, to divide us among ourselves as the strongest nation of the free world, and by dividing to confuse and to eventually conquer, to attain through those means their announced aim of world domination.

Now, for us there are two courses and here I should like in a way to talk a little bit personally. In many ways the easy course for a President, for the Administration, is to adopt a truculent, publicly bold or almost insulting attitude. A President experiences exactly the same resentments, the same anger, the same kind of sense of frustration almost when things like this occur to other Americans and his impulse is to lash out. Now, I want to make quite clear that when one accepts the responsibility of public office he can no longer give expression freely to such things. He's got to think of results. Now, that would be the easy way for this reason. Those actions lead toward war. Now, let's think of war for a second. When this nation goes to war there occurs automatically a unification of our people, traditionally. If we get into trouble that involves war the nation closes rank behind the leader, the job to do becomes simply understood - to win the war; there is a real fervor developed throughout the nation that you can feel everywhere you go; there is practically an exhilaration about the affair. The great (unintelligible) ... it is well that war is so horrible. If it were not so we would grow too fond of it because in the ... in the (intellectual-? (unintelligible) the spiritual contest, the matching wits, and getting along to see whether you can win there comes about something, an atmosphere is created andan attitude is created to which I am not totally unfamiliar. But, ladies and gentlemen, I've also had the job of writing letters of condolence by the hundreds, by the thousands, to bereaved mothers and to bereaved wives and others who have lost dear ones in the battle. Now, that is a very sobering experience and it means that if we are going ever to take such a fateful decision as leads us one step toward war let us by no means do it in response to our human emotions of anger, resentment, but let's do it after we have carefully considered it and found that there, as Wilson expressed it, are no other means of protecting our rights. Let us recognize that we owe it to ourselves and to the world to explore every possible peaceable means of settling differences before we even think of such a thing as war and the hard way is tohave the courage to be patient, tirelessly to seek every single avenue open to us in the hope even finally of leading the other side to a little better understanding, of the honesty of our intentions, and there's no question they honestly, in certain instances, do question our intentions. They do not believe always, or they seem adversely, that we are peaceably inclined. We have got a job (unintelligible) to do as well as to demand action from others, but the courage, patience, to keep after this kind of thing.

Now, I just want to say one word about the idea of blockade. It is possible that a blockade is conceivable without war. I have never read of it historically. A blockade is an act in war intended to bring your adversary to your way of thinking orto his knees. In fact, in the rules of war that were studied in my former life, it was clearly established the conditions that must prevail before you could legally proclaim a blockade. You couldn't, evenif you were a belligerent,merely say "we blockade Antarctica or any other country." You had to make the blockade effective and you were not justified in stopping anyone's ships unless you had the means present at the spot to make that blockade effective, indicating that the word blockade is, so far as I know, an act of war, a part of war. I have not checked this idea with the constitutional lawyers, but I believe it to be true and, so far as I'm concerned, if ever we come to a place that I feel that a step of war is necessary it's going to be brought about not by any impulsive, individualistic act of my own but I am going before the Congress in the constitutional method set up in this country and lay the problem before them with my recommendations as to whatever it may be. In the meantime, I've got one thought that I must express. At least eleven of these soldiers by the Communists' own propaganda and testimony made public were in uniform. They were soldiers, captured in the Korean war, consequently they were to be treated as prisoners-of-war under the terms of the armistice. Moreover, those men were there in conformity with obligations incurred under the League of ... under the United Nations and were there in fact in accordance with the specific request and resolutionof the United Nations. How the United Nations can possibly disabuse itself of a feeling of responsibility in this matter and retain its self-respect I wouldn't know and so I think the United States doesnot stand alone, merely indicating that we are yet far from exhausting all of our resources. I mention only one of those that is available to us. So far as the honor of the United States is concerned, I merely hope that I shall not live long enough to find myself accused of being insensible to the honor of the United States and the safety of her men and soldiers no matter where we send them.

Ed.trans.-A.A.Cardiff (30)

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 2, 1954
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

The United States Senate has condemmed Senator McCarthy for "obstructing constitutional processes," and tending to bring the Senate into dishonor and disrepute and to impair its dignity. The vote 67 to 22. The Democrats all voted to condemn the Senator; the Republicans split down the middle. Senator McCarthy, the fourth Senator in history to be so disciplined, loses none of his rights and privileges as a Senator.

Pope Pius is reported near death tonight - a heart collapse with com plications.

Eight Communist nations meeting in Moscow decided to combine their armed forces under a joint command, if the West goes ahead with plans to re-arm West Germany.

The United States will ask the United Nations to help secure the release of Americans now held in Communist China.

Loy Henderson, our Ambassador to Iran, has been named Deputy Under-Secretary of State.

The United States and Nationalist China today signed a mutual security pact of indefinite duration. We declare that an attack on Formosa would be "dangerous to our peace and safety" and the Chinese Nationalists say the same ahing about us.

The President, at his news conference today, discussed the jailing of 13 Americans by the Chinese Communists. He noted that the Communists never do anything without a purpose. And then, as we recorded it, Mr. Eisenhower spoke with unusual candor about the job of being President.

EISENHOWER: Now, if this is a deliberate attempt our there, as it appears to be, to goad us into some impulsive action in the hope of dividing us from our allies, breaking down and destroying all the work that has been going on over the past years to build up a true coalition of free governments, then it certainly makes a mockery of the softer tone that has been used in Russia toward western Europe at times lately even approaching the tone of blandishments. Now, we must not forget what the aims of Communism have always been, announcec by themselves, - to divide the free world, to divide us among ourselves as the strongest nation of the free world, and by dividing to confuse and to eventually conquer, to attain through those means their announced aim of world domination.

Now, for us there are two courses and here I should like tn a way to talk a little bit personally. In many ways the easy course for a President, for the Administration, is to adopt a truculent, publicly bold or almost insulting attutude. A President experiences exactly the same resentments, the same anger, the same kind of sense of frustration almost when things like this occur to other Americans and his impulse is to lash out. Now, I want to make quite clear that when one accepts the responsibility of Public office he can no longer give expression freely to such things. He's got to think of results. Now, that would be the easy way for this reason. Those actions lead toward war. Now, let's think of war for a second. When this nation goes towar there occurs automatically a unification of our people, traditionally. If we get into trouble that involves war the nation closes rank behind the leader, the job to do becomes simply understood - to win the war; there is a real fervor developed throughout the nation that you can feel everywhereyou go; there is practically an exhileration about the affair. The great (unintelligible) ...it is well that war is so horrible. If it were not so we would grow too fond of if because in the...

in the (unintelligible) the spiritual contest, the matching wits, and getting along to see whether you can win there comes about something, an atmosphere is created and an attitude is created to which I am not totally unfaliliar. But. ladies and gentlemen, I've also had the job of writing letters of condolence by the hundreds, by the thousands, to bereaved mothers and to bereaved wives and others who have lost dear ones in the battle. Now, that is a very sobering experience and it means that if we are going ever to take such a fateful decision as leads us one step toward war let us by no means do it in response to our human emotions of anger, resentment, but let's do it after we have carefully considered it and found that there, as Wilson expressed it, are no other means of protecting our rights. Let us recognize that we owe it to ourselves and to the world to explore every possible peaceable means of settling differences before we even think of such a thing as war and the hard way is to have the courage to be patient, tirelessly to seek every single avenue open to us in thehope even finally of leading the other side to a little better understanding, of the honesty of our intentions, and there's no question they honestly, in certain instances, do question our intentions. They do not believe always, or they seem adversely, thet we are peaceably inclined. We have got a job (unintelligible) to do as well as to demand action from others, but the courage, patience, to keep after this kind of thing.

Now, I just want to say one word about the idea of blockade, It is possible that a blockade is conceivable without war intended to bring our adversary to your way of thinking or to his knees. In fact, in the rules of war that were studies in my former life, it was clearly established the conditions that must prevail before you could legally proclaim a blockade You couldn't, even if you were a belligerant, merely say "We blockade Antartica, or any other country." You had to make the blockade effective and were not justified in stopping anyone's ships unless you had the means present at the spot to make that blockade effective, indicating that the word blocade is, so far as I know, an act of war, a part of war. I have not checked this idea with the constitutional lawyers, but I believe it to be true and, so far as I'm concerned, it ever we come to a place that i feel that a step of war is necessary it's going to be brought about not by any impulsive, individualistic act of my own but I am going before the Congress in the constitutional method sit up in this country and lay the problem before them with my recommendations as to whatever it may be, In the meantime, I've got one thought that I must express. At least eleven of those soldiers by the Communists' own propaganda and testimony made public were in uniform. They were soldiers, captured in the Korean war, consequently they were to be treated as prisoners-of-war under the terms of the armistice. Moreover, those men were there in conformity with obligations incurred under the League of....under the United Nations and were there in fact in accordance with the specific request and resolution of the United Nations. How the United Nations can possibly disabuse itself of a feeling of responsibility in this matter and retain its self-respect I wouldn'd know and so I think the United States does not stand alone, merely indicating that we are yet far from exhausting all of our resuroces. I mention only one of those that is available to us. So far as the honor of the United States is concerned, I merely hope that I shall not live long enough to find myself accused of being insensible to the honor of the Unites States and the safety of her men and soldiers no matter where we send them.

MURROW: Dick Hottelet cables me from Berlin that today's Russian threat to establish an East German Army is being laughed off as a piece of cheap melodrama. East Germany already has a sizeable army - reliably estimated at a hundred - and-twenty thousand men, including about a thousand armoured combat vehicles - some two thousand pieces of artilery, including heavy stuff and rocket batteries.

Orgainzation, training, tactics are all strictly along Russian lines; uniforms and unit designations are all in Soviet colors. So-called Russian advisors are to be found everywhere in the Eastern zone. And the unified command in the Communist countries is the East has existed for years, in fact, if not in name. The best opinion in Germany is that this gesture is very hollow indeed and will not delay German ratification of the Paris agreements.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a minute with the Word for Today. But first, a word from Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: The President today expressed with simple dignity a hope that all of us share: that through calmness and with perseverance, we can avoid another war. John Locke once remarked: The most precious of all psssessions is the power over ourselves - power to withstand trial, to bear suffering, to front danger, the power to follow our convictions however resisted by menace and scorn, the power of calm reliance in scenes of darkness and storms."

Good Night and Good Luck!

Friday, December 3, 1954

(1)

This is the news:

The condition of Pope Pius the 12th is [redacted] deteriorating. He has failed to respond to treatment following a collapse earlier this week. And the Vatican says it's now possible that the Pope may have to under-go surgery in an effort to save his life. (He's 78 years old.) But doctors who examined the Pontiff said there is still hope that he may [redacted] recover.

The free nations of the world that fought together in Korea decided tonight, to act as a group once again. Representatives of 16 United Nations, meeting here in New York, have voted to bring the case of the eleven American fliers now being held in Communist China before the U.N. [redacted]. Our representative to the U.N., Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., termed the united action "marvelous and inspiring." He said the matter would be brought up at "the earliest possible date."

There had been some indication that a major move in this direction was being contemplated when it became known earlier in the day that Secretary of State Dulles had met with the cabinet and also the National Security Council. After these conferences, he came to New York - [redacted] apparently to [redacted] to give Ambassador Lodge the official go-ahead.

For their part, the Chinese [redacted] (REDS SAY) that all thirteen Americans

~~But the West contends that the [redacted] in uniform were on active duty for the military and [redacted] are entitled to release under the Korean armistice agreement.~~

~~The Chinese Communists don't agree with this. They say all airmen~~ were 'spies' and can't be released under terms of the armistice. Furthermore, the Chinese have refused to consider a plea from India that the men be released. Instead, they had another charge to make against the United States today. The Communist Peiping radio claimed that nine American warplanes "intruded" upon their territory yesterday. They charge that the planes flew over Kwangtung and Kwangsi provinces in Southeast China.

[redacted] Atomic Energy Commission Chairman Lewis Strauss [redacted] OFFERED some [redacted] information TODAY on our government's pledge of 220-pounds of fissionable material under the atoms-for-peace program. He told a Chicago audience just what that material would do---said it would provide enough atomic fuel for fifteen highly-effective reactors. It would keep them in operation for approximately five years and still have almost two-thirds of the fuel inventory unconsumed. Just one such reactor, he said, would put a nation into business in many fields of medical, biological, industrial and physical research. And, speaking of the atomic future, Strauss said it promises to be a period of prosperity and good works such as men have never witnessed.

[redacted]

Other plans for the future were outlined in Washington for some two-hundred of the nation's Mayors and City Managers. General Lucius Clay, Chairman of the President's Advisory Committee on a national highway program, gave the details of a proposed 10-year, 26-billion-dollar federal road building program. Clay pointed out that the undertaking is necessary to make room for an additional 27-million cars on the roads in the next 20-years. Aside from this, it would also assist cities in evacuating their populations in the event of an atomic attack.

United States federal courts handed down two important decisions today. In Chicago, District Judge Walter LaBuy dismissed the government's biggest anti-trust case---a complaint against the DuPont Company, members of the DuPont family, their holding companies, General Motors and the United States Rubber Company. Judge LaBuy ruled that the Justice Department failed to prove its accusations of conspiracy, monopoly and restraint of trade in the suit.

In Alexandria, Virginia, a District Judge refused a defense request that he throw out major parts of an indictment accusing Joseph Petersen of [redacted] taking and misusing secret documents of the National Security Agency. The action clears the way for Petersen's trial, set for January 4th.

[redacted] the Senate Elections Subcommittee today turned down a request for a recount and investigation of the Oregon Senate election last month. Democrat Richard Neuberger's close victory over the Republican incumbent Guy Cordon, had given the Democrats a one-vote edge for organizing the new Congress. The recount was requested by Oregon's Republican National Committeeman, but the subcommittee turned it down after Cordon himself declined to join in the petition. Governor Patterson of Oregon says he [redacted] already has signed Neuberger's certificate as a Senator anyway.

The Democratic National Committee opened a two-day conference in New Orleans today for the purpose of choosing a new Chairman to succeed Stephen Mitchell and to smooth out plans for the '56 convention. The race for the Chairmanship appears to have boiled down to three men---Paul Butler of Indiana, James Finnegan of Pennsylvania and Mike DiSalle of Ohio. Another issue to be ironed out is the so-called party "loyalty oath" which almost split the party x wide open at the convention in '52. / It was settled at that time by a requirement that delegates do their best to get the national ticket on the ballots in their own states.

Edward R. Murrow: December 3, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

The Republican Party at present is passing through two internal crises. One is over Senator McCarthy; one is over Senator Knowland. Either one is enough to be disturbing. The two together are shaking the Party badly. The two crises have little in common other than that both are due to a breakdown in discipline.

The Senate has now dealt with Senator McCarthy, but in fact it is the Republican Party that has undertaken to discipline him, for responsibility for the censure action rests with the Republicans. But the condemnation of McCarthy does not get the Party out of trouble. The organization headed by Rear-Admiral Crommelin, which is trying to get ten million pro-McCarthy signatures for a petition to Congress announces that it will try to make itself permanent. These are only words so far, but the words mean that a supposedly grass-roots organization would be created to back a third party led by McCarthy. The Senator denies any such intention - but - One of the leverages McCarthy has with Republicans is this possibility of a third party, which might assure Democratic victory in 1956. Third parties don't automatically work out that way, as Henry Wallace and the Progressives learned in 1948, and Lafollette and his Progressives in 1924. But the Republican Party at present is in a minority, as the Congressional Elections have just shown, so that a split could be damaging.

With the censure vote now an accomplished fact, Republican members of the Senate today acknowledged that they weren't sure what effect the action against Senator McCarthy might have on party unity. Senator Bennet of Utah said he thinks that once some "new problems" come along, his Republican colleagues will "forget the heat of this thing." But Senator Barrett of Wyoming told newsmen he's convinced that "emotions aroused by the McCarthy censure fight will not cool off over-night." Senator Young of North Dakota said quite bluntly:"There's no blinking away a division in the party on some fundamental issues." I would like to discuss this matter now.

There is talk in Washington that if McCarthy should be nominated by a Third Party in 1956, and President Eisenhower should again lead the Republicans, Mr. Eisenhower would attract such a large independent vote as to be certain of election. This, however, is highly speculative, and it would be surprising if the White House was taking the possibility seriously.

The Knowland crisis is something quite different. It is more about policy than behavior, though there is a factor of behavior in it. Though the Republicans in the Senate do not discipline as closely as the Democrats, Mr. Knowland's position as majority leader would seem to make it much too awkward for him to keep that post while challenging the policy of the leader of the Party in the White House. His independence in voting yesterday against the censure of McCarthy was not formal rebellion against the White House, but it was certainly informal rebellion. And it underscored the deepening rift between the Eisenhower Republicans and the Right Wing. What is more, the Eisenhower forces do not appear to have the strength of desire to remove Knowland as majority leader. Counting pairs and McCarthy himself the pro-McCarthy strength in the Party was twenty-five to twenty-two. ~~And a majority of one would not stand up if Knowland's removal were the issue.~~

Undoubtedly Knowland's immunity from attack is due partly to so many Republicans disliking various aspects of the Eisenhower program. Ever since the Chicago Convention the Party has been divided against itself. The Eisenhower victory was no quiet compromise; it was an open, televised triumph of the middle-of-the-road or liberal faction of the Party over the conservatives. After the elections the divided Party kept its ranks fairly well closed for a time, thanks to the unexpected leadership of Senator Taft. Taft himself moved over to the middle of the road, and he persuaded the White House not to antagonize the Right Wing. But after his death the truce ended.

The Eisenhower forces can thank their stars that its Republican critics don't all dislike the same things. Senator Knowland, who wants strength shown to the Chinese Communists, is not unhappy about a liberal trade and tariff policy. Some Senators who like the President's emphasis on peace shrink from spending large sums on a Marshall Plan in Asia. Some who join Senator Knowland's demand for a stiff policy toward Red China gag at the idea of lower tariffs. A further field of Party differences is the cost of defense, foreign aid and social legislation that gets in the way of budget balancing.

The last Grand Debate, held in Taft's time, was over maintaining strength in Europe on an alliance basis. It reflected the Isolationist views of some Republicans, and these views are still held. Not that the modern version of Isolationism is blind to the Soviet menace. But it believes it can be handled by atomic power alone. President Eisenhower refuses to run risks that could result in both sides using atomic power. So in logic he has to look for possibilities of lessening tensions. To the McCarthy group - and others - that is being soft on Communism.

All these differences add up to more than the normal human disagreements found inside any Party. The future leadership and basic policy of the Republican Party are at issue. In the Congressional elections, President Eisenhower demonstrated that he was more popular than Republican conservatism. This may encourage him to believe that he can now proceed to solidify the Party. If so, he can hardly expect to find the conservatives submissive. He will have to beat them if he is going to re-shape the Party and unite it behind a Liberal or middle course. And the effort conceivably can end in a Party split. If this kind of a fight, with or without a split, is what lies ahead, Washington can look forward to some blistering political weather in the Winter months to come.

The wording of the Senate's resolution dealing with the conduct of one of its members has lent itself to a number of interpertations, ~~depending upon each point of view.~~ Will Rogers once remarked:"The minute a thing is long or complicated it confuses. Whoever wrote the Ten Commandments made em short. They may not always be kept, but they can be understood. And in Moses time people didn't gang up on you and say: you change that commandment or we wont play."

Good Nite and Good Luck

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 3, 1954
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

The condition of Pope Pius the 12th is deteriorating. He has failed to respond to treatment following a collapse earlier this week. And the Vatican says it's now possible that the Pope may have to under-go surgery in an effort to save his life. He's 78 years old. But doctors who examined the Pontiff said there is still hope that he may recover.

The free nations of the world that fought together in Korea decided tonight to act as a group once again. Representatives of 16 United Nations, meeting here in New York, have voted to bring the case of the eleven American fliers now being held in Communist China before the U.N. Our representative in the U.N., Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., termed the united action "marvelous and inspiring." He said the matter would be brought up at "the earliest possible date."

There had been some indication that a major move in this direction was being contemplated when it became known earlier in the day that Secretary of State Dulles had met with the cabinet and also the National Security Council. After these conferences, he came to New York - apparently to give Ambassador Lodge the official go-ahead.

For their part, the Chinese Reds say that all thirteen Americans were 'spies' and can't be released under terms of the armistice. Furthermore, the Chinese have refused to consider a plea from India that the men be released. Instead, they had another charge to make against the United States today. The Communist Peiping radio claimed that nine American war planes "intruded" upon their territory yesterday. They charge that the planes flew over Kwangtung and Kwangsi provinces in Southeast China.

Atomic Energy Commission Chairman Lewis Strauss offered some information today on our government's pledge of 220 pounds of fissionable material under the atoms-for-peace program. He told a Chicago audience just what the material would do --said it would provide enough atomic fuel for fifteen highly-effective reactors. It would keep them in operation for approximately five years. and still have almost two-thirds of the fuel inventory unconsumed. Just one such reactor, he said, would put a nation into business in many fields of medical, biological, industrial and physical research. And, speaking of the atomic future, Strauss said it promises to be a period of porsperity and good works such as men have never witnessed.

Other plans for the future were outlined in Washington for some two-hundred of the nation's mayors and City Managers. General Lucius Clay, Chairman of the President's Advisory Committee on a national highway program gave the details of a proposed 10-year, 26 million dollar Federal road building program. Clay pointed out that the undertaking is necessary to make room for an additional 27-million cars on the roads in the next 20 years. Aside from this, it would also assist cities in evacuating their populations in the event of an atomic attack.

United States federal courts handed down two important decisions today. In Chicago, District Judge Walter LaBuy dismissed the government's biggest anti-trust case -- a complaint against the DuPont Company, members of the DuPont family, their holding companies, Genrall Motors and the United States Rubber Company. Judge LaBuy ruled that the Justice Department failed to prove its accusations of conspiracy, monopoly and restraint of trade in the suit.

In Alexandria, Virginia, a District Judge refused a defense request that he throw out major parts of an indictment accusing Joseph Peterson of taking and misusing secret documents of the National Security Agency. The action clears the way for Petersen's trial, set for January 4th.

The Senate Elections Subcommittee today turned down a request for a recount and investigation of the Oregon Senate election last month. Democrat Richard Neuberger's close victory over the Republican incumbent Guy Cordon, had given the Democrats a one-vote edge for organizing the new Congress. The recount was requested by Oregon's Republican National Committeeman, but the subcommittee turned it down after Cordon himself declined to join in the petition. Governor Patterson of Oregon says he already has signed Neuberger's certificate as a Senator anyway.

The Democratic National Committee opened a two-day conference in New Orleans today for the purpose of choosing a new Chairman to succeed Stephen Mitchell and to smooth out plans for the '56 convention. The race for the Chairmanship appears to have boiled down to three men --Paul Butler of Indiana, James Finnegan of Pennsylvania and Mike DiSalle of Ohio. Another issue to be ironed out is the so -called party "loyalty oath" which almost split the party wide open at the convention in '52. It was settled at that time by a requirement that delegates do their best to get the national ticket on the ballots in their own states.

With the censure vote now an accomplished fact, Republican members of the Senate today acknowledged that they aeren't sure what effect the action against Senator McCarthy might have on party unity. Senator Bennet of Utah said he thinks that once some "new problems" come along, his Republican colleagues will "forget the heat of this thing." But Senator Barrett of Wyoming told newsmen he's convinced that "emotions aroused by the McCarthy censure fight will not cool off over night." Senator Young of North Dakota said quite bluntly : "There's no blinking away a division in the party on some fundamental issues." I would like to discuss this matter now.

The Republican Party at present is passing through two internal crises. One is over Senator McCarthy; one is over Senator Knowland. Either one is enough to be disturbing. The two together are shaking the Party badly. The two crises have little incommon other than that both are due to a breakdown in discipline.

The Senate has now dealt with Senator McCarthy, but in fact it is the Republican Party that has undertaken to discipline him, for responsibility for the censure action rests with the Republicans. But the condemnation does not get the party out of trouble. The organization headed by Rear-Admiral Crommelin, which is trying to get ten million pro-McCarthy signatures for a petition to Congress announces that it will try to make itself permanent. There are only words so far, the the words mean that a supposedly grass-roots organization would be created to back a third party led by McCarthy. The Senator denies any such intention -- but--One of the leverages McCarthy has with Republicans is this possibility of a third party, which might assure Democratic victory in 1956. Third parties don't automatically work out that way, as Henry Wallace and the Progressives learned in 1948, and LaFollette and his Progressives in 1924. But the Republican Party at present is in a minority as the Congressional Elections have just shown, so that a split could be damaging.

There is talk in Washington that if McCarthy should be nominated by a Third Party in 1956, and President Eisenhower should again lead the Republicans, Mr. Eisenhower would attract such a large independent vote as to be certain of election. This, however, is highly speculative, and it would be surprising if the White House was taking the possibility seriously.

The Knowland crisis is something quiet different. It is more about policy than behavior, through there is a factor of behavior in it.

Though the Republicans in the Senate do not discipline as closely as the Democrats, Mr. Knowland's position as majority leader would seem to make it much too awkward for him to keep that post while challenging the policy of the leader of the Party in the White House. His independence in voting yesterday against the censure of McCarthy was not formal rebellion against the White House, but it is certainly informal rebellion. And it underscored the deepening rift between the Eisenhower Republicans and the Right Wing. What is more, the Eisenhower forces do not appear to have the strength or desire to remove Knowland as majority leader. Counting pairs and McCarthy himself the pro-McCarthy strength in the Party was twenty five to twenty two.

Undoubtedly Knowland's immunity from attack is due partly to so many Republicans disliking various aspects of the Eisenhower program. Ever since the Chicago Convention the Party has been divided against itself. The Eisnehower victory was no quiet compormise; it was an open, televised triumph of the middle-of-the-road or liberal faction of the Party over the conservatives. After the elections the divided Party kept its ranks fairly well closed for a time, thanks to the unexpected leadership of Senator Taft. Taft himself moved over to the middle of the road, and he persuaded the White House not to antag- the Right wing. But after his death, the truce ended.

The Eisenhower forces can thank their stars that its Republican critics don't all dislike the same things. Senator Knowland, who wants strength shown to the Chinese Communists, is not unhappy about a liberal trade and tariff policy. Some Senators who like the President's emphasis on peace shrink from spending large sums on a Marshall Plan in Asia. Some who join Senator Knowland's demand for a stiff policy toward Red China gag at the idea of lower tariffs. A further field of Party differences is the cost of defense, foreign aid and sociel legislation that gets in the way of budget balancing.

The last Grand Debate, held in Taft's time, was over maintaining strength in Europe on an alliance basis. It reflected the Isolationist views of some Republicans, and these views are still held. Not that the modern version of Isolationism is blind to the Soviet menace, But it believes it can be handled by atomic power alone. President Eisenhower refuses to run risks that could result in both sides using atomic power. So in logic he has to look for possibilities of lessening tensions. To the McCarthy group - and others - that is being soft on Communism.

All these differences add up to more than the normal human disagreements found inside any Party. The future leadership and basic policy of the Republican Party are at issue. In the Congressional elections President Eisenhower demonstrated that he was more popular than Republican conservatism. This may encourage him to believe that he can now proceed to solidify the Party. If so, he can hardly expect to find the conservatives submissive. He will have to beat them if he is going to re-shape the Party and unite it behind a Liberal or middle course. And the effort conceivably can end in a Party split. If this kind of a fight, with or without a split, is what lies ahead, Washington can look forward to some blistering political weather in the winter months to come.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a minute with the "Word for Today", but first, a word from Bob Dixon

DIXON:COMMERCIAL

The wording of the Senate's resolution dealing with the conduct of one of its members has lent itself to a number of interpretations. Will Rogers once remarked: "The minute a thing is long or complicated, it confuses. Whoever wrote the Ten Commandments made em short. They may not always be kept, but they can be understood. And in Moses time people didn't gang up on you and say: you change that commandment or we won't play."

Good Night and Good Luck.

Monday Dec 6, 1954

This is the news:

The United Nations Steering Committee today recommended that the General Assembly consider the case of the eleven American flyers held by Red China on espionage charges. The vote was ten to two..with Russia and Czechoslovakia voting against the debate that's scheduled to start on Wednesday. Ambassador Lodge, asking approval, said:"We in the United Nations cannot let these men down. They are United Nations men. They were sent to Korea by the United Nations." But Jacob Malik of Russia insisted our airmen were spies... that the whole issue has been raised at the U.N. to increase international tension. Lodge said everyone in the committee room knows that President Eisenhower wants peace..that he doesn't want to intensify the cold war.

The Peiping Radio said today that more than 10-thousand objects captured from what they call "American spies", are now on display in Peiping. The Communists say they're showing everything from wrecked planes to canned food, [redacted] maps and arms. And Premier Chou en Lai said today that American policy, including the defense treay with Nationalist China, has "created the danger of a new war." The Peiping radio also said the Chinese are determined to liberate Formosa..the Nationalist stronghold.

British Foreign Secretary Eden said today that the imprisonment of eleven American flyers by the Chinese Communists is a direct violation of the Korean armistice. He said the British government deeply deplores this.

In Vatican City, the Vatican says that Pope Pius physicians report a continued slow gradual improvement of his health. The 78-year-old Pope had coffee and broth today..ate three times and managed to retain his food. His hiccups are becoming lighter and less frequent. And his brief periods of rest are growing longer and less fitful.

In Washington the State Department says that we have re-opened secret talks with Russia on the President's atoms-for-peace plan. The talks will confinue on a confidential basis

Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey told reporters today: "we cannot balance the budget for next year." He says he cannot estimate now just how large a deficit will be indicated in the President's budget message to the Congress in January. But, said Humphrey, we are "trying to do better" than the approximately 3-billion dollar deficit the government registered in the fiscal year which ended last June 30th.

John D. Clark, a member of former President Truman's council of economic advisers, says "very great damage has been done" to the economy by what he called "an unhappy experiment with a repressive monetary policy." Clark told a Joint Congressional Committee on the Economic Report that he thinks the President is unhappy "over the economic decline, quite apart from the fact that it has cost his party the control of Congress." And for the Administration, the Treasury and Federal Reserve Board submitted statements saying their handling of money matters had helped keep the 1952-53 boom from turning into a 1953-54 bust.

The Supreme Court today generally upheld one of the government's main weapons in prosecuting income tax evasion cases: these are cases in which the government tries to prove that the taxpayers gain in net worth exceeded his reported income. The court also ruled unanimously that states have no authority to close their highways to interstate truckers who violate state highway laws. The state of Illinois had contended that states have the right to ban interstae truckers who repeatedly overload their vehicles in violation of state laws. Justice Black, speaking FOR the court, said that only the Interstate Commerce Commission can revoke or suspend the operating certificates granted to interstate truckers.

Republican National Chairman Hall says "the pledge of Democrat leaders to co-operate with President Eisenhower in the best interests of the nation has been thrown into the ashcan." He says this has become "perfectly clear" from the first official statement by Paul M. Butler, the new chairman of the Democratic party. Butler said yesterday that the Democrats will call the nation's attention to the President's "lack of capacity to govern and unite the people."

Senator McCarthy failed to appear today at a closed SESSION of his committee's investigation of Communists in Defense plants. (Mrs. Mc Carthy reported the Senator's elbow was still hurting him.)

The Navy today replied to British Field Marshal Montgomery's statements that aircraft carriers are expensive and obsolete. The Navy says carriers are "massive retaliation" weapons that give the United States "a tremendous advantage."

And Admiral Kimmel, the Pacific fleet commander when Pearl Harbor was attacked by the Japanese 13 years ago, says in a new book: the Roosevelt administration provoked the attack to give us an excuse to enter World War Two.

Edward R. Murrow: December 6, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

One of the hazards of a cold war is that its leaders can't very well explain their strategy in public. Their purpose is to influence the thinking and actions of their cold-war opponents, and they use mostly words to do it. To have any effect these words have to be strong. Perhaps they are stronger than any contemplated action. But this the opponents aren't to know, and can't be sure about. For if they are uncertain they may be restrained from doing things they might otherwise undertake.

But it also can happen that uncertainty ceases to be a national asset. Words like "liberating oppressed people", "unleashing Chiang-Kai-Shek", and now a "blockade of Communist China" are strong words because, if put into action, they ~~would~~ could lead to war. Since it is not the purpose of a cold war to bring on a hot war, the time can come when the real meaning of cold-war words has to be spelled out.

Senator Knowland in proposing a blockade of Red China to get the imprisoned airmen freed, said he did not believe it would lead to war. But President Eisenhower at once stepped in to put an end to any misunderstanding. A blockade of China, he said, would be an act of war.

The President drove home his point with a statement that may stand out as the most important he has made about cold war policy. "If it ever comes to a place that a step of war is necessary" he said, "it is going to be brought about, not by any impulsive action of my own, but I am going before the Congress in the Constitutional method set up in the country and lay the problem before them with my recommendation as to whatever it may be."

A great deal of important policy is made by Administrative order. The Seventh Fleet was assigned to defend Formosa by such an order. We can recall that an Administrative order might have authorized the use of American air power to defend Dien Bien Phu. Those who advocated this did not intend to by-pass Congress altogether. It has been reported that they were ready to ask for a supporting Congressional resolution. The Congressional leaders consulted boggled at the intervention because not enough allies were in sight to join the action. But what was under consideration was not a declaration of war. This still was to be cold war. Today it would be hard to imagine President Eisenhower calling such an air strike as anything but a step of war. Actually he is credited with having sided with General Ridgway against the other chiefs of staff and Secretary Dulles in vetoing the proposal when it was made.

Now the President has promised that any step of war will be brought before Congress in the Constitutional method set up in this country. The United States, if attacked, will still be able to defend itself without waiting for a declaration of war by Congress, but it will not initiate a step of war without such Congressional action. The President's pledge is bound to have a moderating effect on the future language of the cold war. It may moderate it beyond recognition.

It should be noted that the President's pledge is not an isolated instance. The phrase "Constitutional processes" is the key in the treaty signed with the Chinese Nationalists last week. It is not true that this treaty forbids the Nationalists from trying to return to the Chinese mainland without prior approval of the United States. Consultation is provided, though it is only "from time to time". So Nationalist spokesmen are technically right in saying the treaty does not forbid them from returning to the mainland without our consent. But it would be impossible for them to do it if they lived up to the first paragraph of the treaty. In this both signatories are pledged to settle all disputes by peaceful means and to refrain from the threat or use of force in any manner inconsistent with the purposes of the United Nations. No one will contend that it is a purpose of the United Nations for the Nationalists to re-conquer the Communist mainland by force.

The treaty is a mutual defense pact, and the United States undertakes to help the Chinese Republic in the event of an armed attack. But it would not be possible for the Nationalists to exploit the pact, provoke the Communists into attacking Formosa by themselves attacking the mainland, and so involving us in the war. This is where "Constitutional processes" come into play. We cannot join in a war over Formosa without going through the procedures President Eisenhower prescribed for a step of war. Congress must approve of it.

Chiang-Kai-Shek no longer can count as "unleashed". If he does anything leading to war that Congress does not approve, he is on his own. The proviso may not look like a leash, but it has the same effect.

This is a far-reaching change, for it really means the end of any American intention - if there ever was one - of overthrowing the Reds in China with American power spear-headed by Chiang. This may be a disappointment for Chiang. But he has the knowledge that he now is safe on Formosa, and safe not for just as long as an Administrative order remains in effect, but for the life of the treaty. This is a modest future for Chiang. But his security is ~~permanent~~. More permanent than it has been.

It would seem that we have on the record now a very definite statement of policy with regard to this country's attitude about a blockade of China. Lord Chesterfield once remarked appropriately:"Firmness of purpose is one of the most necessary sinews of charaster and one of the best instruments of success. Without it, genius wastes its efforts in a maze of inconsistencies."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

MONDAY, DECEMBER 6, 1954
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

The United Nations Steering Committee today recommended that the General Assembly consider the case of the eleven American flyers held by Red China on espionage charges. The vote was ten to two...with Russia and Czechoslovakia voting against the debate that's scheduled to start on Wednesday. Ambassador Lodge, asking appooval said: "We in the United Nations cannot let these men down. They are United Nations men. They were sent to Korea by the United Nations." But Jacob Malik of Russia insisted our airmen were spies...that the whole issue has been raised at the U.N. to increase international tension. Lodge said everyone in the committee room knows that President Eisenhower wants peace...that he doesn't want to intensify the cold war.

The Peiping Radio said today that more than 10-thousand objects captured from what they call "American spies" are now on display in Peiping. The Communists say they're showing everything from wrecked planes to canned food, maps and arms. And Premier Chou en Lai said today that American policy, including the defense treaty with Nationalist China, has "created the danger of a new war." The Peiping radio also said the Chinese are determined to liberate Formosa...the Nationalist stronghold.

British Foreign Secretary Eden said today that the imprisonment of eleven American flyers by the Chinese Communists is a direct violation of the Korean armistice. He said the British government deeply deplores this.

In Vatican city, the Vaticay says that Pope Pius physicians report a continued, slow, gradual, improvement of his health. The 78-year-old Pontiff had coffee and broth today...ate three times and managed to retain his food. His hiccups are becoming lighter and less frequent. And his brief periods of rest are growing longer and lest fitful.

In Washington the State Department says that we have re-opened secret talks with Russia an the President's atoms-for-peace plan. The talks will continue on a confidential basis.

Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey told reporters today: "we cannot balance the budget for next year." He says he cannot estimate now just how large a deficit will be indicated in the President's budget message to the Congress in January. But, said Humphrey, we are "trying to do better" than the approximately 3-billion dollar deficit the government registered in the fiscal year which ended last June. 30th.

John D. Clark, a member of former President Truman's council of economic advisers, says "very great damage has been done" to the economy by what he called "an unhappy experiment with a repressive monetary policy." Clark told a Joint Congressional Committee on the Economic Report that he thinks the President is unhappy"over the economic decline, quite apart from the fact that it has cost his party the control of Congress." And for the Administration, the Treasury and Federal Reserve Board submitted statements saying their handling of money matters had helped keep the 1952-53 boom from turning into a 1953-54 bust.

The Supreme Court today generally upheld one of the government's main weapons in prosecuting income tax evasion cases: These are cases in which the government tries to prove that the taxpayers gain in net worth exceeded his reported income. The Court also ruled unanimously that states have no authority to close their highways to interstate truckers who violate state highway laws. The state of Illinois had contended that states have the right to ban interstate truckers who repeatedly overload their vehicles in violation of state laws. Justice Black, speaking for the court, said that only the Interstate Commerce Commission can revoke or suspend the operating certificates granted to interstate truckers.

Republican National Chairman Hall says "the pledge of Democrat leaders to co-operate with President Eisenhower is the best interests of the nation has been thrown into the ashcan." He says this has become "perfectly clear" from the first official statement by Paul M. Butler, the new chairman of the Democratic party. Butler said yesterday that the Democrats will call the nation's attention to the President's "lack of capacity to govern and unite people."

Senator McCarthy failed to appear today at a closed session of his committee's investigation of Communists in Defense plants. Mrs. McCarthy reported the Senator's elbow was still hurting him.

The Navy today replied to British Field Marshal Montgomery's statements that aircraft carriers are expensive and obsolete. The Navy says carriers are "massive retaliation weapons that give the United States "a tremendous advantage."

Ad Admiral Kimmel, the Pacific fleet commander when Pearl Harbor was attacked by the Japanese 13 years ago, says in a new book: the Roosevelt administration provoked the attack to give us an uxcuse to enter World War Two.

One of the hazards of a cold war is that its leaders can't very well explain their strategy in public. Their purpose is to influence the thinking and actions of their cold-war opponents, and they use mostly words to do it. Th have any effect these words have to be strong. Perhaps they are stronger than any contemplated action. But this the opponents aren't to know, and can't be sure about. For if they are uncertain they may be restrained from doing things they might otherwise undertake.

But it also can happen that uncertainty ceases to be a national asset. Words like "liberating oppressed people", "unleashing Chiang-Kai-Shek", and now a "blockade of Communist China" are strong words, because, if put into action, they could lead to war. Since it is not the purpose of a cold war to bring on a hot war, the time can come when the real meaning of cold-war words has to be spelled out.

Senator Knowland in proposing a blockade of Red China to get imprisoned airmen freed, said he did not believe it would lead to war. But President Eisenhower at once stepped in to put an end to any misunderstanding. A blockade of China, he said, would be an act of war.

The President drove home his point with a statement that may stand out as the most important he has made about cold war policy. "If it ever comes to a place that a step of war is necessary" he said, "it is not going to be brought about by an impulsive action of my own, but I am going before the Congress in the Constitutional method set up in the country and lay the problem before them with my recommendation as to whatever it may be."

A great deal of important policy is made by Administrative order. The Seventh Fleet was assigned to defend Formosa by such an order. We can recall that an Administrative order might have authorized the use of American air power to defend Dien Bien Phu. Those who advocated this did not intend to by-pass Congress altogether. It has been reported that they were ready to ask for a supporting Congressional resolution. The Congressional leaders consulted boggled at the intervention because not enough allies were in sight to join the action. But what was under consideration was not a declaration of war. This still was to be cold war. Today it would be hard to imagine President Eisenhower calling such an air strike as anything but a step of war. Actually he is credited with having sided with General Ridgway against the other chiefs of staff and Secretary Dulles in vetoing the proposal when it was made.

Now the President has promised that any step of war will be brought before Congress in the Constitutional method set up in this country. The United States, if attacked, will still be able to defend itself without waiting for a decalration of war by Congress, but it will not initiate a step of war without such Congressional action. The President's pledge is bound to have a moderating effect on the future language of the cold war. It may moderate it beyond recognition.

It should be noted that the President's pledge is not an isolated instance. The phrase "Constitutional processes" is the key in the treaty signed with the Chinese Nationalists last week. It is not true that this treaty forbids the Nationalists from trying to return to the Chinese mainland without prior approval of the United States. Consultation is provided, though it is only"from time to time". So Nationalist spokesmen are technically right in saying the treaty does not forbid them from returning to the mainland without our consent. But it would be impossible for them to do it if they lived up to the first paragraph of the treaty. In this, both signatories are pledged to settle all disputes by peaceful means and to refrain from the threat of use of force in any manner inconsistent with the purposes of the United Nations. No one will contend that it is a purpose of the United Nations for the Nationalists to re-conquer the Communist mainland by force.

The treaty is a mutual defense pact, and the United States undertakes to help the Chinese Republic in the event of an armed attack. But it would not be possible for the Nationalists to exploit the pact, provoke the Communists into attacking Formosa by themselves attacking the mainland, and so involving us in the war. This is where "Constitutional processes" come into play. We cannot join in a war overFormosa without going through the procedures President Eisenhower prescribed for a step of war. Congress must approve of it.

Chiang-Kai-Shek no longer can count as "unleashed". If he does anything leading to war that Congress does not approve of, he is on his own. The proviso may not look like a leash, but it has the same effect.

This is far-reaching change, for it really means the end of any American intention - if there ever was one - of overthrowing the Reds in China with American power, spear-headed by Chiang. This may be a disappointment for Chiang. But he has the knowledge that he now is safe on Formosa, and safe not for just as long as an Administrative order remains in effect, but for the life of the treaty. This is a modest future for Chiang. But his security is more permanent than it has been.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a minute with the Word for Today. But first, here is Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: It would seem that we have on the record now a very definite statement of policy with regard to this country's attitude about a blockade of China. Lord Chesterfield once remarked appropriately:"Firmness of puroose is one of the best instruments of success. Without it, genius wastes its efforts in a maze of inconsistencies."

Good night and good luck.

Tuesday December 7, 1954

This is the news:

Senator McCarthy today attacked President Eisenhower on two counts; "for seeing fit to congratulate those who held up the exposure of Communists, in one breath, and in the next breath urging patience, tolerance and the niceties for those who are torturing American uniformed men." This was a reference to the President having congratulated Senator Flanders, who instigated the censure charges against McCarthy, and Senator Watkins, whose committee brought the charges to the Senate floor. It was also a reference to the President's recent statement urging patience and steps to avoid war in settling our differences with the Chinese Communists.

Senator McCarthy, speaking before his investigating committee, apologized for an "unintentional deception." He said he was mistaken during the 1952 campaign when he urged the election of General Eisenhower on the grounds that Mr. Eisenhower would make a vigorous foreceful campaign against Communists in government. Mc Carthy says the President has failed to do this. And McCarthy objected strenuously to the President's congratulations to Senators Watkins and Flanders on the grounds that they had been instrumental in delaying his hunt for Communists for ten months.

Mc Carthy later told reporters he has no intention of bolting the Republican party "at the present time."

The White House answer to this attack was to issue up-to-date figures on its anti-Communist activities at home. It says that since the inauguration of the President: 50 communist leaders have been convicted.. another (49) have been indicted...62 more organizations have been labelled subversive...one person (has) been indicted for treason, two convicted of espionage...10 have been convicted for making false statements to the government..129 alien subversives have been deported and another 410 have been ordered deported.

Among those senators who voted against condemning Senator Mc Carthy in the recent debate, Goldwater of Arizona said it not true that the Watkins hearings held up McCarthy's search for Communists... Millikan of Colorado regrets the attack on the President...Bridges of New Hampshire hopes to get the executive and the congress off to a united front in the New Year. Welker of Idaho thinks it was not necessary for the President to congratulate Senator Watkins. Welker feels "McCarthy stands vindicated before the jury of the American people."

The Republican National committee chairman, Leonard Hall, says

McCarthy made a major error in today's charge against the President..he points out that President Eisenhower was fighting Communists quite a few years before McCarthy made his first Senate speech on the subject. Chairman Watkins says McCarthy today showed the same irresponsibility that the Senate condemned last week. Flanders of Vermont feels this is a declaration of war..He's interested in seeing who are McCarthy's allies. And Democratic Senator Green said:"The plot thickens."

The White House today denied reports that Republican leaders are trying to arrange a meeting between the President and Senator Knowland.. in an effort to avoid a party split on foreign policy. I'd like to discuss this problem in a few minutes.

Secretary of State Dulles said today Congress will be asked to approve a broad economic aid program for Asia--as a bulwark against Communist expansion. Democratic Senator Ellender of Louisiana says the President will have a hard battle to get such funds from Congress.

Treasury Secretary Humphrey told a Congressional committee the nation's economy is now on the way up again..after passing through a temporary recession. And Defense Secretary Wilson says national defense spending is getting close to the point where it cannot be cut further unless world conditions change for the better.

The Army today issued a February draft call for 20-thousand men...that's three thousand less than THE quotas announced for the previous seven months.

And at the United Nations, Ambassador Lodge handed Secretary-General Hammershuld the resolution calling for the release of eleven American airmen held as spies by the Chinese Communists. The General Assembly will consider the resolution tomorrow.

The Chinese Communist radio charged today that the United States agreement to help defend Nationalist Formosa could be compared to some power creating "a HOSTILE regime off Long Island." [redacted] Again we are accused of "following the path of aggressive war." [redacted]

Japanese Premier Yoshida has resigned with opponents calling him dictatorial and reactionary. The change is not expected to affect American policies in Japan.

In Vatican City today Pope Pius lighted an electric torch at his sickbed..by pressing a switch ~~for~~ to the Sicilian Shrine of the Virgin Mary. This was on the eve of the end of the Roman Catholic Marian year. The pope (had) small quantities of coffee, milk and chicken broth today. One of his doctors (said) "It is a great change (for the better) from the past few days."

Edward R. Murrow: December 7, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

Over the week-end, the new chairman of the Democratic National Committee..Paul M. Butler..charged that President Eisenhower has shown a lack of capacity to govern and unify the country. The immediate effect of this has been to focus attention on the presidential outlook for 1956. It has produced a chorus of demands from Eisenhower Republicans that the President accept a second term. The phrase already is used of "drafting" him, though of course a draft normally is an operation put through at the last minute before or during the nominating convention.

Considerable interest has been aroused by the Democratic strategy of centering their attack on the President. There are two kinds of strategy in any conflict - to attack the opponents where they are weak, and to attack them where they are strong. Both strategies have their points. Dem. Chairman Butler has attacked the Republicans where they are strong. President Eisenhower enjoys a personal popularity exceeding that of his Party. The public opinion polls give him the approval of a comfortable majority of Americans. He was elected by the help of independent voters, and to some extent by Democratic voters. If he ran again he presumably would attract the same sort of support. Mr. Butler obviously believes this support can be cut down if Independent voters look more closely at the President's record.

Much of the President's popularity rests on his moderation in foreign affairs. The most telling speech he made in the recent Congressional campaign was at Indianapolis, when he promised that the Republicans would never go to war to make work. This was in the last days of the campaign, and it was exploited to depict the Democrats as a war Party, since Wilson, Franklin Roosevelt and Truman were in the White House when the last three wars were fought. "Vote Republican" said Republican advertisements, "the boy you save may be your own." The Indianapolis speech was not on the level of his statement last week about showing patience in the face of Chinese Communist provocation, but it may have turned the tide in favor of the Republican senatorial candidates in Iowa and Ohio, and it probably cut down the majority of Senator Douglas in Illinois by half. Mr. Eisenhower as a peace President looks at this moment as a candidate to conjure with, even though his Party is divided behind him.

But Washington observers are not sure the President will run again. Certainly no one is on record as saying that the President has said that he would. But likewise no one is on record as having heard him say that he wouldn't. The President dislikes some aspects of political life. His experience has not been what he had foreseen. He certainly does not like the split in the Party. He has spoken his mind on Senator Knowland, and he publicly praised Senator Watkins for his leadership in the McCarthy affair. Neither action helped unite the Party, --AS McCARTHY SHOWED TODAY-- nor could it have been designed to do so. Certainly nothing the President does looks as though he were silently seeking a second term. Observers are sure that if he consulted his personal preference he would lay down the office. And it is beyond doubt that if Mrs. Eisenhower had her way, her husband would never be a candidate again. But it is difficult for a President to consult his personal preference, or that of his wife. He must serve his policies and his Party, and in the United States a second term counts as an endorsement which both history and practical politics require a President to seek.

One fact should be mentioned. If President Eisenhower accepts a second term and serves it out, he would be the first President in American history to reach the age of seventy in office. Andrew Jackson came within weeks of it, and William Henry Harrison, had he lived, would have been 72, but he died a month after inauguration. Actually Jackson, Harrison and Truman are the only Presidents to have reached 68 while in office. President Eisenhower will be 66 the month before the next Election.

Naturally Washington is talking not only about the chances of Eisenhower accepting a second term, but of what would happen if he didn't.

The outstanding runners-up in the Party at present are Vice-President Nixon and now Senator Knowland. Nixon counts as a Right-Winger, and Knowland in voting against condemning McCarthy lined up with the pro-McCarthy faction. No Liberal Republican is on the horizon as a commanding possibility. Governor Dewey might have been given consideration had Senator Ives carried New York State.

It is realized that a split Party under either Nixon or Knowland would campaign under a serious handicap. The only candidate in sight who could unite the Party is believed to be Chief Justice Warren. So where draft is talked, it is to draft Eisenhower if possible; and if not, to take the Chief Justice off the Bench. It would be unprecedented for a Chief Justice to resign to run for the Presidency; Charles Evans Hughes left the Bench to do so, but he was an Associate Justice and had to wait fourteen years before appointment as Chief Justice. No one has ever given any report on how the Chief Justice would respond to a draft.

~~It would seem that~~ the jockeying for position within the Republican Party is well under way. There will be no shortage of candidates if the President decides not to seek re-election. Of course, as Carlyle once said:"No man lives without jostling and being jostled; in all ways he has to elbow himself through the world, giving and receiving offense." If this be true, Arnold Bennett offered good addvice:"Alyways behave as if nothing has happened, no matter what has happened."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

TUESDAY, DECEMBER 7, 1954
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

Senator McCarthy today attacked President Eisenhower on two counts; "for seeing fit to congratulate those who held up the exposure of Communists, in one breath, and in the next breath urging patience, tolerance and the niceties for those who are torturing American uniformed men. This was a reference to the President having congratulated Senator Flanders, who instigated the censure charges against McCarthy, and Senator Watkins, whose committee brought the charges to the Senate floor. It was also a reference to the President's recent statement urging patience ans steps to avoid war in settling our differences with the Chinese Communists. Senator McCarthy, speaking before his investigating committee, apologized for an "unintentional deception." He said he was mistaken during the 1952 campaign when he urged the election of General Eisenhower on the grounds that Mr. Eisenhower would make a vigorous forceful campaign against Communists in government. McCarthy says the President has failed to do this. And McCarthy objected strenuously to the President's contratulations to Senators Watkins and Flanders on the grounds that they had been instrumental in delaying his hunt for Communists for ten months. McCarthy later told reporters he has no intention of bolting the Republican party "at the present time."

The White House answer to this attack was to issue up-to-date figures on its anti-Communist activities at home. It says that since the inauguration of the President: 50 Communist leaders have been convicted...another 49 have been indicted...62 more organizations have been labelled subversive.. one person has been indicted for treason, two convicted of espionage...10 have been convicted for making false statements to the government...129 alien subversives have been deported and another 410 have been ordered deported.

Among those senators who voted against condemming Senator McCarthy in the recent debate, Goldwater of Arizona said it nas not true that the Watkins hearings held up McCarthy's search for Communists...Millikan of Colorado regrets the attack on the President ..Bridges of New Hampshire hopes to get the executive and the congress off to a united front in the New Year. Welker of Idaho thinks it was not necessary for the President to congratulate Senator Watkins. Welker feels "McCarthy stands vindicated before the jury of the American people."

The Republican National committee chairman, Leonard Hall, says McCarthy made a major error in today's charge against the President...he points out that President Eisenhower was fighting Communists quite a few years before McCarthy made his first Senate speech on the subject. Chairman Watkins says McCarthy today showed the same irresponsibility that the Senate condemmed last week. Flanders of Vermont feels this is a declaration of war...He's interested in seeing who are McCarthy's allies. And Democratic Senator Green said: "The plot thickens."

The White House today denied reports that Republican leaders are trying to arrange a meeting between the President and Senator Knowland..in an effort to avoid a party split on foreign policy. I'd like to discuss this problem in a few minutes.

Secretary of State Dulles said today Congress will be asked to approve a broad economic aid program for Asia --as a bulwark against Communist expansion. Democratic Senator Ellender of Louisiana says the President will have a hard battle to get such funds from Congress.

Treasury Secretary Humphrey told a Congressional committee the nation's economy is now on the way up again...after passing through a temporary recession. And Defense Secretary Wilson says national defense spending is getting close to the point where it cannot be cut further unless world conditions change for the better.

The Army today issued a February draft call for 20-thousand men... that's three thousand less than the quotas announced for the previous months.

And at the United Nations, Ambassador Lodge handed Secretary -General Hammershuld the resolution calling for the release of eleven American airmen held as spies by the Chinese Gommunists. The General Assembly will consider the resolution tomorrow.

The Chinese Communist radio charged today that the United States agreement to help defend Nationalist Formosa could be compared to some power creating "a hostile regime off Long Island." Again we are accused of "following the path of aggressive war."

Japanese Premier Yoshida has resigned with opponents calling him dictatorial and reactionary. The change is not expected to affect American policies in Japan.

In Vatican City today Pope Pius lighted an electric torch at his sickbed...by pressing a switch to the Sicilian Shrine of the Virgin Mary. This was on the eve of the end of the Roman Catholic Marian year. The Pope had small quantities of coffee, milk and chicken broth today. One of his doctors said: "It is a great change for the better from the past few days.

Over the week-end, the new chairman of the Democratic National Committee.. Paul M. Butler...charged thet the President Eisenhower has shown a lack of capacity to govern and unify the country. The immediate effect of this has been to focus attention on the presidential outlook for 1956. It has produced a chorus of demands from Eisenhower Republicans that the President accept a second term. The phrase already is used of "drafting" him, though of course a draft normally is an operation put through at the last minute before or during the nominating convention.

Considerable interest has been aroused by the Democratic strategy of centering their attack on the President. There are two kinds of strategy in any conflict - to attack the opponents where they are weak, and to attack them where they are strong. Both strategies have their points. Democratic Chairman Butler has attacked the Republicans where they are strong. President Eisenhower enjoys a personal popularity exceeding that of his party. The public opinion polls give him the approval of a comfortable majority of Americans. He was elected by the help of independent voters. If he ran again he presumably would attract the same support . Mr. Butler obviously believes this support can be cut down if Independent voters look more closely at the President's record.

Much of the President's popularity rests on his moderation in foreign affairs. The most telling speech he made in the recent Congressional campaign was at Indianapolis, when he promised that the Republicans would never go to war to make work. This was in the last days of the campaign and it was exploited to depict the Democrats as a war party, since Wilson, Franklin Roosevelt and Truman were in the White house when the last three wars were fought. "Vote Republican" said Republican advertisements, "the boy you save may be your own." The Indianapolis speech was not on the level of his statement last week about shoeing patience in the face of the Chinese Communist provocation, but it may have turned the tide in favor of the Republican senatorial candidates in Iowa and Ohio, and it probably cut down the majority of Senator Douglas in Illinois by half. Mr. Eisenhower as a peace President looks at this moment as a candidate to conjure with, even though his Party is divided behind him.

But Washington observers are not sure the President will run again. Certainly no one is on record as saying that the President has said that he would. But likewise no one is on record as having heard him say that he wouldn't. The President dislikes some aspects of political life. His experience has not been what he had forseen. He certainly does not like the split if the Party. He has spoken his mind on Senator Knowland, and he publicly praised Senator Watkins for his leadership in the McCarthy affair. Neither action helped unite the Party...as McCarthy showed today...nor could it have been designed to do so. Certainly nothing the President does looks as though he were silently seeking a second term. Observers are sure that if he consulted his personal preference he would lay down the office. And it is beyond doubt that if Mrs. Eisenhower had her way, her husband would never be a candidate again. But it is difficult for a President to consult his personal preference, or that of his wife. He must serve his policies and his Party, and in the United States a second term counts as an endorsement which both history and practical politics require a President to seek.

One fact should be mentioned. If President Eisenhower accepts a second term and serves it out, he would be the first President in American history to reach the age of seventy in office. Andrew Jackson came within weeks of it, and William Henry Harrison, had he lived, would have been 72, but he died a month after inauguration. Actually Jackson, Harrison and Truman are the only Presidents to have reached 68 while in office. President Eisenhower will be 66 the month before the next election.

Natuallly Washington is talking not only about the chances of Eisenhower accepting a second term, but of what would happen if he didn't.

The outstanding runners-up in the Party at tresent are Vice-President Nixon and Senator Knowland. Nixon counts as a Right-Winger, and Knowland in voting against condemming McCarthy lined up with the pro-McCarthy faction. No liberal Republican is on the horizon as a commanding possibility. Governor Dewey might have been given consideration had Senator Ives carried New York State.

It is realized that a split Party under either Nixon or Knowland would campaign under a serious handicap. The only candidate in sight who could unite the Party is believed to be Chief Justice Warren. So where draft is talked, it is to draft Eisenhower if possible; and if not, to take the Chief Justice off the Bench. It would be unprecedented for a Chief Justice to resign to run for the Presidency; Charles Evans Hughes left the Bench to do so, but he was an Associate Justice and had to wait fourteen years before appointment as Chief Justice. No one hae ever given any report on how the Chief Justice would respond to a draft.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a minute with the Word for Today. But first, here is Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: The jockeying for position within the Republican Party is well under way. There will be no shortage of candidates if the President decides not to seek re-election. Of course, as Carlyle once said: "No man lives without jostling and being jostled; in all ways he has to elbow himself through the world, giving and receiving offense." If this be true, Arnold Bennett offered good advice: "Always behave as if nothing has happened, no matter what has happened."

Good Night and Good Luck.

Wednesday, Dec. 8, 1954

This is the news:

The United Nations Assembly today voted to start immediate debate on the eleven American airmen jailed as spies by the Chinese Communists. And Ambassador Lodge appealed to the Assembly to throw its moral force behind the demand for the immediate release of the men. He also called on the Communists to send home hundreds of other United Nations personnel who are still held in China. Lodge said the complete list totals 2,840 names. The Soviet Union, [redacted] Communist Poland and Czechoslvakia insisted in vain that the jailing of the Americans was a domestic Chinese issue..that the Chinese had never signed the Korean armistice agreement & therefore could not be violating it. Ambassador Lodge called this "a fradulent quibble." For Russia..Jacob Malik also charged that the United States had performed what he called "another dangerous act" by recently signing a treaty with the Chinese Nationalists.

And the Peiping Radio today quoted Premier Chou En Lai ... calling this treaty "a grave provocation against the People's Republic of China." Chou said unless we withdraw our forces from Formosa we must assume all the "grave" consequences. He said Formosa is Communist China's territory..and Chiang Kai Shek is the public enemy of the Chinese people.

In Washington today the President told reporters that the free world's fears of a global war are now at a lower level than at the time he went to Europe to head up the North Atlantic Treaty Organization four years ago. He said: [redacted] "Peace is a situation where a nation may have justificable confidence [redacted] can devote [redacted] its energies to the good of the people, not to protecting them or destroying others. That is the situation now." And Mr. Eisenhower said that in the past year there has been considerable accomplishment on his atoms-for-peace plan offered to the United Nations just a year ago. The President said Secretary of State Dulles would have more to say on this..and Mr. Dulles later issued a statement saying: our diplomatic prodding has produced "an apparent change" in the Soviet position on contributing nuclear materials to the proposed international atomic agency. He called the Eisenhower plan "the most hopeful development in this field since the inception of the atomic age.

At his news conference today, the President--as expected--was asked about Senator McCarthy's charge that Mr. Eisenhower has been weak towards Communism and has tolerated Chinese Communists who torture

American prisoners. The President said--firmly--he was not going to indulge in personal vituperation or quarrels of any kind. He said he would not get into a personal quarrel with anybody..on any subject he could think of. Reporters asked whether what they called "a split in the Republican party" would make the President more or less likely to run for re-election in 1956. He said he doesn't have the slightest idea. Then the President was asked for comment on a statement by Democratic National Chairman Butler who said Mr. Eisenhower lacks the capacity to govern or unite the people. The President said he had heard such things before. He added: "I think too often politicians look into a looking glass instead of THROUGH a window." And in answer to another question the President said he feels the great mass of people want what he called a "group of progressive moderates" handling their business. ~~He said that is exactly what's he is working for..progressive moderates.~~

In Kansas City today, Democratic Chairman Butler said McCarthy's attack on the President yesterday was part of what he called "the evidence of a lack of capacity to govern the people and control the party."

The government reported today that unemployment rose in November by 152-thousand.. a smaller-than-seasonal increase in a month when winter cuts outdoor activity. Labor Secretary Mitchell and Commrce Secretary Weeks call the November figures "a further improvement in the job situation."

In Rome, a doctor who is among the consultants on the illness of Pope Pius said today that the 78-year-old Pope "would have very little chance of surviving an operation." The doctor said this is because of the Pope's age and his weak condition. Today the Pope recorded a message that was broadcast to Roman Catholics everywhere..as he closed the Marian year with a blessing to the world from his sickroom.

A copyrighted article in the magazine Sports Illustrated says tonight that Jim Norris, the president of the International Boxing Club, has been accused of fixing two fights. Sports Illustrated says the charge is made by former Heavyweight Boxer Harry Thomas. Thomas says he threw his fight with Max Schmeling in 1937..and was knocked out by Tony Galento in 1938. Norris, when informed of the story, told reporters:"How silly can you get?" He announced he would file a libel suit against the magazine ..then withdrew the announcement and said he'd confer with his attorneys.

Edward R. Murrow: December 8, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

Ambassador Bohlen has gone back to Moscow today instructed to seek informal talks with Soviet officials. Premier Mendes France is sounding out the Kremlin about a Four Power Conference in the Spring. The West is exploring the nature and the scope of the co-existence the Communists are ~~offering.~~ talking about

That there have been some changes in Soviet policy is certain, and in some fields they are more than window-dressing. That was demonstrated in the offer of reconsiliation to Tito, and the release and rehabilitation of a few pro-Tito Communists in satellite countries. It is shown in the disbanding of mixed companies in these countries by which the ~~U.S.S.R.~~ Russians controlled their economies and sucked their wealth for its own benefit. Direct economic and political control seems to be on the way out.

This amounts to a reversal of Stalin's actions that have proved costly to Soviet interests. At the same time the New Look is being introduced in international dealings and for the same reason. When one realizes that Stalin's policies in Korea led to the gigantic re-armament programs of the West, and now to the re-armament of the German Republic, it is not hard to believe that Stalin's successors are trying to reverse some of his methods.

Co-existence, in Communist teaching, is a phase. It can be resorted to when time is needed. It can be departed from just as easily. The Communists may offer it sincerely, but they never offer it permanently. Naturally it is incumbent on Western statesmanship to find out what is being offered, for there might be advantages in it, even if only temporarily. But it is essential to understand just what co-existence means and doesn't mean to the Communists themselves.

On this, independent and reliable testimony is hard to come by. The visit of the British Labor Party delegation to the Soviet Union and Communist China has produced an instructive commentary on precisely this subject. Sam Watson, for fifteen years a member of the Party's Executive Committee, is a coal miner who went into the pits at 14 and put in 24 years at the coal face. He writes in the London Observer how he sat down with Stalin's successor as Secretary of the Communist Party. "Now look here, Comrade Kruschev" he said, "You are a miner and I am a miner, and miners can talk to one another bluntly and openly and with respect for one another's intelligence. Are you ever going to call off your propaganda war against Social Democratic Parties, Britain's included? In short, do you want co-existence in the field of commerce, and chloroform in the field of politics?" The answer he got was that there could be trade and increased diplomatic intercourse, but no political co-operation. "Co-existence" comments Mr. Watson, "seems to mean peace from a shooting war, but no change in ideology and therefore no respite from political warfare. When I was complaining to Mr. Kruschev of the Communists' intolerant insistence that only their political system can work, and that ours cannot succeed he said: 'In this field there can be no co-existence'".

In China Mr. Watson put the same questions, and was given the same kind of answers. Whatever co-existence means, it is not co-operation. Chinese leaders emphasized the need, desirability and opportunity for mutual trade and mutual security in the military and diplomatic sense, but again no compromise on ideology and propaganda.

The measure of co-existence in Chinese minds is to be found in the attitude toward Formosa. Mr. Watson reports that the Chinese said they wanted to get it back without war, but at the same time said they were going to get it back. And they did not like Clement Attlee's suggestion that for the time being Formosa be given some kind of neutral status.

They were so tough on Formosa, Mr. Watson writes, that he was mindful of two theories discussed in Britain about Chinese policy. One is that since such an issue of it has been made for four years the government cannot afford to wait much longer, since it would lose enormous prestige. The other theory is that China's rulers really don't want Formosa back for the present. They want to hold it up to the Chinese people as a supreme example of the aggressive and anti-Chinese machinations of the so-called American Imperialists, using this to spur the people to greater efforts in defense production and social reconstruction. Some who believe this, writes Mr. Watson, say the Chinese rulers know perfectly well that if they send an expeditionary force to Formosa it will be blasted out of the water. "But" he goes on, "they would willingly sacrifice a quarter of a million Chinese soldiers on the altar of Formosa for the propaganda value it would give the regime at home, and for the damage the planned catastrophe would do to America's relations with her Allies."

"I asked many questions" writes Mr. Watson, "the answers to which would have dispelled any suspicion that the Chinese would contemplate such a thing. I did not receive the answers, however. The kind of co-existence we are likely to achieve with the Chinese Communists is, if my experiences on this brief visit are any guide, a very limited one."

The problem of successful co-existence boils down basically to the problem of every-day ~~me~~ living. And as ~~[illegible]~~ Wilmont Lewis once remarked:"What mem need today in this time of trouble is not a way out so much as a way of high and manly living within." Booker T. Washington had another solution. He said:"We shall prosper as we learn to do the common things of life in an uncommon manner. Let down your ~~[illegible]~~ buckets where you are."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

Edward R. Murrow; December 8, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

Ambassador Bohlen has gone back to Moscow today instructed to seek informal talks with Soviet officials. Premier Mendes France is sounding out the Kremlin about a Four Power Conference in the Spring. The West is exploring the nature and the scope of the co-existence the Communists are offering.

That there have been some changes in Soviet policy is certain, and in some fields they are more than window-dressing. That was demonstrated in the offer of reconsiliation to Tito, and the release and rehabilitation of a few pro-Tito Communists in satellite countries. It is shown in the disbanding of mixed companies in these countries by which the U.S.S.R. controlled their economies and sucked their wealth for its own benefit. Direct economic and political control seems to be on the way out.

This amounts to a reversal of Stalin's actions that have proved costly to Soviet interests. At the same time the New Look is being introduced in international dealings and for the same reason. When one realizes that Stalin's policies in Korea led to the gigantic re-armament programs of the West, and now to the re-armament of the German Republic, it is not hard to believe that Stalin's successors are trying to reverse some of his methods.

Co-existence, in Communist teaching, is a phase. It can be resorted to when time is needed. It can be departed from just as easily. The Communists may offer it sincerely, but they never offer it permanently. Naturally it is incumbent on Western statesmanship to find out what is being offered, for there might be advantages in it, even if only temporarily. But it is essential to understand just what co-existence means and doesn't mean to the Communists themselves.

On this, independent and reliable testimony is hard to come by. The visit of the British Labor Party delegation to the Soviet Union and Communist China has produced an instructive commentary on precisely this subject. Sam Watson, for fifteen years a member of the Party's Executive Committee, is a coal miner who went into the pits at 14 and put in 24 years at the coal face. He writes in the London Observer how he sat down with Stalin's successor as Secretary of the Communist Party. "Now look here, Comrade Kruschev" he said, "You are a miner and I am a miner, and miners can talk to one another bluntly and openly and with respect for one another's intelligence. Are you ever going to call off your propaganda war against Social Democratic Parties, Britain's included? In short, do you want co-existence in the field of commerce, and chloroform in the field of politics?" The answer he got was that there could be trade and increased diplomatic intercourse, but no political co-operation. "Co-existence" comments Mr. Watson, "seems to mean peace from a shooting war, but no change in ideology and therefore no respite from political warfare. When I was complaining to Mr. Kruschev of the Communists' intolerant insistence that only their political system can work, and that ours cannot succeed he said: 'In this field there can be no co-existence'".

In China Mr. Watson put the same questions, and was given the same kind of answers. Whatever co-existence means, it is not co-operation. Chinese leaders emphasized the need, desirability and opportunity for mutual trade and mutual security in the military and diplomatic sense, but again no compromise on ideology and propaganda.

The measure of co-existence in Chinese minds is to be found in the attitude toward Formosa. Mr. Watson reports that the Chinese said they wanted to get it back without war, but at the same time said they were going to get it back. And they did not like Clement Attlee's suggestion that for the time being Formosa be given some kind of neutral status.

They were so tough on Formosa, Mr. Watson writes, that he was mindful of two theories discussed in Britain about Chinese policy. One is that since such an issue of it has been made for four years the government cannot afford to wait much longer, since it would lose enormous prestige. The other theory is that China's rulers really don't want Formosa back for the present. They want to hold it up to the Chinese people as a supreme example of the aggressive and anti-Chinese machinations of the so-called American Imperialists, using this to spur the people to greater efforts in defense production and social reconstruction. Some who believe this, writes Mr. Watson, say the Chinese rulers know perfectly well that if they send an expeditionary force to Formosa it will be blasted out of the water. "But" he goes on, "they would willingly sacrifice a quarter of a million Chinese soldiers on the altar of Formosa for the propaganda value it would give the regime at home, and for the damage the planned catastrophe would do to America's relations with her Allies."

"I asked many questions" writes Mr. Watson, "the answers to which would have dispelled any suspicion that the Chinese would contemplate such a thing. I did not receive the answers, however. The kind of co-existence we are likely to achieve with the Chinese Communists is, if my experiences on this brief visit are any guide, a very limited one."

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NET WORK

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 8, 1954
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

The United Nations Assembly today voted to start immediate debate on the eleven American airmen jailed as spies by the Chinese Communists. And Ambassador Lodge appealed to the Assembly to throw its moral force behind the demand for the immediate release of the men. He also called on the Communists to send home hundreds of other United Nations personnel who are still held in China. Lodge said the complete list totals 2,840 names. The Soviet Union, Communist Poland and Czechoslovakia insisted in vain that the jailing of the Americans was a domestic Chinese issue...that the Chinese had never signed the Korean armistice agreement and therefore could not be violating it. Ambassador Lodge called this "a fraudulent quibble." For Russia.. Jacob Malik also charged that the United States had performed what he called "another dangerous act" by recentl signing a treaty with the Chinese Nationalists.

And the Peiping Radio today qooted Premier Couu En Lai...calling this treaty " a grave provocation against the People's Republic of China." Chou said unless we withdrew our forces from Formosa we must assume all the "grave" consecuences. He said Formosa is Communist China's territory...and Chiang Kai Shek is the public enemy of the Chinese people.

In Washington today the President told reporters that the free world's fears of a global war are nowat a lower level that at the time he went to Europe to head up the North Atlantic Treaty Organization four years ago. He said: "Peace is a situation where a nation may have justificable confidence it can devote its energies to the good of the people, not to protecting them or destroying others. That is the situation now." And Mr. Eisenhower said that in the past year there has been considerable accomplishment on his atoms-for-peace plan offered to the United Nations just a year ago. The President said Secretary of State Dulles would have more to say on this.. and Mr. Dulles later issued a statement saying: our diplomatic prodding has produced "an apparent change" in the Soviet position on contributing nuclear materials ot the proposed international atomic agency. He called the Eisenhower plan "the most hopeful developement in this field since the inception of the atomic age.

At his news conference today, the President as expected was asked about Senator McCarthy's charge that Mr. Eisenhower has been weak towards Communism and has tolerated Chinese Communists who torture American prisoners The President said -- firmly -- he was not going to indulge in personal vituperation or quarrels of any kind. He said he would not get into a personal quarrel with anybody .. on any subject he could think of. Reporters asked whether what they called "a split in the Republican Party" would make the President more or less likely to run for re-election in 1956. He said he doesn't have the slightest idea. Then the President was asked for comment on a statement by Democratic National Chaimman Butler who said Mr. Eisenhower lacks the capacity to govern or unite the people. The President said he had heard such things before. He added: "I think too often politicians look into a looking glass instead of through a window. " And in answer to another question the President said he feels the great mass of people want what he called "a group of progressive moderates" handling their business.

In Kansas City today, Democratic Chairman Butler said McCarthy's attack on the President yesterday was part of what he called "the evidence of a lack of capacity to govern the people and control the party."

The government reported today that unemployment rose in November by 152-thousand...a smaller-than-seasonal increase in a month when winter cuts outdoor activity. Labor Secretary Mitchell and Commerce Secretary Weeks call the November figures "a further improvement in the job situation."

In Rome, a doctor who is among the consultants on the illness of Pope Pius said today that the 78-year-old Pope "would have very little chance of surviving an operation." The doctor said this is because of the Pope's age, and his weak condition. Today the Pope recorded a message that was broadcast to Roman Catholics everywhere...as he closed the Marian year with a blessing to the world from his sickroom.

A copyrighted article in the magazine Sports Illustrated says tonight that Jim Norris, the president of the International Boxing Club, has been accused of fixing two fights. Sports Illustrated says the charge is made by former Heavyweight Boxer Harry Thomas. Thomas says he threw his fight with Max Schmeling in 1937...and was knocked out by Tony Galento in 1938. Norris, when informed of the story, told reporters: "How silly can you get?" He announced he would file a bibel suit against the magazine ...then withdrew the announcement and said he's confer with his attorneys.

Ambassador Bohlen has gone back to Moscow today instructed to seek informal talks with Soviet officials. Premier Mendes France is sounding out the Kremlin about a Four Power conference in the Spring. The West is exploring the nature and the scope of the co-existence the Communists are talking about.

That there have been some changes in Soviet policy is certain, and in some fields they are more than window-dressing. That was demonstrated in the offer of reconsiliation to Tito, and the release and rehabilitation of a few pro-Tito Communists in satellite countries. It is shown in the disbanding of mixed companies in these countries by which the Russians controlled their economies and sucked their wealth for its own benefit. Direct economic and political control seems to be on the way out.

This amounts to a reversal of Stalin's actions that have proved costly to Soviet interests. At the same time the New Look is being introduced in international dealings and for the same reason. When one realizes that Stalin's policies in Korea led to the gigantic re-armament programs of the West, and now to the re-armament of the German Republic, it is not hard to believe that Stalin's successors are trying to reverse some of his methods.

Co-existence, in Communist teaching, is a phrase. It can be resorted to when time is needed. It can be departed from just as easily. The Communists may offer it sincerely, but they never offer if permanently. Naturally it is incombent on Western statesmanship to find out what is being offered, for there might be advantages in it, even if only temporarily. But it is essential to understand just what co-existence means and doesn't mean to the Communists themselves.

On this, independent and reliable testimony is hard to come by. The visit of the British Labor Party delegation to the Soviet Union and Communist China has produced an instructive commentary on precisely this subject. Sam Watson, for fifteen years a member of the Party's executive Committee, is a coal miner who went into the pits at 14 and put in 24 years at the coal face. He writes in the London Observer how he sat down with Stalin's successor as Secretary of the Communist Party. "Now look here, Comrade Kruschev" he said, "you are a miner and I am a miner, and miners can talk to one another bluntly and openly and with respect for one another's intelligence. Are you ever going to call off your progaganda war against Social Democratic Parties Britain's included? In short, do you want co-existence in the field of commerce, and chloroform in the field of politics?"

The answer he got was that there could be trade and increased diplomatic intercourse, but no political co-operation. "Co-existence" comments Mr. Watson "seems to mean peace from a shooting war, but no change in ideology and therefore no respite from political warfare. When I was complaining to Mr. Kruschef of the Communists intolerant insistence that only their political system can work, and that ours cannot succeed, he said: 'In this field there can be no co-existence' ".

In China Mr. Watson put the same questions, and was given the same kind of answers. Whatever co-existence means, it is not co-operation. Chinese leaders emphasized the need, desirability and opportunity for mutual trade and mutual security in the military and diplomatic sense, but again no compromise on ideology and propaganda.

The measure of co-existence in Chinese minds is to be found in the attitude toward Formosa. Mr. Watson reports that the Chinese said they wanted to get it back without war, but at the same time said they were going to get it back. And they did not like Clement Attlee's suggestion that for the time being Formosa be given some kind of neartral status.

They were so tough on Formosa, Mr. Watson writes, that he was mindful of two theories discussed in Britain about Chinese policy. One is that since such an issue of it has been made for four years the government cannot afford to wait much longer, since it would lose enormous prestige. The other theory is that China's rulers really don't want Formosa back for the present. They want to hold it up to the Chinese people as a supreme example of the aggressive and anti-Chinese machinations of the so-called American Imperialists, using this to spur the people to greater efforts in defense production and social reconsturction. Some who believe this, writes Mr. Watson, say the Chinese rulers know perfectly well that if they send an expeditionary force to Formosa it will be blasted out of the water. "But" he goes on, "they would willingly sacrifice a quarter of a million Chinese soldiers on the altar of Formosa for the propaganda value it would give the regime at home, and for the damage the planned catastrophe would do to America's relations with her Allies."

"I asked many questions" writes Mr. Watson, "the answers to which would have dispelled any suspicion that the Chinese would contemplate such a thing. I did not receive the answers, however. The kind of co-existence we are likely to achieve with the Chinese Communists is, if my experience on this brief visit are any guide, a very limited one."

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a moment with the Word for Today. But first, here's a word from Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: The problem of successful co-existence boild down basically to the problem of everyday living And as Wilmont Lewis once remarked:" "What men need today in this time of trouble is not a way out so much as a way of high and manly living within ." Booker T. Washington had another solution. He said : "We shall prosper as we learn to do the common things of life in an uncommon manner. Let down your buckets where you are."

Good Night and Good Luck.

Thursday, December 9, 1954

This is the news:

The Chinese Nationalists report that artillery duels between Nationalist and Communist guns in the Quemoy-Amoy area are again becoming serious. And at the United Nations, as a half dozen countries announced support of our efforts to free the eleven American airmen held in Red China, Jacob Malik of Russia made his big speech. Malik says the eleven men were not United Nations personnel but American agents..sent to establish bases in China for subversion and espionage. He called the allied complaint shameful and "jerry-built." He said the U.N. has no business interfering in a matter that concerns only Red China. But delegates from Greece, Belgium and New Zealand said that holding these men as prisoners on spy charges is a coldly calculated maunver..probably intended to incite the United States to belligerent action. And Ambassador Lodge said he wonders whether Malik's "reasoning facilities have been suspended."

In the U.N's political committee, the Russians charged that we are guilty of aggression against Red China and should be condemned. Arkady Sobolov--who spent four years here as an assistant secretary-general of the U.N.--said that the recent American-Chinese Nationalist agreement is evidence of our "aggressive plans." He accused us of taking over Formosa and using our 7th fleet to protect what he called "acts of piracy " against shipping in the China Sea. American Delegate C.D. Jackson called this absurd..and he accused the Russians of trying to create the illusion of American aggression.

There was aother warning from Moscow today on the situation in Europe. The Russians have sent Washington, London and Paris notes saying that if west Germany is re-armed Russia and her sattelites will increase their armed forces..."to counter-oppose"..as they put it.."the growing armed forces of aggressive states threatening the maintenance of peace."

In Vatican City, four doctors who are attending Pope Pius examined him for two hours and then made this report: The Pope has showed marked improvement since his near fatal collapse a week ago. But he is still so ill that the doctors have not been able to make vital tests to determine his precise ailment. At the moment they do not know what is causing his illness. In summary they said:"The health of the holy father has improved perceptibly and progressively in the last few days."

In West Germany, the Socialists have made an agreement with three-right wing parties in Bavaria to unite in a coalition government to rule for the next four years. This deprives Chancellor Adenauer of control of strongly Catholic Bavaria..and is almost certain to cause him to lose his tight grip on the Bonn parliament.

The Japanese Lower House today selected a new prime minister... Ichiro Hatoyama.. a pro-American conervative. I'd like to ~~look into~~ examine this development in a few minutes.

In Washington, Republican National Chairman Hall says that Senator McCarthy's break with the President will result in even greater support and unity for the President among Republicans in Congress for the next two years. Hall told reporters he has personally checked key party leaders throughout the country..and sampled Congressional sentiment. He says:"It is noteworthy that they almost unifomrly and unhesitatingly went to the support of the President, even though they took differing positions on the McCarthy issue in the recent Senate proceedings."

And Republican Senator Mundt, who voted against condemning McCarthy, said today that to tried to persuade McCarthy not to make his attack on the President. Mundt said McCarthy wanted Mundt to read the statement for him. Mundt refused AND told McCarthy: "Everybody knows Ike is not for the Communists." Mundt says McCarthy replied: "They're shooting at me down there (apparently a reference to the White House) and I've got to say something." Mundt said he argued with McCarthy that that attack on the President was "unfair..unrealistic..and can't do you any good or anyone else any good."

The Securities and Exchange Commission today granted attorneys who oppose the Dixon-Yates power contract the right to cross examine the power group's witnesses. The attorneys want to know about private conversations that led up to public negotiations of the Dixon-Yates contract with the Atomic Energy Commission.

In Pheonix City, Alabama, a grand jury today indicted a former chief deputy sheriff and a suspended circuit solicitor on charges of murdering A.L. Patterson, who had sworn to drive racketeers out of the town. The two men indicted..Arch Ferrell and Albert Fuller.... were among the first to investigate the Patterson killing.

Edward R. Murrow: December 9, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

The fall of Prime Minister Yoshida of Japan, and the election of Ichiro Hatoyama to succeed him is much more than a change in personalities. It is the end of the epoch that followed Japan's defeat, in which American occupation came to a close, and actual American control was transformed into something properly called predominant influence. Mr. Hatoyama is in for only a brief hour of power. One of the prices of his election was a pledge to the Socialists to dissolve the Diet and hold an election by March 10th. The election probably will strengthen the Socialists and weaken the Right Wing Parties.

The Socialists are certainly less pro-American than the Conservatives. The Right Wing Socialists look on America pretty much as does the Attlee wing of the British Labor Party, and the Left Wing as does the Bevan faction in England. But in Japan the Left Wing outnumbers the Right in the Diet, 71 to 61, and is expected to gain in the election. If present indications hold good, the three Parties - Yoshida's Liberals, Hatoyama's Democrats and the Socialists - will emerge fairly equal in strength, and that might condemn Japan to a future of instability and factionalism of the French pattern. If the two non-Socialist Parties could combine - which they might do in time - they could govern indefinitely, but today they are kept apart by the bitterest of personal animosities.

There is drama in Hatoyama's choice as Prime Minister. He is a frail man of 71, who has recovered from two paralytic strokes and could not long bear the strain of office. But the few weeks of power are due him. He is the founder of the Liberal Party, Yoshida Party. The name Liberal should not mislead anyone. It is a Conservative Party backed largely by big business. Hatoyama was the Party's first President, and would have become its first Prime Minister if he had not run afoul of a purge by the MacArthur regime. This was the result of an attack by Left Wing newsmen who publicized some of his World War II articles, which were patriotic. Actually during the war he retired to the country and took no part in public affairs, and the purge later was rescinded. But when he was purged he had to give up the presidency of the Party. He chose Yoshida to succeed him. Yoshida had not been a specially close colleague, but Hatoyama thought he was the man most likely to get along with the Americans. He made a bargain with Yoshida that if the Americans took him back into their good graces, Yoshida was to step down from the leadership of the Party. This was a verbal promise made in the presence of an eye-witness. But by the time Hatoyama was rehabilitated the eye-witness had died. Yoshida did not step down.

Hatoyama gathered a number of factions together and organized the Democratic Party, also a Conservative Party. He enlisted 120 members of the Diet; Yoshida held on to 185. But when Hatoyama struck his bargain with the Socialists, Yoshida's power was over.

The new Prime Minister believes in Japan's dependence on the United States, is somewhat more outspoken in favor of re-armament than Yoshida, and favors increased trade with Communist China. It is this item of trade with Peiping that will supply the color of the new era now opening. It will be an era in which relations with Communist China will play a mounting role in Japanese domestic affairs. Hatoyama is no pro-Communist, far from it. Neither are the business interests which back him. But the demand for increased trade is universal in Japan, and the Conservatives like everybody else want to increase it with Peiping. The trade isn't actually forbidden today, but it is frowned on by the Americans and amounted to little more than twenty million dollars last year. The Japanese want the list of forbidden strategic exports to be modified as it has been in Europe. The new Prime Minister is sure to press for this.

The future of Japan's trade will pretty well determine the ultimate political allegiance of Japan. Last year the trade deficit was one billion, one hundred and thirty-five million dollars, which was only partially offset by about three-quarters of a billion of American military expenditures. But this American spending is declining, and will decline further. Japanese trade is expanding, but if it doesn't grow more rapidly than at present, serious hardships are in store. And from these the Communists alone could benefit. If increased trade is not permitted with the China mainland it will have to be provided somewhere else. This bears on the issues of lowered tariffs in this country, and increased economic aid in Asia.

The immediate outlook is not ominous. The amount of trade Communist China is able to supply is limited by that country's internal needs, which will be compelling for some time to come. Even if the strategic list were to be pared down drastically, Japanese trade with Communist China would probably not exceed two hundred million dollars a year.

But while there is no need to consider Japan's allegiance to be in danger, the time of safety is running out. It will take at least as much wisdom and generosity to succeed with Japan in the new era as in the one now closed. And the need for economic and political education on these problems was never greater in both countries.

The extent to which we insist on maintaining and encouraging restrictive tariff regulations will have a direct ~~relationship~~ bearing on our ~~diplomacy~~ Relations with Japan. Back in 1929, I remember Will Rogers remarked ~~while he was in California~~: "The tariff is an instrument invented for the benefit of those who make against those who buy. As there is more buys than there is makes, it is a document of the minority - but what a minority."

Good Nite and Good Luck.

EDWARD. R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 9, 1954
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

The Chinese Nationalists report that artillery duels between nationalist and Communist guns in the Quemoy-Amoy area "are again becoming serious." And at the United Nations, as a half dozen countries announced support of our efforts to free the eleven American airmen held in Red China, Jacob Malik of Russia made his big speech. Malik says the eleven men were not United Nations personnel but American agents...sent to establish bases in China for subversion and espionage. He called the allied complaint shameful and "jerry-built" He said the U.N. has no business interfering in a matter that concerns only Red China. But delegates from Greece, Belgium and New Zeland said that holding these men as prisoners on spy charges is a coldly calculated maneuver ...probably intended to incite the United States to belligerant action. And Ambassador Lodge said he wonders whether Malik's "reasoning facilities have been suspended."

In the U.N.'s political committee, the Russians charged that we are guilty of aggression against Red China and should be condemmed. Arkady Sobolov --who spent four years here as an assistant secretary general of the U.N. --said that the recent American-Chinese Nationalist agreement is evidence of our "aggressive plans". He accused us of taking over Formosa and using our 7th fleet to protect what he called "acts of piracy" against shipping in the China Sea. American Delegate C.D. Jackson called this absurd...and he accused the Russians of trying to create the illusion of American aggression.

There was another warning from Moscow today on the situation in Europe. The Russians have sent Washington, London and Paris notes saying that if West Germany is re-armed Russia and her sattelites will increase their armed forces..."to counter-oppose"...as they put it..."the growing armed forces of aggressive states threatening the maintenance of peace."

In Vatican City, four doctors who are attending Pope Pius examined him for two hours and then made this report: The Pope has showed marked improvement since his near fatal collapse a week ago. But he is still so ill that the doctors have not been able to make vital tests to determine his precise ailment. At the moment they do not know what is causing his illness. In summary they said: "The health of the Holy Father has improved perceptibly and progressively in the last few days."

In West Germany, the Socialists have made an agreement with three-right wing parties in Bavaria to unite in a coalition government to rule for the next four years. This deprives Chancellor Adenauer of control of strongly Catholic Bavaria...and is almost certain to cause him to lose his tight grip on the Bonn Parliament.

The Japanese Lower House today selected a new prime minister...Ichiro Hatoyama...a pro-American concervative. I'd like to examine this developement in a few minutes.

In Washington, Republican National Chairman Hall says that Senator McCarthy's break with the President will result in even greater support and unity for the President among Republicans in Congress for the next two years. Hall told reporters he personally checked key party leaders throughout the country ...and sampled Congressional sentiment. He says: "It is noteworthy that they almost uniformly and unhesitatingly went to the support of the President, even though they took differing positions on the McCarthy issue in the recent Senate proceedings."

And Republican Senator Mundt, who voted against condemming McCarthy, said today that he tried to persuade McCarthy not to make his attack on the President. Mundt said McCarthy wanted Mundt to read the statement for him. Mundt refused and told McCarthy:"Everybody knows Ike is not for the Communists." Mundt says McCarthy replied: "They're shooting at me down there"(apparently a reference to the White House)And I've got to say something." Mundt said he urgued with McCarthy that the attack on the President was "unfair...unrealistic...and can't do you any good or anyone else any good."

The Securities and Exchange Commission today granted attorneys who oppose the Dixon-Yates power contract the right to cross examine the power group's witnesses. The attorneys want to know about private conversations that led up to public negotiations of the Dixon-Yates contract with the Atomic Energy Commission.

In Phoenix City, Alabama, a grand Jury today indicted a former chief deputy sheriff and a suspended circuit solicitor on charges of murdering A.L. Patterson, who had sworn to drive racketeers out of the town. The two men indicted...Arch Ferrell and Albert Fuller...were among the first to investigate the Patterson killing.

The fall of Prime Minister Yoshida of Japan, and the election of Ichero Hatoyama to succeed him is much more than a change in personalities. It is the end of the epoch that followed Japan's defeat, in which American occupation came to a close, and actual American control was transformed into something properly called predominate influence. Mr. Hatoyama is in, for only a brief hour of power. One of the prices ho his election was a pledge to the Socialists to dissolve the Diet and hold an election by March 10th. The election probably will strengthen the Socialists and weaken the Right Wing Parties.

The Socialists are certainly less pro-American than the Conservatives. The Right Wing Socialists look on American pretty much as does the Attlee wing of the British Labor Party, and the Left Wing as does the Bevan faction in England. But in Japan, the Left Wing outnumbers the Right in the Diet 71 to 61 and is expected to gain in the eclction. If present indications hold good, the three Parties - Yoshida's Liberals, Hatoyama's Democrats, and the Socialists - will emerge fairly equal in strength, and that might condemn Japan to a future of instability and factionalism of the French pattern. If the two non-Socialist Parties could combine - which they might do in time they could govern indefinitely, but today they are kept apart by the bitterest of personal animosities.

There is drama in Hatoyama's choice as Prime Minister. He is a frail man of 71, who has recovered from two paralytic strokes and could not long bear the strain of office. But the few weeks of power are due him. He is the founder of the Liberal Party, Yoshida Party. the name Liberal should not mislead anyone. It is a Conservative Party backed largely by big business. Hatoyama was the Party's first President, and would have become its Prime Minister if he had not run afoul of a purge by the MacArthur regime. This was the result of an attack by the Left Wing newsmen who publicized some of his World War II articles, where were patriotic. Actually during the war he retired to the country and took no part in public affairs, and the purge later was rescinded. But when he was purged he had to give up the presidency of the Party. He chose Yoshida to succeed him. Yoshida had not been a specially close colleague, but Hatoyama thought he was the man most likely to get along with the Americans. He made a b again with Yoshida that if the Americans took him back into their good graces, Yoshida was to step down from the leadership of the Party. This was a verbal promise made in the presence of an eye-witness. But by the time Hatoyama was rehabilitated the eye-witness had died. Yoshida did not step down. Hatoyama gathered a number of factions together and organized the Democratic Party, also a Conservative Party. He enlisted 120 members of the Diet; Yoshida held on to 185. But when Hatoyama struck his bargain with the Socialists, Yoshida's power was over.

The new Prime Minister believes in Japan's dependence on the United States, is somewhat more outspoken in favor of re-armament than Yoshida, and favors increased trade with Communist China. It is this item of trade with Pieping that will supply the color of the new era now opening. It will be an era in which relations with Communist China will play a mounting role in Japanese domestic affairs. Hatoyama is no pro-Communist, far from it. Neither are the business interests which back him. But the demand for increased trade is universal in Japan, and the Conservatives like everybody else want to increase it with Pieping. The trade isn't actually forbidden today, but it is frowned on by the Americans and amounted to little more than twenty million dollars last year. The Japanese want the list of for bidden strategic exports to be modified as it has been in Europe. The new Prime Minister is sure to press for this.

The future of Japan's trade will pretty well determine the ultimate political allegiance of Japan. Last year the trade deficit was one billion one hundred and thirty-five million dollars, which was only partially off-setby about three-quarters of a billion of American military expenditures. But this American spending is declining, and will decline further. Japanese trade is expanding, but if it doesn't grow more rapidly than at present, serious hardships are in store. And from these the Communists alone could benefit. If increased trade is not permitted with the China mainland it will have to be provided for somewhere else. This bears on the issues of lowered tariffs in this country, and increased economic aid in Asia.

The immediate outlook is not ominous. The amount of trade Communist China is able to supply is limited to that country's internal needs, which will be compelling for some time to come. Even if the stratigic list were pared town drastically, Japanese trade with Communist China would probably not exceed two hundred million dollars a year.

But while there is no need to consider Japan's allegiance to be in danger, the time of safety is running out. It will take at least as much wisdom and generosity to succeed with Japan in the new era as in the one now closed. And the need for economic and political education on these problems was never greater in both countries.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a minute with the Word for Today, but first a word from Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: The extent to which we insist on maintaining and encouraging restrictive tariff regulations will have a direct bearing on our relations with Japan. Back in 1929, I remember Will Rogers remarked "The tariff is an instrument invented for the benefit of those who make against those who buy. As there is more buys than there is makes, it is a document of the minority - but what a minority.

Good Night and Good Luck.

Friday, December 10, 1954

This is the news:

The United Nations today condemned Communist China for jailing eleven American flyers as spies. The General Assembly vote was 44 to 5..with six nations abstaining. The negative votes were cast by Russia and her sattelites. The countries that abstained were: India, Yemen, Burma, Indonesia, Yugoslavia and Afghanistan. The Assembly vote called on Secretary General Hammershuld to seek the release of the eleven Americans and report back to the U.N. by the end of this year. Hammershuld said: "I will do all in my power to serve the interests of the organization." He is also instructed to negotiate with the Chinese Communists for the release of "all other captured personnel of the United Nations Command" still detained by Red China.// The U.N's political committee today rejected...39 to 5.. a Soviet move to condemn the United States for supporting Nationalist China's raids on the China mainland. The Chinese Nationalists announced today that the Communists are building a big new air base on the southeast coast..22 miles west of the Nationalists' Tachen islands. The Nationalist Defense Ministry says the Red base could threaten both Formosa and the American forces on Okinawa.

In Tokyo, new Premier Hatoyama told reporters the best way to avoid a Third World War is to encourage trade with Communist nations.

~~He said the United States need have no anxiety over this attitude of his government.~~ And with his new foreign minister.. Mamoru Shigemitsu... who signed the Japanese surrender at the end of World War Two.. Hatoyama said:"Japan has no wish to side with the Communists and fight the free nations."

In Moscow today, Foreign Minister Molotov again warned the western nations not to create a West Germany army. At an unusual rally honoring the French-Soviet alliance, Molotov said: if the west re-arms western Germany the Soviets and their satellites will creat forces "no less strong." He said:"If need be the Soviet Union will demonstrate its might and the righteousness of our cause." Molotov went on to say: no force in the world is strong enough to stop the march of Communism... ratification of the Paris agreement would make aimless any negotiations on either the German or Austrian questions...And Molotov said ratification [redacted] will be regarded by Russia as a "military menace"...and "We have such power that no force could stop our progress."

In a few minutes I'd like to discuss the progress being made in western Europe on ratifying the Paris agreement.

Vatican sources reported today that Pope Pius sat up in an easy chair.. ate some broth and an egg..and then returned to bed. The Vatican secretary of state office says the Pope's improvement of yesterday was continued today.

In Stockholm, King Gustav Adolf prsented the 1954 Nobel prize awards. And American Ambassador John Moors Cabot read amessage from Ernest Hemingway, the Literature prize winner, who was unable to attend the ceremonies. Hemingway said: a good writer must lead a lonely life, and "face eternity or the lack of it, each day." He said: "For a true writer each book should be a beginning where he tries for something that is beyond attainment." [redacted]

In Washington today, Senator Millikan of Colorado--leader of the conference of all Republican Senators--told reporters that there is already an "irrestistable demand" among Republicans for the President to run again in 1956. Millikan discounted suggestions of a party split because of the attack Senator McCarthy made on the President.

But Paul M. Butler, the new Democratic national chairman, said again on a visit to Washington that the President "lacks the capacity" to unite the American people. He said he will not stop his criticism of the President just because of what he called "Republican howls of indignation." He pointed out that former Presidents Roosevelt and Truman were subjected to personal abuse and villification. And Butler said he will never villify the President as McCarthy did this week.

Republican Chairman Hall told reporters he doesn't think the American people will think much of Butler's "judgement in these attacks on the President."

In Los Angeles, the C.I.O. unanimously approved a resolution pledging support to its president, Walter Reuther, in his fight to win guaranteed annual wage agreements with the nation's biggest industries.

And here in New York, Dr. Jonas E. Salk, of Pittsburgh, reported new evidence that his polio vaccine can create powerful and long-lasting protection against polio. Dr. Salk hinted that the information being collected in polio work someday might lead the way to vaccines to give long-term protection against the common cold and influenza.

Edward R. Murrow: December 10, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

December is the month when France and West Germany are due to ratify the Paris treaties that bring the German Republic into the Western Defense system. It also is the month when Soviet maneuvers will reveal how far the Kremlin will go in resisting German re-armament. And it is the month when Premier Mendes-France conducts his parallel negotiations with the Kremlin over the German problem. All three developments now are showing on the screen, like separate actions ~~of~~ IN the greatest political battle Europeans have fought since the war. So far little has happened contrary to expectations, but this is bound to be a tense month.

In France, the Foreign Affairs Committee of the Assembly voted to recommend ratification of the Paris treaties by a majority of only one. In Bonn, the Upper House voted for ratification but declined to vote on the Saar Agreement. The Kremlin issued a forceful note to the three Western Powers, threatening to meet military increase with military increase, and saying that ratification would be the end of hopes of German re-unification and of disarmament. And in Moscow the press was openly hostile to the intervention of Mendes-France, who is urging the Soviet Government to sign the Austrian Treaty, and thus assure four-power talks in the Spring. The Soviet newspapers and the new Soviet Note accuse the French Premier of playing a trick, saying he is trying to assure his people at home that he wants an understanding with Moscow simply to induce them to ratify German re-armament. There had been some worry in Western capitals about Mendes-France doing anything single-handed in Moscow. His friends have denied there was anything to worry about. The Soviet denunciations seem to confirm this assurance.

Perhaps it is being taken too much for granted that the Paris treaties will win. The vote in the French Foreign Affairs Committee was sixteen to fifteen with eleven abstentions. And after it was registered, a Socialist who was for ratification tried to change his vote ~~to abstention~~. That would have meant a fifteen-to-fifteen tie. What the Committee does isn't binding on the Assembly, but it gives the flavor of Assembly opinion, even if it isn't an accurate measure of it. Mendes-France had the good fortune that a Gaullist, General Pierre Bilotte, introduced the resolution. He needs Gaullist help if he is going to keep his promise to get ratification. #

Five Gaullists abstained, along with six members of the popular Republican Party. The Socialists who voted for ratification warned that they are not committed to vote the same way in the Assembly, so the treaties are not yet in the bag.

The Soviet charge that Mendes-France is playing domestic politics with his parallel negotiations in Moscow is valid enough, for General De Gaulle himself continues to press openly for talks with the Kremlin before ratification. Mendes-France has to put up a show of trying to improve Soviet relations, if he is to muster a majority for the German treaties.

In Bonn, too, the chief objection to ratification is that talks with Moscow ought to come first. This is the contention of the Social Democrats, and most Germans want unification more than they do an alliance with the West. The Social Democrats are sure the Paris treaties close the door on unification for years to come. And this, of course, gives the Kremlin its best opening. It guarantees that there will be no unification if the treaties are approved. The Kremlin said this vigorously in the three identical Notes sent yesterday, which though addressed to the Powers were largely written for German consumption.

But from present indication this argument is not going to defeat ratification in Bonn. Chancellor Adenauer appears to have enough strength to get it through both Houses, unless the Saar Agreement should trip him up. He is in some danger from an obscure source in that he may fall short of a two-thirds majority in the Upper House. He needs the two-thirds to avoid challenge on the constitutionality of re-armament. He has that majority at present, but he is about to lose it because his opponents in Bavaria have formed a coalition that will control the five Bavarian votes in the Upper House.

It may be asked whether the Kremlin is happy that the Chinese Communists are being so provocative just at this time. In Moscow the new policy of collective leadership is to appear friendly. The Chinese Communists are being highly unfriendly. This however is not a contradiction in policies if one takes into account what the Kremlin is after in Europe. It isn't being friendly because it feels that way, or for the sake of friendliness. It is doing it to prevent German re-armament if humanly possible. One of the chief Soviet arguments is that re-arming Germany will lead ultimately to war. So it does not testify to Communist discord that there are war clouds in the sky. It is essential to the Kremlin that they should be on the Asiatic horizon, for war clouds over Europe would tighten nerves that are supposed to relax and so would stiffen resistance. But over Asia they are helpful. They add a shrill note to Soviet warnings.

Throughout much of this tired world, we are confronted with two problems of diplomacy: to combat communism and offer a better substitute...~~and at the same time not allow [illegible] to be in the [illegible] things we criticize.~~

Pascal once remarked:"Justice without power is inefficient; power without justice is tyranny. Justice and power must therefore be brought together so that whatever is just may be powerful and whatever is powerful may be just."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 10, 1954
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

The United Sations today condemned Communist China for jailing eleven American flyers as spies. The General Assembly vote was 44 to 5...with six nations abstaining. The negative votes were cast by Russia and her sattelites. The countries that abstained were: India, Yemen, Burma, Indonesia, Yugoslavia and Afganistan. The Assembly vote called on Secretary General Hammershuld to seek the release of the eleven Americans and report back to the U.N. by the end of this year. Hammershuld said: "I will do all in my power to serve the interests of the organization." He is also instructed to negotiate with the Chinese Communists for the release of "all other captured personnel of the United Nations Command" still detained by Red China.

The U.N.'s political committee today rejected 39 to 5 ...a Soviet move to condemn the United States for supporting Nationalist China's raids of the China mainland.

The Chinese Nationalists announced today that the Communists are building a big new air base on the south east coast...22 miles west of the Nationalists Tachen islands. The Nationalist Defense Ministry says the Bed base could threaten both Formosa and the American forces on Okinawa. I

In Tokyo, new Premier Hatoyama told reporters the best way to avoid a Third World War is to encourage trade with Communist nations. And with his new foreign minister...Mamoru Shigemitsu...who signed the Japanese surrender at the end of World War Two...Hatoyama said: "Japan has no wish to side with the Communists and fight the free nations."

In Moscow today, Foreign Minister Molotov again warned the western nations not to create a West German army. An an unusual rally honoring the French-Soviet alliance, Molotov said: if the west re-arms western Germany, the Soviets and their satellites will create forces "no less strong." He said: "If need be the Soviet Union will demonstrate its might and the righteousness of our cause." Molotov went on to say: no force in theworld is strong enough to stop the march of Communism ...ratification of the Paris agreement would make aimless any negotiations on either the German or Austrian questions...and Molotov said ratification will ge regarded by Russia as a "military menace" ..and "we have such power that nor force could stop our progress."

In a few minutes I'd like to discuss the progress being made in western Europe on ratifying the Paris agreement.

Vatican sources reported today that Pope Pius sat up in an easy chair ate some broth and an egg...and then returned to bed. The Vatican secretary of state office says the Pope's improvement of yesterday was continued today.

In Stockholm, King Gustav Adopf presented the 1954 Nobel prize awards. And American Ambassador John Moors Cabot read a message from Ernest Hemingway, the Literature prize winner, who was unable to attend the ceremonies. Hemingway said: a good writer must lead a lonely life, and "face eternity or the lack of it, each day." He sai : "For a true writer each book should be a beginning where he tries for something which is beyond attainment.

In Washington today, Senator Millikan of Colorado-leader of the conference of all Republican Senators--told reporters that there is already an "irresistable demand " among Republicans for the President to run again in 1956. Millikan discounted suggestions of a party split because of the attack Senator McCarthy made on the President.

But Paul M. Butler, the new Democratic national chairman, said again on a visit to Washington that the President "lacks the capacity" to unite the American people. He said he will not stop his criticism of the President just because of what he called "Republican howls of indignation." He pointed out that former President Roosevelt and Truman were subjected to personal abuse and villification. And Butler said he will never villify the President as McCarthy did this week.

Republican Chairman Hall told reporters he doesn't think the American people will think much of Butler's "judgement in these attacks on the President."

In Los Angeles, the C.I.O. unanimously approved a resolution pledging support to its president, Walter Reuther, in his fight to win guaranteed annanal wage agreements with the nation's biggest industries.

And here in New York, Dr. Jonas E. Salk, of Pittsburgh, reported new evidence that his polio vaccine can create powerful and long-lasting protection against polio. Dr. Salk hinted that the information being collected in polio work someday might lead the way to vaccines to give long-term protection against the common cold and influenza.

December is the month when France and West Germany are due to ratify the Paris treaties that bring the German Republic into the Western Defense system. It also is the month when Soviet maneuvers will reveal how far the Kremlin will go in resisting German reparmament. And it is the month when Premier Mendes-France conducts his parallel negotiations with the Kremlin over the German problem. All three developements now are showing on the screen, like separate actions in the greatest political battle Europeans have fought singe the war. So far little has happened contrary to expectations, but this is bound to be a tense month.

In France, the Foreign Affairs Committee of the Assembly voted to recommend ratification of the Paris treaties by a majority of only one. In Bonn, the Upper House voted for ratification but declined to vote on the Saar Air Agreement. The Kremlin issues a forceful note to the three Western Powers, threatening to meet military increase with military increase, and saying that ratification would be the end of the hopes of German re-unification and of disarmament. And in Moscow the press was openly hostile to the intervention of Mendes-France, who is urging the Soviet Government to sign the Austrian Treaty, and thus assure four-power talks in the Spring. The Soviet newspapers and the new Soviet Note accuse the French Premier of playing a trick, saying he is trying to assure his people at home that he wants an understanding with Moscow, simply to induce them to ratify the German re-armament. There had been some worry in Western capitals about Mendes-France doing anything single-handed in Moscow. His friends have denied there was anything to worry about. the Soviet Denunciations seem to confirm this assurance.

Perhaps it is being taken too much for granted that the Paris Treaties will win. The vote in the French Foreign Affairs Committee was sixteen to fifteen with eleven abstentions. And after it was registered, a Socialist who was for ratification tried to change his vote. That would have meant a fifteen-to-fifteen tie. What the Committee does isn't binding on the Assembly, but it gives the flavor of Assembly opinion, even if it wsn't an accurate measure of it. Mendes-France had the good fortune that a Gaullist, General Pierre Bilotte, introduced the resolution. He needs Gaullist help if he is going to keep his promise to get ratification.

Five Gaullists abstained, along with six members of the popular Republican Party. The Socialists who voted for ratification warned that they are not committed to vote the same way in the Assembly, so the treaties are not yet in the bag.

The Soviet charge that Mendes-France is playing domestic politics with his parallel negotiations in Moscow is valid enough, for General De Gaulle himself continues to press openly for talks with the Kremlin before ratification. Mendes-France has put up a show of trying to improve Soviet relations if he is to muster a majority for the German treaties.

In Bonn, too, the chief objection to ratification is, that talks with Moscow ought to come first. This is the contention of the Social Democrats, (and most Germans want unification more than they do an alliance with the West). The Social Democrats are sure the Paris treaties close the door on unification for years to come. And this, of course, gives the Kremlin its best opening. It guarantees that there will be no unification if the treaties are approved. The Kremlin said this vigorously in the three identical Notes sent yesterday, which though addressed to the Powers were largely written for German consumption.

But from present indication this argument is not going to defeat ratification in Bonn. Chancellor Adenauer appears to have enough strength to get it through both Houses, unless the Saar Agreement should trip him up. He is in some danger from an obscure source in that he may fall short of a two-thirds majority in the Upper House. He needs the two-thirds to avoid challenge on the constitutionality of re-armament. He has that majority at present, but he is about to lose it because his opponents in Bavaria have formed a coalition that will control the five Bavarian votes in the Upper House.

It may be asked whether the Kremlin is happy that the Chinese Communists are being so provacative just at this time. In Moscow the new policy of collective leadership is to appear friendly. The Chinese Communists are being highly unfriendly. This however is not a contradiction in policies if one takes into account what the Kremlin is after in Europe. It isn't being freindly because it feels that way, or for the sake of friendliness. It is doing it to prevent German re-armament if humanly possible. One of the chief Societ arguments is that re-arming Germany will lead umtimately to war. So it does not testify to Communist discord that there are war clouds in the sky. It is essential to the Kremlin that they should be on the Asiatic horizon, for war clouds over Europe would tighten nerves that are supposed to relax and so would stiffen resistence. But over Asia they are helpful. They add a shrill note to Soviet warnings.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a moment with the Word for today. But first here is Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: Throughout much of this tired world, we are confronted with two problems of diplomacy: to combat Communism and offer a better substitute... Pascal once remarked: "Justice without power is indfficient; power without justice is tyranny. Justice and power must therefore be brought together to that whatever is just may be powerful, and whatever is powe ful may be just.

Good Night and Good Luck.

Mon - Dec 13, '54

This is the news:

The Administration plans to ask Congress to cancel corporation and sales tax cuts, that would deprive the government of roughly three billion dollars. This was revealed, after a White House meeting at which the President reviewed his legislative program, with Republican leaders of Congress. Tomorrow the President will meet with both Democrats and Republicans, to discuss foreign policy. At today's harmonious meeting, the President's advisors followed-up last week's statement by Treasury Secretary Humphrey, that the budget could not be balanced next year. The current plan is to cancel corporation and sales tax reductions that were to go into effect on April 1. Unless congress agrees to extend these taxes, the corporation tax rate will go down from 52 to 47 per cent.. and sales taxes will come off such items as gasoline, cigarettes, whiskey, beer and automobiles.

Henry G. Riter, the third, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, says "businessmen everywhere were counting on the reduced corporate taxes." He added: "It is a sore disappointment, to hear that the Administration will oppose this needed tax reduction."

Another step in the direction of cutting the government's deficit is expected to come about through a reduction of armed forces manpower. High placed sources in Washington would not deny a report that 100-thousand men may be ELIMINATED from the services..with a savings of a half billion dollars. And we're told that an effort will be made to speed up the "New MILITARY Look" that was scheduled for 1957...to cover all the manpower reduction in the next fiscal year. And there is a further report, relayed by CBS News in Washington, that another division will be withdrawn from Korea..late next year.

At the United Nations today, Secretary-General Hammershuld is reported "UNDISMAYED" by attacks by the Chinese Communists, on the U.N's demand for the release of eleven Americans held as spies. Radio Peiping says this is illegal interference AND unjust. But there was no outright rejection of Mr. Hammershuld's request for a meeting with Prime Minister Chou en Lai to discuss the prisoner question. I should like to discuss this problem in a few minutes.

Representative Richards, South Carolina Democrat, TODAY returned to Washington from a five-week tour of the Far East. He told reporters: Viet Nam is lost unless the French get out 100 per cent..politically, economically and militarily..and so far they haven't consented to get out." Richards, who is slated to head the House Foreign Affairs Committee, wants American officers to take-over the job of building an anti-Communist army. And he says he opposes any big economic grants for Asia.

In Washington, counsel for Owen Lattimore said today that the perjury indictment against the Far Eastern expert is an attack upon freedom of speech. They want the indictment thrown out. But United States Attorney Rover says this is "poppycock"... AND ADDS: [redacted] freedom of speech has "been the subject of more wishful thinking, more propaganda than any [redacted] other issue in the Lattimore case.

The Corning Glass Works today announced the resignation of Dr. Edward U. Condon, former chief of the U.S. Bureau of Standards. In October the Navy suspended Condon's security clearance. The company says Condon [redacted] does not want to make another effort, at this time, to get clearance. [redacted] And Condon has issued a statement saying he doesn't think "there is any possibility of securing a fair and independent judgment" in a reconsideration of his case.

In Galveston, Texas, today, sheriiff's deputies walked into a hospital and placed Alabama's attorney general Silas Garrett the third under technical arrest. He's been named a fugitive on a first degree murder indictment in Phenox City, Alabama. Garrett, and two others, are accused of killing Albert L. Patterson, a few days after Patterson was nominated to succeed Garrett as Alabama's attorney general. Garrett had no comment when the papers were served on him. He has been under treatment for a mental and physicial condition.

Former President Truman said in Philadelphia today that our foreign policy under the Eisenhower Administration "is just what I set up." Mr. Truman says in some ways the program is NOT working quite as well because "we've lost a lot of friends with fool statements by people in high places."

In Vatican City, an official statement describes "a slight improvement" in the condition of Pope Pius. But an authoritative source says the Pope was somewhat weaker today and had difficulty eating.

Edward R. Murrow: December 13, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

The rejection of United Nations intervention in the case of the imprisoned American airmen by Communist China is not official or final.. It is confined to the Government newspaper and radio in Peiping. Some time may elapse before Dag Hammarskjold's request for a conference will be answered, but the drastic language of the Peiping editorial is regarded as laying down the Communist line.

The Chinese response was not unexpected. The vote in the U.N. put the Communist Government in the stocks for all the world to see. To release the prisoners forthwith would be a confession of wrong-doing. It would hurt the government at home and abroad. Peiping could have taken satisfaction in that the request of the U.N. Secretary General could be presented to the Chinese people as a first step in de facto recognition. But this was not the course chosen.

The handling of the problem of illegally held Western prisoners behind the Iron Curtain presents some of the same difficulties that arise in domestic cases where a person is held for ransom. It is an offense to moral standards to negotiate with kidnapers and pay ransom. But not to do so may be to abandon the prisoner to a dire fate. In the case of the imprisoned airmen, the State Department is taking the line that there can be no bargaining for their release. Nearly the whole free world is on record that their detention is a violation of the Korean truce terms. The refusal to bargain certainly is understandable and is justified by the facts. But it may not get the men released.

One result of the U.N. vote has been to give the United States a substantial victory. The feeling of sympathy for this country has mounted, and sympathy for Communist China has sharply fallen. No doubt about it, the wind has been taken out of the campaign to get the Communist regime accepted in the United Nations as the Government of China. But that won't help get the men freed, and the pronouncement against bargaining perhaps could be taken too literally.

When prisoners are released from Iron Curtain prisons, often more has to be offered than the opportunity to be virtuous. That was not true in the Oatis case, where this country was in a position to hurt Czechoslovakia by shutting off all export trade and most import trade with the United States, and to forbid American travel to that country. In the Vogler case lighter sanctions were applied to Hungary. That country's consulates in New York and Cleveland were closed, and American travel was prohibited.

But Hungary got more for releasing Vogler than the lifting of these measures. It won the right to take Hungarian property out of the American zone in Germany, which General Clay had suspended as a reprisal for Czech illegalities.

The most flagrant instance of demanding ranson was when Hungary insisted on being paid $120,000 for the release of four American airmen who came down in that country in November 1951. The money was grimly paid over to get the men out. And thereafter the New York and Cleveland consulates were ~~XXXXXX~~ again closed.

The United States is in no position to apply such sanctions to Communist China. Our trade with that country already is forbidden, so is American travel. Our Allies still do substantial trade in non-strategic goods with the Communists, and no doubt it would hurt the Chinese if this were suspended. But our Allies could not suspend it without price to their own economies. And before reaching that point they are sure to seek an understanding in other ways.

The United States already has had fruitful negotiations with the Chinese Communists at Geneva for the release of Americans detained in their country. Fifteen Americans, including three children, have been allowed to leave the country, and two of them were freed from prison to come. ~~It~~

It may be correct to say there was no actual bargaining in these cases. American officials involved prefer to say that the improved atmosphere after the Geneva Conference led the United States to modify the status of some Chinese students who were here on student visas. Some of them were permitted to leave for any country they chose, which means they were allowed to go to Communist China.

At the time Chiang-Kai-Shek left the Chinese mainland, between 4,500 and 5,000 Chinese students and teachers were in this country on student visas. The Government decided that they could remain here after the visas expired, and a huge majority of them said they wanted to stay. At the time of the Geneva Conference, 124 said they still wanted to leave. At Geneva the government announced it was reviewing these cases. After the review 65 remained who wanted to go. Twenty-seven were given the right to leave. Thirty-five are still refused exit permits for security reasons. The Chinese at first insisted on all forty-five hundred students being rounded up and forcibly repatriated, but that was not pressed.

The students remaining here, also a relatively small sum of impounded Chinese assets, could become considerations in reaching an understanding with Peiping. But a lot of water will flow under the bridge before that becomes possible, if it ever does.

The Communist pattern for international diplomacy, consists of many parts. And often it requires considerable time before the pieces begin to fit together. This takes much patience. For, as Dale Carnegie once remarked:"When dealing with people, let us remember we are not dealing with creatures of logic. We are dealing with creatures of emotion, creatures bustling with prejudices, and motivated by pride and vanity."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

MONDAY, DECEMBER 13, 1954
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

The Administration plans to ask Congress to cancel corporation and sales tax cuts that would deprive the government of roughly three billion dollars. This was revealed after a White House meeting at which the President reviewed his legislative program with Republican leaders of Congress. Tomorrow the President will meet with both Democrats and Republicans to discuss foreign policy. At today's harmonious meeting the President's advisors followed-up last week's statement by Treasury Secretary Humphrey that the budget could not be balanced next year. The current plan is to cancel corporation and sales tax reductions that were to go into effect on April 1. Unless congress agrees to extend these taxes, the corporation tax rate will go down from 52 to 47 per cent...and sales taxes will come off such things asgasoline, cigarettes, whiskey, beer and automobiles.

Henry G. Riter, the third, president of the National Association of manufacturers, says "businessmen everywhere were counting on the reduced corporate taxes." He added: "It is a sore disappointment to hear that the Administration will oppose this needed tax reduction."

Another step in the direction of cutting the government's deficit is expected to come about through a reduction of armed forces manpower. High sources in Washington would not deny a report that 100-thousand men may be eliminated from the services...with a savings of half billion dollars. And we're told that an effort will be made to speed up the military "New Look" that was scheduled for 1957...to cover all the manpower reduction in the next fiscal year. And there is a further report, relayed by CBS News in Washington, that another division will be withdrawn from Korea late next year.

At the United Nations today, Secretary-General Hammershuld is reported "undismayed" by attacks by the Chinese Communists on the U.N.'s demand for the release of the eleven Americans held as spies. Radio Peiping says this is illegal interference and...unjust. But there was no outright rejection of Mr. Hammershuld's request for a meeting with Prime Minister Chou en Lai to discuss the prisoner question. I should like to discuss this problem in a few minutes.

Representative Richards, South Carolina Democrat, today returned to Washington from a five-week tour of the Far East. He told reporters:"Viet Nam is lost unless the French get out 100 per cent....politically, economically and militarily...and so far they haven't consented to get out" Richards, who is slated to head the House Foreign Affairs Committee, wants American Officers to take-over the job of building an anti-Communist army. And he says he opposes any big economic grants for Asia.

In Washington, councel for Owen Lattimore said today that the perjury indictment against the Far Eastern expert is an attack upon freedom of speech. They want the indictment thrown out. But United States Attorney Rover says this is "poppycock"...and adds: freedom of speech has "been the subject of more wishful thinking, more propaganda than any other issue in the Lattimore case.

The Corning Glass Works today announced the resignation of Dr. Edward U. Condon, former chief of the U.S. Bureau of Standards. In October the Navy suspended Condon's security clearance. The company says Condon does not want to make another effort, at this time. to get clearance. And Condon has issued a statement saying he doesn't think "there is any possibility of securing a fair independent judgement." in a reconsideration of his case.

In Galveston, Texas, Today, sheriff's deputies walked into a hospital and placed Alabama's attorney general Silas Garrett the third under technical arrest. He's been named a fugitive on a first degree murder indictment in Phoenix City, Alabama. Garrett, and two others, are accused of killing Albert L. Patterson, a few days after Patterson was nominated to succeed Garrett, as Alabama's attorney general. Garrett had no comment when the papers were served on him. He has been under treatment for a mental and physical condition. Former President Truman said in Philadelphia today that our foreign policy under the Eisenhower Administration "is just what I set up." Mr. Truman says in some ways the program is not working quite as well because "we've lost a lot of friends with the fool statements by people in high places."

In Vatican City, an official statement describes "a slight improvement " in the condition of Pope Pius. But an authoritative source says the Pope was somewhat weaker today had had difficulty eating.

The rejection of United Nations intervention in the case of the imprisoned American airmen by Communist China is not official or final...It is confined to the Government newspaper and radio in Peiping. Some time may elapse before Dag Hammarscjold's request for a conference will be answered, but the drastic language of the Peiping editorial is regarded as laying down the Communist line. The Chinese response was not unexpected. The vote in the U.N. put the Communist Government in the stocks for all the world to see. To release the prisoners forthwith would be a confession of wrong-doing. It sould hurt the government at home and abroad. Peiping could have taken satisfaction in that the request of the U.N. Secretary General could be presented to the Chinese people as a first step in te facto recognition. But this was not the course chosen.

The handling of the problem of the illegally held Western prisoners behind the Iron Curtain presents some of the same difficulties that arise in domestic cases where a person is held for ransom. It is an offense to moral standards to negotiate with kidnapers and pay ransom. But not to do somay be to abandon the prisoner to a dire fate. In the case of the imprisoned airmen, the State Department is taking the line that there can be no bargaining for their release. Nearly the whole free world is on record that their detention is a violation of the Korean truce terms. The refusal to bargain certainly is understandable and is justified by the facts. But it may not get the men released.

One result of the U.N. note has been to give the United States a substantial victory. The feeling of sympathy for this country has mounted, and sympathy for Communist China has sharply fallen. No doubt about it, the wind has been taken out of the campaign to get the Communist regime accepted in the United Nations as the Government of China. But that won't help get the men freed, and the pronouncement against bargaining perhaps could be taken too literally.

When prisoners are released from Iron Curtain prisons, often more has to be offered than the opportunity bo be virtuous. Thas was not true in the Oatis case, where this country was in a position to hurt Czechoslovakia by shutting off all export trade and most import trade with the United States, and to forbid American travel to that country. In the Bolger case lighter sanctions were applied to Hungary. That country's consulates in New York and Cleveland were closed, and American travel was prohibited. But Hungary got more for releasing Vogler than the lifting of these measures. It won the right to take Hungarian property out of the American zone in Germany, which General Clay has suspended as a reprisal for Czech illegalities.

The most flagrant instance of demanding ransome was when Hungary insisted on being paid $120,000 for the release of four American airmen who came down in that country in November 1951. The money was grimly paid over to get the men out. And thereafter the New York and Cleveland consulates were again closed.

The United States is in no position to apply such sanctions to Communist China. Our trade with that country already is forbidden, so is American travel. Our Allies still do substantial trade in non-strategic goods with the Communists, and no doubt it would hurt the Chinese if this were suspended But our Allies could not suspend it without price to their own economies. And before readhing that point they are sure to seek an understanding in other ways.

The United States already has had fruitful negotiations with the Chinese communists at Geneva for the release of Americans detained in their country. Fifteen Americans, including three children, have been allowed to leave the country, and two of them were freed from prison to come.

It may be correct to say there was no actual bargaining in these cases. American officials involved prefer to say that the improved atsosphere after the Geneva Conference led the United States to modify the status of some Chinese students who were here on student visas. Some of them were permitted to leave for any country they chose, which means they were allowed to go to Communist China.

At the time Chiang-Kai-Shek left the Chinese mainland, between 4,5000 and 5,000 Chinese students and teachers were in this country on student visas. The Government decided that they could remain here after the visas expired, and a huge majority of them said they wanted to stay. At the time of the Geneva Conference, 124 said they still wanted to leave. At Geneva the Government announced it was reviewing these cases. After the review 65 remained who wanted to go. Twenty-seven were given the right to leave. Thirty-five werestill refused exit permits for security reasons. Then Chinese at first insisted on all forty-five hundred students being rounded up and forcibly repatriated, but that was not pressed.

The students remaining here, also a relatively small sum of impounded Chinese assets, could become considerations in reaching an understanding with Peiping. But a lot of water will flow under the bridge before that becomes possible, if it ever does.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a minute with the Word for Today. But first, here is Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: The Communist pattern for international diplomacy consists of many parts. And often it requires considerable time before the peices begin to fit together. This takes much patience. For, as Dale Carnegie once remarked: "When dealing with people, let us remember we are not dealing with creatures of logic. We are dealing with creatures of emotion, creatures bustling with prejudices and motivated by pride and vanity."

Good Night and Good Luck.

Tuesday, December 14, 1954

This is the news:

The State Department says we will make no "deals" to get the release of the eleven American airmen being held as spies by the Chinese Communists. The Chinese radio had hinted that it might want to trade the 11 Americans for 35 Chinese students who have been refused exit permits by the United States. These students..all experts in electronics, chemistry and physics...were in this country at the time the Chinese Communists entered the Korean war. We will not trade them for the 11 Americans. And the State department says we will make no deal on some 130-million dollars in Chinese assets frozen in this country after the Communists entered the Korean war.

General Mark Clark said today that when he commanded the allied forces in Korea he knew the Chinese Reds were holding at least 944 Americans as hostages. But the Defense department says it has no such information. The department says it lists only 24 Americans as still missing and possibly imprisoned by the Chinese. The others are declared dead. Although a spokesman says there is a "very faint possibility" that some of the 900 odd men are alive.

The Chinese NATIONALISTS today attacked the proposed visit to Peiping by Dag Hammershuld, the secretary-general of the United Nations. The Chinese Daily news says this damages the prestige of the U.N. and "elevates the international position" of Red China.

And the British government today qualified a statement made last Sunday by Anthony Nutting, chief delegate to the U.N. and minister of state. Nutting said that Britain would become involved if the Communists attacked Formosa. His foreign office indicates Nutting over-stepped the limits of British policy.

The President met today with both Republican and Democratic leaders of Congress. They discussed national defense...mutual security problems and foreign affairs..including the imprisoned Americans in Red China. The President made it known that he intends to Consult step by step with leaders of both parties. Senate Democratic Leader Johnson said he suggested that these men be consulted regularly in the drafting of any program of economic aid to Asia which the Administration may develop. Johnson says the President approved. And Johnson also told reporters the Presidents plans are constructive "but may require some "IMPROVEMENT" when the Democrats take control of congress next month.

Representative Rayburn, who will be speaker of the House in the new congress, told reporters "It was a good meeting"..(and with a smile) "no blood was spilled."

Before this White House meeting, Democratic Senator Russell of Georgia, said he will oppose any administration program of dollar economic aid for Asia or "anywhere else." But Russell says he will support some substantial increases in the technical assistance program.

Senator Olin D. Jonston, South Carolina Democrat, said today that the Administration is guilty of "willful neglect of farmers. He said the economy of the South will fall unless something is done to aid cotton growers .

The Atomic Energy Commission has commissioned the American Locomotive Company to build for the army a "package nuclear power plant". THIS mobile atomic furnace should be capable of producing enough electricity for a city of 2-thousand persons..and must be transportable by air. Two million dollars has been awarded for the experimental plant.

F.B.I. Chief J. Edgar Hoover said today the FBI would "never engage in any activitiy which might stifle academic freedom." Hoover told Bob Lawrence, editor of the University of New Mexico paper, that the FB.I. has no interest in college debates. He denied a report that the F.B.I. wanted the names of students who debated on whether or not we should extend diplomatic recognition to Red China.

Arthur Garfield Hays died today..at 73. He was one of the world's foremost fighters for civil rights. As general counsel of the American Civil Liberties Union he once wrote:"We of the Union have always fought for the right of a man to be out of step with society."

Here in New York today, Governor-elect Harriman announced that he will appoint Tammany Leader Carmine de Sapio as secretary of state in his new administration.

And a Kings County grand jury has found two teen-agers..Jack Koslow and Melvin Mittman..guilty of first degree murder for torturing AND DROWNING a factory worker. The jury recommended that both boys serve the rest of their lives in prison..otherwise, death in the electric chair would have been mandatory.

In Vatican City a team of doctors examined Pope Pius and reported his condition is weaker..and his recovery has halted.

And the Vatican city newspaper Osseravtore Romana says the United States [redacted] anti-Soviet policy has been weakened greatly by the failure to teach religion in American public schools. The paper ~~did~~ pointed out that there is complete religious freedom in this country, and persecution of any religious sect is unthinkable to the American mind.

Edward R. Murrow: December 14, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

The North Atlantic Council meeting which opens in Paris this week will find itself between the horns of one of the great dilemmas of the atomic age. This is how to use atomic weapons in time to defeat aggression and yet maintain effective civilian control over them. In atomic warfare immediacy may be decisive. The side that can hit first and penetrate the defenses of the opponent can seriously impair the ability of the defender to strike back.

The NATO Council probably will not come to grips with this problem. Certainly the report of its military committee will not recommend that the generals be allowed to decide when to use atomic weapons. But the report will call for planning their use, and this planning means something substantial now that Congress has authorized the United States to give information to its Allies about them.

NATO also will make its annual review of plans for new forces, in which it will set the firm levels for 1955 and the provisional levels for 1956, and put down the goals for 1957. If the tactical use of strategic weapons is to be developed, ground forces perhaps need not be much greater than those in sight, the German divisions included. Planning how to use tactical nuclear weapons is not the same as deciding to use them, but if ground forces are to be kept at about the present level because of nuclear weapons, that would appear to be a decision to use them. Denmark is reported to be preparing to oppose anything that is the same as an automatic decision to use nuclear weapons.

Field Marshall Montgomery has aroused apprehension by saying categorically the new weapons will be used if war comes in Europe. One of the proposals the NATO Council may have to consider now or later is whether atomic weapons should be held back till the other side uses them first.

On paper, NATO is an alliance of fourteen sovereign states all of whom can prevent action in concert by a veto. That is, Iceland, with a population smaller than the city of Flint, Michigan, theoretically can veto NATO's use of atomic weapons. The United States and Britain, with a long tradition of civilian control over the military are bound to side with anyone insisting on civilian control over NATO's military actions. But both countries will press for the study of tactical nuclear weapons. They are quite right in saying that all armies under political control have to plan for situations about which political decisions have not been made. But that is not an automatic decision to use the weapons. It only means that if a political green light is given, the NATO forces will know what to do with their tactical nuclear power.

But the dilemma of civilian control in NATO is not so hard to solve as it looks. The small states actually don't have the power to prevent the using of atomic weapons if a defensive war breaks out in Europe. All they can prevent is their use by NATO as such. They cannot prevent their use by the United States and Britain, who alone have atomic weapons. Under Article Five of the NATO treaty, each nation in the alliance, when an attack on another member has taken place, is to assist with such action as it deems necessary. That is, the members can choose whether and how to intervene as individual states. Thus if there is an aggression against a NATO state, the United States is free to unleash all its strategic forces against the aggressor. Indeed, European security rests on the presumption that the United States will do this, quite as much as it does on NATO's own power. So not even in theory can NATO members keep a European war from being fought with atomic weapons.

But it should be borne in mind that the American use of strategic power in war also is not automatic. President Eisenhower, in his pronouncement on taking a Chinese blockade to Congress as an act of war, implicitly bound himself to take any step of war to Congress before ordering it. In the atomic age, where the ability to strike first may be of immeasurable advantage, any delay required by constitutional procedures in this country can give a military expert gray hairs. So the dilemma of civilian control really is more America's than NATO's. It is not a dilemma that is paralyzing in every contingency. We are not at all helpless to deal with a sneak attack. It remains a basic principle that a commander is justified in taking any steps necessary to secure the safety of his troops. And the Commander-in-Chief can take all steps necessary to the national defense in an emergency. But in other respects the dilemma created by the requirement of political control remains. The Paris meeting of NATO probably will not even try to cope with this problem. But if it does, it seems a safe forecast that it will not be able to solve it.

Winston Churchill, on more than one occasion, has stressed the close connection between atomic weapons and control of the skies. Those attending the NATO meetings, ~~couldn't help be greater~~ must be in agreement ~~than~~ with these words Sir Winston spoke in 1949:"For good or ill, he said, air mastery is today the supreme expression of military power. And fleets and armies, however necessary and important, must accept subordinate rank. This is a memorable milestone in the march of man."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

TUESDAY, DECEMBER 14, 1954
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

The State Department says we will make no "deals" to get the release of the eleven American airmen being held as spies by the Chinese Communists. The Chinese radio had hinted that it might want to trade the 11 Americans for 35 Chinese students who have been refused exit permits by the United States. These students...all experts in electronics, chimistry, and physics...were in this country at the time the Chinese Communists entered the Korean war. We will not trade them for the 11 Americans. And the State Department says we will make no deal on some 130-million dollars in Chinese assets frozen in this country after the Communists entered the Korean war.

General Mark Clark said today that when he commanded the allied forces in Korea, he knew the Chinese Reds were holding at least 944 Americans as hostages. But the Defense Department says it has no such information. The department says it lists only 24 Americans as still missing and possibly imprisoned by the Chinese. The others are declared dead. Although a spokesman says there is a "very faint possibility" that some of the 900 odd men are alive.

The Chinese Nationalists today attacked the proposed visit to Peiping by Dag Hammershuld, the secretary-general of the United Nations. The Chinese Daily News says this damages the prestige of the U.N. and "elevates the international position" of Red China.

And the British government today qualified a statement made last Sunday by Anthony Nutting, chief delegate to the U N. and minister of state. Nutting said that Britain would become involved if the Communists attacked Formosa. His foreign office indicates Nutting over-stepped the limits of British policy.

The President met today with both Republican and Democratic leaders of Congress. They discussed national defense...mutual security problems and foreign affairs...including the imprisoned Americans in Red China. The President made it known that he intends to Consult,,step by step, with the leaders of both parties. Senate emocratic Leader Johnson said he suggested that these men be consulted regularly in the drafting of any program of economic aid to Asia which the Administration may develop. Johnson sayd the President approves. And Johnson also told reporters the President's plans are constructive "but may require some 'improvement' when the Democrats take control of congress next month." Representative Rayburn, who will be speaker of the House in the new congress, told reporters "It was a good meeting"....(and with a smile) "no blood was spilled."

Before this White House meeting, Democratic Senator Russell of Georgia said he will oppose any administration program of dollar economic aid for Asia or "anywhere else." But Russell says he will support some substantial increases in the technical assistance program.

Senator Olin D. Johnston, South Carolina Democrat, said today that the Administration is guilty of "wilful neglect" of farmers. He said the economy of the South will fall unless something is done to aid cotton growers.

Ahe Atomic Energy Commission has commissioned the American Locomotive Company to build for the army a "package nuclear power plant". This mobile atomic furnace should be capable of producing enough electricity for a city of two thousand persons...and must be transportable by air. Two million dollars has been awarded for the experimental plant.

F.B.I. Chief J. Edgar Hoover said today the FBI would "never engage in any activity which might stifle academic freedom." Hoover told Bob Lawrence, editor of the University of New Mexico paper, that the F.B.I. wanted the names of students who debated whether or not we should extend diplomatic recognition to Red China.

Arthur Garfield Hays died today...at 73. He was one of the world's foremost fighters for civil rights. As general counsel of the American Civil Liberties Union he once wrote: "We of the Union have always fought for the right of a man to be out of step with society."

Here in New York today, Governor-elect Harriman announced that he will appoint Tammany Leader Carmine deSapio as secretary of state in his new administration.

And a Kings County grand jury has found two teen-agers...Jack Koslow and Melvin Mittman ...guilty of first degree murder for torturing and drowning a factory worker. The jury recommended that both boys serve the rest of their lives in prison...otherwise, death in the electric chair would have been mandatory.

In Vatican City a team of doctors examined Pope Pius and reported his condition is weaker...and his recovery has halted.

And the Vatican city newspaper Osseravtore Romana says the United States anti-Soviet policy has been weakened greatly by the failure to teach religion in American public schools. The paper pointed out that there is complete religious freedom in this country and persecution of any religious sect is unthinkable to the American mind.

The North Atlantic Council meeting which opens in Paris this week will find itself between the horns of one of the great dilemmas of the atomic age. This is how to use atomic weapons in time to defeat aggression and yet maintain effective civillian control over them. In atomic warfare immediacy may be decisive. The side that can hit first and penetrate the defenses of the opponent cas seriously impair the ability of the defender to strike back.

The NATO Council probably will not come to grips with this problem. Certainly the report of its military committee will not recommend that the generals be allowed to decide when to use atomic weapons. But the report will call for planning their use, and this planning means something substantial now that Congress has authorized the United States to give information to its allies about them.

NATO also will make its annual review of plans for new forces, in which it will set the firm levels for 1955 and the provisional levels for 1956, and put down goals for 1957. If the tactical use of strategic weapons is to be developed, ground forces perhaps need not be much greater than those in sight, the German divisions included. Planning how to use tactical nuclear weapons is not the same as deciding to use them, but if the ground forces are to be kept at about the present level because of nuclear weapons, that would appear to be a decision to use them. Denmark is reported to be preparing to oppose anything that is the same as an automatic decision to use nuclear weapons.

Field Marshall Montgomery has aroused apprehension by saying categorically the new weapons will be used if war comes in Europe. One of the porposals the NATO Council may have to consider nor or later is whether atomic weapons should be held back till the other side uses them first.

On paper, NATO is an alliance of fourteen soverign states all of whom can prevent action in concert by a veto. That is, Iceland, with a population smaller than the city of Flint, Michigan, therorctically can veto NATO's use of atomic weapons. The United States and Britain, with a long tradition of civilian control over the military are bound to side with anyone insisting on civilian control over NATO's military actions. But both countries will press for the study of tactical nuclear weapons. They are quite right in saying that all armies under political control have to plan for situations about which political decisions have not been made. But that is not an automatic decision to use the weapons. It only means that if a political green light is given, the NATO forces will know what to do with their tactical nuclear power.

But the dilemma of civilian control in NATO is not so hard to solve as it looks. The small states actually don't have the power to prevent the using of atomic weapons if a defensive war breaks out in Europe. All they can prevent is their use by NATO as such. They cannot prevent their use by the United States and Britain, who alone have atomic weapons. Under Article Five of the NATO treaty, each nation in the alliance, when an attack on another member has taken place, is to assist with such action as it deems necessary. That is, the members can choose whether and how to intervene as individual states. Thus if there is an aggression against a NATO state, the United States is free to unleash all its strategic forces against the aggressor. Indeed, European security rests on the presumption that the United States will do this, quite as much as it does on NATO's own power. So not even in theory can NATO members keep a European war from being fought with atomic weapons.

But if should be borne in mind that the American use of strategic power in war also is not automatic. President Eisenhower, in his pronouncement on taking a Chinese blockade to Congress as an act of war, implicitly bound himself to take any step of war to Congress before ordering it. In the atomic age, here the ability to strike first may be of immearurable advantage, any delay required by constitutional procedures in this country can give a military expert gray hairs. So the dilemma of civilian control really is more America's than NATO's. It is not a dilemma that is paralyzing in every contingency. We are not at all helpless to deal with a sneak ataack. It remains a basic principle that a commander is justified in taking any steps nevessary to secure the safety of his troops. And the Commander-in-Chief can take all steps necessary to the national defense in an emergency. But in other respects the dilemma created by the requirement of political control remains. The Paris meeting of NATO probably will not even try to cope with this problem. But if it does, it seems a safe forecast that ie will not be able to solve it.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a minute with the Word for Today. But first, a word from Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: Winston Churchill, on more than one occasion, has stressed the chose connection between atomic weapons and control of the skies. Those attending the NATO Meetings, must be in agreement with these words Sir Winston spoke in 1949: "For good or ill," he said, "air mastery is today the supreme expression of military power. And fleets and armies, however necessary and important, must accept subordinate rank. This is a memorable milestones in the march of man."

Good Nite and Good Luck.

Wednesday December 15, 1954

This is the news:

The State Department has made it known that if the Chinese Communists offer us the right proposition we may be willing to swap 35 Chinese students in this country for 57 Americans now held by the Communists. Yesterday, after the Chinese had hinted at some sort of exchange, the State Department said we would make no such deals. Today, Department News Officer Lincoln White said: "Our concern is to get our people safely home." He said we would look carefully at any Communist offer of a swap.. "inspect the nature of the offer and the circumstances of the moment." In addition to 11 airmen sentenced to jail as spies, the Communists hold four other flyers.. and 43 civilians either in jail, under house arrest or by denying them permission to come home. The State Department had no details on the 35 Chinese students in this country.

At the United Nations today the Russians abandoned their charge that we and the Chinese Nationlists are guilty of "piracy" off the red-held coast of China. The complaint faced overhwelming defeat.

And the Moscow radio said today that the Soviet government "fully supports" the Chinese Communist demand for the withdrawal of American forces from Formosa, the Formosa Strait and the Pescadores islands.

Moscow joins Peiping in charging that this is: interference in China's internal affairs...an attempt on Chinese territorial integrity, and a danger to the security of China and Asia. Russia calls for the "cessation of aggressive actions" against Red China..and says the Soviet people understand the "determination" of the Chinese Reds to liberate Formosa.

The Russians also had something new to say to Japan. Whereas in the past Moscow has called Japan a "vassal state" under the thumb of the United States, today Moscow radio made a strong plea for Japanese friendship. The Russians now deny that it would be necessary for Japan to cut her close ties with the West in order to be a friend of the Soviet Union.

In Washington today, the President told reporters that we must be prepared for 50 years to fight a big war. He hopes and prays it will not be necessary to carry on our defense program that long at current levels. He pointed out that we cannot buy 100 per cent security in every little corner of the world. But the President feels that with a strong reserve... the ability to strike back hard at any aggressor..and an active armed force held at minimum levels...we should be able to make sure than no one will ever attack us with the hope of [redacted]

GAIN.

Soon after Mr. Eisenhower spoke, Defense Secretary Wilson said that he plans to make another cut in military manpower in the new fiscal year that starts next July first. He didn't say how deep the cut would be. But he said it would call for less than the three million 47-thousand man force planned up to now. And he said the principal cuts would be made in the size of the army. Wilson was asked whether the First Marine division will be brought home from Korea. He said the Marines will come home "sooner or later."

The President today confirmed his intentions to ask the new Congress to extend the 52 per cent tax on corporate incomes and to postpone planned cuts in April on certain sales taxes. Mr. Eisenhower said we cannot afford the estimated revenue loss of 3-billion from the scheduled tax reductions. He said to cut taxes we must cut expenses and the Administration already has cut expenditures to what it considers a safe minimum. Mr. Eisenhower also told reporters he expects very real co-operation from Democrats in the new Congress.. on foreign affairs, defense and related matters. And he expects maximum co-operation from his fellow Republicans.

The President also said he is hoping for the best in today's Safe Driving Day.. the nation-wide effort to save lives through traffic caution. At 6 p.m. eastern time only 21 deaths had been reported, since midnight. This compared with a rate nearly three times as high during an Associated Press survey made for comparative purposes on December first.

Secretary of Agriculture Benson said today that the Administration is considering direct trade of some farm commodities with Iron Curtain countries. He feels we should be willing to trade with these countries as long as the trade is in our favor.."whether it be butter or anything else. " We are also considering trade with some countries which may in turn sell to Iron Curtain countries.

In Paris today, the chiefs of staff of the North Atlantic Treaty countries said that their governments must decide when and how the west shall use any atomic wweapons to repel an attack from the west. And the organization also made it known that Russia is increasing its stockpile of atomic weapons under a top priority development program.

In West Germany, Chancellor Adenauer charged that the French government has acted in bad faith on the controversial Saar agreement. He is going to try to arrange new talks with French Premier Mendez-France. This could delay the time-table for re-arming west Germany. And in Paris, the cabinet has authorized Mendez-France to make an issue of confidence ~~on~~ in the Assembly any [redacted] attempts to modify or delay the application of the [redacted] agreements on west Germany.

The Vatican reports that Pope Pius spent a tranquil night and showed a slight improvement in his condition this morning.

Edward R. Murrow: December 15, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

This is Bill of Rights Day. The first ten amendments to our Constitution came into force on December 15th, 1791. It is useful and good to remember how this document became part of our Constitution and our heritage, because it offers, in clear language, the citizen's best guarantee against abuse by the State. You will remember that there was considerable opposition to the Constitution as drafted. This opposition was in Congress and in the Country. It was argued that the Constitution was not sufficiently explicit as to the rights of the various states, and the rights of individuals.

It was that first Congress, at its first session, here in New York on September 25, 1789, that voted to submit to the various states what has come to be known as The Bill of Rights. The preamble to the resolution offering the proposed amendments is worth recalling. It said, in part: "The conventions of a number of the states, having at the time of their adopting the Constitution expressed a desire in order to prevent misconstruction, or abuse of its powers that further declaratory and restrictive clauses should be added; and as extending the ground of public confidence in the Government will best ensure the benificent ends of its institution, be it resolved....."

It should be remembered that pressure for these amendments came from the people. The state governments were concerned for their rights, and the people for their rights and their dignity. And so, with an economy of words, there was written this document, in a manner both simple and majestic. In times of trial and tribulation, nations dig deep into their past, their great documents and their heroes, for support and sustenance. Even on this day, when there is neither war nor peace, there is no better way to mark the occasion than to repeat the language.....

ARTICLE I: Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances.

ARTICLE II: A well regulated Militia, being necessary to the security of a free State, the right of the people to keep and bear Arms, shall not be infringed.

ARTICLE III: No soldier shall, in time of peace be quartered in any house, without the consent of the Owner, nor in time of war, but in a manner to be prescribed by law.

ARTICLE IV: The Right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated, and no Warrants shall issue, but upon probable cause, supported by Oath or affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched, and the persons or things to be seized.

ARTICLE V: No Person shall be held to answer for a capital, or otherwise infamous crime, unless on a presentment or indictment of a Grand Jury, except in cases arising in the land or naval forces, or in the Militia, when in actual service in time of War or public danger; nor shall any person be subject for the same offence to be twice put in jeopardy of life or limb; nor shall be compelled in any Criminal Case to be a witness against himself, nor be deprived of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor shall private property be taken for public use, without just compensation.

ARTICLE VI: In all criminal prosecutions, the accused shall enjoy the right to a speedy and public trial, by an impartial jury of the State and district wherein the crime shall have been committed, which district shall have been previously ascertained by law, and to be informed of the nature and cause of the accusation; to be confronted with the witnesses against him; to have compulsory process for obtaining Witnesses in his favor, and to have the Assistance of Counsel for his defence.

ARTICLE VII: In Suits at common law, where the value in controversy shall exceed twenty dollars, the right of trial by jury shall be preserved, and no fact tried by a jury shall be otherwise re-examined in any Court of the United States, than according to the rules of the common law.

ARTICLE VIII: Excessive bail shall not be required, nor excessive fines imposed, nor cruel and unusual punishments inflicted.

ARTICLE IX: The Enumeration in the Constitution, of certain rights, shall not be construed to deny or disparage others retained by the people.

ARTICLE X: The Powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the States, are reserved to the States respectively, or to the people.

With the possible exception of the Ten Commandmants, no document of historical importance has ever been written in clearer terms than the Bill of Rights. Its primary objective the protection of the rights of the individual. But, as President Eisenhower once said:"Freedom from fear and injustice and oppression will be ours only in the measure that men who value such freedom are ready to sustain its possession - to defend it against every thrust from within or without."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

Edward R. Murrow; December 15, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

This is Bill of Rights Day. The first ten amendments to our Constitution came into force on December 15th, 1791. It is useful and good to remember how this document became part of our Constitution and our heritage, because it offers, in clear language, the citizen's best guarantee against abuse by the State. You will remember that there was considerable opposition to the Constitution as drafted. This opposition was in Congress and in the Country. It was argued that the Constitution was not sufficiently explicit as to the rights of the various states, and the rights of individuals.

It was that first Congress, at its first session, here in New York on September 25, 1789, that voted to submit to the various states what has come to be known as The Bill of Rights. The preamble to the resolution offering the proposed amendments is worth recalling. It said, in part: "The conventions of a number of the states, having at the time of their adopting the Constitution expressed a desire in order to prevent misconstruction, or abuse of its powers that further ~~XXXXX~~ declaratory and restrictive clauses should be added; and as extending the ground of public confidence in the Government will best ensure the benificent ends of its institution, be it resolved....."

It should be remembered that pressure for these amendments came from the people. The state governments were concerned for their rights, and the people for their rights and their dignity. And so, with an economy of words, there was written this document, in a manner both simple and majestic. In times of trial and tribulation, nations dig deep into their past, their great documents and their heroes, for support and sustenance. Even on this day, when there is neither war nor peace, there is no better way to mark the occasion than to repeat the language.....

ARTICLE I: Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people peacably to assemble, and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances.

ARTICLE II: A well regulated Militia, being necessary to the security of a free State, the right of the people to keep and bear Arms, shall not be infringed.

ARTICLE III: No soldier shall, in time of peace be quartered in any house, without the consent of the Owner, nor in time of war, but in a manner to be prescribed by law.

ARTICLE IV: The Right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated, and no Warrants shall issue, but upon probable cause, supported by Oath or affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched, and the persons or things to be seized.

ARTICLE V: No Person shall be held to answer for a capital, or otherwise infamous crime, unless on a presentment or indictment of a Grand Jury, except in cases arising in the land or naval forces, or in the Militia, when in actual service in time of War or public danger; nor shall any person be subject for the same offence to be twice put in jeopardy of life or limb; nor shall be compelled in any Criminal Case to be a witness against himself, nor be deprived of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor shall private property be taken for public use, without just compensation.

ARTICLE VI: In all criminal prosecutions, the accused shall enjoy the right to a speedy and public trial, by an impartial jury of the State and district wherein the crime shall have been committed, which district shall have been previously ascertained by law, and to be informed of the nature and cause of the accusation; to be confronted with the witnesses against him; to have compulsory process for obtaining Witnesses in his favor, and to have the Assistance of Counsel for his defence.

ARTICLE VII: In Suits at common law, where the value in controversy shall exceed twenty dollars, the right of trial by jury shall be preserved, and no fact tried by a jury shall be otherwise re-examined in any Court of the United States, than according to the rules of the common law.

ARTICLE VIII: Excessive bail shall not be required, nor excessive fines imposed, nor cruel and unusual punishments inflicted.

ARTICLE IX: The Enumeration in the Constitution, of certain rights, shall not be construed to deny or disparage others retained by the people.

ARTICLE X: The Powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the States, are reserved to the States respectively, or to the people.

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 15, 1954
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

The State Department had made it known that if the Chinese Communists offer us the right proposition we may be willing to swap 35 Chinese students in this country for 57 Americans now held by the Communists.

Yesterday, after the Chinese had hinted at some sort of exchange, the State Department said we would make no such deals. Today, Department News Officer Lincoln White said: "Our concern is to get our people savely home." He said we would"look carefully at any Communist affer of a swap.....inspect the nature of the offer and the circumstances of the moment". In addition to 11 airmen sentenced to jail as spies, the Communists hold four other flyers...and 43 civilians ..either in jail, under house arrest, or by denying them permission to come home. The State Department had no details on the 35 Chinese students in this country.

At the United Nations today the Russians abandoned their charge that we and the Chinese Nationalists are guilty of "piracy" off the red-held China Coast. The complaint faced overwhelming defeat.

And the Moscow radio said today that the Soviet government "fully supports" the Chinese Communist demand for the withdrawal of American forces from Formosa, the Formosa Strait and the Pescadores Islands. Moscow joins Peiping in charging that this is: interference in China's internal affairs... an attempt on Chinese territorial integrity and a danger to the security of China and Asia. Russia calls for the "cessation of aggressive actions" against Red China...and says the Soviet people understand the "determination" of the Chinese Reds to liberate Formosa.

The Russians also had something new to say to Japan. Whereas in the past Moscow has called Japan a "vassal state" under the thumb of the United States, today Moscow radio made a strong plea for Japanese freindshop. The Russians now deny that it would be necessary for Japan to cut her close ties with the West in order to be a friend of the Soviet Union.

In Washington today, the President told reporters that we must be prepared for 50 years to fight a big war. ae hopes and prays it will not be nenessary to carry on our defense program that long at current levels. He pointed out that we cannot buy 100 per cent security in every little corner of the world. But the President feels that with a strong reserve...the ability to strike back hard at any aggressor...and an active armed force held at minimum levels...we should be able to make sure than no one will ev r attack us with the hope of gain.

Soon after Mr. Eisenhower spoke, Defense Secretary Wilson said that he plans to make another cut in military manpower in the new fiscal year. that starts next July first. He didn't say how deep the cut would be. But he said it would call for less that the three million 47-thousand man force planned up to now. And he said the principal cuts would be made in the size of the army. Wilson was asked whether the Firet Marine division will be brought home from Kores. He said the Marines will come home "sooner or later."

The President today confirmed his intention to ask the new Congress to extend the 52 percent tax on corporate incomes and to postpone planned cuts in April on certain sales taxes. Mr. Eisenhower said we cannot afford the estimated renenue loss of 3 -billion from the scheduled tax reductions. He said to cut taxes we must cut expenses and the Administration already has cut expenditures to what it consisers a safe minimum. Mr. Eisenhover also told reporters he expects very real co-operation from Democrats in the new Congress.. on foreign aafairs, defense and related matters. And he expects maximum cooperation from his fellow Republicans.

The President also said he is hoping for the best in today 's Safe Driving Day...the nation-wide effort to save lives through traffic caution. At 6 p.m. eastern time only 21 deaths had been reported since midnight. This compared with a rate nearly three times as high during an Associated Press survey made for comparative purposes on December first.

Secretary of Agriculture Benson said today that the Administration is considering direct trade of some farm commodities with Iron Curtain countries. He feels we should be willing to trade with these countries as long as the trade is in our favor..."whether it be butter or anything else." We are also considering trade with some countries which may in turn sell to Iron Curtain countries.

In Paris today, the chiefs of staff of the North Atlantic Treaty countries said that their governments must decide when and how the west shall use any atomic weapons to repel an attack from the west. And the organization also made it known that Russia is increasing its stockpile of atomic weapoms under a top priority developement program.

In West Germany, Chancellor Adenauer charged that the French government has acted in bad faith on the controversial Saar agreement. He is going to try to arrange new talks with French Premier Mendez-France. This could delay the time-table for re-arming west Germany. And in Paris, the cabinet has authorized Mendez-France to make an issue of confidence in the assembly on any attempts to modify or delay the application of the agreements on west Germany.

The Vatican reports that Pope Pius spent a tranquil night ans showed a slight improvement in his condition this morning.

This is Bill of Rights Day. The first ten amendments to our Constitution came into force on December 15th, 1791. It is useful and good to remember how this document became part of our Constitution and our heritage, because it offers, in clear language, the citizen's best guarantee against abuse by the state. You will remember that there was considerable opposition to the Constitution as drafted. This opposition was in Congress and in the Country. It was argued that the Constitution was not sufficiently explicit as to the rights of the rights of the various states, and the rights of individuals.

It was that first Congress, at its first session, here in New York on September 25, 1789, that voted to submit to the various states what has come to be known as the Bill of Rights. The preambl to the resolution offering the proposed amendments is worth recalling. It said, in part, : " The Conventions of a number of states, having at the time of their adopting the Constitution expressed a desire in order to prevent misconstruction, or abuse of its powers, that further declatory and restrictive clauses should be added; and as extending the ground of public condidence in the Government will best ensure the beneficent ends of its institution, be it resolved....."

It should be remembered that pressure for these amendments came from the people. The state governments were concerned for their rights, and the people for their rights and their dignity. And so, with an economy of words, there was written this document, in a manner both simple and majestic. In times of trial and tribulation, nations dig deep into their past, their great documents, and their heroes, for support ans sustenance. Even on this day, when there is neither war nor peace, there is no better way to mark the occasion than to repeat the language....

ARTICLE I: Congress shall make no law respecting and establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, of of the press; or the right of the people peacably to assemble, and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances.

ARTICLE II: A well regulated militia, being necessary to the security of a free state, the right of the people to keep and bear arms, shall not be infringed.

ARTICLE III: No soldier shall, in time of peace be quartered in any house, without the consent of the owner, nor in time of war, but in a manner to be prescribed by law.

ARTICLE IV: The Right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated, and no warrants shall issue, but upon probable cause, supported by oath or affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched, and the persons or hhings to be seized.

ARTICLE V: No person shall be held to answer for a capital, or otherwise infamous crime, unless on a presentment or indictment of a Grand Jury, except in Cases arising in the land or naval forces, or in the militia, when in actual service in time of war or public danger; nor shall any person be subject for the same offence to be twice put in jeopardy of life or limb; now shall be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself, nor be deprived of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor shall private property be taken for public use, without just compensation.

ARTICLE VI: In all criminal prosecutions, the accused shall enjoy the right to a speedy and public trial, by an impartial jury of the State and district wherein the crime shall have been committed, which district shall have been previously ascertained by law, and to be informed of the nature and dause of accusation; to be confronted with the wittesses against him; to have compulsory process for obtaining witnesses in his favor, and to have the assistance of counsel for his defense.

ARTICLE VII: In sutès at common law, where the value in controversy shall exceed twenty dollars, the right of trial by jury shall be preserved, and no fact tried by jury shall be otherwise re-examined in any court of the United States, than according to the rules of common law.

ARTICLE VIII: Excessive bail shall not be required, nor excessive fines imposed, nor cruel and unusual punishments inflicted.

ARTICLE IX: The enumeration in the constitution, of certain rights shall not be construed to deny or disparage others retained by the people.

ARTICLE X: The Powers not delegated to the United states by the Constitution, not prohibited by it to the States, are reserved to the States respectively, or to the people.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a moment with the Word for Today. But first, here is Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: With the possible exception of the Ten Commandments, no document of historical importance has ever been written in clearer, terms than the Bill of Rights. Its primary objective: the protection of the rights of the individual. But, as President Eisenhower once said: "Freedom from fear and injustice and oppression will be ours only in the measure that men who value such freedom are ready to sustain its possession - to defend it against every thrust from within and without."

Good Night.

Thursday, December 16, 1954

This is the news:

The Russians today formally warned France not to ratify the agreement to re-arm west Germany. A Soviet note says that if the French do ratify the Paris agreement this will cancel a 1944 Franco-Russian treaty of freindship. And Moscow says the responsibility for this will fall on the French government. The latest Moscow move to prevent the re-arming of West Germany came just a few days before the French National Assembly meets--on Monday--to start a debate on ratification

But French Premier Mendez-France, meeting in Paris today with Secretary of State Dulles and British Foreign Minister Eden, is said to have promised them this Russian note will not change his mind. He still wants the agreement ratified...although he still feels that a four-power meeting with Russia is "possible and desireable" in May. (THAT'S) after ratification of German re-armament.

On the basis of this pledge, and on the assumption that all the western nations will approve the ratification of the agreement, Secretary of State Dulles is said to have informed Eden and Mendez-France: we will again make a pledge to keep American troops on the continent against the threat of a Soviet aggression.

Mr. Dulles is also said to have told [redacted] Great Britain and France that we know of no sure-fire system that can be set up in advance to decide who [redacted] must give the order to use atomic weapons against aggression. Mr. Dulles is said to feel that events..such as a surprise Russian attack..might wipe out any machinery set up by the North Atlantic Treaty Organization to make such a decision. The United States is said to believe that Western Europe must decide if it wants to be defended from [redacted] Communist attack..with atomic weapons..or liberated from an occupation later.

In West Germany, Chancellor Adenauer told his split coalition government that unless the West German republic is re-armed...68-million Germans will be delivered to Red slavery. Then, he said, all Germany will become a battlefield for a new world war

Russia's top soldier.. Marshal Zukov..today accused Prime Minister Churchill and Field Marshal Montgomery of "treachery" during the last war. Zhukov was commenting on Sir Winston's recent statement that he had ordered Montgomery to STACK [redacted] captured German arms for possible use by German troops against the Red army. That was in the closing days of World War Three.

And a former German general.. Von Mantueffel.. who commanded the army that Beseiged Bastogne ten years ago.. said today that the Nazi Wehrmacht was the world's most democratic army. He wants the new west German army to be free of what he called "humiliating limitations."

Pope Pius' personal physician said today that the Pope is suffering from an abnormal bulge in the tube that carries food from the throat to the stomach. After a series of x-ray examinations it was decided that immediate surgery is not necessary.

The Austrian Catholic News Service reports that Josef Cardinal Mindzenty has been freed by Hungarian Communists. He has served six years in prison on treason charges. The Reverend Jacob Friend, chief editor of all Catholic publications in Vienna, says the report that the 62-year-old Cardinal has been freed, was brought out of Hungary by a reliable French businessman. There is no confirmation from any other source. The Hungarian foreign ministry refuses comment.

In Salonika, Greece, shouting students smashed up the United States information agency offices. They were protesting our decision not to support Greek damands for Cyprus. Forty person were injured ad police broke up the demonstration.

The Russians today made another move to win Japan's friendship. Foreign Minister Molotov sent the Japanese a statement expressing "a positive attitude" toward normalizing relations with Tokyo. The Russians have never signed a peace treaty with Japan. The new Japanese government is under strong pressure to start trading with the big Communist market in Asia and Europe.

The Chinese Communist radio said ~~again~~ (AGAIN) today that the United ~~Nations~~ Nations resolution condemning China for jailing 11 American airmen as spies ~~as~~ was "unlawful and void."

And U.N. Secretary General Hammershuld made it known that he has asked for a meeting to discuss the American prisoners with the Chinese ambassador in Stockholm. Hammershuld will be in Stockholm this week-end.

The Navy said today that six of its ~~airmen~~ (AIRMEN) shot down off the coast of China in January, 1953, are listed as missing. But there is a possibility that they have been captured by the Chinese Reds.

In Washington, the President named Nelson A. Rockefeller to be a special assistant to the President....an adviser on how to win friends and allies in the cold war. Rockefeller will resign as undersecretary of Health, Education and Welfare. White House Secretary Haggerty says Rockefeller's new job will be "much broader" than that held by C.D. Jackson, who was in charge of psychological warfare before he moved to a United Nations delegation post.

The White House said today that the President is "quite gratified" to hear that the accident rate in yesterday's Safe Driving Day was lower than normal. The Associated Press says 49 persons were killed in a 24-hour period.. compared to 64 deaths on December first..when an A.P. survey provided a yardstick.

~~Air Secretary Talbott says the growing Soviet submarine menace means that in the event of war we will have to rely heavily on planes for the movement of cargoes and passengers.~~

The American Farm Bureau Federation today unaimously elected Charles B. Shuman of Sullivan, Illinois, to replace Allan B. Kline who has retired because of ill health.

And the United States Court of Appeals in Washington says the Postmaster General lacks legal authority to "authorize the indefinite suppression of periodical publications because one or another issue may contain obscene ~~manner.~~ Matter." The court voided orders by ~~Postmaster~~ POSTMASTER General Summerfield denying use of the mails to three nudist magazines.

Edward R. Murrow: December 16, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

It may be well to point out that if the coming year is to bring about any relaxation of world tensions it will be the result of highly confidential talks. And these talks, to succeed, may have to go a long way toward agreement before the public is told about them. A sharp distinction has to be drawn between cold war debate and genuine negotiations.

By itself, the cold war debate is not capable of producing changes that would improve world relationships. These have to start in private talks, and to get anywhere the talks have to be kept secret, or at least their subject matter must, until the possibility of agreement is in sight. That is to say that any four-power talks at the top level cannot hope to succeed if the framework of the agreement hasn't been worked out in advance. It may have to be left to the top men to make the actual decisions, but the issues have to be drawn up first. The speculation about a four-power conference is meaningless if the confidential talks haven't been held first and shown genuine promise of succeeding.

Any agreement that lessens the gap between the East and West is pretty sure to mean a quid pro quo of some sort. If incomplete terms should be discussed openly and prematurely it could ruin the chances of an understanding.

In countries where politicians or parties have taken up fixed positions on foreign policy, such disclosure would help to line up opinion against the agreement.

This reporter has no information about private negotiations between Washington and Moscow, or even whether they are possible. Ambassador Bohlen has been here from Moscow and has gone back again. He said nothing in public while here about the prospect or the possibility of holding confidential talks. President Eisenhower was asked at his news conference yesterday about Mr. Bohlen's report. The President skillfully ducked the question. Mr. Bohlen, he said, had talked quite frankly without having to weigh what might be thought abroad about what he was saying. So he left Mr. Bohlen's report confidential. The result is that we know nothing about the chances of negotiation, and can't expect to for the present.

Mr. Eisenhower showed himself to be a good diplomat at another point yesterday. He was asked who should have the decision to use atomic weapons in Europe, the generals or the civilians. He replied that the issue was being discussed in Paris this week and he would be wrong to express his own convictions publicly while his representatives were negotiating on the question.

In contrast with Mr. Eisenhower's admirable caution, the State Department, day before yesterday, announced it would not bargain off the Chinese students held in this country for the imprisoned American airmen; and then reversed itself yesterday to say it would consider any proposal for such an exchange. The clumsiness seems to have been due to confusion between negotiations and cold war debate. The State Department had pointed out that the Chinese students are not in prison or forbidden to move around, and so are not comparable with the airmen who sit in prison convicted on false charges. That is true enough. But saying so doesn't get the airmen out. And if the Communists would free the airmen while we let the students go home, we should have the better of the exchange. If Secretary General Hammarskjold could go to Peiping to discuss the prisoners, he might have brought the students along, tucked away, as it were in his briefcase. But the public airing of the issue has made it harder for Peiping to talk about it.

It doesn't help negotiations to say out loud beforehand what you aren't going to do. Why volunteer the information? Why not find out first what the other side is ready to offer? This would seem to be elementary diplomacy. And above all it doesn't pay to try to negotiate in a public debate. Granted, that in a cold war the debate has to proceed even if confidential talks are going on or are expected. But if an agreement is wanted, the debate mustn't be allowed to lessen the hope of its being reached.

Diplomats and statesmen who meet in far off places, and attempt to juggle hemispheres, might do well to heed this warning by James Truslow Adams, who maintained:"No form of society can be reasonably stable, in which the majority of the people are not fairly content. People can not be content, if they feel that the foundations of their lives are wholly unstable."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 16, 1954
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

The Russians today formally warned France not to ratify the agreement to re-arm west Germany. A Soviet note says that if the French do ratify the Paris agreement, this will cancel a 1944 Franco-Russian treaty of friendship. And Moscow says the responsibility for this will fall on the French government. The latest Moscow move to prevent the re-arming of West Germany came just a few days before the French National Assembly meets.---on Monday -- to start a debate on ratification.

But French Premier Mendez-France, meeting in Paris today with Secretary of State Dulles and British Foreign Minister Eden, is said to have promised them this Russian note will not change his mind. He still wants the agreement ratified...although he still feels that a four-power meeting with Russia is "possible and desireable" in May. That's after ratification of German re-armament.

On the basis of this pledge, and on the assumption that all the western nations will approve the ratification of the agreement, Secretary of State Dulles is said to have informed Eden and Mendez-France: we will again make a pledge to keep American troops on the continent against the threat of a Soviet aggression.

Mr. Dulles is also said to have told Great Britain and France that we know of no sure-fire system that can be set up in advance to decide who must give the order to use atomic weapons against aggression. Mr. Dulles is said to feel that events...such as a surprise Russian attack..might wipe out any machinery set up by the North Atlantic Treaty Organization to make such a decision. The United States is said to believe that Western Europe must decide if it wants to defend from Communist attacks..with atomic weapons... or liberated from an occupation later.

In West Germany, Chancellor Adenauer told his split coalition government that unless the West German republic is re-armed...68 million Germans will be delivered to Red slavery. Then, he said, all Germany will become a battlefield for a new world war.

Russia's top soldier..Marshal Zukov...today accused Prime Minister Churchill and Field Marshall Montgomery of "treachery" during the last war. Zukov was commenting on Sir Winston's recent statement that he had ordered Montgomery to stack captured German arms for possible use by German troops against the Red Army. That was in the closing days of World War Two.

And a former German general...Von Mantueffel...who commanded the army that beseiged Bastogne ten years ago...said today that the Nazi Wehrmacht was the world's most democratic army. He wants the new west German army to be free of what he called "humiliating limitations."

Pope Pius' personal physician said today that the Pope is suffering from an abnormal bulge in the tube that carries food from the throat to the stomach. After a series of x-ray examinations it was decided that immediate surgery is not necessary.

The Austrian Catholic News Service reports that Joseph Cardinal Mindzenty has been freed by Hungarian Communists. He has serves six years in prison on treason charges. The Reverend Jacob Friend, chief editor of all Catholic publications in Vienna, says the report that the 62-year-old Cardinal has been freed, was brought out of Hungary by a reliable French businessman. There is no confirmation from any other source. The Hungarian foreign ministry refuses comment.

In Salonika, Greece, shouting students smashed up the United States information agency offices. They were protesting our decision not to support Greek demands for Cyprus. Forty persons were injured and police broke up the demonstration. The Russians today made another move to win Japan's friendship. Foreign Minister Molotov sent the Japanese a statement expressing "a positive attitude" toward narmalizing relations with Tokyo. The Russians have never signed a peace treaty with Japan. The new Japanese government is under strong pressure to start trading with the big Communist market in Asia and Europe.

The Chinese Communist radio said again today that the United Nations resolution condemming China for jailing 11 American airmen as spies was "unlawful and void."

And U.N. Secretary General Hammershuld made it known that he has asked for a meeting to discuss the American prisoners with Chinese ambassador in Stockholm. Hammershuld. Will be in Stockholm this week-end.

The Navy said today that six of its airmen shot down off the coast of China in January, 1953, are listed as missing. But there is a possibility that they have been captured by the Chinese Reds.

In Washington, the President named Nelson A. Rockerfeller to be a special assistant to the President...an adviser on how to win friends and allies in the cold war. Rockerfeller will resign as undersecretary of Helath, Education and Welfare. White House Secretary Haggerty says Rockerfeller's new job will be "much broader" than that held by C.D. Jackson, who was in charge of psychological warfare before he moved to a United Nations delegation post.

The White House said today that the President is "quite gratified" to hear that the accident rate in yesterday's Safe Driving Day was lower than normal. The Assosiated Press says 49 persons were killed in a 24-hour period...compared to 64 deaths on Demember first...when an A.P. survey provided a yardstick.

The American Farm Bureau Federation today unanimously elected Charles B. Shuman of Sullivan, Illinois, to replece Allan B. Kline who retired because of ill health.

And the United States Court of Appeals in Washington says the Postmaster General lacks legal authority to "authorize the indefinite suppression of periodical publications because one or another issue may contain obscene matter. The court voided orders by postmaster General Summerfield denying use of the mails to three nudist magazines.

It may be well to point out that if the coming year is to bring about ant relaxation of world tensions it will be the result of highly confidential talks. And these talks, to succeed, may have to go a long way toward agreement before the public is told about them. A sharp distingtion has to be drawn between cold war debate and genuine negotiations.

By itself, the cold war debate is not capable of producing changes that would improve world relationships. These have to start in private talks, and to get anywhere the talks have to be kept secret, or at least their subject matter must, until the possibility of agreement is in sight. That is to say that any four-power talks at the top level cannot hope to succeed if the framework of the agreement hasn't been worked out in advance. It may have to be left to the top men to make the actual decisions, but the issues have to be drawn up first. The speculation about a four-power conference is meaningless if the confidential talks haven't been held first and shown genuine promise of succeeding.

Any agreement that lessens the gap between the East ans West is pretty sure to mean a quid-pro-quo of some sort. If sncomplete terms should be discussed openly and permaturely it could ruin the chances of an understanding. In countries where politicians or parties have taken up fixed positions on foreign policy, such disclosures would help to line up opinion against the agreement.

This reporter has no information about private negotiations between Washington and Moscow, or even whether they are possible. Ambassador Bohlen has been here from Moscow and has gone back again. He said nothing in public while here about the prospect or the possibility of holding confidential talks. President Eisenhower was asked at his news conference yesterday about Mr. Bohlen's report. The President skillfully ducked the question. Mr. Bohlen, he said, had talked quite frankly without having to weigh what might be thought abroad abour that he was saying. So he left Mr. Bohlen's report confidential. Thr result is that we know nothing about the chances of negotiation, and can't expect to for the present.

Mr. Eisenhower showed himself to be a good diplomat at another point yesterday. He was asked who should have the decision to use atomic weapons in Europe, the generals or the civilians. He replied that the issue was being discussed in Paris this week and he would be wrong to express his own convictions publicly while his representatives were negotiating on the question.

In contrast with Mr. Eisenhower's admirable caution, the State Department, day before yesterday, announced it would not bargain off the Chinese student's helf in this country for the imprisoned American airmen; and then reversed itself yesterday to say it would consider any proposal for such an exchange. The clumsiness seems to have been due to confusion between negotiations and cold war debate. The State Department had pointed out that the Chinese students are not in prison or forbidden to move around, and so are not comperable with the airmen who sit in prison convicted on false charges. That is true enough. But saying so doesn't get the airmen out And if the Communists would free the airmen while we let the students go home, we should have the better of the exchange. If secretary General Hammarskjold could go to Peiping to discuss the prisoners, he might have brought the students along, tucked away, as it were in his briefcase. But the public airing of the issue has mdee it harder for Peiping to talk about it.

It doesn't help negotiations to say out loud beforehand what you aren't going to do. Why volunteer the information? Why not find out first what the other side is ready to offer? This would seem to be elementary diplomacy. And above all it doesn't pay to try to negotiate in a public debate. Granted, that in a cold war the debate has to proceed even if confidential talks are going on or are expected. But if an arreement is wanted, the debate musn't be allowed to lessen the hope of its being reached.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a minute with the Word for Today. But first, here's Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: Diplomats and statesmen who meet in far off places and attempt to juggle hemispheres, might do well to heed this warning by James Russlow Adams, who maintained: "No form of society can be reasonably stable in which the majority of the people are not fairly content. People can not be content if they feel that the foundations of their lives are wholly unstable."

Good night and good luck.

Friday, Dec. 17, 1954

This is the news:

The President said tonight that after a generation of "ceaseless beating" the drums of war are now stilled...and many parents "enjoy the best Christmas they have ever known." In a Christmas message Mr. Eisenhower challenged the stand of those nations who remain neutral in the struggle with world Communism. He said: "The times are so critical and the differences (between totalitarianism and freedom) are so vital, that grave doubt is cast on the validity of the neutralistic argument." At the same time the President said we will respect the right of self-decision by neutrals. And he said the "world is large enough and the skills of mankind great enough to house mankind in peace."

At the United Nations today, Secretary General Dag Hammershuld announced he will go to Peiping to talk with Communist Premier Chu-en-Lai (JOE) on "pertinent questions" concerning the 11 Americans (FLYERS) jailed by the Chinese (AS SPIES). Hammershuld received a message from Chou indicating that the Communists regard the case as closed. But, said Chou, "in the interest of peace and relaxing international tension" he will welcome Hammershuld in China.

Chairman Wiley of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee says that if Hammershuld fails in his mission to free the Americans, the United States will undoubtedly ask the United Nations to use force.

The U.N's General Assembly today ended its 9th session after rejecting Communist attacks on American policy in the Far East. The Assembly also agreed to hold its 10th birthday meeting in San Fransisco next June.

The Defense Department today made public its new military manpower program...designed to hold our active armed forces down to "reasonable" size..and to build-up a reserve force of 3-million men. I'd like to review this program in a few minutes.

And the Russians charged today that a reported statement by American General Stevenson on atomic weapons is "incompatible" with relations between our two countries. Stevenson, commander of the 49th air division, based in Great Britain, is alleged to have said that some of his bombers..to quote the Russians.."were intended to delay atomic blows by Russia..and this task was given to the division two and a half years ago." The Russians want to know how we "evaluate" the statement. There is no comment yet from the State Department.

The Russians also continued their efforts to try to kill ratification of the western agreement to re-arm West Germany. Moscow has sent at least seven European governments notes expressing displeasure over their absence at the Russian-sponsored conference on European security. Moscow accused all seven of supporting what it calls "the dangerous remilitarization of Germany."

At the same time, the foreign, defense and finance ministers of the North Atlantic Treaty countries, agreed today to use atomic weapons to defend western Europe--if necessary. They agreed on just who shall decide when atomic weapons are to be used..but there is no specific announcement on this yet.

The British say they will make an annual payment of almost 138-million dollars at the end of the year as the principal and interest on a four-and-a-half-billion dollar loan we granted them in 1946.

The doctors attending the ailing Pope Pius say his pulse is too rapid..and they are concerned over his steady weakening in the last few days.

And Catholic officials in Austria are still trying to get more information on the report that Josef Cardinal Mindsenty has been released from jail in Communist Hungary.

In Washington today, Chairman Straws of the atomic energy committee said he regrets that the controversial Dixon-Yates contract was not negotiated directly with the Tennessee Valley Authority. But he defended the arrangement and said there is no evidence of a plan to destroy T.V.A.

The House un-American activities committee today asked the Justice Department to consider prosecuting the National Resistance Party. The committee considers this New York organization "avowedly fascist".. AND engaged in anti-Semetic and pro-Nazi activities that are "clearly subversive and un-American." The committee adds:"Subversion cannot be combatted by subversion. Those who would support the extreme right today do as great a violence to our national instiutions as do those on the extreme left."

Edward R. Murrow: December 17, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

The military manpower program unveiled in Washington today is designed to supply the United States with sufficient manpower to meet the nation's needs as a continental and world power for at least the next four years. The plan will affect every able-bodied young man who reaches the age of eighteen, and he is subject either to the draft and a service in the armed forces, or a six-month training period. Both services have to be followed by long terms in the reserve. The objective is to give the United States a reserve of five million men. Three million of these will be built for the most part from the men who take the six months training. They have to do drills and attend summer encampments similar to National Guard duty. The other two million are made up of men who have completed active service in the armed forces. Reserve duty for the trainees lasts nine and a half years, and lasts six years for those who put in the minimum time at active service.

It should be understood that this is a program, it is not yet a law. Congress has repeatedly rejected universal military service. In 1951 it did approve the principle of six months military training, B4 ~~though~~ providing that it could not be introduced without a new law by Congress, and Congress deciding what manpower should be made available. The new program will now be put into a bill and laid before the new Congress.

Since less than half the young men in the affected age group will be serving, the Pentagon does not like to call this universal military training. But the term really depends on the physical standard that is set. Within three years about everyone meeting the physical standard will be included in one or the other of the groups.

Approximately 100,000 men a year are to be allowed to elect military training instead of the draft. At the same time the size of the army is to be reduced by 100,000 men, so the number of those actually under the colors is not much changed. Just what is entailed in the matter of cost was not made clear at the long Pentagon news conference this afternoon. There is a saving of about half-a-billion dollars a year in reducing the army by 100,000 men. And it costs about 350 million dollars to train the same number of men under the new program. But the reserve costs mount as the numbers grow, so a comparison is hard to make. Present reserve costs already come to 700 million, and it may be a good guess that the new program will come to about one billion, two hundred million a year. That, of course, is much cheaper than maintaining a large standing army.

The Pentagon has changed its mind about six months being long enough to train a man for the reserve. ~~It takes about 1 month to induct a recruit and nearly a month to process him into private life again. It used to be argued that the remaining four months were much too short to give adequate training.~~ ~~But~~ Improved training methods have been worked out. Now it is expected to give each man thirteen weeks basic training, and then fill the rest of his time with specialized training.

If it comes to forming combat units from the reserve in a national emergency this will need four to six months. It used to take a year, starting from scratch with untrained men. It may be asked if four to ~~XXXX~~ six months are not dangerously long. But President Eisenhower answered the question at his news conference this week. He said that the combat units formed from mobilized reserves would be used overseas. Hence they would have to be transported. It will take time to line up shipping and escort vessels, and in this time the reserves can complete their training for combat duty.

One feature of the program is that it closes a door through which men have been able to avoid the draft by joining the National Guard. By doing this they could stay at home, attend weekly guard drills and summer encampments. They still are to be allowed to join the National Guard, but only after taking their full six months of training.

Final figures as to how many will be drafted and how many accepted for the training program are not fixed. It depends on the response of the young men themselves. If too many of them choose the draft, the surplus will be put into the training group. If too many choose the training program, the draft will be applied to the surplus. It is not predictable how the two choices will strike the young American. Men in the army get $78 a month and allowances in regular pay. The pay may be increased by the new Congress. The trainee will get $30 a month, and a per diem while doing active duty in the reserve. Only the drafted man has the same chance of promotion as anyone in the regular services, and when he is through he has his G.I. Bill of Rights and Veterans' benefits. And his obligation in the reserve is limited, and it is a year-and-a-half shorter. But he can't escape reserve duty without forfeiting his veteran's benefits and an honorable discharge.

The plan, if adopted, is to be re-examined in 1959, but the principles can be applied as long as world conditions require. No more eloquent and dismaying message as to the state of the world today, and perhaps for years to come, can well be formulated and sent into every American home. The program was put off a year ago because it was election year. Now there is no excuse to put off a decision about it.

WORD FOR TODAY December 17, 1954

In the matter of national service it can no longer be said, as Horace did: "I do service that I may have a horse to ride, and be fed by a Prince." Presumably the men who drafted this complex proposal were familiar with these words by Plutarch: "Nor are we to use living creatures like old shoes or dishes, and throw them away when they are worn out or broken with service."

Goodnight and Good Luck!

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 17, 1954
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

The President said tonight that after a generation of "ceasless beating" the drums of war are now stilled...and many parents "enjoy the best Christmas they have ever known. In the Christmas message Mr. Eisenhower challenged the stand of those nations who remain neautral in the struggle with world Communism. He said: "The times are so critical and the differences (between totalitarianism and freedom)are so vital, that grave doubt is cast on the validity of the neautralistic argument." At the same time the President said we will respect the right of self-decision by neautrals. And he said the "World is large enough and the skills of mankind great enough to house mankind in peace."

At the United Nations today, Secretary General Dag Hammershuld announced he will go to Peiping to talk with Communist Premier Chu-en-Lai on "pertinent questions" concerning the 11 American flyers jailed by the Chinese as spies. Hammershuld received a message from Chou indicating that the Communists regard the case as closed. But, said Chou, "in the interest of peace and relaxing international tension "we will welcome Hammershuld in China."

Chairman Wiley of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee says that if Hammershuld fails in his mission to free the Americans, the United States will undoubtedly ask the United Nations to use force.

The U.N.'s General Assembly today ended its 9th session after rejecting Communist attacks on American policy in the Far East. The Assembly also agreed to hold its 10th birthday meeting in San Francisco next June.

The Defense Department today made public its new military manpower program...designed to hold our active armed forces down to "reasonable size".. and to build-up a reserve of 3 million men. I'd like to review this program in a few minutes.

And the Russians charged today that a reported statement by American General Stevenson on atomic weapons is "incompatible" with relations between our two countries. Stevenson, commander of the 49th air division, based in Great Britain, is alleged to have said that some of his bombers ..to quote the Russians..."were intended to delay atomic blows by Russia...and this task was given to the division two and a half years ago." The Russians want to know how we "evaluate" the statement. There is no comment yet from the State Department.

The Russians also continued their efforts to try to kill ratification of the western agreement to re-arm West Germany. Moscow has sent at least seven European governments notes expressing displeasure over their absence at the Russian-sponsored conference on uropean security. Moscow accused all seven of the supporting what it calls "the dangerous remilitarization of Germany."

At the same time, the foreign, defense and finance ministers of the North Atlantic Treaty countries, agreed today to use atomic weapons to defend western Europe--if necessary. They agreed on just who shall decide when atomic weapons are to be used...but there is no specific announcement on this yet.

The British say they will make an annual payment of almost 138-million dollars at the end of the year as the principal and interest on a four and - a-half-billion dollar loan we granted them in 1946.

The doctors attending the ailling Pope Pius say his pulse is too rapid and they are concerned over his steady weakening in the last few days.

And Catholic officials in Austria are still trying to get more information on the report that Joseph Cardinal Mindzenty has been released from jail in Communist Hungary.

In Washington today, Chairman Straws of the atomic energy committee said he regrets that the controversial Dixon-Yates contract was not negotiated directly with the Tennessee Valley Authority. But he defended the arrangement and said there is no evidence of a plan to destroy T.V.A..

The House un-American activities committee today asked the Justice Department to consider prosecuting the National Resistance Party. The committee considers this New York orgaizaation "Avowedly fascist"...and engaged in anti-Semitic and pro-Nazi activities that are "clearly subversive and un-American." The committee adds: "Subversion cannot be combatted by subversion. Those who would support the extreme right today do as great a violence to our national institutions as do those on the extreme left.

The military manpower program unveiled in Washington today is designed to supply the United States with sufficient manpower to meet the nation's needs as a continental and world power for at least the next four years. The plan ill affect every able-bodied young man who reaches the age of eighteen, and he is subject either to the draft and a service in the armed forces, ar a six-month training period. Both services have to be followed by long terms in the reserve. The objective is to give the United States a reserve of five million men. Three million of these will be build for the most part from the men who take the six months training. They have to do drills and attend summer encampmnets similar to the National Guard duty. The other too million are made up of men who have completed active service in the armed forces. Reserve duty for the train es lasts nine and a half years, and lasts six years for those who put in the minimum time at active service.

It should be understood that this is a program, it is not yet a law. Congress has repeatedly rejected universal military service. In 1951 it did approve the principle of six months military training, by providing that it could not be introduced without a new law by Congress, and Congress deciding what manpower should be made available. The new program will now be put into a bill and laid efore the new Congress.

Since less than half the oung men in the affected age group will be serving, the Pentagon does not like to call this universal military training. But the term really depends on the physical standard that is set. Within three years about everyone meeting the physical standard will be included in one or the other of the groups.

A proximately 100,000 men a year are to be allowed to elect military training instead of the draft. At the same time the size of the army is to be reduced by 100,000 men, so that number of those actually under the colors is not much changed. Just what is entailed in the matter of cost was not made clear at the long Pentagon news conference this afternoon. There is a saving of about half-a-billion dollars a year in reducing the army by 100,000 men. And it costs about 350 million dollars to train the same number of men under the new program. But the reserve costs mount as the numbers grow, so a comparison is hard to make. Present reserve costs already come to 700 million, and it may be a good guess that the new program will come to about one billion, two hundred million a year. That, of course, is much cheaper than maintaining a large standing army.

The Pentagon has changed its mind about six months being long enough to train a man for the reserve. Improved training methods have been worked out. Now it is expected to give each man thirteen weeks basic training, and then fill the rest of his time with specialized training.

If it comes to forming combat units from the reserve in a national emergency this will need four to six months. It used to take a year, starting from scratch with untrained men. It may be asked if four to six months are not dangerously long. But President Eisenhower answered the question at his news conference this week. He said that the combat units formed from mobilized reserves would be used overseas. Hence they would have to be transported. It will take time to line up shipping and escort vessels, and in this time the reserves can complete their training for combat duty.

One feature of the program is that it closes a door through which men habe been able to avoid the draft by joining the National Guard. By doing this they could stay at home, attended weekly guard drills and summer encampments. They still are to be allowed to join the National Guard, but only after taking their full six months of training.

Final figures as to how many will be drafted and how many accepted for the training program are not fixed..It depends on the response of the young men themselfes. If too many of them choose the draft, the surplus will be put into the training group. If too many choose the training program, the draft will be applied to the surplus. It is not predictable how the two choises will strike the young American. Men in the army get $78 a month and allowances in regular pay. The may may be increased by the new Congress. The trainee will get $30 a month, and a per diem while doing active duty in the reserve. Only the drafted man has the same chance of promotion as anyone in the regular services, and when he is through he has his G.I. Bill of rights and Veterans' benefits. And his obligation in the reserve is limited, and it is a year-and-a-half-shorter. But he can't escape reserve duty without forfeiting his Veteran's benefits and an honorable discharge.

The plan, if adopted, is to be re-examined in 1959, but the principles can be applied as long as world contitions require. No more eloquent and dismaying message as to the state of the world today, and perhaps for years to come, can well be formulated and sent into every American home. The program was put off a year ago because it was election year. Now there's no excuse to put off a decision about it.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a minute with the Word for Today. but first, a word from Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: In the matter of national service it can no longer be said, as Horace did: "I do service that I may have a horse to ride and be fed by a Prince." Presumably the men who drafted this complex proposal were familiar with these words by Plutarch: "Nor are we to use living creatures like old shoes, or dishes, and throw them away when they are worn out or broken with service."

Good Night and Good Luck.

Monday December 20, 1954

This is the news:

The Russians have threatened to scrap their mutual assistance treaty with Great Britain. Moscow says, if the British ratify the Paris agreements to re-arm Western Germany, then the Russians would cancel the treaty, that still has eight years to run. This latest Soviet move to try to kill the allied decision to re-arm west Germany, came after a similar note had been sent to Paris. The Russians say they'll consider British approval of the agreement to re-arm west Germany "a gross violation" of the British-Soviet treaty signed in 1942. The House of Commons already has approved the agreement. It now needs cabinet action to make it official. And a British spokesman says the British intend to go ahead with it.

In Paris today, the National Assembly gave Premier Mendez-France a vote of confidence on his Indo-China policies.. a vote ~~which~~ (WHICH) led to consideration of the treaty to re-arm Germany. I'd like to discuss this situation in a few minutes. During today's debate, the Premier said that the United States will contribute about 400-million dollars in 1955 to the economic and military build-up of South Viet Nam.

Belgium's Premier, Paul Henri Spaak, said today that peaceful co-existence between East and West will be possible "for rather a long period" once equilibrium is re-established in Europe by ratification of the agreement to re-arm west Germany.

And Secretary of State Dulles, returning to Washington from the North Atlantic Treaty meeting in Paris, said:"It was a good meeting. We made some very important decisions unanimously and in good spirits.

The Defense Department announced today that it will cut draft calls in half beginning in February. The call announced at 20-thousand men, will be cut to 10 or 11-thousand. And this lowered draft quota will be maintained at least through next June. Secretary of Defense Wilson also announced plans to start a gradual reduction of 403-thousand men in the armed forces over the next 18 months. He says the First Marine Division, now stationed in Korea, will be withdrawn and assigned to the Pacific Coast in the near future. It will be replaced in Korea by an army division now stationed in Japan. Wilson says that by the end of next June our military strength will number two million 940-thousand persons..that's 100-thousand less than the previously announced strength planned for the end of the 1955 fiscal year.

The Army has named Lieut. General Anthony C. McAuliffe to be commanding general of American army forces in Europe. General McAuliffe was the combat leader in the battle of the bulge during World War Two.

In Stockholm today, Dag Hammershuld, the secretary-general of the United Nations, assumed his seat as a member of the Royal Swedish Academy...replacing his late father. Yesterday Hammershuld conferred for two and a half hours with the Communist Chinese ambassador to Sweden on his trip to Red China. Hammershuld is scheduled to go to Peiping after Christmas to seek the release of 11 American airmen still held by the Chinese Reds.

Another Chinese Nationalist newspaper--on Formosa--today bitterly attacked reports that we might be willing to exchange 35 Chinese students now in this country...for the 11 airmen held by the Chinese Reds. The "China News" says this would "display weakness in moral and ethical principles." And the Nationalist foreign minister said in Washington that he thinks the Communists will release all the eleven flyers "after they get what they want."...."some sort of price, political or otherwise."

The Vatican City newspaper announced today that Pope Pius will give a Christmas eve message and blessing to the world by radio. But because of his illness he will not deliver his annual appeal for peace.

In Athens, (Greek) King Paul told his people that no power on earth can prevent Cyrpus winning the right to determine its own political future. He urged the Greek people to be calm..and to remember that friendly nations..Britain and the United States..guarantee the safety of Greece. The King spoke after a series of anti-British riots on Cyprus.

The Roman Catholic press service in Austria says it has additional information to support its (original report) that Josef Cardinal Mindsenty has been freed from a Hungarian prison.

The State Department today rejected Hungary's protest against a baloon barrage which has spilled some 15-million "freedom leaflets" over Hungarian territory each month. We disclaim responsibility for the baloon leaflets that are sponsored by private American organizations... "The Crusade for freedom" and "Radio free europe."

In Cleveland there is still no verdict in the Sheppard trial.

Edward R. Murrow: December 20, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

The rest of December will be a time of great meaning and possibly great danger to the Western world. Before the year ends the French Assembly will decide the fate of the treaties bringing the West German Republic into the NATO defense system. And in Peiping Secretary General Hammarskjold will have learned whether his mission on behalf of the imprisoned American flyers has any hope of success. With a test of strength and influence in both Asia and Europe, these days may ~~set~~ influence the course of history for some time to come.

In each area the West is in danger because it may suffer a serious reverse. If the French Assembly should reject the Paris accords that would deal a crippling blow to Western unity in Europe. And if the Chinese Communists refuse to budge on the prisoner question the United Nations will sink in world esteem, and in United States opinion in particular.

The vote of confidence in the French Assembly today was about a small French credit to the three Indochinese states. It does not appear to have much of a bearing on the Western crisis in Europe and Asia. But it does have a direct bearing. For if Mendes-France had been beaten over this detail of $25,000,000 the German treaties would have been lost then and there.

For it is taken for granted that only Mendes-France as premier can win a majority in the Assembly for re-arming Germany. He intended the vote on Indochina to count as a foretaste of the coming test on the Paris accords. That is why he insisted on a black-and-white endorsement on an issue in Indochina that by itself was not specially significant.

The premier's majority today was the largest he has received since early October. It was an unexpected majority that came after prophecies of an exceedingly close result, a victory by only two votes, or, if it could be managed, of a single one. His dramatic victory was assured when the M.R.P., the Catholic party, that had sponsored the European army and defense community, decided to abstain.

The vote was 310 to 172, with 146 abstentions. Probably all the abstainers were hostile to Mendes-France, and if they had voted against him he would have fallen. But Western unity also would have crumbled. And it was this knowledge that led so many of his opponents to abstain. And the M.R.P. also bitterly insists that Mendes-France must lead the fight for the treaties and so be the only man who wears the responsibility of giving the Germans a national army.

The Assembly debate today caught that body in one of its poorer moments.

This came when a Socialist deputy, announcing his party was supporting the Premier, declared that Mendes-France certainly has the country behind him. The assertion brought on a chorus of boos and cat-calls, as though it had become somehow blameworthy for a French Premier to enjoy the public loyalty Mendes-France has built up.

One of the arguments against the Premier's Indochina policy was that he was subservient to the United States and had lost parts of both north and south Vietnam by yielding to Washington pressure. The United States also was attacked for cutting its aid to the French military in Indochina to $100,000,000. The Premier vigorously denied that the United States was trying to replace French influence in Indochina, and spoke with the benefit of his talks with Secretary Dulles in the last days in Paris. As to the figure of American aid he gave the assurance that the United States is putting $400,000,000 into Indochina this year for military and economic purposes.

As soon as the vote had been taken on Indochina, the Assembly launched on the long-delayed consideration of the Paris accords regarding Germany. The reports of the eleven committees that have dealt with the accords had to come first. A final vote on the treaties may not be possible before Christmas.

The debate will be outspoken and emotional. When the Defense Community was beaten in the Assembly it was on a procedural issue, not on the substance of the treaties. Little passion was expended. Now the substance will be given a full airing. And in such an atmosphere the unexpected can happen. But if it doesn't, the final vote on the treaties may be pretty much the same as on Indochina today.

All observers in Paris agree that the barrage of Soviet notes in the last days is not going to change the outcome. If anything, the Kremlin may have stiffened French determination. This has been the busiest Soviet note-writing season, with at least fifteen communications going to the states, large and small, all designed to obstruct the treaties. Both France and Britain have been threatened with cancellation of their treaties of alliance with the Soviet Union, and a number of smaller states have been castigated for refusing to attend the Moscow conference on a mutual defense organization. This feverish diplomacy is without precedent. Some onlookers are worried that it is to be followed by a stormy time in East-West relations, and end the recent period of improved Soviet behavior.

The only way the Kremlin is sure of beating German re-armament is to offer genuinely democratic German unity at the price of giving up communist domination of East Germany. If this were in prospect one could think of a hundred ways of preparing for it, but not one of them would be to write so many blistering notes to nearly all states on the Soviet horizon.

This, ~~it would seem~~, is the season for diplomats as well as laymen, to write their notes early and mail them fast. The Russians have become quite expert at this. And for a stock answer, these lines from Shakespeare might serve well: "What you have said, I will consider; what you have to say, I will with patience hear - and find a time both meet to hear and answer such high things."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

MONDAY, DECEMBER 20, 1954
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

The Russians have threatened to scrap their mutual assistance treaty with Great Britain. Moscow says if the British ratify the Paris agreements to re-arm Western Germany then the Russians would cancel the treaty that still has eight years to run. This latest Soviet move to try to kill the allied decision to re-arm west Germany came after a similar note had been sent to Paris. The Russians say they'll consider British approval of the agreement to re-arm west Germany "a gross violation of the British Soviet treaty signed in 1942. The House of Commons already has approved the agreement. It now needs cabinet action to make it official. And a British spokesman says the British intend to go ahead with it.

In Paris today, the National Assembly gave Premier Mindez-France a vote of confidence on his Indo-China policies...a vote which led to consideration of the treaty to re-arm Germany. I'd like to discuss this situation in a few minutes. During today's debate, the Premier said the United States will contribute about 400-million dollars in 1955 to the economic and military build-up of South Viet Nam.

Belgium's Premier, Paul Henri Spaak said today that peaceful co-existence between East and West will be possible "for rather a long period" once equilibrium is re-established in Europe by ratification of the agreement ot re-arm west Germany.

And Secretary of State Dulles, returning to Washington from the North Atlantic Treaty meeting in Paris, said: "It was a good meeting. We made some very important decisions unanimously and in good spirits.

The Defense Department announced today that it will cut draft calls in half beginning in February. The call announced at 20-thousand men, will be cut to 10 or 11-thousand. And this lowered draft quota will be maintained at least through next June. Secretary of Defense Wilson also announced plans to start a gradual reduction of 403-thousand men in the armed forces over the next 18 months. He says the First Marine Division, now stationed in Korea, will be withdrawn and assigned to the Pacific Coast in the near future. It will be replaced in Korea by an army division now stationed in Japan. Wilson says that by the end of next June our military strength will number two million 940-thouuand persons...that's 100-thousand less than the previously announced strength planned for the end of the 1955 fiscal year.

The Army has named Lieutenant General Anthony C. McAuliffe to be commanding general of American arm forces in Europe. General McAuliffe was the combat leader in the battle of the bulge.during World War Two.

In Stockholm today, Dag Hammershuld, the secretary-general of the United Nations, assumed his seat as a member of the Royal Sweedish Academy..replacing his late father. Yesterday Hammershuld conferred for two and a half hours with the Communist Chinese ambassador to Sweeden on his trip to Red China. Hammershuld is scheduled to go to Peiping after Christmas to seek the release of 11 American airmen still held by the Chinese Reds.

Another Chinese Nationalist newspaper--on Formosa--today bitterly attacked reports that we might be willing to exchange 35 Chinese students now in this country..for the 11 airmen helf by the Chinese Reds. The "China News" says this would "display weakness in moral and ethical principles." And the Nationalist foreign minister said in Washington that he thinks the Communists will release all the eleven flyers "after they get what they want." ..."some sort of price, political or otherwise."

The Vatican City newspaper announced today that Pope Pius will give a Christmas eve message and blessing to the world by radio. But because of his illness he will not deliver his annual appeal for peace.

In Athens, Greece, King Paul told his people that no power on earth can prevent Cyprus winning the right to determine its own political future. He urged the Greek people to be calm...and to remember that friendly nations... Britain and the United States..guarantee the safety of Greece. The King spoke after a series of anti-British riots on Cyrpus.

The Roman Catholic press service in Austria says it has additional information to support its original report that Josef Cartinal Mindsenty has been freed from a Hungarian prison.

The State Department today rejected Hungary's protest against a baloon barrage which has spilled some 15-million "freedom leaflets" over Hungarian territory each month. We disclaim responsibility for the baloon leaflets that are sponsored by private American orgainzations..."The Crusade for Freedom and Radio Free Europe."

In Cleveland there is still no verdict in the Sheppard trial.

The rest of December will be a time of great meaning and possibly great danger to the Western world. Before the year ends the French Assembly will decide the fate of the treaties bringing the West German Republic into the NATO defense system. And in Peiping, Secretary General Hammerskjold will have learned whether his mission on behalf of the imprisoned American flyers as any hope of success. With a test of strength and influence in both Asia and Europe, these days may influence the course of history for some time to come.

In each area the West in in danger because it may suffer a serious reverse. If the French Assembly should reject the Paris accords that would deal a crippling blow to Western unity in Europe. And if the Chinese Ge-Communists refuse to budge on the prisoner question the United Nations will sink in world esteem, and in United States opinion in particular.

The vote of confidence in the French Assembly today was about a small French credit to the three Indochinese states. It does not appear to have much of a bearing on the Western crisis in Europe and Asia. But it does have a direct bearing. For if Mendes-France had been beaten over this detail of $25,000, 000 the German treaties would have been lost then and there. For it is taken for granted that only Mendes-France as premier can win a majority in the Assembly for re-arming Germany. He intended the vote on Indochina to count as a foretaste of the coming test on the Paris accords. That is why he insisted on a black-and-white endorsement on an issue in Indo-China that by itself was not specially significant.

The premier's majority today was the largest he has received since early October. It was an unexpected majority that came after prophecies of an exceedingly close result, a victory by only two votes, or, if it could be managed, of a single one. His dramatic victory was assured when the M.R.P., the Catholic party, that had sponsored the European army and defense community, decided to abstain.

The vote was 310 to 172, with 146 abstentions. Probably all the abstainers were hostile to Mendes-France, and if they had voted against him he would have fallen. But Western unity also would have crumbled. And it was this knowledge that led so many of his opponents to abstain. And the M.R.P. also bitterly insists that Mendes-France must lead the fight for the treaties and so be the only man who wears the responsibility of giving the Germans a national army.

The Assembly debate today caught that body in one of its poorer moments. This came when a Socialist deputy, announcing his party was supporting the Premier, declared that Mendes-France certainly has the country behind him, The assertion brought on a chorus of boos and cat-calls, as though it had become somehow blameworthy for a French Premier to enjoy the public loyalty Mendes-France has built up.

One of the arguments against the Premier's Indochina policy was that he was subservient to the United States and had lost parts of both north and south Vietnam by yielding to Washington pressure. The United States also was attacked for cutting its aid to the French military in Indochina to $100,000,000. The Premier vigorously denied that the United States was trying to replace French influence in Indochina, ans spoke with the benefit of his talks with Secretary Dulles in the last days in Paris. As to the figure of American aid he gave the assurance that the United States is putting $400,000,000 into Indochina this year for military and economic purposes.

As soon as the vote had been taken on Indochina, the Assembly launched on the long-delayed consideration of the Paris accords regarding Germany. The reports of the eleven committees that have dealt with the accords had to come first. A final vote on the treaties may not be possible before Christmas.

The debate will be outspoken and emotional. When the Defense Community was beaten in the Assembly it was on a procedural issue, not on the substance of the treaties. Little passion was expended. Now the substance will be given a full airing. And in such an atmosphere the unexpected can happen. But if it doesn't, the final vote on the treaties may be pretty much the same as on Indochina today.

All observers in Paris agree that the barrage of Soviet notes in the last days is not going to change the outcome. In anything, the Kremlin may have stiffened French determination. This has been the busiest Soviet note-writing season, with at least fifteen communications going to the states, large and small, all designed to obstruct the treaties. Both Frnnce and Britain have been threatened with cancellation of their treaties of alliance with the Soviet Union, and a number of smaller states have been castigated for refusing to attend the Moscow conference on a mutual defense organization. This feverish diplomacy is without precedent. Some onlookers are worried that it is to be followed by a stormy time in East-West relations, and end the recent period of improved Soviet behavior. The only way the Kremlin is sure of beating German re-armament is to offer genuinely democratic German unity at the price of giving up Communist domination of East Germany. If this were in prospect one could think of a hundred ways of preparing for it, but not one of them would be to write so many blistering note to nearly all states on the Soviet horizon.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a moment with the Word for Today. but first, a word from Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: This, is the season for diplomats as well as laymen, to write their notes early and mail them fast. The Russians have become quite expert at this. And for a stock answer, these lines from Shakespeare might serve: "What you have said, I will consider; what you have to say, I will with patience hear - and find a time both to meet and to hear and answer such high things."

Good Night and Good Luck.

Tuesday Dec 21, 1954.

This is the news:

Secretary of State Dulles said today the Russians have not changed their basic policy of world domination even though they've shifted from a cooing dove to a tough-talking exterior. And he said any Soviet attempt to invade West Europe would be thrown back at the threshold. Mr. Dulles told reporters that the recent North Atlantic Treaty meeting in Paris agreed that Soviet policy continues undiminished in "its aim of weakening and dividing the western nations." The NATO group also agreed that tactical atomic weapons gradually will become the chief means of defending western Europe. He said the question of using any weapons of mass destruction for strategic purposes must be decided individually. And the Secretary said the reason we are now planning to reduce our armed forces is the belief that we can find better ways of defending against attack. This appears to be in conflict with Defense Secretary Wilson's explanation that we cut our armed forces manpower because of better opportunities for peace. I'd like to discuss this situation in a few minutes. Mr. Dulles told reporters he doubts that there would be any affect on western nations should Moscow carry our its threat to junk its treaties with Britain and France..when West Germany is re-armed.

And the British today curtly dismissed the Moscow warning (RECEIVED) [redacted] yesterday. The foreign office issued a statement saying in part: "Her Majesty's government will continue to pursue their chosen policy of consolidating western European unity." And one British diplomat said of the Russian threat to cancel the Anglo-Soviet agreement: "The Russians have thrown another boomerang."

Today the British signed an agreement to bind their country to Europe in a treaty of Association with the European coal and steel community.

And the French National Assembly has now started debate on the ratification of the Paris treaties on German rearmament.

The Vatican announced today that for the first time in almost 16 years the ailing Pope Pius will not be able to receive Vatican diplomats during the Christmas holidays. The Vatican press office says the Pope's "slow, gradual development continues."

United Nations Secretary General Hammershuld is now flying back to this country from Stockholm. He is not expected to make his trip to Peiping..until after he has stopped in India to confer with Prime Minister Nehru.

Yugoslavia's Marshal Tito is now visiting in India and today he called for "active co-existence" based on an agreed settlement of the world's outstanding problems. Tito was warmly received before a joint meeting of members of the Indian parliament.

On Formosa, the Nationalist China Daily News criticized what it called "the radical change undergone by President Eisenhower in his otherwise firm anti-Communist stand." The agency says it is disappointed that the President "who once advocated liberation of enslaved peoples behind the Iron Curtain" has now shifted in favor of what the Nationalists call "the Soviet-invented theory of peaceful co-existence."

In Saigon, Indo-China, American General Collins has turned over a check for 28 and a half million dollars...the first direct American contribution to the non-Communists in Viet Nam. [This will be used to help a half million refugees from the North.]

In Washington, Labor Secretary Mitchell says half of our adult population may be jobless 20 years from now...unless we quickly overcome prejudices against hiring older workers. Mitchell says the number of persons 45 years or older is steadily increasing. Its estimated that by 1975 they will increase nearly 40 per cent to make-up half the nation's adult population. The Labor Secretary says: "unless something is done to give them job opportunities, an estimated half of (over) adult population will be condemned to a life of economic uselessness."

The Justice Department says the Eastman Kodak Co. has agreed to sell its amateur color film without including a processing charge. This settled an anti-trust suit brought by the Department. In the past Eastman has included a processing charge in the selling price of its color film, preventing other photo finishers from competing for the processing business.

[redacted]

The Weather Bureau, in a special Christmas report, says many millions of Americans will wake up to a white Christmas this year. Snow is predicted on Christmas Day for most of the northeastern part of the nation..as well as for the Rocky Mountain area, the central plateau, the Siera and Cascade country.

And in Cleveland, Dr. Samuel ~~Shperhord~~ SHEPARD was found guilty of second degree murder of his wife, last July 4th. He was sentenced to life in the Ohio State Penitentiary. He'll be eligible for parole after ten years.

Edward R. Murrow: December 21, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

Yesterday's announcement of a big cut-back in American armed forces came in the midst of the sound and fury of the Kremlin's offensive against the re-arming of Germany. That, of course, was highly ~~coincidental~~ coincidental, one of those coincidences that add a touch of irony to the contemporary scene. Secretary Wilson said that President Eisenhower had personally ordered the cuts, and that they reflect the Administration's belief that the threat of global war has decreased. Actually there need be no contradiction between this belief and the Kremlin's noisy threats. This clamor may turn out to be a substitute for action, in line with well-known psychological principles. And the army cuts were decided some time ago.

But the reductions announced yesterday do represent a major change in American defense thinking. Just what has made the change possible and just what it amounts to, are questions it should be simple to answer. But they are not being answered. Perhaps it is in the very nature of the cold war that elementary factors of national power should be kept mysterious. Secretary Wilson said the cutbacks are the result of the decrease of the threat of general war. It is just possible that President Eisenhower knows about moves to improve world relations that can't yet be talked about. It may even be that the United States itself must openly decrease its armed forces to promote a reduction of world tensions. However improbable that sounds, there is an outside chance that it may be true.

But aside from this possibility the reduction in forces is one of a number of fundamental changes in defense theory. We have President Eisenhower's word for it that a world war with nuclear weapons can't be won, and would be catastrophic for both sides. That rules out "massive retaliation" as a chosen action, except in a most dire emergency, and the massive retaliation is confined chiefly to its preventive capabilities. And since both sides have similar nuclear weapons, this deterrent power itself is deterred. So a new power situation emerges. Since the East no longer can safely use military force to produce national or imperial expansion, open aggression is out of date and is not to be expected. Its place has been taken by infiltration. Some room may be left, too, for small wars, the so-called brush fires.

If this is a correct reading of the new facts in power relationships, the big question of the future would be how to deal with infiltration and brush fires. And just as this question looms up the Defense Department comes out with the drastic cut-back of the ground forces. Whatever it accomplishes, it does not equip us for localized action in the more exposed areas of danger.

One of the striking changes in thinking about defense came to light in Secretary Dulles's talks in Paris last week. He mollified the French about the withdrawal of most of their army from Indochina. He did this by propounding the theory that the independence of the Associated States of Indochina is collectively guaranteed, and the task does not fall on either France or the United States as individual states. It falls to all the signatories of the Manila pact. This is the organization that is expected to become a Far Eastern replica of NATO. Acting on this theory France will reduce its forces in Vietnam from 150,000 to around 30,000 by the end of next year. The Vietnam army is to have no more than 80,000, (certainly not an impressive size.) But this can be done because the protection of the region is taken over by Manila pact powers. If one asks how they intend to do it, part of the answer is ready. The Air Arm of the Seventh Fleet is to be the immediate instrument of the South East Asian treaty organization. This is news of the first order and promises that the Manila pact is about to become more than a gleam in the eye. Since its next meeting has been announced for Bangkok in February, rapid development is to be expected.

But in an era of infiltration and brush fires, air power by itself cannot cope with the dangers. This new theory about the collective guarantee in Southeast Asia would be meaningless without the accompanying programs of adequate economic aid. With this accompaniment, however, the formula is understandable and can be translated into reality, granted other conditions permit.

But a word of caution is in place. Even if the economic program is arranged, and even if the Manila pact takes full form, Southeast Asia cannot be saved by these means alone. In Vietnam, for instance, leaders have to be found who can create a stable state that can accept and direct economic aid. The situation in Vietnam is extremely bad. Money and soldiers cannot redeem a country if it doesn't care to shoulder part of its own ~~XXXXXXXXXXXXX~~ responsibilities.

That means that pacts and regiments and dollars and good will cannot remove every danger. This is a precarious world in which even the wisest leaders have to take chances. The cut-back of the armed forces may be a risk, but it probably is no greater risk than not cutting back. It allows substantial savings and these can help pay the economic costs of building up the new nations so that they can help themselves. The big risk at the moment is that there may not be time enough.

~~We are living through tense times. And~~ In a world neither at war nor peace, it requires a maximum human effort to keep from annihilating ourselves. Eleanor Roosevelt once remarked: "We will have to want peace, want it enough to pay for it, before it becomes an accepted rule." And toward this end, Thomas Jefferson advised: "Nothing gives one person so much advantage over another as to remain always cool and unruffled under all circumstances."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

Yesterday's announcement of a big cut-back in American armed forces came in the midst of the sound and fury of the Kremlin's offensive against the rearming of Germany. That, of course, was high by coincidental, one of those coincidences that add ~~the~~ a touch of irony to the contemporary scene. ~~s~~ Secretary Wilson said that President Eisenhower had personally ordered the cuts and that they reflect the Administration's belief that the threat of global war has decreased. Actually there need be no contradiction between this belief and the Kremlin's noisy threats. ~~These~~ This clamor may turn out to be a substitute for action, in line with wellknown psychological principles. And the army cuts were decided some time ago. ~~The withdrawal of another division from the Far East is the continuation of a redeployment of American forces announced by the President a year ago.~~

¶ But the reductions announced yesterday do represent a major change in American defense ~~policy~~ thinking. Just what has made the change possible and just what it amounts to, are questions it should be simple to answer. But they are not being answered. Perhaps it is in the very nature of the cold war that elementary factors of national power should be kept mysterious. Secretary Wilson said the cutbacks are the result of the decrease of the threat of general war. It is just possible that President Eisenhower knows about moves to improve world relations that can't yet be talked about. It may even be that the United States itself must openly decrease its armed forces to promote a reduction of world tensions. However improbable that sounds, there is an outside chance that it may be true, has [redacted]d.

¶ But aside from this possibility the reduction in forces is one of a number of fundamental changes in defense theory. We have President Eisenhower's word for it that a world war with nuclear weapons can't be won, and would be catastrophic for both sides. That rules out massive retaliation as a chosen action except in a most dire emergency, and the massive retaliation is confined to its preventive capabilities. And since both sides have similar nuclear weapons, this deterrent power itself is deterred. So a new power situation emerges. Since the East no longer can use military force on a large scale to produce national or imperial expansion, open aggression is out of date and is not to be expected. Its place has been taken by Some room may be left, too, for small wars, the socalled brush-fires.

¶ If this is a correct reading of the new facts in power relationships, the big question of the future would be how to deal with infiltration and brush-fires. And just as this question looms up the Defense Department comes out with the drastic cut-back of the ground forces. Whatever it accomplishes, it does not equip us for localized action in the more exposed areas of danger.

¶ One of the striking changes in thinking about defense came to light in Secretary Dulles's talks in Paris last week. He mollified the French about the withdrawal of most of their army from Indochina. He did this by prepounding the theory that the independence of the Associated States of Indochina is collectively guaranteed and the task does not fall on either France or the United States as individual states. It falls to all the signatories of the Manila pact. This is the Far-eastern organization that is expected to become a Far-eastern replica of NATO. Acting on this theory France will reduce its forces in Vietnam from 150,000 to around 30,000 by the end of next year. The Vietnam army is to have no more than 80,000, certainly not an impressive size. But this can be done because the protection of the region is taken over by Manila pact powers. If one asks how they intend to do it, part of the answer is ready. The air arm of the Seventh fleet is to be the ~~first~~ immediate instrument of the South East Asian ~~[illegible]~~ treaty organization.

This is news of the first order and promises that the Manila pact is about to become more than a gleam in the eye. Since its next meeting ~~is to be held in~~ has been announced for Bangkok in February rapid development is to be expected.

But in an era of infiltration and brush-fires air power by itself cannot cope with the dangers. This new theory about the collective guarantee in Southeast Asia would be meaningless without the accompanying program of adequate economic aid. ~~[illegible]~~ With this accompaniment however, the formula is understandable and ~~it~~ can be translated into reality, granted ~~the economic aid program comes [illegible]~~ other conditions permit

But a word of caution is in place. Even if the economic program is arranged, and if the Manila pact takes full form, Southeast Asia cannot be saved by these means alone. In Vietnam, for instance, leaders have to be found who can ~~make~~ create a stable state ~~and~~ that can accept and direct ~~the~~ economic aid. The situation in Vietnam is extremely bad. Money and soldiers cannot redeem ~~the~~ a country. that doesn't care to shoulder its own part of the responsibilities. And this only serves as a reminder that not every weakness can be strengthened by collective action

That is to say that pacts and regiments and dollars and good will cannot remove every danger. This is a precarious world in which even the wisest leaders have to take chances. The cut-back of the armed forces may be a risk, but it probably is no greater risk than not cutting back. It allows substantial savings and these can help pay the economic costs of building up the new nations so that they can help themselves. The big risk at the moment is that there may not be time enough.

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

TUESDAY, DECEMBER 21, 1954
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

Secretary of State Dulles said today the Russians have not changed their basic policy of world domination even though they've shifted from a cooing dove to a tough-talking exterior. And he said any Soviet attempt to invade West Europe would be thrown back at the threshold. Mr. Dulles told reporters that the recent North Atlantic Treaty meeting in Paris agreed that Soviet policy continues undiminished in "its aim of weakening and dividing the western nations." The NATO group also agreed that tactical atomic weapons gradually will become the chief means of defending western Europe. He said the question of using any weapons of mass destruction for strategic purposes must be decided individually. And the Secretary said the reason we are now planning to reduce our armed forces is the belief that we can find better ways of defending against attack. This appears to be in conflict with Defense Secretary Wilson's explanation that we cut our armed forces manpower because of better opportunities for peace. I'd like to discuss this situation in a few minutes. Mr. Dulles told reporters he doubts that there would be any affect on western nations should Moscow carry our its threat to junk its treaties with Britain and France..when West Germany is re-armed.'

And the British today curtly dismissed the Moscow warning received yesterday. The foreign office issued a statement saying in part: "Her Majesty's government will continue to pursue their chosen policy of consilidating western European unity." And one British diplomat said of the Russian threat to cancel the Anglo-Soviet agreement: The Russians have thrown another boomerang."

Today the British signed an agreement to bind their country to Europe in a treaty of Association with the European coal and steel community.

And the French National Assembly has now started debate on the ratification of the Paris treaties on German rearmament.

The Vatican announced today that for the first time in almost 16 years the ailing Pope Pius will not be able to receive Vatican diplomats during the Christmas holidays. The Vatican press office says the Pope's "slow, gradual development continues."

United Nations Secretary General Hammershuld is now flying back to this country from Stockholm. He is not expected to make his trip to Peiping ... until after he has stopped in India to confer with Prime Minister Nehru.

Yugoslavia's Marshal Tito is now visiting in India and today he called for "active co-existence" based on an agreed settlement of the world's outstanding problems. Tito was warmly received before a joint meeting of members of the Indian parliament.

On Formosa, the Nationalist China Daily News criticized what it called "the radical change undergone by President Eisenhower in his otherwise firm anti-Communist stand." The agency says it is disappointed that the President "who once advocated liberation of enslaved peoples behind the Iron Curtain" has now shifted in favor of what the Nationalists call "the Soviet-invented theory of peaceful co-existence."

In Saigon, Indo-China, American General Collins has turned over a check for 28 and a half million dollars...the first direct American contribution to the non-Communists in Viet Nam. This will be used to help a half million refugees from the North.

In Washington, Labor Secretary Mitchell says half of our adult population may be jobless 20 years from now...unless we quickly overcome prejudices against hiring older workers. Mitchell says the number of persons 45 years or older is steadily increasing. It's estimated that by 1975 they will increase nearly 40 per cent to make-up half the nation's adult population.

The Labor Secretary says: "unless something is done to give them job opportunities, an estimated half of our adult population will be condemmed to a life of economic uselessness."

The Justice Department says the Eastman Kodak Co. has agreed to sell its amateur color film without including a processing charge. This settled an anti-trust suit brought ay the Department. In the past Eastman has included a processing charge in the selling price of its color film, preventing other finishers from competing for the processing business.

The Weather Bureau, in s special Christmas report, says many millions of Americans will wake up to a white Christmas this year. Snow is precidted for most of the northeastern part of the nation...as well as for the Rocky Mountain area, the central plateau, the Sierra and Cascade country.

And in Cleveland, Dr. Samuel Sheppard was found guilty of second degree murder of his wife last July 4th. He was sentenced to life in the Ohio State Penitentiary. He'll be eligible for parole after ten years.

Yesterday's announcement of a big cut-back in American armed forces came in the midst of the sound and fury of the Kremlin's offensive against the re-arming of Germany. That, of course, was highly co-incidental, one of those coincidences that add a touch of irony to the contemporary scene. Secretary Wilson said that President Eisenhower had personally ordered the cuts, and that they reflect the Administration's bleief that the threat of global war has decreased. Actually there need be no contradiction between this belief and the Kremlin's noisy threats. This clamor may turn out to be a substitute for action, in line with well-known psychological principles. And the army cuts were decided some time ago.

But the reductions announced yesterday do represent a major change in American defense thinking . Just what has made the change possible and just what it amounts to, are questions it should be simple to answer. But they are not being answered. Perhaps it is in the very nature of the cold war that elementary factors of national power should be kept mystrious. Secretary Wilson said the cutbacks are the result of the decrease of the threat of general war. It is just possible that President Eisenhower knows about moves to improve world relations that can't yet be talked about. It may even be that the United States itself must openly decrease its armed forces to promote a reduction of world tensions. However improbable that sounds, there is an outside chance that it may be true.

But aside from this possibility the reduction in forces is one of a number of fundamental changes in defense theory. We have President Eisenhower's word for it that a world war with nuclear weapons can't be won, and would be catastrophic for both sides. That rules out "massive retaliation" as a chosen action, except in a most dire emergency, and the massive retaliation is confined chiefly to its preventive capabilities. And since both sides have similar nuclear weapons, this deterrent power itself is deterred. So a new power situation emerges. Since the East no longer can safely use military force to produce national or imperial expansion, open aggression is out of date and is not to be expected. Its place has been taken by infiltration. Some room may be left, too, for small wars, the so-called brush fires.

If this is a correct reading of the new facts in power relationships, the big question of the future would be how to deal with infiltration and brush fires. And just as this question looms up the Defense Department comes out with the drastic cut-back of the ground forces. whatever it accomplishes, it does not equip us for localized action in the more exposed areas of danger.

One of the striking changes in thinking about defense came to light in Secretary Dulles's talks in Paris last week. He mollified the French about the withdrawal of most of their army from Indochina. He did this by propounding the theory that the independence of the Associated States of Indochina is collectively guaranteed, and the task does not fall on either France or the United States as individual states. It falls to all the signatories of the Manila pact. This is the organization that is expected to become a Far Eastern replica of NATO. Acting on this theory France will reduce its forces in Vietnam from 150,000 to around 30,000 by the end of the next year. The Vietnam army is to have no more than 80,000, certainly not an impressive size. But this can be done because the protection of the region is taken over by Manila poct powers. If one asks how they intend to do it, part of the answer is ready. The Air Arm of the Seventh Fleet is to be.the immediate instuument of the South East Asian treaty organization. This is news of the first order and promises that the Manila pace is about to become more than a gleam in the eye. Since its next meeting has been announced for Bangkok in February, rapid developement is to be expected.

But in an era of infiltration and brush fires, air power by itself cannot cope with dangers. This new theory about the collective guarantee is Southeast Asia would be meaningless without the accompanying programs of adequate economic aid. With this accompaniment, however, the formula is understandable and can be translated into reality, granted other conditions permit.

But a word of caution is in place. Even if the economic program is arranged, and even if the Manila pact takes full form, Southeast Asia cannot be saved by these means alone. In Vietnam, for instance, leaders have to be found who can create a stable state that can accept and direct economic aid.

The situation in Vietnam is extremely bad. Money and soldiers cannot redeem a country if it doens't care to shoulder part of its own responsibilities.

That means that pacts and regiments and dollars and good will cannot remove every danger. This is a precarious world in which even the wisest leaders have to take chances. The cut-back of the armed forces may be a risk, but it probably is no greater risk than not cutting back. It allows substantial savings and these can help pay the economic costs of building up the new nations so that they can help themselves. The big risk at the moment is that there may not be time enough.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a moment with the Word for Today. But first, a word from Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: In a world neither at war nor peace, it requires a maximim human effort to keep from annihilating ourselves. Eleanor Roosevelt once remarked: "We will have to want peace, want it enough to pay for it, before it becomes an accepted rule." And toward this end, Thomas Jefferson advised: "Nothing gives one person so much advantage over another as to remain always cool and unruffled under all circumstances."

Good Night and Good Luck.

Wed, Dec 22, 1954

Edward R. Murrow
Quaker Hill
Pawling, New York

This is the news:

Dag Hammershuld returned to New York today and told reporters: he accomplished exactly what he wanted to do in conferring in Stockholm with the Chinese Communist ambassador. The secretary-general of the United Nations is not yet sure when he will go to Peiping to discuss the eleven American flyers imprisoned by the Chinese as so-called spies. But he said he has now discussed procedural arrangements for this conference.

The Vatican press office today made public a letter the ailing Pope Pius sent to China's Roman Catholics in October. It warned them to reists the Communist regime's puppet "national church." Today, the Pope took another automobile ride and a short walk in the Vatican garden.

The Soviet army's newspaper Red Star today accused Great BBritain of endangering the lives of the British people by trying to "unleash an atomic war against the Soviet Union." Red Star warns that British military leaders forget that "atomic bombs are especially for small countries with m dense populations."

(more)

British Foreign Secretary Eden told the House of Commons today that Russia's threat to the west is as strong as ever. He called for a steady military build-up of the North Atlantic alliance. Eden said:"Soviet policy is still aimed and confusing, dividing and weakening the west."

French Premier Mendez-France today told his National Assembly that if it rejects the treaty to re-arm Western Germany France may lose her status as a big power. He said:"If the Assembly takes the grave step of refusal to approve the treaty, there no longer will be any question of four power negotiations" with the Russians. In today's debate, former Defense Minister Jules Moch called the agreements to re-arm west Germany "strangely archaic and dangerously out of date." He did not indicate how he would vote. And former Premier Paul Reynaud, who said he will abstain, told the Assembly that a strong Germany might join the Russians and that Russian-German collussion "would mark the end of western Europe.

Winter blew into Europe today with near-hurricane winds And accompanied by raging seas this disabled or damaged more than a dozen ships.

(more)

In Washington today, Major General William M. Creasy, the chief army chemical officer, said it would be an "act of barbarism" to deny American troops the use of biological warfare in a future war. General Creasy, who is the army's authority on germ warfare, writes in the Army Information Digest, that modern developments have given germ warfare "a practicability if did not have before." He said germ warfare is now capable of defeating an enemy "with the least possible expenditure of American lives."

Democrats in Congress made it clear today that they will demand a full explanation of the Administration's plan to cut the manpower of our armed forces. Representative Rayburn, who becomes speaker of the House in the new Democratic congress, says he thinks the decision to reduce the armed fprces by 400-thousand men in 18 months, is "much too drastic." He feels defense appropriations should be increased rather than reduced. And Representative Inson, who is scheduled to become head of the armed services committee, says he wants Defense Secretary Wilson to explain why "it ' essary to reduce manpower." And Democratic Senator Mansfield

"If we are going to co-exist with Communists w t from a position of strength--if we want to survive."

The cost of living went up a fraction of a point in November. But the government says if you didn't buy a new car, your living costs actually went down. The new car models on the market in November, although selling at pretty much the same list price as last year's models, actually raised thecost of living index. That's because 1954 models had been selling at big discounts.

James Zellerbach, the chairman of the National Manpower Council, called on the President today and then told reporters Mr. Eisenhower is interested in the idea of exporting "brain power"...technical know-how... to underdeveloped nations. The President is said to feel that this should be done under a private enterprise program, rather than through the government's technical assistance program.

Nelson Rockefeller today was sworn in as a special presidential assistant...in charge of psychological warfare and the development of "understanding and co-operation almong all people." He takes over the duties of C.D. Jackson who resigned several months ago.

(more)

Joseph S. Petersen today pleaded guilty to using government secrets "in a matter prejudicial to the safety and interest" of the United States. Petersen, once a trusted employe of the secret National Security Agencym withdrew a previous plea of innocence in an Alexandria, Virginia court. He faces a possible sentence of ~~fm~~ up to ten years. Petersen told the court, through his counsel, that he had changed his plea for the best interests of the country.

And the Department of Agriculture said today that Wolf Ladejinsky, our agricultural attache in Tokyo for the last four years, does not meet technical standards and security requirements for persons holding his position. The department also said that someone who is closer to American 'arming operations would be better suited for the job than Ladejinsky. 'y yesterday Ambassador Allison in Tokyo said that Ladejinsky's rer damaging our prestige in the Orient. And the former agricul' f denied that he had ever belonged to two Communist fro

(more)

My colleague David Schoenbrun, who has made many reports to you from Paris through this program, is now home for the holidays. For the past three weeks he has been traveling across the country. And tonight I asked him to sum up some of hisimpressions. How do we look Dave?

(runs 5 mins return cue: A very merry Christmas and a happy New Year to you all)

That was David Schoenbrun, just back from Paris. This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a minute with the word etc.

word

Big — prosperous and worried.
I suppose when people get rich they start worrying about losing it —
My friends are all successful but few of them seem entitled to feel secure — although in the last few days they've been busy checking up as Christmas spirits start to rise. You know,

Its wonderful to be home for Christmas, doubly wonderful for a foreign correspondent, who has spent many Christmases away, and too many at war, or in places where Christmas is unknown. I have spent Christmas in a foxhole in the Ardennes forest..One Christmas I feasted on roast muttonat a Berber camp in the mountains of Morocco and the tribal chief served me the eye of the lamb as a special holiday morsel--- Id rather have turkey stuffing.One year I spent Christmas in Madrid and on Christmas morning watched the poor of the city emptying the garbage cans in search of a meal...Theyd have been grateful for the eye of a roast lamb.

~~The sight of these garbage pickers taught me to be grateful for all I have even though I dont get many Christmases at home.~~

But perhaps the strangest Christmas sight I ever saw struck me this year, on the trip home, about ten days ago, in that wonderland called Hollywood. I was driving down Sunset Boulevard on one of those rare days when the sun was actually shining in Los Angeles. I was thinking of how unChristmas-like it was in that city of palm trees and pastel stucco cottages. The stores were all decorated with red bunting and snow crystals but it looked unreal on the Strip ...and then I saw a sign that said "Christmas trees for sale" ...I turned into the street and there in a big open lot I saw a great forest of spruce and pine trees of every size ...and every one was bright pink..shades of Kris Kringel & Pere Noel...I thought Id seen everything in my Xmases around the world, from a Japanese Santa Claus to the eye of a roast lamb, but a forest of pink pine trees topped them all. Why they dyed them pink Ill never know. I didnt dare ask. Id rather not know.

I had been told of course to expect almost anything in Hollywood but I certainly wasnt prepared to see a restaurant whose sign advertised " Bad Food-Poor Service".. with a long line of people waiting to be victimized. Or that sign I saw entering Las Vegas---the Nevada suburb of Hollywood: a sign that said: This is Las Vegas: breakfast served at any hour of the day or night. Or the day I want to Schwobs drugstore and asked for a tube of toothpaste--"What size yer want, asked the clerk. "Small, said I. "Here", said he, handing me a tube clearly marked LARGE. "I said I wanted small, I protested. "Yeah, I know, said the clerk, but large is the smallest size we got. The next size is giant, then comes super. If you want the small size ask for large. To my astonishment the same thing happened to me right here in my own home town, New York, last night. I asked for a small tube of shaving cream and got one marked LARGE. Apparently the word small has been erased from the American lagguage.

I havent made up my mind yet whether this is ~~good~~ bad or good. Over in Europe where I work and live, particularly in France, its just the other way around---the concept of bigness doesnt exist. The French are small and like to be. French business is small ~~biggx~~ business. They feel that if they stay small they wont attract the attention of the tax collector or the envy of their neighbors or the control of the unions. Small, family owned businesses are more flexible, can survive economic crises or fluctations in ~~business~~ business trends. They keep inventories and payrolls low---reserves heavy and never speculate. In fact the worship of smallness over there is a real disease..a kind of pygmyophilia---carried to an extreme that is paralyzing the growth of the ~~xxxxxxxx~~ country.

Over here in America in my trip across the nation these past three weeks Ive seen the very opposite. America is not only big it thinks big and acts big in every apsect of national life from the small tube of toothpaste marked ~~xxx~~ large to the new movie process Ive just seen advertized called superscope. If carried to extremes I suppose that could be just as dangerous as Frances pgymyophilia. Ive talked to industrialists here who told me frankly they had to begin decentralizing their operations because ~~xxxxxxxxx~~ they had gotten so big they were unwieldy and inflexible. Yet this sense of bigness and the accompanying sense of creation and adventure ~~xxxx~~ translate into power and prosperity and physical health. --what a strong dynamic country this is--wherever I went Los Angeles Chicago Milwaukee Hey Rube building ground, Babylon. ...There are however distubing signs ~~xxxxxxxxxxx~~ ~~xxxxx~~ of an inverse reaction in ~~xxxxx~~ terms of mental health. From what Ive seen myself this trip ...from ~~xxxxxxxxx~~, Los Angeles to Milwaukee to New York the country is bigger and stronger and healthier than ever before in our history...yet somehow less secure, more ~~frightxxxxx~~ anxious, much more conformist ~~xxx~~ than it was ten years ago.

Of one thing Im sure as I look at Christmas holiday preparations here back home: if every fellow citizen could travel around the world as I do, and see how other people live and what their troubles are, well, there'd be a lot less dissatisfaction with what we've got...and we'd really mean it when we say: a very, merry Christmas and a happy New Year...

~~to you all~~

~~And may I add a holiday greeting~~

CBS RADIO DIVISION

EDWARD R. MURROW

Wednesday, Dec. 22, 1954
7:45-8:00 P.M.

ANNC'R: That's my word for today. And here's Mr. Murrow with his WORD FOR TODAY.

MURROW: Now that my colleague David Schoenbrun has had an opportunity to feel the pulse of the American people, more than likely he would agree with Mark Twain's observation that nothing remains the same. When a man goes back to look at the house of his childhood, it has always shrunk. There is no instance of such a house being as big as the picture in memory and imagination called for. But the house hasn't altered. It's just the first time it has been in focus.

Good Night and Good Luck!

-30-

Ediphone trans.ES

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 22, 1954
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

Dag Hammershuld returned to New York today and told reporters: he accomplished exactly what he wanted to do in conferring in Stockholm with the Chinese Communist ambassador. The secretary-general of the United Nations is not yet sure when he will go to Peiping to discuss the eleven American flyers imprisoned by the Chinese as so-called spies. But he said he has now discussed procedural arrangements for this conference.

The Vatican press office today made public a letter the ailing Pope Pius sent to China's Roman Catholics in October. It warned them to resist the Communist regime's puppet "national church." Today, the Pope took another automobile ride and a short walk in the Vatican garden.

The Soviet army's newspaper Red Star today accused Great Britain of endangering the lives of the British people by trying to "unleash an atomic war against the Soviet Union." Red Star warns that British military leaders forget that "atomic bombs are especially dangerous for small countries with dense populations."

British Foreign Secretary Eden told the House of Commons today that Russia's threat to the west is as strong as ever. He called for a steady military build-up of the North Atlantic alliance. Eden said: "Soviet policy is still aimed and confusing, dividing and weakening the west. "

French Premier Mendez-France today told his National Assembly that if it rejects the treaty to re-arm Western Germany France may lose her status as a big power. He said: "If the Assembly takes the grave step of refusal to approve the treaty, there no longer will be any question of four power negotiations " with the Russians. In today's debate, former Defense Minister Jules Moch called the agreements to re-arm west Germany "strangely archaic and dangerously out of date." He did not indicate how he would vote. And former Premier Paul Reynaud, who said he will abstain, told the Assembly that Russian-German collusion "would mark the end of western Europe.

Winter blew into Europe today with near-hurricane winds and accompanied by raging seas this disabled or damaged more than a dozen.

In Washington today Major General William M. Creasy, the chief army chemical officer, said it would be an "act of barbarism" to deny American troops the use of biolgical warfare in a future war. General Creasy, who is the army's authority on germ warfare, writes in the Army Information Digest, that modern developements have given germ warfare "A practicability it did not have before." He said germ warfare is now capable of defeating an enemy "with the least possible expenditure of American lives."

Democrats in Congress made it clear today that they will demand a full explanation of the Administration's plan to cut the manpower of our armed forces. Representative Rayburn, who becomes speaker of the House in the new Democratic congress, says he thinks the decision to reduce the armed forces by 400-thousand men in 18 months, is "much too drastic." he feels defense appropriations should be increased rather than reduced. And Representative Inson, who is scheduled to become head of the armed services committee, says he wants Defense Secretary Wilson to explain why "it is necissary to reduce manpower." And Democratic Senator Mansfield says: "If we are going to co-exist with Communists we ought to form a position of strenght --if we want to survive."

The cost of living went up a fraction of a point in November. But the government says if you didn't buy a new car, your living costs actually went down. The new car models on the market in November, although selling at pretty much the same list price as last year's models, actually raised the cost of living index. That's because 1954 models had been selling at big discounts.

James Zellerbach, the chairman of the National Manpower Council, called on the President today and then told reporters Mr. Eisenhower is interested in the idea of exporting "brain power"...technical know-how...to underdeveloped nations. The President is said to feel that this should be done under a private enterprise program, rather than through the government's technical assistance program.

Nelson Rockerfeller today was sworn in as a special presidential assistant...in charge of psychological warfare and the developement of "understanding and co-operation among all people." He takes over the ties of C.D. Jackson who resigned several months ago.

Joseph S. Petersen today pleaded guilty to using government secrets "in a matter prejudicial to the safety and interest" of the United States. Petersen, once a trusted employee of the secret National Security Agency withdrew a previous plea of innocence in an Alexandria, Virginia court. He faces a possible sentence of up to ten years. Petersen told the court, through his counsel, that he had changed his plea for the best interests of the country.

And the Department of Agriculture said today that Wolf Ladejinsky our agricultural attache in Tokyo for the last four years, does not meet technical standards and security requirements for persons holding his position. The department also said that someone who is closer to American farming operations would be better suited for the job than Ladejinsky. Yesterday Ambassador Allison in Tokyo said that Ladejinsky's removal was damaging our prestige in the Orient. And the former agricultural atache himself denied that he had ever belonged to two Communist front organizations.

My colleague, David Schoenbrun, who has made many reports to you from Paris through this program, is now home for the holidays. For the past three weeks he has been traveling across the country. And tonight I asked him to sum up some of his impressions. How do we look Dave?

SCHOENBRUN: Big--prosperous and worried. I suppose when people get rich they start worrying about loosing it. My friends are all successful but few of them seem satisfied or secure--although in the past few days they're cheering up as Christmas spirits start to rise.

It's wonderful to be home for Christmas, doubly wonderful for a foreign correspondent, who has spent many Christmases away, and too many at war, or in places where Christmas is unknown. I have spent Christmas in a foxhole in the Ardennes forest...One Christmas I feasted on roast mutton at a Berber camp in the mountains of Morocco and the tribal chief served me the eye of a lamb as a special holiday morsel...I'd rather have turkey stuffing. One year I spend Christmas in Madrid and on Christmas morning watched the poor of the city emptying the garbage cans in search of a meal...They'd have been grateful for the eye of a roast lamb.

But perhaps the strangest Christmas sight I ever say struck me this year, on this trip home, about ten days ago in that wonderland called Hollywood. I was driving down Sunset Boulevard on one of those rare days when the sun was actually shining in Los Angeles. I was thinking of how un-Christmas-like it was in that city of palm trees and pastel stucco cottages, The stores were all decorated with red bunting and snow crystals but it looked unreal on the Strip...and then I saw a sign that said "Christmas trees for sale".. I turned into the lot and there in a big open lot I saw a great forest of spruce and pine trees of every size.....and every one was bright pink....shades of Kris Kringle and Pere Noel. I thought I's seen everything in my Christmases around the world, from a Japanese Santa Clause to the eye of a roast lamb, but a forest of pink pine trees topped them all. Why they died them pink I'll never know. I didn't dare ask. I'd rather not know.

I had been told of course to expect almost anything in Hollywood but I certainly wans't prepared to see a restaurant whose sign advertised "Bad Food-Poor Service"..with a long line of people waiting to be victimized. Or what sign I saw entering Las Vegas --the Nevada suburb of Hollywood: a sign that said: This is Las Vegas: breakfast served and any hour of the day or night. Or the day I went to Schwabs drugstore and asked for a tube of toothpaste --"What size yer want", asked the clerk. "Small", I said. "Here", said he, handing me a tube clearly marked LARGE. "I said I want small," I protested. "Yeah, I know", said the clerk but LARGE is the smallest size we got. The next size is giant, and then comes super. If you want the small size you ask for large. To my astonishment the same thing happened to me right here in my own home town, New York, last night. I asked for a small tube of shaving cream and got one marked LARGE. Apparently the word small has been erased from the American language.

I haven't made up my mind yet whether this is bad or good. Over in Europe where I work and live, particularly in France, its just the other way around ---the concept of bigness doesn't exist. The French are small and like to be. French business is small business. They feel that if they stay small they won't attract the attention of the tax collector or the envy of their neighbors or the control of the unions. Small, family owned businesses are more flexible, can survive economic crises or fluctuations in business trends. They keep inventories and payrolls low---reserves heavy and never speculate. In fact the worship of smallness over there is a real disease...a kind of pygmyophilia--carried to an extreme that is paralyzing the growth of the country.

Over here in America in my trip across the nation these past three weeks I've seen the very opposite. America is not only big it thinks big and acts big in every aspect of national life from the small tube of toothpaste marked large to the new movie process I've just seen advertized called "Superscope". If carried to extreme, I suppose that could be just as dangerous as France's pygmyophilia. I've talked to industrialists here who told me frankly they had to begin to decentralizing their operations because they had gotten so big they were unwieldy and inflexible. Yet this sense of bigness and accompanying sense of creation and adventure translate into power and prosperity and physical health. That a strong, dynamic country this is. Wherever I went...Los Angeles, Chicago, Milwaukee, they're building, growing, bulging. There are, however, disturbing signs of an inverse reaction in terms of mental health. From what I've seen myself this trip...from Los Angeles to Milwaukee to New York the country is bigger and stronger and healthier than ever before in our history...yet somehow less secure, more anxious, much more comformist then it was ten years ago. Of one thing I'm sure as I look at Christmas holiday preparations here back home: If every fellow citizen could travel around the world as I do, and see how other people live and what their troubles are, well, there'd be a lot less dissatisfaction with what we've got...and we'd really mean it when we say: a verry, merry Christmas and a happy New Year....

MURROW: That was David Schoenbrun, just back from Paris. This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a moment with the Word for Today. But first, here is a word from Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: Now that my colleague David Schoenbrun has had an opportunity to feel the pulse of the American people, more than likely he would agree with Mark Twain's observation that nothing remains the same. When a man goes back to look at the house of his childhood, it has always shrunk. There is no instance of such a house being as big as the picture in memory and imagination called for. But the house hasn's thrunk. It's just the first time it has been in focus.

Good Night and Good Luck.

Thurs Dec 23, 1954

Edward R. Murrow
% Lowell Thomas
Pawling, New York

This is the news:

The circuit court of appeals in Washington today upheld the validity of the McCarran internal security act. Among other things this law requires the Communist party to list its membership with the Department of Justice. The court held..two to one..that the evidence supports a finding by the government's Subversive Activities Control Board that the party is "substantially directed, dominated and controlled by the Soviet Union, which controls the world Communist movement." Dissenting Judge David L. ~~Bazel~~ Bazelon said he would throw the McCarran act out on the grounds of the fifth amendment..that no person shall be compelled to testify against himself in any criminal case.

Suspend In Paris tonight the French National Assembly ~~is heated for an~~ turned down a motion for 4 days on ~~all-night debate~~ on German re-armament. Again Premier Mendes-France called for a big vote. And he promised that as soon as the treaty is approved he will press for an immediate big four conference where he could try to "force the peace" between east and west. There is no indication when the final vote will come.

(more)

The Italian Chamber of Deputies tonight approved ratitification of the pact to re-arm West Germany. The vote was 355 to 215. The bill now goes to the Senate which is expected to vote before the end of January.

The Vatican newspaper, L'osservatore Romano, which usually reflects the views of the Vatican, charged today that President Peron's regime in Argentina has muzzled religious freedom by jailing priests..and subverted morals by legalizing divorce. Peron has charged that certain Catholic leaders have tried to undermine his regime and worm their way into the labor federation controlled by Peron.

Yugoslavia's Marshal Tito and India's Prime Minister Nehru today issued a statement saying that the civilized world must adopt the principles of peaceful co-existence..or perish. The two leaders say acceptance of peaceful co-existence would "widen the area of peace and diminish the prospect of war." ~~They urged the world and the United Nations to accept solutions based on sovereignty, non-aggression and non-interference in domestic affairs.~~

3 of Brief

The Chinese Communist radio today attacked British Minister of State Lord Reading for saying that the British government does not (repeat not) regard Formosa as part of the Chinese People's Republic." Peiping calls this "an irresponsible statement."

The State Department says the Russians have agreed to return next summer 27 small naval craft they received under lend-lease during world war two. We are still negotiating over another 121 naval craft we loaned the Russians.

The President today flew to Augusta for the Christmas holiday. And informed sourcesin Washington say Mr. Eisenhower will ask the new congress to cut income taxes on most foreign investments...in an effort to get more American capital working in under-developed parts of the world. These sources say the President is thinking in terms of a 27 per cent cut in taxes on foreign investments.

The Navy says that its has distrubuted its allotment of 13-thousand tickets to the Sugar Bowl game with Mississippi without regard to racial restrictions. The tickets all bore a stipulation that they could only be used by Caucasians. The game is to be played in New Orleans. The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People issued a statemnt saying that the Navy action "apparently means it will ~~xxxxxx~~ uphold the dignity of man without regard to race. If correct"..says the statement..

no matter what the final score is, the Navy has already won the most important part of the game."

This fall my colleague Bill Costello made a general survey of conditions in Asia. Among other things he observed the activities of our Central Intelligence Agency. Tonight I've asked him to report to you from Washington, on the C.I.A.

(runs..

ending..Now back to Edward R. Murrow)

That was Bill Costello reporting from Washington. This is ERM..I'll be back in a moment..but first a word from Bob Dixon.

The Word- There would seem to be some question whether or not we are pursuing the most effective policy in Asia. But what must be kept in mind is that our attitudes toward this part of the world can't be changed overnight. For as Machiavelli once said:"There is nothing more difficult, more perilous or more unsertain in its success than to take the lead in the introduction of a new order of things." Good Nite and Good Luck!

CBS RADIO DIVISION

EDWARD R. MURROW

Thursday, December 23, 1954
7:45-8:00 p.m.

MURROW: ..... This fall, my colleague, Bill Costello, made a general survey of conditions in Asia. Among other things,he observed the activities of our Central Intelligence Agency. Tonight, I've asked him to report to you from Washington on the CIA.

COSTELLO: Here, in Washington, the Central Intelligence Agency is seldom discussed publicly and then only in the vagues kind of generalities. It was a distinct shock, therefore, to this correspondent on a recent survey trip through Asia to discover that the CIAis not nearly so anonymous in foreign parts as it is right here at home. Without my making the slightest X effort to look for evidence of CIA activity,the subject was repeatedly brought to my attention. In fact, in certain areas the agency made itself so conspicuous that it was a common topic of barroom gossip and it would be a disservice now to suppress that fact.

The argument for the CIA's elaborate policy of secrecy in dealing with Congress and the public is that the agency is Uncle Sam's clearing house for the topmost secrets of the Cold War and an Intelligence Agency cannot function properly if it has to do its work in the glare of the public spotlight. One member of Congress, Democratic Senator Mike Mansfield, of Montana, has protested against the present system of letting the CIA operate without adequate congressional liaison . He has twice introduced bills to provide for a monitoringcommittee of some kind and he is preparing now to introduce a third bill in January, calling for the creation of a joint House-Senate committee, somewhat similar to the committee handling atomic energy matters. It is considered likely that Senator Mansfield's proposal next year will get more serious attention thanit has previously. Reason is that CIA is not altogether what it appears to be and there is a growing realization that it might wisely subject itself to a more formalized congressional review.

Immediately after the war Congress,then a Democratic Administration, justified the agency as a non-political, noncontroversial storehouse of information. The emphasis was almost wholly on Intelligence work. And on that score there is every reason to believe today that the CIA has become one of the world's most skillful and efficient Intelligence organizations,but with the onset of the Cold War both the Truman and the Eisenhower Administrations have used the CIA to perform another mission, - to carry on in many parts of the world certain secret underground operations against the Communist Party's conspiratorial apparatus. The law, in effect,permits the President and the National Security Council to use the CIA as a franking agency as well as a collector of information. For the most part the public is not kept informed of these activities. Guesses are made from time to time on the size of the CIA's secret budget and these guesses range all the way from three hundred million dollars a year up as high as eight hundred millions. No one in authority has ever announced a definite figure and everything possible is done to create the impression that every aspect ofthe agency's work is veiled in super-secrecy, but out in Asia this veil of secrecy is pretty flimsy. Probably the most conspicuous of all the CIA operations in Asia is the set-up known as Western Enterprises, Incorporated, on the Island of Formosa. Ostensibly, it's a business concern, but no one is deceived. Everybody talks about the outfit, including the Communist radio at Peiping. Political sophisticates are making it the butt of political jokes and one British correspondent put it in a dispatch: "The activity is an open top-secret." The agents are flippantly referred to as the "spooks." They and their wives and children have a cosy compound covering a hilltop near Taipeh. They have their own transport planes, shuttling agents back and forth. They have a private bar in Taipeh to prevent convivial spooks from talking out of turn with strangers. The spooks are so carefully insulated from all contamination that they have their own supply system. You can see their warehouses any day alongside the road to Keelong-(?) where I inadvertently made inquiries in September.

Western Enterprises and the spooks still talk in figurative whispers,but that doesn't prevent the Chinese from snickering out loud at what they regard as a crude American Intelligence system. Actually, they are not seeing the Intelligence system at all for that operates as secretly as any in the world. What people are laughing at, to the serious detriment of Americanprestige, is an awkward Cold War operation being conducted with apretense of secrecy. Our method of operation gave the Peiping radio this fall a propaganda windfall. The Reds, it happened, captured a Chinese Nationalist guerrilla who spilled everything. Then, Peiping went on the air with a broadcast describing fully the manner in which Western Enterprises has helped in recruiting, training, and arming Chinese guerrillas for work on the mainland. Anyone visiting Taipeh for two weeks would know that the Communist account was substantially correct. Unofficially, Western Enterprises, of course, has its defenders. Officials say privately that it's not fair to condemn an operation just because its cover has been exposed. They say sooner or later all covers wear off and have to be abandoned. In some cases, even if a cover is exposed it is still possible to complete a mission.

Well, despite this rationalization there is good reason to believe that CIA is ready to abandon Western Enterprises as rapidly as its personnel can be reassigned, but even if the operation on Formosa is discontinued there remain two phony businessset-ups in Japan and Indo-China whose identities are well known to the Communists and another in Thailand. In all four cases the pattern chosen as a cover is practically identical and, of course, the minute you assemble in Asia three or four dozen white-skinned westerners with no visible means of support and put them in contact with the foreign officials on a footing of diplomatic privilege then anyone can identify them as secret agents. If you ask why CIA should carry on such operations, why the agency should not limit itself to Intelligence,the answer comes in the form of a question. They ask: "Who else is there to do it?" In 1948,the easw with which the Communist coup was carried out in Czechoslovakia convinced Washington authorities that a counter-apparatus must be created to head off any future Red seizure of power. No one either in or out of Congress assailsthe logic of this contention, but it is a question whether the operations being carried out in Asia today are properly designed for that part of the world. A closer congressional scrutiny may bring changes in addition to those already contemplated by Administration leaders.

Now, back to Edward R. Murrow.

Ed.trans.-A.A.Cardiff (30)

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 23, 1955
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

Flood waters ravaged Northern California and Oregon today, claiming at least 12 lives. Five communities are completely inundated. Thousands of persons are homeless, with damage estimated at more than 10-million dollars. The business district in Santa Cruz, 60 miles South of San Francisco, is under five feet of water. And the entire population of Marysville..a town of more than 12-thousand..has been ordered evacuated because of the flooding Yuba and Feather Rivers. The nearby Sacramento weather bureau said: "This is without doubt the greatest flood in the records of this river system." Three deaths are reported in Southern Oregon.

A late report says rivers are receding in Oregon, where colder weather has stopped the melting of snow. Reno, Nevada, has been cut in two by rising floodwaters. But no casualties are reported in that area. More light rain is expected tonight.

In Washington, President Eisenhower has called the floods "a major disas ter", and authorized what the White House called "blank check " financial assistance. Secretary of Agriculture Benson sent telegrams to the governors of California and Oregon, offering surplus food for fllod victim .

Russia has agreed to let the United States resume distribution of a magazine on American life among the Rusian people. In return, we will let Russia publish an English-language magazine in the United States. In announcing the agreement today, the State Department said Moscow will allow 52-thousand copies of the American magazine to be distributed. It will be published by the United States Information agency and sell on Russian newsstands for five rubles. That's about the same price a comparable Russian magazine would sell for.

Publication of a semilar magazine called "Amerika" was suspended three years ago, when Moscow restricted its distribution. At the same time, the United States banned publication of the Soviet Information Bulletin in this country. There are no details on what the new Russian magazine will be like.

The New York Post reported today that the Veterans Amministration had stopped payment of disability compensation to a veteran who lost both legs in World War Two. The veterans Administration had acted on the grounds that James Kutcher of Newark, New Jersey, belonged to the Socialist Workers Party.. an organization the Government has listed as subversive. The party follows the Trotsky line, and is strongly opposed to the Moscow brand of Communism. The ex-GI also was accused of making remarks derogatory of the Government. This afternoon, the disability of payments to Kutcher, as a double amputee, were ordered reinstated..pending outcome of a hearing. The Veterans Administrat ion said it was acting out of "a sense of fair play and to prevent hardship." No date has been set for the hearing.

The provisional government of Argentina decreed today that all its top officials including the new provisional president..are ineligible to run in the forthcoming elections. The decree said the Argentine government wants to observe "absolute non-intervention" in the people's political decisions.

West German authorities today formally arrested Dr. Otto John, former chief of counter-intelligence for the Bonn government. The charge was "suspicion of treason." John defected to the Communists in July of last year. He suddenly reappeared in West Berlin 11 days ago..and has been under interrogation ever since. There are indications he was arrested simply because ther was no other legal way to hold him in custody. And in the end he may go free. My colleague Richard Hottelet reports there apparently is still no real evidence of treason against him.

India announced today that it has established diplomatic relations with Outer Mongolia. Last week, Nationalist China vetoes Outer Mongolia's application for admission to the United Nations..charging it is a "province" fo Soviet Russia, and not an independent state.

Israel and Jordan laid aside their differences today, so that Christian pilgrims would be free to cross their common frontier. The curfew has been lifted in Bethlehem..in the territory administered by Jordon..and Arab and Israeli soldiers are reported relaxing at their posts, among the sandbags, bombed houses, and barged wire.

In Washington, President Eisenhower granted Christmas pardons to 42 convicted criminals..and commuted one death sentence. White House Secretary Hagerty announced that President and Mrs. Eisenhower will attend church on Christmas Day. That will be the first time the President has attended church services since he was stricken in September.

We are approaching a week-end of reunion and rejoicing. We might perhaps spare a thought for those who will not participate in the festivities - who will not be home for Christmas. The mind turns first to hospitals, where nurses and doctors know no holiday; to the policemen on your beat, and the firemen too; to the men who man the radar ramparts; to the crews of civilian aircraft, with that little wreath of holly on the door leading to the flight deck. And to the train crews on the long hauls out across the rich, flat land, and over the Rockies, the Siskious and the Cascades.

An American ship may be entering Suez or clearing the Panama Canal, reported off the Lizard or Sandy Hook. Whatever "containers" Americans may be off travelling in, their thoughts are travelling, home, and their imaginations may possibly create a Christmas free of the crass commercialism that has come to mark this season of the year.

There will even be a few people in the news business working during the week end. We might spare a thought of thanks for the telephone operators, who with courtesy and good humor, perform such casual miracles of communication.

And mention should be made of radio and televisoon engineers who transmit the poice and picture from here to there, and who - unfortunate creatures - must listen to what is tranimitted whether they like it or not.

No one who studies the world scene could term this Christmas either secure or serene. We continue to contend, as we have before, against forces of evil and tryanny. We have no guarantee of success. But the recent past, which has led us to this reasonably tranquil Christmas, has been honorable.

If memories of the past are sufficiently strong, then fear of the future may be considerably diminished.

This is one night of the year when a mere reporter, with an imperfect knowledge of the past and none of the future, may be permitted to remind himself and hislisteners, be they many or few, of one of the world's greatest pieces or reporting - by St. Matthew and St. Mark. They collaborated on the story. They tell us, according to the King James' version of their report, that "When Jesus was born in Bethlehem of Judea, in the days of Herod the King: "Behold there came wise men from the east to Jerusalem, saying: "Where is he that is King of the Jews?" St. Luke reported that when Mary brought forth her first son, she wrapped him in swaddling clothes, and laid him in a manger, because there was no room for them in the inn. "And there were in the same country shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flock by night. And, lo, the angel of the Lord came upon them - and they were sore afraid. And the angel said unto them "Fear not, for behold I bring you tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people. For unto you is born this day, in the City of David, the Saviour, which is Christ the Lord."

Note well that the first thing the angel said was, "Fear not." Meanwhile, Herod had dispatched his wise men to search diligently for the young child. And the star which they saw in the East went before them, till it came and stood over where the young child was. When they saw the star they rejoiced, with exceeding great joy. And when they were come into the house, they saw the young child with Mary, his mother. And they fell down and worshipped him. And when they had opened their treasures they presented unto him gifts - gold, frankincense any myrrh.

The shepherds had been promised by the angel that they would find a babe wrapped in swaddling clothes. And, suddenly, there was with them angel a multitude of the heavenly host, praising God and saying, "glory to God in the highest and on earth peace and good will toward men." And so the wise men and the shepherds found Mary and Joseph and the babe lying in the manger.

St. Matthey and St. Luke were good reporters. And they said..they reported that the shepherds were sore afraid. The sights they saw and the circumstances must have impressed and shaken those shepherds more than modern shepherds were shaken by the announcement of the hydrogen bomb. And yet, those two good reporters agree that the first words of the angel were, "Fear not! " Their reporting has survived every effort to supress it. And the angel's advice was never more timely.

Whenever we search for words that combine strength, beauty and hope, we are led back to that one book. It seems to me that we in this country are committed, in good company, to combat evil things. And you will find in that same book and in the same mood you will find these phrases: "Whom shall I fear? Of whom shall I be afraid?" It seems to me that these sentiments are appropriate on ~~this evening~~ today.

~~This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a moment with the "Bad for Today."~~

MURROW: This, by Gamiel Bradford: " The legend of St. Nick is the last living relic of the vanishing world of dreams. The faries are gone, the witches and ghosts are gone. Santa Claus alone lingers with us. Let us keep him as long as we can. Children learn to see soon enough, too clearly, too well. After all, in this universe of ignorance, anything may be true - even our dreams."

Good Night and Good Luck.

Friday December 24, 1954

This is the news.

The world watches and waits tonight amid repercussions of last night's rejection by the French National Assembly of the Paris agreements to rearm West Germany. In the wake of the surprise with which the action caught the Western world, today was devoted for the most part [redacted] to diplomatic conferences, and hopes that the French will reverse their decision next Monday. Premier Mendes-France has called for more votes on the German issue [redacted]---votes which he will make a question of confidence. The Premier says tonight he is confident the Deputies will change their minds.

Today, Secretary of State Dulles talked by telephone from Washington twice with President Eisenhower in Augusta. Later, the President issued a warning that the French decision was of "utmost seriousness". And he said, "we cannot believe that this represents the final French decision in the matter".

Secretary Dulles also conferred with British Ambassador Sir Roger Makins during the day, and both diplomats renewed their agreement that West Germany must be armed soon---with or without French approval. The British Foreign Office took [redacted] the same stand in an unusually stern statement on the French action. The British pointed out that the issue before the French Assembly is "not whether the German [redacted] Republic will rearm, but how". And the British went on to say that the French decision of last night imperils the unity of the Western world. Dulles and Ambassador Makins are said to have agreed that these points represent the basic positions of their governments. They took [redacted] similar policy stands last Summer when the French killed the European Defense Community plan.

Secretary Dulles is said to feel that the vote of rejection last night was a political miscalculation on the part of the French Deputies, and that playing politics with so momentous an issue is highly irresponsible. This raises the question in the minds of top American officials whether the French nation can produce and support a government capable of making the necessary decisions or whether it is voting itself out of any responsible part in world affairs and into oblivion.

As for West Germany, Chancellor Adenauer drove immediately to his office when he heard the news from Paris. He called an emergency conference of his advisers, but he and other West German officials are withholding official comment until after the French votes on Monday.

Those votes will be watched [redacted] closely by the United States too, for, in their light, this government undoubtedly will decide how to proceed with the rearming of West Germany.

An action behind the iron curtain is causing wonderment tonight also. It is the mysterious report by the official news agency of Communist Hungary that Americans Noel and Herta Field---recently released from a Communist prison---have asked for and been granted political asylum in Hungary. There has been no official word from the Hungarian government and our Legation in Budapest says it had heard nothing of such a decision on the part of the Fields. Our Minister to Hungary, Christian Ravndal, is also in the dark on the matter.

But in Washington, American officials appeared not too surprised at the reports. They said there have been some doubts that the Fields would return to the West, pointing out that when Ravndal offered them aid after their release, they did not ask for American passports. But the question now is: What move will our government make. It may ask Hungary officially for a report on the Fields, or it may ask for a face-to-face meeting with the Fields to ask them if they made the decision of their own free will. Some authorities can't believe that this is the case in view of the severe treatment the Fields recieved at the hands of the Communists. Neither can they understand why the Communists would have freed them in the first place if they wanted to keep them out of Western hands.

At the United Nations, a spokesman for Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold had a word of advice for newsmen who wish to cover his mission to Peiping to try to win release for [redacted] imprisoned American airmen. Hammarskjold wouldn't mind [redacted] Western newsmen on hand for the talks, but he won't take them along. That, he says, is a matter between the newsmen and the Peiping government. If they want to be there, they will have to get permission from Communist China.

Christmas Eve has brought the people of Western Europe relief from the [redacted] storms which have plagued them for three days. The storms have abated and the peril that faced lowland homes is ended. The main sea defenses of Britain, Holland and Belgium [redacted] withstood the [redacted] pounding of the waves, and there were only minor breaks in the dikes of Holland. But the toll was high for the three days of storm---more than 120-persons are dead or missing, hundreds are injured and 23-ships were wrecked.

There is [redacted] good news too for Iron Curtain victims of last Spring's floods along the Danube and other rivers in East and West Germany. Four American ships, carrying surplus corn, wheat and butter to these people, are nearing European ports. In fact, they may already have docked. [redacted]

5-5-5-5-5

A couple of political notes. One high Republican party leader says that, barring unforeseen development, President Eisenhower has agreed to run again in 1956, keeping Vice President Nixon as his running mate.

And in South Carolina, Democratic Senator Charles Daniel has resigned and Senator-elect Strom Thurmond was appointed to finish his term. Thurmond was not to have taken office until the new Congress convenes on January 5th. But Daniel resigned now in order to give Thurmond seniority over eight other recently-elected Senators.

Daniel was filling out the term of the late Burnet Maybank.

~~Agriculture Secretary Benson has offered the chance for another job in his department to Wolf Ladejinsky, recently ousted as Agriculture Attache in Tokyo. The ouster brought Benson under fire in some quarters. Now, he says he is ready to hold a hearing to determine whether Ladejinsky should be employed in a Department job he formerly held.~~

Edward R. Murrow: December 24, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

This is the first Christmas at home for this reporter in many a hastening year; and memory turns to those Americans at home and abroad who work on Christmas Eve - in Korea the outposts will be manned - weapons ready - hand grenades neatly laid out on the sandbags; there will be night patrols out in the de-militarized zone, searching for "unauthorized personnel." There will be a Christmas tree back at the platoon C.P. on the reverse side of the hill, and some of the stars will have been cut out of beer cans. There'll be plenty of oil to keep the tents warm, and before midnight a lot of youngsters, and some not so young will be looking at pictures of family and friends. Farther back the starting generators will be hooked up to the F-86's, ready to get them off the ground in less than three minutes. Early in the morning the choppers will set down on the high hill positions with the last batch of Christmas mail and packages. #

Out in the straits of Formosa the little destroyers and the bigger ships, and the men in them will be working. On Formosa and in Indochina, American officers will take the day off from planning and preparing schedules for troop training.

In Europe, from Turkey to Norway, American officers and men will be doing their jobs - but their hearts will be turning West again. In Turkey and Morocco and Spain the bulldozers, concrete mixers and earth-moving gear, used for building and stretching airfields will be silent.

Right now a flight of strategic bombers may be over Saudi-Arabia. A MATS aircraft, laden with men or technical gear, may be calling the tower at Anchorage, Mishimia, Wake, ~~XXXXXXX~~ Abadan or Haneda. Tomorrow morning in the far north a light plane will land on skis to service an isolated Radar outpost. ~~THEXEAGE~~ The Eagle's Brood has indeed been scattered round the world in the last ten years. But Americans this Christmas are not only engaged in manning ramparts. On Formosa they are helping to finish the most successful land distribution and development scheme put into effect since the war. In India they are teaching peasants how to use something other than a crooked stick to till the soil - how to plant and harvest the food crops on which the life of three hundred and fifty million people depends. They are advising the Indian Government on its gigantic irrigation projects designed to make India a two-crop instead of a single-crop country.

Americans are helping to survey and prepare a great T.V.A. in Colombia; assisting the Brazilians and the Mexicans in an educational campaign to wipe out illiteracy. Our doctors and scientists are working with local medical practitioners and government agencies throughout the world, in fighting epidemics, malaria and endemic illnesses.

There are thousands of members of our Foreign Service and Information Services gathering data on foreign lands, and interpreting American policy to foreign peoples. There are American students abroad, learning languages, history and equipping themselves to deal with understanding and tolerance with foreign lands and people.

Here at home the mind goes first to hospitals, where nurses and doctors know no holiday; to the policeman on your beat & the firemen too -no holiday either; to the crews of civilian aircraft, with that little wreath of holly on the door leading to the flight deck; and to the train crews on the long hauls out across the rich, flat land, and over the Rockies, the Siskious and the Cascades. As the exhausts of the big Diesels bounces off the canyon walls, similar Diesels are operational in Pakistan and elsewhere.

An American ship may be entering Suez, or clearing the Panama Canal, reported at Land's End or off Sandy Hook. Whatever "containers" Americans may be travelling in, their thoughts are travelling home, and their imaginations may create a Christmas free of the crass commercialism that has come to mark this season of the year.

There are even a few people in the news business working tonight - all of them, I doubt not, grateful for the freedom they still enjoy; grateful, too, to the postmen who deliver letters not only of praise and abuse, but also a wondrous assortment of newspapers, magazines and books. # And it would indeed be churlish for any reporter to stint his gratitude toward telephone operators who perform such casual miracles of communication with such courtesy and good humor. / And then in this medium there are the engineers who speak a strange jargon - transmit the voice from here to there - and who, unfortunate creatures, must listen to what is transmitted whether they like it or not.

No one who studies the world scene could term this Christmas either secure or serene. We contend, as we have before, against forces of evil and tyranny. We have no guarantee of success. / But the recent path which has led us to this reasonably tranquil Christmas has been an honorable one; and as we celebrate and face another brief year we may in truth "greet the unknown with a cheer."

Perhaps the best part about Christmas for many of us is the opportunity it gives us to once again be "young in heart." For Christmas, after all, is for children -- of all ages. William Hazlitt once put it well when he said: "There is a feeling of Eternity in youth which makes amends for everything. And to be young is to be as one of the Immortal Gods." Merry Xmas.

Good Nite and Good Luck!

Monday, December 27, 1954

This is the news:

The French National Assembly has voted to admit West Germany to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. Premier Mendez-France who made a last-minute appeal to the Assembly was given a 38-vote margin. And within minutes of the vote (which I'd like to discuss in a few minutes) the President made it known that he was "gratified." But White House News Secretary HAGERTY reserved a formal statement until all action has been completed in the French Assembly.

Chairman Wiley of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said the French vote to admit the West Germans to NATO "is welcome news to all the free world." He predicted that the Russians would now start another diplomatic offensive in an effort TO upset German re-armament either by "soft talk of co-existence " or threats of reprisals. And Democratic Senator Mansfield of Montana told reporters: "The western alliance is saved and the free world can once again breathe easily."

The President spent the day in Augusta "watching and waiting" for the results of the vote in Paris. He conferred once, at least, with Secretary of State Dulles. And he met for more than two hours with his top economic advisors. Later the White House said Mr. Eisenhower will send his budget message to the Congress on January 17th with his economic report following three days later.

Dag Hammershuld, the secretary-general of the United Nations, returned to his headquarters today to complete plans for his trip to Red China. His office says he'll announce tomorrow the names of the small party that will accompany him in his effort to free the eleven American airmen held by the Communists.

A Chinese Nationalist newspaper on Formosa said today that Hammershuld is "making a fool of himself and a mockery of the United Nations" by his trip to Red China. This paper says Communist Premier Chou en Lai already has made it clear that he will not discuss the case of the imprisoned Americans...and that, therefore, the Hammershuld trip will be usless.

Chou en Lai today again boasted that his people will never halt until their flag flies over Formosa. He says Formosa is Red China's territory...the "Chinese people resolutely demand that the United States withdraw all its forces from Formosa". Chou also warns that Red China is no longer a weak nation and will not beg for peace at the price of surrendering her territorial claims.

In Yugoslavia today, the vice president in charge of economic affairs called for a conference of his country's creditor nations... to try to find a way to ease Belgrade's debt problem..and put the country on a pay-as-you-go basis. The United States, Great Britain, France, Germany and Isreal are among Yugoslavia's creditors. And the vice president says Yugoslavia is in debt because of bad weather..which has given the country three poor harvests in the past four years. He also lists, as reasons for Yugoslavia's economic troubles the concentration on industrialization at the expense of agriculture... the high cost of defense and the increase of prices on the foreign market for essential imports.

The Vatican indicated today that the health of Pope Pius continues to improve. He has received another transfusion of plasma and whole blood..and continues to devote much time each day to church MATTERS.

Representatives of the State and Defense departments and the air force conferred today on a proposed agreement with Spain concerning the Americans who will tend our bases being established in Spain. The proposal would make inter-faith marriage of Americans in Spain (subject) to approval of the Roman Catholic church. The Reverend Raymond M. Stadta, a lieutenant colonel in the air force, who negotiated the proposed agreement IN MADRID, says it will mean fewer legal difficulties than chaplains of all faiths now encounter in England and France..when Americans want to marry there. ~~Father Stadta says the agreement he negotiated already has been approved by Francis Cardinal Spellman, archbishop of New York, and Roman Catholic military vicar (for our) forces, and by Major General Charles I. Carpenter, a Methodist, who is chief of air force chaplains.~~

The final count on the traffic deaths over the holiday week-end now reads 387..with Texas reporting 31 traffic deaths...California 29 and Pennsylvania 25.

And the air force announces that Lieut. Col. John Paul Stapp has reached the fastest ground speed on record. He traveled 632 miles an hour at the Holloman Air Development Center in New Mexico. Colonel Stapp rode on a rocket-propelled sled..propelled by the 40-thousand pound thrust of nine rockets. He attained the 632 miles an hour speed in five seconds after starting..and within a space of 28-hundred feet. His "sled" slammed to a dead stop in one and a half seconds after hitting its top speed. The colonel was strapped in by a nylon web harness on shoulders, legs, chest and lap. He suffered only some blood blisters from dust particles and two black eyes..as a result of their sudden movement forward against his eyelids.

Edward R. Murrow: December 27, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

In Paris Premier Mendes-France is engaged in a political battle of monumental proportions; not only is his political life at stake, the whole fabric of West European defense is in the balance. In recent days he has been told by the Russians that if France ratifies the Paris agreements to re-arm West Germany, the treaty of friendship between Russia and France will be terminated, and Russia will proceed to form an East European coalition, which has in fact already been done. The Russians have also threatened to break off their treaty with Great Britain. On the other hand Mendes-France has been told by his allies, the United States and Great Britain, that an unfavorable vote will isolate France, won't prevent Germany from being re-armed, and will in effect leave France to go it alone.

Mendes-France has decided to gamble everything on three votes of confidence. The first, the approval of the entry of Germany into the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, to be coupled with a complete agreement between France and Germany on the Saar. That vote, a crucial one, was carried tonight by 289 to 251.

Next there was to be a second vote of confidence which was scheduled to occur tonight. This involved the rejection of two amendments that in effect would postpone German re-armament for at least a year, in the hope that there might occur during that time new and fruitful negotiations between the three Western Powers and the Soviet Union. Those amendments have just been withdrawn - Another victory for Mendes -

The final test, however, will not come until Wednesday - or perhaps later - and that one will involve a reversal of last Friday's decision, when the French rejected the inclusion of Germany in the West European union, which is the very heart of the whole defense plan for Western Europe.

Today Mendes-France talked to a dead silent and attentive Chamber. He said that if he had believed that final negotiations with the Russians were possible before the ratification, he would have tried to persuade the British and the Americans to seek such a conference. But the Americans and the British and Mendes-France believed that negotiations could be carried on better after the ratification. He said: "If we give in now (to Russian threats) it would lead to the belief we had given in because of fear. If we do not ratify, a four-power conference would have less chance of success. There might be a conference of two or three nations, but we would not be invited, because we would have left the Atlantic alliance." And Mendes-France asked: "What would be our political credit with Great Britain and the United States and our European partners, in case of rejection?" And he added: "Even with Russia, it is doubtful that a country which had broken with all of its allies could have much credit." He said that after four years of French hesitancy and indecision France's allies are no longer willing to listen to alternatives. He contended that it is no longer possible to forbid Germany to re-arm. That is painful for all Frenchmen, but it is unavoidable. The French Premier contended that the entire Atlantic Pact was at stake, which France must preserve and maintain with her Allies, or else allow those allies to organize their defenses without France.

Mendes-France has won his first 2 votes of confidence, but the third and most difficult remains. That is the one bringing Germany, with the right to re-arm, into the seven-nation West European Union. That's the one on which he was beaten last Friday by a vote of 280 to 259.

French politics is as unpredictable as the weather, but as of tonight it appears that a sufficient number of Deputies have changed their minds to give him the majority he needs on the three votes of confidence. This is because a number of Independents and De Gaullists have changed their votes.

Seldom in recent history has a sovereign nation been exposed to such blunt and unremitting pressure, both from its enemies and its friends. If Mendes-France succeeds in the final test, it will mean that the Western nations in Europe maintain by however narrow a margin a common political and military purpose in Western Europe. And that will be something they have not yet been able to achieve in Asia. It will mean, too, that in terms of French politics the pressure for early conversations between the Western Powers and the Soviet Union will increase. The mere ratification of the Paris agreements will not bring a German army into being overnight, nor will it diminish the appetite of those Europeans in France and elsewhere who want to have another try at talking with the Russians before giving up hope that some method can be found of living in the same world with them without facing the constant alternative of destroying or being destroyed. If the French agree finally to the re-arming of Germany, it must be regarded not as the climactic ending of a book, but rather the beginning of a new chapter which will not be lacking in surprise and suspense.

Mendes France, from the time he assumed the Premiership, has attempted to lead from strength, staking a career and reputation on the outcome. For a politican, this demands considerable personal courage. Canon Wescott once observed:"Great occasions do not make heroes of cowards; they simply unveil them to the eyes of men. Silent and imperceptible, as we wake or sleep, we grow strong or we grow weak and at last some crisis shows us what we have become."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

MONDAY, DECEMBER 27, 1954
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

The French National Assembly has voted to admit West Germany to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. Premier Mendez-France who made a last minute appeal to the Assembly was given a 38-vote margin. And within minutes of the vote -- which I'd like to discuss in a few minttes -- the President made it known that he was "gratified". But the White House News Secretary Haggerty reserved a formal statement wunit all action has been completed in the French Assembly.

Chairman Wiley of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said the French vote to admit the West Germans to NATO "is welcome news to all the free world." He Predicated that the Russians would now start another diplomatic offensive in an effort to upset German re-armament either by "soft talk of co-existence" or threats of reprisals. And Democratic Senator Mansifeld of Montana told reporters: "The western alliance is saved and the free world can once again breathe easily."

The President spent the day in Augusta "watching and waiting" for the results of the vote in Paris. He conferred once, at least, with Secretary of State Dulles. And he met for more than two hours with his top economic advisors. Later the White House said Mr. Eisenhower will send his budget message to the Congress on January 17th with his economic report following three days later.

Dag Hammershuld, the secretary-general of the United Nations, returned to his headquarters today to complete plans for his trip to Red China. His office says he'll announce tomorrow the names of the saall party that will accompany him in his effort to free the eleven American airmen held by the Communists.

A Chinese Nationalist newspaper on Formosa said today that Hammershuld is "making a fool of himself and a mockery of the United Nations" by his trip to Red China. This paper says Communist Premier Chou en Lai already has made is clear that he will not discuss the case of the imprisoned Americans.. and that, therefore, the Hammershuld trip will be useless.

Chou en Lai today again boasted that his people will never halt until their flag flies over Formosa. He says Formosa is Red China's territory.. the "Chinese people resolutely demand that the United States withdraw all its forces from Formosa." Chou also warns that Red China is no longer a weak nation and will not beg for peace at the price of surrendering her territorial claims.

In Yugoslavia today, the fice president in charge of economic affairs called for a conference of his country's creditor nations....to try to find a way to ease Belgrade's debt problem...and put the country on a pay-as-you-go basis. The United States, Great Britain, France, Germany and Israel are among Yugoslovias's creditors. And the vice president says Yugoslavia is in debt because of bad weather...which has given the country three poor harvests in the past four years. He also lists, as reasons for Yugoslavia's economic troubles the concentration on industrialization at the expense of agriculture...the high cost of defense and the increase of prices on the foreign market for essential imports.

The Vatican indicated today that the health of Pope Pius continues to improve. He has received another transfusion of plasma and whole blood.. and continues to devote much time each day to church matters.

Representatives of the State and Defense departments and the air force conferred today on a proposed agreement with Spain concerning the Americans who will tend our bases being established in Spain. The proposal would make inter-faith marraige of Americans is Spain subject to approval of the Roman Catholic church. The Reverend Raymond M. Stadta, a lieutenant colonel in the air force, who negotiated the proposed agreement in Madrid, says it will mean fewer legal difficulties than chaplains of all faiths now encounter in England and France when Americans want to marry there.

The final count on traffic deaths over the holiday week-end now reads 387 with Texas reporting 31 traffic deaths..California 29 and Pennsylvania 25.

And the air force announces that Lieutenant Colonel John Paul Stapp has reached the fastest ground speed on record. He traveled 632 miles an hour an Holloman Air Developement Center in New Mexico. Colonel Stapp rode on a rockket-propelled sled...propelled by the 40-thousand pound thrust of nine rockets. He attained the 632 miles an hour speed in five seconds after starting...and within a space of 28-hundred feed. His "sled" slammed to a dead stop in one and a half seconds after hitting its top speed. The colonel was strapped in by a nylon web harness on shoulder, legs, chest and lap. He suffered only some blood blisters from dust particles and two black eyes...as a result of their sudden movement forward against his eyelids.

In Paris Premier Mendes-France is engaged in a politicaal battle of monumental proportions; not only is his political life at stake, the whole fabric of West European defense is in the balance. In recent days he has been told by the Russians that if France ratifies the Paris agreements to re-arm West Germany, the treaty of friendship between Russia and France will be terminated, and Russia will proceed to form an East European coalition, which has in fact already been done. The Russians have also threatened to break off their treaty with Great Britain. On the other hand Mendes-France has been told by his allies, the United States and Great Britain, that an unfavorable vote will isolate France, won't prevent Germany from being re-armed, and will in effect leave France to go it alone.

Mendes-France has decided to gamble everything on three votes of confidence. The first, the approval of the entry of Germany into the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, to be coupled with a complete agreement between France and Germany on the Saar. That vote, a crucial one, was carried tonight by 289 to 251.

Next, there was to be a second vote of confidence which was scheduled to occur tonight. This involved the rejection of two amendments that in effect would postpone German re-armament for at least a year, in the hope that there might occur during that time new and fruitful negotiations between the three Western Powers and the Soviet Union. Those amendments have just been withdrawn...another victory for Mendes.

The final test, however, will not come until Wednesday - or perhaps later - and that one will involve a reversal of last Friday's decision, when the French rejected the inclusion of Germany in the West European union, which is the very heart of the whole defense plan for Western Europe. Today Mendes-France talked to a dead silent and attentive Chamber. He said that if he had believed that final negotiations with the Russians were possible before the ratification, he would have tried to persuade the British and Americans to seek such a conference. But the Americans and the British and Americans to seek such a conference. But the Americans and the British and Mendes-France believed that negotiations could be carried on better after the ratification. He said: "If we give in now (to Russian threats) it would lead to the belief we had given in because of fear. If we do not ratify, a four-power conference would have less chance of success. There might be a conference of two or three nations, but we would not be invited, because we would have left the Atlantic alliance." And Mendes-France asked: "What would be our political credit with Great Britain and the United States and our European partners, in case of rejection?" And he added: "Even with Russia, is is doubtful that a country which had broken with all of its allies could have much credit." He said that after four years of French hesitancy and indecision France's allies are no longer willing to listen to alternatives. He contended that is is no longer possible to forbid Germany to re-arm. That is painful for all Frenchman, but it is unavoidable. The French Premier contended that the entire Atlantic pact was at stake, which France must preserve and maintain with her allies, or else allow those allies to organize their defenses without France.

Mendes-France has won his first 2 votes of confidence, but the third and most difficult remains. That is the one bringing German, with the right to re-arm, into the seven nation West European Union. That's the one on which he was beaten last Friday by a vote of 280 to 259.

French politics is an unpredictable as the weather, but as of tonight it appears that a sufficient number of Deputies have changed their minds to give him the majority he needs on the three votes of confidence. This is because a number of Independents and De Gaullists have changed their votes.

Seldom in recent history has a soverign nation been exposed to such blunt and unremitting pressure, both from its enemies and its friends. If Mendes-France succeeds in the final test, it will mean that the Western nations in Europe maintain by however narrow a margin a common political and military prupose in Western Europe. And that will be something they have not yet been able to achieve in Asia. It will mean, too, that in terms of French politics the pressure for early conversations between the Western Powers and the Soviet Union will increase. The mere ratification of the Paris agreements will not bring a German army into being overnight, now will it diminish the appetite of those Europeans in France and elsewhere who want to have another try at talking with the Russians before giving up hope that some method can be found of living in the same world. with them without facing the constant alternative of destroying or being destroyed. If the French agree finally to the re-arming of Germany, it must be regarded not as the climactic ending of a book, but rather the beginning of a new chapter which will not be lacking in surprise and suspense.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a mintue with the Word for Today. But first, here's a word from Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: Mendes -France, from the time he assumed the Premiership, has attempted to lead from strength, staking a career and reputation on the outcome. For a politician, this demands considerable personal courage. Cannon Wescott once observed: "Great occasions do not make heroes of cowards; they simply unveil them to the eyes of men. Silent and imperceptible, as we wake or sleep, we grow strong or we grow weak and at last some crisis shows us what we have become."

Good Night and Good Luck

Tues. Dec. 28 1954

This is the news:

The President, at Augusta, conferred twice by phone today with Secretary of State Dulles..on tomorrow's vote in the French Chamber of Deputies. And in Paris, opponents of German re-armament introduced new delaying (TACTICS). But Premier Mendez France is confident that he'll win final approval. Generally, newspapers in free Europe agree that Mendes-France will win. But the West German Socialists, who oppose re-armament suggest that a small majority in the French vote "can have no good results."

The President today named Connecticut's Republican Governor Lodge to be THE new ambassador to Spain. Lodge, who is the brother of Henry Cabot Lodge, our chief delegate to the United Nations, was defeated for re-election. Lodge will replace Ambassador Dunn who goes to Brazil to replace Ambassador James Kemper who is retiring.

Republican Representative Reed of New York said today he'll fight any Administration foreign trade program that "does not protect the interest of American workers and producers." The President is expected to ask Congress to lower tariffs and extend the Reciporcal trade act.

Representative Rayburn, who will be the new speaker of the House, says he's going to stick to his former policy of not allowing any television at House committee hearings.

Democratic Senator Mansfield of Montana has called for a 25 per cent increase in military pay, to keep men in the service permanently. And he wants the excess profits tax revived, on war and defense production. Mansfield says: "If we have to draft men, then we should also draft excess profits."

The Justice Department says 542 persons were jailed and fined this year for criminal violations of the tax laws. And the Department warns that "even the wiliest" tax cheat can be tracked down and convicted.

The Defense Department says it is going to let American commercial air lines carry the great bulk of postage-paid military air mail, addressed to overseas posts. A Pentagon spokesman estimates this will net the carriers 18 and a half million dollars a year, starting next July first.

Surgeon-General Scheele, of the United States Public Health Service, estimates that this year marked the biggest boom in babies in our history. He says for the first time, this year, births will go over four million. And he also forecasts that this year will show the lowest death rate in history. His figures also show a drop in both marriages and divorces.

The State Department says it has received no official word from Communist Hungary saying that Noel and Herta Field have decided to remain in Hungary rather than return to this country.

Secretary General Hammershuld of the United Nations says he and four aides will leave for London on Thursday..on the first leg of their flight to Communist China to discuss the freeing of eleven American airmen held by the Communists.

In South Korea today, three unidentified planes flew north of Seoul. Our jets intercepted them but they fled before a shot was fired.

Japanese Prime Minister Matoyama says he'd like to see more trade and travel with Russia and Red China. He says he's "Certain" this would not create any difficulty with the United States.

The Vatican Radio notes that Josef Cardinal Mindsenty is now starting his 7th year of "unjust imprisonment" in Hungary. The Vatican has received no confirmation of reports that the Cardinal has been freed.

Ambassador Clare Boothe Luce said in Rome today--before flying home..that "Italy has changed its whole situation and taken its place firmly in the Atlantic alliance with the West." She says the outlook is "very hopeful indeed."

And the Yugoslav government tonight accused the biographer and former close friend of Marshal Tito of betraying his country and the Communist party. The Parliament has ordered Vladimir Dedijer tried on criminal charges.

Once each year most of our foreign correspondents come home...We will be doing a full hour of conversation on Radio and TV Sunday afternoon... Tonite two old friends are here for some talk...David Schoenbrun from France and Dick Hottelet from Germany....Both have contributed much information to this report over the years...this is my chance to say thanks publicly...

My two colleagues - David Schoenbrun and Dick Hottelet - are not often in agreement in so far as France and Germany are concerned. But I suspect they might go along with this observation Will Rogers once made. ~~Back in 1928 he said~~: "You can ask a Russian any question in the world, and if you give him long enough he will explain their angle, and it will sound plausible enough. Communism to me is one third practice, and two thirds explanation. And more words aint good for anything except to bring on more argument."

Good Nite and Good Luck.

CBS RADIO DIVISION

EDWARD R. MURROW

Tuesday, Dec. 28, 1954
7:45-8:00 P.M.

MURROW: ... Once each year most of our foreign correspondents come home. We'll be doing a full hour of conversation on radio and television with them on Sunday afternoon. Tonite two old friends are here for some talk: David Schoenbrun from France and Dick Hottelet from Germany. Both have contributed much information to this report over the years, and this is my chance to say thanks to them publicly.

David, are the French going to ratify the agreements to rearm Germany?

SCHOENBRUN: Yes, I think they will in the Assembly tomorrow, Ed. But I'm not sure that that is the end of the story, unfortunately.

HOTTELET: Dave, one thing the Germans are very worried about is that, even tho the National Assembly may pass these treaties tomorrow, that something will happen to impede or delay final ratification.

SCHOENBRUN: That's what I was referring to, Hottelet. In France, as in most of the countries in Western Europe, a bill does not become law until it has been ratified by both houses of Parliament. The important vote tomorrow is taking place in the National Assembly, but then it must go to the Council of the Republic, which used to be known as the Senate of France. Now, the Council of the Republic is merely a consultative body there, I think probably with about the same powers as the Bundesrat in Germany, and they can turn it down, but it can be overridden again in a second reading in the House. Now, this jockeying back and forth is very complicated. We don't have to go into details. Suffice it to say that it is possible that despite ratification tomorrow, the process can be strung out for as long as six months. Now, what the French are watching for, of course, is -- to throw the ball back to you, Dick, which is what's happening in Europe -- the French will pass it tomorrow in the lower house and then, I think, they're going to sit back and watch what happens in Germany. Now, we've heard in Paris that Konrad Adenauer is having great difficulties himself in Germany. I'd like to know from you your estimate of whether or not this thing is going to go thru the German Parliament.

HOTTELET: There are four treaties involved in Germany: the NATO treaty, Western European Union, the sovereignty treaty and the position of -- I'm sorry, five -- position of troops in Germany and the Saar. All five will come up before the Bundestag, which is the lower house of Parliament, some time at the end of January. They will come up if, as you say, the French Assembly ratifies them in Paris. I think -- and the consensus seems to be -- that Chancellor Adenauer has a majority in the Bundestag to get all five of them thru, but there is a question mark about the Saar. And that is one thing that one has get to take into account in the German picture. The vote in Paris and, much more important, the debate in Paris and everything that's gone before may end with a mathematically happy solution, with a mathematical majority in the Assembly and in the Council, but the damage done to the idea of friendship between Germany and France, to the idea of integrating these two old neighbors and enemies may cause some considerable difficulty in the Bundestag and may bring Chancellor Adenauer into greater embarrassment than he suffered a couple of weeks or so ago ...

SCHOENBRUN: If I understand you, Richard, the Germans are not prepared to forgive the French for being hesitant about rearming them?

HOTTELET: This is not a moral judgment, Dave. I don't think it's a question of forgiving. It's a question of assessing the possibility of getting together with someone who seems to be demonstrating, as indeed the Germans have in the past, that there is a great deal of emotion and history and injustice on both sides to divide them.

SCHOENBRUN: Well, I don't think anybody in Paris -- and altho I'm not speaking for the French; I'm speaking as an American -- I don't think anybody in Paris, myself as an American included, would say that there is an equal history of bad ... of behavior on the part of the French and the Germans.

HOTTELET: Well, look, this all depends on how far you go back. You know, this is the old argument; we have this every year. If you go back a hundred years, the Germans have been the villains of the piece. But I live in the Rhineland in Germany - and, by golly, you can count the castles that were burnt down, ravaged, the countryside which was destroyed by Louis XIV. But this, I mean, this is ... (interruption)

MURROW: .... a little updated from Louis XIV. Hottelet, is there any worry in Germany about their reacquiring an army?

HOTTELET: Yes, there is, indeed, Ed! There is worry on two scores. One, of course, is the Russian threat that the establishment of a West German Army and its inclusion in a Western alliance would perpetuate the split -- there are in Germany the division between East and West -- and also, as the Russians say, greatly increase the danger of a new world war. But there is also an internal worry. The European Defense Community, which was the original basis for the rearmament of Germany and which provided all kinds of international safeguards and security for the growth of this army along democratic lines, of course, has now been killed; and the German Army that goes into NATO will be a national army, will leave free scope for the ambitions and the power of all kinds of people who are not necessarily European-minded and who could inject into German politics and into the power that goes with building up an army a national note, which could cause us considerable trouble.

MURROW: Well now, are you two saying that if this agreement is reached it will be a marriage of necessity and that the old suspicions and doubts will still be there?

SCHOENBRUN: Unfortunately, yes. I'd agree with Hottelet that it was a great tragedy and, I think, an enormous error for France to have rejected the European Defense Community, which was not only the safest way to rearm Germany but which gave real support, a real framework for the embryonic German democracy to develop into a very lusty human being. There's great fear now that the impact of the German Army in Germany itself may disturb that - and if it does, the French will be the ones to blame. And so, at the moment, I think it is a marriage of necessity. The reluctance in France has been very marked. Nobody's in favor of German rearmament. They're passing it because they have no choice, because their allies, the British (sic) and the French, are telling them ... the British and the Americans are telling them to do so. I think it's a very great error that the French have made. I'd agree completely with Hottelet on that.

MURROW: Well, it's most remarkable when you agree with Hottelet on anything. Go ahead, Dick.

HOTTELET: I have just one last question. Dave, does this situation not pose a challenge which is recognized in France, that something must be done that national impulses don't gain the upper hand in Germany?c I mean ...

SCHOENBRUN: I think so. The key phrase is in Western European Union treaty - and that is, "progressive integration". They've got to get back to it. They've turned down EDC, but when you find out as you take a close look at it, they haven't really embraced German rearmament; and this very word, "Western European Union" ... union means integration, and we don't have it now. As Hottelet reported, we have a coalition, we have a national German army, a general staff, which Eisenhower and Dulles have said repeatedly are a great menace to Europe. And so, there must be an attempt to get back to integration, or else we're all in very great danger.

MURROW: Thank you very much, Dick Hottelet and Dave Schoenbrun.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a moment with the Word for Today.

-30-

Ediphone trans./E. Scheiner

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

TUESDAY, DECEMBER 28, 1954
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

The President, at Augusta, conferred twice by phone today with Secretary of State Dulles...on tomorrow's vote in the French Chamber of Deputies. And in Paris, opponents of German re-armament introduced new delaying tactics. But Premier Mendez-France is confident that he'll win final approval. Generally, newspapers in free Europe agree that Mendes-France will win. But the West German Socialists, who oppose re-armament suggest that a small majority in the French vote "can have no good results."

The President today named Connecticut's Republican Governor Lodge to be the new ambassador to Spain. Lodge, who is the brother of Henry Cabot Lodge, our chief delegate to the United Nations, was defeated for re-election. Lodge will replace Ambassador Dunn who goes to Brazil to replace Ambassador James Kemper who is retiring.

Republican Representative Reed of New York said today he'll fight any Administration foreign trade program what "does not protect the interest of American workers and producers." The President is expected to ask Congress to lower tafiffs and extend the Reciprocal trade act.

Representative Rayburn who will be the new speaker of the House says he's going to stick to his former policy of not allowing any television at House committee hearings.

Democratic Senator Mansfield of Montana has called for a 25 per cent increase in military pay to keep men in the serivce permanently. And he wants the excess profits tax revived on war and defense production. Mansfield says: "If we have to draft men, then we should also draft excess profits."

The Justice Department says 542 persons were jailed and fined this year for criminal violations ff the tax laws. And the Department warns that "even the wiliest" tax cheat can be tracked down and convicted.

The Defense Department says it is going to let American commercial air lines carry the great bulk of postage-paid military air mail addressed to overseas posts. A Pentogon spokesman estimates this will net the carriers 18 and a half million dollars a year starting next July first.

Surgeon General Scheele, of the United States Public Health Service, estimates that this year marked the biggest boom in babies in our istory. He says for the first time, this year, births will go over four million. And he also forecasts that this year will show the lowest death rate in history. His figures also show a drop in both marriages and divorces.

The State Department says it has received no official word from Communist Hungary saying that Noel and Herta Field have decided to remain in Hungary rather than return to this country.

Secretary General Hammershuld of the United Nations says he and four aides will leave for London on Thrusday...on the first let of their flight to Communist China to discuss the freeing of eleven American airmen held by the Communists.

In South Korea today, three unidentified planes flew north of Seoul. our jets intercepted them but they fled before a shot was fired.

Japanese Prime Minister Matayama says he'd like to see more trade and travel with Russia and Red China. He says he's "certain" this would nod create any difficulty with the United States.

The Vatican Radio notes that Joseph Cardinal Minssenty is now starting his 7th year of "unjust imprisonment" in Hungary. The Vatican has received no confirmation of reports that the Cardinal has been freed.

Ambassador Clare Boothe Luce said in Rome today --before flying home... that "Italy has chenged its whole situation and taken its place firmly in the Atlantic alliance with the West." She says the outlook is "very hopeful indeed."

And the Yugoslav government tonight accused the biographer and former close friend of Mashhal Tito of betraying his country and the Communist party. The Parliament has ordered Vladimir Dedifer tried on criminal charges.

Once each year most of our foreign correspondents come home...We will be doing a full hour of conversation on Radio and TV Sunday afternoon... Tonite two old freinds are here for somr talk...David Schoenbrun from France and Dick Hottelet from Germany...Both have contributed much information to this report over the years...this is my chance to say thanks publicly...

David, are the French going to ratify the agreements to rearm Germany?

SCHOENBRUN: Yes, I think they will in the Assembly tomorrow, Ed. But I'm not sure that that is the end of the story, unfortunately.

HOTTELET: Dave, one thing the Germans are very worried about is that, even though the National Assembly may pass these treaties tomorrow, that something will happen to impede or delay final ratification.

SCHOENBRUN: That's what I was referring to, Hottelet. In France, as in most of the countries in Western Europe, a bill does not become law until it has been ratified by both houses of Parliament. The important vote tomorrow is taking place in the National Assembly, but then it must go to the Council of the Republic, which used to be known as the Senate of France. Now, the Council of the Republic is merely a consultative body there. I think probably with about the same powers as the Dundesrat in Germany, and they can turn it down, but it can be overridden again in a second reading in the House. Now, this jockeying back and forth is very complicated.We don't have to go into details. Suffice it to say that it is possible that despite ratification tomorrow, the process can be strung out for as long as six months. Now, what the French are watching for, of course, is -- to throw the ball back ao you, Dick, which is what's happening in Europe -- the French will pass it tomorrow in the lower house and then, I think, they're going to sit back and watch what happens in Germany. Now, we've heard in Paris that Konrad Adenauer is having a great difficulties himself in Germany. I'd like to know from your estimate of whether or not this thing is going to go through the German Parliament.

HOTTELET: There are four treaties involved in Germany: The NATO treaty, Western European Union, the soverignty treaty and the position of --I'm sorry, five -- position of troops in Germany and the Saar. All five will come up before the Bundestag, which is the lower house of Parliament, some time at the end of January. They will come up if, as you say, the French Assembly ratifies them in Paris. I think -- and the consensus seems to be -- that Chancellor Adenauer has a majority in the B ndestag to get all five of them through, but there is a question mark about the Saar. And that is one thing that one has got to take into account in the German picture. The vote in Paris and, much more important, the debate in Paris and everything that's gone before may end with a mathematically happy solution, with a mathematical majority in the Assembly and in the Council, but the damage done to the idea of freindship between Germany and France, to the idea of integrating these two old neighbors and enemies may cause some considerable difficulty in the Bundestag and may bring Chancellor Adenauer into greater embarrassment than he suffered a couple of weeks or so ago...

SCHOENBRUN: If I understand you, Richard, the Germans are not prepared to forgive the French for being hesitant about rearming them?

HOTTELET: This is not a moral judgement, Dave. I don't think it's a question of forgiving. It's a question of assessing the possibility of getting together with someone who seems to be demonstrating, as indeed the Germans have in the past, that there is a great deal of emotion and history and injustice on both sides to divide them.

SCHOENBRUN: Well, I don't think anybody in Paris -- and although I'm not speaking for the French; I'm speaking as an American -- I don't think anybody in Paris, myself as an American included, would say that there is an equal history of bad...of behavior on the part of the French and the Germans.

HOTTELET: Well, look, this all depends on how far you go back. You know, this is the old argument; we have this every year. If you go back a hundred years, the Germans have been the villains of the piece. But I live in the Rhineland in Germany - and, by golly, you can count the castles that were burned down, ravaged, the countryside which was destryoed by Louis XIV. But this, I mean, this is...(interruption)

MURROW:....a little updated from Louis XIV, Hottelet, is there any worry in Germany about their reaquiring an army?

HOTTELET: Yes, there is, indeed, Ed. There is worry on two scores. One, of course, is the Russian threat that the establishment of a West German Army and its inclusion in a Western alliance would perpetuate the split -- there are in Germany the division between East and West -- and also, as the Russians say, greatly increase the danger of a new world war. But there is also an internal worry. The European Defense Community, which was the original basis for the rearmament of Germany and which provided all kinds of international safeguards and security for the growth of this army along democratic lines, of course, has not been killed; and the German Army that goes into NATO will be a national army, will leave free scope for the ambitions and the power of all kinds of people who are not necessarily European-minded and who could inject into German politics and into the power that goes with building up an army a national note, which could cause us considerable trouble.

MURROW: Well, now, are you two saying that if this agreement is reached it will be a marraige of necessity and that the old suspiciaon and doubts will still be there?

SCHOENBRUN: Unfortunately, yes. I agree with Hottelet that it was a great tragedy and, I think, an enormous error for France to have rejected the European Defense Community, which was not only the safest way to rearm Germany but which gave real support, a real framework for the embryonic German democracy to develop into a very lusty human being. There's great fear now that the impact of the German Army in Germany itself may disturb that - and if it does, the French will be the ones to blame. And so, at the moment, I think it is a marraige of necessity. The reluctance in France has been very marked. Nobody's in favor of German rearmament. They're passing it because they have no choice, because their allies, the British and the French, are telling them...the British and the Americans are telling them to do so. I thinkit's a very great error that the French have made. I'd agree completely with Hottelet on that.

MURROW: Well, it's most remarkable when you agree with Hottelet on anything. Go ahead, Dick.

HOTTELET: I have just one last question..Dave, does this situation not pose a challenge which is recognized in France, that something must be done that national impulses don't gain the upper hand in Germany? I mean....

SCHOENBRUN: I think so. The key phrase is in Western European Union treaty - and that is, "progressive integration". They've got to get back to it. They've turned down EDC, but then you find out as you take a close look at it, they haven't really embraced German rearmament; and this very word, "Western European Union" ... nion means integration, and we don't have it now. As Hottelet reported, we have a coalition, we have a national German army, a general staff, which Eisenhower and Dulles have said repeatedly are a great menace to Europe. And so, there must be an attempt to get back to integration, or else we're all in very great danger.

MURROW: Thank you very much, Dick Hottelet and Dave Schoenbrun. This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a moment with the Word for Today. But first, Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: My two colleagues - David Schoenbrun and Dick Hotteltt are not often in agreement in so far as France and Germany are concerned. But I suspect they might go along with this observation Will Rogers once made. "You can ask a Russian any question in the world and if you give him long ehough he will explain their angle and it will sound plausible enough. Communism to me is one third practice and two thirds explanation. And more words aint good for anything except to bring another argument."

Good Night and Good Luck.

Wed - Dec. 29, 1954

This is the news:

The French National Assembly tonight reconfirmed its approval for West Germany to enter the North ~~Atlantic~~ Atlantic Treaty Organization. ~~The [illegible] vote was [illegible] to 250.~~ But because of parliamentary technicalities the Assembly decided to put off until tomorrow its vote on re-arming the Germans as partners in the Western European Union. Correspondent Blair Clark has been following this story for us in Paris. And here is his report, recorded a few minutes ago.:

This is the news:

The French National Assembly has postponed until tomorrow its final vote on the Western European Union. A number of deputies who are opposed to re-arming West Germany forced the postponment until 11 a.m. eastern time tomorrow. Before the decision to postpone, Premier Mendez-France told the Assembly "the country will not understand a negative vote." And he asked everyone "especially those abroad" to retain one thing from the Assembly's debate. He said:"Frenchmen of all parties have a feeling of pain at the re-arming of their old enemies. They want to be certain that the controls and limitations will be enforced."

All day today the President--at Augusta--waited for the French to make their decision. Mr. Eisenhower discussed the problem by phone with Secretary of State Dulles in Washington. And News Secretary Hagerty told reporters there would be no comment from the President until the French vote is counted..and official.

Here in New York today the Stock Market continued to move up. Almost four and a [redacted] half million shares were traded..the biggest number since December of 1950. And the average price of industrial stocks broke through the $400 mark for the first time in history. Steels and coppers turned in the best all-around performances.

The American Public Power Association today urged an investigation of what it called an "extremely grave alleged attempt to exert pressure on a witness" who testified against the proposed Dixon-Yates contract. The Association has asked the Securities and Exchange Commission to trace the source of the pressure and determine whether or not the law has been violated.

Senator McCarthy said today he thinks the President has done "a substantially good job in Europe" but a disastrous job in Asia. He says the Administration's policies in Asia "are wrong to the point that we might have a catastrophe."

The Department of Agriculture says there was a drop of about three per cent in cigaret smoking this year...combined with a drop in the production of cigars, pipe tobacco and chewing tobacco. The Department says "publicity relating to smoking and health in the past year has been a factor that adversely affected cigaret consumption."

David D. Lloyd, the executive director of the Truman Library Corporation, said today that more than one million dollars of the Library's one and three quarter million dollar goal has now been donated.

In Indonesia today, prime ministers of five south Asian countries called for a meeting at the end of next April of 30 Asian and African countries. They would include Japan and Communist China but not Nationalist China. The idea of the meeting would be to promote world peace and co-operation. A Communique by the five sponsoring powers called--among other things--for [redacted] an end to atomic and hydrogen weapon tests.

Edward R. Murrow: December 29, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

As we said last night, this is the season of the year when our foreign correspondents come home to compare notes and argue one with another, and to prepare a full hour review of the past year for next Sunday afternoon. The chief of our European Correspondents is Howard K. Smith, who makes his headquarters in London - (his weekly commentaries from there have been a credit to radio reporting for the last nine years.) He is just back from six weeks in South Africa, and is here in the studio tonight. Howard, what did you learn in South Africa that you didn't know before? + How does your balance sheet look at the end of the year outstanding man in Rank '54

Fear of U.S. doubted why?

Much of my youth and much of my heart were spent in England. And I think my colleague, Howard K. Smith would agree, as I do, with these words spoken by Sir Winston Churchill back in 1918:"Ask what you please,look where you will, you can not get to the bottom of the resources of Britain. No demand is too novel or too sudden to be met. No need is too unexpected to be supplied. No strain is too prolonged for the patience of our people. No suffering or peril daunts their hearts."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

CBS RADIO DIVISION

EDWARD R. MURROW

Wednesday, Dec. 29, 1954
7:45-8:00 P.M.

MURROW: THIS IS THE NEWS:

The French National Assembly tonite reconfirmed its approval for West Germany to enter the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. But because of parliamentary technicalities the Assembly decided to put off until tomorrow its vote on rearming the Germans as partners in the West European union. Correspondent Blair Clark has been following this story for us in Paris - and here is his report, recorded just a few minutes ago.

CLARK: The French Assembly has taken another vote on German rearmament, but it was not the vital vote the world is waiting for. It was a re-vote of what has already been passed, and unofficially the results show a loss of 15 votes from yesterday's 38 majority to 23. The sovereign National Assembly got itself tied up in such tight procedural knots that it won't be able to take the key vote on rearming Germany before tomorrow afternoon. Just a few minutes ago, after a long and bitter wrangle, Premier Mendes-France got up, looking pale and haggard, and attacked the Assembly for its .... delay. "Foreign countries just can't understand our red tape," said the Premier. "If you could read the dispatches from ~~xxxxx~~ abroad that I have to read every day," he told the Deputies, "you wouldn't allow artifices of procedure to delay this vote." There were boos and exclamations from the angry Assembly when Mendes-France said this, but the sovereign Assembly insisted on remaining sovereign, no matter what the world thought of it. It was not influenced by the fact which the French Premier mentioned earlier in the nite, that France was largely responsible for four years of delay on the German question.

Tonite's tempest came about this way: A Right-wing Deputy had proposed an amendment to the Paris accords which would have set up legislative watchdog committees over their applications. Mendes-France accepted this amendment in order to win votes from this group. Then, this afternoon the amendment's author withdrew it. The question was whether this caused a new legislative situation or whether the confidence vote on rearming Germany could be held with the watchdog committee amendment withdrawn. Common sense, as more than one speaker said, ...(drowned out) ... vote should be held as scheduled. But the rule book triumphed over common sense, and the Assembly's Steering Committee decided that there would have to be a new twenty-four-hour delay. Mendes-France fought it but lost. But he insisted ... (drowned out) further action tonite ... (drowned out) ... preliminary results. So he forced the Assembly to take such vote -- the one they have already voted and approved -- on the entry of Germany into the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and the restoration of its sovereignty. So seventeen orators have orated in the French National Assembly today - and now they are not voting on the issue they were talking about. That issue, of course, is the law which would actually allow Germany to rearm, the law which, to the world's shock and astonishment, was rejected by the Assembly the day before Christmas. It was this rejection of the key article of the Paris accords that forced Mendes-France into the series of confidence votes that were to be all over by tonite. Mendes-France said earlier tonite that he could understand what he called "the immense anguish" with which Frenchmen looked on the rearming of their ancient enemy, Germany, necessary as it now was. The charitable explanation is that it is this anguish that has made the Assembly do what it has done tonite: once again put off the fateful decision.

Now back to Edward R. Murrow in New York.

(MORE)

MURROW: As we said last nite, this is the season of the year when our foreign correspondents come home to compare notes and argue one with another and to prepare a full-hour review of the past year for next Sunday afternoon. The chief of our European correspondents is Howard K. Smith, who makes his headquarters in London. His weekly commentaries from there have been a credit to radio reporting for the last nine years. He is just back from six weeks in South Africa, and he's here in the studio tonite.

Howard, what did you learn in South Africa you didn't know before and how does your balance sheet look at the end of this year?

SMITH: Well, Ed, it's so seldom that it's possible to end the year on a fairly optimistic note, that I think we ought to make as much of it as we can.

MURROW: Good!

SMITH: As recent years have gone, I had the impression that 1954 has been a pretty good year for the Western world. I think it's generally agreed here in America now, as it has been among our European allies and, I believe, behind the Iron Curtain, too, that the prospect of a general war is a greater distance from us than in past years. 1954 has seen the last local war in the world, that in Indochina, come to an end. For the first time since the 1930s there's no formal war in progress anywhere. There have been many evidences of more consumer goods being allowed to the public in Communist countries. Since something else had to give for that to be possible, it's likely that the rate of rearmament has been cut in those countries - and certainly on our side that is happening. Already last year our European friends began reducing their rate of rearmament, and now it's been announced here that the United States will do the same.

In the realm of economics our allies overseas are almost matching the boom that is current in this country. And it's amazing to anybody who worked in Europe in the late '40s, when there was permanent crisis and national collapse was near at hand in every West European country, it's amazing now to see the difference, in Britain in particular, where rationing has just been ended after fifteen years, and there are signs of economic health that are almost overpowering in that country we all thought, I think, was decadent some time ago.

In the realm of diplomacy the mortality rate among tough, old problems has been terrific in 1954. The Iranian oil issue has been settled, the Trieste dispute between Yugoslavia and Italy has been settled, the Suez dispute between Britain and Egypt has been resolved. I'm not arguing that everything is perfect; I'm just saying that things are less unsatisfactory than in the past. I suspect that from now on, for some time, our main problem is not going to be pressure from communism, which has probably shot its expansive energies for a time and needs a breathing spell; our problem, I would suggest, is going to be facing a few weaknesses within. Of those, there are two general ones. First, the problem of reorganizing our side. Europe is still made up of too many small, uneconomic national units to enjoy genuine prolonged strength. Unification of Europe is still, I think, as live an urgent a question as ever. Whether in that respect a step is going to be made forward or backward is one of the big year-end stories you've just been talking about - that is, the matter of the vote to take place in the French Parliament tomorrow on whether Germany is to be integrated in Western defense.

Unless steps toward European unity are made, Ed, I feel sure the present prosperity in Europe and the West's present position of parity with the Communist world in armed strength cannot be maintained.

The other general problem we're facing -- and I think it's an even tougher problem -- is finding a new kind of relationship between us and what are called the backward peoples of Asia and Africa. In Asia the rebellion of peoples tired of being subordinate, their demand for a place in the sun, is by now an old question. We've had to deal with about a dozen wars since World War II because of that. But in Africa it's new. It exploded in Kenya, the British Crown Colony, in a kind of blind, aimless campaign of murders of white people last year. It is, in my opinion, coming to a head now in a much more important place - the Union of South Africa, where I've just visited. There, the native Africans outnumber whites 4 to 1, and their numbers are rising all the time. They're being drawn into cities in great numbers by a kind of belated industrial revolution. There, in the city, they attain a certain sophistication, a capacity for articulating discontent, an awareness that higher standards are possible. In fear of these increasing numbers, the white people there are maintaining in power a radical nationalist government whose policy is never to permit the black man integration and equality in South African society.

I'm afraid, Ed, that I came away convinced that a social explosion is almost inevitable if those policies continue; and if it occurs in South Africa, the most populous, richest and most influential territorial unit in Africa, it will almost certainly spread thruout the rest of that part of the continent south of the Sahara Desert. To paraphrase what Lenin is supposed to have said: Communism's direct way to London and Paris and New York has been blocked; perhaps another way can be found via Johannesburg. Ed, I really left South Africa feeling that we haven't really got problems up here; we're doing pretty well. They have problems down there!

MURROW: Thank you very much, Howard K. Smith, our chief European correspondent. And if there is a better correspondent working in Europe, I have yet to meet him.

Howard, one final question: Who's the outstanding man in Europe last year?

SMITH: I think the man you're talking about - Mendes-France. He's really injected a lot of drama into the situation, and here we're all waiting for a decision he's about to reach.

MURROW: Thank you very much, Howard K. Smith.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a moment with the WORD FOR TODAY.

Ediphone trans./E. Scheiner.

-30-

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 29, 1954
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

The French National Assembly tonight reconfirmed its approval for West Germany to enter the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. But because of parliamentry technicalities the Assembly decided to put off until tomorrow its vote on re-arming the Germans as partners in the Western European Union. Correspondent Blair Clark has feen following this story for us in Paris. And here is his report, recorded a few minutes ago:

CLARK: The French Assembly has taken another vote on German rearmament, but it was not the vital vote the world is waiting for. It was a re-vote of what has already been passed, and unofficially the results show a loss of 15 votes from yesterday's 38 majority to 23. The soverign National Assembly got itself tied up in such tight procedural knots that it won't be able to take the key vote on rearming Germany before tomorrow afternoon. Just a few minutes ago, after a long and bitter wrangle, Premier Mendes-France got up, looking pale and haggard, and attacked the Assembly for its...delay. "Foreign countries just can't understand our red tape," said the Premier. "If you could read the dispatches from abroad that I have read every day, " he told the Deputies, "you wouldn't allow artifices of prodedure to delay this vote." There were boos and exclamations from the angry Assembly when Mendes France said this, but the soverign Assembly insisted on remaining soverign, no matter what the world thought of it. It was not influenced by the fact which the French Premier mentioned earlier in the night, that France was largely responsible for four years of delay on the German question.

Tonights tempest came about this way: A Right-Wing deputy had proposed an amendment to the Paris accords which would have set up legislation watchdog committees over their applications. Mendes-France accepted this amendment in order to win votes from this group. Then, this afternoon the amendment's author withdrew it. The question was whether this caused a new legislative situation on whether the confidence vote on rearming Germany could be held with the watchdog committee amendment withdrawn. Common sense, as more than one speaker said.....(drowned out).....vote should be held as scheduled. But the rule book triumphed over common sense, and the Assembly's Steering Committee decided that there would have to be a new twenty-four-hour delay. Mendes-France fought it but lost. But he insisted...(drowned out) further action tonite...(drowned out)...preliminary results. So he forced the Assembly to take such vote -- the one they have already voted and approved -- on the entry of Germany into the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and the restoration of its soverignty. So seventeen orators have orated in the French National Assembly today - and now they are not voting on the issue they were talking about. That issue, of course, is the law which would actually allow Germany to rearm, the law which, to the world's shock and astonishment, was rejected by the Assembly the day before Christmas. It was this rejection of the key article of the Paris accords that forced Mendes-France into the series of confidence votes that were to be all over by tonite. Mendes-France said earlier tonite that he could understand what he called "the immense anguish" whih which Frenchmen looked on the rearming of their ancient enemy, Germany, necessary as it now was. The charitable explanation is that it is this anguish that has made the Assembly to do what it has done tonight: once again put off the fateful decision.

Now back to Ed Murrow in New York.

MURROW: All day today the President -- at Augusta --waited for the French to make their decision. Mr. Eisenhower discussed the problem by phone with Secretary of State Dulles in Washington. And News Secretary Hagerty told reporters thate would be no comment from the President until the French vote is counted...and official.

Here in New York today the Stock Market continued to move up. Almost four and a half million shares were traded ...the biggest number since December of 1950. And the average price of industrial stocks broke through the $400 mark for the first time in history. Steels and coppers turned in the best all-around performances.

The American Public Power Association today urged an investigation of what it called an "extremely grave alleged attempt to exert pressure on a witness" who testified against the proposed Dixon-Yates contract. The Association has asked the Securities and Exchange Commission to trace the source of the pressure and determine whether or not the law has been violated.

Senator McCarthy said today he thinks the President has done "A substantially good job in Europe" but a disasterous job in Asia. He says the Administration's policies in Asia "are wrong to the point that we might have a catastrophe."

The Department of Agricutture says there was a drop of about three percent in cigaret smoking this year...combined with a drop in the production of cigars, pipe tobacco and chewing tobacco. The Department says "publicity relating to smoking and health in the past year has been a factor that adversely affected cigaret consumption."

David D. Lloyd, the executive director of the Truman Library Corporation said today that more than one million dollars of the Library's one and three quarter million dollar goal has now been donated.

In Indonesia today, prime ministers of five south Asian countries called for a meeting at theend of next April of 30 Asian and African countries. They would include Japan and Communist China but not Nationalist China. The idea of the meeting would be to promote world peace and co-operation. A communique by the five sponsoring powers called--among other things -- for an end to atomic and hydrogen weapon tests.

MURROW: As we said last night, this is the season of the year when our foreign correspondents come home to compare notes and argue one with another and to prepare a full-hour review of the past hear for next Sunday afternoon. The chief of our European correspondents is Howard K. Smith, who makes his headquarters in London. His weekly commentaries from there have been a credit to radio reporting for the last nine years. He is just back from six weeks in South Africa, and he's here in the studio tonight.

Howard, what did you learn in South Africa you didn't know before and how does your balance sheet look at the end of this year?

SMITH: Well, Ed, it's seldom that it's possible to end the year on a fairly optimistic note, that I think we ought to make as much of it as we can.

MURROW: Good.

SMITH: As recent years have gone, I had the impression that 1954 has been a pretty good year for the Western world. I think it's generally agreed here in America now, as it has been among our European allies, and, I believe, behind the Iron Curtain, too, that the prospect of a general war is a greater distance from us than in past years. 1954 has seen the last local war in the world, that in Indochina, come to an end. For the first time since the 1930's there's no formal war in progress anywhere. There have been many evidence of more consumer goods being allowed to the public in Communist countries. Since something else had to give for that to be possible, it's likely that the rate of rearmament has been cut in those countries - and certainly on our side that is happening. Already last year our European friends began reducing their rate of rearmament, and now it's been announced here that the United States will do the same.

In the realm of economics our allies overseas are almost matching the boom that is current in this country. And it's amazing to anybody who worked in Europe in the late 40's, when there was permanent crisis and national collspse was near at hand in every West European country, it's amazing now to see the difference in Britain in particular, where rationing has just been ended after fifteen years, and there are signes of economic health that are almost overpowering in that country we all thought, I think, was decadent some time ago.

In the realm of diplomacy the mortality rate among tough, old problems has been terrific in 1954. The Iranian oil issue has been settled, the Trieste dispute between Yugoslavia and Italy has been settled, and the Suez dispute between Britain and Egypt has been resolved. I'm not arguing that everything is perfect; i'm just saying that things are less unsatisfactory than in the past. I suspect that from now on, for some time, our main problem is not going to be pressure from communism, which has probably shot its expansive energies for a time and needs a breathing spell; our problem, I would suggest, is going to be facing a few weaknesses within. Of those, there are two general ones. First, the problem or reorganizing our side. Europe is still make up of too many small, uneconomic national units to enjoy prolonged strength. Unification of Europe is still, I think, as live an urgent question as ever. Whether in that respect a step is going to be made forward or backward is one of the big year - end stories you've just been talking about - that is, the matter of the vote to take place in the French Parliament tomorrow on whether Germany is to be integrated in Western defense.

Unless steps toward European unity are made, Ed, I feel sure the present porsperity in Europe and the West's present position of parity with the Communist world in armed strength cannot be maintained.

The other general problem we're facing -- and I think it's an even tougher problem -- is finding a new kind of relationship between us and what are called the backward peoples of Asia and Africa. In Asia the rebellion of peoples tired of being subordinate, their demand for a place in the sun, is by now an old question. We've had to deal with about a dozen wars since World War II because of that. But in Africa it's new. It exploded in Kenya, the British Crown Colony, in a kind of blind, aimless campaign of murders of white people last year. It is, in my opinion, coming to a head now in much more important place - the Union of South Africa, where I've just visited. There, the native Africans outnumber whites 4 to 1, and their numbers are rising all the time. They're being drawn into cities in great numbers by a kind of belated industrial revolution. There, in the city, they attain a certain sophistication, a capacity for articulating discontent, an awareness that higher standards are possible. In fear of these increasing numbers, the white people there are maintaining in power a radical nationalist government whose policy is never to permit the black man integration and equality in South African society.

I'm afraid, Ed, that I cameaway convinced that a social explosian is almost inevitable if those policies continues and if it occurs in South Africa, the most populous, richest and most influential territorial unit in Africa, it will almost cerainnly spread throughout the rest of that part of the continent south of the Sahara Desert. To paraphrase what Benin is supposed to have said: Communism's direct way to London and Paris and New York has been blocked; perhaps another way can be found via Johannesburg. Ed, I really left South Africa feeling that we haven't really got problems up here; we're doing pretty well. They have problems down there.

MURROW: Thank you very much, Howard K. Smith, our chief European correspondent. And if there is a better correspondent working in Europe, I have yet to meet him.

Howard, one final question: Who's the outstanding man in Europe last year?

SMITH: I think the man you're talking about - Mendes-France. He's really injected a lot of drama into the situation, and here we're all waiting for a decision he's about to reach.

MURROW: Thank you very much, Howard K. Smith.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a moment with the Word for Today.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: Much of my youth and much of my heart were spent in England. And I think my colleggue, Howard K. Smith would agree, as I do, with these words spoken by Sir Winston Churchill back in 1918: "Ask what you please, look where you will, you can not get to the bottom of the resources of Britain. No demand is too novel or too sudden to be met. No need is too unexpected to be supplied. No strain is too prolonged for the patience of our people. No suffering or peril daunts their hearts.

Good night and Good Luck.

Thursday Dec. 30, 1954

This is the news:

The French National Assembly..by a margin of 27 ~~votes~~..has approved the re-arming of West Germany. This vote on the key West European Union will bring the French and Germans into the organization with five other countries..including a half million West German soldiers. In the western world there was general satisfaction with the French vote. Although Premier Mendez-France, a great personal victory behind him, had no comment, the President issued a statement in Augusta saying: This is a matter of great gratification not only for the United States but to the entire free world." Secretary of States Dulles called it "a good augury for the years ahead." The British foreign office is "heartened." The West Germans hailed the vote. Rome expressed its profound satisfaction. But in all quarters there were warnings of difficulties to come. Mr. Eisenhower said there is more work to be done. The British point out ~~that~~ that "further steps are needed." West Germany's Chancellor Adenauer says many difficulties lie ahead..the debate in Paris "showed the extraordinary psychological and political differences which still lie ahead." And from radio Moscow the statement that the action in France today has but one meaning..."it aggravates the danger of a new war."

Dag Hammershuld, the secretary general of the United Nations, left New York by plane today, bound for Communist China..and an attempt to secure the release of eleven American airmen, and other allied personnel, held by the Communists. Hammershuld said:"I can only say that I shall do my best. I do not know what the outcome will be."

In Washington, Secretary of Commerce Weeks predicts, the new year will bring a moderate upswing in business activity, with high employment, and a rise in the standard of living.

The Defense Department says, that in the two years ended last June 30th, it cut military manpower strength by nine per cent..and its civilian roles by 6 per cent. And the Department says this was done without weakening combat power. The report says, that in this two year period, the military found almost 213-thousand uniformed and civilian positions "unnecessary to the accomplishment of their primary defense objectives." This resulted [redacted] in a saving of some 900-million dollars a year.

Attorney General Brownell today named 27 organizations that he proposed to add to his list of subversive groups. That would bring the list to 282 organizations.

The Army reported today that of the 35 civilian employes suspended at the time of Senator McCarthy's investigation at Fort Monmouth, 24 have been reinstated to their jobs after security checks. Eight have been dismissed as security risks. Three cases have not yet been decided.

Federal Judge McLaughlin, in Washington, today upheld the right of the General Electric Company to fire employes who (REFUSE) to answer Congressional committee questions about communism..espionage..and sabotage. The judge ruled that the company policy to suspend and fire such workers does not violate its collective bargaining agreement with the United Electrical Workers.

The Court of Military Appeals today refused to set aside the sentence of life imprisonment for Mrs. Dorothy K. Smith who killed her army colonel husband with a knife two years ago. This court, which is the highest court for servicemen, in effect upheld the military code which makes it very difficult to win a plea of not guilty on grounds of insanity.

Federal District Judge Holtzoff said in Washington today that Supreme Court Justice Frankfurter "attaches no binding character" to Supreme Court decisions in which he disagrees with the majority. Holtzoff asked whether divided Supreme Court opinions are to be regarded as "controlling precedents" on lower courts. Justice Frankfurter in a recent opinion upsetting a Holtzoff ruling said that Holtzoff had let himself become personally embroiled instead of "representing the impersonal authority of the law."

Postmaster General Summerfield says that after next March city and town deliveries of "junk mail" will be discontinued. This is the mail, usually advertsing material, that is addressed simply to "householder" ..or "patron" ..or "boxholder"..without any specific street address.

The Navy says that the atomic submarine Nautilus will not undergo its sea trials until early March. These tests originally were scheduled to begin last October. Then there was a three months delay because of a mixup in the installation of steam piping. The tests were scheduled for January..and are now delayed until March.

The White House announced tonight that Vice President Nixon and his wife will make a good-will tour of the Caribbean area in February. The trip is being made at the request of the President and Secretary of State Dulles. Last year the Nixons travelled 45-thousand miles on a tour of 19 countries.

abt Kendrick - Vienna -

~~MURROW: Introduction, when~~, What's going on in Yugoslavia?

KENDRICK: Frankly it looks like a purge, and despite a good deal of liberalization in the last couple of years under Western influence, it proves that Yugoslavia -- as Yugoslav leaders keep telling us -- is still a Communist state. The point is that no matter how you liberalize a one-party system, as has been done in Yugoslavia, you still can't allow any room for real fundamental opposition. Opposition is treason. And so former Vice President Milovan Djilas, who was once Tito's fair-haired boy and logical successor, and Vladimir Dedijer, who was Tito's biographer and close friend, are up on criminal charges today for advocating a two-party system.

Actually it's a bit more complicated than that. In addition to demanding more democracy in Yugoslavia, Djilas and Dedijer have also attacked the Party hierarcy, Djilas in a very personal way. Personal animosities are very much involved in this case. I guess Communism doesn't change human nature after all.

Both accused men are new-type, post-war Communists, made in the forests in the fight against Germany, not impressed by Stalinist doctrine or interested in Communist power politics.

Vlado Dedijer as you know, is a real war hero; he carries a silver plate in his head. He and Djilas are widely known in the West; they were Tito's official contact men with the West. Djilas is a real student of French philosophy and Vlado writes English better than I do. They feel themselves part of Western social thought -- although they have been violently anti-American on occasion, because they thought they were being pushed around during the days of the Morgan Line in Trieste.

But they refused to be pushed around by the Russians, either, and since the break with Moscow six years ago they have been openly anti-Soviet, not just anti-Stalin. As a matter of fact, their chief crime is probably that they are more Titoist than Tito himself.

On the other side you have the old-time party functionaries , the international revolutionaries and underground agents who have been following the Moscow party line for years, no matter where it led. Men like Tito's present successor and new Vice President, Kardelj, in fact like Tito. There's always been a conflict between these two strains in Yugoslav Communism, and now it seems to have come to a head.

MURROW: Is it then only an internal matter?

KENDRICK; A year ago, when the Djilas case started, I would have said yes -- in fact, I did. Even as an internal matter it would be disturbing enough. Now I'm not sure it is all internal.
As long as Stalin lived and the Russians and their satellites were hostile to Tito, all Yugoslav Communists had to stick together in order to survive that intense pressure from the Kremlin. Now that Malenkov has eased up and is uttering soft words, maybe they're becoming unstuck. Maybe the Russians are striking pay-dirt in their co-existence campaign. It remains to be seen.

MURROW: How does Tito personally fit into all this?

KENDRICK: Well, he's visiting India and Burma, but I'm sure this isn't being done without his knowledge. In addition to the ideological concession to the Russians that this Djilas-Dedijer affair seems to represent, it may even be that the succession to Tito is being decided -- and it looks like Kardelj. The strange thing is that this is happening after Tito had proved to the world that he couldn't be downed by the Kremlin and could get along very well without it. Now it's true that Tito hasn't made any real political or economic concessions to this Russian wooing, but as I've said, this may be an ideological concession.

MURROW: What does that mean?

KENDRICK: Either nothing, or a lot. Ideology, differences over Party doctrine, was the excuse used by the Russians to exert political, economic and even the threat of military force against the Yugoslavs. Now if the advocates of the one-party system, the Party machine, the old look -- get rid of the opposition in this fashion, this ideological concession to the Russian system may lead to other concessions. In any case, I think most people feel this latest development in Yugoslavia is a step backward. And yet the fact that Djilas and Dedijer have to be purged in this way would indicate they must have had a good deal of support in just ordinary non-Party circles, which are still the majority in Yugoslavia. Incidentally there's a report out of Vienna tonight that Tito may cut short his Asiatic tour and hurry back to Belgrade to handle the situation personally. So it may be that the crisis in the Yugoslav Communist Party created by Kardelj's obvious orders to try Djilas and Dedijer won't be completely resolved by a mere court trial. In conclusion, I would say don't sell this Russian co-existence drive short. If it can have effects in Yugoslavia, I would say it could have effects almost anywhere.

Of Russian diplomacy it can be said that few opportunities are lost to make friendships - either of convenience or necessity. Logan Pearsall Smith once put it well when he said: "We need new friends. Some of us are cannibals who have eaten their old friends up. Others must have renewed audiences before whom to re-enact an ideal version of their lives." As of the moment, Yugoslavia serves this purpose well for the Russians.

Good Nite and Good Luck!

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 30, 1954
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

The French National Assembly,.by a margin of 27 votes...has approved the re-arming of West Germany. This vote on the key West European Union will bring the French and Germans into the organization with five other countries...including a half million West German soldiers. In the western world there was a general satisfaction on the French vote.

Although Premier Mendes-France, a great personal victory behind him, had no comment, the President issued a statement in Augusta saying: This is a matter of great gratification not only for the United States but to the entire free world." Secretary of State Dulles called it "a good augury for the years ahead." The British foreign office is "heartened." The West Germans hailed the vote. Rome expressed its profound satisfaction. But in all quarters there were warnings of difficulties to come. Mr. Eisenhower said there is more work to be done. The British point out that "further steps are needed." West Germany's Chancellor Adenauer says many difficulties lie ahead...the debate in Paris "showed the extraordinary psychological and political differences which still lie ahead." And from Radio Moscow the statement that the action in France today has but one meaning..."it aggravates the danger of a new war."

Dag Hammershuld, the secretary general of the United Nations, left New York to plane today bound for Communist China...and an attempt to secure the release of eleven American airmen, and other allied personnel, held by the Communists. Hammershuld said: "I can only say that I shall do my best. I do not know what the outcome will be."

In Washington, Secretary of Commerce Weeks predicts the new year will bring a moderate upswing in business activity with high employment, and a rise in the standard of living.

The Defense Department says thet in the two years ended last June 30th, it cut military manpower strength by nine percent...and its civilian roles by 6 per cent. And the Department says this was done without weakening combat power. The report says that in this two year period the military found almost 213 -thousand uniformed and civilian positions "unnecessary to the accomplishment of their primary defense objectives." This resulted in a saving of some 900-million dollars a year.

Attorney General Brownell today named 27 organizations that he proposed to add to his list of subversion broups. That would bring the list up to 282 organizations.

The Army reported today that of the 35 civilian employees,suspended at the time of Senator McCarthy's investigation at Fort Mommouth, 24 have been reinstated to their jobs after security checks. Eight have been dismissed as security risks. Three cases have not yet been decided.

Federal Judge McLaughlin, in Washington, today upheld the right of the General Electric Company to fire employees who refuse to answer Congressional committee questions about Communism...espionage...and sabotage. The judge ruled that the company policy to suspend and fire such workers does not violate its collective bargaining agreement with the United Electrical Workers.

The Court of Militray Appeals today refused to set aside the sentence of life imprisonment for Mrs. Dorothy K. Smith who killed her army colonel husband with a knife two years ago. This court, which is the highest court for servicemen, in effect upheld the military code, which makes it very difficulty to win a plea of not guilty on grounds of insanity.

Federal District Judge Holtzoff said in Washington today that Supreme Court Justice Frankfurter "attaches no binding character" to Supreme Court decisions in which he disagrees with the majority. Holtzoff asked whether decided Surpeme Court opinions are to be regarded as "controlling precedents" on lower courts. Justice Frankfurter in a recent opinion upsetting a Holtzoff ruling said that Holtzoff had let himself become personally embroiled instead of representing the impersonal authority of the law."

Postmaster General Summerfield says that after next March , city and town deliveries of "junk mail" will be discontinued. This is the mail, usually advertising material, that is addressed simply to "householder" ...or "patron"...or "boxholder"...without any specific street address.

The Navy says that the atomic submarine Nautilus will not undergo its sea trials until early March. These tests originally were scheduled to begin last October. Ther there was a three months delay because of a mixup in the installation of steam piping. The tests were scheduled for January...and now are delayed until March.

The White House announced tonight that Vice President Nixon and his wife will make a good-will tour of the Caribbean area in February. The trip is being made at the request of the President and Secretary of State Du les. Last year the Nixons travelled 45-thousand miles in a tour of 19 countries.

Tonight another of my colleagues is home. He is Alexander Kendrick, normally stationed in Vienna. He has also spent a great deal of time in the Balkans.

Alex, what's going on in Yugoslavia?

KENDRICK: Frankly, it looks like a purge, and despite a good deal of liberalization in the last couple of years under Western influence, it proves that Yugoslavia -- as Yugoslav leaders keep telling us -- is still a Communist state. The point is that no matter how you liberilize a one-party system, as has been done in Yugoslavia, you still can't allow any room for real fundamental opposition. Opposition is treason. And so former Vice President Milovan Djilas, who was once Tito's fair-haired boy and logical successor, and Vladimir Dedifer, who was Tito's biographer and close friend, are up on criminal charges today for advocating a two party system.

Actually it's a bit more complicated than that. In addition to demanding more democracy in Yugoslavia, Djilas and Dedijer have also attacked the Party hierarcy, Djilas in a very personal way. Personal animosities are very much involved in this case. I guess Communism doesn't change human nature after all.

Both accused men are new-type, post-war Communists, made in the forests in the fight against Germany, not impressed by Stalinist doctrine or interested in Communist power politics.

Vlado Dedijer as you know, is a real war hero; he carries a silver plate in his head. He and Djilas are widely known in the West; they were Tito's official contact man with the West. Djilas is a real student of French philosophy and Vlado writes English better than I do. They feel themselves part of Western social thought -- although they have veen violently anti-American on occasion, because they thought they were being pushed around during the days of the Morgan Line in Trieste.

But they refused to be pushed atound by the Russians, either, and since the break with Moscow six years ago they have been openly anti-Soviet, not just anti-Stalin. As a matter of fact, their chief crime is probably that they are more Titoist than Tito himself.

On the other side you have the old-time party functionaires, the international revolutionaries and underground agents who have vee following the Moscow party line for years, no matter where it led. Men like Tito's present successor and new Vice President, Kardelj, in fact like Tito. There's always been a conflict between there two strains in Yugoslav Communism, and now it seems to have come to a head.

MURROW: Is it then only an internal matter?

KENDRICK: A year ago, when the Djilas case started, I sould have said yes -- in fact I did. Even as an internal matter it would be disturbing enough. Now I'm not sure it is all internal. As long as Stalin lived and the Russians and their satellites were hostile to Tito, all Yugoslav Communists had to stick together in order to survive the intense pressure from the Kremlin. Now that Malenkov has eased up and is uttering soft words, maybe they're becoming unstuck. Maybe the Russians are striking pay-dirt in their co-existence campaign. It remains to be seen.

MURROW: How does Tito personally fit into all this?

KENDRICK: Well, he's visiting India and Burma, ant I'm sure this isn't being done without his knowledge. In addition to the ideological concession to the Russians that this Djilas-Dedijer affair seems to represent, it may even be that the succession to Tito is being decided -- and it looks like Karlej. The strange thing is that this is happening after Tito had proved to the world that he couldn't be drowned b the Kremlin and could get along very well without it. Now it's true that Tito hasn't made any real political or economic concessions to this Russian wooing, but as I've said, this may be an ideological concession.

qURROW: What does that menn?

KENDRICK: Either nothing, or a lot. Ideology, differences over Party doctrine, was the excuse used ty the Russians to exert political, economic and even the threat of military force against the Yugoslavs. Now if the advocates of the one-party system, the Party machine, the old look -- get rid of the oppostion in this fashion, this idelogical concession to the Russian system may lead to other concessions. In any case, I think most people feel this latest developement in Yugoslavia is a step backward. And yet the fact that Djilas and Dedier have to be purged in this way would indicate thay must have made a good deal of support in just ordinary non-Party circles, which are still the majority in Yugoslavia. Incidentally there's a report out of Vienna tonight that Tito may cut short his Asiatic tour and hurry back to Belgrade to handle the situation personally. So it may be that the crisis in the Yugoslav Communist Party created by Kardelj's obvious orders to try Djilas and Didijer won't be completely resolved by a mere court martial. In conclusion, I would say don't sell this Russian co-existence drive short. If it can have effects in Yugoslavia, I would say it could have effects almost anywhere.

MURROW: Thank you, Alex Kendrick. This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a moment with the Word for Today.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: Of Russian Deplomacy it can be said, that few opportunities are lost to make freindships - either of convenience or necessity. Logan Pearsall Smith once put it well when he said: "We need new friends. Some of us are cannibals who have eaten their old freinds up. Others must have renewed audiences before thom to re-enact an ideal version of their lives.

As of the moment, Yugoslavia serves this purpose well for the Russians.

Good Night and Good Luck.

Friday, Dec. 31, 1954

This is the news:

Secretary of State Dulles said today that the West has made substantial gains in the battle for freedom in the year that ends a few hours from now. But, at his news conference, Mr. Dulles cautioned against overconfidence next year. [We'll hear some of his recorded remarks in a few minutes.] And in London, Prime Minister Churchill told his people in a New Year's message: "For the first time in many years the world finds itself free of major wars, whilst record unity of Western Europe assures strength to the alliance of free peoples." All of free Europe tonight reports a ~~splurge~~ wave of spending unequaled since the thirties. From many capitals come reports of the biggest celebrations in years. But Moscow's Pravda insists that 1955 is here with "poverty and sorrow and the absence of any prospects for any stable improvement of the future" in the capitalist world.

And on Formosa, Chiang Kai Shek, after conferring with Admiral Radford, the chairman of our joint chiefs of staff, told his people: "A full-scale war may break out at any time." Chiang said the Communist attacks on Nationalist off-shore islands are "an overture to the battle of Formosa strait." Chiang said:"The year 1955 will witness further deterioration of international relations."

And Communist China announced today that 12 more persons have been sentenced to death..and two to life in prison..on charges of acting as "American Chiang Kai Shek agents". A Moscow broadcast indicates all 14 are Chinese.

The Peiping Radio broadcast what it called coded messages supposed to have been sent by Americans the Communists now hold as spies.

Dag Hammershuld, the United Nations secretary general who is now on his way to Peiping, conferred in London today with Foreign Secretary Eden. Hammershuld had nothing to say about his mission to secure the release of eleven American airmen. Tomorrow he confers in Paris with French Premier Mendez-France.

Communist Poland, Czechoslovakia and East Germany today pledged to work together against what they called "German militarism." They say the old martial German spirit is being awakened by the Paris treaties.

~~And a British government official predicts that after the Russians sulk awhile over French ratification of the Paris agreements they will ask for a meeting with the west, possibly using some Eastern issue.. such as Formosa or Korea, as a reason for a conference.~~

The British announced today that they'll pay approximately 130-millions to Washington early in 1955 as part of an annual installment to pay off World War Two debts.

And a search for an estimated 2 million 800-thousand ~~mmm~~ dollars worth of diamonds is now underway in the lowlands of the Prestwick airport in Scotland. On Christmas Eve, a British plane crashed there..killing 28 persons. Its now revealed that the plane carried a cargo of rough diamonds bound for the United States. One dealer in diamonds called it "one of the biggest single losses the trade has ever known." So far three diamonds have been found at the crash site.

The Suez Canal is blocked tonight..and may be for another eight days..because an oil tanker smashed into a bridge. Some 70 ships already are jammed up at both ends of the canal.

Here in New York the Stock Market closed out the year with new gains. At today's close, industrials showed a gain for the year of 44 per cent...rails gained 56 per cent for the year and utilities 20 per cent.

The Army said today it will release some 44-thousand draftees next May and June before they complete their two-years of service. This is being done to conform to new lower manpower ceilings. And the Army-Navy Journal in Washington says Army Chief of Staff General Ridgeway has taken the unusual step of writing to the President to protest the manpower cut. The Army has no comment on this story.

Democratic Senator Humphrey of Minnesota today called for action "on the White House level" in the case of Wolf Ladejinsky who has been ousted from his job as agricultural attache in Tokyo. The Department of Agriculture has issued a statement saying anti-Semitism played no part in its decision to to continue Ladejinsky in his job. The statement was issued after Milan D. Smith, executive assistant to the Secretary, reported, told of a letter from a White Russian emigre supporting the Department's action... a letter which made a reference to the number of revolutionaries found among Russian Jews. Ladejinsky called the letter "crude... a vicious, anti-semetic fascist brand of writing."

The Department of agriculture said today that anti-semitism played no part in its decision not to keep Wolf Ladejinsky in his job as agricultural attache in Tokyo. The statement was issued after Milan D. Smith, executive assistant to Secretary Benson, told of a letter from a White Russian emige supporting the Department's decision. The letter made reference to the number of revolutionaries found among Russian Jews. Ladejinsky, a Jew, born in Russia, came to the United States 32 years ago.

Edward R. Murrow: December 31, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

This afternoon Secretary of State Dulles gave his balance sheet outlining what he regards as the important events in the field of foreign affairs in the course of the last twelve months. The statement was brief and comprehensive, and we recorded it for you in its entirety:

DULLES TAPE: runs 4.30. END CUE: "....the blessings of liberty".

There will be those who feel that Secretary of State Dulles was rather optimistic in his survey of accomplishments during the past year. The settlements in Trieste, Suez, Iran and Indochina were impressive. The results of Mr. Hammarskjold's mission to Red China have yet to be measured, although the prospects of success do not appear to be good.

There has indeed been a lessening of obvious and overt tensions between the Communist world and the free world, but nothing has happened to indicate that the Communist objective of world domination has been changed. The immediate future does not appear to be either catastrophic or tranquil. It is more likely to be "more of the same" - another episode in what Mr. Dulles called "the long haul", requiring from us what the late Mayor La Guardia used to call "a combination of patience and fortitude."

On this New Year's Eve, in this uncertain world there is at least one fact - (at least it's a fact unless the census bureau made a mistake) - there are more of us in this country than ever before. We start the New Year with a population of a hundred and sixty-three million, nine hundred thousand. That's an increase of about two million, seven hundred thousand during the past year.

Perhaps it is permitted for one middle-aged reporter to wish an especially happy New Year to the new arrivals. The world into which they have been born is not likely soon to become a boring one; and may they ~~XXXX~~ some time look back in health, wisdom and serenity upon this period of continuing tension, fear, frustration and intellectual famine, as "the bad old days." And to all those within sound of this voice - which has not always uttered words that were wise or right - permit me to say Happy New Year to one and all, ~~XXXX

CBS RADIO DIVISION

EDWARD R. MURROW

Friday, December 31, 1954
7:45 - 8:00 P.M.

MURROW: ... This afternoon Secretary of State Dulles gave his balance sheet outlining what he regards as the important events in the field of foreign affairs in the course of the last twelve months. The statement was brief and comprehensive, and we recorded it for you in its entirety.

DULLES: As we close the books for 1954, we can feel a measure of satisfaction. The year has had its disappointments and reverses. However on that balance thare has been substantial gain. Most of all this gain has been in a demonstrated capacity of the free nations to develop cooperatively a unity and strength. As a result, the danger of general war recedes.

One setback has been the Indo-China armistice, which reflected the military reverses of the French Union. But out of this setback there has come the Manila Pact, which, if adequately implemented, can limit the scope and consequences of the loss. Another setback was the defeat in France of the European Defense Community. But out of that has come the plan for Western European union which reproduces much of the good contained in EDC. This new plan has now been approved by the French Assembly in the face of unparalleled pressure from the Soviet Communist bloc.

Thus where there has been adversity, the free world has shown a capacity to react to it. In addition, the free nations have solved, or are in a good way to solve, many highly controversial issues which threatened their unity. Among these matters may be mentioned a dispute between Italy and Yugoslavia about Trieste; the dispute between Britain and Egypt about the Suez base; the oil dispute between Britain and Iran; and the dispute between France and Germany about the Saar.

The North Atlantic Treaty Organization has adopted major decisions, which, when implemented, will give it vastly increased defensive power.

In this hemisphere, the American states, through the Caracas declaration, have made a momentous announcement with reference to international communism. This, as I have said, may serve the needs of our time as the Monroe Doctrine served the needs of the last century.

In Iran and Guatemala, Communist positions of strength have been vigorously erased.

In the Middle East, the Northern Tier contept is taking form under the leadership of Turkey and Pakistan.

From a military standpoint the Free Nations continue strong and have found the way to maintain and develop their strength consistently with their economic well being. What we call the "long haul" concept has been brought into application both in this country and in others which had been operating on emergency plans.

In the western Pacific, the security base has been rounded out by the United States treaty with the Republic of Korea, and by the pending treaty with the Republic of China, as well as by the Manila Pact.

Our relations with our Allies are intimate and marked by mutual confidence born out of President Eisenhower's "good partner" concept.

The United Nations has this year shown increased vigor and we have joined in entrusting to it the task of obtaining the release of United States prisoners of war wrongfully imprisoned by Communist China in violation of the Korean armistice agreement.

Under the auspices of the United Nations, there is rapidly taking form the Eisenhower plan for using atomic energy to enrich and uplift all humanity.

All of this enables us to face the New Year with confidence. But we must beware of over-confidence. Hostile forces remain strong and implacable and they are operating with even greater guile than heretofore. In the face of that undiminished power and guile we cannot expect an unbroken series of successes. Indeed, we cannot hold our own, much less increase our net gain, unless we maintain our vigilance and our efforts on a basis of national unity.

Peace will never be won if men reserve for war their greatest efforts. Peace, too, requires well directed and sustained sacrificial endeavor. Given that, we can, I believe, achieve the great goal of our foreign policy, that of enabling our people to enjoy in peace the blessings of liberty.

MURROW: ....

(30)

Ed. trans. P. O.

Dec 31
1954

It was in London, back in 1940, that I first had occasion...on a less peaceful New Year's Eve...to quote a few brief words written ~~a long time ago~~ by a German - Heinrich Heine. They go like this:"The New Year is at the door. I wish for the stupid, a little understanding. And for the understanding, a little poetry. I wish a heart for the rich, and a little bread for the poor. But above all, I wish that we may blackguard each other as little as possible, during the New Year."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 31, 1954
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

Secretary of State Dulles said today that the West has made substantial gains in the battle for freedom in the year that ends a few hours from now. But, at this news converence, Mr. Dulles cautioned against overconfidence next year. We'll hear some of his recorded remarks in a few minutes. And in London, Prime Minister Churchill told his people in a New Year's message: "For the first time in many years the world finds itself free of major wars, whilst record unity of Western Europe assures strenght to the alliance of free peoples." All of free Europe tonight reports a wave of spending unequaled since the thirties. From many captials come reports of the biggest celebrations in years. But Moscow's Pravda insists that 1955 is here with "poverty and sorrow and the absence of any prospects for any stable improvement of the future" in the captialist world.

And on Formosa, Chiang Kai Shek, after conferring with Admiral Radford, the chairman of our joint chiefs of staff, told his people:"A full-scale war may break out at any time." Chiang said the Communist attacks on Nationalist off-shore islands are "an overture to the battle of Formosa strait." Chiang said: "The year 1955 will witness further deterioration of international relations."

And Communist China announced today that 12 more persons have been sentenced to death ...and two to life in prison..on charges of acting as "American Chiang Kai Shek Agents". A Moscow broadcast indicates all 14 men are Chinese.

The Peiping Radio broadcast what it called coded messages supposed to have been sent by Americans the Communists now hold as spies.

Dag Hammershuld, the United Nations secretary general who is now on his way to Peiping, conferred in London today with Foreign Secretary Eden. Hammershuld had nothing to say about his mission to secure the release of eleven American airmen. Tomorrow he confers in Paris with French Premier Mendez-France.

Communist Poland, Czechoslovakia and East Germany today pledged to work together against what they called "German Militarism." They say the old martial German spirit is being awakened by the Paris treaties.

The British announced today that they'll pay approximately 130-million to Washington early in 1955 as a part of an annual installment to pay off World War Two debts.

And a search for an estimated 2 million 800 thousand dollars worth of diamonds is now underway in the lowlands of the Prestwick airport in Scotland. On Christmas Eve, a British plane crashed there killing 28 persons. It's now revealed that the plane carried a cargo of rough diamonds bound for the United States. One dealer is diamonds called it "One of the biggest single losses the trade has ever known." So far three diamonds have been found at the crash site.

The Suez Canal is blocked tonight...and may be for another eight days... because an oil tanker smashed into a bridge. Some 70 ships already are jammed up at both ends of the canal.

Here in New York the Stock Market closed out the year with new gains. At today's close industrials showed a gain for the year of 44 per cent.... rails gained 56 percent for the year and utilities 20 per cent.

The Army said today it will release some 44 thousand draftees next May and June before they complete their two-years of service. This is being done to conform to new lower manpower ceilings. And the Army-Navy Journal in Washington says Army Chief of Staff General Ridgeway has taken the unusual step of writing to the President to protest the manpower cut. The Army has no comment on this story.

The Department of agriculture said today that anti-semitism played no part in its decision not to keep Wolf Ladejinsky in his job as agricultural attache in Tokyo. The statement was issued after Milan D. Smith, executive assistant to Secretary Benson, told of a letter from a White Russian emigre supporting the Department's decision. The letter made reference to the number of revolutionaries found among the Russian Jews. Ladejinsky, a Jew, born in Russia, came to the United states 32 years ago.

This afternoon Secretary of State Dulles gave his balance sheet outlining what he regards as the important events in the field of foreign affairs in the course of the last twelve months. The statement was brief and comporhensive, and we recorded it for you in its entirety:

DULLES: As we close the books for 1954, we can feel a measure of satisfaction The year has had its disappointments and reverses. However on that balance there has been substantial gain. Most of all this gain has been in a demonstrated capacity of the free nations to develop cooperatively a unity and a strength. As a result, the danger of general war recedes.

One setback has been the Indo-China armistice, which reflected the military reverses of the French Union. But out of this setback there has come the Manila Pact, which if adequately implemented, can limit the scope and consequences of the loss. Another setback was the defeat in France of the European Defense Community. But out of that has come the plan for Western European union which reproduces much of the good contained in EDC. This new plan has now been approved by the French Assembly in the face of unparralleled pressure from the Soviet Communist bloc.

Thus where there has been adversity, the free world has shown a capacity to react to it. In addition, the free nations have solved, or are in a good way to solve, many highly controversial issues which threatened their unity. Among these matters may be mentioned a dispute between Italy and Yugoslavia about Trieste; the dispute between Britain and Egypt about the Suez base; the oil dispute between Britain and Iran; and the dispute between France and Germany about the Saar.

The North Atlantic Treaty Organization has adopted major decisions, which, when implemented, will give it vastly increased defensive power.

In this hemisphere, the American states, through the Caracas declaration, have made a momentous announcement with reference to international Communism. This, as I have said, may serve the needs of our time as the Monroe Doctrine served the needs of the last century.

In Iran and Guatemala, Communist positions of strength have been vigorously erased.

In the Middle East, the Northern Tier concept is taking form under the leadership of Turkey and Pakistan.

From a military standpoint the Free Nations continue strong had have found the way to maintain and develope their strength consistently with their economic well being. What we call the "long haul" concept has been brought into application both in this country and in others which had been operating on emergency plans.

In the western Pacific, the security base has been rounded out by the United States treaty with the Republic of Korea, and by the pending treaty with the Republic of China, as well as the Manila Pact.

Our relations with our Allies are intimate and marked by mutual confidence born out of President Eisenhower's "good partner" concept.

The United Nations has this year shown increased vigor and we have joined in entrusting to it the task of obtaining the release of United States prisoners of war wrongfully imprisoned by Communist China in violation of the Korean armistice agreement.

Under the auspices of the United Nations, there is rapidly taking form the Eisenhower plan for using atomic energy to enrich and uplift all humanity.

All of this enables us to face the New Year with confidence. But we must beware of over-confidence. Hostile forces remain strong and implacable and they are operating with even greater guile than heretofore. In the face of the undiminished power and guile we cannot expect an unbroken series of successes. Indeed, we cannot hold our own, much less increase our net gain, unless we maintain our vigilance and our efforts on a basis of national unity.

Peace will never be won if men reserve for war their greatest efforts. Peace, too, requires well directed and sustained sacrificial endeavor. Given that, we can, I believe, achieve the great goal of our foreign policy, that of anabling our people to enjoy in peace what the blessings of liberty.

MURROW: There will be those who feel that Secretary of State Dulles was rather optimistic in his survey of accomplishments during the past year. The settlements in Trieste, Suez, Iran and Indochina were impressive. The results of Mr. Hammarskjold's mission to Red China have yet to be measured, although the prospects of success do not appear to be good.

There has indeed been a lessening of obvious and overt tensions between the Communist world and the free world, but nothing has happened to indicate that the Communist objective of world domination has been changed. The immediate future does not appear to be either catastrophic or tranquil. It is more likely to be "more of the same" - another episode in what Mr. Dulles called "the long haul", requiring from us what the late Mayor LaGuardia used to call "a combination of patience and fortitude."

On this New Year's Eve, in this uncertain world, there is at least one fact - at least it's a fact unless the census bureau made a mistake -there are more of un in this country than ever before. We start the New Year with a population of a hundred and sixty-three million, nine hundred thousand. That's an increase of about two million, seven hundred thousand during the past year.

Perhaps it is permitted for one middle-aged reporter to wish an especially Happy New Year to the new arrivals. The world into which they have been born is not likely soon to become a boring one; and may then some time look back in health, wisdom and serenity upon this period of continuing tension, fear, frustration and intellectual famine, as "the bad old days". And to all those within sound of this voice - which has not always uttered words that were wise or right - permit me to say Happy New Year to one and all, and may we all bask in the sunshine of each others countenances.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a minute with the Word for Today.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: It was in London, back in 1940, that I first had occasion .. on a less peaceful New Year's Eve...to quote a few brief words written by a German - Heinrich Heine. They go like this: "The New Year is at the door. I wish for the stupid a little understanding; and for the understanding, a little poetry. I wish a heart for the rich, and a little bread for the poor. But above all, I wish that we may balckguard each other as little as possible during the New Year.

Good Night and Good Luck.

Monday, Jan. 3, 1955

This is the news:

The United States, in an obvious protest against travel restrictions in Russia, today imposed some restrictions of its own. The State Department says that beginning immediately, areas of 39 states...most of the Mexican border...and the Great Lakes section of the Canadian border are closed to all persons with Soviet passports now in this country. The only exception are the 50 or so Russians ~~mr~~ employed at the United Nations.

The new ruling affects roughly 4-hundred Russians - the total number in this country. He [redacted]

The State Departments says the places were chosen by reasons of "reciprocity and security." It was stated frankly that this maneuver is designed to encourage the Russians to relax their travel restrictions applying to Americans. It [redacted]

A special nine-man House Committee set up to study the strategy of Communist aggression reported today that it feels the Russians are going along with "peaceful co-existence" in an effort to gain time for future aggressions. The Committee, headed by Representative Kersten of Wisconsin (he was defeated in the November election) said the only course we can take to avoid an all-out war is to initiate a bold, positive political offensive on a bi-partisan basis.

The Civil Service Commission says that between May of 1953 and last September 30th, a total of 8-thousand 8 federal employes has left the government payrolls as "poor security risks." 3-thousand 2 were fired, the others resigned. The total figure represents about a third of one per cent of all persons [redacted] working for the government. Senator Monroney, a Democrat from Oklahoma and a member of the Civil Service Committee in the Senate, told newsmen the figures are meaningless until it can be learned how many of the so-called risks were actually employed by the government. [redacted]

On Thursday, the President will deliver his State of the Union message to the Democratic-controlled 84th Congress. In anticipation of this, Mr. Eisenhower went over details of the speech at the White House during the day -- first with his cabinet, and later with Republican legislative leaders.

The President's news secretary, incidentally, said he knows nothing about persistent rumors that Mr. Eisenhower is contemplating a London meeting with Prime Minister Churchill next month.

In Panama, the Assembly today instituted a ten-day state of seige, as efforts were re-doubled to try and find those responsible for last night's assassination of President Jose Remon. The 49-year old leader was machine-gunned while attending a local race track. So far, no definite clues have developed, though the popular theory is that supporters of former President Arias are responsible. Arias himself is being held under suspicion. Secretary of State Dulles says there apparently was "no communist issue involved."

President Eisenhower described Remon as a "fond friend, held in great respect." He expressed condolences to the people of Panama on this "tragic [redacted] assassination."

The Stock Market today saw its average of 60 major stocks reach the second highest point in its history, topped only in 1929. The biggest activity involved General Motors stock which jumped 7 dollars and 25 cents. Shortly after the exchange closed, General Motors announced that it would soon offer to stockholders of common shares, one new share for each 20 they now hold. The corporation intends to raise 325-million in new funds this way.

Senator McCarthy today ended his two-year chairmanship of the Permanent Investigation Subcommittee with what he said were "relief and regret." Mc Carthy wishes his successor, Senator McClellan, of Arkansas, a "pleasant and happy two years." He said he hoped and expected McClellan would dig out "subversives as vigorously as we have in the past." At the last hearing over which McCarthy presided as Chairman, the Committee heard witnesses talk of Communist infiltration at the General Electric Plant in Schenectady, New York and among Westinghouse employees in the Pittsburgh area. The Committee ordered the filing of one contempt charge - against Edwin Garfield of Allston, Massachussetts. He failed to appear.

Pope Pius the 12th, in a Christmas message released at the Vatican today, warned against further Communist aggression unless the world moves into an era which is not conditioned by fear.

And the National Safety Council, reporting 295 traffic deaths over the Holiday weekend, said this [redacted] should be "sufficient to make every decent American sick at heart."

Edward R. Murrow: January 3, 1955. 7.45 p.m.

One of the safest predictions about the 84th Congress, is that it will grow thoroughly familiar with the name of Wolf Ladejinsky. The American public and its congressmen knew little if anything about this Russian-born agricultural attache, until he was removed from the Tokyo Embassy for security and technical reason, by the Department of Agriculture. Wolf Ladejinsky has been a sort of national asset, a man whose name and work are favorably known in many lands, where the United States is earnestly cultivating friends. He may be without much honor in his adopted country, but he enjoys fame and affection abroad. For he is the man who designed the land reform of Japan, one of the lustrous achievements of the United States occupation of that country. Wherever land reform is needed, the Japanese program shines as an example, and one has only to travel in such countries to hear the name of Wolf Ladejinsky.

It would not be grotesque to remove Wolf Ladejinsky, if he constitutes a danger to security. But he has been repeatedly cleared among others by the toughest security officer in Washington, Scott McLeod of the State Department, as recently as last April. He enjoys the endorsement of General MacArthur and the gratitude of the Japanese government.

What happened to Wolf Ladejinsky is the result of the confusion, and absence of central control and policy, in the security set-up. Congress recently passed a law transferring the agricultural attaches from the State to the Agricultural Department. It happens that Secretary Benson is not crusading for land reform. He is concentrating on exporting American farm surpluses. That isn't Wolf Ladejinsky's line. He even may doubt the wisdom of the United States upsetting the Asian rice-producing countries by disposing of surplus American rice in Japan, which it is doing. These Asian countries also have a rice surplus, and the United States is not helping relations with them, by invading their Japanese market. But from Secretary Benson's standpoint, there is not the slightest impropriety in naming an export specialist, in place of Mr. Ladejinsky. Presumably this is the technical reason for his recall. But the deed was also done under the cloak of security.

That shows up one glaring defect in the security system: there is no such thing as a clearance that stands up. A man can be cleared by one department, and thrown out for security reasons by another. Numerous cases of this kind are on record.

One might suppose that the Agriculture Department has new evidence on

Mr. Ladejinsky as a security risk. But it has not offered this to explain what it has done. It has cast doubts on Mr. Ladejinsky on two grounds. One is that some years ago he wrote some articles criticizing the Soviet government, although he has relatives living in the Soviet Union. The spokesman of the Agriculture Department suggested that he wouldn't have done this if he hadn't known that no harm would befall his relatives. So he might be untrustworthy.

This is an example of how to play parlor tricks with the security theme. If a man writes articles that praise the Soviet Union, obviously he is a poor security risk. But if he writes articles that criticize the Soviet Union, even though he has relatives in that country, that may prove him to be untrustworthy. You may think the only way to be safe would be not to write any articles at all. But what could be more suspicious? For then he would be a man afraid to write critically, because of the danger to his relatives.

This mental sleight-of-hand was supported by a letter from a Russian emigre quoted officially by the Department of Agriculture. This said that Russian Jews had come to this country escaping from Czarist tyranny, and had turned into Reds, and then proved to be the worst sort of traitors. Mr.

Ladejinsky is a Russian Jew who came to this country. The writer says that he may be 100 percent innocent, but - and I quote - "facts from his past speak against him. Thus for the sake of Uncle Sam he must go." ~~XXXXX~~ Anti-semitic letters are no novelty, but it is a novelty for a government department to quote one to explain its removal of an attache. Secretary Benson said today that it was a mistake to show the letter to reporters, and by so doing imply the Department's approval of its contents.

Mr. Ladejinsky's recall has harmed American influence where we are working hardest to offer constructive help. It has demonstrated to any prospective fugitive from Soviet tyranny, that the reward for devotion and service to this country, can be public injury. For it must be recognized that the careless use of the words security or disloyalty hurt a man beyond the hope of complete vindication. Democracy has not yet devised a dry cleaning that removes a smear from a man's name.

Washington for some time has expected a reform of security procedures. If adequate and early official action is not forthcoming one must hope that the commission of private citizens which the Fund for the Republic has invited the New York Bar Association to set up to recommend reforms, will act with vigor and wisdom, and act soon.

We are going through a period where fact gives way to rumor and innuendo becomes as important as proof. If such conditions prevail for long, we may reach the point where James Russell Lowell might not have been able to write: "I honor the man who is willing to sink half his present repute for the freedom to think. And when he has thought - (be his cause strong or weak) will risk the other half for the freedom to speak."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

MONDAY, JANUARY 3, 1955
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

The United States in an obvious protest against travel restrictions in Russia, today imposed some restrictions of its own. The State Department says that beginning immediately, areas of 39 states...most of the Mexican border...and the Great Lakes section of the Canadian border are closed to all persons with Soviet passports now in this country. The only exeeption are the 50 or so Russians employed at the United Nations.

The new ruling affects roughly 4-hundred Russians - the total number in this country. The State Department says the places were chosen by reasons of "reciprocity and security." It was stated frankly that this maneuver is designed to encourage the Russians to relax their travel restrictions applying to Americans.

A special nine-man House Committee set up to study the strategy of Communist aggression reported today that it feels the Russians are going along with "peaceful co-existnnce" in an effort to gain time for future aggressions." The Committee, headed by Representative Kersten of Wisconsin (he was defeated in the November election) said the only course we can take to avoid an all-out war is to initiate a bold, positive, political offensive on a bi-partisan basis.

The Civil Service Commission says that between May of 1953 and last September 30th, a total of 8-thousand 8 federal employees has left the government payrolls as "poor security risks." 3-thousand 2 were fired, the others resigned. The total figure represents about a third of one per cent of all persons working for the government. Senator Monroney, a Democrat from Oklahoma, and a member of the Civil Service Committee in the Senate, told newsmen the figures are meaningless until it can be learned how many of the so-called risks were actually employed by the government. On Thursday, the President will deliver his State of the Union message to the Democratic controlled 84th Congress. In anticipation of this, Mr. Eisenhower went over details of the speech at the White House during the day -- first with his cabinet, and later with Republicans legislative leaders.

The President's news secretary, incidentally, said he knows nothing about persistent rumors that Mr. Eisnehower is contemplating a London meeting with Prime Minister Churchill next month.

In Panama, the Assembly today instituted a ten-day state of seige, as efforts were re-doubled to try tnd find those responsible for last night's assassination of President Jose Remon. The 49-year old leader was machine-gunned while attenting a local race track. So far, no definite clues have developed, though the popular theory is that supporters of former President Arias are responsible. Arias himself is being held under suspicion. Secretary of State Dulles says there apparently was "no communist issue involved."

President Eisenhower described Remon as a "fond friend, held in great respect." He expressed condolences to the people of Panama on this "tragic assassination."

The Stock Market today saw its average of 60 major stocks reached the second highest point in its history, topped only in 1929. The biggest activity involved General Motors stock which jumped 7 dollars and 25 cents. Shortly after the exchange closed, General Motors announced that it would soon offer to stockholders of common shares, one new share for each 20 they now hold. The corporation intends to raise 325-million in new friends this way.

Senator McCarthy today ended his two-year chairmanship of the Permanent Investigation Subcommittee with what he said were "relief and regret." McCarthy wishes his successor, Senator McClellan, of Arkansas, a "pleasant and happy two years." He said he hoped and expected McClellan would dig out "subversives as vigorously as we have in the past." At the last hearing over which McCarthy presided as Chairman, the Committee heard witnesses talk of Communist infiltration at the General Electric Plant in Schenectady, New York and among Westinghouse emplyeees in the Pittsburgh area. The Committee ordered the filing of one contempt charge - against Edwin Garfield of Allston, Massachusetts. He failed to appear.

Pope Pius 12th, in a Christmas message released at the Vatican today, warned against further Communist aggression unless the world moves into an area which is not conditioned by fear.

And the National Safety Council, reporting 295 traffic deaths over the Holiday weekend, said this should be sufficient to make every decent American sick at heart."

One of the safest predictions about the 84th Congress, is that it will grow thoroughly familiar with the name of Wolf Ladejinsky. The American public and its congressmen knew little if anything about this Russian-born agricultural attache, until he was removed from the Tokyo Embassy for security and technical reasons, by the Department of Agriculture. Wolf Ladejinsky has been sort of national asset, a man whose name and work are favorably known in many lands, where the United States is earnestly cultivating friends. He may be without much honor in his adopted country, but he enjoys fame and affection abroad. For he is the man who designed the land reform of Japan, one of the lustrous acheivements of the United States occupation of that country. Wherever land reform is needed, the Japanese program shines as an example, and one has only to travel in such countries to hear the name of Wolf Ladejinsky.

It would not be grotesque to remove Wolf Ladejinsky if he constitutes a danger to security. But he has repeatedly been cleared among others by the toughest security officer in Washington, Scott McLeod of the State Department, as recently as last April. He enjoys the endorcement of General McArthur and the gratidude of the Japanese government.

What happened to Wolf Ladejinsky is the result of the confusion, and absence of central control and policy, in the security set-up. Congress recently passed a law transferring the agricultural attaches from the State to the Agriculture Department. It happens that Secretary Benson is not crusading for land reform. He is concentrating on exporting American farm surpluses. That isn't Wolf Ladejinsky's line. He even may doubt the wisdom of the United States upsetting the Asian rice-producing countries by disposing of surplus American rice in Japan, which it is doing. These Asian countries also have a rice surplus, and the United States is not helping relations with them, by invading their Japanese market. But from Secretary Benson's standpoint, there is not the slightest impropriety in naming an export specialist, in place of Mr. Ladejinsky. Presumably this is a technical reason for his recall. But the deed was also done under the cloak of security.

That shows up one glaring defect in the security system: there is no such thing as a clearance that stands up. A man can be cleared by one department, and thrown out for seucrity reasons by another. Numerous cases of this kind are on record.

One might suppose that the Agriculture Department has new evidence on Mr. Ladejinsky as a secruity risk. But it has not offered this to explain what it has done. It has cast doubts on Mr. Ladejinsky on two grounds. One is that some years ago he wrote some articles criticizing the Soviet government, although he has relatives living in the Soviet Union. The spokesman of the Agriculture Department suggested that he wouldn't have done this if he hadn'd known that no harm would befall his relatives. So he might be untrustworthy.

This is an example of how to play parlor tricks with the security theme. If a man writes articles that praise the Soviet Union, obviously he is a poor security risk. But if he writes articles that criticize the Soviet Union, even though he has relatives in that country, that may prove him to be untrustworthy. You may think the only way to be safe would be not to write any articles at all. But what could be more suspicious? For then he would be a man afraid to write critically, becuase of the danger to his relatives.

This mental sleight-of-hand was supported by a letter from a Russian emigre quoted officially by the Department of Agriculture. This said that the Russian Jews had come to this country escaping from Czarist tryanny, and had turned into Reds, and then proved to be the worst sort of traitors. Mr. Ladejinsky is a Russian Jew who came to this country. The writer says that he may be 100 percent innocent, but - and I quote - "facts from his past speak against him. Thus for the sake of Uncle Sam he must go." Anti-semitic letters are no novelty, but it is a novelty for a government to quote one to explain the removal of an attache. Secretary Benson said today that it was a mistake to show the letter to reporters, and by so doing imply the Department's approval of its contents.

Mr. Ladejinsky's recall has harmed American influence where we are working ing hardest of offer constructive help. It has demonstrated to any prospective fugitive from Soviet fugitive from Soviet tyranny, that the reward for devotion and service to this country, can be public injury. For it must be recognized that the careless use of the words of security or disloyalty hurt a man beyond the hope of complete vindication. Democracy has not yet devised a dry cleaning that removes a smear from a man's name.

Washington for some time has expected a reform of security procedures. If adequate and early official action is not forthcoming, one must hope that the commission of private citizens which the Fund for the Republic has invited the the New York Bar Association to set up to recommend reforms, will act with vigor and wisdom, and act soon.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll ba back in a minute with the Word for Today.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: We are going through a period where fact gives way to rumor and innuendo becomes as important as proof. If such conditions prevail for long, we may reach the point where James Russell Lowell might not have been able to write: "I honor the man who is willing to sink half his present repute for the freedom to think. And when he has thought - be his cause strong or weak - will risk the other half for the freedom to speak."

Good Night and Good Luck.

Tuesday January 4, 1955

This is the news:

F.B.I. Chief Hoover today called for "eternal vigilance" against subversion by Communist followers in this country. In a year-end report to Attorney General Brownell, Hoover says such vigilance is necessary because of the "world-wide rise of (NEUTRALISM) and the intensified Soviet program of peaceful co-existence." He says the "Communist action program of the United States is being geared to cause a lowering of our guard, which, if successful, could have far-reaching and disastrous consequences." The F.B.I. Chief also reported that "the nation can take pride in the progress being made in protecting civil rights." For a third successive year there was no lynching int this country. And J. Edgar Hoover also reported that the number of serious crimes in this country rose five per cent last year..to a new record high

In Alexandria, Virginia today, Joseph S. Petersen, Junior, was sentenced to seven years in prison after pleading guilty to using classified documents in a manner prejudicial to the safety and interest of the United States. Petersen, formerly employed by the secret National Security Agency had given some information to the Dutch government.

The 84th Congress starts at noon , eastern time, tomorrow. And today both parties set up THEIR organizations in the Senate and House without surprises. The Democrats named Senator Lyndon Johnson of Texas to be their leader; the Republicans selected Senator Knowland to be minority leader. And in the House, Sam Rayburn of Texas was chosen Speaker and Joseph Martin of Massachusettswas elected minority leader. The Republicans agreed to try to present a united front on controversial issues. And the Democrats promised there will be no opposition just for the sake of opposing Administration policies.

Former President Hoover tomorrow will send Congress an outline of Hoover Commission proposals for cutting the size and cost of government while improving its efficiency. There will be some 17 or 18 reports..the first due by the end of this month.

The Federal Reserve Board tonight boosted the margin requirement for stock purchases..from 50 to 60 per cent..effective immediately. The Board acted against the steeply rising prices of the last few days. Margin is the "down-payment" that must be made in the purchase of stocks. The 50 per cent margin had been in effect since February of 1953.

Secretary of State Dulles today again reduced the authority of Scott McCleaod, his controversial security chief. Previously McCleod had been relieved of his duties as personnel chief for the State Department. Now he has been relieved of the power of inspecting [redacted] our missions abroad. Department officials say McCleod had recommended that this be done. He now will be in charge of security and consular affairs.

Government officials said today that Wolf Ladejinsky, recently fired by the Department of Agriculture from his job as attache in Tokyo, will be given a good position with the Foreign Operations Administration. He'll be assigned to specialize in land reform problems ..particularly in southern Indo-China. Ladejinsky has been the center of controversey since the Agriculture Department fired him because, it said, he failed to meet technical and security requirements. The State Department had cleared him. Only today a group of Jewish leaders called on Secretary of Agriculture Benson to re-open and reconsider his (decision) in the interest "of civil rights and civil liberties." An aide to Benson had released a letter from a Russian emigre which Jewish leaders said had anti-semetic implications. Today, these leaders said Secretary Benson had repudiated these implications and said "anti-semitism would not be countenanced in his department."

The introduction to a new army field manual says the army's land forces are "the decisive component" in winning a war. The manual says that "in general, indiscriminate destruction is unjustifiable in a military sense." This philosophy is in contrast with the ~~Administration~~ Administration's trend to build up atomic airpower while cutting the size of the army.

The Navy today unveiled what it called the first multi-jet seaplane in the world. The Seamaster, built by Martin aircraft, is described as the spearhead of future seaplane striking forces. It can do 600 miles an hour..and is designed for mine-laying, bombing and reconnaissance with the agility of landplanes.

Admiral Radford, the chairman of the joint chiefs of staff was in Tokyo today conferring with Japanese military leaders. And Japan's Prime Minister Hatoyama predicted in an interview that his country's defense costs will be cut. He sees no reason why the United States should not agree to this. He adds: "Lightening our burden will help greatly to improve our economy; and this is what the United States also desires."

The Japanese today accepted an American offer of two million dollars as payment in full for all damages caused by American hydrogen weapon tests at Bikini atoll last March. One Japanese fisherman died.

Dag Hammershuld, the secretary general of the United Nations, arrived in Hankow today on his way to Peiping..to try to get the Chinese Communists to release eleven American airmen, and other allied personnel, now held prisoners. At the same time, Red Star, the Soviet army newspaper charged that "the spies were caught with the goods and received their deserved punishment."

~~And in India, the influential newspaper Hindustan-Times said Hammershuld must observe "humility" if he wants to assure the release from Red China of the imprisoned Americans. The paper says Hammershuld is "unfortunately too Dulles-minded" and predicts he'll have more success on his mission if he asks for the release of the prisoners in the interests of international peace, than if he tries to justify his case on its merits.~~

The government of Panama today asked us for the loan of two F.B.I. agents to hunt for the assassins of President Jose A. Roman. The Cuban government has also been asked to loan Panama an investigator.

Edward R. Murrow: January 4, 1955. 7.45 p.m.

One of the prices Premier Mendes France paid to get German re-armament through the French Assembly was to promise to do his best to set up a Four-Power conference on Germany. As long ago as his ~~address~~ speech to the United Nations on November 22nd he proposed that such a conference be held in May. And during the tense hours when he was trying to wheedle the Assembly into reversing its vote against Germany's entry into the Brussels treaty organization, he made a great point of his determination to sit down with the Russians.

But one must draw a distinction between what a Four-Power conference means to the opponents of German re-armament and what it means to Mendes France. The opponents in both France and Germany want a conference because they hope the Kremlin either will make concessions to bring about German unification, or will offer enough to keep negotiations about it alive. If Germany is united, the ratified Paris accords do not come into effect. They apply only to West Germany. A united Germany could choose either to enter or stay out of the Western defense system. The opponents of German re-armament are quite sure the Kremlin wouldn't permit unification except on the condition of continued demilitarization.

That is not what Mendes France wants. He has convinced both Washington and London that he sincerely favors Germany raising the twelve divisions that are to serve under the NATO command. Twelve divisions, he thinks, would not make Germany a menace to its neighbors. And even if the satellites responded by increasing their own forces he believes an agreement can be negotiated to keep European arms at that level. Then in more relaxed times this level could come down lower. He believes that arms reduction is the greatest of all needs, and he wants to negotiate for it from a position of strength.

But most of the agitation for a Four Power conference ignores the thesis of Mendes France. Most of it is pressing for a conference simply to keep the Paris accords from coming into effect. Just let a conference be held, some people think, and the Soviet negotiators will know how to spin them out indefinitely. That is the Kremlin specialty. To be sure, these people would welcome German unity, but if it can't be had they want a diplomatic filibuster to keep the Germans unarmed.

It is well to bear in mind another distinction, which is between two kinds of international conference. One kind is called to clinch an agreement that already is in sight and needs only to be finished off by the top men in responsibility. The other kind is called because an agreement hasn't been reached through normal channels and doesn't seem possible without extraordinary efforts. This kind starts in the hope of a miracle. Then when the miracle doesn't happen it turns into a propaganda battle to make the failure appear to be the fault of the other fellow. There have been only a few of the first kind of conferences since the start of the cold war, and many of the second kind.

Mr. Malenkov, answering questions put by a news agency, said that he did not believe a conference on Germany would be useful at this time, and blamed the initiative of the Western Powers in dealing with the German question by themselves. The British Foreign Office at once said it agreed that a conference on Germany would not be useful at this time, and that is the view in Washington. too However, Paris must go on working for a conference since that is what Mendes France promised to do.

As things now look, if a conference on Germany should be held it would be one of the second kind, that needs a miracle to succeed. Of course nobody knows what is going on behind the scene. Theoretically it is possible that the Kremlin really is prepared to unite Germany on terms the West can accept, and so to relinquish its hold on East Germany. And that it is willing to pull out of Austria. If that were true, the situation would need the most delicate of exchanges between Moscow, London, Paris and Washington. And not a hint of it would get into the news until an agreement seemed likely. That is to say, that the more a Four Power conference is talked about openly at this stage, the less likelihood there is that the successful kind will be held. If it is held, it most probably would be no better than a battle in the cold war, called because both sides thought they were going to win.

Throughout all of history, the greatest of statesmen have sought a way for nations to live in peace. Robert Louis Stevenson, no diplomat, once remarked simply:"There is an idea abroad among moral people that they should make their neighbors good. One person I have to make good - myself. And my duty to my neighbor is much more nearly expressed by saying that I have to make him happy - if I may."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

TUESDAY, JANUARY 4, 1955
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

F. B. I. Chief Hoover today called for "eternal vigilance " against subversion by Communist followers in this country. In a year-end report to Attorney General Brownell, Hoover says such vigilance is necessary because of the "world-wide rise of neautralism and the intensified Soviet program of a peaceful co-existence." He says the "Communist action program of the United States is being geared to cause a lowering of our guard, which, if successful, could have far-reaching and disastrous consequences." The F.B.I. Chief also reported that "the nation can take price in the progress being made in protecting civil rights." For a third successive year there was no lynching in this country. And J. Edgar Hoover also reported that the number of serious crimes in this country rose five per cent last year...to a new record high.

In Alexandria, Virginia today, Joseph S Petersen, Junior, was sentenced to seven years in prison after pleading guilty of using classified documents in a manner prejudicial to the safety and interest of the United States. Petersen, formerly employed by the secret National Security Agency had given some information to the Dutch government.

The 84th Congress starts at noon, eastern time, tomorrow. And today both parties set up their organizations in the Senate and House without surprises. The Democrats named Senator Lyndon Johnson of Texas to be their leader; the Republicans selected Senator Knowland to be minority leader. And in the House, Sam Rayburn of Texas was chosen Speaker and Joseph Martin of Massachusetts was selected minority leader. The Republicans agreed to try to present a united front on controversial issues. And the Democrats promised there will be no opposition just for the sake of opposing Administration policies.

Former President Hoover tomorrow will send Congress an outline of Hoover Commission proposals for cutting the size and cost of government while improving its efficiency. There will be some 17 or 18 reports...the first due by the end of this month.

The Federal Reserve Board tonight boosted the margin requirement for stock purchases...from 50 to 60 per cent ...effective immediately. The Board acted against the steeply rising prices of the last fewdays. Margin is the "down payment" that must be made in the purchase of stocks. The 50 per cent margin has been in effect since February of 1953.

Secretary of State Dulles today again reduced the authority of Scott McCleod, his controversial security chief. Previously McCleod had been relieved of his power of inspecting our missions abroad. Department officials say McCleod had recommended that this be done. He now will be in charge of security and consular affairs.

Government officials said today that Wolf Ladejinsky, recently fired by the Department of Agriculture from his job as attache in Tokyo, will be given a good position with the Foreign Operations Administration. He'll be assigned to specialize in land reform problems...particularly in southern Indo-China. Ladejinsky has been the center of controversey since the Agriculture Department fired him because, it said, he failed to meet the technical and security requirements. The State Department has cleared him. Only today a group of Jewish leaders called on Secretary of Agriculture Benson to reopen and reconsider his decision in the interest "of civil rights and civil liberties." An aide to Benson had released a leter from a Russian emigre which Jewish leaders said had anti-semitic implications. Today, these leaders said Secretary Benson had repudiated these implications, and said "anti-semitism would not be countenanced in his department."

The introduction to a new army field manual says the army's land forces are "the decisive component" in winning a war. The manual says that "in general, indiscriminate destruction is unjustifiable in a military sense." This philosophy is in contrast with the Administration's trend to build up atomic airpower while cutting the size of the army.

The Navy today unveiled what it called the first multi-jet seaplane in the world. The Seamaster, built by Martin aircraft, is described as the spearhead of future seaplane striking forces. It can do 600 miles an hour ...and is designed for mine-laying, bombing and reconnissance with the agility of landscapes.

Admiral Radford, the chairman of the joint cheifs of staff was in Tokyo today conferring with Japanese military leaders. And Japan's Prime Minister Hatoyama predicted in an interview that his country's defense costs will be cut. He sees no reason why the United States should not agree to this. He adds: "lightening our burden will help greatly to improve our economy; and this is what the United States also desires."

The Japanese today accepted an American offer of two million dollars as payment in full for all damages caused by American hydrogen weapon tests at Bikini atoll last March. One Japanese fisherman died.

Dag Hammershuld, the secretary general of the United Nations, arrived in Hankow today on his way to Peiping...to try to get the Chinese Communists to release eleven American airmen, and other allied personnel, now held prisoners. At the same time, Red Star, the Soviet army newspaper charged that "the spies were caught with the goods and received their deserved punishment."

The government of Panama today asked us for the loan of two F.B.I. agents to hunt for the assassins of President Jose A. Ramon. The Cuban government has also been asked to loan Panama an investigator.

One of the prices Premier Mendes France paid to get German re-armament through the French Assembly was to promise to do his best to set up a Four-Power conference on Germany. As long ago as his speech to the United Nations on November 22nd, he proposed that such a conference by held in May. And during the tense hours when he was trying to wheedle the Assembly into reversing its vote against Germany's entry into the Brussels treaty organization, he made a great point of his determination to sit down with the Russians.

But one must draw a distinction between what a Four -Power conference means to the opponents of German re-armament and what it means to Mendes-France. The opponents in both France and Germany want a conference because they hope the Kremlin either will make concessions to bring about German unification, or will offer enough to keep negotiations about it alive. If Germany is united, the ratified Paris accords do not come into effect. They apply only to West Germany. A united Germany could choose either to enter or stay out of the Western defense system. The opponents of German re-armament are quite sure the Kremlin wouldn't permit unification except on the condition of continued demilitarization.

That is not what Mendes-France wants. He has convinced both Washington and London that he sincerely favors Germany raising the twelve divisions that are to serve under the NATO command. Twelve divisions, he thinks, would not make Germany a menace to its neighbors. And even if the satellites responded by increasing their own forces he believes an agreement can be negotiated to keep European arms at that level. Then in more relaxed times this level could come down lower. He believes that arms reduction is the greatest of all needs, and he wants to negotiate for it from a position of strength.

But most of the agitation for a Four Power conference ignores the thesis of Mendes France. Most of it is pressing for a conference simply to keep the Paris accords from coming into effect. Just let a conference be held, some people think, and the Soviet negotiators will know how to spin them out indefinitely. That is the Kremlin specialty. To be sure, these people would welcome German unity, but if it can't be had they want a diplomatic filibuster to keep the Germans unarmed.

It is well to bear in mind another distinction, which is between two kinds if international conference. One kind is called to clinch an agreement that already is in sight and needs only to be finished off by the top men in responsibility. The other kind is called because an agreement hasn't been reached through normal channels and doesn't seem possible without extraordinary efforts. This kind starts in the hope of a miracle. Then when the miracle doesn't happen it turns into a propaganda battle to make the failure appear to be the fault of the other fellow. There have been only a few of the first kind of conferences since the start of the cold war, and many of the second kind.

Mr. Malenkov, answering questions put by a news agency, said that he did not believe a conference on Germany would be useful at this time, and blamed the initiative of the Western Powers in dealing with the German question by themselves. The British Foreign Office at once said it agreed that a conference on Germany would not be useful at this time, and that is the view in Washington, too. However, Paris must go on working for a conference since that is what Mendes France promised to do.

As things now look, if a conference on Germany should be held it would be one of the second kind, that needs a miracle to succeed. Of course nobody knows what is going on behind the scene. Theoctically it is possible that the Kremlin really is prepared to unite Germany on terms the West can accept, and so to relinquish its hold on East Germany. And that it is willing to pull out of Austria. If that were true, the situation would need the most delicate of exchanges between Moscow, London, Paris and Washington. And not a hint of it would get into the news until an agreement seemed likely. That is to say, that the more a Four Power conference is talked about openly at this stage, the less likelihood there is that the successful kind will be held. If it is held, it most probably would be no better than a battle in the cold war, called because both sides thought they were going to win.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a moment with the Word for Today.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: Throughout all of history, the greatest of statesmen have sought a way for nations to live in peace. Robert Louis Stevenson, no diplomat, once remarked simply: "There is an idea abroad among moral people that they should make their neighbors good. One person I have to make good - myself. And my duty to my neighbor is much more nearly expressed by saying that I have to make him happy - if I may."

Good Night and Good Luck.

Wednesday January 5, 1955

This is the news:

The President today made public his support of Defense Secretary (WILSON'S) plan to cut military manpower during the next two years. In answer to a request from Wilson that he go on public record in favor of the cuts, Mr. Eisenhower said he favors a reduction in the armed forces to about 3-million by next June 30..with a further cut of 150-thousand in the following fiscal year. The President says all of this will be dependent on an improved world situation.

Secretary Wilson asked for this public support from the White House after some congressmen indicated they had serious questions about the proposed cuts.

And today Congress came back to work.. Speaker Rayburn, the democratic leader in the House, told his colleagues the Democrats were not going to look at legislation from a partisan standpoint. And he also recalled charges by some Republicans in the November campaign who charged Democrats with being soft on Communism and subversion. Rayburn said:"We are not going to indict people en masse. No Democrat is going to talk like that without being frowned upon, or repudiated, by me." And former Speaker Martin told reporters just how the change in control of the House from Republicans to Democrats would take place. He said: "The Democrats will make a motion. We'll propose a substitute..and they'll roll over us on a voice vote."

Former President Hoover today asked Congress to extend the President's reorganization powers and maybe put up a little more money for Hoover Commission studies on how to streamline the government. And a New York University report made public a few findings of Hoover commission task forces. It says: the government carries on some 15-hundred activities that can be regarded as competing with private industry... businessmen spend one billion dollars a year filling out federal forms that are frequently filed and forgotten. Flood control projects have on occassion cost more than the value of the land they protected.

Senator Wiley, outgoing chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, said today that the government's security program and "a lack of vigorous management leadership" in the State Department, appear to be "factors" that contribute to low morale in the foreign service.

The Foreign Operations Administration today hired Wolf Ladejinsky to work on land reform in Viet Name. The State Department had cleared him on security but the Agriculture Department found that he should not be retained. The White House had to step in and ask all concerned to use "their best judgment" in working out the situation. Foreign Operations Administrator Stassen says he found Ladejinsky's file "eligible for certification for security and loyalty." [redacted] Secretary of Agriculture Benson, said he still feels he made the correct decision, to fire Ladejinsky. [redacted] Reporters asked him if he felt he had been rebuked by the White House. Benson said the reporters would have to draw their own conclusions.

Postmaster General Summerfield informed Congress that it cost almost 2-million dollars to move its free mail last year.

And Republican Senator Smith of New Jersey says former Republican Senator Hendrickson of New Jersey will be named ambassador to New Zealand by the President.

Here in New York the Stock Market had its biggest slump since the Korean war started..losses ranged from three to five dollars. Most experts say this was due to the Federal Reserve Board decision to raise margin requirements from 50 to 60 per cent..and, to the feeling that the market has long been over-due for a "correction." The Market had gone up for 16 months.

Russia and Yugoslavia today signed a 20-million-dollar trade agreement.. their first such agreement SINCE [redacted] Marshal Tito's government [redacted] was kicked out of the Cominform in 1948.

Dag Hammershuld, the secretary general of the United Nations, arrived In Peiping today AND paid a courtesy call on Chinese Communist Premier Chou en lai [redacted] Both decided to meet later tonight, to discuss the release of eleven Americans, sentenced to prison as spies. The Communist radio, announcing Hammershuld's arrival, did not state the purpose of his mission.

Admiral Radford, the chairman of our joint chiefs of staff, told reporters in Pearl Harbor today: any blockade of Red China would be an act of war "and not a thing to be treated lightly." He says we will have to support "a very large military aid program in the Far East" for a very long time to come.

Edward R. Murrow: January 5th, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

Mr. Hatoyama, the new Premier of Japan, has lived up to expectations in proposing to normalize Japan's economic relations with Communist China and the Soviet Union. He wants increased trade, lifting the ban on selling certain strategic goods to Communist countries, setting up internal trade organizations to promote commerce with the Communist countries, he wants the relaxation of travel restrictions and the exchange of economic missions. He wants this program to be adopted in stages. And he bluntly dismisses the idea that doing so would tend to promote Communism in Japan. Japan's defense forces, he says, are strong enough to suppress by force a revolution of the Communist Party.

These proposals sound hazardous for American policies in Japan. They cannot become an actuality until after the national election to be held in the Spring. If Hatoyama's Democratic Party makes big gains - which he predicts it will - then his words of today may be turned into deeds. Maybe before the election the two conservative parties - Hatoyama's and Yoshida's - will bury the hatchet and assure Japan a stable conservative government for years to come. It would be mildly pro-American. But it, too, would want more trade with China and the Soviet Union. For the era of American domination in Japan is over, and a new era is opening for which American opinion is not prepared.

The danger in Japan, as in other parts of Asia, is not from a Communist revolution that can be put down by military force. It is of infiltration, and this is a malady that cannot be averted or cured by overt military action. If Japan does not expand its economy, the pressures inside the country could produce an explosion. But fighting down an uprising is not going to make Japan healthy, and Japan has to be healthy if it is to be a dependable ally. So far the United States has carried Japan, by balancing its economy with military expenditure. Now we are cutting this down and we haven't come up with an adequate substitute. Premier Hatoyama suggests a substitute, and if we don't like it we must top it with a better one. This we are not doing.

The statement from Japan is not the only disconcerting news from Asia. Conditions in Vietnam continue to deteriorate. With each passing day the prospect of saving that country from infiltration grows dimmer. Interest naturally turns to the meeting of the Manila Pact governments in Bangkok on February 23. The security of Vietnam is one of the responsibilities of the new treaty organization. The danger of infiltration also is rising in Cambodia and Laos. If any one Southeast Asian country falls, the rest may tumble like dominoes, as President Eisenhower once said.

One of the problems at Bangkok will be to achieve agreement on the military scope of the new organization. The United States and Australia want a set-up like NATO - a central command with military forces ready to move. Great Britain wants the accent on economics in the defense against communism. The British periodically get into hot water because of differences within their Commonwealth family. Australia wants a solid military structure. India refused even to go to Manila and strongly opposes building up a military force in Asia. So Britain has to walk the tight-rope. Sir Anthony Eden will go to Bangkok. There he is sure to show his preference for limiting military action to staff planning and co-ordination. The ministers at Bangkok may decide to draw a line which the Communists will be told they cannot cross without starting a war. But crossing a line is only one face of the danger. The other face is infiltration. What can be done against that?

There is an answer to the question: Build up the internal health and prosperity of a country. Then infiltration is not to be feared. But that takes years, where only months may be left.

A veteran newspaper correspondent, Ferdinand ~~Kuhn~~ Kuhn, has just finished a tour of Southeast Asia which leads him to some conclusions that are worth wide understanding. He is not unmindful of the military realities, and wants the Seventh Fleet, perhaps even strengthened, to keep the Chinese Communists from new military adventuring. But he also is well aware that the root of the problem is economic. Still he warns against trying to save Southeast Asia by the dramatic impact of some big economic program. He recalls that Chiang Kai Shek could not be saved by heavy subsidies. What is needed, he points out, is long range training and education programs, and the building of lasting institutions. The villages must be improved, health must be established. The Asians must be given a sense of partnership, respect must be shown for their views. Some capital must be invested and help given to the development of local resources. A whole generation of artisans, civil servants and teachers has to come into existence.

This is a way of saying there is no short cut to security in Southeast Asia. Even if everybody plumped for it, Southeast Asia could not be saved from Communism by a Marshall Plan, for that was a short cut. Nor can it be saved by guns and bombs.

Maybe Southeast Asia is not going to be saved. The time may be too short, and the needed help and wisdom may come too late. But one thing seems to be sure, it is not going to be saved, if the problem is not understood.

Those responsible for forming policy in Southeast Asia, might do worse than follow this advice John Ruskin once gave:" Education, he said, is the leading of human souls to what is best and making what is best out of them. These two objectives are always attainable together - and by the same means. For the training which makes men happiest in themselves also makes them most serviceable to others."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 5, 1955
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

The President today made public his support of Defense Secretary Wilson's plan to cut military manpower during the next two years. In answer to a request from Wilson that he go on public record in favor of the cuts, Mr. Eisenhower said he favors a reduction in the armed forces to about 3-million by next June 30...with a further cut of 150-thousand in the following fiscal year. The President says all of this will be dependent on an improved world situation.

Secretary Wilson asked for this public support from the White House after some congressmen indicated they had serious questions about the proposed cuts.

And today Congress came back to work...Speaker Rayburn, the Democratic leader in the House, told his colleagues the Democrats were not going to look at legislation from a partisan standpoint. And he also recalled charges by some Republicans in the November campaign who charged Democrats with being soft of Communism and subversion. Rayburn said: "We are not going to indict people en masse. No Democrat is going to talk like that without being frowned upon, or repudiated, by me." And former Speaker Martin told reporters just how the change in control of the House from Republicans to Democrats would take place. He said: "The Democrats will make a motion. We'll propose a substitute...and they'll roll over us on a voice vote."

Former President Hoover today asked Congress to extend the President's reorganization powers and maybe put up a little more money for Coover Commission studies on how to streamline the government. And a New York University report made public a few findings of Hoover commission task forces. It says: the government carries on some 15-hundred activities that can be regarded as competing with private industry...businessmen spend one billion dollars a year filling out federal forms that are frequently filed and forgotten..Flood control projects have on occasion cost more than the value of the land they protected.

Senator Wiley, outgoing chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, said today that the government's security program and "a lack of vigorous management leadership" in the State Department, appear to be "factors" that contribute to low morale in the foreign service.

The Foreign Operations Administration today hired Wolf Ladejinsky to work on land reform in Vietnam. The State Department had cleared him on security but the Agriculture Department found that he should not be retained. The White House had to step in and ask all concerned to use "their best judgement" in working out the situation. Foreign Operations Administrator Stassen says he found Ladejinsky's file "eligible for certification for security and loyalty." Secretary of Agriculture Benson said he still feels he made the correct decision, to fire Ladejinsky. Reporters asked him if he felt he had veen rebuked by the White House. Benson said the reporters would have to draw their own conclusions.

Postmaster General Summerfield informed Congress that it cost almost 2-million dollars to move its free mail last year.

And Republican Senator Smith of New Jersey says former Republican Senator Hendrickson of New Jersey will be named abassador to New Zealand by the President.

Here in New York the Stock Market had its biggest slump since the Korean war started...losses ranged from three to five dollars. Most experts say this was due to the Federal Reserve Board decision to raise margin requirements from 50 to 60 per cent..and, to the feeling that the market has long been over-due for a "correction". The Market had gone up for 16 months.

Russia and Yugoslavia today signed a 20-million dollar trade agreement.. their first such agreement since Marshal Tito's government was kicked out of the Cominform in 1948.

Dag Hammerskjold, the secretary general of the United Nations, arrived in Peiping today and paid a courtesy call on the Chinese Communist Premier Chou en lai. Both decided to meet later tonight to discuss the release of eleven Americans sentenced to prison as spies. The Communist radio, announcing Hammerskjold's arrival, did not state the purpose of his mission.

Admiral Radford, the Chairman of our Joint Chiefs of Staff, told reporters in Pearl Harbor today: any blockade of Red China would be an act of war "and not a thing to be treated lightly." He says we will have to support "a very large military aid program in the Far East" for a very long time to come.

Mr. Hatoyama, the new Premier of Japan, has lived up to expectations in proposing to normalize Japan's economic relations with Communist China and the Soviet Union. He wants increased trade, lifting the ban on selling certain stratigic goods to Communist countries, setting up internal trade organizations to promote commerce with the Communist countries, he wants the relaxation of travel restrictions and the exchange of economic missions.

He wants this program to be adopted in stages. And he bluntly dismisses the idea that doing so would tend to promote Communism in Japan. Japan's defense forces, he says, are strong enough to suppress by force, a revolution of the Communist Party.

These proposals sound hazardous for American policies in Japan. They cannot become an actuality until after the national election to be held in the Spring. If Hatoyama's Democratic Party makes big gains - which he predicts it will - then his words of today may be turned into deeds. Maybe.

before the election the two conservative parties - Hatoyama's and Yoshida's - will bury the hatchet and assure Japan a stable conservative government for years to come. It would be mildly pro-American. But it, too, would want more trade with China and the Soviet Union. For the era of American domination in Japan is over, and a new era is opening for which American opinion is not prepared.

The danger in Japan, as in other parts of Asia, is not from a Communist revolution. That can be put down by military force. It is of infiltration, and this is a malady that cannot be averted or cured by overt military action. If Japan does not expand its economy, the pressures inside the country could produce an explosion. But fighting down an uprising is not going to make Japan healthy, and Japan has to be healthy if it is to be a dependable ally. So far the United States has carried Japan, by balancing its economy with military expenditure. Now we are cutting this down and we haven't come up with an adequate substitute. Premier Hatoyama suggests a substitute, and if we don't like it we must top it with a better one. This we are not doing.

The statement from Japan is not the only disconcerting news from Asia. Conditions in Vietnam continue to deteriorate. With each passing day the prospect of saving that country from infiltration grows dimmer. Interest naturally turns to the meeting of the Manila Pact governments in Bangkok on February 23. The security of Vietnam is one of the responsibilities of the new treaty organization. The danger of infiltration also is rising in Cambodia and Laos. In any one Southeast Asian country falls, the rest may tumble like dominoes, as President Eisenhower once said.

One of the problems at Bangkok will be to achieve agreement on the military scope of the new organization. The United States and Australia want a set-up like NATO - a central command with military forces ready to move. Great Britain wants the accent on economics in the defense against Communism. The British periodically get into hot water because of differences within their commonwealth family. Australia wants a solid military structure. India refused even to go to Manila and strongly opposes building up a military force in Asia. So Britain has to talk the tight-rope. Sir Anthony Eden will go to Bangkok. There he is sure to show his preference for limiting military action to staff planning and co-ordination. The ministers at Bangkok may decide to draw a line which the Communists will be told they cannot cross without starting a war. But crossing a line is only one face of the danger. The other face is infiltration. What can be done against that?

There is an answer to the question: Building up the internal health and prosperity of a country. Then infiltration is not to be feared. But that takes years, where only months may be left.

A veteran newspaper correspondent, Ferdinand Kuhn, has just finished a tour of Southeast Asia which leads him to some conclusions that are worth wide understanding. He is not unmindful of the military realities, and wants the Seventh Fleet, perhaps even strengthened, to keep the Chinese Communists from new military adventuring. But he is also well aware that the root of the problem is economic. Still, he warns against trying to save Southeast Asia by the dramatic impact of some big economic program. He recalls that Chiang Kai Shek could not be saved by heavy subsidies. What is needed, he points out, is long range training and education programs, and the building of lasting institutions. The villages must be improved, health must be established. The Asians must be given a sense of partnership, respect must be shown for their views. Some capital must be invested and help given to the developement of local resources. A whole generation of artisans, civil servants and teachers has to come into existence.

This is a way of saying there is no short cut to security in Southeast Asia. Even if everybody plumped for it, Southeast Asia could not be saved from Communism by a Marshall Plan, for that was a short cut. Nor can it be saved by guns and bombs.

Maybe Southeast Asia is not going to be saved. The time may be too short, and the needed help and wisdom may come too late. But one thing seems to be sure, it is not going to be saved, if the problem is not understood.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a minute with the Word for Today.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: Those responsible for forming policy in Southeast Asia, might do worse than follow this advice John Ruskin once gave: "Education, he said, is the leading of human souls to what is best and making what is best out of them. These two objectives are always attainable together - and by the same means. For the training which makes men happiest in themselves also makes them most serviceable to others."

Good Night and Good Luck.

Thursday January 6, 1954

This is the news:

The President today called for "unhesitating co-operation among all branches of the government." In his State of the Union message to the Congress, Mr. Eisenhower said: both political parties are on trial before the American people..we must avoid a paralysis of the will for peace and international security. (I'd like to review the details of the President's message in a few minutes.)

Senator Lyndon Johnson, the new majority leader of the Senate, said of the President's talk: "His recommendations will receive reasonable consideration by reasonable men. The attitude of the Democratic party will be in keeping with his call to subordinate partisanship, pride and prejudice to the nation's welfare."

The Moscow radio said tonight that the President's message offered Americans what Moscow calls "the same notorious policy of a position of strength..the intention to continue the arms race."

The President today also asked the Senate for "early and (Favorable consideration " for the mutual defense treaty between the United States and China. The President said this agreement with Nationalist China is designed to deter any attempt by the Chinese Communist [redacted] (REGIME) to bring its aggressive military ambitions to bear against the treaty area."

Republican Senator Bricker of Ohio says he will re-introduce his proposed Constitutional amendment to limit the treaty powers of the President. Bricker says he hopes that this time he and the President may be able to agree on "appropriate language." Mr. Eisenhower opposed the amendment a year ago.

Republican Senator Potter of Michigan told reporters today that he has "informed the administration" that he still thinks Army Secretary Stevens and Army Counselor John G. Adams should resign or be fired. Potter originally expressed this view after the Army-McCarthy hearings.

The Democratic chairmen-to-be of the Senate and House armed services committees today introduced their own versions of a universl military training bill. The President had promised to present his bill next Thursday. Senator Russell of Georgia and Representative Vinson of Georgia are understood to have acted at the request of the American Legion which strongly favors U.M.T.

Air Force Secretary Talbott said ~~today~~ TONIGHT that one of our B-47 stratojet bombers has set a new American record with a 21-thousand-mile non-stop flight that lasted nearly two days. The plane flew back and forth from North Africa to Great Britain. It was refueled in mid-air from flying tankers. Talbott says this shows that our air force is "second to none" in a world in which atomic weapons may decide the next war in the first few days of conflict.

Democratic Senators Fulbright of Arkansas and Sparkman of Alabama suggested today that the Senate Banking Committee should study the stock market..because of recent advances which carried industrial prices to an all-time high. These suggestions, and other factors, brought another hectic day to Wall Street. In all five and a third million shares were traded..the biggest day on the Street since Germany invaded Poland in 1939. The early selling was an extension of yesterday's sharp break. And after some recoveries the Fulbright-Sparkman statements caused a total drop in valuations of roughly 2-billion dollars. Later there was a recovery movement which some brokers described as "fairly impressive." Keith Funston, the president of the New York Stock Exchange, said the Exchange would welcome the opportunity to co-operate with the Senate committee in any way. And American Stock Exchange President Edward T. McCormick, offering similar co-operation, said his exchange is "free, open, fully regulated and honest."

Secretary of State Dulles today approved the sale of a two-million-dollar super-constellation transport plane to India..despite the possibility that it may be used on a proposed route to Communist China. The Indians ordered three of these planes in 1953. A State Department spokesman said today he did not know whether the plane would be used on the route to Red China. There is nothing in the sale agreement to prevent this. Normally, in selling ships to foreign government we have requested assurances that the vessels would not be used for trade with Communist ports where our ships are not permitted to go.

Dag Hammershuld, the secretary-general of the United Nations, spent three and a half hours today with Chinese Communist Premier Chou en Lai. The United Nations says another meeting will be held at about 2 a.m. eastern time..in Hammershuld's effort to secure the release of eleven American airmen held by the Chinese as spies.

The Foreign Operations Administration reported today that in the past eleven years we have pumped five-and-a-half billion dollars into the economic and military build-up of Italy. This includes loans, all forms of aid given through our armed forces and such post-war agencies as the Rehabilitation and Reconstruction agency..the European Recovery Program and the Economic co-operation Administration.

In Panama, national and secret police apparently have not been able to find a solid clue in their effort to solve the murder of Presiddent Jose ANTONIO [redacted] Remon. The police are still holding for questioning, Martin I. ~~Lipstein~~ LIPSTEIN, identified as a New York school teacher.

Edward R. Murrow: January 6, 1955. 7.45 p.m.

In his State of the Union message today, the President walked firmly down the middle of the road inviting men of good will in both political parties to join him. It was a speech without fireworks or surprises - a matter-of-fact, restrained discourse on the state of the country and the world. There was no new challenge to the Soviet Union, and there was no yielding. Mr. Eisenhower found the free nations of the world stronger than at any time in recent years. The Communist bloc of nations are also growing in power, increasing their strength in nuclear weapons. But if the Communist rulers understand that America's response to aggression will be swift and decisive - that never shall we buy peace at the expense of honor or faith - they will be powerfully deterred from launching a military venture engulfing their own peoples and many others in disaster.

Mr. Eisenhower views the present situation as a "world stalemate," where all must strive to find an honorable way for enduring peace. He wants us to gradually reduce certain of our tariff trade barriers; and he wants other nations to do the same. He believes and he personally ordered the recent military changes. He thinks they conform to the military realities of our time. For the foreseeable future our standing forces must remain much larger than voluntary methods can sustain. So we will have to continue to draft young men for two years of military service. Mr. Eisenhower is going to make recommendations to increase the attractions of a military career - more adequate medical care for dependents, better housing, and adjustments in military pay.

The President, in recognizing that the Democrats control the Congress and the Republicans the White House, said this fact "places both Parties on trial before the American people." He appeared confident of bi-partisan support in the areas of military strength and foreign affairs. And he added that in all areas basic to the strength of America there will be, so far as he is concerned, co-operative and constructive relations between the White House and the Congress.

The President reported that the last year was one of the most prosperous in our history. Production is rising, employment is high. Personal income, after taxes, is at a record level; so is consumer spending. Construction activity is reaching new peaks. Savings are high, credit is easy; the economic outlook is good. There will be no further tax reductions this year, but he hopes some can be made next year. We can now look forward to reduced government expenditures for the purchase of surplus farm products; and to less Federal intrusion into the lives and plans of our farm people.

Later on, because drought remains a serious problem, he will recommend legislation to strengthen the Federal Disaster Assistance Program. The housing program, authorized XXX by the last Congress, must be carried forward. We must also authorize a firm program of thirty-five thousand additional public housing units in each of the next two fiscal years.

On January 24 the President will propose a plan to strengthen and improve existing health services. This will be aimed at encouraging the development of more and better voluntary health insurance by private organizations.

We face an unprecedented classroom shortage; something must be done about that, and the President will send up a special message with his proposals the middle of February.

Something must be done to help the states to deal with the question of juvenile delinquency. There will be a special message on that, too, later.

Our economy has been growing for the past five years, and the President now thinks we can afford to increase the federal minimum wage. He recommends an increase to 90 cents an hour.

This is a sober but far from sombre review of the State of the Nation and the world. In international affairs the President recommends increased strength and steadiness, coupled with a willingness to negotiate. Domestically he doesn't want taxes increased in order to balance the budget, nor reduced, which would increase the deficit. There was little emphasis on the necessity to decentralize the Federal Government. It was, in fact, a speech calculated to produce maximum support from both Democrats and Republicans. It was a reasonable speech, devoid of extreme language, devoid too of exaggerated threats or promises. It reflected, it seems to me, the political stalemate here at home, and the power stalemate in world affairs.

The President, in his State of the Union message today, made a point of noting that in the tense times in which we're living, our safety, security and well-being must come ahead of party politics. George Curtis once put it well when he said:"A man's country is not a certain area of land, of mountains, rivers and woods. It is a principle. And patriotism is loyalty to that principle."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

THURSDAY, JANUARY 6, 1955
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

The President today called for "unhesitating co-operation among all branches of the government." In his state of the Union Message to the Congress, Mr. Eisenhower said: both political parties are now on trial before the American people...we must avoid a paralysis of the will for peace and international security. I'd like to review the details of the President's message in a few minutes.

Senator Lyndon Johnson, the new majority leader of the Senate, said of the President's talk: "His recommendations will receive reasonable consideration by reasonable men. The attitude of the Democratic party will be in keeping with his call to subordinate partisanship, pride and prejudice to the nation's welfare."

The Moscow radio said tonight that the President's message offered Americans what Moscow calls "the same notorious policy of a position of strength.. the intention to continue the arms race."

The President today also asked the Senate for "early and favorable consideration" for the mutual defense treaty between the United States and China. The President said this agreement with Nationalist China is designed to deter any attempt by the Chinese Communists regime to bring its aggressive military ambitions to bear against the treaty area."

Republican Senator Bricker of Ohio says he will re-introduce his proposed Constitutional amendment to limit the treaty powers of the President. Bricker says he hopes that this time he andthe President may be able to agree on "appropriate language." Mr. Eisenhower opposed the amendment a year ago.

Republican Senator Potter of Michigan told reporters today that he has "informed the administration" that he still thinks Army Secretary Stevens and Army Counselor John G. Adams should resign or be fired. Potter originally expressed this view after the Army-McCarthy hearings.

The Democratic chairmen-to-be of the Senate and House armed services committees today introduced their own versions of a universal military training bill. The President had promised to present his bill next Thursday. Senator Russel of Georgia and Representative Vinson of Georgia are understood to have acted at the request of the American Legion which strongly favors U.M.T.

Air Force Secretary Talbott said tonight that one of our B-47 stratojet bombers has set a new American record with a 21-thousand mile non-stop flight from North Africa to Great Britain. It was refueled in mid-air from flying tankers. Talbott says this shows that our air force is "second to none" in a world in which atomic weapons may decide the next war in the first few days of conflict.

Democratic Senators Fulbright of Arkansas and Sparkman of Alabama suggested today that the Senate Banking Committee should study the stock market...because of recent advances which carried industrial prices to an all-time high. These suggestions, and other factors, brought another hectic day to Wall Street. In all five and a third million shares were traded.. the biggest day on the Street since Germany invaded Poland in 1939. The early selling was an extension of yesterday's sharp break. And after some recoveries the Fulbright-Sparkman statements caused a total drop in valuations of roughly 2-billion dollars. Later there was a reovery movement which some brokers described as "fairly impressive." Keith Funston, the president of the New York Stock Exchange, said the Exchange would welcome the opportunity to co-operate with the Senate committee in any way. And American Stock Exchange President Edward T. McCormick, offering similar co-operation, said his exchange is "free, open, fully regulated and honest."

Secretary of State Dulles today approved the sale of a two-million dollar super-constellation transport plane to India...despite the possibility that it may be used on a proposed route to Communist China. The Indians ordered three of these planes in 1953. A State Department spokesman said today he did not know whether the plane would be used on the route to Red China. There is nothing in the sale agreement to prevent this. Normally, in selling ships to foreign government we have requested assurances that the vessels would not be used for the trade with Communist ports where our ships are not permitted to go.

Dag Hammerskjold, the secretary-general of the United Nations, spent three and a half hours today with Chinese Communist Premier Chou en Lai. The United Nations says another meeting will be held at about 2 a.m. eastern time...in Hammerskjold's effort to secure the release of eleven American airmen held ty the Chinese as spies.

The Foreign Operations Administration reported today that in the past eleven years we have pumped five-and-a-half billion dollars into the economic and military build-up of Italy. This includes loans, all forms of aid given through our armed forces and such post-war agencies. as the Rehabilitation and Reconstruction agency...the European Recovery Program and the Economic co-operation Administration.

In Panama, national and secret police apparently have not been able to find a solid clue in their effort to solve the murder of President Jose Antonio Remon. The police are still holding for questioning, Martin I Lipstein, identified as a New York school teacher.

In his state of the Union message today, the President walked firmly down the middle of the road inviting men of good will in both political parties to join him. It was a speech without fireworks or surprises - a matter -of - fact, restrained discourse on the state of the country and the world. There was no new challenge to the Soviet Union, and there was no yielding. Mr. Eisenhower found the free nations of the world stronger than at any time in recent years. The Communist bloc of nations are also growing in power, increasing their strength in nuclear weapons. But if the Communist rulers understand that America's response to aggression will be swift and decisive - that never shall we buy peace at the expense of honor or faith - they will be powerfully deterred from launching a military venture engulfing their own peoples and many others in disaster.

Mr. Eisnehower views the present situation as a "world stalemate," where all must strive to find an honorable way for enduring peace. He wants us to gradually reduce certain of our tariff trade barriers; and he wants other nations to do the same. He believes and he personally ordered the recent military changes. He thinks they conform to the military realities of our time. For the foreseeable future our standing forces must remain much larger than voluntary methods can sustain. So we will have to continue to draft young men for two years of military service. Mr. Eisenhower is going to make recommendations to increase the attractions of a military career - more adequate medical care for dependents, better housing, and adjustments in military pay.

The President, in recognizing that the Democrats control the Congress and the Republicans the White House, said this fact "places both parties on trial before the American people." He appeared confident of bi-partisan support in the areas of military strength and foreign affairs. And he added that in all areas basic to the strength of America there will be, so far as he is concerned, co-operative and constructive relations between the White House and the Congress.

The President reported that the last year was one of the most prosperous in our history. Production is rising, emplyyment is high. Personal income, after taxes, is at a record level; so is consumer spending. Construction activity is reaching new peaks. Savings are high, credit is easy; the economic outlook is good. There will be no further tax reductions this year, but he hopes some can be made next year. We can now look forward to reduced government expenditures for the purchase of surplus farm products; and to less Federal intrusion into the lives and plans of our farm people.

Later on, because drought remains a serious problem, he will recommend legislation to strengthen the Federal Disaster Assistance Program. The housing program, authorized by the last Congress, must be carried forward. We must also authorize a firm program of thirty-five thousand additional public housing units in each of the next two fiscal years.

On January 24 the President will propose a plan to strengthen and improve existing health services. This will be aimed at encouraging the development of more and better voluntary health insurance by private organizations.

We face an unprecedented classroom shortage; something must be done about that, and the President will send up a special message with his proposals in the middle of February.

Something must be done to help the states to deal with the question of juvinile delinquency. There will be a special message on that, too, later.

Our economy has beengrowing for the past five years, and the President now thinks we canafford to increase the federal minimum wage. He recommends an increase to 90 cents an hour.

This is a sober, but far from sombre review of the State of the Nation and the world. In international affairs the President recommends increased strength and steadiness, coupled with a willingness to negotiate.

Domestically he doesn't want taxes increased in order to balance the budget, nor reduced, which would increase the deficit. There was little empahsis on the necessity to decentralize the Federal Govenrment. It was, in fact, a speech calculated to produce maximum support from both Democrats and Republicans. It was a reasonable speech, devoid of extreme language, devoid too of exagerated threats or promises. It reflected, it seems to me, the political stalemate here at home, and the power stalemate in foreign affairs.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a moment with the Word for Today.

DIXON :COMMERCIAL

MURROW: The Prsdident, in his State of the Union Message today, made a point of noting that in the tense times in which we're living, our safety, security, and well-being must come ahead of party politics. George Curtis once put it well when he said: "A man's country is not a certain area of land, of mountains, rivers and woods. It is a principle. And patriotism is loyalty to that principle."

Good Night and Good Luck.

Friday, January 7, 1955

This is the news:

The White House says the telegrams it has received commenting on the President's State of the Union message are "practically unanimous" in approving it. And the Soviet news agency Tass says the President's speech was war-like despite his talk of peace. (I'd like to discuss the recent Soviet attitude in a few minutes.)

The President's highway commission today endorsed a 101-billion-dollar modernization program over the next ten years. The federal government would pay the bill for almost all the work on a 24-billion dollar network of interstate highways. At present the ratio on interstate highways is a 60 per cent payment by the federal government with the states supplying funds equal to 40 per cent. The commission had no details to report today.

Ambassador to Italy Clare Boothe Luce conferred with the President today on the situation in Italy. And later she told reporters: "The Italians have a very severe economic problem..more severe than any other nation in Europe.

Army Secretary Stevens today took note of a New York Times report that he will resign as soon as the President decided on his successor. The Times said Stevens is in poor health. But the Secretary authorized a statement reading:"I have never felt better in my life and I am not resigning." An aide said Stevens has not discussed resigning with anyone.

The government says there was a decrease of more than a million jobs in this country in December. But Labor Secretary Mitchell and Commerce Secretary Weeks say:"seasonal changes dominated the job picture."

The Stock Exchange today saw waves of buying in the morning and late afternoon that sent some shares up three dollars or more. The average increase indicated a gain of two billion dollars in values. And market analysts said they thought the break had run its course and that prices would go higher.

A high-ranking naval officer said today that the reported sighting of unidentified submarines now averages two a week off the Atlantic and Pacific coasts. He acknowledged that the navy's anti-submarine apparatus has not positively identified a Russian submarine off either coast

Secretary of Agriculture Benson says that if farm income from basic crops goes down this year it cannot be blamed on flexible price supports. Benson says all basic crops except wheat and corn will probably be supported at the same high level as in the past..before the flexible act was approved.

Former [redacted] Diplomat John Carter Vincent writes in the "Foreign Service Journal" that Secretary of State Dulles was under pressure to "say something critical of " him when Vincent was retired from the department. Vincent said Dulles could not criticize him on grounds of loyalty or security so Dulles accused him of failing to meet "the standard which is demanded of a foreign service officer." Vincent says he doesn't know what "standard" Dulles had in mind.

The Democrats announced today that they will start their 1956 convention on Monday, August 27..the second latest date in party history. This would be five weeks later than the start of the 1952 convention.. and assures a shorter campaign. No site has been selected yet. The Democratic National Committee has started to find flaws in the President's state of the Union message..asking, in particular, how Mr. Eisenhower can propose a cutback in our armed forces in view of his statement that Russia's "steadily growing power is the threat confronting us today." The Democrats also wonder what has become of the "Marshal Plan for Asia" proposed by Secretary Dulles and Foreign Aid Administrator Stassen. They also wonder whether the President's plan to reduce the size of the armed forces may not invite the Communists to wage "small land wars".

The State Department says the Communist government of Hungary is giving us a run-around in our efforts to determine whether Noel and Herta Field actually requested asylum in Hungary..as reported by the Hungarian radio. Despite persistent efforts to find out..we still don't know where the Fields are..or how they can be reached.

The government today agreed to provide 41 million dollars worth of American wheat and cotton to Yugoslavia..to relieve a shortage.

In Peiping today, Dag Hammershuld of the United Nations met with Chinese Communist Premier Chou en Lai for more than seven hours of talks...on the case of the eleven American flyers held as spies by the Communists.

Edward R. Murrow: January 7, 1955. 7.45 p.m.

The sour reception President Eisenhower's State of the Union message received in Moscow should alert this country to the fact that the "New Look" in Soviet policy already has undergone a change. It may even be on the way out.

It takes some time to implant an idea in the public mind, and it took months for the "New Look" in Soviet policy to find acceptance. Now it is so firmly established that many people have a "comfortable feeling" that world affairs really have taken a marked turn for the better. In Fact the New Look has not been much in evidence since the re-armament of Germany showed promise of getting through the French Assembly. Mr. Molotov went on a spree of writing threatening notes, and now is out on a limb as a result. He has to do something pretty drastic or confess that he was just sounding off. Not that his concern was hard to understand. The inclusion of Germany in Western Defense was a serious setback for the Soviet Union.

But the bad reception given the Eisenhower message is not easy to understand in its own terms. Indeed, one might criticize the Eisenhower Administration for proclaiming a sizeable reduction in the army in advance of promised negotiations for arms reductions. It is a little like starting a poker game by simply giving away a stack of blue chips. No doubt the army cuts are being made for reasons of self-interest, and not to impress the men in the Kremlin. But history can remind us that the men in the Kremlin aren't impressed by moderation or even generosity.

When Averell Harriman and Lord Beaverbrook in 1941 took the first offer of lend lease to Moscow, the astounded Russians could not hide their elation. But by the next day they had mastered their delight and launched a savage attack on the Allies for the meanness of their offer. The cut in the army would have been a useful bargaining point, and would have helped convince the Soviet people that we really want arms reductions, which we certainly do. But as a spontaneous and ~~unilateral~~ single handed action it was unnoticed, and a considerable diplomatic asset went down the drain.

Isaac Deutcher, author of a highly regarded life of Stalin, has an article in the current issue of "The Reporter" called: "The Voice of Moscow Grows Harsh Again." He calls attention to the contrast between Mr. Molotov's recent conduct of affairs and Stalin's. Stalin didn't burn his bridges or announce he wouldn't negotiate. Molotov has virtually said this about negotiating over Germany if the Paris accords are ratified. Stalin liked concealment and surprises. These were the weapons of weakness. Now his successors are playing with great confidence from strength.

Mr. Deutcher forecasts what the Kremlin will do if the German agreements are ratified. Most important, he says, will be a new arms drive, and it will be important for more than its increase in Eastern power. It will have a domestic effect inside the Soviet Union. It will slow down the campaign to raise living standards. He thinks the establishment of an ~~Eastern~~ Communist Command like SHAPE will not add much to military strength, though it will improve morale. And as for arming East Germany, he considers this the least sincere of Mr. Molotov's warnings because the Russians have no illusions about the reliability of the East Germans. One of the steps that may be taken, he says, is to lower the half-lifted curtain between East and West Germany.

But the greatest change may be for the Soviet bloc to transfer initiative from Europe to Asia. By now, Mr. Deutcher says, Moscow has abandoned its reserve over Peiping's interest in Formosa. He believes Mr. Molotov's interest in the Indochinese armistice will diminish. It was given France in the first place in a bid for friendship, and for the rejection of German re-armament. He suggests that only Moscow's and Peiping's reluctance to frighten Prime Minister Nehru and other neutral Asians may keep this theater relatively quiet.

Inside the Soviet hierarchy exists a division between advocates of a tough policy and the soft-spoken approach of the New Look. To the tough school the New Look is appeasement. The pressure for toughness is growing. One spokesman of the tough school is Marshal Vasilevsky, who has been like a leader of the opposition. He was chosen to make the official reply to Field Marshal Montgomery's prediction about the use of atomic weapons in any European war. He reminded Montgomery that Britain is small and overcrowded and an all-too vulnerable target for Soviet atomic and hydrogen weapons. To the Soviet public he sounded as though he were discrediting the New Look and preparing the ground for a policy of firmness. A still more eminent soldier spoke out in tough language, Marshal Zhukov, who denounced what he called British treachery in 1945, when Sir Winston Churchill recollected having intended to arm Germans if the Red Army tried to sweep into Western Europe.

Mr. Molotov hasn't repudiated the New Look and shut off all talk of peaceful co-existence. But he is trying to steer a middle course between this and the tough line. So he has taken to the old harsh voice. And that was the voice that was raised in Moscow yesterday to denounce an American peace president on the ground that he really is harboring a desire for war.

There would seem to be ~~good~~ some reason to believe that once again the Russians are changing their tactics with regard to us. William Summer once remarked:"A doctrine is an article of faith. It is something which you are bound to believe - not always because you have some rational ground for believing it true, but because you have to."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

FRIDAY, JANUARY 7, 1955
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

The White House says the telegrams it has received commenting on the President's State of the Union message are "practically unanimous" in approving it. And the Soviet news agency Tass says the President's speech was war-like, despite his talk of peace. I'd like to discuss the recent Soviet attitude in a few minutes.

The President's highway commission today endorsed a 101-billion dollar modernization program over the next ten years. The federal government would pay the bill for almost all the work on a 24-billion dollar network of interstate highways. At present, the ratio on interstate highways is a 60 per cent payment by the federal government with the states supplying funds equal to 40 per cent. The commission had no details to report today.

Ambassador to Italy, Clare Boothe Luce conferred with the President today on the situation in Italy. And later she told reporters: "The Italians have a very severe economic problem...more severe than any other nation in Europe.

Army Secretary Stevens today took note of a New York Times report that he will resign as soon as the President decided on his successor. The Times said Stevens is in poor health. But the Secretary authorized a statement reading: "I have never felt better in my life and I am not resighing." An aide said Stevens has not discussed resigning with anyone.

The government says there was a decrease of more than a million jobs in this country in December. But Labor Secretary Mitchell and Commerce Secretary Weeks say: "seasonal changes dominate the job picture."

The Stock Exchange today saw waves of buying in the morning and late afternoon that sent some shares up three dollars or more. The average increase indicated a gain of two billion dollars in values. And market analysts said they thought the break had run its course and that prices would go higher.

A high-ranking naval officer said today that the reported sighting of unidentified submarines now averages wto a week of the Atlantic and Pacific coasts. He acknowledged that the navy's anti-submarine apparatus has not positively identified a Russian submarine offeither coast.

Secretary of Agriculture Bensonsays that if farm income from basic crops goes down this year it cannot be blamed on flexible price supports. Benson says all basic crops except wheat and corn will probably be supported at the same high level as in the past ...before the flexible act was approved.

Former diplomat John Carter Vincent writes in the "foreign Service Journal", that Secretary of State Dulles was under pressure to "say something critical" of him when Vincent was retired from the department. Vincent said Dulles could not critizize himon grounds of loyalty or security, so Dulles accused him of failing to meet "the standard which is demanded of a foreign service officer." Vincent says he doesn't know what "standard" Dulles had in mind.

The Democrats announced today that they will start their 1956 convention on Monday, August 27...the second latest date in party history. This sould be five weeks later than the start of the 1952 convention...and assures a shorter campaign. No site has been selected yet. The Democratic National Committee has started to find flaws in the President's State of the Union message...asking, in particular, how Mr. Eisenhower can propose a cutback in our armed forces in view of his statement that Russia's "steadily growing power is the threat confronting us today." The Democrats also wonder what aas become th ohe "Marshal Plan for Asia" proposed by Secretary Dulles and Foreign Aid Administrator Stassen. They also wonder whether the President's plan to reduce the size of the armed forces may not invite the Communists to wage "small land wars."

The State Department says the Communist government of Hungary is giving as the run-around in our efforts to determine whether Noel and Herta Field actually requested asylum in Hungary...as reported by the Hungarian radio. Despite presistent efforts to find out...we still don't know where the Fields are ...or how they can be reached.

The government today agreed to provide 41 million dollars worth of American wheat and cotton to Yugoslavia..to relieve a shortage.

In Peiping today, Dag Hammarskjold of the United Nations met with Chinese Communist Premier Chou en Lai for more than seven hours of talks...on the case of the eleven American flyers held as spies by the Communists.

The sour reception President Eisenhower's State of the Union message received in Moscow should alert this country to the fact that the "New Look" in Soviet policy already has undergone a change. It may even be on the way out.

It takes some time to implant an idea in the public mind, and it took months for the "New Look" in Soviet policy to find acceptance. Now it is so firmly established than many people have a "comfortable feeling " that world affairs really have taken a marked turn for the better. In fact the New Look has not been much in evidence since the re-armament of Germany showed promise of getting through the French Assembly. Mr. Molotov went on a spree of writing threatening notes, and now is out on a limb as a result. He has to do something pretty drastic of confess that he was just sounding off. Not that tis concern was hard to understand. The inclusion of Germany in Western Defense was a serious setback for the Soviet Union.

But the bad reception given the Eisenhower message is not easy to understand in its own terms. Indeed, one might criticize the Eisenhower Administration for proclaiming a sizeable reduction in the army in advance of promised negotiations for arms reductions. It is a little like starting a poker game by simply giving away a stack of blue chips. No doubt the army cuts are being made for easons of self-interest, and not to impress the men in the Kremlin. But history can remind us that the men in the Kremlin aren't impressed by moderation or even generosity.

When Averill Harriman and Lord Beaverbrook in 1941 took the first offer of lend lease to Moscow, the astounded Russians cound not hide their elation. But by the next day they had mastered their delight and launched a savage attack on the Allies for the meanness of their offer.

The cut in the army would have been a useful bargaining toint, and would have helped convince the Soviet people that we really want arms reductions, which we certainly do. But as a spontaneous and single handed action it was unnoticed and a considerable diplomatic asset went down the drain.

Isaac Deutcher, author of a highly regarded life of Stalin, has an article in the current issue of "The Reporter" called: "The Voice of Moscow Grows Harsh Again." He calls attention to the contrast between Mr. Molotov's recent conduct of affairs and Stalin's. Stalin didn't burn his bridges or announce he wouldn't negotiate. Molotov has virtually said this about negotiating over Germany if the Paris accords are ratified. Stalin liked concealment and surprises. These were the weapons of weakness. Now his successors are playing with great confidence from strength.

Mr. Deutcher forecasts what the Kremlin will do if the German agreements are ratified. Most important, he says, will be a new arms drive, and it will be important for more than its increase in Eastern power. It will have a domestic effect inside the Soviet Union. It will slow down the campaign to raise living standards. He thinks the establishment of a Communist Command like SHAPE will not add much to military strength, though it will improve morale. And as for arming East Germany, he considers this the least sincere of Mr. Molotov's warnings because the Russians have no illusions about the reliability of the East Germans. One of the steps that may be taken, he says, is to lower the half-lifted curtain between East and West Germany.

But the greatest change may be for the Soviet bloc to transfer initiative from Europe to Asia. By now, Mr. Deutcher says, Moscow has abandoned its reserve over Peiping's interest in Formosa. He beleives Mr. Molotov's interest in the Indochinese armistice will diminish. It was given France in the first place in a bid for friendship, and for the rejection of German re-armament. He suggests that only Moscow's and Peiping's reluctance to frighten Prime Minister Nehru and other neautral Asians may keep this theater relatively quiet.

Inside the Soviet hierarchy, exists a division between advocates of a tough policy and the soft-spoken approach of the New Look. To the tough school the New Look is appeasement. The pressure for toughness is growing. One spokesman of the tough school is Marshal Vasilevsky, who has been like a leader of the opposition. He was chosen to make the official reply to Field Marshal Montgomery's prediction about the use of atomic weapons in any European war. He reminded Montgomery that Britain is small and overcrowded and an all-too vulnerable target for Soviet atomic and hygrogen weapons. To the Soviet public he sounded as though he were discrediting the New Look and preparing the ground for a policy offirmness. A still more eminent soldier spoke out in tough language Marshal Zhukov, who denounced what he called British treachery in 1945, when Sir Winston Churchill recollected having intended to arm Germans if the Red Army tried to sweep into Western Europe.

Mr. Molotov repudiated the New Look and shut off all talk of peaceful co-existence. But he is trying to steer a middle course between this and the tough line. So he has taken to the old harsh voice. And that was the voice that was raised in Moscow yesterday to denounce an American peace president on the ground that he really is harboring a desire for war.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a moment with the Word for Today.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW:There would seem to be some reason to believe that once again the Russians are changing their tactics with regard to us. William Summer once remarked : "A doctrine is an article of faith. It is something which you are bound to believe - not always because you have some rational ground for believing it true, but because you have to."

Good Night and Good Luck.

Monday, January 10, 1958

This is the news:

The President today asked Congress to take the lead in promoting high levels of trade. He said this will "bring to all the economic strength upon which the freedom and security of all depends." I'd like to review the President's program in a few minutes.

Dag Hammershuld, the secretary-general of the United Nations, has completed his mission to Communist China. And a joint communique issued by Hammershuld and Red China's Chou en Lai says in part: "We feel that these talks have been (USEFUL) and we hope to be able to continue the contact established in these meetings." The two men say they discussed "questions pertinent to the relaxation of world tension." There was no mention of Hammershuld's specific effort to gain the release of eleven Amsericans, and other U.N. personnel, held by the Chinese. AN Indian Foreign Ministry spokesman in New Delhi says "from what the communique says" he feels the release of the eleven American flyers is only a matter of time..after further clarification and talks.

The Chinese Communists today carried out their heaviest air attack in five years against the Chinese Nationalists. The target was the Nationalist-held Tachen island...200 miles north of Formosa. The Nationalists say 100 Red bombers, protected by fighters, dropped 300 bombs on Tachen in four seperate raids. The Nationalists say they shot down two attacking planes and damaged two others. The Nationalists also report: most enemy bombs dropped into the sea...but there was "considerable" civilian casualties..and at least ten houses were destroyed. The Chinese Communists say they destroyed or damaged at least four Nationalist ships..and that all their planes returned safely.

And the Communists today broadcast yet another propaganda attack on the United States. Red China accuses us of trying to organize what it calls "a northeast Asia aggressive alliance"..consisting of Japan, Korea and Nationalist China.

In Washington today, Costa Rica called on the Council of the Organization of American States to take immediate action to halt a threatened invasion of Costa Rica from Nicaragua. Costa Rica charges that Nicaragua is training an army of adventurers for such an invasion. Nicaragua says this charge has no basis in fact. And the Council has urged both countries to keep the peace until a full review of the situation can be made on Wednesday.

The Democrats in the Senate today decided on committee assignments. And they placed Independent Senator Morse of Oregon on the foreign relations committee..one of the most desireable to many lawmakers. Morse was also given a seat on the banking and currency committee and permitted to retain his seat on the District of Columbia committee. Two OLD-TIME Senators, Barkely of Kentucky and O'Mahoney of Wyoming were given prize assignments, although both are "freshmen" in this Senate. Barkley was assigned to foreign relations and finance..and O'Mahoney to interior and judiciary. He was once chairman of both groups.

The President today again sent the name of Judge John Marshal Harlan to the Senate as his candidate to be associate justice of the Supreme Court. And he named Joseph Finnegan, a New York lawyer, to direct the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service. Finnegan is a Republican.

Chairman Richards of the House Foreign Affairs Committee says the President's promise of a bi-partisan approach to foreign relations has been nothing but "talk". Richards says if the Adminitration means what it says some Democrats would be named to top foreign policy posts.

Senator McClellan who will be the new chairman of the Investigations Sub-committee says this group will give "prompt consideration" to the Peress case. Mc Clellan spoke after Democratic Senator Daniel of Texas introduced a resolution supported by 54 Senators calling for a continued investigation of Communism. Daniel said the Army had waited almost a year to disclose the facts surrounding the promotion and honorable discharge of former Major Peress. He said this has caused "confusion, suspicion and discord."

And the McCarthy subcommittee reported to the Senate that Communists have infiltrated defense plants. Congress was urged to pass a law to remove them.

The Supreme Court today refused to review the conviction of 13 second-string Communist leaders. And later, Judge Urving Kaufman, here in New York, revoked the bail of all 13 and ordered their immediate arrest. They face prison terms ranging from one to three years and fines of from two to six thousand dollars.

Two women members of Congress, Representative Bolton of Ohio and Senator Margaret Chase Smith of Maine, today introduced a bill to make the rose our national flower. They say we are the only major country in the world without a national flower.

The Atomic Energy Committee has set up a schedule of charges it will make for atomic fuels and other materials it is authorized to lease or sell to private firms..for peacetime power production. The Commission has also set up "fair prices" it will pay for plutonium and Uranium-233 produced in atomic power plants built by private industry.

And the Stock Market continued to advance today. The latest gains have recovered more than three-quarters of the ground lost in the big break last week.

Edward R. Murrow: January 10, 1954. 7.45 p.m.

Today the President asked the Democratic Congress for something the last Republican Congress refused.... he wants a three-year extension of the law permitting him to reduce our tariffs by fifteen percent over a three-year period. He wants these reductions to be "moderate, gradual and reciprocal." Mr. Eisenhower contended that our own self-interest demands that our Allies should be economically strong; that the under-developed areas must grow economically, or they will be subject to Communist penetration and subversion. And he said, too, that increased world production and trade will help our own standard of living and economic growth here at home.

The President wants more American firms to do more business abroad, and so he recommends that income earned in foreign countries by American corporations shall be taxed at thirty-eight percent instead of the fifty-two percent that is charged against firms doing business in this country. He wants us to continue sending American experts abroad to share with the under-developed areas American "know-how."

One of the principal sources of dollars for many foreign countries, particularly in Western Europe is the money spent by American tourists.

Now they can bring home five hundred dollars' worth of foreign-bought goods without paying any duty. The President wants this raised to one thousand dollars. Also Mr. Eisenhower wants this country to streamline its whole Customs procedure so that foreign goods subject to our tariff may come in without unwarranted delays. He wants this country to join the new international finance corporation which will provide venture capital for under-developed countries. And he wants this country to participate more fully in foreign trade fairs which the Russians have been using with considerable success as a propaganda showcase, trying to convey the impression that Russia is producing goods on a large scale for peace, and is creating a paradise for workers.

The President said: "In the world-wide struggle between the forces of freedom and those of Communism, the security of each nation in the free world is dependent upon the security of all other nations in the free world. The measure of that security in turn is dependent upon the economic strength of all free nations. For without economic strength they cannot support the military establishments that are necessary to deter Communist armed aggression."

The President proposes "gradualness" in the reduction of tariffs, and he pins his argument, as a statesman should, on the matter of National self-interest. For he says: "Increased world trade will help assure our own economic growth and a rising standard of living. If we are to sell our goods abroad, we also must buy abroad." Farmers, for instance, must sell abroad one-fourth to one-third of some basic crops.

Implicit in the President's argument is the recognition that our Allies, if they can't trade with us, will trade where they can, including trade with the Iron Curtain countries. He also wants private capital to invest in foreign countries, which is why he recommends a fourteen percent cut in taxes for American corporations prepared to risk their money by investing abroad.

In an apparent effort to reassure the high tariff elements in Congress, Mr. Eisenhower said he did not favor "radical or sudden tariff reductions." # Whenever the tariff on a given foreign product is reduced, some American industry is damaged or at least subjected to keener competition. The President is contending that the common national good, and the health and well being of the free world alliance should be put ahead of any such damage that might occur.

~~XXXX

Our government has in storage about seven billion dollars' worth of farm commodities acquired through the price support programs. The last Congress authorized the disposal of one billion dollars' worth of this surplus through both sales and gifts. We have sold about four hundred and fifty-three million dollars' worth. We have given away about a hundred and twenty-five million dollars' worth of farm surpluses for famine or other relief needs. We have sold to Western Europe, Yugoslavia, Japan and Pakistan. The commodities sold have been grains, cotton and tobacco, in that order. Of the farm surpluses given away, Yugoslavia leads the list with thirty-two millions. We shipped about seventeen million dollars' worth of Christmas food packages. And we have given food to such Communist countries as Czechoslovakia, East Germany, Hungary and Yugoslavia - areas that have been hit by severe floods.

The President's tariff proposals, and the record of what's been done with our surplus food will be impressive and encouraging to our Allies in the free world, and not altogether without impact even in the Communist world.

It may well be that in an Age dominated by mass production, the distribution abroad of a minute portion of our farm surpluses would be regarded by some as pretty unimportant. But, as Samuel Johnson once said:"There is nothing too little for so little a creature as man. And it is by studying little things that we attain the great art of having as little misery and as much happiness as possible."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

MONDAY, JANUARY 10, 1955
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

The President today asked Congress to take the lead in promoting high levels of trade. He said this will "bring to all the economic strength upon which the freedom and security of all depends." I'd like to review the President's program in a few minutes.

Dag Hammerskjold, the Secretary-General of the United Nations, has completed his mission to Communist China. And a joint communique issued by Hammerskjold and Red China's Chou en Lai says in part:"We feel that these talks have been useful and we hope to be able to continue the contact established in these meetings." The two men say they discussed "questions pertinent to the relaxation of world tension." There was no mention of Hammerskjold's specific effort to gain the release of eleven Americans, and other U.N. personnel, held by the Chinese. An Indian Foreign Ministry spokesman in New Delhi says "from what the communique says" he feels the release of the eleven American flyers is only a matter of time...after further clarification and talks.

The Chinese Communists today carried out their heaviest air attack in five years against the Chinese Nationalists. The target was the Nationalist held Tachen island...200 miles north of Formosa. The Nationalists say 100 Red bombers, protected by fighters, dropped 300 bombs on Tachen in four separate raids. The Nationalists say they shot down two attacking planes and damaged two others. The Nationalists also report: most enemy bombs dropped into the sea...but there was "considerable" civilian casualties...and at least ten houses were destroyed. The Chinese Communists say they destroyed or damaged at least four Nationalist ships and that all their planes returned safely.

And the Communists today broadcast yet another propaganda attack on the United States. Red China accuses us of trying to organize what it calls "a northeast Asia aggressive alliance" consisting of Japan, Korea, and Nationalist China.

In Washington today, Costa Rica called on the Council of the Organization of American States to take immediate action to halt a threatened invasion of Costa Rica from Nicaragua. Costa Rica charges that Nicaragua is training an army of adventurers for such an invasion. Nicaragua says this charge has no basis in fact. And the Council has urged both countries to keep the peace until a full review of the situation can be made on Wednesday.

The Democrats in the Senate today decided on committee assignments. And they placed Independent Senator Morse of Oregon on the foreign relations committee...one of the most desireable to many lawmakers. Morse was also given a seat on the banking and currency committee and permitted to retain his seat on the District of Columbia Committee. Two old-time Senators, Barkley of Kentucky and O'Mahoney of Wyoming were given prize assignments, although both are "freshmen" in this Senate. Barkley was assigned to foreign relations and finance...and O'Mahoney to interior and judiciary. He was once again chairman of both groups.

The President today again sent the same of Judge John Marshal Harlan to the Senate as his candidate to be associate justice of the Supreme Court. And he named Jospeh Finnegan, a New York lawyer, to direct the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service. Finnegan is a Republican.

Chairman Richards of the House Foreign Affairs Committee says the President's promise of a bi-partisan approach to foreign relations has been nothing but "talk". Ridhards says if the Administration means what is says some Democrats would be named to top foreign policy posts.

Senator McClelland who will be the new chairman of the Investigations Sub-committee says this group will give "prompt consideration" to the Peress case. McClelland spoke after Democratic Senator Daniel of Texas introduced a resolution supported by 54 Senators calling for a continued investigation of Communism. Daniel said the Army has waited almost a year to disclose the facts surrounding the promotion and honorable discharge of former Major Peress. He said this has caused "confusion, suspicion and discord."

And the McCarthy subcommittee reported to the Senate that Communists have infiltrated defense plants. Congress was urged to pass a law to remove them.

The Supreme Court today refused to review the conviction of 13 second-string Communist leaders. And later, Judge Irving Kaufman, here in New York, revoked the bail of all 13 and ordered their immediate arrest. They face prison terms ranging from one to three years and fines of from two to six thousand dollars.

The two women members of Congress, Representative Bolton of Ohio and Senator Margaret Chase Smith, of Maine, today introduced a bill to make the rose our national flower. They say we are the only major country in the world without a national flower.

The Atomic Energy Committee has set up a schedule of charges it will make for atomic fuel and other materials it is authorized to lease or sell to private firms.. for peacetime power troduction. The Commission has also set up "fair prices" it will pay for plutonium and Uranium 233 produced in atomic power plants built by private industry.

And the Stock Market continued to advance today. The latest gains have recovered more than three-quarters of the bround lost in the big break last week.

Today the President asked the Democratic Congress for something the last Republican Congress refused...he wants a three-year exension of the law permitting him to reduce our tariffs by fifteen percent ofer a three-year period. He wants these reductions to be "moderate, gradual and repicrocal." Mr. Eisenhower contended that our own self-interests demands that our Allies should be conommically strong; that the under-developed areas must grow economically, or they will be subject to Communist penetration and subversion. And he said, too, that increased world production and trade will help our own standard of living and economic growth here at home.

The President wants more American firms to do more business abroad, and so he recommends that income earned in foreign countries by American corporations shall be taxed at thirty-eight percent instead of the fifty-two per cent that is charged against firms doing business in this country. He wants us to continue sending American experts abroad to share with the under-developed areaas American "know-how."

One of the principal sources of dollars for many foreign countries, particularly in Western Europe is the money spend by American tourists. Now they can bring home five hundred dollars worth of foreign-bought goods without paying any duty. The President wants this reised to one thousand dollars. Also, Mr. Eisenhower wants this country to streamline its whole customs procedure so that foreign goods subject to our tariff may come in without unwarranted delays. He wants this country to join the new international finance corporation which will provide venture captial for under-developed countries. And he wants this country to participate more fully in foreign trade fairs which the Russians have been using with considerable success as a propaganda showcase, trying to convey the impression that Russia is producing goods on a large scale for peace, and is creating a paradise for workers.

The President said: "In the world-wide struggle between the forces of freedom and those of Communism, the security of each nation in the free world is dependent upon the security of all other nations in the free world. The measure of that security in turn is dependent upon the economic strength of all free nations. For without economic strength they cannot support the military establishments that are necessary to deter Communist armed aggression."

The President proposes "gradualness" in the reduction of tariffs, and he pins his argument, as a statesman should, on the matter of national self-interest. For he says: "Increased world trade will help assure our own economic growth and a rising standard of living. If we are to sell our goods abroad, we also must buy abroad." Farmers, for instance, must sell abroad one-fourth to one-third of some basic crops.

Implicit in the President's argument is the recognition that our Allies, if they can't trade with us, will trade where they can, including trade with the Iron Curtain countries. He also wants private capital to invest in foreign countries. He also wants private capital to invest in foreign countries which is why he recommends a fourteen percent cut in taxes for American corporations prepared to risk their money by investing abroad.

In an apparent effort to reassure the high tariff elements in Congress, Mr. Eisenhower said he did not favor "radical or sudden tariff reductions."

Whenever the tariff on a given foreign product is reduced, some American industry is damaged or at least subjected to keener competition. The President is contending that the common national good, and the health ond well being of the free world alliance should be put ahead of any such damage that might occur.

Our government has in storage about seven billion dollars' worth of farm commodities acquired through the price support programs. The last Congress authorized the disposal of one billion dollars's worth of this surplus through both sales and gifts. We have sold about four hundred and fifty-three million dollars' worth. We have given away about a hundred and twenty-five million dollars' worth of farm surpluses for famine or other relief needs. We have sold to Western Europe, Yugoslavia, Japan and Pakistan. The commodities sold have been grains, cotton, and tobacco, in that order. Of the farm surpluses given away, Yugoslavia leads the list with thirty-two millions. We shipped about seventeen million dollars' worth of Christmas food packages. And we have given food to such Communist countries as Czechoslovakia, East Germany, Hungary and Yugoslavia - areas that have been hit by severe floods.

The President's tariff proposals, and the record of what's been done with our surplus food will be impressive and encouraging to our Allies in the free world, and not altogether withput impact even in the Communist world.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a minute with the Word for Today.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: It may well be that in an age dominated by mass production, the distribution abroad of a minute portion of our farm surpluses would be regarded by some as pretty unimportant. But, as Samuel Johnson once said: "There is nothing too little for so little a creature as man. And it is by studying little things that we attain the great art of having as little misery and as much happiness as possible."

Good Night and Good Luck.

Tuesday January 11, 1955

This is the news:

United Nations Secretary General Hammershuld returned to Hong Kong today from Communist China. He had no comment on his mission to secure the release of eleven American airmen now held by the Chinese Reds as "spies." But a Hammershuld aide, here in New York, says the secretary has not failed in his mission..that he has made progress. I'd like to examine the situation in a few minutes.

Chinese Nationalist warplanes last night bombed a Communist-held island 15 miles north of the Tachen islands..and today the Communists returned to attack the Tachens.

And Admiral Radford, the chairman of our [redacted] joint chiefs of staff, back in Washington, told reporters: we should support an allied blockade of Red China "if all other [redacted] measures "fail to bring about" the release of [redacted] Americans held by the Communists. Radford says this would have a great effect on the Communists and "would be the best way to tackle the problem."

The Russians today made it known to Washington that they will soon release, in Berlin, Private William Verdine of [redacted] STARKS, Louisiana, who has been held for nearly six years. (since he was reported absent without leave in Europe in 1949.) Last Saturday the Russians released two Americans who had been imprisoned from five to ten years. And today, in West Berlin, one of them, John H. Noble, said he witnessed a revolt in the Vorkuta slave labor camp in 1953. Noble told reporters: millions of slave laborers in the Soviet Union need "only a spark" to start an open rebellion.. he says the prisoners are restive, have rebelled [redacted] in the past and are likely to do it again. Noble says 100-thousand men were involved in a strike at Vorkuta in 1953.. 110 of them were shot on the spot.. LATER [redacted] another 50 or 60 were executed..and at least 500 were wounded. Noble says the younger people in these camps talk of another war because they believe that's the only way they will be free. Noble also reports..without any firm details..that he thinks some of the Americans shot down in a Navy privateer in the [redacted] Baltic in 1950, may now be in Soviet prison camps.

In Washington today, the Council of the Organization of American States voted to call an extraordinary meeting of American foreign ministers. They will consider Costa Rica's charge that it has been invaded by a force from Nicaragua. Costa Rica's president Jose Figueres said today: the invading forces have penetrated some 40 miles into his country..are now within 30 miles of the Costa Rican capital at San Jose. He says they came in small transport planes and captured an important communications center of 35-hundred inhabitants. But the Nicaraguan Ambassador to Washington says this "internal situation" has nothing to do with Nicaragua..He calls the Costa Rican story "ridiculous." There has been tension between the two countries for months. Cost Rica has charged that Nicaragua has been encouraging dissident Costa Rican elements; and Nicaragua charges Costa Rica tried to engineer the assassination of Nicaraguan President Somoza. Figueres, the president of Cost Rica, has the reputation of running one of the most democratic governments in central America. Costa Rica has appealed to Washington for military assistance.

In Washington, the President today asked Congress for a basic five per cent increase in pay for a half million postal workers..plus a new graduated salary schedule. He also wants an average 5 per cent increase for one million classified civil service workers. Mr. Eisenhower would raise postal rates to pay part of the cost: 394-million dollars a year. The National Federation of Post Office Clerks says the recommendations for postal increases is "so ~~[illegible]~~ small as to be of little real help."

The President's Highway Commission proposes that the government contribute 25 billion dollars toward a strategic network of highways... as part of an overall 10-year plan to spend 101-billions on roads. General Clay, chairman of the commission, says income from the federal gasoline tax of two-cents-a-gallon would more than pay for the federal government's share of the cost.

Senate Republican Leader Knowland said today that the Democrats may find their party's "political wing" "muscling in" to call signals for the legislative program. Majority Leader Johnson of Texas told reporters Knowland had "better get his own house in order" before worrying about the Democrats.

Attorneys for the Securities and Exchange Commission today recommended that the S.E.C. approve the planned financing of the controversial Dixon-Yates power contract.

~~Republican Senator Case of New Jersey made his promised move to try to oust Senator McCarthy from the Government Operations Committee. He was ruled out of order in the Senate Republican Committee on Committees.~~

And John D. Rockefeller, Junior, has set aside a 20-million-dollar fund to "strengthen and develop Protestant theological education in the United States." The fund, in securities, is probably the largest single grant ever made for purposes of religious training.

Edward R. Murrow: January 11, 1955. 7.45 p.m.

Secretary General Hammarskjold flatly said "No comment" to all questions about his mission to Peiping when he arrived at Hong Kong, and no detailed information about it is expected before he reports to United Nations delegations on his return Thursday or Friday. Before he left for Peiping he said he did not expect that the airmen or any other prisoners would be released as an immediate outcome of his visit, and that his primary aim was to get negotiations underway. The Secretary General believes he has succeeded in this primary aim. That is the meaning ascribed to the final sentence of the communique issued at the end of the talks. "We feel" it said, "that these talks have been useful, and we hope to be able to continue the contact established in these meetings." A slightly different way of saying this was used by A U.N. spokesman in countering a report that Mr. Hammarskjold had failed. He said that Mr. Hammarskjold had not failed, but has made progress toward the goal set for him by the General Assembly. His instructions were to "make, by the means most appropriate in his judgment, continuing and unremitting efforts," for the release of the eleven flyers and other U.N. Command personnel still detained. "The talks in Peiping" said the spokesman, "were useful toward this end. They established a basis upon which further progress can be made."

It is recognized in Washington that the continuation of negotiations is not, in itself, going to satisfy those who expected an immediate and dramatic release of the prisoners. But it is also recognized that this was not a realistic expectation. While the Peiping regime has much to gain in good will from releasing the airmen, it has something to lose, too. Its prestige would suffer if it appeared to confess a violation of the armistice.

Those who know the Chinese best, like the Indians, believe Peiping intends to give up the airmen, but not right away. There must be bargaining first. But if it gives them up at a price Washington is willing to pay, the Hammarskjold mission will have been a success. It may take months, but a few months of patience is not too much to ask if the prisoners are released in the end.

The State Department is being carefully silent until it knows all there is to know about the Peiping talks. But the attitude of the Department was reflected in Secretary Dulles's remarks at a New York luncheon today. He said the Hammarskjold mission critically involves issues of humanity and justice, and that the American contribution to the peaceful settlement of these issues is in heeding the biblical injunction to "be slow to anger." This is an exhortation to patience, and if the Secretary General's report justifies it, the Department is sure to counsel patience in even more explicit ways.

The Secretary General's report apparently will be under two headings. He will tell about the discussions of the prisoners, and here the Chinese may have taken up the status of the Chinese students in this country, since negotiations about them began at the time of the Geneva Conference. Then there will be a separate section on what Chou En-Lai had to say about the relaxation of world tensions, as mentioned in the communique. Mr. Hammarskjold did not go to Peiping to discuss this subject. But having gone there to talk about prisoners, he could not refuse to listen to anything Chou En-Lai wanted to say. Had the Chinese linked the return of the prisoners with larger issues, such as recognizing the Communist regime as representing the Chinese people in the United Nations, he hardly could have called the talks "useful."

The fact that the Communists launched their heaviest air attack in five years on Nationalist islands yesterday, is not considered to be necessarily a bad omen for the release of the prisoners. The tendency in Administration circles, is to doubt that the timing of the attack means more than an assurance, particularly in Asia, that the government is not retreating. Peiping gained face to a remarkable extent from the Hammarskjold visit. It did not disclose that he was coming simply to talk about prisoners held in what the U.N. voted to be a violation of the armistice. Chinese people were expected to be impressed by the chief permanent officer of the U.N. going halfway around the world to have a talk with the Chinese Premier. A Canadian journalist who tried to cover the Peiping talks and got no further than Canton, reports that people in that city knew all about the real purpose of the mission and were watching it with much excitement.

Obviously the Communists still may test American intentions by trying to take the coastal islands. But if they have seen in the Hammarskjold visit the possibility of negotiating the major issues in the Far East, they will not now try to take the Islands. If they do try, then we will know they are not trying to avoid trouble.

One great danger in regard to Communist China is the lamentable ignorance of world thinking among the upper ranks of Chinese officials. They have been woefully incapable of appraising American policy correctly. One of the services of the Hammarskjold mission may have been to give convincing assurances about the moderation of the Eisenhower regime, something which Peiping has not believed.

The undertaking of Secretary General Hammerskjold is one requiring both tact and patience. For in ~~international~~ diplomacy, the distance between effort and result is frequently great. But, as Hamilton Mabie once said:"Nothing is lost upon a man who is bent upon growth, who is preparing for his work by keeping eyes, mind and heart open. For often, what he gathers will serve him in unexpected moments in unforeseen ways."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

TUESDAY, JANUARY 11, 1955
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

The United Nations Secretary General Hammerskjold returned to Hong Kong today from Communist China. He had no comment on his mission to secure the release of eleven American airmen now held by the Chinese Reds as "spies". But a Hammerskjold aide, here in New York, says the secretary has not failed in his mission...that he has made progress. I'd like to examine the situation in a few minutes.

Chinese Nationalist warplanes last night bombed a Communist-held island 15 miles north of the Tachen islands...and today the Communists returned to attack the Tachens.

And Admiral Radford, the chairman of our joint chiefs of staff, back in Washington, told reporters: we should support an allied blockade of Red China "if all other" measures "fail to bring about" the release of Americans held by the Communists. Radford says this would have a great effect on the Communists and "would be the best way to tackle the problem."

The Russians today made it known to Washington that they will soon release, in Berlin, Private William Verdine of Starks, Louisiana, who has been held for nearly six years...since he was reported absent-without leave in Europe in 1949. Last Saturday the Russians released two Americans who had been imprisoned from five to ten years. And today, in West Berlin, one of them, John H. Noble, said he witnessed a revolt in the Vorkuta slave labor camp in 1953. Noble told reporters: millions of slave laborers in the Soviet Union need "only a spark" to start an open rebellion...he says the prisoners are restive, have rebelled in the past and are likely to do it again. Noble says 100-thousand men were involved in a strike at Vorkuta in 1953...110 of them sere shot on the spot...Later another 50 or 60 were executed...and at least 500 were wounded. Noble says the younger people in these camps talk of another war because they believe that's the only way they will be free. Noble also reports...without any firm details...that he thinks some of the Americans shot down in a Navy privateer in the Baltic in 1950, may now be in Soviet prison camps.

In Washington today, the Council of the Organization of American States voted to call an extraordinary meeting of American foreign ministers. They will consider Costa Rica's charge that it has been invaded be a force from Nicaragua. Costa Rica's president Jose Figueras said today: the invading forces have penetrated some 40 miles into his country...are now within 30 miles of the Costa Rican capital at San Jose. He says they came in small transport planes and captured an important communications center of 35-hundred inhabitants. But the Nicaraguan Ambassador to Washington says this "internal situation" has nothing to do with Nicaragua...He calls the Costa Rican story "ridiculous." There has been tension between the two countries for months. Costa Rica has charged thatNicaragua has been encouraging dissident Costa Rican elements; and Nicaragua charges Costa Rica tried to engineer the assassination of Nicaraguan President Somoza. Figueras, the President of Costa Rica, has the reputation of running one of the most democratic governments in Central America. Costa Rica has appealed to Washington for military assistance.

In Washington, the President today asked Congress for a basic five per cent increase in pay for half a million postal workers...plus a new graduated salary schedule. He also wants an averave 5 per cent increase for one million classified civil service workers. Mr. Eisenhower would raise postal rates to pay part of the cost: 384 million dollars a year. The National Federation

Post Office Clerks says the recommendations for postal increases is "so small as to be of little real help."

The President's Highway Commission proposes that the government contribute 25 billion dollars toward a strategic network of highways...as part of an overall 10-year plan to spend 101-billions on roads. General Clay, chairman of the commission, says income from the federal gasoline tax of two-cents-a-gallon would more than pay for the federal government's share of the cost.

Senate Republican Leader Knowland said today that the Democrats may find their party's political wing "muscling in" to call signals for the legislative program. Majority Leader Johnson of Texas told reporters Knowland had "better get his own house in order" before worrying about the Democrats.

Attorneys for the Securities and Exchange Commission today recommended that the S.E.C. approve the planned financing of the controversial Dixon-Yates power contract.

And John D. Rockerfeller, Junior, sas set aside a 20-million dollar fund to "strengthen and develop Protestant theological education in the United States." The fund, in securities, is probably the largest single grant ever made for purposes of religious training.

Secretary General Hammerskjold flatly said "No comment" to all questions about his mission to Peiping when he arrived at Hong Kong, and no detailed information about it is expected before he reports to United Nations delegations on his return Thursday of Friday. Before he left for Peiping, he said he did not expect that the airmen or any other prisoners would be released as an immediate outcome of his visit, and that his primary aim was to get negotiations underway. The Secretary General believes he has succeeded in his primary aim. That is the meaning ascribed to the final sentence of the communique issued at the end of the talks. "We feel" is said, "that these talks have been useful, and we hope to be able to continue toe contact established in these meetings." A slightly different way of saying this was used by a U.N. spokesman encountering a report that Mr. Hammarskjold had failed. He said that Mr. Hammarskjold had not failed, but has made progress toward the goal set for him by the General Assembly. His instructions were to "make by the means most appropriate in his judgement, continuing and unremitting efforts," for the release of the eleven flyers and other U.N. Command personnel still detained. "The talks in Peiping" said the spokesman, "were useful toward this end. They established a basis upon which further progress can be made."

It is recognized in Washington that the continuation of negotiations is not, in itself, going to satisfy those who expected an immediate and dramatic release of the prisoners. But it is also recognized that this was not a realistic expectation. While the Peiping regime has much to gain in good will from releasing the airmen, it has something to lose, too. Its prestige would suffer if it appeared to confess a violation of the armistice.

Those who know the Chisese best, like the Indians, believe Peiping intends to give up the airmen, but not right sway. There must be bargaining first. But if it gives them up at a price Washington is willing to pay, the Hammarskjold mission will have been a success. It may take months, but a few months of patience is not too much to ask if the prisoners are released in the end.

The State Department is being carefully silent until it knows all there is to know about the Peiping talks. But the attitude of the Department was reflected in Secretary Dulles's remarks at a New York luncheon today. He said the Hammarskjold mission critically involves issues of humanity and justice, and thet the American contribution to the peaceful settlement of these issues is in heeding the biblical injunction to "be slow to anger." This is an exortation to patience, and if the Secretary General's report justifies it, the Department is sure to counsel patience in even more explicit ways.

The Secretary General's report apparently will be under two headings. He will tell about the disucssions of the prisoners, and here the Chinese may have taken up the status of the Chinese students in this country, since negotiations about them began at the time of the Geneva Conference. Then there will be a spearate section on what Chou En-Lai had to say about the relaxation of world tensions, as mentioned in the communique. Mr. Hammarskjold did not go to Peiping to discuss this subject. But having gone there to talk about prisoners, he could not refuse to listen to anything Chou En-Lai wanted to say. Had the Chinese linked the return of the prisoners with larger issues, such as recognizing the Communist regime as representing the Chinese people in the United Nations, he hardly could have called the talks "useful."

The fact that the Communists launched their heaviest air attack in five years on Nationalist islands yesterday is not conisdered to be necessarily a bad omen for the release of the prisoners. The tendency in Amdinistration circles is to doubt that the timing of the attack means more than an assurance particularly in Asia, that the government is not retreating. Peiping gained face to a remarkable extent from the Hammerskjold visit. It did not disclose that he has coming simply to talk about prisoners held in what he U.N. voted to be a violation of the armistice. Chinese people were expected to be impressed by the chief permanent officer of the U.N. going halfway around the world to have a talk with the Chinese Premier. A Canadian journalist who tried to cover the Peiping talks and got no further than Canton, reports that people in that city knew all about the real purpose of the mission and were watching it with much excitement.

Obviously the Communists still may test American intentions by trying to take the coastal isalnds. But if they have seen in the Hammarskjold visit the possibility of negotiationg the major issues in the Far East, they will not now try to take the Islands. If they do try, then we will know they are not trying to avoid trouble.

One great danger in regard to Communist China is the lamentable ignorance of world thinking among the upper ranks of Chinese officials. They have been woefully incapable of appraising American policy correctly. One of the services of the Hammarskjold mission may have been to give convincing ausurances about the moderation of the Eisenhower regime, something which Peiping has not believed.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a moment with the Word for Today. But first, a word from Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: The underatking of Secretary Genral Hammerskjold is one requiring both tact and patience. For in diplomacy, the distance between effort and results is frequently great. But as Hamilton Mabie once said: "Nothing is lost upon a man who is bent upon growth, who is preparing for his work by keeping his eyes, mind and heart open. For often, what he gathers will serve him in an unexpected moments in unforseen ways."

Good Night and Good Luck.

Wednesday, January 12, 1955

This is the news:

The government of Costa Rica charges that invading planes have strafed ten Costa Rican towns. The government says some of the raiders were Venezuelan planes. And it charges that "a mercenary army" from Nicaragua has established invasion headquarters inside Costa Rica..near the Pan American highway..leading to San Jose, the Cost Rican capital. The government has suspended (CONSTITUTIONAL) guarantees for thirty days.. and approved a 5-million dollar appropriation to mount defenses against the (INSURGENTS.) Reports on fighting are still vague. There is one dispatch that tells of government troops attacking at Villa Quesada.. captured by the invaders yesterday. We're told several rebels were killed, twenty captured. Two soldiers were wounded.

A special commission of the Organization of American States is now in Costa Rica. And the organization, meeting in Washington today, has adjourned until it can make telephonic contact with its commission to find out what's what.

The President told reporters today he'll have no comment on the situation in Costa Rica until the commission completes its investigation and makes its report.

Mr. Eisenhower devoted some time at his news conference to the case of Wolf Ladejinsky the government employe who who was approved for security by the State department, then fired by the Agricultural department from his job as agricultural attache in Tokyo, then hired by the Foreign Operations Administration. The President said that at one point Secretary of Agriculture Benson SHOWED him a summary of the Ladejinsky case. Mr. Eisenhower said this was enough to "scare him"..but he hadn't studied the other side of the case. He learned later that Ladejinsky had written a book attacking Communists. The President indicated this had changed his feelings in the matter. Mr. Eisenhower made it very clear that Harold Stassen, the foreign operations administrator, would have to bear responsibility for hiring Ladejinsky. He said the whole case was an example of officials reaching conflicting decisions...of honest men coming up with different answers. The President said he has formed no judgement on Ladejinsky's case.

Mr. Eisenhower also told reporters, IN ANSWER to questions, that he sees no need for any specific steps to be taken to improve the government's security program. He doesn't see how any appointment of a special commission of private citizens would be helpful in improving the program. And he said the Ladejinsky case created a situation that certainly isn't easy to explain.

Reporters got around to politics. They pointed out that perhaps the Republican decision to hold a 1956 convention later than usual indicated that the President was thinking of running for re-election. Mr. Eisenhower said: bosh. He also said he hopes he'll never fail to respond to a cally to duty. But, he asked the newsmen, who d[redacted] define's an individual's duty in such a situation.

The questioning also got around to Vice President Nixon and Democratic charges that during the recent political campaign Nixon had used unfair smear tactics. The President said: Nixon had assured him that he had never condemned the entire Democratic party. The President said he believes in Nixon's loyalty and patriotism. He would be loathe to admit that Nixon was guilty of any campaign indiscretion.

Tonight, Democratic National Chairman Butler invited Republican Chairman Hall to visit what Butler calls "a chamber of smears" i[redacted] designed to prove that Nixon bore "false witness" against the Democrats. ~~Butler said Nixon set the tone for a Republican campaign designed to "[illegible] the Democratic party as a party of treason and Communism."~~ Chairman Hall said he'd be glad to visit Butler when Butler "is engaged in a more constructive matter than participating in a highly-organized and untruthful campaign of personal abuse and vilification.

Republican Representative Keating of New York says he's going to introduce a resolution to invite Chief Justice Warren to address a joint session of Congress on the courts. But CHAIRMAN Cellar of the House Judiciary committee says this would be a "most miserable thing to do" because "political motives" would be imputed to Justice Warren.

Independent Senator Morse of Oregon told my colleage Douglas Edwards in a television interview tonight that "there is a strong ~~possibility~~ probability" that Morse will run for re-election in 1956 on the Democratic ticket in Oregon. ~~Morse says Oregon's Democratic leaders have assured him they would welcome him as a candidate on their ticket.~~

~~Representative Cole, the retiring chairman of the Congressional atomic energy committee, predicts the development in the next ten years~~

~~of the "absolute weapon"...an intercontinental~~ atomic missile..against which he says ~~there is no defense~~ foreseeable defense.

The State Department says it has received a letter purporting to be from Noel Field, saying that he and his wife have requested asylum in Communist Hungary.

A personal aide to United Nations Secretary General Hammershuld said today the families of the eleven flyers now in Chinese Communist jails "must have a little more patience." And the British foreign office endorses ~~endorses~~ a U.N. official's statement that Hammershuld's mission to Peiping had not failed.

Italy and France today urged the western allies to take the initiative in a move to lessen international tensions.

And in northern Kentucky, 15 persons were killed when a TWA plane and a privately owned D C-3 collided in the air and crashed a half mile apart. There is no explanation yet of just how this happened.

Edward R. Murrow: January 12, 1955. 7.45 p.m.

A private memorandum circulated by the Democratic National Committee to Democratic members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee questions the wisdom of ratifying the mutual defense treaty with Nationalist China. It takes pains to affirm the vital importance to the United States of Formosa and the Pescadores remaining in friendly hands. It also endorses a policy of defending the territory against unprovoked attack.

Coming so early in the session, the memo looks like a poor start on a bi-partisan foreign policy. Inasmuch as Assistant Secretary Walter Robinson went to Georgia to show the draft treaty to Senator Walter George, now chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, and was told the Senator had no objection to it, the fault is not with the Administration. It turns out that the Democratic National Committee did not know about the consultation with Senator George when it asked a group of Democratic foreign affairs experts to study the treaty and report on it.

The lapse in bi-partisanship is a secondary consideration, for it must be said that the memorandum throws light on an issue the American public needs to examine. This is whether it helps or hurts American interests to affirm in a treaty that Formosa is part of China. That, in effect, is what the treaty does, and that is what the memorandum considers unwise.

It is clear that two big issues are involved. The Allies in the Cairo declaration during the war promised to take Formosa from Japan and restore it to the possession of China. At the end of the war Chiang Kai Shek was authorized to accept the surrender of the Japanese on Formosa. That did not constitute a return of the territory to China, though it may have looked like it. The British accepted the surrender of the Japanese in Indochina, and did not acquire sovereignty by doing so.

Japan went through the formal renunciation of sovereignty over Formosa in the San Francisco treaty. So half of the Cairo promise was kept. But the Japanese peace treaty did not specify to whom Japan was yielding the sovereignty. The United States wanted the treaty to name Nationalist China, so that the matter would be settled all around when the treaty was ratified. But Britain had recognized Communist China, and would not have supported the Japanese peace treaty if Formosa was legally given to the Nationalists.

One of the strongest claims of Communist China to Formosa is the Cairo agreement. The Communists say that the United States, Britain and the Soviet Union promised to make it part of China, and they must keep their promise. Now the United States can say it is keeping the promise by recognizing Formosa as part of the Republic of China. Neither Britain nor the Soviet Union would agree to that. And it may be asked - as the Democratic Committee memorandum asks - if this action serves our interests. If we recognize Formosa as part of the Republic of China, we recognize that the conflict between Chinese Communists and Nationalists is a civil war. And if it is a civil war it is no business of outsiders. Even the treaty becomes confusing, for we promise to aid the Chinese on Formosa in case of attack, to which the Communists can retort that we are interfering in China's domestic affairs. A further consequence of the treaty is that if Formosa is recognized as part of the Republic of China we are recognizing, by implication, that the Republic of China has rights on the mainland. And though the treaty stipulates that we are not bound to aid the Nationalists in other territories without prior consultation, this is not an open commitment against helping a Nationalist campaign against the mainland. We are letting everyone understand that actually we are not backing Chiang Kai Shek against the mainland any more, and have tied a leash on him again. But the Communists don't believe this and, it can be said, neither do all the spokesmen of the Chiang regime. It might better be something about which nobody can have any doubts.

The Democratic memorandum points out that the day may come when we want Formosa and the Pescadores to enjoy a new status. That is, there could be two Chinas; Communist China representing the Chinese of the mainland; and Formosa, a small but sovereign state. Then a Communist attack on Formosa would be an aggression and would concern all, including the nations that have recognized the Peiping regime. It may be highly unlikely that the United Nations would defend Formosa against an aggression so long as the Soviet Union has a veto in the Security Council. But we are going to do it. And it is just as well that the legal position should be clear, and that our friends + Enemies understand what we are doing.

What ~~would~~ could be even more desirable is that the issue should never come to a showdown. If the Chiang regime gave up its claims to the mainland, and we had made it clear that we do not sponsor such claims, a cease-fire in the Formosa straits might become possible. Most United Nations members would probably support this, including those who recognize Communist China.

Nothing would be more politically expedient than to resolve successfully the situation which now exists in the Formosa straits. It may be true, as Walter Landor once remarked, that in diplomacy we often "talk on principle and act on interest." But even if this is so, there is no escaping this conclusion by Thoreau:"The cost of a thing, he said, is the amount of life which is required to be exchanged for it - immediately or in the long run."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

12

Edward R. Murrow: January 13, 1955. 7.45 p.m.

President Somoza has, as you probably know, challenged President Figueres of Costa Rica to a duel. He suggests that the two men meet at the frontier and settle the dispute with pistols. The President of Costa Rica declines the challenge of the President of Nicaragua, saying he's crazier than a goat in the mid-summer sun. It appears to this reporter that the code of duelling, long frowned upon by judicial, ecclesiastical and just plain members of the public, has in this case been violated. Traditionally the party challenged should have the choice of weapons; but in this case Somoza the challenger chose pistols. He once had some training with the United States Marine Corps, and this weapon would presumably give him an advantage over President Figueres, who was trained as an engineer, and who as the challenged party should have been allowed to chose the weapons. He might conceivably have chosen shovels or dry sand at twenty paces in a high cross-wind, with no rushing in.

However, in this uncertain and intolerant age, some comfort may be drawn from the fact that pistols were suggested. There is nothing in the fragmentary despatches received to indicate that either President contemplated a duel at close range with handy hydrogen or atomic weapons.

There has been bad blood between the two men for many years, and there ample reason in the tradition of the duelling code for an encounter to occur. Historically duels are difficult and tedious to arrange. Back in the fifteen hundreds, Francis the First of France and Charles the Fifth of Spain challenged each other to single combat. They indulged in indecent and scurrilous language, but they never actually met on the field. But the mutual bad manners and insults, and the prospect of a duel was apparently good for the duelling business, for during ten years of the reign of Henry the Fourth in France it is estimated that six thousand persons fell in duels.

The generally accepted definition of a duel is that it is a pre-arranged encounter between two persons, with deadly weapons, in accordance with conventional rules, with the object of voiding a personal quarrel, or of deciding a point of honor. Duels in this modern sense were not known to the ancient world, and came into full flower during the fuedal age of Europe, although there are records of earlier so-called judicial duels. The Normans probably carried the practise over to England, where it flourished during the reign of George the Third, involving such names as Fox, Pitt, Canning, Castlereagh and the Dukes of York and Richmond. The first duel took place in this country in 1621; that was in Plymouth. It was between two serving men, and I don't know who won it. Later on, Button Gwynnet, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence, was killed in a duel with General Macintosh, in 1777. Of course the most famous duel in our history was the one between Alexander Hamilton and Aaron Burr in 1804, when Hamilton was killed.

Some will contend that single combats in which such men as Hector, Achilles and Horatio engaged were actually duels, but they weren't. They were merely incidents in national wars. Duels as we know them or rather as we don't know them - because if you kill a man in a duel now it's murder - were not common before the Sixteenth Century.

The only duels this reporter has witnessed, aside from those between aircraft, cannon and tanks, were student duels in Germany in the early thirties, which were about as fine a bit of stolid, unmoving, limited butchery as could be found at that time.

As of tonight it appears that there will be no duel on the border between Costa Rica and Nicaragua. Thus the law common to much of the Western World, the law forbidding duelling, will be observed. We have no way of knowing how handy President Figueres is with a pistol. President Somoza is apparently confident of his ability, for he chose the weapon although under the rules he was not entitled to do so. Still, the very fact that pistols were mentioned must, I suggest,be regarded as encouraging. Presumably both men would have had a chance. Certainly more lethal and decisive weapons are available to both. The pistol is a limited weapon. In this case two presidents were involved. The world scene is made up of challenge and counter-challenge in a situation where there is no code for that kind of duelling, and where the weapons may soon become absolute. Perhaps after all there is some significance, might be even hope, in this small duel with pistols that didn't come off.

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 12, 1955
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

The government of Costa Rica charges that invading planes have strafed ten Costa Rican towns. The government says some of the raiders were Venezuelan planes. And it charges that "a mercenary army" from Nicaragua has established invasion headquarters inside Costa Rica ...near the Pan American highway...leading from San Jose, the Costa Rican capital. The government has suspended constitutional guarantees for thirty days...and approved a 5-million dollar appropriation to mount defenses against the insurgents. Reports on fighting are still vague. There is one dispatch that tells of governemtn troops attacknng at Villa Quesada. Captured by the invaders yesterday. We're told several rebels were killed, twenty captured. Two soldiers were wounded.

A special commission of the Organization of American States is now in Costa Rica. And the organization, meeting in Washington today, has adjourned until it can make telephonic contact with its commission to find out what's what.

The President told reporters today he'll have no comment on the situation in Costa Rica until the commission completes its investigation and makes its report.

Mr. Eisenhower devoted time at his news conference to the case of Wolf Ladejinsky the government employee who was approved for security by the State department, then fired th the Agricultural Department from his job as agricultural attache in Tokyo, then hired by the Foreign Operations Administration. The President said that at one point Secretary of Agriculture Benson showed him a summary of the Ladejinksy case. Mr. Eisenhower said this was enough to "scare him"... but he hadn't studied the other side of the case. He learned later that Ladejinsky has written a book attacking Communists. The President incicated this had changed his feelings in the matter. Mr. Eisenhower made it very clear that Harold Stassen, the foreign operations administrator, would have to bear responsibility for hiring Ladejinsky. He said the whole case was an example of officials reaching conflicting decisions... of honest men coming up with different answers. The President said he has formed no judgement on the Ladejinsky case.

Mr. Eisenhower also told reporters , in answer to questions, that he sees no need for any specific steps to be taken to improve the government's security program. He doesn't see how any appointment of a special commission of private citizens would be helpful in improving the program. And he said the Ladejinsky case created a situation that certainly isn't easy to explain.

Reporters got around to politics. They pointed out that perhaps the Republican decision to hold a 1956 convention later than usual indicated that the President was thinking of running for re-election. Mr. Eisenhower said: bosh. He also said he hopes he'll never fail to respond to a call to duty. But, he asked the newsmen, who define's an individual's duty in such a situation.

The Questioning also got around to Vice President Nixon and Democratic charges that during the recent political campaign Nixon has used unfair smear tactics. The President said: Nixon had assured him that he had never condemned the entire Democratic party. The President said he believes in Nixon's loyalty and patriotism. He would be "loathe to admit" that Nixon was guilty of any campaign indiscretion.

Tonight, Democratic National Chairman Butler invited Republican Chairman Hall to visit what Butler calls "a chamber of smears"...designed to prove that Nison bore "false witness" against the Democrats. Chairman Hall said he'd be glad to visit Butler when Butler "is engaged in a more constructive matter than participating in a highly - organized and untruthful campaign of personal abuse and vilification.

Republican Representative Keating of New York says he's going to introduce a resolution to invite Chief Justice Warren to address a joint session of Congress on the courts. But chairman Cellar of the House Judiciary Committee says this would be a "most miserable thing to do" because "political motives" would be imputed to Justice Warren.

Independent Senator Morse of Oregon told my colleague Douglas Edwards in a television inverview tonight that "there is a strong probability" that Morse will run for re-election in 1956 in the Democratic ticket in Oregon.

The State Department says it has received a letter purporting to be from Noel Field, saying that he and his wife have requested asylum in Communist Hungary.

A personal aide to United Nations Secretary General Hammerskjold said today the families of the eleven flyers now in Chinese Communist hands "must have a little more patience." And the British Foreign Office endorses a U.N. official's statement that Hammerskjold's mission to Peiping had not failed.

Italy and France today urged the western allies to take the initiative in a move to lesson international tensions.

And in northern Kentucky, 15 persons were killed when a TWA plane and a privately owned DC-3 collided in the air and crashed a half mile apart. There is no explanation yet of just how this happened.

A private memorandum circulated by the Democratic National Committee to a Democratic members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee questions the wisdom of ratifying the mutual defense treaty with Nationalist China.

It takes pains to affirm the vital importance to the United States of Formosa and the Pescadores remaining in friendly hands. It also endorses a policy of defending the territory against unprovoked attack.

Coming so early in the session, the memo looks like a poor start on a bi partisan foreign policy. Inasmuch as Assistant Secretary Walter Robinson went to Georgia. to show the draft treaty to Senator Walter George, now chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, and was told the Senator had ho objections to it, the fault is not with the Administration. It turns out that the Democratic National Committee did not know about the consultation with Senator George when it asked a group of Democratic foreign affairs experts to study the treaty and report on it.

The lapse in bi-partisanship is a secondary consideration, for it must be said that the memorandum throws light on an issue the American public needs to examine. This is whether it helps or hurts American interests to affirm in a treaty that Formosa is part of China. That, in effect is what the treaty does, and that is what the memoradumm considers unwise.

It is clear that two big issues are involved. The Allies in the Cairo declaration during the war promised to take Formosa from Japan and restore it to the possession of China. At the end of the war Chiang Kai Shek was authorized to accept the surrender of the Japanese on Formosa. That did non constitute a return of the territory to China, though it may have looked like it. The British accepted the surrender of the Japanese in Indochina, and did not acquire soverignty by doing so.

Japan went through the formal renunciation of sorerignty over Formosa. in the San Francisco treaty. So half of the Cairo promise was kept. But the Japanese peace treaty did not specify to whom Japan was yielding the sovereignty. The United States wanted the treaty to name Nationalist China, so that the matter would be settled all around when the treaty was ratified. But Britain had recognized Communist China, and would not have supported the Japanese peace treaty if Formosa was legally given to the Nationalists.

One of the strongest claims of Communist China to Formosa is the Cairo agreement. The Communists say that the United States, Britain and the Soviet Union poroised to make it a part of China, and they must keep their promise. Now the United States can say it is keeping the promise by recognizing Formosa as part of the Republic of China. Neither Britain nor the Soviet Union would agree to that. And it may be asked - as the Democratic Committee memorandum asks - if this action serves our interests. If we recognize Formosa as part of the Republic of China, we recognize that the conflict between Chinese Communists and Nationalists is a civil war. And if it is a civil war it is no business of outisders. Even the treaty becomes confusing for we promise to aid the Chinese of Formosa in cast of attack, to which the Communists can retort that we are interfering in China's domestic affairs. A further consequence of the treaty is that if Formosa is recongized as part of the Republic of China we are recognizing, by implication, that the Republic of China has rights on the mainland. And though the treaty stipulates that we are not bound to aid the Nationalists in other territories without prior consultation, this is not an open comittment against helping a Nationalist campaign against the mainland. We are letting everyone understand that actually we are not backing Chiang Kai Shek against the mainland any more, and have tied a leash on him again. But the Communists don't believe this and, it can be said, neither do all the spokesmen of the Chiang regime. It might better be something about which nobody can have any doubts.

The Democratic memorandum points out that the day may come when we want Formosa and the Pescadores to enjoy a new status. That is, where could be two Chinas; Communist China, representing the Chinese of the mainland; and Formosa, a small but soverign state. Then a Communist attack on Formosa would be an aggression and would concern all, including the nations that have recognized the Peiping regime. It may be highly unlikely that the United Nations would defend Formosa against an aggression so long as the Soviet Union has a veto in the Security Council. But we are going to do it. And it is just as well that the legal position should be clear, and that our friends and enemies understand what we are doing.

What could be even more desireable is that the issue should never come to a showdown. If the Chiang regime gave up its claims to the mainland, and we mad made it clear that we do not sponsor such claims, a cease-fire in the Formosa straits might become possible. Most United Nations members would probably support this, including those who recognize Communist China.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a minute with the Word for Today.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: Nothing would be more politically expedient than to resolve the situation which now exists in the Formosa Straits. It may be true, as Walter Landor once remarked, that in diplomacy we often "talk on principle and act on interest." But even if this is so, there is no escaping this conclusion by Thoreau:"The cost of a thing," he said, is the amount of life which is required to be exchanged for it - immediately or in the long run."

Good Night and Good Luck.

Thursday January 13, 1954

This is the news:

Dag Hammershuld said tonight: my talks in Communist China were "definitely useful." The secretary-general of the United Nations, (returned) to New York after his trip to Peiping, to try to get the release of eleven American airmen held prisoners by the Chinese. He told reporters: "My visit was the first stage, in my effort to achieve the release of the 11 flyers, and other United Nations Command personnel still detained. We hope to be able to continue our contacts. The door that has been opened can be kept open, given restraint on all sides."

In Washington today, Secretary of State Dulles met for an hour and a half with the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. Chairman George later told reporters: Mr. Dulles told the committee, we face very real dangers.."there are places where the margin of security is very thin"... it is indispensable to have the closest kind of co-operation with the committee..and Mr. Dulles pledged to do all in his power, to co-operate with the committee, and see that its members are informed about things while they are still in the formative stage. George also said that Mr. Dulles indicated the situation in Indo-China, seems to be more favorable than it has been.

The President today asked Congress to extend the draft law for four years..to grant pay increases to "career" servicemen and to create a powerful military reserve capable of dealing with any aggressor "so criminally unwise as to attempt an atomic attack. Here's a summary of the details suggested to Congress: the draft law would continue for all men 18 and a half through 25. They would be called for two years of active military duty....The special "doctor draft" law would be extended for two years. There would be two groups of military reserves: one would be organized and ready for "immediate" mobilization; the other would consist of men with prior service, non-organized, and subject to recall only in the event of general mobilization. The President suggests a new training plan for youngsters 17 and 18. They would serve for six months and then go into active reserves for nine and a half years. --or be drafted into the active forces. The President's plan for a pay increase would apply to men serving longer than the minimum active duty time. (three years for officers and two years for enlisted men.) These pay increases would range up to more than 20 per cent. Mr. Eisenhower also wants special allowances for men forced to leave their families..and for better medical care and housing for service families.

The President today told the Association of American Colleges that education is "a really cementing force" for the promotion of understanding in the world. He said the great masses of people are never going to grow closer together unless there is a greater understanding among nations.

The House Appropriations Committee today criticized the Commodity Credit Corporation for failing to offer its surplus farm commodities for sale competitively in world markets.

Federal Housing officials report that they may soon be able to report that four builders who have made "windfall PROFITS" have returned over one million dollars to the government. As a result of these settlements, some tenants of government-insured housing may have their rents reduced.

Scott McLeod, the head of the President's refugee relief program, said today that he doubts that the program can reach its goal of 214-thousand above-quota immigrants by the end of 1956. McCleod says his chief problem has been to get assurance from American sponsors that refugees will be employed without putting Americans out of work; that they'll be housed without displacing anybody and that they will not become public burdens. McCleod says he favors changing the law to do away with the job and housing assurance requirements in cases of relatives of people already in this country. Since the law went into effect in August of 1953, 13-thousand refugees have been admitted.

Ambassador to Italy Clare Booth Luce said today that "Communism remains the major political problem in Italy" despite improved economic conditions and vastly increased industrial output. Mrs. Luce says Italy has boosted industrial production 83 per cent over pre-war years and improved living standards. But there is still "widespread economic discontent" which the Communists use in their attacks on the SELBA government.

French Premier Mendez-France told reporters in Rome today that the West should call a four-power conference with Russia as soon as the ratification of the Western European Union is completed.

And the Russians tonight handed a series of new notes to representatives of the west European nations in Moscow. Again Moscow is protesting the intention of the western allies to re-arm West Germany.

The United Press reports from Washington that Nationalist China has promised not to try to reconquer the Communist-held mainland without first getting approval from Washington. Today, Nationalist bombers again attacked the Tienao islands 13 and 15 miles north of the [redacted] Nationalist-held Tachen islands.

In Costa Rica, President Jose Figueres said rebel forces who have attacked his government are now fleeing toward Nicaragua and hold only two Costa Rican towns..both near the Nicaraguan border. [redacted]. And the government announces that in three days of fighting: two rebels have been killed and "several wounded." One government soldier was killed, two wounded. A commission from the Organization of American States has started its investigation of the [redacted] disagreement. And in the Canal Zone seven of our naval patrol planes are standing by to make observation flights over Costa Rica..when ordered to do so.

Edward R. Murrow: January 13, 1955. 7.45 p.m.

President Somoza has, as you probably know, challenged President Figueres of Costa Rica to a duel. He suggests that the two men meet at the frontier and settle the dispute with pistols. The President of Costa Rica declines the challenge of the President of Nicaragua, saying he's "crazier than a goat in the mid-summer sun." It appears to this reporter that the code of duelling, long frowned upon by judicial, ecclesiastical and just plain members of the public, has in this instance been violated. Traditionally the party challenged should have the choice of weapons; but in this case Somoza the challenger chose pistols. He once had some training with the United States Marine Corps, and this weapon would presumably give him an advantage over President Figueres, who was trained as an engineer, and who as the challenged party should have been allowed to chose the weapons. He might conceivably have chosen shovels or dry sand at twenty paces in a high cross-wind, with no rushing in.

However, in this uncertain and intolerant age, some comfort may be drawn from the fact that pistols were suggested. There is nothing in the fragmentary despatches received to indicate that either President contemplated a duel at close range with handy hydrogen or atomic weapons.

There has been bad blood between the two men for many years, and there is ample reason in the tradition of the duelling code for an encounter to occur. Historically duels are difficult and tedious to arrange. Back in the fifteen hundreds, Francis the First of France and Charles the Fifth of Spain challenged each other to single combat. They indulged in indecent and scurrilous language, but they never actually met on the field. But the mutual bad manners and insults, and the prospect of a duel was apparently good for the duelling business, for during ten years of the reign of Henry the Fourth in France it is estimated that six thousand persons fell in duels.

The generally accepted definition of a duel is that it is a pre-arranged encounter between two persons, with deadly weapons, in accordance with conventional rules, with the object of voiding a personal quarrel, or of deciding a point of honor. Duels in this modern sense were not known to the ancient world, and came into full flower during the fuedal age of Europe, although there are records of earlier so-called judicial duels. The Normans probably carried the practise over to England, where it flourished during the reign of George the Third, involving such names as Fox, Pitt, Canning, Castlereagh and the Dukes of York and Richmond. The first duel took place in this country in 1621; that was in Plymouth. It was between two serving men, and I don't know who won it. Later on, Button Gwynnet, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence, was killed in a duel with General Macintosh, in 1777. Of course the most famous duel in our history was the one between Alexander Hamilton and Aaron Burr in 1804, when Hamilton was killed.

Some will contend that single combats in which such men as Hector, Achilles and Horatio engaged were actually duels, but they weren't. They were merely "incidents" in national wars. Duels as we know them or rather as we don't know them - because if you kill a man in a duel now it's murder - were not common before the Sixteenth Century.

The only duels this reporter has witnessed, aside from those between aircraft, cannon and tanks, were student duels in Germany in the early thirties, which were about as fine a bit of stolid, unmoving, limited butchery as could be found at that time.

As of tonight it appears that there will be no duel on the border between Costa Rica and Nicaragua. Thus the law common to much of the Western World, the law forbidding duelling, will be observed. We have no way of knowing how handy President Figueres is with a pistol. President Somoza is apparently confident of his ability, for he chose the weapon although under the rules he was not entitled to do so. Still, the very fact that pistols were mentioned must, I suggest,be regarded as encouraging. Presumably both men would have had a chance. Certainly more lethal and decisive weapons are available to both. The pistol is a limited weapon." In this case two presidents were involved. The world scene is made up of challenge and counter-challenge in a situation where there is no code for that kind of duelling, and where the weapons may soon become absolute. Perhaps after all there is some significance, might be even hope, in this small duel with pistols that didn't come off. Maybe Nations will act like the two Presidents.

Anyone who has experienced war...whether as a soldier or civilian ... would be the first to appreciate what Martin Luther meant when he said:" Cannons and fire-arms are cruel and damnable machines. I believe them to have been the direct suggestion of the devil. If Adam had seen in a vision the horrible instruments his children were to invent, he would have died of grief."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

Friday, January 14, 1955

This is the news:

The Soviet Union says it is ready to share with the world its atomic industrial knowledge. And Chairman Straws of the Atomic Energy Commission says that if the offer is made in good faith..it would go "part of the way" toward meeting the President's year-old atoms-for-peace plan.

The Russian Foreign Ministry announced today that it has "piled up" certain information since last summer when it started an atom-driven industrial power plant. Moscow says it is ready to turn this experience over to a world atomic energy congress that's scheduled to meet later this year--under the auspices of the United Nations General Assembly.

Chairman Straws conferred with the President after this announcement was made and then told reporters: this is the first time in a year that the Russians have indicated any desire to co-operate in the President's atomic plan. ~~Ralph Bunche, the U.N. official who has been laying plans for the world Atomic conference, says he welcomes Moscow's offer. And American officials are talking~~.

The President had no comment today on the Soviet announcement. But he did issue a statement saying we must avoid talk of "reprisal or retaliation" against Communist China..despite our "disappointment" at their failure to release the eleven American flyers they are holding as "spies." Mr. Eisenhower noted that U.N. Secretary General Hammershuld believes progress has been made toward eventually obtaining the release of the flyers. And he warns against any "impetuous words or deeds" that might imperil the lives of the men. He says we must not fall into a Communist trap. And Mr. Eisenhower adds: We must support the efforts of the United Nations so long as those efforts hold any promise of success.

Dag Hammershuld told reporters today he feels the "door has been opened and can be kept open, given restraint on all sides." He said he achieved what he hoped to achieve on his visit to Peiping..even though he didn't bring the men home. Hammershuld also said: he made no deals with the Chinese Reds..they laid down no conditions for the release of our men..they did discuss "pertinent questions".. And Hammershuld said he feels an improvement in relations between Washington and Peiping would have a bearing on the issue.

~~Secretary of State Dulles and U.N. Ambassador Lodge were both in Omaha today..visiting the Strategic Air Command headquarters. They say the meeting has no special significance.. describe it as a routine briefing.~~

In West Germany today, Chancellor Adenauer and French Premier Mendez-France concluded their talks. A joint communique says: they have achieved considerable progress and a complete agreement on many points."

Moscow says that a man it describes as "an American spy" was shot to death by its border guards and another such spy was captured..after they were paracuted into Soviet Esthonia last summer. Moscow names the men as Kalja Kukk and Hans Toomla.

The investigation commission of the Organization of American States reports that "a substantial part of the WAR EQUIPMENT" in Costa Rica is coming from Nicaragua. The commission also reports that "planes from abroad illeggally" participated in the attacks on Costa Rican towns. The group says military operations are still under way. And Costa Rican President Figueres says he's ready to go to the front "at any moment" to take personal command of his troops.

In Nicaragua, authoritites have placed under house arrest former Costa Rican President Teodoro Picado, whose son has been identified as the leader of the Costa Rican rebels.

And in Panama, Jose Ramon Guizado, who became president 12 days ago after the assassination of President Antonio Jose Ramon, is now under house arrest. Guizado reported by phone that the National Guard has arrested his son and surrounded his home. He says this is the result of a "confession" by a man suspected of the murder of [redacted] the late President [redacted] REMON.

In Washington, the Navy says the atomic-powered submarine Nautilus is scheduled to begin sea trials on Monday. Informed sources say the Nautilus' atomic reactor has been producing heat for several days. The initial trials will be conducted on the surface.

The Senate today approved without debate a resolution pledging that it will continue to investigate, expose and combat communism. In the same session Senator Mc Carthy was reprimanded twice for calling some other Senators "insincere" charging they were "trying to get the dirt out of their hands." He said some senators who voted for the resolution were actually opposed to "digging up Communists."

Later, McCarthy announced that he had turned over to General Mark Clark in the Central Intelligence Agency information on "alleged Communism and corruption". General Clark is chairman of a group studying the ~~Central Intelligence Agency~~ C.I.A.

Mc Carthy says his information came from his personal files..not from Senate committee files.

Edward R. Murrow: January 14, 1955. 7.45 p.m.

Dr. Albert Schweitzer, recent Nobel prize winner, who celebrated his eightieth birthday today at his hospital in French Equatorial Africa, is receiving veneration and adulation from all corners of the world, and receiving them in a measure rarely given to any living man. If Dr. Schweitzer has done anything it has been to live in a way to escape such fame. He did not actually renounce the world, so he is not counted great for what he gave up. But when, at the age of thirty, and already a man of note, he dedicated himself to a life of service he chose to perform it in the heart of obscurity. And never did fame or veneration seem to him ends for which his life should be bent. He has quietly conducted his hospital in the tropics, dealt with its medical, human and financial problems, written his books, and emerged to raise funds by lectures and recitals. He never sought sainthood, so the fact that he counts today, in a secular sense, as perhaps the most conspicuously saintly man of his generation, means nothing to him. He never competed for status, not even the highest and spiritual status. One of his co-workers in the Lamberene (Lamber-ay-nay) hospital once remarked that he was not dismayed but shocked when an American magazine called him the greatest man in the world.

Dr. Schweitzer did not go to heal the natives in Equatorial Africa to find happiness. He went because he was happy. He believed it was specially the obligation of the happy man to help relieve the pain of others. At twenty-one, he decided to allow himself thirty years to develop his artistic and scientific capabilities, and then he would invest his life in service. At nine he had been an accomplished organist. He early became an authority on Bach, and one of the best exponents of Bach's organ music. He also was deeply absorbed in philosophy and theology. By thirty he was head of the Theological seminary in Strasbourg. But he kept his promise, and at thirty he embarked on the study of medicine, and carried it through while remaining the theological principal and the busy organist. In six years the medical course was finished, he served his internship in the Strasbourg hospital, took special studies in tropical diseases in Paris and arrived in Equatorial Africa. That was in 1914. That was where he was today, 41 years later.

"I wanted to be a doctor" he said, "that I might be able to work without having to talk. For years I had been giving myself out in words. This new form of activity I could not represent to myself as talking about the religion of love, but as an actual putting it into practise."

One needs to understand Dr. Schweitzer's concern with pain to understand his choice of a life. "Whoever is spared personal pain" he said, "must feel himself called to help in diminishing the pain of others. We must all carry our share of the misery which lies upon the world."

Another important factor in Dr. Schweitzer is his reverence of life, which to him means all life, not only the lives of human beings. As a little boy he felt the inadequacy of the prayers his mother made at his bedside, and he composed one of his own which he spoke after she left. In this he asked God's blessing on all things that breathe. Some have remarked that he carried to extremes his precept to revere every form of life. He will not kill even an insect. But this expresses a mysticism that followers of Gandhi will understand. He considers all creatures as one in the face of eternity, and that loving them all is his way to spiritual union.

Dr. Schweitzer is even better known to theologians than to Bach enthusiasts. His study of Biblical sources and texts was undertaken in his twenties, and he was writing one of his best known analyses of the historic Jesus the same year he was interning in Strasbourg hospital. His labors in this field are said to have had as wide an influence as any study of the Gospels in the past two hundred years.

He went on to write on the philosophy of civilization, and rates as one of the masters in this field. He is recognized as the leading interpreter of Goethe, and was awarded the Goethe prize by the city of Frankfort in 1928. That prize money built him a guest house in his Alsatian home town. This year's Nobel prize money went to the enlargement of his tropical hospital.

With the growth of his influence and the flow of contributions, his cares have grown. And these are somewhat pathetically mentioned in a letter published in London today. "More than once" he said, "I have felt the need and obligation to let supporters of the hospital know how things have been shaping, and I started to do so several times. But I could never finish. Either I was interrupted by urgent work, or I was too tired." He complained that he was two years behind in his correspondence.

Dr. Schweitzer has not been associated with the movement for liberating Africans that marks this epoch. He has exerted his influence in philosophy, theology and music, [redacted] he has not been a sociologist or African reformer. But to point this out is to define his contribution, not to criticize it.

At eighty, Dr. Schweitzer is a powerfully-built figure with a noble face and flowing mustache, a man of humility and kindliness. Visitors at his Alsatian guest house testify that he is capable of relaxing, for he would stop one of his absorbing conversations to play jazz for his daughter. Jazz lovers will agree that more could not be asked from a master of Bach.

The life of Albert Schweitzer is the life of a man devoted to the cause of humanity. And something Cardinal Newman once said would seem to be appropriate on the 80th Birthday of Dr. Schweitzer: "One secret act of self-denial, one sacrifice of inclination to duty, is worth all the mere good thoughts, warm feelings, passionate prayers in which idle people indulge themselves."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

FRIDAY, JANUARY 14, 1955
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

The Soviet Union says it is ready to share with the world its atomic industrial knowledge. And Chairman Straws of the Atomic Energy Commission says that if the offer is made in good faith...it would go "part of the way" toward meeting the President's year-old atoms-for-peace-plan.

The Russian Foreign Ministry announced today that it was "piled up" certain information since last summer when it started an atom-driven industrial power plant. Moscow says it is ready to turn this experience over to a world atomic energy congress that's scheduled to meet later this year--under the auspices of the United Nations General Assembly.

Chairman Straws conferred with the President after this announcement was made and then told reporters: this is the first time in a year that the Russioans have indicated any desire to co-operate in the President's plan.

The President had no comment today on the Soviet announcement. But he did issue a statement saying te must avoid talk of "reprisal or retaliation" against Communist China...despite our "disappointment" at their failure to release the eleven American flyers they are holding as "spies". Mr. Eisenhower noted that U.N. Secretary General Hammerskjold believes progress has been made toward eventually obtaining the release of the flyers. And he warns against any "impetuous words or deeds" that might imperil the lives of the men. He says we must not fall into a Communist trap. And Mr. Eisenhower adds: We must support the efforts of the United Nations so long as those efforts hold any promise of success.

Dag Hammarrskjold told reporters today he feels the "door has been opened and can be kept open, given restraint on all sides." He said he said he achieved what he hoped to achieve on his visit to Peiping..even though he didn't bring the men home. Hammarrskjold also said: he made no deals with the Chinese Reds...they laid down no conditions for the release of our men...they did discuss "pertinent questions"..and Hammarskjold said he feels an improvement in relations between Washington and Peiping would have a bearing on the same issue.

In West Germany today, Chancellor Adenauer and French Premier Mendez-France concluded their talks. A joint communique says: they have achieved considerable progress and a complete agreement on many points."

Moscow says that a man it describes as "an American spy" was shot to death by its border guard...and another such spy was captured...after they were parachuted into Soviet Esthonia last summer. Moscow names the men as Kalja Kukk and Hans Toomla.

The investigation commission of the Organization of American States reports that "a substantial part of the war equipemnt" in Costa Rica is coming from Nicaragua. The commission also reports that "planes from abroad illegally" participated in the attacks on Costa Rican towns. The group says military operations are still under way. And Costa Rican President Figueres says he's ready to go to the front "at any moment" to take personal command of his troops.

In Nicaragua, authorities have placed under house arrest former Costa Rican President Teodoro Picado, whose son had been identified as the leader of the Costa Rican rebels.

And in Panama, Jose Ramon Guizado, who became president 12 days ago after the assassination of President Antonio Jose Ramon, is now under house arrest. Guizado reported by phone that the National Guard has arrested his son and surrounded his home. He says this is the result of a "confession by a man suspected of the murder of the late President Remon.

In Washington, the Navy says the atomic-powered submarine Nautilus is scheduled to begin sea trials on Monday. Informed sources say the Nautilus' atomic reactor has been producing heat for several days. The intial trials will be conducted on the surface.

The Senate today approved without debate a resolution pledging that it will continue to investigate, expose and combat Communism. In the same session, Senator McCarthy was repremanded twice for calling some other Senators "insincere"..charging they were "trying to get the dirt out of their hands." He said some Senators who voted for the resolution were actually opposed to "digging up Communists."

Later, McCarthy announced that he had turned over to General Mark Clark information on "alledged Communism and corruption" in the Central Intelligence Agency. General Clark is chairman of a group studying the C.I.A. McCarthy says his information came fro his personal files...not from Senate Committee files.

Dr. Albert Schweitzer, recent Nobel prize winner, who celebrated his eightieth birthday today at his hospital in French Equatorial Africa, is receiving veneration and adulation from all corners of the world, and receiving them in a measure rarely given to any living man. If Dr. Schweitzer has done anything it has been to live in a way to escape fuch fame. He did not actually renounce the world, so he is not counted great for what he gave up. But when, at the age of thirty, already a man of note, he dedicated himself to a life of service he chose to perform it in the heart of obscurity. And never did fame or veneration seem to him ends for which his life should be bent. He has quietly conducted his hospital in the tropics, dealt with its medical, human and financial problems, written his books, and emerged to raise funds by lecturs and recitals. He never sought sainthood, so the fact that he counts today, in a secular sense, as perhaps the most conspicuously saintly man of his generation, means nothing to him. He never competed for status, not even the highest spiritual status. One of his co-workers in the Mamberene hospital once remarked that he was not dismayed but shocked when an American magazine called him the greatest man in the world.

Dr. Schweitzer did not go to heal the natives in Equatorial Africa to find hapiness. He went because he was happy. He believed it was specially the obligation of the happy man to help relieve the pain of others. At twenty-one, he decided to allow himself thirty years to develop his artistic and scientific capabilities, andthen he would invest his life in service. At nine he had been an accomplished organist. He early became an authority on Bach, and one of the best exponents of Bach's organ music. He also was deeply absorbed in philos phy and theology. By thirty he was head of the Theological seminary in Strasbourg. But he kept his promise, and at thirty, he embarked on the study of medicine, and carried it through while remaining the theological principal and the busy organist. In six years the medical course was finished, he served his internship in the Strasbourg hospital, took special studies in tropical diseases in Paris and arrived in Equatorial Africa. That was in 1914. That was where he was today, 41 years later.

"I wanted to be a doctor" he said, "that I might be able to work without having to talk. For years I had been giving myself out in words. This new form of activity could not represent to myself as talking about religion of leve, but as an actual putting it into practice."

One needs to understand Dr. Schweitzer's concern with pain to understand his choice of a life. "Whoever is spared personal pain" he said, "must feel himself called to help in diminishing the pain of others. We must all carry our share of the misery which lies upon the world.

Another important factor in Dr. Schweitzer is his reverence of life, which to him means all life, not only the lives of human beings. As a little boy he felt the inadequacy of the prayers his mother made at his bedside, and he composed hos own which he spoke after she left. In this he asked God's blessing on all things that breathe. Some have remarked that he carried to extremes his precept to revere every form of life. He will not kill even an insect. But this expresses a mysticism that followers of Gandhi will understand. He considers all creatures as one in the face of eternity, and that loving them all is his way to spiritual union.

Dr. Schweitzer is even better known to theologians than to Bach enthusiasts. His study of Biblical sources and texts was undertaken in his twenties, and he was writing one of his best known analyses of the historic Jesus the same year he was interning in Strasbourg hospital. His labors in this field are said to have aad as wide an influence as any study of the Gospels in the past two hundred years.

He went on to write on the philosophy of civilization, and rates as one of the masters in this field. He is recognized as the leading interpreter of Goethe, and was awarded the Goethe prize by the city of Frankfort in 1928. That prize money built his a guest house in his Alsatian home town. This year's Nobel prize money went to the ellargement of his tropical hospital.

With the growth of his influence and the flow of contributions, his cares have grown. And these are somewhat pathetically mentioned ina letter published in London today. "More than once" he said, "I have felt the need and obligation to let supporters of the hospital know how things have been shaping, and I started to do so several times. But I could never finish. Either I was interrupted by urgent work, or Iwas too tired." He complained that he was two years behind in his correspondence.

Dr. Schweitzer has not been associated with the movement for liberating Africans that marks this epoch. He has exerted his influence in philosophy, theology and music, he has not been a sociologist or African reformer. But to point this out is to define his contribution, not to criticize it.

At eighty, Dr. Schweitzer is a powerfully-built figure with a noble face and flowing mustache, a man of humility and kindness. Visitors at his Alsatian guest house testify that he is capable of relaxing, for he would stop one of his absorbing conversations to play jazz for his daughter. Jazz lovers will agree that more could not be asked from a master of Bach.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a minute with the Word for Today.

DIXON :COMMERCIAL

MURROW: The life of Albert Schweitzer is the life of a man devoted to the cause of humanity. And something Cardinal Newman once said would seem to be approptiate on the 80th Birthday of Dr. Schweitzer. "One secret act of self-denial, one sacrifice of inclination to duty, is worth all the more good thoughts, warm feelings, passionate prayers in which idle people indulge themselves.

Good Night and Good Luck!

Monday, January 17, 1955.

This is the news:

The President today sent Congress a 62 and a half billion dollar budget... (unbalanced for a fifth straight year)..and foreseeing a deficit of just under two and a half billion. I'd like to discuss this budget in a few minutes.

Informed officials in Washington say the President will soon ask Congress to give him standby authority to impose price, wage, rent and other controls in the event of an enemy attack. In the past the President felt Congress could act quickly to grant these powers in an emergency. Now, we're told, the Cabinet favors a permanent standby authority..to be used only in emergency.

Secretary of State Dulles told Congress today that the success of our foreign policy may depend on approval of the President's program for lower tariffs and expanded trade.

In Cicago, Senator Knowland, the minority leader in the Senate, said today, that the mission of United Nations Secretary-General Hammershuld to Red China was "a failure by any yardstick that Americans can use." Knowland says: the Communists have set "appeasement" as the price for therelease of eleven captured American flyers. He says "a massive propaganda buildup" is being waged at the United Nations to silence those who would analyze the Hammershuld mission. Knowland says neither the government nor the Congress can "escape the responsibility for taking whatever effective steps are necessary to secure the release of these men wearing the uniform of our country." Last Friday, the President urged Americans to avoid talk of "reprisal or retaliation" despite Hammershuld's failure to get the immediate release of the American flyers.

The Chinese Communist radio indicated today that the release of the men is tied closely to the question of admitting Red China to the U.N.

And in London, Foreign Minister Eden, in a radio talk to his people, warned "everybody, including China" to "act with caution" in the danger areas of the Far East..an obvious reference to Formosa. Eden said the British are trying to reduce the risks of further fighting in Asia. And as for Europe---he said that after the Paris agreements to re-arm west Germany are ratified, he will press for high level talkswith Russia.

The Russians announced today that they will provide their satellites with fissionable material and technical assistance for peaceful atomic development.

Atomic experts from East and West met at the United Nations today and agreed to hold an International Scientific Conference in Geneva in August..as part of the President's atoms-for-peace plan.

The new submarine Nautilus got underway today under nuclear power..for her first sea trials..and man's first test of the controlled-atom for transportation.

Two Republican Senators--Potter of Michigan and Dirksen of Illinois--today questioned the advisability of new American hydrogen bomb tests this year. Potter fears the danger OF the fall-out of radioactive materials. Dirksen says news stories of such a test "can only create a fear complex at home and abroad that will do us no good."

Democratic Senator Olin Johnston of South Carolina said today that the State Department has not found a Communist or a disloyal person among the 80 employes once named by Senator McCarthy. Johnston says he dug up the names of 80 persons against whom McCarthy made charges in 1950. Johnston says the State Department has verified a report by the former Tydings committee which called McCarthy's charges a hoax. McCarthy had accused the committee of a whitewash. Today, he accused Senator Johnston of "twising and distroting" the facts.

Attorney General Brownell says present maximum penalty for advocating violent overthrow of the government or seditious conspiracy is too lenient: 5-thousand dollars fine..six years in jail or both. Brownell wants maximum fines of 20-thousand dollars or 20 years in prison or both.

The Stock Market dropped again today..almost as much as it did two weeks ago. On the average, prices fell below the lowest level of the previous break. Experts say part of this was due to the President's budget message calling for a cut in government spending.

Four American Mustang fighter planes have now arrived in Costa Rica..to be flown by Costa Rican pilots. President Jose Figueres says he sees no choice for the rebels "but to surrender or go back to Nicaragua."

Edward R. Murrow: January 17, 1955. 7.45 p.m.

Today was Budget Day for the 84th Congress. (The President sent his annual budget message to the Hill.) It would be stretching things to say that budget day meant much to the general public. It should, for the budget tells the American how much he will be able to spend on himself and his family, since it determines what he has to pay in taxes. And the budget bears, too, on the value of the dollar he spends. He has watched the value of the dollar sink to about half in just a few years. But it doesn't seem to be in the American tradition for the budget to be the theme around cracker-barrels or the family dinner table. Yet there are facts about the budget that cry for notice. This is not a war budget, strictly speaking. It is a cold war budget. (But it comes to much the same thing.) The government is pumping forty-and-a-half billion dollars of defense spending into the economy. This is an enormous figure. It is twice as much, allowing for price changes, as the federal budget in the years when the orthodox economists solemnly denounced the government for inviting bankruptcy by over-spending.

President Eisenhower, in today's message, says that the budget story "centers around the fact that we successfully made the adjustment from a wartime to a peacetime type of economy, a truly significant achievement. #

Our present growing prosperity," he says, " has solid foundations free from artificial stimulations of war or inflation." However truly these words are used, the economy is immensely stimulated by a sixty-TWO-and-a-half billion dollar budget, (of which almost two-thirds is devoted to defense.)

Furthermore, for all the pleasant words about it, the budget is not balanced out of current revenue. The deficit for 1955 is four-and-a-half billion dollars. Not very much, perhaps, considering the size of the American economy. And this deficit is due to come down to ALMOST 2½ billions in the following year, if the government spends a billion less and collects a billion more in taxes, as it hopes to do. But it is a deficit, and deficits can change the value of money. The improvement expected next year is based on an estimated rise in personal incomes of four percent, and in corporation profits of seven percent. But it depends also on Congress voting to continue corporate income taxes and excise taxes due to expire April 1st. The value of money may well remain steady, but it depends on Congress renewing these taxes and on gains in incomes and profits that still have to be made.

Farmers will note that they are to receive substantially less aid than last year. Price supports will cost the Treasury just under a billion dollars less, and the outlay on agriculture will be down eight hundred and seventy-one millions. There is a cut, too, in spending on the development of natural resources of one hundred and eighty millions.

~~That is not to say~~ This is not a budget without social objectives. President Eisenhower speaks about the need for a new health program, new schools, a better weather service, improvement of the foreign service, training more scientists, slum clearance, watershed protection and rural electrification. But financially these items are microscopic. The bulk of the money goes to defense.

The Defense Department gets thirty-four billion dollars, which is six billions less than a year ago. Two-thirds of it is allotted to the air power of the three services, (more than ever spent on it in peacetime.) Air was the only service to get an increase, one of four hundred million, to a total of fifteen billion, two hundred thousand. The Army was cut a nominal fifty million, the Navy seventy-five million. The planes in combat and supporting units, go up from thirty-four thousand last June, to thirty-six thousand in June '56. An objective of "close to" forty thousand is mentioned.

"The effectiveness of U.S. air power" says the President, "is far greater than the numbers indicate, because of increased size, speed, range and striking power of planes. By the end of the coming year, air combat units will be almost one hundred percent jet-equipped."

The Navy under the new budget will operate four hundred warships and six hundred other vessels. The number of carrier groups will rise from sixteen to seventeen, and a fifth super-carrier of the Forrestal type will be begun. So will three more atomic-powered submarines, to bring the fleet to seven. More radar equipment will secure the northern horizons, more guided missiles are being set up around vital targets, and air defences are being kept on the constant alert. "A surprise enemy attack" said the President, "would find us with increasing readiness to resist and retaliate with devastating effect."

The Atomic Energy Commission takes another two billion to keep it the most colossal state enterprise in our experience. More emphasis is placed, verbally and financially, on developing atomic power for peacetime uses. "It is our purpose, working in concert with other powers" said the President, "to banish the threat of atomic warfare.... But until there can be assurance that this great force will be used for the well-being of mankind, we have no alternative but to strengthen further our most effective deterrent to armed aggression, the power of the nuclear weapons stockpile."

The budget actually is smaller than some before it, so it is not unprecedented. In a grim sense it is a normal budget, that is, normal for a year of cold war. But it is not so normal as to entitle anyone to think lightly about it, or not to think at all. It is the budget of another year of strain and danger.

With each successive budget message, we are coming to realize that peace, like war, can be costly. Preparedness requires money and this means high taxes. When confronted with this situation, we would do well to remember these words by Joseph Newton:" A duty dodged is like a debt unpaid; it is only deferred, and we must come back and settle the account at last." Aubrey De Vere put it this way:" The span of life was lent for lofty duties, not selfishness."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

MONDAY, JANUARY 17, 1955
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

The President today sent Congress a 62 and a half billion dollar budget...unbalanced for a fifth straight year....and forseeing a deficit of just under two and a half billion. I'd like to discuss this budget in a few minutes.

Informed officials in Washington say the President will soon ask Congress to give his standby authority to impose price, wage, rent and other controls in the event of an enemy attack. In the past the President felt Congress could act quickly to grant these powers in an emergency. Now, we're told, the Cabinet favors a permanent standby authority...to be used only in emergency.

Secretary of State Dulles told Congress today that the success of our foreign policy may depend on approval of the President's program for lower tariffs and expanded trade.

In Chicago, Senator Knowland, the minority leader in the Senate, said today that the mission of United Sations Secretary-General Hammarakjold to Red China was "a failure by any yardstick that Americans can use." Knowland says: The Communists have set "appeasement as the price for the release of eleven captured American flyers. He says " a massive propaganda buildup" is being waged at the United Nations to silence those who would analyze the Hammarskjold mission. Knowland says neither the government nor the Congress can "escape the responsibility for taking whatever effective steps are necessary to secure the release of these men wearing the uniform of our country." Last Friday, the President urged Americans to avoid talk fo "reprisal ar retaliation" despite Hammarskjold's failure to get the immediate release of the American flyers,

The Chinese Communist radio indicated today that the release of the men is tied closely to the question of admitting Red China to the U.N..

And in London, Foreign Minister Eden, in a radio talk to his people, warned "everybody, including China" to "act with caution" in the danger areas of the Far East...an obvious reference to Formosa. Eden said the British are trying to reduce the risks of further fighting in Asia. And as for Europe -- he said that after the Paris agreements to re-arm west Germany are ratified, he will press for high level talks with Russia.

The Russians announced today that they will provide their satellites with fissionable material and technical assistance for peaceful atomic developement.

Atomic experts from East and West met at the United Nations today and agreed to hold an Internati nal Scientivic Conference in Geneva in August.. as part of the President's atoms-for-peace plan.

The new submarine Nautilus got underway today under nuclear power... for her first sea trials...and man's first test of the controlled atom for transportation.

Two Republican Senators --Potter of Michigan and Dirksen of Illinois-- today questioned the advisability of new American hydrogen bomb tests this year. Potter fears the danger of the fall-out of radioactive materials. Dirksen says news stories of such a test "can only create a fear complex at home and abroad that will do us no good."

Democratic Senator Olin Johnston of South Carolina aaid today that the State Department has not found a Communist or disloyal person among the 80 employees once named by Senator McCarthy. Johnston says he dug up t he names of 80 persons against whom McCarthy made charges in 9950. Johnston says the State Department has verified a report by the former Tydings committee which called McCarthy's charges a hoax. McCarthy had accused the committee of a whitewash. Today, he accused Senator Johnston of "twisting and distorting" the facts.

Attorney General Brownell says the present maximum penalty for advocating violent overthrow of the government or seditious conspiracy is too lenient: 5-thousand dollars fine..six months in jail or both. Brownell wants maximum fines of 20-thousand dollars or 20 years in prison or both.

The Stock Market dropped again today..almost as much as it did two weeks ago. On the average prices fell below the lowest level of the previous break. Experts say part of this was due to the President's budget message calling for a cut in government spending.

Four American Mustang fighter planes have now arrived in Costa Rica... to be flown by Costa Rican pilots. President Jose Figueres says he sees no choice for the rebels "but to surrender or go back to Nicaragua."

Today was Budget Day for the 84th Congress. The President sent his annual budget message to the Hill. It would be stretching things to say that Budget day means much to the general public. Is should, for the budget tells the American how much we will be able to spend on himself and his family since it determines what he has to pay in taxes. And the budget years, too, on the value of the dollar he spends. He has watched the value of the dollar sink to about half in just a few years. But it doesn't seem to in the American tradition for the budget to be the theme around cracker-barrels or the family dinner table. Yet there are facts about the budget that cry for notice. This is not a war budget, strictly speaking. It is a cold war budget. But it comes to much the same thing. The government is pumping forty-and-a-half billion dollars of defense spending into the economy.. This is an enormous figure. It is twice as much, allowing for price changes, as the federal budget in the years when the orthodox economists solemnly denounced the government for inviting bankruptcy by over-spending.

President Eisenhower, in today's message, says that the budget story "centers around the fact that we successfully made the adjustment from a wartime to a peacetime type of economy, a truly significant acheivement.

Our present growing prosperity", he says, "has solid foundations free from artificial stimulations of war or inflation." However truly these words are used, the economy is immensely stimulated by a sixty-two-and-a-half billion dollar budget, of which almost two-thirds is devoted to defense.

Furthermore, for all the pleasant words about it, the budget is not balanced out of current revenue. The deficit for 1955 is four-and-a-half billion dollars. Nor very much, perhaps, considering the size of the American economy. And this deficit is due to come down to almost two-and-one-half billions in the following year, if the government spends a billion less and collects a billion more intaxes, as it hopes to do. But it is a deficit and deficits can change the value of money. The improvement expected next year is based on an estimated rise in personal incomes of four percent, and in corporation profits of seven percent. But it depends also on Congress voting to continue corporate income taxes and excise taxes due to expire April 1st. The value of money may well remain steady, but it depends on Congress renewing these taxes and on gains in incomes and profits that still have to be made.

Farmers will note that they are to receive substantially less aid than last year. Price supports will cost the Treasury just under a billion dollars less, and the outlay on agriculture will be down eight hundred and seventy-one millions. There is a cut, too, in spending on the developement of natural resources of one hundred and eighty millions.

This is not a budget without social objectives. President Eisenhower speaks about the need for a new health program, new schools, a better weather service, improvement of the foreign service, training more scientists, slum clearances, watershed protection and rural electrification. But financially these items are microscopic. The bulk of the money goes to defense.

The Defense Department gets thirty-four billion dollars, which is six billions less than a year ago. Two-thirds of it is allotted to the air power of the three services, more than ever spend on it in peacetime. Air was the only service to get an increase, one of four hundred million to a total of fifteen billion, two hundred thousand. The Army was cut a nominal fifty million, the Navy seventy-five million. The planes in combat and supporting units go up from thirty-four thousand last June to thirty-six thousand in June '56. An objective of "close to" forty thousand is mentioned.

"The effectiveness of U.S. air power " says the President, "is far greater than the numbers indicate, because of increased size, speed, range and striking power of planes. By the end of the coming year, air combat units will be almost one hundred percent jet-equipped."

The Navy under the new budget will operate four hundred warships and six hundred other vessels. The number of carrier groups will rise from sixteen to seventeen, and a fifth super-carrier of the Forrestal type will be begun. So will three more atomic-powered submarines, to bring the fleet to seven. More radar equipment will secure the northern horizons, more guided missiles are being set up around vital targets, and air defences are being kept on the constant alert. "A surprise enemy attack" said the President, "would find us with increasing readiness to resist and retaliate with devastating effect."

The Atomic Energy Commission takes another two billion to keep it the most colossal state enterprise in our experience. More emphasis is placed, verbally and financially, in developing atomic power for peacetime uses. "it is our purpose, working in concert with other powers" said the President,"to banish the threat of atomic warfare...but until there can be assurance that this force will be used for the well-being of mankind, we have no alternative but to strengthen further our most effective deterrent to armed aggression, the power of the nuclear weapons stockpile."

The budget acutally is smaller than some before it, so it is not unprecedented. In a grim sense it is a normal budget, that is, normal for a year of cold war. But it is not so normal as to entitle anyone to think lightly about it, or not to think at all. It is the budget of another year of strain and danger.

This is Ed Murrow. I'l be back in a moment with the word for Today. But first, here's a word from Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: With each successive budget message, we are coming to realize that peace, like war, can be costly. Preparedness requires money and this means high taxes. When confronted with this situation, we would do well to remember these words by Joseph Newton: "A duty dodged is like a debt unpaid; it is only deferred, and we must come back and settle the account at last." Aubrey De Vere put it this way;"The span of life was lent for lofty duties, not selfishness."

Good Night and Good Luck!

Tuesday, January 18, 1955

This is the news:

Secretary of State Dulles says the fall of Nationalist China's Yee-jong-shan island is of no particular importance. The Chinese Communists captured the island..eight miles from the Tachens..in what they describe as a two-hour operation. A landing force went ashore behind a heavy air and artillery attack. Mr. Dulles and the Nationalists both say the island was not defended by regulars..just guerrillas. Capture of this island brings the Tachens within artillery range. And Mr. Dulles says this group, 200 miles north of Formosa, is of no particular importance.. a certain indication that our 7th fleet would not interfere with any Communist attempt to storm the Tachens. While Mr. Dulles "played down" the Nationalist's loss, he did tell reporters today that we would not objcet to any United Nations effort to get a cease-fire in the Formosa Area. This was the first time the Secretary made such [redacted] A SUGGESTION AND HE said this country would not initiate such a move.

He also told reporters he expects to see Dag Hammershuld in Washington tomorrow..to get a personal report from the secretary-general of the United Nations on his mission to Red China to secure the release of eleven captured American airmen. Mr. Dulles rejected Senator Knowland's contention that the Hammershuld mission was a failure. The Secretary feels its ~~too~~ premature to pass any final judgement at this time. And Mr. Dulles says he is unaware of any massive propaganda effort at the United Nations to silence persons who would anaylze the Hammershuld mission..such a charge had been made by Senator Knowland.

The President TODAY ~~followed the news from China with Mr. Dulles this morning and Admiral Radford, the chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, at an afternoon meeting. Mr. Eisenhower also~~ announced the formation of a new committee to prevent any discrimination against government workers on the basis of race, color, creed or national origin. And the White House says that starting at the President's news conference tomorrow television and newsreel cameramen will be authorized to make sound movies. The White House will decide after the conference what, if anything, may be used on television or in theaters.

Defense Secretary Wilson said today that he favors more trade with the Communists. He thinks this will "ultimately strengthen the free world." The Secretary also told a House committee considering the President's trade program that food, clothing and ideas may play a bigger role than ~~the~~ military might in the struggle against Communism.

Democratic Senator Byrd of Virginia today urged the Administration to cut its spending plans by four per cent..and balance the budget. He recommends that the first cuts be made in the 4-billion 7--hundred million [redacted] outlay proposed for foreign aid.

Federal Judge Luther Youngdahl today knocked out two of the key counts in the government's perjury indictment against Owen Lattimore... there are still five counts remaining. Judge Youngdahl said it would be "unprecedented...and make a sham of the 6th amendment to the (CONSTITUTION) [redacted] and federal rulings..to try Lattimore on the charges that [redacted] he lied when he said he was not a "follower" of the Communist party line..that he lied when he said he was not "a promoter" of Communist interests. In May of 1953 the same Judge Youngdahl dismissed the key count of the original indictment against Lattimore. At that time, United States Attorney Rover accused him of bias..asked him to disqualify himself. Judge Youngdahl [redacted] called this request "scandalous" and refused to disqualify himself. Today, the Judge said that:"To ask 12 jurors, to agree, and then decide that the definition of the Communist line found in the indictment is the definition that the defendent had in mind and denied believing in, is to ask the jury to aspire to levels of insight which the [redacted] ordinary person is incapable of..and upon which speculation no criminal indictment should hinge" There is no comment from the Justice Department.

Democratic Senator Johnston of South Carolina today [redacted] challenged Senator McCarthy to name one State Department employe who has been convicted, or proven to be a Communist, after being cited by McCarthy as a Communist or party sympathizer. The two Senators are in disagreement on interpreting a letter Johnston has received from the State Department. And Secretary of State Dulles says the facts in the Department's letter [redacted] might be subject to individual interpretation.

The Democrats today took over the Senate Investigations Subcommittee . And the [redacted] new chairman, Senator McClellan of Arkansas, announced that the committee has approved 16 of what he called "fair play" rules.

Foreign Aid Chief Stassen said today he accepts full responsibility for hiring Wolf Ladejinsky, after he had been fired as a [redacted] security risk by Secretary of Agriculture Benson. Stassen is certain that Ladejinsky "is not, and has never been a Communist." He said he became interested in the case in an effort to help out the President, who at the time of the dispute was busy with his State of the Union and budget messages. ~~Mr. Eisenhower said recently that Stassen would have to take responsibility for hiring Ladejinsky.~~

Democratic Senator Humphrey of Minnesota today asked Congress to create a 12-member bipartisan commission to recommend changes in the administration's security program "to preserve basic American rights." He says present security procedures are unfair.. not applied uniformly..and fail to provide for appeal or review.

In Boston, four armed convicts at the state prison have seized five guards as hostages. They are now demanding a CAR so that they can escape. Officials say they are making "no deals" with the convicts.

The Costa Rican government says some of its units have made contact with rebels north of Santa Rosa and "have them on the run." Costa Rican pilots are still learning how to fly the four F-51 fighter planes we delivered yesterday. And a German freighter today delivered 25 of the same planes..purchased through SWEDEN..to the Nicaraguan government. Apparently this gives Nicaragua the biggest air force in Central America.

Edward R. Murrow: January 18, 1955. 7.45 p.m.

Last week this reporter spent two days with the members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. It was an enriching and encouraging experience. The fifteen members of this Committee are responsible for our formal relations with other nations. Whatever treaties are agreed to by diplomats, whatever military arrangements may be made by Generals, all must pass this Committee before going to the full Senate. The members of this Committee, perhaps more than any other, are required to consult the nation's destiny rather than partisan or regional interests.

Throughout the years before, during and following the war this particular Committee has acted with remarkable unanimity. It is now under the chairmanship of Senator George of Georgia, one of the most respected men on either side of the Senate. The members of the Committee travel widely, and their conversation XXX reflects the knowledge acquired. Senator Mike Mansfield of Montana talks of Southeast Asia and its leaders with an intimate knowledge that would impress any reporter. Senator Aiken of Vermont can discourse on the subject of the need for county agricultural agents and D.D.T. in backward countries, in a manner to hold anyone's attention. Capehart of Indiana talks of international trade, and contends on the basis of considerable experience that Senators work harder than business executives.

Alben Barkley of Kentucky looks back over the long and fateful years he has sat on the Committee, and concludes that our peril is greater today than it was in 1938 or '39. Langer of North Dakota has voted against every foreign appropriations Bill since the war, except UNRRA; has his reasons and is proud of his record. Fulbright of Arkansas can talk of foreign affairs in terms of scholars, or the trade in Arkansas cotton and rice.

The things these men like to talk about are not diplomacy and conferences, but trade and aid, and the example of freedom that must be set by this country. Some of their memories go back to the time when this country didn't have very much foreign relations. Senator George, for example, has sat on that Committee since 1924. Geographically the membership is spread from Aiken of Vermont to Morse of Oregon. Their social and economic backgrounds are about as varied as you would find amongst any fifteen politicians. There is the driving impatience of a man like Knowland of California; the gentle tolerance of Green of Rhode Island; the faith and tolerance of Smith of New Jersey; the flat voice of Hickenlooper of Iowa; the soft syllables of Sparkman of Alabama.

Not all of these Senators are profound students of world affairs. Many of them serve on many other committees. But two days of talking with them about the things in which they were interested left this reporter with one over-riding impression, and it was this: it is not a committee composed of giants, nor a committee that is dominated by one man; there exist honest differences of opinion as to where we as a nation have been and where we are going. But there is, I should think, an almost universal and indeed instinctive recognition that these men are acting, not just on behalf of their constituents or their states, but in the interests of the entire nation. If there are differences, and there are, as to what policy we should pursue, there is universal recognition of the dimensions of the problem that confronts us. In the committee room there is an absence of bombast - recognition of the problems involved in leading an alliance of free nations - no tendency to minimize the difficulties that lie ahead - and a determination that the job can be done.

Lest it be thought that this reporter was hiding under the table while the Senate Foreign Relations Committee engaged in a session, let it be said that these impressions were formed as a result of individual conversations with all fifteen members of the committee, in the course of preparing a television portrait of one Senate Committee and its members, a portrait the first half of which will be presented on C.B.S. Television at 10.30 New York Time tonight. And whether the portrait is acceptable or not, this represents one of the longest preliminary announcements made on radio about a television report.

There are those who feel that having gone to the polls on election day is sufficient evidence of interest in public affairs. This is not so. And, as Harry Hopkins put it so well: "This government is ours. It doesn't belong to anybody but the people of America. Don't treat it as an impersonal thing; don't treat it as something to sneer at; treat it as something that belongs to you."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

Ba 65600

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

TUESDAY, JANUARY 18, 1955
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

Secretary of State Dulles says the fall of Nationalist China's Yee-jong-shan island is of no particular importance. The Chinese Communists captured the island...eight miles from the Tachens...in what they describe as a two hour operation. A landing force went ashore behind a heavy air and artillery attack. Mr. Dulles and the Nationalists both say the island was not defended by regulars...just guerillas. Capture of this island brings the Tachens within artillery range. And Mr. Dulles says this group, 200 miles north of Formosa, is of no particular importance...a certain indication that our 7th fleet would not interfere with any Communist attempt to storm the Tachens. While Mr Dulles "played down" the Nationalist's loss, he did tell reporters today that we would not object to any United Nations effort to get a cease-fire in the Formosa Area. This was the first time the Secretary made such a suggestion and he said this country would not initiate such a move.

He also told reporters he expects to see Dag Hammarskjold in Washington tomorrow...to get a personal report from the secretary general of the United Nations on his mission to Red China to secure the release of eleven captured American airmen. Mr. Dulles rejected Senator Knowland's contention that the Hammerskjold mission was a failure. The Secretary feels it's premature to pass any final judgement at this time. And Mr. Dulles says he is unaware of any massive propaganda effort at the United Nations to silence persons who would analyze the Hammerskjold mission...such a charge had been made by Senator Knowland.

The President today announced the formation of a new committee to prevent any discrimination against government workers of the basis of race, color, creed or national origin. And the White House says that starting at the President's news conference tomorrow television and newsreel cameramen will be authorized to make sound movies. The White House will decide after the conference that, if anything, may be used on television or in theaters.

Defense Secretary Wilson said today that he favors more trade with the Communists. He thinks this will "ultimately strengthen the free world." The Secretary also told a House committee considering the President's trade program that food, clothing and ideas may play a bigger role than military might in the struggle against Communism.

Democratic Senator Byrd of Virginia today urged the Administration to cut its spending plans by four per cent ...and balance the budget. He recommends that the first cuts be made in the 4-billion 7--hundred million outlay proposed for foreign aid.

Federal Judge Luther Youngdahl today knocked out two of the key counts in the Government's perjury indictment against Ownn Lattimore...there are still five counts remaining. Judge Youngdahl said it would be "unprecedented...and make a sham of the 6th amendment to the constitution and federal rulings...to try Lattimore on the charges that he lied when he said he was not a"follower" of the Communist party line...that he lied when he said he was not a "promoter" of Communist interests. In May of 1953 the same Judge Youngdahl dismissed the key count of the original indictment against Lattimore. At that time, United States Attorney Rover accused him of bias...asked him to disqualify himself. Judge Youngdahl called this request "scandalous" and refused to disqualify himself. Today, the Judge said that "To ask 12 jurors, to agree, and then decide that the definition of the Communist line found in the indictment is the definition that the defendent had in mind and denied believing in, is to ask the jury to aspire thethe levels of insight which the ordinary person is incapable of... and upon which speculation no criminal indictment should hinge". There is no comment from the Justice Department.

Democratic Senator Johnon of South Carolina today challenged Senator McCarthy to name one State Department employee who has been convicted, or proven to be a Communist, after being cited by McCarthy as a Communist or party sympathizer. The two Senators are in disagreement on interpreting a letter Johnson has received from the State Department. And Secretary of State Dulles says the facts in the Department's letter might be subject to individual interpretation.

The Democrats today took over the Senate Investigations Subcommittee. And the new chairman, Senator McClelland of Arkansas, announced that the committee has a proved 16 of what he called "fair play" rules.

Foreign Aid Chief Stassen said today he accepts full responsibility for hiring Wolf Ladejinsky, after he had been fired as a security risk by Secretary of Agriculture Benson. Stassen is certain that Ladejinsky "is not, and has never been a Communist." He said he become interested in the case in an effort to help out the President who at the time of the dispute was busy with his State of the Union and Budget messages. Democratic Senator Humphrey of Minnesota today asked Congress to create a 12-member bipartisan commission to recommend changes in the administration's security program "to preserve basic American rights." He says present security procedures are unfair... not applied uniformly...and fail to provide for appeal or review.

In Boston, four armed convicts at the state prison have siezed five guards as hostages. They are now demanding a car so that they can escape. Officials say they are making "no deals" with the convicts.

The Costa Rican government says some of its units have made contact with rebels north of Santa Rosa and "have them on the run." Costa Rican pilots are still learning how to fly the four F-51 fighter planes we delivered yesterday. And a German freighter today delivered 25 of the same planes... purchased through Sweeden to the Nicaraguan government. Apparently this gives Nicaragua the biggest air force in Central America.

Last week this reporter spend two days with the members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. It was an enriching and encouraging experience. The fifteen members of this Committee are responsible for our formal relations with other nations. Whatever treaties are agreed to by diplomats, what-ever military arrangements may be made by generals, all must pass this Committee before toing to the full Senate. The members of this Committee, perhaps more than any other, are required to consult the nation's destimy rather than partisan or regional interests.

Throughout the years before, during and following the war this particular Committee has acted with remarkable unanimity. It is now under the chairmanship of Senator George of Georgia, one of the most respected men on either side of the Senate. The members of the Committee travel widely, and their conversation reflects the knowledge acquired. Senator Mike Mansfield of Montana talks of Southeast Asia and its leaders with an intimate knowledge that would impress any reporter. Senator Aiken of Vermont can discourse on the subject of the need for country agricultural agents and DDT in backward countries, in a manner to hold anyone's attention. Capehart of Indiana talks of international trade, and contends on the basis of considerable experience that Senators work harder than business executives.

Alben Barkley of Kentucky looks back over the long and fateful years he has sat on the Committee, and concludes that our peril is greater today than it was in 1938 or 1939. Langer of North Dakota has voted against every foreign appropriations Bill since the war, except UNRRA; has his reasons and is proud of his record. Fulbright of Arkansas can talk of foreign affairs in terms of scholars, or the trade in Arkansas cotton and rice.

The things these men like to talk about are not diplomacy and conferences, but trade and aid, and the example of freedom that must be set by this country. Some of their memories go back to the time when this country didn't have very much foreign relations. Senator George, for example, has sat on the Committee since 1924. Geographically the membership is spread from Aiken of Vermont to Morse of Oregon. Their social and economic back grounds are about as varied as you would find amongst any fifteen politicians. There is the driving impatience of a man like Knowland of California; and the gentle tolerance of Green of Rhode Island; the faith and tolerance of Smith of New Jersey; the flat voice of Hickenlooper of Iowa; the soft syllables of Sparkman of Alabama.

Not all of these Senators are profound students of world affairs. Many of them serve of them serve on many other committees. But two days of talking with them about the things in which they were interested left this reporter with one over-riding impression, and it was this: it is not a committee composed if giants, not a committee that is dominated by one man; there exist honest differences of opinion as to where we as a nation have been ans where we are going. But there is, I should think, an almost universal and indeed instinctive recognition that these men are acting, not just on bahalf of their constituents or their states, but in the interests of the entire nation. If there are differences, and there are, as to what policy we should pursue, there is universal recognition of the dimensions of the problem that confronts us. In the committee room there is an absence of bombast - recognition of the problems involved in leading an alliance of free nations - no tendency to minimize the difficulties that lie ahead - and a determination that the job can be done.

Lest it be thought that this reporter was hiding under the table while the Senate Foreign Relations Committee engaged in a session, let it be said that these impressions were formed as a rssult of individual conversations with all fifteen members of the committee, in the course of preparing a television portrait of one Senate Committee and its members, a portrait the first half of which will be presented on C.B.S. Television at 10:30 New York time tonight. And whether the portrait is acceptable or not, this represents one of the longest preliminaty announcements made on radio about a television report.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a moment with the Word for Today. But first, here's a word from Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: There are those who feel that having gone to the polls on election day is sufficient evidence of interest in public affairs. This is not so. And, as Harry Hopkins put it so well; "This government is ours. It doesn't belong to anybody but the American people. Don't treat it as an impersonal thing; don't treat it as something to sneer at; treat it as something that belongs to you."

Good Night and Good Luck.

Wednesday, January 19, 1955

This is the news:

Chinese Nationalist planes today attacked Communist shipping along nearly 300 miles of the enemy-held coast. And the Communists made a 200-~~plane~~ (PLANE) attack on the Tachen islands. The Nationalists claim they sank 17 small enemy ships..damaged at least five more. And on Formosa, a Nationalist spokesman complained that the Communists "are going to take our islands one by one and the United States Seventh fleet is not going to do a thing about it."

This was in comment on Secretary of State Dulles' suggestion yesterday that Yee-Johng-Shan and the Tachens are not militarily important to the defense of Formosa..200 miles to the south.

~~And~~ At the White House today, the President said the same thing. And he told reporters he would like to see the United Nations arrange a cease-fire between the Communists and the Nationalists. He said a powder keg always exists where there is fighting, and it might be good for the U.N. to take a look at the Chinese fighting.

The Chinese Nationalist foreign minister said in Washington today, he's trying to get the first plane back to Formosa where "I belong."

And Republican Senator Knowland, recalled for reporters that last November he pointed out the danger of co-existence which might lead the Communist world into open "nibbling." Knowland said: "The first nibble has taken place, small though it be, and a series of small nibbles will amount to a big bite."

More recently Knowland has called the mission to Red China by U.N. Secretary-General Hammershuld a failure. But at his news conference today the President disagreed..and supported continued United Nations efforts to get the release of the captured American airmen. The President said he does not consider negotiations a failure as long as they're going on. At the same time he will not consider the negotiations successful until the Americans are safely returnedto their homes.

Mr. Hammershuld was in Washington today conferring with Secretary of States Dulles. Mr. Dulles told him there is strong sentiment in this country for "direct action" to get the release of our flyers. But "for the time being" the President will allow the U.N. to handle the case. Mr. Dulles also disclosed that Mr. Hammershuld has received assurances from the Communists "regarding the well-being" of the Americans they hold as prisoners.

At his news conference today..filmed for television for the first time.. the President told reporters that after two years in office the foreign situation appears to him to be "more stable, generally speaking." And he said the outlook for the internal economy is good.

And the President told newsmen that he has not given his "considered approval" to testimony yesterday by Defense Secretary Wilson that we should increase our trade of non-war goods with countries behind the Iron Curtain. Today, Foreign Aid Administrator Stassen joined Wilson in calling for increasing trade in non-strategic goods.

And Secretary Wilson today ordered Mrs. Annie Lee Moss restored to non-~~senitisive~~ SENSITIVE army duty..and announced that Mrs. Moss has accepted a new assignment on "condition that there is no implication of subversion or disloyalty." Mrs. Moss had been suspended from her army job after Senator McCarthy charged she had a "known Communist record". Mrs. Moss denied this. Today, Wilson said there is "clear indication of certain derogatory information" in the Moss file. But he says her record "does not support the conclusion that she is actually subversive or disloyal to the United States. Wilber Brucker, counsel for the defense department, indicated to reporters that Secretary Wilson has been bothered by the case and took it out of the hands of Army Secretary Stevens who says he'll "stand strictly on the Wilson statement."

Secretary of Agriculture Benson today forecast a great decade ahead for American farmers . He said "the postwar adjustment has been completed and we are in a period of comparative stability."

The government today again put retaliatory restrictions on Russians in this country: they may not photograph or sketch anything of strategic importance..cannot buy aerial photographs OR large scale or navigational maps.

The Navy says the atomic submarine Nautilus has satisfactorily completed her initial trials and may make her first dive tomorrow.

Adlai Stevenson has called on the government and the Organization of American States to "acts swiftly" to end the fighting in Costa Rica. Apparently there was little fighting today. Two Costa Rican pilots flew their new Mustang fighter planes over San Jose..--for practice, not into action.

In Boston, all eforts have failed to get the release of five guards held AS HOSTAGES by four convicts at the state prison.

Edward R. Murrow: January 19, 1955. 7.45 p.m.

Talk of a cease fire in the Formosa Straits appeared to give the China crisis a new turn today. Secretary Dulles had said yesterday that the United States would not object to a cease fire. President Eisenhower today went further; he said he would like to see the United Nations try to arrange a cease fire. This sounded like an open invitation to the United Nations to see what it could do.

However, the U.N. is not an organization to take the initiative. It is one in which a member or members have to do it. So far no member is known to be ready to take this initiative in the China crisis. The United States is not. The British, Australians and New Zealanders all want steps taken to pacify the area. But to ask a cease fire at this stage rates as a risk. The issue would have to come before the Security Council and could run into prolonged and unpleasant wrangling. However, if the fighting were to spread seriously, so as to bring a threat of major war, then no doubt action would be sought in the U.N. But talk of a cease fire at this moment is considered premature.

The difficulties of obtaining a cease fire ~~count as great~~ are considerable. The government of Chiang Kai Shek has made no public statements about it, but the China News, with close official contacts said today: "Free China will fight against such a presumptious idea as a cease fire in any form or under any circumstances."

The Chinese Communists also could be expected to reject a cease fire unless it led to the end of the Nationalist blockade of the China Coast, and a demilitarization of the nationalist-held coastal islands.

In theory there could be two kinds of cease fire. One could apply only to military action against the coastal islands, like the present campaign near the Tachens. The other could go to the root of the problem, deal with the nationalist blockade and the military use of all the coastal islands. The first kind of cease fire, simply stopping military action, would hardly appeal to the Communists. They now have Washington's implicit assurance that the Seventh Fleet is not going to defend the Tachen islands. So they think it safe to take the other coastal islands too; so why stop the campaign?

The Nationalists would reject the other kind of cease fire, one that ends the blockade and demilitarizes the coastal islands. For not to do so would be to give up the claim to be the true government of China. However much this might ease tensions in Asia, the Chiang regime would not do it of its own free will. And since the Chiang government is sovereign, the United States, even if it wanted to, could not compel it. Moreover, important elements in American political life, both in Congress and the State Department, would strenuously oppose the United States trying to solve the problem in this way.

The curve of Communist China's aggressiveness against the Nationalists and the United States went up sharply last June, when the Nationalists seized a Soviet oil tanker in the Formosa Straits. The importance of that event may have been overlooked, but it appeared to clinch Soviet support for Peiping's claims to Formosa, about which there had been doubts. Since then the Communists have moved forward steadily. In a few weeks they shot down a British passenger plane off Hainan. A few weeks later Chou En-lai announced that Formosa had to be liquidated, and Moscow quickly echoed its approval. By September 3, the Communists started shelling Quemoy, the next day the Soviet shot down an American patrol bomber, and a second one in November. The softening of the Tachen Islands began in November. The climax came with the announcement on November 23 of the conviction as spies of the American uniformed airmen.

So there is a kind of coherence in these events. One central motive of the Communists is to end the coastal blockade applied by the Nationalists.

That keeps them from using Amoy and other coastal ports, and from bringing vital oil along the coast from Siberian ports.

But to Americans there is no conceivable connection between the seizure of a Soviet tanker by the Chinese Nationalists and the imprisonment of uniformed American airmen as spies. And nothing but confusion comes from the attack on the Nationalist island just as Dag Hammarskjold's mission to free the airmen is under critical discussion. Peiping is reported to have said that Washington must show restraint if the airmen are to be freed. President Eisenhower and Secretary Dulles certainly are exhibiting the utmost restraint. But it is a one-sided restraint. And it seems fairly obvious that the Communists have no intention of foregoing their campaign against the coastal islands.

Some comfort can be taken from the assurance that the Communists know we will fight to defend Formosa and the Pescadores. And also from the assurance that Mr. Hammarskjold took to Peiping that the United States is not plotting to make war against the China mainland, behind the spearhead of Chiang's forces. We do not want war with Communist China, and presumably Communist China does not want war with us. Both sides now are fairly sure of it. That puts the island campaign into some perspective. But it is a situation in which peace seems a long way off.

Though the Straits of Formosa are a long way off, this does not... ~~and~~ ~~should not~~...lessen our concern over the fighting there - simply because the machines, the men and the distance ~~is~~ are on our side. James Adams put it well when he said: "We have the comforts brought by all the new inventions of one sort or another. We can talk over the telephone to a friend ten thousand miles away. We have control of power never dreamed of by man. Yet, we have still lost much of our sense of security."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

About 5 60

Swing Jan.19

Talk of a cease fire in the Formosa Sraits appeared to give the China crisis a new turn today. Secretary Dulles said had yesterday that the United States would not object to a cease-fire. President Eisenhower today went further, he said he would like to see the United Nations try to arrange a cease fire. This sounded like an open invitation to the United Nations to see what it could do.

However the UN is not an organization to take the initiative. It is one in which a member or members have to do it. So far no member is known to be ready to take this initiative in the China crisis. The United States is not. The British, Australians and New Zeelanders all want steps taken to pacify the area. But to ask a cease fire at this stage rates as a risk. The issue would have to come before the Security Council and could run into prolonged and unpleasant wrangling. However, if the fighting were to spread seriously, so as to bring a threat of major war, then no doubt action would be sought in the UN. But talk of a cease fire at this moment is considered premature.

The difficulties of obtaining a cease fire count as great. The government of Chiang Kai Shek has made no public statement about it, but the China News, with close official contacts said today:"Free China will fight against such a presumptious idea as a cease fire in any form or under any circumstances."

¶ The Chinese Communists also could be expected to reject a cease fire unless it led to the end of the Nationalist blockade of the China Coast, and a demilitarisation of the nationalist-held coastal islands.

¶ In theory there could be two kinds of cease fire. One could apply only to military action against the coastal islands, like the present campaign near the Tachens. The other could go to the root of the problem, deal with the nationalist blockade and the military use of all the coastal islands. The first kind of cease fire, simply stopping military action, would hardly appeal to the Communists. They now have Washington's implicit assurance that the Seventh fleet is not going to defend the Tachen islands. So they think it safe to take the other coastal islands too, so why stop the campaign?

¶ The Nationalists would reject the other kind of cease fire, one that ends the blockade and demilitarizes the coastal islands. For not to do so would be to give up the claim to be the true government of China. However much this might ease tensions in Asia, the Chiang regime would not do it of its own free will.

And since ~~it~~ the Chiang government is sovereign, the United States, even if it wanted to, could not compel ~~it the regime to do it~~ it. Moreover important elements in American political life, both in Congress and the State Department would strenuously oppose the United States trying to solve the problem in this way.

¶ The curve of Communist China's aggressiveness against the Nationalists and the United States went up sharply last June, when ~~The importance of that event may have been overlooked, but it~~ the Nationalists seized a Soviet oil tanker in the Formosa Straits. The importance of that event may have been overlooked but it ~~That~~ appeared to clinch Soviet support for Peiping's claims to Formosa, about which there had been ~~some~~ doubts. Since then the Communists have moved forward steadily. In a few weeks they shot down a British passenger plane off Hainan. ~~In~~ A few weeks later Chou En-lai announced that Formosa had to be liquidated, and Moscow quickly echoed its approval. By September 3, the Communists ~~started~~ started shelling Quemoy, the next day the Soviets shot down an American patrol bomber, and a second one in November. The softening of the Tachen islands began in November. The climax came with the announcement on Nov.23 of the conviction as spies of the American uniformed airmen.

¶ So there is a kind of coherence in these events . One central motive of the Communists is to end the coastal blockade applied by the Nationalists. That keeps them from using Amoy ~~or Wan Po, the port of Canton,~~ and other coastal ports, and from bringing vital oil along the coast from Siberian ports.

¶ But to Americans there is no conceivable connection between the ~~seizure of~~ seizure of a Soviet tanker by the Chinese nationalists and the imprisonment of uniformed American airmen as spies. And nothing but confusion comes from the attack on the Nationalist island just as Dag Hammarskjeld's mission to free the airmen is under critical discussion. Peiping is reported to have said that Washington must show restraint if the air men are to be freed. Presidident Eisenhower and Secretary Dulles certainly are exhibiting the utmost restraint. But it is a one-sided retraint. And it seems fairly obvious certain that the Communists have no intention ~~[illegible]~~ of foregoing their campaign against the coastal islands. ~~¶~~ ¶ Some comfort can be taken from ~~[illegible]~~ the assurances that ~~[illegible]~~ ~~are from Mr. Hammarskjold mission. One was that the~~ the Communists know we will fight to defend Formosa ~~itself~~ and the Pescadores. And also from the assurance that Mr Hammarskjeld took to Peiping that the United States is not plotting to make war against the China mainland, behind ~~Chaing's spearhead~~ the spearhead of Chiang's forces. We do not want war with Communist China, and Communist China does not want war with us. Both sides now are ~~[illegible]~~ fairly sure of it. ~~And~~ That puts the island campaign into some perspective. But it is a situation in which peace seems a long way off.

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 19, 1955
7:15--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

Chinese Nationalist planes today attacked Communist shipping along nearly 300 miles of the enemy-held coast. And the Communists made a 200-plane attack on the Tachen Islands. The Nationalists claim they sank 17 small enemy ships.. damaged at least five more. And on Formosa, a Nationalist spokesman complained that the Communists "are going to take our islands one by one and the United States Seventh fleet is not going to do a thing about it."

This was in comment on Secretary of State Dulles's suggestion yesterday that Yee-Johng-Shan and the Tachens are not militarily important to the defense of Formosa...200 miles to the south.

At the White House today, the President said the same thing. And he told reporters he would like to see the United Nations arrange a cease-fire between the Communists and the Nationalists. He said a powder keg always exists where there is fighting and it might be good for the U.N. to take a look at the Chinese fighting.

The Chinese Nationalist foreign minister said in Washington today he's trying to get the first plane back to Formosa where "I belong."

And Republican Senator Knowland, recalled for reporters that last November he pointed out the danger of co-existence which might lead the Communist world into open "nibbling." Knowland said: "The first nibble has taken place, small though it be, and a series of small nibbles will amount to a big bite."

More recently Knowland has called the Mission to Red China by U.N. Secretary -General Hammerskjold a failure. But at his news conference today the President disagreed...and suppo ted continued United Nations efforts to get the release of the captured American airmen. The President said he does not consider negotiations a failure as long as they're going on. At the same time he will not consider the negotiations successful until the Americans are safely returned to their homes.

Mr. Hammershkold was in Washington today conferring with Secretary of State Dulles. Mr. Dulles told him there is strong sentiment in this country for "direct action" to get the release of our flyers. But "for the time being" the President will allow the U.N. to handle the case. Mr. Dulles also disclosed that Mr. Hammarskjold has received assurances from the Communists "regarding the well-being" of the Americans they hold as prisoners.

At his news conference today...filmed for television for the first time.. the President told reporters that after two years in office the foreign situation appears to him to be "more stable, generally speaking." And he said the outlook for the internal economy is good.

And the President told newsmen that he has not given his "considered approval" to testimony yesterday by Defense Secretary Wilson that we should increase our trade of non-war goods with the countries behind the Iron Curtain. Today, Foreign Aid Administrator Stassen joined Wilson in calling for increasing trade in non-strategic goods.

And Secretary Wilson today ordered Mrs. Annie Lee Moss restored to non-sensitive army duty ...and announced that Mrs. Moss has accepted a new assignment on "condition that there is no implication of subversion or disloyalty." Mrs. Moss had been suspended from her army job after Senator McCarthy charged she had a known Communist record". Mrs. Moss denied this. Today, Wilson said there is "clear indication of certain derogatory information" in the Moss file. But he says her record "does not support the conclusion that she is actually subversive or disloyal to the United States. Wilbur Brucker, counsel for the defense Department, indicated to reporters that Secretary Wilson has been bothered by the case and took it out of the hands of Army Secretary Stevens why says he'll "stand strictly on the Wilson statement."

Sec Secretary of Agriculture Benson today forecast a great decade ahead for American farmers. He said "the postwar adjustment has been completed and we are in a period of comparative stability."

The government today again put retaliatory restrictions on Russians in this country: They may not photograph or sketch anything of strategic importance...cannot buy aerial photography or large scale or navigational maps .

The Navy says the atomic submarine Nautilus has satisfactorily completed her initial trials and may make her first dive tomorrow.

Adlai Stevenson has called on the government and the Organization of American States to "act swiftly" to end the fighting in Costa Rica. Apparently there was little fighting today. Two Costa Rican pilots flew their new Mustangs fighter planes over San Jose...for practice, not into action.

In Boston, all efforts have failed to get the release of five guards held as hostages by four convicts at the state prison.

Talk of a cease fire in the Formosa Straits appeared to give the China crisis a new turn today. Secretary Dulles had said yesterday that the United States would not object to a cease fire. President Eisenhower today went further; he said he would like to see the United Nations try to arrange a cease fire. This sounded like an open invitation to the United Nations to see what it could do.

However, the U.N. is not an organization to take the initiative. It is one in which a member or members have to do it. So far no member is known to be ready to take this initiative in the China crisis. The United States is not. The British, Australians and New Zealanders all want steps taken to pacify the area. But to ask a cease fire at this stage rates as a risk. The issue would have to come before the Security Council and could run into prolonged and unpleasant wrangling. However, if the fighting were to spread seriously, so as to bring a threat of major war, then no doubt action would be sought in the U.N.. But talk of a cease fire at this moment is condidered premature.

The difficulties of obtaining a cease fire are considerable. The government of Chiang Kai Shek has made no public statements about it, but the China News, with close official contacts said today: "Free China will fight against such a presumptious idea as a cease fire in any form or under any circumstances."

The Chinese Communists also could be expected to reject a cease fire unless it led to the end of the Nationalist blockade of the China Coast, and a demilitarization of the Nationalist held coastal islands.

In theory there could be two kinds of a cease fire. One could apply only to military action against the coastal islands, like the present campaign near the Tachens. The other could go to the root of the problem, deal with the nationalist blockade and the military use of all the coastal islands. The first kind of cease fire, simple stopping military action, would hardly appeal to the Communists. They now have Washington's implicit assurance that the Seventh Fleet is not going to defend the Tachen islands. So they think it safe to take the other coastal islands too; so why stop the campaign?

The Nationalists would reject the other kind of cease fire, one that ends the blockade and demilitarized the coastal islands. For not to do so would be to give up the claim to be the true government of China. However much this might ease the tensions in Asia, the Chiang regime would not do it of its own free will. And since the Chiang government is soverign, the United States, even if it wanted to, could not compel it. Moreover, important elements in American political life, both in Congress and the State Department, would strenuously oppose the United States trying to solve the problem in this way.

The curve of Communist China's aggressiveness against the Nationalists and the United States went up sharply last June, when the Nationalists seized a Soviet oil tanker in the Formosa Straits. The importance of that event may have been overlooked, but it appeared to clinch Soviet support for Peiping's claims to Formosa, about which there had been doubts. Since then the Communists have moved forward steadily. In a few weeks they shot down a British passenger plane off Hainan. A few weeks later Chou En-lai announced that Formosa had to be liquidated, and Moscow quickly echoed its approval. By September 3, the Communists started shelling Quemoy, the next day the Soviet shot down an American patrol bomber, and a second one in November. The softening of the Tachen Islands began in November. The climax came with the announcement on November 23 of the conviction as spies of the American uniformed airmen.

So there is a kind of coherence in these events. One central motive of the Communists is to end the coastal blockade applied by the Nationalists. That keeps them from using Amoy and other coastal ports, and from bringing vital oil along the coast from Siberian ports.

But to Americans there is no conceivable connection between the siezure of a Soviet tanker by the Chinese Nationalists and the imprisonment of uniformed American airmen as spies. And nothing but confusion comes from the attack on the Nationalist island just as Dag Hammarskjold's mission to free the airmen is under critical discussion. Peiping is reported to have said that Washington must show restraint if the airmen are to be freed. President Eisenhower and Secretary Dulles certainly are exhibiting the utmost restraint. But it is a one-sided restraint. And it seems fairly obvious that the Communists have no intention of foregoing their campaign against the coastal islands.

Some comfort can be taken from the assurance that the Communists know we will fight to defend Formosa and the Pescadores. And also from the assurance that Mr. Hammerskjold took to Peiping that the United States is not plotting to make war against the China mainland, behind the spearhead of Chiang's forces. We do not want war with Communist China, and presumably Communist China does not want war with us. Both sides now are fairly sure of it. That puts the island campaign into some perspective. But if is a situation in which peace seems a long way off.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a minute with the Word for Today. But first, here's a word from Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: Though the Straits of Formosa are a long way off, this does not.. lessen our concern over the fighting there - simply because the machines, the men and the distance are on our side. James Adams put it well when he said: "We have the comforts brought by all the new inventions of one sort or another. We can talk over the telephone to a friend ten thousand miles away. We have control of power never dreamed of by man. Yet, we have still lost much of our sense of security."

Good Night and Good Luck.

Thursday Jan 20, 1955

This is the news:

The President today held out hope of a "general, though modest" reduction in taxes next year. In an economic message to the Congress, Mr. Eisenhower said: we are now in the process of a vigorous recovery from what he described as last' year's "brief and mild recession." And he foresees an expanding economy..and larger federal revenues from existing tax laws.. plus further (ECONOMIES) in Washington..making a tax cut possible. Mr. Eisenhower also recommended that the present minimum wage be increased from 75 cents an hour to 90 cents (Labor has demanded a minimum of $1.25 an hour.) The President also suggested that the states increase their jobless benefit payments.

The President started his third year in office today. And the cabinet surprised him with a leather-bound eight volume set of "The Great Centuries of Painting." The President's physician , Major General Howard M. Snyder, says the 64-year-old President is in excellent health for his age..but should get more exercise.

In a letter to Republican Representative Auchincloss of New Jersey , the President defined his program this way:"Liberal in its human concerns, conservative in its economic proposals, constructively dynmaic and optomistic in its appraisals of the future."

MRS. Eisenhower's secretary told reporters today that Senator and Mrs. McCarthy have not been invited to either of two White House dinners this week because of "a decision by the President and Mrs. Eisenhower."

The Associated Press reports from Washington tonight that the President is considering asking Congress for special authority to use American naval and air power to help evacuate Chinese Nationalists troops from islands along the Communist-held coast. The plan is to save these troops and transport them to other islands to help defend Formosa and the Pescadores.

Secretary of State Dulles today urged the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to approve promptly the Formosa Defense treaty. He said this would remove any doubt from Chinese Communist minds about our determination to defend Formosa. Later, Chairman George told reporters Mr. Dulles "had gained the impression" from United Nations Secretary-General Hammershuld that "ultimately" the eleven Americans imprisoned in Red Chin will be set free. Although Senator George said Dulles "could not give any definite assurance."

Chinese Nationalist planes today again attacked Communist ships around the Tachen islands. The Nationalists say they sank 44.. including nine gunboats. And the British charge that in their attacks yesterday, Nationalist planes sank a British coastal freighter. They are protesting to Chiank Kai Shek's government.

The Russians today released--in Berlin--Private William Verdine of Starks, Louisiana, who has been held a prisoner for five years..part of the time in the Vorkuta prison camp. He's the third American to be released by the Russians this month.

The commission representing the Organization of American States today proposed that Costa Rica and neighboring Nicaragua set up a buffer zone along their border..to avoid "incidents." Both countries have agreed. And my colleague Dan Schorr, cables from Costa Rica, that this could be the beginning of the end of the rebeliion in Costa Rica. It means that supplies for the rebels, which are generally believed to have come from Nicaragua, will now be cut off. And it also means that Nicaragua has a graceful exit from a venture which seemed doomed since the Organization of American states lined-up behind the Costa Rican government. In Nicaragua, President Somoza charged that Costa Rican planes, purchased from the United States, have violated Nicaraguan territory. He said any new "incidents" of this type will mean "grave consequences."

In Guatemala the government announces that several persons were were killed and wounded in a battle between army troops and A REBEL FORCE that tried to seize a military base. The Interior Ministry says it has known for several days of a plot against the anti-Communist government of Guatemala.

In Washington, the Army announced that General Ridgeway, the army chief of staff, will be retained beyond his normal retirement date: when he reaches the age of 60 on March 31st. This will permit General Ridgeway to serve a full two-year term as the army's top officer. (His appointment will expire in August of this year.)

In Boston, those four convicts who are holding five prison guards as hostages have again refused to release the guards. And after a two-hour meeting with the prisoners the situation was described by one official as "still critical."

Edward R. Murrow: January 20, 1955. 7.45 p.m.

The President's news conferences are to be regularly filmed hereafter. It was done for the first time yesterday, and C.B.S. and N.B.C. last night each carried thirty minutes of the conference on a sustaining basis, while T.V. news programs used excerpts from the film.

This came to pass after much reflection, but as though it were just another step in the government making use of modern communications, or the other way around - modern communications making use of the government. But this is an event of considerable importance. It pretty well clinches the President's news conference as a permanent institution in American life. No future President is bound to follow Mr. Eisenhower's example. But it now has become possible for a President to lead American thought and opinion, to stimulate it, guide and clarify it and thereby enhance his influence as Chief Executive. Future presidents should be expected to help themselves in the same way.

A President, by submitting to questions by Washington correspondents, gains regular access to the whole newspaper and radio public. This is the closest we come in this country to the question period in the British House of Commons. It is quite a different thing, for newsmen are not elected to quizz the President, nor are they responsible to voters. But in this country the public does not follow congressional debates closely, as in England; instead it reads Washington news. So the President's news conference has come to rank with Congress as a news source. Points in policy that need elucidation get it. Currents of disapproval of policy can be felt in the questions. Two things have happened, the President has been given greater scope for leadership, and he also gets a feel of public opinion from the correspondents. This may not be a formal democracy, but it is an extension of democracy in practise.

This was true before the conference was filmed. But making it available to the huge T.V. audience has magnified its importance. It also has changed one of the ground rules. Formerly the President could not be quoted directly without specific permission. But when the President speaks from the film, quotation cannot be indirect. # Indirect quotation had become pretty much of a fiction, since the entire transcript of the conference was available, and it didn't really matter whether the President's words were in quotes or not. Now the rule on quotation is waived for such portions of the film as are released for use.

But a new ground rule has been introduced. The White House staff keeps the editorial control of the T.V. film and can forbid the use of all or any part of it. Yesterday's conference ran over thirty minutes, and the cutting was done to bring it within that period. Subjects of minor or local interest were eliminated.

But a principle is involved. The full right to the selection of the T.V. material is out of the hands of the T.V. editors and is kept in the hands of the President's staff. Presumably it wants to be able to cut out any footage where the President may not have done well. But if that is the motive it is not well served. For the full transcript continues to be public property, and anyone can read exactly what the President did say. It can't be covered up. And it looks as though the White House staff was hanging on to a control that already has been given up. The President already must accept the consequences of what he says. That puts a strain on him, which may be a little greater under the lights. He can't speak his mind freely or feel his way as in a private conversation. But that is what a news conference has become. ~~And the President might as well let the T.V. editors choose what to use and what to delete.~~

But that raises another point, the responsibility of the T.V. editors to present the news conference fully and fairly. A metropolitan newspaper

can carry the story of the news conference on page one and then publish the entire transcript on another page. Then the reader can check for himself. On T.V. and radio this is impossible. On T.V., editing tends ~~too much~~ at times to play news according to the available pictures rather than its importance. If the White House eliminates some shots, editors should be on the watch to keep any newsworthy passage from being suppressed. If the Picture isn't available - the facts must be told. That is, ~~they~~ editors must not let the White House do their editing for them. But having taken this precaution, the networks have the responsibility to give the conference the time it deserves. This is a public service, and it should be performed adequately and regularly when the novelty has worn off.

This reporter does not know how much the coming presidential election had to do with the decision to put the Eisenhower news conference on T.V. Presumably a good deal. That is no argument against it. The conference probably will strengthen the President's standing with the country. He is now a good broadcaster and conducts a news conference well. He can be earnest and persuasive on big issues, and also can lay down a hot potato without burning his fingers. Now and again he flounders, but that is to be expected. By going on T.V. he adds somewhat to his risks. But he can gain impressively. For he can become the most intimately known President yet produced by the American system of government.

Those who~~se ~~ concern themselves with the President's public relations are quite naturally anxious about any innovation which ~~might ~~ affect the Pres. ~~Relations with the Public~~ But Joseph Addison once set up a pretty good rule when he said:"The chief ingredients in the composition of those qualities that gain esteem and praise, are good nature, truth, good sense and good breeding." -- This, more than 2-hundred years before television.

Good Nite and Good Luck!

Edward R. Murrow: January 20, 1955. 7.45 p.m.

The President's news conferences are to be regularly filmed hereafter. It was done for the first time yesterday, and C.B.S. and N.B.C. last night each carried thirty minutes of the conference on a sustaining basis, while T.V. news programs used excerpts from the film.

This came to pass without much reflection, as though it were just another step in the government making use of modern communications, or the other way around - modern communications making use of the government. But this is an event of considerable importance. It pretty well clinches the President's news conference as a permanent institution in American life. No future President is bound to follow Mr. Eisenhower's example. But it now has become possible for a President to lead American thought and opinion, to stimulate it, guide and clarify it and thereby enhance his influence as Chief Executive. Future presidents should be expected to help themselves in the same way.

A President, by submitting to questions by Washington correspondents, gains regular access to the whole newspaper and radio public. This is the closest we come in this country to the question period in the British House of Commons. It is quite a different thing, for newsmen are not elected to quizz the President, nor are they responsible to voters. But in this country the public does not follow congressional debates closely, as in England; instead it reads Washington news. So the President's news conference has come to rank with Congress as a news source. Points in policy that need elucidation get it. Currents of disapproval of policy can be felt in the questions. Two things have happened, the President has been given greater scope for leadership, and he also gets a feel of public opinion from the correspondents. This may not be a formal democracy, but it is an extension of democracy in practise.

This was true before the conference was filmed. But making it available to the huge T.V. audience has magnified its importance. It also has changed one of the ground rules. Formerly the President could not be quoted directly without specific permission. But when the President speaks from the film, quotation cannot be indirect. Indirect quotation had become pretty much of a fiction, since the entire transcript of the conference was available, and it didn't really matter whether the President's words were in quotes or not. Now the rule on quotation is waived for such portions of the film as are released for use.

But a new ground rule has been introduced. The White House staff keeps the editorial control of the T.V. film and can forbid the use of all or any part of it. Yesterday's conference ran over thirty minutes, and the cutting was done to bring it within that period. Subjects of minor or local interest were eliminated.

But a principle is involved. The full right to the selection of the T.V. material is out of the hands of the T.V. editors and is kept in the hands of the President's staff. Presumably it wants to be able to cut out any footage where the President may not have done well. But if that is the motive it is not well served. For the full transcript continues to be public property, and anyone can read exactly what the President did say. It can't be covered up. And it looks as though the White House staff was hanging on to a control that already has been given up. The President already must accept the consequences of what he says. That puts a strain on him, which may be a little greater under the lights. He can't speak his mind freely or feel his way as in a private conversation. But that is what a news conference has become. And the President might as well let the T.V. editors choose what to use and what to delete.

But that raises another point, the responsibility of the T.V. editors to present the news conference fully and fairly. A metropolitan newspaper can carry the story of the news conference on page one and then publish the entire transcript on another page. Then the reader can check for himself. On T.V. and radio this is impossible. On T.V., editing tends too much to play news according to the available pictures rather than its importance. If the White House eliminates some shots, editors should be on the watch to keep any newsworthy passage from being suppressed. That is, they must not let the White House do their editing for them. But having taken this precaution, the networks have the responsibility to give the conference the time it deserves. This is a public service, and it should be performed adequately and regularly when the novelty has worn off.

This reporter does not know how much the coming presidential election had to do with the decision to put the Eisenhower news conference on T.V. Presumably a good deal. That is no argument against it. The conference probably will strengthen the President's standing with the country. He is by now a good broadcaster and conducts a news conference well. He can be earnest and persuasive on big issues, and also can lay down a hot potato without burning his fingers. Now and again he flounders, but that is to be expected. By going on T.V. he adds somewhat to his risks. But he can gain impressively. For he can become the most intimately known President yet produced by the American system of government.

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

THURSDAY, JANUARY 20, 1955
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

The President today held out hope of a "general, though modest" reduction in taxes next year. In an economic message to the Congress, Mr. Eisenhower said: we are now in the process of a vigorous recovery from what he described as last year's "brief and mild recession." And he foresees an expanding economy...and larger federal revenues from existing tax laws...plus further economies in Washington...making a tax cut possible. Mr. Eisenhower also recommended that the present minimum wage be increased from 75 cents an hour to 90 cents. (Labor has demanded a minimum of $1.25 an hour.) The President also suggested that the states increase their jobless benefit payments.

The President started his third year in office today. And the cabinet surprised him with a leather-bound eight volume set of "The Great centuries of Painting." The President's physician, Major General Howard M. Snyder, says the 54-year-old President is in excellent health for his age...but should get more exercise.

In a letter to Republican Representative Auchincloss of New Jersey, the President defined his program this way: "Liberal in its human concerns, conservative in its economic proposals, constructively dynamic and opeimistic in its appraisals of the future."

Mrs. Eisenhower's secretary told reporters today that Senator and Mrs. McCarthy have not been invited to eigher of two White House dinners this week because of "a decision by the President and Mrs. Eisenhower."

The Associated Press reports from Washington tonight that the President is considering asking Congress for special authority to use American naval and air power...to help evacuate Chinese Nationalists troops from islands along the Communist - held coast. The plan is to save these troops and transport them to other islands to help defend Formosa and the Pescadores.

Secretary of State Dulles today urged the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to approve promptly the Formosa Defense treaty. He said this would remove any doubt from Chinese Communist minds about our determination to defend Formosa. Later, Chairman George told reporters Mr. Dulles "had gained the impression" from United Nations Secretary General Hammerskjold that "ultimately" the eleven Americans imprisoned in Red China will be set free. Although Senator George said Dulles "could not give any definite assurance."

Chinese Nationalist planes today again attacked Communist ships around the Tachen islands. The Nationalists say they sank 44...including nine gunboats. And the British charge that in their attacks yesterday Nationalist planes sank a British coastal freighter. They are protesting to Chiang Kai Shek's government.

The Russians today released -- in Berlin -- Private William Verdine of Starks, Louisiana, who has been held a prisoner for five years...part of the time in Vorkuta prison camp. He's the third American to be released by the Russians this month.

The commission representing the Organization of American States today proposed that Costa Rica and neighboring Nicaragua set up a buffer zone along their border...to avoid "border incidents." Both countries have agreed. And my colleague Dan Schorr, cables from Costa Rica, that this could be the beginning of the end of the rebellion in Costa Rica. It means that supplies for the rebels, which are generally believed to have come from Nicaragua, will now be cut off. And it also means that Nicaragua has a graceful exit from a venture which seemed doomed since the Organization of American states lined-up behind the Costa Rican government. In Nicaragua, President Somoza charged that Costa Rican planes, purchased from the United States, have violated Nicaraguan territory.. He said any new "incidents" of this type will mean "grave consequences."

In Guatemala the government announces that several persons were killed and wounded in a battle between army troops and a rebel force that tried to sieze a military base. The interior Ministry says it has known for several days of a plot against the anti-Communist government of Guatemala.

In Washington, the Army announced that General Ridgeway, the army chief of staff, will be retained beyond his normal retirement date; when he reaches the age of 60 on March 31st. This will permit General Ridgeway to serve a full two-year term as the army's top officer. His appointment will expire in August of this year.

In Boston, those four convicts who are holding five prison guards as hostages have again refused to release the guards. And after a two hour meeting with the prisoners the situation was described by one official as "still criticla".

The President's news conferences are to be regularly filmed hereafter. It was done for the first time yesterday, and C.B.S. and N.B.C. last night each carried thirty minutes of the conference on a sustaining bases, while T.V. news programs used excerpts from the film.

This came to pass after much reflection, but as though it were just another step in the step in the government making use of modern communications, or the other way around - modern communications making use of the government. But this is an event of considerable importance. It pretty well clinches the President's news conference as a permanent institution in American life. No future President is bound to follow Mr. Eisenhower's example. But it now has become possible for a President to lead American thought and opinion, to stimulate it, guide and clarify it and thereby enhance his influence as Chief Executive. Future presidents should be expected to help themselves in the same way.

A President, by submitting to questions by Washington correspondents, gains regular access to the whole newspaper and radio public. This is the closest we come in this country to the question period in the British House of Commons. It is quite a different thing, for newsmen are not elected to quiz the President, nor are they responsible to voters. But in this country the public does not follow congressional debates closely, as in England; instead it reads Washington news. So the President's news conference has come to rank with Congress as a news source. Points in policy that need elucidation get it. Currents of disapproval of policy can be felt in the questions. Two things have happened, the President has been given greater scope for leadership, and he also gets a feel of public opinion from the correspondents. This may not be a formal democracy, but it is an extension of democracy in practice.

This was true before the conference was filmed. But making it available to the huge T.V. audience has magnified its importance. It also has changed one of the ground rules. Formerly the President could not be quoted directly without specific permission. But when the President speaks from the film, quotations cannot be indirect.

Indirect quotation had become pretty much of a fiction, since the entire transcript of the conference was available, and it didn't really matter whether the President's rords were in quotes or not. Now the rule on quotation is waived for such portions of the film as are released for use.

But a new ground rule has been introduced. The White House staff keeps the editorial control of the T.V. film and can forbid the use of all or any part of it. Yesterday's conference ran over thirty minutes, and the cutting was done to bring it within that period. Subjects of minor or local interest were eliminated.

But a principle is involved. The full right to the selection of the T.V. material is out of the hands of the T.V. editors and is kept in the hands of the President's staff. Presumably it wants to be able to put out any footage where the President may not have done well. But if that is the motive it is not well served. For the full transcript continues to be public property, and anyone can read exactly what the President did say. It can't be covered up. And it looks as though the White House staff was hanging on to a control that already has been given up. The President already must accept the consequences of what he says. That puts a strain on him, which may be a little greater under the lights. He can't speak his mind freely or feel his way as in a private conversation. But that is what a news conference has become.

But that raises another point, the responsibility of the T.V. editors to present the news conference fully and fairly. A metropolitan newspaper can carry the story of the news conference on page one and then publish the entire transcript on another page. Then the reader can check for himself. On T.V. and radio this is impossible. On T.V. editing tends at times to play news according th the available pictures rather than its importance. If the White House eliminates some shots, editors should be on the watch to keep any newsworthy passage from being surpressed. If the picture isn't available - the facts must be told. That is, editors must not let the White House do their editing for them. But having taken this precaution, the networks have the responsibility to give the conference the time it deserves. This is a public service, and it should be performed adequately and regularly when the novelty has worn off.

This reporter does not know how much the coming presidential election had to do with the decision to put the Eisenhower news conference on T.V.. Presumably a good deal. That is no argument against it. The conference probably will strengthen the President's standing with the country. He is now a good broadcaster and conducts a news conference well. He can be earnest and persuasive on big issues, and also can lay down a hot potato without burning his fingers. Now and again he flounders, but that is to be expected. By going on T.V. he adds somewhat to his risks. But he can gain impressively. For he can become the most intimately known President yet produced by the American system of government.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a moment with the Word for Today.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: Those who concern themselves with the President's public relations are quite naturally anxious about any innovation affecting the President. Joseph Addison once set up a pretty good rule when he said: "The chief ingredients in the composition of thoes qualities that gain esteem and praise, are good nature, truth, good sense and good breeding." This, more than 2-hundred years before televison.

Good Night and Good Luck.

Friday, January 21, 1955

This is the news:

Chinese Nationalist planes today again attacked Communist gunboats and junks along the China Coast. And a Defense Ministry spokesman says "so far we have no plan to evacuate any of our island outposts." He added: "All of them will be defended at all costs."

But ~~apprently~~ APPARENTLY this is not the thinking in Washington. After the President conferred with the National ~~[illegible]~~ Security Council and later with top cabinet officials, informed sources told reporters: Next week, perhaps on Monday, the President will ask Congress to approve the use of our air and naval forces to move ~~[illegible]~~ Nationalist troops..take them off islands where their defense would be hopeless..and re-group them for any Communist attack on Formosa and the neighboring Pescadores. The President will also ask authorization to use American forces to protect the big islands. ~~[illegible]~~ (I would like to discuss these problems in a few minutes.)

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee today voted 14 to one to approve the new eight-nation treaty for Southeast Asia. Republican Senator Langer of North Dakota voted against the treaty.

The Chinese Communists announced today that the relatives of the 17 Americans jailed in China are welcome to visit the prisoners. The "invitation" was also announced by the United Nations. It grew out of the recent talks between Secretary-General Hammershuld and Chou en Lai. Most of the relatives, contacted by ~~the press~~ Reporters, were undecided today on what they wanted to do..or could afford to do. And the State Department, three hours after the Communist announcement, said our government cannot "encourage" relatives to visit Red China because this is an area "where the normal protections of an American passport cannot be offered." But the statement did not say that passports would not be issued. News Officer Henry Suydam criticized the Communists for not releasing the Americans. He said "the families of these imprisoned Americans are in a harrowing dilemma." And he pointed out that if the trip is taken by the relatives of these men the government cannot assume responsibility for their travel in Red China. However, the United Nations says Dag Hammershuld "has no doubt about the safety of those members of the families wishing to visit China to see their men."

Republican Senator Potter of Michigan calls the Communist announcement "an appallingly callous propaganda gesture." And Chairman George of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee says "it may be a goodwill gesture or it may be for propaganda purposes. It's a delicate situation."

The American Red Cross says it will assist any relatives who want to go to China "in every appropriate way" including the entire cost if necessary.

The government of Costa Rica reports tonight that the fighting there is almost over. President Jose Figuueres calls it "a victory for the democracies of the western hemisphere." A communique says ~~nma~~ some pockets of rebel resistance remain in the northern part of the country but the gov rnment expects " annihilation or surrender of these points during the day." My colleague Dan Schorr reports from San Jose that a Costa Rican pincer movement aimed at cutting off the rebels retreat has failed..most of them will probably succeed in crossing the border into Nicaragua. One captured prisoner says he and 400 other men were trained at a Nicaraguan National guard camp for months before the battle started.

And the Guatemalan government says it now has absolute control of the political and military situation throughout the country..after yesterday's abortive Communist-led rebelllion.

The Hawaiian Sea Frontier says that a Coast Guard plane has reported sighting seven survivors of a twin-engined Navy amphibian plane that was forced down Wednesday night in the Central Pacific. The raft was sighted in the area between Johnston island and Kwajalein.

And the Air Force today ordered Colonel Patrick W. Hayes to show why he should not be dismissed from the service for associating in Germany with a woman who has been convicted as a spy for Russia.

The government reported today that the cost of living went down slightly in December to reach the lowest level in 18 months. A new low in food prices was given major credit for the drop.

THose four convicts in Boston who have held five guards as hostages since Tuesday surrendered today..without any trouble. The convicts gave up after talking to a special citizens committee that they selected. And the chairman of the committee, Erwin D. Canham, editor of the Christian Science Monitor, said "no deal or bargain" was made. The convicts did receive a promise that everything will be done to work with state officials, "to get something so that the convicts would have some hope for the future."

Here in New York, Dr. Jonas E. Salk reported new evidence that his polio vaccine could create very long or perhaps lifetime protection against infantile paralysis.

Edward R. Murrow: January 21, 1955. 7.45 p.m.

Interest in the China crisis centered today on the Tachen Islands and the possibility that the Seventh Fleet may be used to evacuate the Chinese Nationalist garrison there. President Eisenhower may ask Congress next week to authorize the use of the Seventh Fleet to defend Formosa and the Pescadores, and may link this with the use of the Fleet to evacuate the Nationalist forces from coastal islands. He can order the fleet to help evacuate these garrisons without the approval of Congress, since it would not be a belligerent act. And it may come as a surprise that he should ask Congress to approve using the fleet for the defense of Formosa, since this has been American policy all along. But a doubt has been expressed about his right to do this without Congressional authority. So the two questions may come up together. No opposition is expected to the pledge to defend Formosa. And there may be less objection to the evacuation proposal if it is linked with a fresh warning to the Communists not to try to take Formosa. By itself the evacuation proposal might meet some opposition. For it amounts to giving any evacuated islands to the Communists.

The Nationalists on Formosa are taking a sour view of the evacuation proposal. It seems to have been even more definitely reported in Taipeh yesterday than in Washington. The Nationalists say that if the United States had made known its determination to defend the coastal islands they would not have been attacked. But they admit that the Communists had superior power north of the Tachens, especially in the air, so that the outposts couldn't be held. However, they can't look on evacuation with any favor, for if the Tachens are evacuated, so can other islands be, and that means losing them to the Communists, and the end of the Nationalist blockade of the China Coast. They have complained that a cease-fire on such terms would amount to cancelling their claims to return to the mainland. Nevertheless, the idea of evacuating the Tachen garrison appears to have backing in the Administration and Congress if coupled with the strongest assurance that Formosa will be defended.

The Administration is acutely aware that the whole of Southeast Asia is what President Eisenhower called a kind of powder keg. Little has been done since the armistice in Indochina to bring peace to the region. The meeting of the Southeast Asian Treaty Organization, which should deal with the problem, is a month away and even when it convenes will not be able to do much. Its job is to put teeth into the defense pact. But that is easier said than done. It is clear that it can't have a coalition army like NATO in Europe. If a major war breaks out, massive retaliation by the United States would have to be the principal defense. And any brush-fire wars would have to be fought with local armies, with the very nature of SEATO intervention still in doubt.

Brushfire wars could come from an attack on Thailand by the so-called "free Thai" forces, which are communist, or by fifth column forces in Laos. The danger may not be great, but the threat of subversion is genuine, in Thailand, Laos and Southern Vietnam. The SEATO meeting will try to work out a formula to deal with subversion. Some people ask that a line be drawn beyond which Communists cannot go without meeting resistance. It is not easy to say when and how subversion crosses a line.

It gives an idea how explosive the region can become to learn that the British are working feverishly to build up a Commonwealth defense of Malaya without waiting for teeth to be put into SEATO. If the whole of Indochina and most of Thailand should be lost, Malaya would be the next victim. The British don't expect this to happen, and don't distrust the ultimate effectiveness of SEATO, but they are rushing ahead with the re-organization of the Malaya defense. They have modernized Butterworth airfield, cleared ten thousand squatters from the Kra battle zone and organized Gurkha and Malay regiments, plus some Fijians, to take the place of the Indians who used to defend Malaya. And having pressed for direct Australian aid, they expect the early arrival of an Australian battalion group with its own air support.

It goes to underscore the rising danger that Washington has been informed that the Soviet Union has lend-leased six submarines to the Chinese Communists and is training Chinese crews at Dairen, with more advanced training at Hainan Island. Since the Chinese Communists have up to two thousand jet planes of Soviet origin, the potential Communist strength in the Formosa Strait is great enough so that the task of the Seventh Fleet to defend Formosa cannot be called one-sided.

The overall picture is anything but assuring. And it helps explain why Washington is welcoming, and perhaps even prompting, the talk of a cease fire.

These are tense times ~~in which we're living~~. And no one is more aware of this than the President. Abraham Lincoln once suggested quite appropriately:"Beware of rashness, but with energy and sleepless vigilance, go forward." This would seem to be Mr. Eisenhower's present attitude - perhaps best described by Anatole France when he said:"That man is prudent who neither hopes nor fears anything from the uncertain events of the future."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

Interest in the China crisis centered today on the Tachen Islands and the possibility that the Seventh Fleet may be used to evacuate the Chinese Nationalist garrison there. President Eisenhower may ask Congress next week to authorize the use of the Seventh Fleet to defend Formosa and the Pescadores, and may link this with the use of the Fleet to evaucate the Nationalist forces from the coastal islands. Actually he probably can order the fleet to help evacuate these garrisons without the approval of Congress since this would not be belligerent act. And it may come as a surprise that he would ask Congress to approve using the fleet for the defense of Formosa, since this has been American policy all along. But a doubt has been expressed about his right to do this without Congressional authority. So the two questions may come up together. No opposition is expected to the pledge to defend Formosa. And there may be less objection to the evaucation proposal if it is linked with a fresh warning to the Communists not to try to take Formosa. By itself the evacuation proposal might meet some opposition. For it amounts to ceding any evacuated islands to the Communists.

¶ The Nationalists on Formosa are taking a sour view of the evacuation proposal. It seems to have been even more definitely reported in Taipeh yesterday than in Washington. The Nationalists say that if the United States had made known its determination to defend the coastal islands they would not have been attacked. But they admit that the Communists had superior power, especially in the air, so that the outposts north of the Tachens couldn't be held. However, they can't look on evacuation with any favor, for if the Tachens are evacuated, so can other islands be, and that means losing them to the Communists, and the end of the Nationalist blockade of the China Coast. They have complained that a cease fire on such terms would amount to cancelling their claims to return to the mainland. Nevertheless, the idea of evacuating the Tachen garrisons appears to have backing in the Administration, and Congress of course, with the strongest Congressional assurance that Formosa will be defended.

The Administration is acutely aware that the whole of Southeast Asia is what President Eisenhower called a kind of powder keg. Little has been done since the armistice in Indochina to bring peace to the region. The meeting of the Southeast Asian Treaty Organization which should deal with the problems, is a month away and even when it convenes will not be able to do much. Its job is to put teeth into the defense pact. But that is easier said than done. It is clear that it can't have a coalition army like NATO in Europe. If a major war breaks out, massive retaliation by the United States would have to be the principal defense.. And any brushfire wars would have to be fought with local armies, with the very nature of SEATO intervention still in doubt.

¶ Brushfire wars could come from an attack on Thailand by the socalled "free Thai" forces, which are communist, or by fifth column forces in Laos. The dangers may not be great, but the threat of subversion is genuine in Thailand, Laos and Southern Vietnam. The SEATO meeting will try to work out a formula to deal with subversion. Some people ask that a line be drawn beyond which Communists cannot go without meeting resistance. It is not easy to say when and how subversion crosses a line.

¶ It gives an idea how explosive the region can become to learn that the British are working feverishly to build up a Commonwealth defense of Malaya without waiting for teeth to be put into SEATO. If the whole of Indochina and most of Thailand should be lost, Malaya would be the next victim. The British don't expect this to happen, and don't distrust the ultimate effectiveness of SEATO, but they are rushing ahead with the reorganization of the Malaya defense. They have modernized Butterworth airfield, cleared tenthousand squatters from the Kra battle zone and organized Gurkha and Malay regiments, plus some Fijians, to take the place of the Indians who used to defend Malaya. And having pressed for direct Australian aid, they expect the early arrival of an Australian battalion group with its own air support.

¶ It goes to underscore the rising danger that Washington has been informed that the Soviet Union has lend-leased six submarines to the Chinese Communists and is training Chinese crews at Dairen, with more advanced training at Hainan Island. Since the Chinese Communists have up to 2,000 jet planes of Soviet origin, the potential Communist strength in the Formosa Strait is great enough so that the task of the Seventh Fleet to defend Formosa cannot be called one-sided.

The overall picture is anything but assuring. And that helps explain why Washington is welcoming, and perhaps even prompting, the talk of a cease fire.

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

FRIDAY, JANUARY 21, 1955
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

Chinese Nationalist planes today again attacked Communist gunboats and junks along the China Coast. And a Defense Ministry spokesman says "so far we have no plan to evacuate any of our island outposts." He added: "All of them will be defended at all costs."

But apparently this is not the thinking in Washington. After the President conferred with the National Security Council and later with top cabinet offivials, informed sources told reporters: Next week, perhaps on Monday, the President will ask Congress to approve the use of our air and naval forces to move Nationalist troops...take them off islands where their defense would be hopeless...and re-group them for any Communist attack on Formosa and the neighboring Pescodores. The President will also ask authorization to use the American forces to protect the big islands. I would like to discuss these problems in a few minutes.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee today voted 14 to one to approve the new eight-nation treaty for Southeast Asia. Republican Senator Langer of North Dakota aoted against the treaty.

The Chinese Communists announced today that the relatives of the 17 Americans jailed in China are welcome to visit the prisoners. The "invitation" has also announced the the United Nations. It grew out of t he recent talks between Sec etary-General Hammarskjold and Chou en Lai. Most of the relatives, contacted by Reporters, were undecided today on what they wanted to do..or could afford to do. And the State Department, three hours after the Communist accouncement, said our government cannot "encourage " relatives to visit Red China because this is an area"where the normal protections of an American passport cannot be offered." But the statement did not say that passports would not be issued. News Officer Henry Suydam criticized the Communists for not releasing the Americans. He said "the families of these imprisoned Americans are in a harrowing dilemma."And he pointed out that if the trip is taken by the relatives of these men the governemtn cannot assume responsibility for their travel in Red China. However, the United Nations says Dag Hammerakjold "has no doubt about the safety of those members of the families wishing to visit China to see their men."

Republican Senator Potter of Michigan calls the Communist announcement "an appalingly callous propaganda gesture." And Chairman George of the Senate Foreigh Relations Committee says "it may be a goodwill gesture or it may be for propaganda purposes. It's a delicate situation."

The American Red Cross says it will assist any relatives who want to go to China "in every appropriate way" including the entire cost if necessary.

The government of Costa Rica reports tonight that the fighting there is almost over. President Jose Figueres calls it "a victory for the democracies of the western hemisphere." A communique says some pockets of rebel resistance remain in the northern part of the country but the government expects "annihilation or surrender of these points during the day." My colleague Dan Schorr reports from San Jose that a Costa Rican pincer movement aimed at cutting off the rebel retreat has failed...most of them will probably succeed in crossing the border into Nicaragua. One captured prisoner says he and 400 other men were trained at a Nicaraguan National Guard camp for months before the battle started.

And the Guatemalan government says it now has absolute control of the the political and military situation throughout the country...after yesterday's abortive Communist led rebellion.

The Hawaiian Sea Frontier says that a Coast Guard plane has reported sighting seven survivors of a twin-engined Navy amphibian plane that was forced down Wednesday night in the Central Pacific. The raft was sighted in the area between Johnston Island and Kwajelein.

And the Air Force today ordered Colonel Patrick W. Hayes to show why he should not be dismissed from the service for associating in Germany with a woman who has been convicted as a spy for Russia.

The government reported today that the cost of living went down slightly in December to reach the lowest level in 18 months. A new low in food prices was given major credit for the drop.

Those four convicts in Boston who have held five guards as hostages since Tuesday surrendered today....without any trouble. The convicts gave up after talking to a special citizens committee that they selected. And the chairman of the committee, Erwin D. Canham, editor of the Christian Science Monitor, said "no deal or bargain" was made. The convicts did recieve a promise that everything will be done to work with state officials, "to get something so that the convicts would have some hope for the future."

Here in New York, Dr. Jonas E. Salk reported new evidence that his polio vaccine could create very long or perhaps liietime protection against infintile paralysis.

Interest in the China crisis centered today on the Tachen Islands and the possibility that the Seventh Fleet may be used to evacuate the Chinese Nationalists garrison there. President Eisenhower may ask Congress next week to authorize the use of the Seventh Fleet to defend Formosa and the Pescadores, and may link this with the use of the Fleet to evacuate the Nationalist forces from coastal islands. He can order the fleet to help evacuate these garrisons without the approval of Congress, since it would not be a belligerant act. And it may come as a surprise that he should ask Congress to approve using the fleet for the defense of Formosa, since this has been American policy all along. But a doubt has been expressed about his right to do this without Congressional authority. So the two questions may come up together. No opposition is expected to the pledge to defend Formosa. And there may be less objection to the evacuation proposal if it is linked with a fresh warning to the Communists not to try to take Formosa. By itself the evacuation proposal might meet some opposition. For it amounts to any evacuated islands to the Communists.

The Nationalists on Formosa are taking a sour view of the evacuation proposal. It seems to have been even more definitely reported in Taipeh yesterday than in Washington. The Nationalists say that if the United States had made known its determination to defend the coastal islands they would not have veen attacked. But they admit that the Communists had superior power north of the Tachens, especially in the air,so that the outposts couldn't be held. However, they can't look on evacuation with any favor, for if the Tachens are evacuated, so can other islands be, and that means losing them th the Communists, and the end of the Nationalist blockade of the China Coast. They have complained that a cease fire on such terms would amount to cancelling their claims to return to the mainland. Nevertheless, the idea of ecacuating the Tachen garrison appears to have backing in the Administration and Congress if coupled with the strongest assurance that Formosa will be defended.

The Administration is acutely aware that the whole of Southeast Asia is what President Eisenhower called a kind of powder keg. Little has been done since the armistice in Indochina to bring peace to the region. The meeting of the Southeast Asian Treaty Organization, which should deal with the problem, is a month away and even when it convenes will not be able to do much. Its job is to put teeth into the defense pact. But that is easier said than done. It is clear that it can't have a coalition army like NATO in Europe. If a major war breaks out, massive retaliation by the United States would have to be the principal defense. And any brush-fire wars would have to be fought with local armies, with the very nature of SEATO intervention still in doubt.

Brushfire wars could come from an attack on Thailand by the so-called "free Thai" forces, which are Communist, or th fifth column forces in Laos. The danger man not be great, but the threat of subversion is genuine, in Thailand, Laos and Southern Vietnam. The Seato meeting will try to work out a formula to deal with subversion. Some people ask that a line be drawn beyond which Communists cannot go without meeting resistance. It is not easy to say when andhow subversion crosses a line.

It gives an idea how explosive the region can become to learn that the British are wroking feverishly to build up a Commonwealth defense of Malaya without waiting for teeth to be put into SEATO. If the whole of Indochina and most of Thailand should be lost, Malaya would be the next victime. The British don't expect this to happen, and don't distrust the ultimate effectiveness of SEATO, but they are rushing ahead with the re-organization of the Malaya defense. They have modernized Butterworth airfield, cleared ten thousand squatters from the Kra battle zone and organized Gurkha and Malay regiments, plus some Fijians, to take the place of the Indians who used to defend Malaya. And having pressed for direct Australian aid, they expect the early arrival of an Australian battalion group with its own air support.

It goes to underscore the rising danger that Washington has been informed that the Soviet Union has lend-leased six submarines to the Chinese Communists and is training Chinese crews at Dairen, with more advanced training at Hainan Island. Since the Chinese Communists have up to two thousand jet planes of Soviet origin, the potential Communist strength in Formosa Strait is great enough so that the task of the Seventh Fleet to defend Formosa cannot be called one-sided.

The overall picture is anything but assuring. And it helps explain why Washington is welcoming, and perhaps even prompting, the talk of a cease fire.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a moment with the word for today. But first, here's a word from Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: There are tense times and no one is more aware of this than the President. Abraham Lincoln once suggested quite appropriately: "Beware of rashness, but with energy and sleepless vigilance, go forward." This would seem to be Mr. Eisenhower's president attitude - perhaps best described by Anatole France when he said:"That man is prudent who neither hopes nor fears anything from the uncertain events of the future."

Good Night and Good Luck.

Monday January 24, 1955

This is the news:

The President today asked Congress to declare "our readiness to fight" to keep Formosa free. And five hours later, the House Foreign Affairs committee unanimously approved a resolution to give Mr. Eisenhower almost unlimited power to commit our armed forces to the defense of the Chinese Nationalist island. In his message, the President said Communist China already poses a serious danger to our security, and to the peace of the world. He said that in the interests of this peace, we must remove any doubt regarding our readiness to fight, if necessary. The President made it very clear that "our purpose is peace." And he said the threatening aspects of the present situation "may be temporary, if resolutely faced." In both houses of Congress there were indications of quick approval of the President's request. (which I'd like to examine in some detail in a few minutes). And there was also the expressed feeling that this could lead to considerable action. House Speaker Rayburn expressed his confidence in the President and his advisors..called them "prudent men, who have weighed the possible consequences." Representative McCormack of Massachusetts, a Democrat, says there is no question "but what our country is taking a calculated risk. Republican Leader Knowland says this is necessary "unless we want to see all Asia go down (UNDER) the Communist regime." Some Democrats say they find it difficult to reconcile this policy with the Administration's recommended cuts in the appropriations for the armed forces.

(OUT) in the Far East, our 7th fleet is "ready for any eventuality." Awaiting Congressional approval and new orders. The feeling on Formosa is that as soon as the legislation is in shape the fleet will be told to help evacuate the Nationalist garrison in the Tachens islands, 200 miles north of Formosa.

And just before the President sent his message to Congress the Chinese Communists warned again that they intend to liberate Formosa. Premier Chou en Lai, in a broadcast over the Pepking radio, said: The United States "must" get out of the Formosan area..must (STOP) intervening in Red China's "internal affairs." The United States is accused of stepping up its "military operations to make war provocations." And we are accused of using "war threats and brandishing atomic weapons" in an attempt to force Red China to tolerate "the occupation of Formosa."

The Communists also rejected the President's suggestion that the United Nations ~~attempt~~ (ATTEMPT) to work out a cease-fire in the Formosa Strait.

The Chinese Nationalists welcome the President's message. Their chief delegate says it makes the American position clear on further Communist aggression in the Formosan area and it ~~the~~ is not conditional upon action by the U.N. And the British call Mr. Eisenhower's proposal "a fair and reasonable" effort to relax tension in the Far East,

Here in New York, aircraft and many defense stocks rose sharply today on the basis of the President's message.

The Moscow radio says A.I. Mikoyan, minister of internal trade, has been relieved of his duty at his request. Western experts have generally ranked Mikoyan in the Soviet hierarchy behind Malenkov, Molotov and ~~Khrushchev~~ Krushchev. There is no indication that he has been relieved of his titles or duties as deputy premier and member of the Communist party ~~[illegible]~~ central committee.

In Yugoslavia, ~~two former Communist leaders, [illegible] and friends~~ of ~~Marshal Tito, have been found guilty of hostile propaganda.~~ Milovan Djilas and ~~Vladimir Dedijer, were sentenced~~ Conditionally to 18 months ~~in prison and are given [illegible] conditional sentences of six months in~~ prison.

4a

In Jugoslavia, two former communist leaders xxx and friends of Marshall Tito.. have been found guilty of making hostile propaganda...Milovan Jaylas was sentenced to 18 months and Vladimer Dedijer got six months...both sentences are povisional..which means they wont have to go to jail if they dont criticise the govt.again...

In Costa Rica, the Commission of Oragnization of American States [redacted] has announced the lifting of the demilitarized zone on the Costa Rican-Nicaraguan border. This will permit Costa Rican troops to round-up [redacted] any rebels remaining in the area. Nicaraguan President Samoza says the "shedding of a drop of Nicaraguan blood" will mean war with Costa Rica.

In Paris, the Seine River flood has levelled off and seven started falling slightly. Three of the Seine's bridges in central Paris have been closed to traffic as a precaution.

[redacted]

Here in New York, Joseph P. Ryan, former "life-time" president of the International Longshoremen's Union, was convicted of violating the Taft-Hartley law..by taking 25-hundred dollars from a firm that hired members of his union. Ryan, who had been head of his union for 25 years, faces a maximum sentence of one year in prison and $30-thousand dollars in fines.

Edward R. Murrow: January 24, 1955. 7.45 p.m.

The President's message, though addressed to Congress, was written also for two other audiences, the Chinese Communists and the Chinese Nationalists. It had to convey assurances to both, and if it does not completely clarify American policy, as the President said he was doing, it is because the same words can have different import to the two groups of Chinese.

The chief question which is not categorically answered is whether the United States reserves the right to help the Nationalists hold other coastal islands than the Tachens. The status of the Quemoy group, off the mainland port of Amoy, and of the Matsu group, off the mainland port of Foochow, is not spelled out. In fact these islands are not mentioned by name. But they loom up somewhat dimly in the message. It points out that Nationalist forces are scattered through the smaller offshore islands as a result of historical, rather than military, reasons directly related to the defense of Formosa. It says we must be ready to assist the Chiang government to "re-deploy and consolidate its forces" on the islands "if it should so desire." That means, first of all, that we should help evacuate the Nationalists on the Tachen Islands. But this raises an interesting question, would it be re-deploying and consolidating them if these forces were moved to Quemoy and Matsu? Would they be considered as helping defend Formosa?

So far we have never said we would help hold any of the coastal islands. And the President states explicitly: "I do not suggest that the United States enlarge its defensive obligations beyond Formosa and the Pescadores." That assertion would make it appear as though we would never be interested in Quemoy and Matsu.

But the message doesn't ignore Quemoy and Matsu completely. "We must" said the President, "be alert to any concentration or employment of Chinese Communist forces obviously undertaken to facilitate attack on Formosa, and be prepared to take appropriate military action." This means that if the Communists concentrate enough forces at Amoy or Foochow to count as facilitating attack on Formosa, the United States would take military action. President Eisenhower reminds the Communists that they themselves said their action north of the Tachens showed their intent to take Formosa. Indeed that is one reason why the President asked Congress for a resolution about the defense of Formosa. By inference, similar action against other islands would have the same motive.

The message defines how the authority asked of Congress will be used. It will be "only in situations which are recognizable as parts of, or definite preliminaries to, an attack against the main positions of Formosa and the Pescadores." So if the Communists concentrate too large forces at Amoy or Foochow, the United States, if it thought Formosa was being threatened, would take military action.

I have said this is written for two Chinese audiences. To the Nationalists it would have counted as abandonment if we had said we should not help defend Quemoy and Matsu. What the President said about defending Formosa implied that we can't altogether turn our backs on Quemoy and Matsu. But to the Communists he said, in effect, that we shall take military action only if an attack on Formosa appears to be facilitated or in preparation. He spelled it out to the Communists that we guarantee nothing more than the defense of Formosa and the Pescadores.

So, as the President says, it is up to the Communists. If they will not threaten Formosa they can have peace with us.

It may be well to state again that the coastal islands and Formosa are on two levels of legality. Formosa had not been part of China for twenty years prior to World War Two. It belonged to Japan. The coastal islands never belonged to Japan, only to China. The United States had the biggest part in taking Formosa from Japan, so until the final possession of Formosa is settled the United States has a right there. It has no comparable right on the coastal islands.

When Dag Hammarskjold was in Peiping the Communists told him they drew a sharp distinction between Formosa and the coastal islands. Because the Nationalists held the islands they blockaded the China coast and stopped normal coastal shipping. The Communists found this intolerable. Peiping went on to explain that it was aroused over Formosa because it was sure the United States was planning to use the Nationalists for an attack on the mainland. Once it was rid of this fear, it intimated that its attitude about Formosa would change.

Today's message from the President can be read as making it clear that the United States wants peace in the region, that it is not giving the Nationalists a free hand, is not even promising to help them hold the coastal islands. It is saying to the Communists, in effect, give up your aim of taking Formosa and you can have peace. But it is saying it in language that does not sound like desertion of the Nationalists. On the contrary, the language is meant to ring firm and strong.

If anyone does not like both objectives, the desire for peace and the security of Formosa, the message will not be reassuring or even clear. It remains to be seen how it is received in the two Chinese capitals. Its effect on Congress is not in doubt. The President will get his resolution. which he did not need - but which he sought as an expression of National Solidarity.

The President, in attempting to define our immediate policy in the Pacific, ~~was~~ must have been well aware of the fact that in such situations ~~as these,~~ one must often say many things to many people: the nationalists, the communists, the other nations of the world. Rousseau once put it this way: "Where is the man who owes nothing to the land in which he lives ? Whatever the land may be, he owes to it the most precious thing possessed by man: the morality of his actions."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

MONDAY, JANUARY 24, 1955
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

The President today asked Congress to declare "our readiness to fight" to keep Formosa free. And five hours later the House Foreign Affairs Committee unanimously approved a resolution to give Mr. Eisenhower almost unlimited power to commit our armed forces to the defense of the Chinese Nationalist island. In his message the President said Communist China already poses a serious danger to our security and to the peace of the world. He said that in the interests of this peace we must remove any doubt regarding our readiness to fight, if necessary. The President made it very clear that "our purpose is peace." And he said tha threatening aspects of the present situation "may be temporary if resolutely faced." In both houses of Congress ther were indications of quick approval of the President's request...which I'd like to examine in some detail in a few minutes. And there was also the expressed feeling that this could lead to considerable action. House Speaker Rayburn expressed his confidence in the President and his advisors...called them "prudent men who have weighed the possible consequences". Representative McCormack of Massachusetts, a Democrat, says there is no question "but what our country is taking a calculated risk. Republican Leader Knowland says this is necessary "unless we want to see all Asia go down under the Communist regime." Some Democrats say they find it difficult to reconcile this policy with the Administration's recommended cuts in the appropriations for the armed forces.

Out in the Far East, our 7th fleet is "ready for any eventuality"...awaiting congressional approval and new orders. The feeling on Formosa is that as soon as the legislation is in shape the fleet will be told to help evacuate the Nationalist garrison in the Tachen Islands , 2000 miles north of Formosa.

And just before the President sent his mesaage to Congress the Chinese Communists warned again that they intend to liberate Formosa. Premier Chou-en - Lai, in a broadcast over the Pieping radio, said: The United States "must get out of the Formosan area...must stop intervening in Red China's "internal affairs." The United States is accused of stepping up its "military operations to make war provocations." And we are accused of using "war threats and brandishing atomic weapons" in an attempt to force Red China to tolerate "the occupation of Formosa." The Communists also rejected the President's suggestion that the United Nations attempt to work out a cease-fire in the Formosa Strait.

The Chinese Nationalists welcome the President's message. Their chief delegate says it makes the American position clear on further Communist aggression in the Formosan area and it is not conditional upon act on by the U.N.. And the British call Mr. Eisenhower's proposal "a fair and reasonable" effort to relax tension in the Far East.

Here in New York, aircraft and many defense stocks rise sharply today an the basis of the President's message.

The Moscow radio says E.I. Mikoyan, minister of internal trade, has been releived of his duty at his request. Western experts have generally ranked Mikoyan in the Soviet hierarchy behind Malenkov, Molotov and Kruschhev. There is no indication that he has been releived of his titles ar duties as deputy premier and member of the Communist party central committee.

In Jugoslavia, two former Communist leaders and friends of Marshall Tito have been found guilty of making hostile propaganda...Mikovan Jaylas was sentenced to 18 moths and Vlademer Dedijer got six months ..both sentences are provisional..which means they wont have to go to jail if they don't criticize the government again.

In Costa Rica, the commission of the Organization of American States has announced the lifting of the demilitarized zone on the Costa Rican Nicaraguan border. This will permit Costa Rican troops to round up any rebels remaining in the area. Nicaraguan President Samoza says the "shedding of a drop of Nicaraguan blood" will mean war with Costa Rica.

In Paris, the Seine River flood has levelled off and even started falling slightly. Three of the Seine's bridges in central Paris have been closed to traffic as a precaution.

Here in New York, Jospch P. Ryan, former "life time" president of the International Longshoreman's Union, was convicted of violating the Taft-Hartley law...by taking 25 hundred dollars from a firm that hired members of his union.Ryan, who had been head of his union for 25 years, faces a maximum sentence of one year in prison and 30 thousand dollars in fines.

The President's message, through addressed to to Congress, was written a also for two other audiences, the Chinese Communists and the Chinese Nationalists. It had to convey assurances to both and if it does not completely clarify American policy, as the President said he was doing, it is because the same words can have different import to the two groups of Chinese.

The chief question which is not categorically answered is whether the United States reserves the right to help the Nationalists hold other coastal islands than the Tachens. The status of the Quemoy group, off the mainland port of Amoy, and the Matsu group, off the mainland port of Foochow, is not spelled out. In fact these islands are not mentioned by name. But they loom up somewhat dimly in the message. It points put that Nationalist forces are scattered through the smaller offshore islands as a result of historical, rather than military reasons directly related to the defense of Formosa. It says we must be ready to assist the Chiang government to "re-deploy and consolidate its forces" on the islands "if it should so desire". That means, first of all, that we should help evacuate the Nationalists on the Tachen Islands. But this raises an interesting question, would it be re-deploying and consolidating them if these forces were moved to Quemoy and Matsu? Would they be considered as helping defend Formosa? So far we have never said we would help hold any of the coastal islands. And the President states esplicitly: "I do not suggest that the United states enlarge its defensive obligations beyond Formosa and the Pescadores." That assertation would make it appear as though we would never be interested in Quemoy and Matsu. But the message doesn't ignore Quemoy and Matsu completely. "We must" said th President, "be alert to any concentration or employment of Chinese Communists forces obviously undertaken to facilitate attack on Formosa, and be prepared to take appropriate military action. " This means that if the Communists concentrate enough forces at Amoy or Foochow to count as facilitating attack on Formosa, the United States would take military action. President Eisenhower reminds the Communists that they themselves said their action north of the Tachens showed their intent to take Formosa. Indeed that is one reason why the President asked Congress for a resolution about the defense of Formosa. By inference, similar action against other islands would have the same motive.

The message defines how the authority asked of Congress will be used. It will be "only in situations which are recognizable as parts of, or definite premiminaries to, an attack against the main positions of Formosa and the Pescadores." So if the Communists concentrate too large forces at Amoy or Foochow, the United States if it thought Formosa was being threatened, would take military action.

I have said this is written for two Chinese audiences. To the Nationalists it would have counted as abandonment if we had said we should not help defend Quemoy and Matsu. What the President said about defending Formosa implied that we can't altogether turn our backs on Quemoy ond Matsu. But to the Communists he said, in effect, that we shall take military action only if an attack on Formosa appears to be facilitated or in preparation. He spelled ot out to the Communists that we guarantee nothing more than the defense of Formosa and the Pescadores.

So, as the President says, it is up to the Communists. If they will not threaten Formosa they can have peace with us.

It may be well to state again that the coastal islands and Formosa are on two levels of legality. Formosa had not been part of China for twenty years prior to Wprld War Two. It belonged to Japan. The coastal islands never belonged to Japan, only to China. The United States had the biggest part in taking Formosa from Japan, so until the final possission of Formosa is settled the United States has a right there. It has no comparable right on the coastal islands.

When Dag Harrarskjold was in Peiping the Communists told him they drew a sharp distinction between Formosa and the coastal islands. Because the Nationalists held the islands they blockaded the China coast and stopped normal coastal shipping. The Communists found this intolerable. Peiping went on to explain that it was aroused over Formosa because it was sure the United States was planning to use the Nationalists for an attack on the mainland. Once it was rid of this fear, it intimated that its attitude about Formosa would change.

Today's message from the President can be read as making it clear that the United States wants peace in the region, that it is not giving the Nationalists a free hand, is not even promising to help them hold the coastal islands. It is saying to the Communists, in effect, give up your aim of taking Formosa and you can have peace. But it is saying it in language that does not sound like desertion of the Nationalists. On the contrary, the language is meant to ring firm and strong.

If anyone does not like both objectives, the desire for peace and the security of Formosa, the message will not be reassuring or even clear. It remains to be seen how it is received in the two Chinese capitals. Its effect on Congress is not in doubt. The President will get his resolution, which he did not need, but which he sought as an expression of national solidarity.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a minute with the Word for Today. But first, a word from Bob Dixon .

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: The President, in attempting to define our immediate policy in the Pacific, must have been well aware of the fact that in such a situations, one must often say many things to many people: the Nationalists, the Communists, the other nations of the world. Rousseau once put it this way: "Where is the man who owes nothing to the land in which he lives? Whatever the land may be, he owes to it the most precious thing posessed by man: the morality of his actions."

Good Night and Good Luck!

Tuesday January 25, 1955

This is the news:

The House of Representatives today approved the President's request to wage war , if necessary, to save Formosa from the Communists. The VOTE was 409 to three. Two Republicans--Siler of Kentucky and Sheehan of Illinois, and Democrat Barden of North Carolina voted against it. Despite the overwhelming vote..which the President called "remarkable unity in the interest of the nation's security--a number of doubts were expressed on the House floor. Republican Representative Fulton of Pennsylvania said the resolution goes too far. Democrat Holfield of California called it "a contingency declaration of war." Speaker Rayburn contended the Constitution already gives the President all the authority he asked for.. and pointed out that this should not be a precedent..that someday some President may not be able to wait 12 hours for House approval. Democrat Colmer of Mississippi called this a day of decision that will "reverberate around the world." Republican Judd of Minnesota:"There's risk if we pass this resolution. There's infinitely greater risk if we don't." And Chairman Richards of the House Foreign Affairs Committee warned: "It may take more than congressional support of the President's policies to stop the Communists."

The House vote came after less than the three hours ALLOTTED [redacted] for the debate. But in the Senate, the Foreign RELATIONS [redacted] and Armed Services Committee spent another day hearing witnesses on the President's plan. Senator Knowland predicts the Senate will accept the proposal, overwhelmingly, on Thursday.

While the House debated [redacted] the action off the China coast dwindled to routine operations. [redacted] And the Communist radio reported the arrival of three more American carriers in Formosan waters.

In Washington, the State Department reported that three relatives of airmen held prisoner in Red China have asked how to get passports to visit there. Two such inquiries were received yesterday.

The Senate Internal Security Subcommittee reported today that five senior military commanders in Korea..all of them now retired..believe that "possible subversion, wishful thinking, European orientation and allied pressure denied them victory" in Korea. The five are: Generals [redacted] Clark, Van Fleet, Almond, Stratemeyer and Admiral Joy. The committee says that the testimony of all five shows that they believe victory in Korea was "possible and desireable".. and that the action required to achieve victory "would not have resulted in World War Three." The former military commanders also believe that "political considerations were permitted to overrule military necessities" and that "failure to win in KOREA [redacted] has jeopardized our position in the Far East. The unanimous report [redacted] suggests that [redacted] all of this be kept in mind in developing our Formosa policy.

The Russians announced today that they have ended the state of war with both East and West Germany. Moscow says it will retain "the right and obligation" claimed under the four-power agreement concerning Germany as a whole. Diplomats in Moscow view this as a strong move against the western defense arrangements. And diplomats in the free world point out that [redacted] this is a strong move against western [redacted] defense arrangements. They also point out that the United States, Britain and France ended their state of war with Germany three years ago. The State Department calls it a mere legalism with no [redacted] practical effect. ~~But my colleague David Schoenbrun reports from Paris that a high French official points out that the [redacted] intended to demonstrate friendship for the German people at the same time that the west is in a position of asking the Germans to [redacted] possible [redacted].~~

I'd like to discuss these Russian manuvers in Europe in a few minutes.

Prime Minister Churchill today brushed aside Laborite demands that he start direct talks with the Communists on Germany and the Far Eastern situation. Sir Winston said such a meeting at this time would not be likely to yield favorable results.

The Indian government today paid special tribute to the United States and other "friendly" foreign nations that gave India economic and technical assistance. No mention was made, in a special report, of any technical assistance from Russia or her satellites.

In central America, Nicaragua announced that all of Costa Rica's remaining rebels have now crossed the frontier and been interned by the Nicaraguan government. And Costa Ricans [redacted] welcomed this news as the end of their two-week -old rebellion.

In Washington, Budget Director Hughes has ordered every government department and agency to examine its business activities and see which can be "reasonably ended."

And Attorney General Brownell asked Congress to raise the pay of federal judges [redacted] BY AS MUCH AS ~~12-thousand 500 hundred dollars to~~ 14-thousand 500. He also recommended an increase of 12-thousand 500 hundred for members of congr ss who now receive 15-thousand dollars a year. Brownell said the increase for judges is needed to remedy "a rather criticial situation". He SAID; many men of ability are unable to accept appointments because of the low pay.

Edward R. Murrow: January 25, 1955. 7.45 p.m.

The storm clouds over the Far East are making most of the news, but observers of the political weather know that another gathering storm is just as foreboding. It is on the Eastern horizon of Europe, where two events show a sudden shift of climate. One event is the summoning of a special session of the Supreme Soviet in Moscow next week, Thursday; the other is yesterday's removal of Anastas Mikoyan as Minister of Domestic Trade in the Soviet Union.

TODAY The crisis over German re-armament is coming to a head. The Supreme Soviet is almost surely meeting to be told of some basic decision about it that needs to be endorsed. And it will be more than the so called peace amendment today The demotion of Mikoyan points to the same basic decision. It is the end of the experiment of devoting more Soviet production to consumer goods and light agriculture. Now comes a return to austerity. Big industry is again to get the lion's share of production for the sake of armaments.

The new look in Soviet policy came after the death of Stalin, both in foreign and domestic affairs. The domestic change was probably more important and certainly more convincing. For it heralded to the Soviet workers a new era in which they were to have the belated reward of buying more with their labor than factories, dams, guns and planes. They were going to buy clothing, more food, and for a privileged minority such delights as automobiles and television sets.

In foreign policy the change was principally in temper and gestures. The Kremlin turned off its strong language, and began talking of peaceful co-existence. Soviet diplomats stopped being surly and taciturn and melted into a show of fellowship. Actual concessions were few, and not much more significant than the Soviet delegate at the U.N. voting to resume the study of disarmament and to co-operate in the atoms-for-peace plan.

But the new geniality was expected to have a marked effect in Paris and Bonn, where ratification of German re-armament was still not certain. The Kremlin did not hide its elation when the French Assembly killed the European Defense Community. But the Soviet drive failed. And when France voted to take the Bonn Republic into the Brussels treaty system and NATO, the Kremlin grew shrill again. Now, with hope about gone of blocking ratification, one hears loud and ominous rumblings as the monolithic Soviet state changes its course.

Just what will the Supreme Soviet be asked to ratify next week? The Kremlin has been threatening to repudiate the treaties of friendship with France and Great Britain, and it may do this with the most impressive ceremonial. However, these treaties ceased to have any true value when the cold war set in, so repudiation of them won't matter much. It probably will be accompanied by a tightening of Soviet military control over the satellites, and perhaps by some addition to satellite armed strength, though the satellites can't very well afford to lose manpower in industry just now.

Presumably the Soviet strategy is to bring the last ounce of pressure on Western Europe to delay ratification. The latest Soviet note on German unification spoke of accepting some form of international supervision of free all-German elections. Washington hasn't taken this seriously. Some people in London do. My colleague Alexander Kendrick reports a proposal that is being talked about in London. It is that ratification be carried through to the point of President Heuss of Germany signing the document, and before this is done a four-power conference meets to find out what the Kremlin means by international supervision of free German elections. If it means something genuine - if the Soviet is giving up East Germany - the treaties could lapse. But only then.

That sounds pretty unlikely. And the changes inside the Soviet Union are not going to be easy to reverse. Mikoyan is out, and the editor of Pravda explains in a full-page editorial that: "Forces of imperialist reaction, armed to the teeth and arming themselves still further, are preparing plans for a new world war. In these circumstances," he declares, "the resulting dicisive struggle for peace throughout the world, and the continual strengthening of the Soviet motherland, as well as its defensive capacity are the first, sacred, patriotic and international duty of the Soviet people."

Whether Mikoyan's demotion means a scramble for supremacy within the committee that rules the Soviet state is not clear. He is reported to have asked to give up his post and still retains his title as deputy premier. But that may mean no more than that he is being eased out, and not being arrested or shot forthwith.

The United States and its allies want peace, want it in the Far East and Europe. To get it there has to be agreement, and to get agreement there must be mutual accomodation. That is obvious. Often before settlements are reached both parties bang the table and raise their voices. So it is something of a truism that before things get better, in the search for agreement, they sometimes have to get worse. That is to say that stormy weather need not blot out the hope for peace or hinder the work for it. But this subdued thought is the most optimism that the present weather on both sides of the world seems to justify.

The objective at the moment is to bring about a climate of peace on ~~this minor planet of ours~~. When we visited with Mary Martin on television last year, she quoted a Chinese Proverb worth repeating tonite:"If there is righteousness in the heart, there will be beauty in the character. If there be beauty in the character, there will be harmony in the family home. If there is harmony in the home, there will be order in the nation. When there is order in the nation,there will be peace in the world."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

TUESDAY, JANUARY 25, 1955
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

The House of Representatives today approved the President's request to wage war, if necessary, to save Formosa from the Communists. The vote was 409 to three. Two Republicans -- Siler of Kentucky and Sheehan of Illinois, and Democrat Barden of North Carolina voted against it. Despite the overwhelming vote...which the President called "remarkable unity in the interest of the nation's security. A number of doubts were expressed on the House floor. Republican Representative Fulton of Pennsylvania said the resolution goes too far. Democrat Holfield of California called it "a contingency declaration of war." Speaker Rayburn contended the Constitution already gives the President all the authority he asked for...and pointed out that this should not be a precedent...that someday some President may not be able to wait 12 hours for House approval. Democrat Colmer of Mississippi called this a day of decision on that will "reverberate around the world." Republican Judd of Minnesota :"There's risk if we pass this resolution. There's infinitely greater resk if we don't." And Cahirman Richards of the House Foreign Affairs Committee warned: "It may take more than congressional support of the President's policies to stop Communists." The House vote came after less than the three hours allotted for the debate. But in the Senate, the Foreign Relations and Armed Services Committee spent another day hearing witnesses on the President's plan. Senator Knowland predicts the Senate will accept the proposal, overwhelmingly, on Thrusday.

While the House debated the action off the China coast dwindled to routine operations. And the Communist radio reported the arrival of three more American carriers in Formosan waters.

In Washington, the State Department reported that three relatives of airmen held prisoner in Red China have asked how to get passports to visit there. Two such inquiries were received yesterday.

The Senate Internal Security Subcommittee reported today that five senior military commanders in Korea...all of them now retired...believe that "possible subversion, wishful thinking, European orientation and allied pressure denied them victory" in Korea. The five are: Generals Clark, Van Fleet, Almond, Stratemeyer and Admiral Joy. The committee says that the testimony of all five shows that they believe victory in Korea was "possible and desireable"...and that the action required to achieve victory "would not have resulted in World War Three." The former military commanders also believe that "political considerations were permitted to overrule military necessities" and that "failure to win in Korea has jeopardized our position in the Far East." The unanimous report suggests that all of this be kept in mind in developing our Formosa policy.

The Russians announced today that they have ended the state of war with both East and West Germany. Moscow says it will retain "the right and obligation" claimed under the four-power agreement concerning Germany as a whole. Diplomats in Moscow view this as a strong move against the western defense arrangements. And diplomats in the free world point out that this is a strong move against western defense arrangements. They also point out that the United States, Britain and France ended their state of war with Germany three years ago. The State Department calls it a mere legalism with no practical effect. I'd like to discuss these Russian maneuvers in Europe in a few minutes.

Prime Minister Churchill today brushed aside Laborite demands that he start direct talks with the Communists on Germany and the Far Eastern situation. Sir Winston said such a meeting at this time would not be likely to yield favorable results.

The Indian government today paid special tribute to the United States and other "friendly" foreign nations that gave India economic and technical assistance. No mention was made, in a special report, of any technical assistance from Russia or her satellites.

In central America, Nicaragua announced that all of Costa Rica's remaining rebels have now crossed the frontier and been interned by the Nicaraguan government. And Costa Ricans welcomed this news as the end of their two-week -old rebellion.

In Washington, Budget Director Hughes has ordered every government department and agency to examine tis business activities and see which can be "reasonably ended."

And Attorney General Brownell asked Congress to raise the pay of federal judges by as much as 14-thousand 500 dollars. He also recommended an increase of 12-thousand 500 for members of congress who now receive 15-thousand dollars a year. Brownell said the increase for judges is needed ao remedy "a rather critical situation." He said: many men of ability are unable to accept appointments because of the low pay.

The storm clouds over the Far East are making most of the news, but observers of the political weather know that another gathering storm is just as foreboding. It is on the Eastern horizon of Europe, where two events show a sudden shift of climate. One event is the summoning of a special session of the Supreme Soviet in Moscow next week, Thursday; the other is yesterday's removal of Anastas Mikoyan as Minister of Domestic Trade in the Soviet Union.

Today the crisis over German re-armament is coming to a head. The Supreme Soviet is almost surely meeting to be told of some basic decision about it that needs to be endorsed. And it will be more than the so called peace amendment today. The demotion of Mikoyan points to the same basic decision. It is the end of the experiment of devoting more Soviet production to consumer goods and light agriculture. Now comes a return to austerity. Big industry is again to get the lion's share of production for the sake of armaments.

The new look in Soviet policy came after the death of Stalin, both in foreign and domestic affairs. The domestic change was probably more important and certainly more convincing. For it heralded to the Soviet workers a new era in which they were to have the belated reward of buying more with their labor than factories, dams, guns and planes. They were going to buy clothing, more food, and for a privilieged minority such delights as automobiles and television sets.

In foreigh policy the change was principally in temper and gestures. The Kremlin turned off its strong language, and began talking of peaceful co-existence. Soviet diplomats stopped being surly and taciturn and melted into a show of fellowship. Actual concessions were few, and not much more significant than the Soviet delegate at the U.N. voting to resume the study of disarmament and to co-operate in the atoms -for-peace plan.

But the new geniality was expected to have a marked effect in Paris and Bonn, where ratification of German re-armament was still not certain. The Kremlin did not hide its elation when the French Assembly killed the European Defense Community. But the Soviet drive failed. And when France voted to take the Bonn Republic into the Brussels treaty system and NATO, the Kremlin grew shrill again. Now, with hope about gone of blocking ratification, one hears loud and ominous rumblings as the monolithic Soviet state changes its course.

Just what will the Supreme Soviet be asked to ratify next week? The Kremlin has been threatening to repudiate the treaties of friendship with France and Great Britain and it may do this with the most impressive ceremoniol. However, these treaties ceased to have any true value when the cold war set in, so repudiation of them won't matter much. It probably will be accompanied by a tightening of Soviet military control over the satellites, and perhaps by some addition to satellite armed strength, though the satellites can't very well afford to lose manpower in industry just now.

Presumably the Soviet strategy is to bring the last ounce of pressure on Western Europe to delay ratification. The latest Soviet note on German unification spoke of accepting some form of international supervision of free all-German elections. Washington wasn't taken this seriuosly. Some people in London do. My colleague Alexander Kendrick reports a proposal that is being talked about in London. It is that ratification to carried through to the point of President Heuss of Germany signing the document, and before this is done a four-power conference meets to find out what the Kremlin means by international supervision of free German elections. If it means something genuine - it the Soviet is giving up East Germany - the treaties could lapse. But only then.

That sounds pretty unlikely. And the changes inside the Soviet Union are not going to be easy to reverse. Mikoyan is out, and the editor of Pravda explains in a full-page editorial that: "Forces of imperialist reaction, armed to the teeth and arming themselves still further, are preparing plans for a new world war. In these circumstances," he declares, "the resulting decisive struggle for peace throughout the world, and the continual strengthening of the Soviet motherland, as well as its defensive capacity are the first, sacred, patriotic and international duty of the Soviet people.

Whether Mikoyan's demotion means a scramble for supremacy within the committee that rules the Soviet state is not clear. He is reported to have asked to give up his post and still retains his title as deputy premier.

But that may mean no more than that he is being eased out, and not being arrested or shot forthwith.

The United States and its allies want peace; want it in the Far East and Europe. To get it there has to be agreement, and to get agreement there must me mutual accomodation. That is obvious. Often before settlements are reached both parties bang the table and raise their voices. So it is something of a truism that before things bet better, in the search for agreement, they sometimes have to get worse. That is to say that stormy weather need not blot out the hope for peace or hinder the work for it. But this subdued thought is the most optimism that the present weather on both sides of the world seems to justify.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a minute with the Word for Today. But first, here's a word from Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: The object of the moment is to bring about a climate of peace When we visited with Mary Martin on televisoon last year, she quoted a Chinese proverb worth repeating tonight. :"If there is righteousness in the heart, there will be beauty in the character. If there be beauty in the character, there will be harmony in the family home. If there is harmony in the home, there will be order in the nation. When there is order in the nation, there will be peace in the world."

Good Night and Good Luck!

Wednesday, January 26, 1955

This is the news:

Two Senate committees--foreign relations and armed services..today approved (THE) President's plans to defend Formosa. The vote was 27 to 2 with Independent Senator Morse and Republican Senator Langer opposed.

MORSE then took to the Senate floor and told his colleagues: this resolution is "quasi-legistlation authorizing preventive war..he fears it will put our interests into the hands of the Chiang Kai Shek government which may want us to fight on the Chinese Mainland. Morse said: we are moving, for the first time, into a position as to threaten an act of aggression before an act of war has been committed upon us.

Republican Senator Knowland then charged that Morse's statement was a great disservice to the country..that it could result in a Russian attack on our 7th fleet off Formosa.

And Senator Langer said he wants to prevent the President from committing our forces to defend any Nationalist islands within 12 miles of the Chinese coast.

Republican Senator Saltonstall said the President's motive is to keep the peace and preserve our security with the least possible bloodshed.

And Democratic Senator Long of Louisiana said: the American people have not been informed of the implications of this resolution..they do not realize that our committments are being extended far beyond anything any of us have realized. Long said even some Senators don't realize how far it goes. And he fully believes that Chiang Kai Shek and his friends have "no more certain purpose" than to have us fully involved in an all-out war with Red China...even if this means war with Russia.

Senator McCarthy has proposed an amendment to cut off financial aid to any foreign nation which ships material to Red China. And Republican Senator Flanders says he'll vote against the President's proposal because, he said:"Put in plain English this is preventive war."

Chairman Russell of the Armed Services Committee says that in closed door meetings the two committees got no guarantees from anyone that ground troops would not be used if the situation becomes sufficiently critical. And Senator Russell added:" The American people will do well to understand that this is more than just a diplomatic manuver, more than just supporting the President. It commits us to use every resource at our command to defend Formosa and the Pescadores.

Here are some other developments in the Formosa situation:

Defense Secretary Wilson told a House committee that the threat to Formosa is, to use his words, "just a little ripple." (LATER) he apologized for what he called his inept (LANGUAGE) and explained: the Formosa situation is very important, but it doesn't change our military needs..it doesn't mean we should enlarge our armed forces.

General Van Fleet, former Korea commander, thinks the President's message "virtually tells the Reds to go ahead and take the small islands off the China coast."

~~General MacArthur, in a Los Angeles speech on his 75th birthday, said the Formosa situation demonstrates "the inherent weakness" of collective security. He warned that the ultimate fate of the Far East and the rest of the world will not be settled by war. And he pleaded that the United States "break out of the straight jacket of the past" and proclaim its readiness to abolish war, along with other world powers.~~

The Chinese Nationalists' news agency says 300 of our planes "demonstrated" near Formosa. No comment from the navy.

The Chinese Communists repeated their vow to capture Formosa. The Communists say more than 17 units of our 7th fleet are off the East China coast.

Our Navy says 11 warships are preparing to sail for the Far East from California within two weeks. But this is described as a routine movement..planned long ago.

At the United Nations, diplomats say this week's developments have delayed the chances of an effective cease-fire in Formosa strait.. and made it less likely that Americans held prisoners by the Chinese Reds will be released soon. And informed sources in Washington say the State Department, now, will probably not permit relatives to visit the imprisoned American airmen because of the tense Formosan situation.

The Moscow radio is telling the Russian people that we are preparing "a penetration to the mainland of China" to save the "Chiank Kai Shek clique from rout."

France and Great Britain today told Moscow that they will go AHEAD with plans for re-arming West Germany despite Moscow's threats.

And West Germany's Chancellor Adenauer called on Russia to prove the sincerity of its statement ending the state of war with Germany by accepting a peace treaty "concluded in full freedom" with a united Germany.

In Chicago, Communist Leader Claude Lightfoot was convicted of being a member of the Communist party and knowing that it advocated the violent overthrow of the government. This is the first test of this provision of the Smith Act. Lightfoot could be sentenced to 10 years in prison and fined 10-thousand dollars.

In Washington, Chairman Smith of the House Rules Committee said the group will approve no investigatuon "unless a good cause is made for it". He said the Rules Committee will "cut down on this matter of investigations all over creation."

The White House says Thomas E. Stephens has resigned as the President's appointment secretary to return to his private law practise. He'll be replaced by Bernard M. Shanley, presidential counsel.

And the Baseball Writers Association has elected four men to the Baseball Hall of fame. Joe Di Maggio of the Yankees led the ticket. The others are Ted Lyons, former Chicago White Sox pitcher...Dazzy Vance, former Brooklyn pitcher and Gabby Hartnett, former catcher and manager of the Chicago Cubs.

Edward R. Murrow: January 26, 1955. 7.45 p.m.

President Eisenhower's plan for Formosa today received the backing of British Foreign Secretary Sir Anthony Eden. Eden told the House of Commons he was sure the President would use American armed forces "only with the greatest reluctance." Sir Anthony drew a distinction between the offshore islands and Formosa, saying that in this whole century Formosa has never been a part of China. He also called for a cease fire on both sides.

The British press is not enthusiastic about Mr. Eisenhower's proposal, but is inclined to wait for further clarification, and hopes for United Nations action to bring about a cease fire. There had been a widespread disposition in England to accept a clearly drawn line, but the one as drawn by the President is regarded as blurred and uncertain. The British would probably support actively the defense of Formosa and the Pescadores, but not the offshore islands and certainly not aerial action against Communist concentrations on the mainland.

The Russian switch from consumer goods to heavy industry, to what might be called a "guns instead of butter" program appears more significant in view of information now appearing in Russian publications. When Stalin died his successors promised that the consumer was at last going to get a break. "There ~~will~~ would be goods in the stores". Some did, in fact, appear.

For example, a double boiler and a fruit juice squeezer. To help the housewife identify these new devices, pictures were published in the newspapers. The picture of the fruit juice squeezer looked uncommonly like a meat grinder, but perhaps they were producing meat grinders too.

But there is more significant news on the consumer front in Russia. Last year was the first full year since Stalin's successors promised a "sharp rise" in living standards. Now the production figures for 1954 have been announced. On many consumer items the Kremlin frankly admits the plan for a sharp increase didn't work. For example -(and these are official Russian figures)- the average Russian citizen got a pound-and-a-half more meat for the whole year; one more ounce of butter; and five more ounces of fish. In other words, this "sharp improvement" gave the average Russian one modest meal more in 1954 than he had in 1953. In manufactured goods the story was about the same. The average Russian was able to buy a yard-and-a-half more of cotton textiles than in 1953. If that rate of increase is preserved, in four years he'll have enough for an extra pair of sheets. # In 1954 one Russian out of twelve was able to get a second pair of shoes. # The average Soviet citizen, after thirty years of Communism, is a pretty patient individual, accustomed to getting along without much meat, butter, fish, shoes or sheets. But if you were to ask him whether 1954 was the year of "sharp improvement" in his living standards, he'd probably reply: "Not so you'd notice it."

The significance of these revelations is not that the average Russian isn't living so well - that's been known for years. What is significant is the admitted failure of the Kremlin to prove that the Communist system can produce a living standard worth having. For over thirty years the Russians have been told that happy days were just around the corner. After Stalin died his successors apparently realized they couldn't go on much longer with empty promises. Within two or three years, they said, they were going to raise the living standard to a tolerable level. This was no empty promise. They took repeated steps to improve consumer goods production. The results, from their point of view, can hardly be called satisfying, either in Russia or in the satellites, where pretty much the same situation obtains. But the Russian rulers did, through propaganda and practise, give their people a promise and a glimpse of what peaceful production of consumer goods might mean.

And the over-riding importance, the massive fact of recent developments in the Soviet Union is this: the Russian leaders have decided to reduce the production of consumer goods, and to diminish the promise of a little better and easier life. They have apparently gone back to putting the emphasis on heavy industry, hydro-electric plants, guns, planes and the metals of munitions. If this estimate of the situation proves to be true, the lesson for the West should be clear; for the Russian leaders will have decided to commit their people to more dreary years of hardship, shortage and sacrifice, in order that the nation may prepare for the next war.

The Russians, it would seem, are once again re-arranging their economy. There's to be less emphasis on what we would regard as peactime production, more on what we would consider items of war. This obviously is of considerable concern to our military leaders. For they know only too well what Goethe meant when he said:"In the works of man, as in those of nature, it is really the motives that merit attention."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 26, 1955
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

Two Senate committees --foreign relations and armed services today approved the President's plans to defend Formosa. The vote was 27 to 2 with Independent Senator Morse and Republican Senator Langer opposed. Morse then took to the Senate floor and told his colleagues: this resolution is "quasi-legislation authorizing preventive war"..he fears it will put our interests into the hands of Chiang Kai Shek government which may want us to fight on the Chinese Mainland. Morse said: we are moving, for the first time, into a position as to threaten an act of aggression before an act of war has been committed upon us.

Republican Senator Knowland then charged that Morse's statement was a great disservice to the country...that it could result in a Russian attack on our 7th Fleet off Formosa.

And Senator Langer said he wants to prevent the President from committing our forces to defend any Nationalist islands within 12 miles of the Chinese coast.

Republican Senator Saltonstall said the President's motive is to keep the peace and preserve our security with the least possible bloodshed. And Democratic Senator Long of Louisiana said: the American people have bot been informed of the implications of this resolution...they do not realize that our committments are being extended far beyond anything any of us have realized. Long said even some Senators don't realize how far it boes. And he fully believes that Chiang Kai Shek and his friends have "no more certain purpose" than to have us fully involved in an all-out war with Red China..even if it means war with Russia.

Senator McCarthy has proposed an amendment to cut off financial aid to any foreign nation which ships material to Red China. And Republican Senator Flanders says he'll vote against the President's proposal because, he said: "Put in plain English this is preventive war."

Chairman Russell of our Armed Services Committee says that in closed door meetings the two committees got no guarantees from anyone that ground troops would not be used if the situation becomes sufficiently critical. And Senator Russell added:" The American people will do well to understand that this is more than just a diplomatic maneuver, more than just supporting the President. It commits us to use every resource at our command to defend Formosa and the Pescadores.

Here are some other developements in the Formosa situation: Defense Secretary Wilson told a House committee that the threat to Formosa is, to use his words, "just a little ripple." Later he apologized for what he called inept language and explained: the Formosa situation is very important but it doesn't change our military needs...it doesn't mean we should enlarge our armed forces.

General Van Fleet, former Korea commander, thinks the President's message "virtually tells the Reds to go ahead and take the small islands off the China coast." The Chinese Nationalists' news agency says 300 of our planes "demonstrated" near Formosa. No comment from the Navy.

The Chinese Communists repeated their vow to capture Formosa. The Communists say more than 17 units of our 7th fleet are off the East China coast.

Our Navy says 11 warships are preparing to sail for the Far East from California within two weeks. But this is described as a routine movement... planned long ago.

At the United Nations, diplomats say this week's developements have delayed the chances of an effective cease-fire in the Formosa strait..and made it less likely that Americans held prisoners by the Chinese Reds will be released soon. And informed sources in Washington say the State Department , now, will probably not permit relatives to visit the imprisoned American airmen because of the tense Formosan situation.

The Moscow radio is telling the Russian people that we are preparing "a penetration to the mainland of China" to save the "Chiang Kai Shek clique from rout."

France and Great Britain today told Moscow that they will go ahead with plans for re-arming West Germany despite Moscow's threats.

And West Germany's Chancellor Adenauer called on Russia to prove the sincerity of its statement ending the state of war with Germany by accepting a peace treaty "concluded in full freedom" with a united Germany.

In Chicago, Communist Leader Claude Lightfoot was convicted of being a member of the Communist party and knowing that it advocated the violent overthrow of the government. This is the first test of this privision of the Smith Act. Lightfoot could be sentenced to 10 years in prison and fined 10-thousand dollars.

In Washington, Chairman Smith of the House Reles Committee said the group will approve no investigation "unless a good cause is made for it." He said the Rules Committee will "cut down on this matter of investigations all over creation."

The White House says Thomas E. Stephens has resigned as the President's appointment secretary to return to his private law practice. He'll be replaced by Bernard M. Shanley, presidential counsel.

And the Baseball Writers Association has elected four men to the Baseball Hall of Fame. Joe De Maggio of the Yankees led the ticket. The others are Ted Lyons, former Chicago White Sox pitcher...Dazzy Vance, former Brooklyn pitcher and Cabby Hartnett, former catcher and manager of the Chicago Cubs.

President Eisenhower's plan for Formosa today received the backing of British Foreign Secretary Sir Anthony Eden. Eden told the House of Commons he was sure the President would use American armed forces "only with the greatest reluctance." Sir Anthony drew a distinction between the offshore islands and Formosa, saying that in this whole century Formosa has never been part of China. He also called for a cease fire on both sides.

The British press is not enthusiastic about Mr. Eisenhower's proposal, but is inclined to wait for further clarification, and hopes for United Nations action to bring about a cease fire. There had been a widespread disposition in England to accept a clearly drawn line but the one as drawn by the President is regarded as blurred and uncertain. The British would probably support actively the defense of Formosa and the Pescadores, but not the off shore isalnds and certainly not aerial action against Communist concentrations on the mainland.

The Russian switch from consumer goods to heavy industry, to what might be called a "guns instead of butter" program appears more significant in view of the information now appearing in Russian publications. When Stalin died his successors promised that the consumer was at last going to get a break. "There would ge goods in the stores." Some did, in fact, appear.

For example, a double boiler and a fruit juice squeezer. To help the housewife identify these new devices, pictures were published in the newspapers. The picture of the fruit juice squeezer looked uncommonly like a meat grinder, but perhaps they were producing meat grinders too.

But there is more significant news on the consumer front in Russia. Last year was the first full year since Stalin's successors promised a "sharp rise" in living standards. Now the production figures for 1954 have been announced. On many consumer items the Kremlin frankly admits the plan for a sharp increase didn't work. For example - and these are official Russian figures - the average Russian citizen got a pound-and-a-half more meat for the whole year; one more ounce of butter; and five more ounces of fish. In other words, this "sharp improvement" gave the Russian one modest meal in 1954 than he had in 1953. In manufactured goods the story has about the same. The average Russian was able to buy a yard-and-a-half more of cotton textiles in 1953. If that rate of increase is preserved, in four years he'll have enough for an extra pair of sheets. In 1954 one Russian out of twelve was able to get a second pair of shoes.

The average Soviet citizen, after thirty years of Communism, is a pretty patient individual, accustomed to getting along without much meat, butter, fish, shoes or sheets. But if you were to ask hem whether 1954 was the year of "sharp improvement" in his living standards, he'd probably reply:"No so you'd notice it."

The significance of these revalations is not that the average Russian isn't living so well - that's been known for years. What is significant is the admitted failure of the Kremlin to prove that the Communist system can produce a living standard worth having. For over 30 years the Russians have been told that happy days were just around the corner. After Stalin died his successors apparently realized they couldn't go on much longer with empty promises. Within two or three years, they said, they were going to raise the living standard to a tolerable level. This was no empty promise. They took repeated steps to improve consumer goods production. The results, from their point of view, can hardly be called satisfying, either in Russia or in the satellites, where pretty much the same situation exists. But the Russiaan rulers did, through propaganda and practice, give their people a promise and a glimpse of what peaceful production of consumer goods might mean.

And the over-riding importance, the massive fact of recent developements in the Soviet Union is this: the Russian leaders have decided to reduce the production of consumer goods, and to diminish the promise of a little better and easier life. They have apparently gone back to putting the emphasis on heavy industry, hydro-electric plants, guns, planes and the metals of munitions. If this estimate of the situation proves to be true, the lesson for the West should be clear; for the Russian leaders will have decided to commit their people to more dreary years of hardship, shortage , and sacrifice, in order that the nation may prepare for the next war.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a moment with the Word for Today. Now--here is Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: The Russians, it would seem, are once again re-arranging their economy. There's to be less emphasis on what we would regard as peacetime production, more on what we would consider items of war. This obviously is of considerable concern to our military leaders. For they know only too well what Goethe meant when he said:"In the works of man, as in those of nature, it is really the motives that merit attention."

Good Night and Good Luck.

Thursday, January 27, 1955

This is the news:

The President said today that his policy for Formosa is purely defensive... that he alone will make the decision, if its necessary, to strike at the Chinese Communist mainland to protect Formosa./This statement was issued to answer charges in the Senate that the President's policy might lead us to a preventive war./Some Senators,. like Democrats Humphrey of Minnesota and Sparkman of Alabama..thought the President's explanation was reassuring. [redacted] removed doubts./But others, like Republicans Flanders and Langer, are still worried./And Independent Senator Morse told his colleagues:"I tell the American people on my word of honor" that secret testimony by Secretary of States Dulles and Admiral Radford, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, "would prove beyond the shadow of a doubt that the resolution would authorize, in advance, the right of the President to order a strike against the mainland before any act of war had been committed against the United States."/But Chairman George of the Foreign Relations Committee called for support of the President "in this grave juncture of world affairs." George asked:"If Congress is willing to withhold moral support from the President [redacted]..what is the alternative?" Senator George said the President is dedicated to a peaceful world and George believes what Mr. Eisenhower says./And the Senate Foreign Relations committee in reporting the resolution to the Senate warned: "This action is not without danger"...We are taking a calculated risk.."the people must realize the President could use our forces for defense." [redacted] Republican Senator Knowland HOPES [redacted] the Senate will VOTE ON [redacted] the resolution TOMORROW. [redacted]

On Formosa today: Nationalist planes made a day-light raid on a Communist-held island./..75 Sabrejets arrived from our bases in THE PHILIPPINES [redacted] and on Okinawa ready for combat; with loaded guns and modified to carry bombs.../.Reports from Singapore indicate that our 7th fleet is being reinforced by ships that were scheduled to visit that area./.retired General Chenault, calls for a new international group of volunteer flyers like his World War Two "flying tigers"./.In India, the Chinese Communist ambassador called on Prime Minister Nehru./..In London, the Laborites made it clear that if the United States clashed with Red China we will have to go it alone./And the liberal Manchester Guardian asks:"Can anyone seriously suppose that while the Nationalists continue to bomb and harrass the mainland the Communists will not reply?"

The Communist radio calls the President's message to Congress "naked aggression and a barefaced war-cry." British delegates to the United nations are pressing for a quick Security Council meeting to consider a cease-fire for the Formosa area...And in Washington the President met with the National Security Council and later with the top officials of the Defense Department and the armed forces.

The State Department apparently has decided not to permit relatives to visit Americans held prisoners by the Chinese Communists. The parents of two imprisoned flyers have informed CBS that they were telephoned by a State Department official today who read them a letter from Secretary of State Dulles advising them that [redacted] the Department is banning all travel to Red China because of the Formosan situation.

Secretary of Air Talbott today told Congress that the Air Force has made a "marked advance" in developing new atomic inter-continental missiles...designed to be fired thousands of miles at very fast speed. ~~Talbott says: "The development of this weapon is of most critical importance to us." He says its imperative that we be first to possess operational, long range missiles.~~

The ten Democrats on the Senate-House atomic energy committee today signed a resolution [redacted] calling on the Atomic Energy Committee to cancel the controversial Dixon-Yates power contract. Inasmuch as the Democrats form a majority of the committee, the resolution probably will be adopted at a committee meeting tomorrow. This would mean that the committee rescinds a waiver it adopted last November, at the request ~~for~~ of the President, to speed action on the contract. The Administration says the Dixon-Yates agreement is a sound and logical way to meet increased power needs without saddling the government with the cost of a new plant. Opponents of the agreement call it a device for undermining the Tennessee Valley Authority and public power.

[redacted]

The president today nominated Kentucky's former Republican [redacted] Senator Cooper to be ambassador to India and Nepal.

And here in New York, the body of Draft Dodger Serge Rubinsteain was found in his fifth avenue mansion..gagged and bound. A business associate says the controversial Russian-born multi-millionaire was the victim of "a paid killing, a mob job. The man had mnay enemies."

Edward R. Murrow: January 27, 1955. 7.45 p.m.

There appears to be more than coincidence between the report of the Jenner Sub-Committee on Internal Security about the war in Korea, and the language in the resolution before Congress authorizing the President to use broad powers to defend Formosa. The Jenner committee heard five commanders of U.N. forces in Korea. They all agreed that the war there might have been won if they had not been prevented from taking appropriate strategic action by political interference. This is an old complaint and it should be carefully examined. In Korea most of the civilian vetoes on military action were prompted by fear either of spreading the war or endangering our alliances. Soldiers have demonstrated they can be notoriously wrong about the political consequences of actions they wish to take, and the principle is involved of civilian control of the military.

But some of this professional military bitterness appears to have flavored the Formosa resolution. The result is this phraseology in the joint resolution: the authority of the President is "to include the securing and protecting of such related positions and territories of that area now in friendly hands, and the taking of such measures as he judges to be required or appropriate in assuring the defense of Formosa and the Pescadores.

The professional soldiers who testified on the Formosa resolution spelled out in secret sessions what these ambiguous words mean. They mean that the Quemoys and Matsus can be defended by American forces, and that action can be taken even against the Chinese mainland if it is judged that the Communists are preparing to attack Formosa. The ambiguous words amount to a strategic "free hand." In Korea that would have been the right to bomb beyond the Yalu.

President Eisenhower today gave his own interpretation of this language. He said that he alone would have the authority to order United States forces used for other than immediate self defense, or in the direct defense of Formosa. He promised he would never delegate such authority. So, in effect, he ruled out a strategic free hand for the military, since in this situation the President is a civilian.

But the ambiguous words and the intent they seemed to hide have been the grit in the bearings that have spoiled the smooth acceptance of President Eisenhower's recommendation to Congress. They were at once challenged by Senators Morse and Flanders as authorizing preventive war. This the President also denied in a statement attributed to him by Senator Knowland after an early morning call. The President does not believe, the Senator said, that the resolution authorizes preventive war. But doubts have been aroused, debate and criticism have been stirred in allied capitals, and it is reliably reported from the United Nations that the introduction of a cease fire proposal will be delayed at least several days.

Both London and Paris had been disposed to welcome the President's message, but some persons now confess they are confused by the hidden way of promising to protect the Quemoys and Matsus, and to bomb the mainland. They do not like so much accent to be on force. And Sir Anthony Eden stressed this in his defense of the Eisenhower message, in Parliament. "Force" he said, "is not the solution of these delicate and difficult problems." He voiced his faith in President Eisenhower's good intent, but he also took pains to say that he understood that in the matter of these coastal islands the Communists "cannot be expected to prejudice what they regard as their rights."

"It is a thousand pities" Walter Lippmann wrote this morning, "that the Administration has involved itself in such unnecessary and dangerous ambiguities." He pointed out that if there is to be a cease fire, there has to be a demarcation line. He also stresses that whereas the United States has a legal right to be in Formosa, it has none whatever to be on the coastal islands. So he hopes the Senate will find some way to clarify the distinction "between our genuine rights and our strategical notions." And he suggests that it may be possible in time to get from Chiang Kai Shek an agreement to demilitarize the coastal islands.

From all accounts the Generalissimo is not proving excessively difficult. He has consented to evacuate the Tachens, which amounts to a painful surrender of them to the Communists. And he is reported to have told Assistant Secretary of State Walter Robertson that the Nationalist Government would not veto any reasonable cease fire resolution in the U.N. Security Council. The New York Herald Tribune hears that while Chiang would not agree to an arrangement that would adversely affect the claim of his regime to be the legitimate government of China, he would accept a purely military arrangement for a cease fire. This would be an enormous step toward peace. For if Chiang accepts a cease fire he renounces the use of force to regain the mainland. And he would seem to renounce the use of force in continuing the blockade of Communist coastal shipping.

The ambiguous words in the resolution may have made it harder for Peiping to drop its claim to Formosa. But if the debate of these words has demonstrated that peace is what the President, the Congress and the American people sincerely want, the candid criticism will have paid off.

There has been no lessening of the tensions in the Far East. Perhaps, as long as we maintain an attitude of patience and calmness, there is no reason to be unduly depressed. John Erskine, influenced by the writings of Emerson, once remarked hopefully: "Life is just one revolution after another, a series of crises in which we take farewell of the past and, if we are wise, meet the future. Every time is a good time to live in -- if we know what to do with it."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

THURSDAY, JANUARY 27, 1955
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

The President said today that his policy for Formosa is purely defensive...that he alone will make the decision, if its necessary, to strike at the Chinese Communist mainland to protect Formosa. This statement was issued to answer charges in the Senate that the President's policy might lead us to a preventive war. Some Senators, like Democrats Humphrey of Minnesota and Sparkman of Alabama...thought the President's explanation was reassuring...removed doubts. But others, like Republican Flanders and Langer, are still worried. And Independent Senator Morse told his colleagues: "I tell the American people on my word of honor" that secret testimony by Secretary of State Dulles and Admiral Radford, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, "would prove beyond the shadow of a doubt that the resolution would authorize, in advance, the right of the President to order a strike against the mainland before any act of war had been committed against the United States." But Chairman George of the Foreign Relations Committee called for support of the President "in this grave juncture of world affairs." George asked: "If Congress is willing to withhold moral support from the President , what is the alternative?" Senator George said the President is dedicated to a peaceful world and George believes what Mr. Eisenhower says. And the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in reporting the resolution to the Senate warned :"This action is not without danger ...we are taking a calculated risk"...the people must realize the President could use our forces for defense." Republican Senator Knowland hopes the Senate well vote on the resolution tomorrow.

On Formosa today: Nationalist planes made a day-light raid on a Communist held island...75 Sabrejets arrived from our bases in the in the Philippines and on Okinawa, ready for combat; with loaded guns and modified to carry bombs..Reports from Singapore indicate that our 7th Fleet is being reinforced by ships that were scheduled to visit the area...retired General Chenault, calls for a new international group of volunteer flyers like his World War Two "Flying Tigers". In India, the Chinese Communist ambassador called on Prime Minister Nehru. In London, the Laborites made it clear that if the United States clashed with Red China we will have to go it alone. And the liberal Manchester Guardian asks:"Can anyone seriously suppose that while the Nationalists continue to bomb and harass the mainland the Communists will not reply?"

The Communists radio calls the President's message to Congress "naked aggression and a barefaced war-cry." British delegates to the United Nations are pressing for a quick Security Council meeting to consider a cease-fire for the Formosa area...and in Washington the President met with the National Security Council and later with the top officials of the Defence Department and the armed forces.

The State Department apparently had decided not to permit relatives to visit Americans held prisoners by the Chinese Communists. The parents of two imprisoned flyers have informed CBS that they were telephoned by a State Department official today who read them a letter from Secretary of State Dulles advising them that the Department'is banning all travel to Red China because of the Formosan situation.

Secretary of Air Talbott today told Congress that the Air Force has made a "marked advance in developing new atomic inter-continental missiles.. designed to be fired thousands of miles at very fast speed.

The ten Democrats on the Senate-House atomic energy committee today signed a resolution calling on the Atomic Energy Committee to cancel the controversial Dixon-Yates power contract. Inasmuch as the Democrats form a majority of the committee the resolution probably will be adopted at the committee meeting tomorrow. This would mean that the committee rescinds a waiver it adopted last November at the request of the Presidett to speed action on the contract. The Administration says the Dixon-Yates agreement is a sound and logical way to meet increased power needs without saddling the government with the cost of a new plant. Opponents of the agreement call it a device for undermining the Tennessee Valley Authority and public power.

The President today nominated Kentucky's former Republican Senator Cooper to be ambassador to India and Nepal.

And here in New York, the body of Draft Dodger Serge Rubinstein was found in his fifth avenue mansion...gagged and bound. A business associate says the controversial Russian-born multi-millionaire was the victim of "a paid killing, a mob job. The man had many enemies."

There appears to be more than coincidence between the report of the Jenner Sub-Committee on Internal Security about the war in Korea, and the language in the resolution before Congress authorizing the President to use broad powers to defend Formosa. The Jenner committee heard five commanders of U.N. forces in Korea. They all agreed that the war there might have been won if they had not been prevented from taking appropriate strategic action by political interference. This is an old complaint and it should be carefully examined. In Korea most of the civilian vetoes on military action were prompted by fear either of spreading the war or endangering our alliances. Soldiers have demonstrated they can be notoriously wrong about political consequences of actions they with to take, and the principle is involved of civilian control of the military.

But some of this professional military bitterness appears to have flavored the Formosa resolution. The result is this phraseology in the joint resolution: the authority of the President is "to include the securing and pootecting of such related positions and territories of that area not in friendly hands, and the taking of such measures as he judges to be required or appropriate in assuring the defense of Formosa and the Pescadores.

The professional soldiers who testified on the Formosa resolution spelled out in secret sessions what these ambiguous words mean. They mean that the Quemoys and Matsus can be defended by American forces, and that action can be taken even against the Chinese mainland if it is judged that the Communists are preparing to attack Formosa. The ambiguous words amount to a strategic "free hand". In Korea that would have been the right to bomb beyond the Yalu.

President Eisenhower today gave his own interpretation of this language He said that he alone would have the authority to order United States forces used for other than immediate self defense, or in the direct defense of Formosa. He promised he would never delegate such authority. So, in effect, he ruled out a strategic free hand for the military, since in this situation the President is a civilian.

But the ambiguous words and the intent they seemed to hide have been the grit in the bearings that have spoiled the smooth acceptance of President Eisenhower's recommendation to Congress. They were at once challenged by Senators Morse and Flanders as authorizing preventive war. This the President also denied in a statement attributed to him by Senator Knowland, after an early morning call. The President does not believe, the Senator said, that the resolution authorizes preventive war. But doubts have been aroused, debate and criticism have been stirred in allied captials, and it is reliably reported from the United Nations that the introduction of a cease fire proposal will be delayed at least several days.

Both London and Paris had been disposed to welcome the President's message, but some persons now confess they are confused by the hidden way of promising to protect the Quemoys and Matsus, and to bomb the mainland. They do not like so much accent to be on force. And Sir Anthony Eden stressed this in his defense of the Eisenhower message, in Parliament. "Force" he said, "is not the solution of these delicate and difficult problems." He voiced his faith in President Eisenhower's good intent, but he also took pains to say that he understood that in the matter of these coastal islands the Communists "Cannot be expected to prejudice what they regard as their rights."

"It is a thousand pities" Walter Lippman wrote this morning, "that the Administration has involved itself in such unnecessary and dangerous ambiguities." He pointed out that if there is to be a cease fire, there has to be a demarcation line. He also stresses that thereas the United States has a legal right to be in Formosa, it has none whatever to be on the coastal islands. So he hopes the Senate will find some way to clarify the distinction "between our genuine rights and our strategical notions." And he suggests that it may be possible in time to get from Chiang Kai Shek an agreement to demilitarize the coastal islands.

From all accounts the Generalissimo is not proving excessively difficult He has consented to evacuate the Tachens, which amounts to a painful surrender of them to the Communists. And he is reported to have told Assistant Secretary of State Walter Robertson that the Nationalist Government would not veto any reasonable cease fore resolution in the U.N. Security Council. The New York Herald Tribune hears that while Chiang would not agree to an arrangement that could adversely affect the claim of his regime to be the legitimate government of China, he would accept a purely military arrangement for a cease fire. This would be an enormous step toward peace. For if Chiang accepts a cease fire he renounces the use of force to regain the mainland. And he would seem to renounce the use of force in continuing the blockade of Communist coastal shipping.

The ambiguous words in the resolution may have made it harder for Peiping to drop its claim to Formosa. But if the debate of these words has demonstrated that peace is what the President, the Congress and the American people sincerely want, the candid criticism will have paid off.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a minute with the Word for Today. But first....Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW:Perhaps, as long as we maintain an attitude of patience and calmness there is no reason to be unduly depressed. John Erskine, influenced by the writings of Emerson once remarked hopefully: "Life is just one revolution after another; a series of crises in which we take farewell of the past and, if we are wise, meet the future. Every time is a good time to live in -- if we know what to do with it."

Good Night and Good Luck.

Friday January 28, 1955

This is the news:

The Senate TONIGHT voted down a proposal to exclude small islands off the shore of Red China from the President's plan to defend Formosa. These islands are presently held by the Nationalists. There are several other amendments to be voted on before the final vote on the President's plan.

~~This is the news:~~

~~The Senate is still in Session debating the President's plan for defending Formosa.~~ And Senator Clements, the acting Democratic leader, has called on his colleagues to support the President. Again today Democratic Senator George of Georgia urged quick approval..said the Chinese Communists are building up their military forces while the Senate debate goes on. But Democratic Senator Lehman of New York called the President's plan a blank check for action that could easily involve us in war. And Democartic Senator Thummond of South Carolina called it "a step toward the preservation of peace."

An American source in Tokyo says our planes are now on the ready from Alaska to the Phillippines in case the Chinese Communists start a fight. This source said:"We are alert as we can be..we are ready to go to war this minute." And General Hull, the American and United Nations commander in the Far East returned from Thailand and Hong Kong to tell reporters:"The solution to Formosa depends entirely on the attitude of the Chinese Communists. If they want a war, there is no reason not to accept the Chinese challenge."

The British ambassador in Moscow today called on Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov and asked him: to urge the Chinese Communists to use restraint and to help arrange for a cease-fire in Formosa strait. Molotov replied--through the Moscow radio-- that he will consider these requests. He also accused us of "gross interference in the internal affairs of " Red China.. and said our action to support Formosa is "full of the menace of a new war."

British Foreign Secretary Eden called on Red China to join proposed United Nations talks on a cease-fire..promising that China's claims will receive fair consideration.

And at the United Nations, New Zealand requested the Security Council to start discussions Monday morning. This will be done--with the approval of Great Britain and the United States. The first question will be whether to invite Red China to send representatives to the debate.

Republican Senator Knowland says he's against this--until the Communists free all American military prisoners they now hold.

But Democratic Senator Sparkman of Alabama says the American support of the invittation to Red China, represents a change in the Administration's foreign policy..that we now recognize two Chinas.. the Communists and Nationalists. And Sparkman says we now also recognize the fact that Chiang Kai Shek and his Nationalists are not, and never again will be, in control of the Chinese mainland.

Red China's radio charged today that Secretary of State Dulles "strangled the longing" of relatives who wanted to visit Americans now held in Chinese Communist prisons...because Dulles has banned travel to Red China at this time.

The State Department says the secretary is leaving tomorrow for a week of fishing in the Bahamas. And the White House says the President is going to Augusta for a week-end of golf and relaxation. Both men will be in constant communication with Washington.

Chairman Vinson of the House Armed Services Committee today ordered an investigation of reported lags in the development and delivery of new Navy planes. He acted after Navy Secretary Thomas said he was not happy about the Naval air program in the past..although he thinks most of the problems have now been licked.

In the Senate -House Atomic Energy Commission, Democrats today forced through a resolution calling on the Atomic Energy Commission to cancel the controversial Dixon-Yates power contract. The vote, according to party lines, was ten to eight.

The Joint Congressional Committee on the Economic Report said today that in the event of war we and our allies "can ultimately mobilize overwhemingly greater economic strength" than the Soviet Union and her satellites. But the committee says right now the Communist bloc is better prepared for war. We would need time to convert our industry and agriculture to a fighting basis.

William Carr of the National Education Association today asked Congress for at least a half billion dollars a year to build schools. He says a total of five billions is needed "to close the gap between what we need and what our states and localities can do."

The Army today demonstrated a portable x-ray camera which uses atomic energy. It can be carried on a soldiers back..and would be useful on a battlefield or wherever bulky equipment and electric power is not available.

Edward R. Murrow: January 28, 1955. 7.45 p.m.

A disturbing anomaly has developed in the handling of news from the Seventh Fleet. All news dispatches that involve questions of what the Navy calls "doubtful security" have to be sent by the Captain of the ship on which the dispatch is written, to the Commander of the Pacific Fleet in Pearl Harbor, who forwards them to the Navy Chief of Information in the Pentagon. So all but the most transparent news stories have to pass all three desks to be published.

I call this an anomaly because it is a much tighter procedure than in time of war. It is standard practise for a correspondent with a fleet to submit his copy to his Captain for clearance. But in the World War and the Korean war news was not put into a funnel that reached from the ship to Pearl Harbor and then to the Pentagon. This is an extraordinary requirement, all the more extraordinary because this is a time of peace. It is a time when the President is asking Congress for powers he promises to use for the furtherance of peace, in measures designed to prevent war over Formosa. That being so, the more news from the fleet, one would think, the more would be the furtherment of peace. Whatever reason the Navy may have thought up for the severe censorship, it should have realized that the blackout has a sinister effect, as though something was being carefully hidden. This is a taxpayer's navy in time of peace, and newsmen are unable to inform taxpayers fully about what it is doing.

This ~~correspondent~~ Reporter understands that these procedures are regarded as temporary. The fleet is waiting for orders that have not yet been received. Presumably the orders will be to assist in evacuating the Nationalists from the Tachen Islands. When the orders have been received it is expected that news of the Seventh Fleet will be handled on the spot, that is, with no greater obstacles than in war time. It is worth calling attention to the situation, if only to watch what happens to the news when the fleet has its orders. If news is again handled normally, then a disquieting state of affairs will come to an end. But it still will be a mystery why the present procedures were ever imposed. #

I should like to attempt belated comment on General MacArthur's recent speech in Los Angeles. The General's views on the abolition of war have long been known to his associates, and he has been as eloquent in many a private talk as he was in Los Angeles.

When Japan drafted its constitution early in the American occupation, the General's personal inspiration was credited with the provision abolishing the use of war as a national instrument. In his speech General

MacArthur gracefully gave all the credit for this to Prime Minister Shidehera, who he says came to him to urge the proposition. When he agreed, said the General, the old Prime Minister turned to him and said: "The world will laugh and mock us as impractical visionaries. But a hundred years from now we will be called prophets."

The Japanese experiment might have been the dawn of a new era. General MacArthur was ready for it. The world was not. Since then the General may have realized that he had one great speech to make on the abolition of war, and have figured carefully when best to make it. He chose his 75th birthday, and he put into it all the fervor and fine language of which he is capable.

The General's thesis is that war has become a Frankenstein to destroy both sides. He called it a double suicide, outmoded by science as a feasible arbiter. And he considers its abolition made practical by the fact that the survival of the masses is at stake. "The ordinary people of the world" he declared, "whether free or slave, are all in agreement on this. It is perhaps the only thing they agree on. The leaders," he complained, "are the laggards. The disease of power seems to confuse and befuddle them. They have not even approached the basic problem."

General MacArthur said it no longer is convincing to argue, whether it is true or not, that we cannot trust the other side. "It would no longer be a matter of depending on trust" he said, "the self-interest of each nation outlawing war would keep it true to itself. It would not necessarily require international inspection of relative armaments. Public opinion in every part of the world would be the great denominator which would insure the issue."

Here is a sample of the General's celebrated rhetoric: "I am sure" he said, "that every pundit in the world, every cynic and hypocrite, every paid brainwasher, every egotist, every troublemaker, and many others of entirely different moulds, will tell you with mockery and with ridicule that this can only be a dream. But as David Lloyd George once said in the British House of Commons at the crisis of the First World War: 'We must go on or we will go under.'"

When the final appraisal is made of General MacArthur's gifts and contributions, his understanding of the futility of modern war and his courage and power in expounding it may balance his performances as a general in the scales of judgment.

There can be little argument with General MacArthur's eloquently stated aversion to war. William Graham Sumner once put it equally well when he said:"In the forum of reason and deliberation, war can never be anything but a makeshift. A statesman who proposes war as an instrumentality admits his incompetency; a politican who makes use of war as a counter in the game of parties, is a criminal."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

FRIDAY, JANUARY 28, 1955
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

The senate tonight voted down a proposal to exclude small islands off the shore of Red China from the President's plan to defend Formosa. These islands are presently held by the Nationalists. There are several other amendments to be voted on before the final vote on the President's plan. And Senator Clements, the acting Democratic leader, has called on his col - leagues to support the President. Again today Democratic Senator George of Georgia urged quick approval ...said the Chinese Communists are building up their military forces while the Senate debate goes on. But Democratic Senator Lehman of New York called the President's plan a blank check for action that could easily involve us in war. And Democratic Senator Thurmond of South Carolina called it "a step toward the preservation of peace."

An American source in Tokyo says our planes are now on the ready from Alaska to the Phillipines in case the Chinese Communists start a fight. This source said: We are alert as we can be...we are ready to fo to war this minute." And General Hull, the American and United Nations commander in the Far East returned from Thailand and Hong Kong to tell reporters: "The solution to Formosa depends entirely on the attitude of the Chinese Communists. If they want a war, there is no reason not to accept the Chinese Challenge."

The British ambassador in Moscow today called on Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov and asked him: to urge the Chinese Communists to use restraint and to help arrange for a cease-fire in Formosa strait. Molotov replied -- through the Moscow radio -- that he will consider these requests. He also accused us of "gross interference in the internal affairs of "Red China ..and said our action to support Formosa is "full of the menace of a new war."

British Foreign Secretary Eden called on Red China to join proposed United Nations talks on a cease-fire ...promising that China's claims will receive fair consideration.

And at the United Nations, New Zealand requested the Security Council to start discussions Monday morning. This will be done -- with the approval of Great Britain and the United States. The first question will be when whether to invite Red China to send representatives to the debate.

Republican Senator Knowland says he's against this -- until the Communists free all American military prisoners they now hold.

But Democratic Senator Sparkman of Alambama says American support of the invitation to Red China represents a change in the Administration's foreign policy...that th now recognize two chinas...the Communists and the Nationalists. And Sparkman says we now also recognize the fact that Chiang Kai Shek and his Nationalists are not and never again will be, in control of the Chinese mainland.

Red China's radio charged today that Secretary of State Dulles "strangled the longing" of relatives who wanted to visit Americans now held in Chinese Communist prisons... because Dulles has banned travel to Red China at this time.

The State Department says the secretary is leaving tomorrow for a week of fishing in the Bahamas. And the White House says the President is going to Aususta for a week-end of golf and relaxation. Both men will be in constant communication with Washington.

Chairman Vinson of the House Armed Services Committee today ordered an investigation of reported lags in the developement and delivery of new Navy planes. He acted after Navy Secretary Thomas said he was not happy about the Naval air program in the past...although he thinks most of the problems have now been licked.

In the Senate-House Atomic Energy Commission, Democrats today forced through a resolution calling on the Atomic Energy Commission to cancel the controversial Dixon-Yates power contract. The vote, according to party lines, was ten to eight.

The Joint Congressional Committee on the Economic Report said today that in the event of war we and our allies "can ultimately mobilize overwhelmingly greater economic strength" than the Soviet Union and her satellites. But the committee says right now the Communist bloc is better prepared for war. We would need time to convert our industry and agriculture to a fighting basis.

William Carr of the National Education Association today asked Congress for at least a half billion dollars a year to build schools. He says a total of five billions is needed "to close the gap between what we need and what our states and localities can do."

The Army today demonstrated a portable x-ray camera which uses atomic energy. It can be carried on a soldiers back ...and would be useful on a battlefield or wherever bulky equipment and electric power is not available.

A disturbing anomaly has developed in the handling of news from the Seventh Fleet. All news dispatches that involve questions of what the Navy calls "doubtful security" have to be sent by the Captain of the ship on which the dispatch is written, to the Commander of the Pacific Fleet in Pearl Harbor, who forwards them to the Navy Chief of Information in the Pentagon. So all but the most transparent news stories have to pass all three desks to be published.

I call this an anomaly because it is a much tighter procedure than in time of war. It is standard practise for a correspondent with a fleet to submit his copy to his Captain for clearance. But in the World War and the Korean war news was not put into a funnel that reached from the ship to Pearl Harbor and then to the Pentagon. This is an extraordinary requirement all the more extraordinary because this is a time of peace. It is a time when the President is asking Congress for powers he promises to use for the furtherance of peace, in measures disigned to prevent war over Formosa. That being so, the more news from the fleet, one would think, the more would be the furtherment of peace. Whatever reason the Navy may have thought up for the severe censorship, it should have realized that the blackout was a sinister effect, as though something was being carefully hidden. This is a taxpayer's navy in time of peace, and the newsmen are unable to inform taxpayers fully about what it is doing.

This reporter understands that these procedures are regarded as temporary. The fleet is waiting for orders that have not yet been received . Presumably the orders will be to assist in evacuatin the Nationalists from the Tachen Islands. When the orders have been received it is expected that news of the Seventh fleet will be handled on the spot, that is, with no greater obstacled than in time of war. It is worth calling attention to the situation, if only to watch what happens to the news when the fleet has its orders. If news is again handled normally, then a disquieting state of affairs will come to an end. But it still will be a mystery why the present procedures were ever imposed.

I should like to attempt belated comment on General Mac Arthur's recent speech in Los Angeles. The General's views on the abolition of war have long been known to his associates, and he has been as eloquent in many a private talk as he was in Los Angeles.

When Japan draited its constitution early in the American occupatiom. the General's personal inspiration was credited with the providion abolishing the use of war as a national instrument, In his speech General MacArthur gracefully gave all the credit for this to Prime Minister Shidera, who he says came to him to urge the proposition. When he agreed, said the General, the old Prime Minister turned to him and said: "The world will laugh and mock us as impractical visionaries. But a hundred years from now we will be called p ophets."

The Japanese experiment might have been the dawn of a new era. General Mac Arthur was ready for it. The world was not. Since then the General may have realized that he had one great speech to make on the abolition of war, and have figured carefully when best to make it. He chose his 75th birthday, and he put into it all the fervor and fine language of which he is capable.

The General's theses is that war has become a Frankenstein to destroy both sides. He called it a double suicide, outmoded by science as a feasible arbitrater. And he considers its abolition made practical by the fact that the survival of the masses is at stake. "The ordinar people of the world" he declared, "whether free or slave, are all in agreement on this. It is perhaps the only thing they agree on. "The leaders" he complained, "are the laggards. Thi disease of power seems to confuse and befuddle them. They have not even approached the basic problem."

General MacArthur said it no longer is convincing to argue, whether it is true or not, that we cannot trust the other side. "It would no longer be a matter of depending on trust" he said, "the self-interest of each nation outlawing war would keep it ture to itself. It would not necessarily require international inspection of relative armaments. Public opinion in every part of the world would be the great denominator which would insure the issue."

Here is a sample of the General's celebrated rhetoric: "I am sure" he said, "that every pundit in the world, every cynic and hypocrite, every paid brainwasher, every egotist, every egotist, every troublemaker, and many others of entirely different moulds, will tell you with mockery and with ridiule that this can only be a dream. But as David Lloyd George once said in the British House of Commons at the crisis of the First World War:"We must go on or we will go under'."

When the final appraisal is made of General Mac Arthur's gifts and contributions, his understanding of the futility of modern war and his courage and power in expounding it may balance his performances as a general in the scales of judgement.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a moment with the word for Today. But first, here is Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: There can be little argument with General Mac Arthur's eloquently stated aversion to war. William Graham Sumner once put it equally well when he said: "In the forum of reason and deliberation, war can never be anything but a makeshift. A statesman who proposes war as an instrumentality admits his incompetancy; a politician who makes use of war as a counter in the game of parties is a criminal."

Good Night and Good Luck.

Monday January 31, 1955

This is the news:

The United Nations Security Council voted today to consider a cease-fire in the Formosa area. Russia voted against the plan and Nationalist China abstained. The Council also voted to give THE proposal..by New Zealand..first consideration. Later it will consider a Russian proposal demanding the withdrawal of all American troops from the Formosa area. During the debate American Ambassador Lodge called the Moscow suggestion "a preposterous cold-war fraud."

And the Chinese Communist radio said again today that the New Zealand proposal to discuss the Formosan situation in the Security Council "cannot be accepted" by the Chinese Reds.

And Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov told the British ambassador in Moscow that Russia is "alarmed by the dangerous situation in the Formosa Strait." Molotov says he has followed a British suggestion..and passed on to Red China the British and New Zelanad views that a cease-fire is necessary to prevent the outbreak of a major war. But Molotov also charged: the main cause of the dangerous situation is the fact [redacted] that the United States, with the aid of Chiang Kai Shek seized Formosa several years ago. Molotov also charges that the United States recently undertook what he calls "new aggressive actions that have intensified still more the state of tension" in the Formosa area.

In London, Prime Minister Churchill and the prime ministers of the British Commonwealth..representing 575 million people..started urgent talks on how to head-off the danger of a major Far Eastern war. His aides say that Sir Winston, in the opening speech, emphasized the need for a quick cease-fire to avert a possible war in Formosa Strait between Red China and the American Seventh fleet.

And the Moscow radio charged today that diplomatic pressure from America is preventing Japan from "normalizing" her relations with Russia and Red China.

[redacted]

Amidst these charges and speeches, Communist Chinese batteries fired 22 shells at the Tachen Islands. [The Nationalists say all of them landed in the sea] The 15-thousand man Nationalist garrison on the Tachen Islands is reported under orders to prepare for a bitter stand if the Communist invade the islands.

And in Honolulu, Admiral Stump, commander of our Pacific fleet, said he has received no orders for evacuation in the Formosan area...

Admiral Stump says he does not know when the Tachen withdrawal will begin. But he promises to carry out such an evacuation "if and when ordered."

In Washington today, General Ridgeway, the army's chief of staff, told a House committee that he has fears about the projected cut of 140-thousand men in Army manpower. General Ridgeway said in these critical days that would affect the safety of the nation and "jeopardize security to a degree." But the General [redacted] said the decision on the manpower cut was not his to make...it came from higher authority.. and "The army will execute it with courage and loyalty." Earlier, Army Secretary Stevens told the committee: he agrees with Defense Secretary Wilson's "balanced program". Stevens feels the improved military situation of our allies and the improvement in modern weapons will offset the proposed cut in Army forces.

Thomas E. Murray, a member of the Atomic Energy Commission, told the Senate-House atomic energy committee today, that the Commission [redacted] should get rid of the controversial Dixon-Yates power contract. Murray said he "views with favor" the committee resolution to cancel the contract. He feels this would be a first step "in the process of ridding the commission of this drain on its time and energies. And he said this contract, more than any other factor, had contributed to "the unhappy situation " which has found the Commission losing some of its stature.

The President today again asked Congress for a federal re-insurance system to help private health plans. He said this would help millions of additional people purchase health insurance. The President also proposed that the federal government guarantee private mortgage loans for the construction of hospitals, clinics and other health facilities. In his message the President also recommended: special federal aid to states providing medical care for persons who receive public assistance under federal-state programs. He wants to find a way to get more trained health personnel. Mr. Eisenhower suggests intensified attacks on the problems of smog and water pollution. He wants additional care and facilities for the mentally ill. And federal grants to the states to help them combat juvenile delinquency. He called this a "serious health and social problem."

The Supreme Court ruled today that both championship prize fights and the legitimate theater come under the nation's anti-trust laws. This means the government can make charges of monopoly against the I.B.C... the International Boxing Club.. and the Shubert Theatrical interests. Today's ruling does not affect a previous decision by the court that baseball is outside the provisions of the anti-monopoly laws. The government charges that the I.B.C. monopolizes boxing so greatly that only two of the 21 CHAMPIONSHIP fights held in this country since June of 1949 were promoted by other groups. And the case against the Shubert enterprises charges that they conspired to restrain trade by monopolizing production, booking and the presentation of legitimate shows.

Edward R. Murrow: January 31, 1955. 7.45 p.m.

It has often been said that the presidency of the United States is the most powerful, most lonely job in the world. Both the power and the loneliness have been considerably increased. The Congressional action giving President Eisenhower a free hand in dealing with Formosa and related matters is a massive "vote of confidence." It could be called an "act of faith" which few presidents in our history would have received in such full measure under similar circumstances. Moreover, the President has said that he will discharge this fearful responsibility himself - that he will not delegate authority to commanders in the field. The decision General Eisenhower had to make in those weary, windy hours before he gave the signal for D-Day may well have been a minor one compared to the decisions he will have to make in the course of coming weeks and months. The consequences of a mistake, or a miscalculation may involve not merely the success or failure of an amphibious operation, but the survival of much of civilization.

The President does not lack for advisors, both public and private; the advice conflicts - Allies must be considered - and the final fateful decision must be made by one man. He has his mandate, clearcut and unequivocal, expressed by the elected representatives of the people. No test, no burden of this magnitude has before been placed upon the shoulders of the leader of a free state. In 1939, Neville Chamberlain was required only to consult Britain's treaty with Poland and his Cabinet; he had no choice but to declare war. Pearl Harbor struck choice and decision from President Roosevelt's hands. President Truman regarded the entry into Korea as a police action undertaken in common with other free nations.

In this present situation the grim alternatives confronting the President may continue for a long, long time. If he adopts what appears to be a bold and belligerent attitude, that could cost us our principal Ally, for in Britain the Labor Party is united against American policy, and some time within the year there must be a General Election in Britain, which Labor is capable of winning. We in this country are familiar with the impact of domestic politics on foreign policy, and the same thing happens in Britain. If the President pursues a cautious policy, there will be cries of "appeasement" and "a display of fatal weakness". If he finds an ominous build-up of Communist forces on the mainland - which he believes threatens Formosa - and gives orders to bomb it out, there may be a wave of revulsion against the United States throughout Asia. Juridically and militarily our right to help defend Formosa and the Pescadores cannot be questioned. Our right to fight in defense of the offshore islands will be widely questioned in the non-Communist world.

As a nation we are capable of great concentration, enthusiasm and determination. But we may find ourselves disadvantaged if we concentrate too exclusively on Formosa and related issues. The Communist world is operating on what military men call "interior lines", inflicting violence in the East, and talking softly in the West - particularly to the Germans. And they are meeting with some measure of success - enough to worry seriously the supporters of the ageing Konrad Adenauer, for they are holding out that promise dear to the hearts of all Germans of whatever political party, the promise of the re-unification of Germany. There is no reason in history to believe that a non-Communist Germany will not make a deal with Communist Russia; that's been done twice in the last thirty years.

But the most ominous single fact in the world situation is not Formosa, or the rising doubts in Germany or the instability of the French Government. It is what is happening in the Soviet Union. The Russian leaders appear to be preparing their people and their industrial complex for war. Since Premier Malenkov said on New Year's Eve "The danger of war is increasing", the Russians have been acting as though they believed it. The switch from consumer goods to heavy industry is loudly ~~[illegible]~~ proclaimed. There is increasing talk in the press and on the radio about "surprise attack by the forces of imperialistic reaction;" more talk of increasing defensive capabilities, which means more weapons. The strengthening of the military might of the Soviet Union is now the objective, even if that means, as it does, less food, fewer shoes, not so many clothes.

For the last year-and-a-half the Russian leaders have given their people a glimpse of some of the rewards they might expect for thirty years of hard labor and empty promises. Mostly they glimpsed things that we regard as necessities rather than luxuries. But now a second Iron Curtain has been drawn across that vision, that glimpse ~~a~~ of better living. It's to be a return to the old hard grind. In short, preparation for war. No nation, not even a dictatorship, makes that change and destroys that vision frivolously or without purpose.

It's ~~true that~~ Back in 1930 we had no hydrogen bombs or nuclear-powered submarines. But ~~in spite of the advance of science,~~ it would seem that essentially times never really change. For in 1930 Will Rogers wrote: "If we pulled together as much to put over a siege of peace as we do a spell of war, we would be sitting pretty. But we can't hardly wait for a war to end to start taking it out on each other. Peace is kinder like prosperity: there is mighty few nations that can stand it."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

Tuesday Feb 1, 1955

This is the news:

The Senate today ratified the Southeast Asia defense treaty. There was one negative vote..Republican Senator Langer of North Dakota. The treaty links us with seven other nations, against Communist aggression in the Far East. Chairman George of the Foreign Relations Committee calls it a signal "to any Communist country planning aggression, that they will have to reckon with the United States."

The President today conferred with Republican congressional leaders for more than two hours. He's reported to have told them, that he foresees no need for the use of American ground troops, in defending Formosa and its outposts.

The Foreign Relations Committee has decided to postpone action on a resolution to put the Senate on record, as favoring a United Nations cease fire in the Formosa area. Democratic Senator Humphrey, who sponsored the resolution, called this "a lack of confidence in the Administration." He said, if the government is willing to make a positive statement on using armed forces in the Formosa situation, it should make an equally positive statement on "the desireability of a cease fire, and honorable peace."

At the United Nations Security Council, delegates are reported to have agreed, unofficially, to give the Chinese Communists a week to decide whether to participate in the Council's cease-fire debate.

And the Communists today called the proposal "only one of the steps in the United States' cease-fire trick".

The American 7th fleet is someplace in the Formosa area on what Rear Admiral Ring, commander of Task Force 77, describes as:" a training mission designed to bring to a peak and maintain the highest degree of combat proficiency."

Dispatches from Formosa say there still has been no signal given for a withdrawal from the Tachen islands. And today a Nationalist warship fought a duel for more than an hour with a number of Communist craft, 25 miles northeast of the Tachens. Later four Red warships shelled a Nationalist island in the same area.

The British Commonwealth prime ministers, meeting in London, have decided to delay any independent action on Formosa in the hope that the United Nations Security Councill and the Chinese Communists will arrange a cease-fire.

In Washington, Defense Secretary Wilson asked a House committee to extend the draft for four years. His statement said: "it is vital to the maintenance of our active forces strength and to our national security."

Committess of both the Senate and House today approved legislation to raise congressional pay. A Senate committee recommends a 75-hundred dollar increase over the present 15-thousand dollars a year. A House committee proposes a ten thousand dollar raise. In each case salary increases of 75-hundred dollars a year were recommended for federal judges.

And Postmaster General Summerfield recommends a five per cent general pay increase for postal workers--together with other benefits.

Here in New York, Federal Judge Weinfeld ordered a reluctant witness to waive protection of the Fifth amendment and testify on alleged Communist espionage. The witness is William Ullman, who was named as a member of a wartime spy ring by Elizabeth Bentley. Under a law recently passed by Congress, a witness may be offered immunity from prosecution after which he no longer may refuse to testify on grounds that his testimony could be used against him. If he continued to refuse to testify he would be liable for a contempt citation.

And the Justice Department is described as feeling confident that two recent Communist TRIAL convictions will stand up..despite a confession by F.B.I. Informer Harvey Matusow that he lied about defendents at both trials. Matusow, a former Communist, says in an affidavit that at one trial his testimony was partly made up by Roy Cohen, who was then an assistant United States attorney. Cohn told reporters:"I will not comment on this Communist manuver."

The executive council of the American Federation of Labor said today that unemployment is still the nation's Number one economic problem. The President was criticized for failing to recognize "the uregnt problems confronting our economy."

Dr. Oscar A. Benson, the spiritual leader of four and a half million Lutherans, said today:"The perpetuation of our freedoms will ultimately depend not so much on patriotic oratory in and out of Congress, as on the attitudes we develop in the hearts of our youth."

Republican Senator Williams of Delaware says that a shortage of 72-thousand dollars was discovered in our Consulate General's office in Lahore, Pakistan in 1951...but the State Department has not taken action to recover any of the money.

A tornado TODAY tore through six plantation towns in the Mississippi Valley 50 mi of Memphis killing at least 23 persons. [redacted]

[redacted]

Edward R. Murrow: February 1, 1955. 7.45 p.m.

It may help evaluate the international situation to mention some facts about it to see which are hopeful and which discouraging. We can start by saying it is hopeful that the Security Council of the United Nations put the New Zealand proposal for a cease-fire first on its agenda, then invited Communist China to discuss this, rather than putting first the Soviet resolution denouncing United States policy in Formosa and asking the Peiping representatives to come to talk about that.

This hopeful consideration may have to be balanced by the probability that Peiping will not agree to discuss the New Zealand proposal. But it is not expected to turn down the invitation point-blank. Instead it may offer counter-conditions for coming. Peiping may say it will talk only about the Soviet resolution. Counter-conditions leave room for bargaining, and what is vital, room for delay. The longer the talks in the United Nations keep going the less likely is the spread of fighting in the Formosa Strait.

A discouraging factor is that allied leaders are not certain what Peiping really wants, or even what Moscow wants. That is one reason why Quemoy and the Matsu Islands were assured of American defense. Peiping keeps hammering away on its intent to liberate Formosa. Aside from being propaganda, this may be high policy. Washington doesn't know; London doesn't either. The coastal islands are not an issue by themselves, they are a by-product of a bigger issue. As to Moscow, if it is backing the Peiping claim to Formosa, it will not be sincerely urging Peiping to shelve its claims. So far Moscow is backing that claim in its propaganda, and its resolution in the U.N. is a most flamboyant instance of such backing. But it may be more than propaganda; Washington and London can't be sure.

Another discouraging factor is that a little bit of fighting over the Tachen Islands could make things easier for both the Chinese Communists and Nationalists. The Communists would have greater prestige if they took the Tachens through conquest. There would be more prestige for the Nationalists, too, if they didn't abandon the islands without a fight. But "a little bit of fighting" is not something that can be arranged. It can grow right off into general war. That is why Washington and London consider a cease-fire essential. They think it better to have the most furious and infuriating debate at the United Nations, and to have it go on for months, than have even the littlest bit of fighting.

The Peiping Government harps on its determination to "liberate" Formosa. In some ways it is a hopeful factor to learn that when Dag Hammarskjold was in Peiping he got the impression that Peiping expected to liberate Formosa from within, rather than by outright military conquest. The Communists count on being able to overthrow Chiang Kai Shek by subversion. They have worked with considerable success in undermining Nationalist discipline on some of the coastal islands. They are beaming constant radio propaganda to Formosa.

But this would not make for an easy solution of the Formosa question. For one thing, the Communists may think subversion would operate better in war than in peace, and so wish to start military action to set the stage for it. For another thing, the United States cannot be indifferent to the possibility of Chiang's being overthrown from within. It is basic American policy not to allow Formosa to pass into unfriendly hands. So Washington is keenly alive to the need of maintaining morale on Formosa. And that is one of the several reasons for assuming the defense of Quemoy and Matsu for the time being. Not to have done so might have seriously damaged Chiang's position in Formosa.

It counts as a hopeful factor to learn that if there is military action in the Formosa Strait the United States will not resort to mass retaliation. Not only will it not start anything, it will limit its own action to the action it has to meet. That is, it will not bomb Chinese cities. All it plans to do is to match any action that is started, plus "hot pursuit". That was what the generals clamored for in the Korean war, meaning that an attacking plane could be followed back to its base and the base itself be plastered. It is the firm policy of the United States to keep any fighting to the minimum.

It can count as encouraging that Washington is convinced that no war can be won that is not supported by allied opinion. This view is shared by the President, the Chiefs of Staff and the National Security Council. It was this understanding that decided the Administration not to join in defending Quemoy six months ago, and from then on it has been American policy to get the crisis into the United Nations. So yesterday's session of the Security Council put us where we want to be.

This is the start of the second phase of the crisis. Perhaps the most to hope from it is that the debate goes on and on. If it does, a third phase might be reached - the phase of negotiation. And if enough time has passed, terms of a settlement might be found which both sides can accept.

Whatever hopes we may have of ever achieving peace on this minor planet of ours depends to a great degree on the patience we are willing to show. Sir Norman Angell once put it this way: "There is a secret greater than the atom bomb which mankind has not yet discovered: How, out of complexity to distill simplicity; out of knowledge, essential understanding; out of confusion, clarity. Upon its discovery will depend survival."

Good Nite and Good Luck.

Edward R. Murrow: February 1, 1955. 7.45 p.m.

It may help evaluate the international situation to mention some facts about it to see which are hopeful and which discouraging. One can start by saying it is hopeful that the Security Council of the United Nations put the New Zealand proposal for a cease-fire first on its agenda, and invited Communist China to discuss this, rather than putting first the Soviet resolution denouncing United States policy in Formosa and asking the Peiping representatives to come to talk about that.

This hopeful consideration may have to be balanced by the probability that Peiping will not agree to discuss the New Zealand proposal. But it is expected not to turn down the invitation point-blank. Instead it may offer counter-conditions for coming. It may say it will talk about the Soviet resolution. Counter-conditions leave room for bargaining, and what is vital, room for delay. The longer the talks in the United Nations keep going the less likely is the spread of fighting in the Formosa Strait.

A discouraging factor is that allied leaders are not certain what Peiping really wants, or even what Moscow wants. That is one reason why Quemoy and the Matsu Islands were assured of American defense. Peiping keeps hammering away on its intent to liberate Formosa. Aside from being propaganda, this may be high policy. Washington doesn't know; London doesn't either. The coastal islands are not an issue by themselves, they are a by-product of a bigger issue. As to Moscow, if it is backing the Peiping claim to Formosa, it will not be sincerely urging Peiping to shelve its claims. So far Moscow is backing that claim in its propaganda, and its resolution in the U.N. is a most flamboyant instance of such backing. But it may be more than propaganda; Washington and London can't be sure.

Another discouraging factor is that a little bit of fighting over the Tachen Islands could make things easier for both the Chinese Communists and Nationalists. The Communists would have greater prestige if they took the Tachens through conquest. There would be more prestige for the Nationalists, too, if they didn't abandon the islands without a fight. But "a little bit of fighting" is not something that can be arranged. It can grow right off into general war. That is why Washington and London consider a cease-fire essential. They think it better to have the most furious and infuriating debate at the United Nations, and to have it go on for months, than have even the littlest bit of fighting.

The Peiping Government harps on its determination to "liberate" Formosa. In some ways it is a hopeful factor to learn that when Dag Hammarskjold was in Peiping he got the impression that Peiping expected to liberate Formosa from within, rather than by outright military conquest. The Communists count on being able to overthrow Chiang Kai Shek by subversion. They have worked with considerable success in undermining Nationalist discipline on some of the coastal islands. They are beaming constant radio propaganda to Formosa.

But this would not make for an easy solution of the Formosa question. For one thing, the Communists may think subversion would operate better in war than in peace, and so wish to start military action to set the stage for it. For another thing, the United States cannot be indifferent to the possibility of Chiang's being overthrown from within. It is basic American policy not to allow Formosa to pass into unfriendly hands. So Washington is keenly alive to the need of maintaining morale on Formosa. And that is one of the several reasons for assuming the defense of Quemoy and Matsu for the time being. Not to have done so might have seriously damaged Chiang's position in Formosa.

It counts as a hopeful factor to learn that if there is military action in the Formosa Strait the United States will not resort to mass retaliation. Not only will it not start anything, it will limit its own action to the action it has to meet. That is, it will not bomb Chinese cities. All it plans to do is to match any action that is started, plus "hot pursuit". That was what the generals clamored for in the Korean war, meaning that an attacking plane could be followed back to its base and the base itself be plastered. It is the firm policy of the United States to keep any fighting to the minimum.

It can count as encouraging that Washington is convinced that no war can be won that is not supported by allied opinion. This view is shared by the President, the Chiefs of Staff and the National Security Council. It was this understanding that decided the Administration not to join in defending Quemoy six months ago, and from then on it has been American policy to get the crisis into the United Nations. So yesterday's session of the Security Council put us where we want to be.

This is the start of the second phase of the crisis. Perhaps the most to hope from it is that the debate goes on and on. If it does, a third phase might be reached - the phase of negotiation. And if enough time has passed, terms of a settlement might be found which both sides can accept.

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 1, 1955
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

The Senate today ratified the Southeast Asia defense treaty. There was one negative vote...Republican Senator Langer of North Dakota. The treaty links us with seven other nations against Communist aggression in the Far East. Chairman George of the Foreign Relations Committee calls it a signal "to any Communist country planning aggression that they will have to reckon with the United States."

The President today conferred with Republican congressional leaders for more than two hours. He's reported to have told them that he foresees no need for the use of American ground troops in defending Formosa and its outposts.

The Foreign Relations Committee has decided to postpone action on a resolution to put the Senate on record as favoring a United Nations cease fire in the Formosa area. Democtatic Senator Humphrey, who sponsored the resolution, called this "a lack of confidence in the Administration." He said, if the government is willing to make a positive statement on using armed forces in the Formosa situation, it should make an equally positive statement on "the desireability of a cease fire and honorable peace." At the United Nations Security Council, delegates are reported to have agreed, unofficially, to give the Chinese Communists a week to decide whether to participate tn the Council's cease-fire debate.

And the Communists today called the proposal "only one of the steps in the United Ststes' cease-fire trick. "

The American 7th Fleet is someplace in the Formosa area on what Rear Admiral Ring, commander of Task Force 77, describes as: "a training mission designed to bring to a peak and maintain the highest degree of combat proficiency."

Dispatches from Formosa say there still has been no signal given for a withdrawal from the Tachen Islands. And today a Nationalist warship fought a duel for more than an hour with a number of Communist craft, 25 miles northeast of the Tachens. Later four Red warships shelled a Nationalist island in the same area.

The British Commonwealth prime ministers, meeting in London, have decided to delay any independent action on Formosa in the hope that the United Nations Security Council and the Chinese Communists will arrange cease-fire.

In Washington, Defense Secretary Wilson asked a House committee to extend the draft for four years. His statement said:"it is vital to the maintenance of our active forces strength and to our national security. "

Committees of both the Senate and House today approved legislation to raise congressional pay. A Senate committee recommends a 75-hundred dollar increase over the present 15-thousand dollars a year. A House committee proposes a ten thousand dollar raise. In each case salary increases of 75-hundred dollars a year were recommended for federal judges.

And Postmaster General Summerfield recommends a five per cent general pay increase for postal workers -- together with other benefits.

Here in New York, Federal Judge Weinfeld ordered a reluctant witness to waive portiction of the Fifth Amendment and testify on alleged Communist espionage. The witness is William Ullman, who was named as a member of a wartime spy ring by Elizabeth Bentley. Under a law recently passed by Congress, a witness may be offered immunity from prosecution after which he no longer may refuse to testify on grounds that his testimony could be used against him. If he continued to refuse to testify he would be liable for a contempt citation.

And the Justice Department is described as feeling confident that two recent Communist trial convictions will stand up .. despite a confession by F.B.I. Informer Harvey Matusow that he lied about defendents at both trials Matusow, a former Communist, says in an affidavit that at one trial his testimony was partly made up by Roy Cohen, who was then an assistant United States attorney. Cohn told reporters: "I will not comment on this Communist maneuver".

The executive council of the American Federation of Labor said today that unemployment is still the nation's Number one economic problem. The President was criticized for failing to recognize "the urgent problems confronting our economy."

Dr. Oscar A. Benson, the spiritual leader of four and a half million Lutherans said today:" The perpetuation of our freedoms will ultimately depend oot so much on patriotic oratory in and out of Congress, as on the attitudes we develope in the hearts of our youth."

Republican Senator Williams of Delaware says that a shortage of 72-thousand dollars was discovered in our Consulate General's office in Lahore, Pakistan in 1951...but the State Department has not taken action to recover any of the money.

A tornado today tore through six plantations towns in the Mississippi Valley south of Memphis killing at least 23 persons.

It may help evaluate the international situation to mention some facts about it to see which are hopeful and which are discouraging. We can start by saying it is hopeful that the Security Council of the United Nations put the New Zealand proposal for a cease-fire first on its agends, and then invited Communist China to discuss this, rather than putting first the Soviet resolution, denouncing Unites States policy in Formosa asking the Peiping represrepresentatives to come to talk about that.

This hopeful consideration may have to be balanced by the probability that Peiping will not agree to discuss New Zealand proposal. But it is not expected to turn down the invitation point-blank. Instead it may offer counter-conditions for coming. Peipingmay say it will talk only about the Soviet resolution. Counter-conditions leave room for bargaining, and what is vital, room for delay. The longer the talks in the United Nations keep going the less likely is the spread of fighting in the Formosa Strait.

A discouraging factor is that allied leaders are not certain that Peiping really wants, or even what Moscow wants. That is one reason why Quemoy and the Matsu Islands were assured of American defense. Peiping keeps hammering away on its intent to liberate Formosa. Aside from being propaganda, this may be high policy. Washington doesn't know; London doesn't either. The coastal islands are not an issue by themselves, they are a by-product of a bigger issue. As to Moscow, it it is backing the Peiping claim to Formosa, it will not sincerely be urging Pepinng to shelve its claims. So far Moscow is backing that claim in its propaganda, and its resolution in the U.N. is a most flamboyant instance of such backing. But it may be more than propaganda. Washington and London can't be sure.

Another discouraging factor is that a little bit of fighting over the Tachen Islands could make things easier for both the Chinese Communists and Nationalists. The Communists would have greater prestige for the Nationalists, too, if they didn't abandon the islands without a fight. But "a little bit of fighting" is not something that can be arranged. It can grow right off into a general war. That is why Washington and London consider a cease-fire essential. They think it better to have the most furious and infuriating debate at the United Nations, and to have it go on for months, than have enen a littlest bit of fighting.

The Peiping Government harps on its determination to "liberate" Formosa. In some ways it is a hopeful factor to learn that when Dag Hammarskjold was in Peiping he got the impression that Peiping expected to liberate Formosa from within, rather than by outright military conquest. The Communists count on being able to overthrow Chiang Kai Shek by subversion. They have worked with considerable success in undermining Nationalist discipline on some of the coastal islands. They are beaming constant radio propaganda to Formosa.

But this would not make for an easy solution of the Formosa question. For one thing, the Communists may think subversion sould operate better in war than in peace, and so wish to start military action to set the stage for it. For another thing, the United States cannot be indiferent to the possibility of Chiang's being overthrown from within. It is basic American policy not to allow Formosa to pass into unfriendly hands. So Washington is keenly alive to the need of maintaining morale on Formosa. And that is one of the several reasons for assuming the defense of Quemoy and Matsu for the time being. Not to have done so might have seriously damaged Chiang's position in Formosa.

It counts as a hopeful factor to learn that if there is military action in the Formosa Strait the United States will not resort to mass retaliation. Not only will it not start anything, it will limit its own action to the action it has to meet. That is, it will not bomb Chinese Cities. All it plans to do is to match any action that is started, plus "hot pursuit". That was what the generals clamored for in the Korean war, meaning that an attacking plane could be followed back to its base and the base itself be plastered. It is the firm policy of the United States to keep any fighting to the minimum.

It can count as encouraging that Washington is convinced that no war can be won that is not supported by allied opinion. This view is shared by the President, the Chiefs of Staff and the National Security Council. It was this underatanding that decided the Administration not to join in defending Quemoy six months ago, and from then on it has been American policy to get the crisis into the United Nations. So yesterday's session of the Security Council put us where we want to be.

This is the start of the second phase of the crisis. Perhaps the most to hope from it is that the debate goes on and on. If it does, a third phase might be reached - the phase of negotiation. And if enough time has passed, terms of a settlement might be found. which both sides can accept.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a moment with the Word for Today. But first, Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: Whatever hopes we may have of achieving peace on this minor planet of ours, depends to a great degree on the patience we are willing to show. Sir Norman Angell once put it this way: "There is a secret greater than the atom bomb which mankind has not yet discovered: How, out of complexity to distill simplicity; out of knowledge, essential understanding; out of confusion clarity. Upon its discovery will will depend survival."

Good Night and good Luck.

Wednesday February 2, 1955

This is the news:

The President said today that we have now made it crystal clear to Communist China that we are absolutely determined to defend Formosa. Mr. Eisenhower told reporters : this decision, approved by Congress, insures against any Communist miscalculation about our determination. The President said the Korean war was caused, in part, because the Communists had not received any warning of our intention to defend South Korea against aggression. The President also said we have made no committment to use ground forces in the defense of Formosa. What we are doing is to try honestly and hopefully to prevent war. We've recorded two of the statements made by the President today. First, he was asked if he would care to say if the 7th fleet is under orders to pursue the enemy back to his bases in case the fleet is attacked. Here's the President's answer:

(tape ends :"I see no chance of it being altered")

I'd like to discuss the President's ~~hesitancy~~ reluctance to go into details on our Formosa plans..in a few minutes.

At his news conference today Mr. Eisenhower also told reporters: he does not intend to withdraw the Dixon-Yates power contract as a result of Democratic opposition in Congress.

Off Formosa today, Nationalist planes again attacked the Communists north of the Tachens. But the Communists broke off their raids on the same islands. The Peiping radio, again demanded that the United States withdraw from Formosa, But there was no indication whether the Communists will send a representative to discuss a cease-fire before the United Nations Security Council.

In London, the Chinese Communist envoy was reported to have delivered a secret message to the visiting Prime Minister Nehru of India. Nehru and Sir Winston Churchill conferred. And well-informed diplomats told reporters there are "strong indications" the Chinese will go along with an informal CEASE-fire if the Nationalists surrender the off-shore islands: the Tachens, Quemoy and Matsu.

The Indian government announced today an agreement with Russia whereby the Russians will build a 95-million-dollar steel mill in India. The Indians will finance the plant which is to be completed by the end of 1959

Another American guided missile battalion arrived in West Germany today. And the Army says six more atomic cannons will be sent to Europe soon..making a total of 36.

Dag Hammershuld, the secretary general of the United Nations, today named India's chief cosmic ray expert to be the president of the first world conference on peaceful uses of the atom. And an American, Professor Walter Whitman, a member of our atomic energy commission's advisory board, has been named secretary-general.

The Defense Department said today that about 9-thousand service men will take part in the next Nevada tests of "new and improved nuclear weapons. This will include more than 2-thousand navy and marine personnel.

Republican Representative Hinshaw of California told a House committee today that "a great cry, mounting to a roar" is being heard in complaint against the draft system..because of a growing shortage of scientists, engineers and technicians. And General Hershey, director of selective service, says its difficult to exempt scientists under his interpretation that the present draft law imposes a universal obligation for service on every able-bodied young man.

Chairman Magnuson of the Senate Commerce Committee said today that his group will investigate possible monopoly in the broadcasting industry and what he called "abuses" in the Federal Communications Commission.

Magnuson made this statement in releasing a report on possible ways to change broadcasting regulations. One of the chief recommendations in the report prepared by Harry M. Plotkin was that the government should decide whether radio networks should be barred from also owning television networks. CBS President Frank Stanton said that many of Plotkin's proposals are [redacted] "impractical and unwise." He said if adopted they could cripple network television and the public's investment of thirteen and a half billion dollars in receivers would be depreciated.

The National Labor Relations Board TODAY voted unanimously to deprive the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers of its privileges under the Taft-Hartley law. The action was taken because a union official admitted [redacted] his non-Communist affidavit was [redacted] false.

The executive council of the American Federation of Labor said today that "anti-labor policies" are becoming "a way of life in Washington." The council says that under the Republicans the National Labor Relations Board has become "a national disgrace.." with a "pro-business majority" warping and distorting the [redacted] TAFT-HARTLEY LAW.

An informed source at the Justice Department says a grand jury investigation has been ordered because of charges by former Communist Harvey Matusow that he testified falsely for the government in at least two Communist cases. Matusow has sworn that Roy Cohn "worked with" him to prepare false testimony in one case. Senator McCarthy said today he is "absolutely confident" that this is not true. Mc Carthy also charges that the Democrats on the Senate Investigating Committee used "cheap, dirty politics" in asking seven staff members to resign.

In St. Louis, white and Negro high school students attended regular classes today for the first time. The principal of one school said "it was as if they had been together for 100 years."

Edward R. Murrow: February 2, 1955. 7.45 p.m.

President Eisenhower in his news conference today repeatedly made it clear that he did not want to discuss details of plans or proposals for the situation around Formosa. This reluctance to talk apparently stemmed not only from the desire not to give information to a potential enemy, but also because conversations with Allies are in constant progress, and because the question of a cease-fire is under consideration by the United Nations.

In situations as delicate and dangerous as this one, it is well to remember that national self-interest may change its face very quickly. There was a time during the war in Korea when the presence of Chiang Kai Shek's forces on the offshore islands was very important to us. They pinned down, or rather held in position three or four hundred thousand Chinese Communist troops which might otherwise have been used in Korea. The Chinese Communists, lacking modern means of communication, had to establish a cordon defense along the coast, rather than creating strongpoints with a highly mobile reserve back at the communications center. For example, there was a time when Chiang Kai-Shek pulled his forces out of the Tachen Islands, and he later sent them back at our request, or suggestion. So if we now evacuate them, we are merely recognizing that they are no longer militarily useful in that particular position.

There is a tendency to believe that a general war may start as the result of an incident. But there have recently been many incidents which have not led to war. It would perhaps be more prudent to conclude that a general war will not start as a result of a relatively minor incident or provocation; that it will start, if it does, when the Chinese or the Russians, or both together decide they want it to start. This is one of the principal differences between Washington and our European allies. We tend to favor a more bold and apparently more risky policy and procedures, believing that if war comes it will be as a result of policy, not provocation.

No one can pretend to read the minds of the men in Moscow. But both history and geography combine to support the belief that Moscow would be pleased at the prospect of a war between China and the United States, to which we would be fully committed. It is a military illusion to think that we can engage in war in Asia to the extent of using air and naval power only. It's useful to remember that that's what we started out to do in Korea; and that determination lasted for about thirty-six hours, after which we started moving ground forces in.

A war in Asia to which we were fully committed would largely leave the Russians with a free hand in Europe. They might, or might not honor their treaty with Communist China, depending on where they thought their own national advantage lay.

The Administration, in attempting a disengagement and a cease-fire in Asia is apparently following the dictum of von Klausewitz, who said that the first duty of a nation is to recognize its enemy. And our principal enemy is not China, but Russia.

Lord Lytton, just about a hundred years ago, made an interesting observation about people. What he had to say could also apply to nations...and today. "Whatever the number of a man's friends, he remarked, there will be times in his life when he has one too few. But if he has only one enemy, he is lucky indeed if he has not one too many."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

CBS RADIO DIVISION

EDWARD R. MURROW

Wednesday, February 2, 1955
7:45-8:00 p.m.

MURROW: This is the news! The President said today that we have now made it crystal clear to Communist China that we are absolutely determined to defend Formosa. Mr. Eisenhower told reporters: "This decision, approved by Congress, insures against any Communist miscalculation about our determination." The President said the Korean war was caused, in part, because the Communists had not received any warning of our intention to defend South Korea against aggression. The President also said we have made no commitment to use ground forces in the defense of Formosa. What we are doing is to try honestly and hopefully to prevent war. We've recorded two of the statements made by the President today. First, he was asked if he would care to say if the 7th Fleet is under orders to pursue the enemy back to his bases in case the fleet is attacked. Here's the President's answer.

EISENHOWER: I ... frankly, I considered whether I would talk about suchthings this morning and I repeat what I said - I don't believe it is best to put out any specific blueprint on orders, instructions. I believe it just best to leave it as it stands for the moment. The United Nations is working on this and I don't see how any statement of mine could do anything more than muddy the water a little bit. Now, this is not any attempt to keep either you people or the American people in the dark, but this is an international situation. There's every kind of influence and cross-current involved and I just think it's wise to say nothing.

SPEAKER: Mr. President, Marvin (Arrowsmith-? (indistinct), of the AP. General Ridgway told the House Armed Services Committee a few days ago that he is against the projected cut in Army strength and he said he believes that the proposedcut would jeopardize national security to a degree. How do you feel about that and is there any possibility of the reduction order being rescinded?

EISENHOWER: Well, I am now ... I assume that you're asking a question so far as it affects the Executive Department. My decision in this matter was not reached lightly. It was reached after long study of every opinion I could get. Now, ... and consultation with every single individual in this Government that I know of that bears any responsibility whatsoever about it. General Ridgway was questioned on the ... in the Congress as to his personal convictions and, naturally, he had to express them. His responsibility for national defense is a, you might say, a special one or in a sense parochial. He does not have the over-all responsibility that is borne by the Commander-in-Chief and by him alone when it comes down to making the recommendation to the Congress. My recommendations, I repeat, weremade from my best judgment of what is the adequate defense structure for this United States, particularly on a long-term basis, and that decision has not been altered and at this moment I see no chance of it being altered.

Ed.trans.-A.A.Cardiff (30)

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 2, 1955
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

The President said today that we have now made it crystal clear to Communist China that we are absolutely determined to defend Formosa. Mr. Eisenhower told reporters: this decision, approved by Congress, insures against any Communist miscalculation about our determination. The President said the Korean war was caused, in part, because the Communists had not received any warning of our intention to defend South Korea against aggression. The President also said we have made no committment to use ground forces in the defense of Formosa. What we are doing is to try honestly and hopefully to prevent war. We've recorded two of the statements made by the President today. First, he was asked if he would care to say if the 7th Fleet is under orders to pursue the eneny back to his bases in case the fleet is attacked. Hereis the President's answer:

EISENHOWER: I...frankly, I considered whether I would talk about such things this morning and I repeat what I said - I don't believe it is best to put out any specific blueprint on orders, instructions. I believe it just best to leave it as it stands for the moment. The United Nations is working on this and I don't see how any statement of mine could do anything more than muddy the water a little bit. Now, this is not any attempt to keep either you people of the American people in the dark, but this is an international situation. There's every kind of influence and crsss-current involved and I just think it's wise to say nothing.

SPEAKER: Mr. President, Marvin (indistinct), of the AP. General Ridgway told the House Armed Services Committee a few days ago that he is against the projected cut in Army strength and he said he believes that the proposed cut would jeopardize national security to a degree. How do you feel about that and is there any possibility of the reduction order being rescinded?

EISENHOWER: Well, I am now...I assume that you're asking a question so far as it affects the Executive Department. My decision in this matter was not reached lightly. It was reached after long study of every opinion I could get. Now...and consultation with every single individual in this Government that I know of that bears any responsibility whatsoever about it. General Ridgway was questioned on the .....in the Congress as to his personal convictions and, naturally,he had to express them. His responsibility for national defense is a, you might say, a special one or in a sense parocial. He does not have the over-all responsibility that is borne by the Commander-in- Chief and by him alone when it comes down to making the recommendation to the Congress. My recommendations, I repeat, were made from my best judgement of what is the adequate defense structure for this United States, particularly on a long-term basis, and that decision has not been altered and at this moment I see no chance of it being altered.

MURROW: I'd like to discuss the President's reluctance to go into reluctance to go into details on our Formosa plans...in a few minutes,

At his news conference today Mr. Eisenhower also told reporters: he does not intend to withdraw the Dixon-Yates power contract as a result of Democratic oppostionn in Congress.

Off Formosa today, Nationalist planes again attacked the Communists north of the Tachens. But the Communists broke off their raids on the same islands. The Peiping radio, again demanded that the United States withdraw from Formosa, tht there was no indication whether the Communists will send a representative to discuss a cease-fire before the United Nations Security Council.

In London, the Chinese Communist envoy was reported to have delivered a secret message to the visiting Prime Minister Nehru of India. Nehru and Sir Winston Churchell conferred. And well-informed diplomats told reporters there are "strong indications" the Chinese will go along with an informal cease fire if the Nationalists surrender the off-shore islands: the Tachens, Quemoy and Matsu.

The Indian government announced today an agreement with Russia whereby the Russians will build a 95-million dollar steel mill in India. The Indians will finance the plant which is to be completed by the end of 1959.

Another American guided missile battalion arrived in West Germany today. And the Army says six more atomic cannons will be sent to Europe soon... making a total of 36.

Dag Hammerskjold, the Secretary-General of the United Nations, today named India's chief cosmic ray expert, to be the president of the first world conference on peaceful uses of the atom. And an American, Professor Walter Whitman, a member of our atomic energy commission's advisory board, has been named secretary-general.

The Defense Department said today that about 9-thousand service men will take part in the next Nevada tests of "new and improved nuclear weapons. " This will include more than 2-thousand navy and marine personnel.

Republican Representative Hinshaw of California told a House committee today that "a great cry, mounting to a roar" is being heard in complaint against the draft system...because of a growing shortage of scientists, engineers and technicians. And General Hershey, director of selevtive service says its difficult to exempt scientists under his interpretation that the present draft law imposes a universal obligation for service on every able-bodied young man.

Chairman Magnuson of the Senate Commerce Committee said today that his group will investigate possible monopoly in the broadcasting industry and what he called "abuses" in the Federal Communications Commission. Magnuson made this statement in releasing a report on possible ways to change broadcasting regulations. One of the chief recommendations in the report prepared by Harry M. Plotkin was that the government should decide whether radio networks should be barred from also owning television networks. C.B.S. President Frank Stanton said that many Plotkins proposals are "impractical and unwise." He said if adopted they could cripple network television and the public's investment of thirteen and a half billion dollars in receivers would be depreciated.

The National Labor Relations Board today voted unanimously to deprive the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers of its privileges under the Taft-Hartley law. The action was taken because a union official admitted his non-Communist affidavit was false.

The executive council of the American Federation of Labor said today that "anti-labor policies" are becoming "a way of life in Washington." The council says that under the Republicans and National Labor Relations Board has become "a national disgrace" ...with a "pro-business majority" warping and distorting the Taft-Hartley law.

An informed sourse at the Justice Department says a grand jury investigation has been ordered because of charges by former Commu ist Harvey Matusow that he testified falsely for the government in at least two Communist cases. Matusow has sworn that Roy Cohen "worked with" him to prepare false testimony in one case. Senator McCarthy said today he is "absolutely confident" that this is not true. McCarthy also charges that the Deomcrats on the Senate Investigating Committee used "cheap, dirty politics", in asking seven staff members to resign.

In St. Louis, white and Negro high school students attended regular classes for the first time today. The principal of one shcool said "it was as if they had been together for 100 years."

President Eisenhower in his news conference today repeatedly made it clear that he did not want to discuss details of plans or proposals for the situation around Formosa. This reluctance to talk apparently stemmed not only from the desire not to give information to a potential enemy, but also because conversations with Allies are in constant progress, and because the question of a cease-fire is under consideration by the United Nations.

In situations as delicate and dangerous as this one, it is well to remember that national self-interest may change its face very quickly. There was a time during the war in Korea when the presence of Chiang Kai Shek's forces on the offshore islands was very important to us. They pinned down, or rather held in position three or four hundred thousand Chinese Communist troops whish might otherwise have been used in Korea. The Chinese Communists, lacking modern means of communication, had to establish a cordon defense along the coast, rather than creating strongpoints with a highly mobile reserve back at the communications center. For example, there was a time when Chiang Kai Shek pulled his forces out of the Tachen Islands, and he later sent them back at our request, or suggestion. So if we now evacuate them, we are merely recognizing that they are no longer militarily useful in that particular position.

There is a tendency to believe that a general war may start as the result of an incident. But there have recently been many incidents which have not led to war. It would perhpas be more prudent to conclude that a general war will not start as a result of a relatively minor incident or provocation; that it will start, if it does, when the Chinese or the Russians or both together decide they want it to start. This is one of the principal differences betwenn Washington and our European allies. We tend to favor a more bold and apparently more risky policy and procedure, believing that if war comes, it will be as a result of policy, not provocation.

No one can pretend to read the minds of the men in Moscow. But both history and geography combine to support the belief that Moscow would be pleased at the prospect of a war between China and the United States, to which we would by fully committed. It is a military illusion to think that we can engage in war in Asia to the extent of using air and naval power only. It's useful to remember that that's what we started out to do in Korea; and that determination lasted for about thirty-six hours, after which we started moving ground forces in.

A war is Asia to which we were fully committed would largely leave the Russians with a free hand in Europe. They might or might not honor their treaty with Communist China, depending on where they thought their own national advantage lay.

The Administration, in attempting a disengagement and a cease-fire in Asia is apparently following the dictum of von Klausewitz, who said that the first duty of a nation is to recognize its enemy. And our principal enemy is not China, but Russia.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a minute with the Word for Today. Now, here id Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: Lord Lytton, just about a hundred years ago, made an interesting observation about people. What he had to say could also apply to nations... and today. "Whatever the number of a man's friends," he remarked, "there will be times in his life when he has one too few. But if he has only one enemy, he is lucky indeed if he has not one too many."

Good Night and Good Luck.

Thursday February 3, 1955

This is the news:

The Chinese Communists will not send a delegate to the United Nations Security Council to discuss Formosa. Premier Chou en Lai says that before this could be done, the Chinese Nationalists must be deprived of their seat on the Council. And then he would have the Communist delegate discuss only the Soviet charge, that the United States is guilty of aggression against Red Chona. Chou charges that: the Security Council is intervening in the internal affairs of Red China.. any action it takes violates the United Nations charter and is illegal. he says - the whole matter is no concern of the United Nations. ~~The State Department says Red China's rejection of the cease fire talks is a further flouting of the U.N." that it not his country that is responsible for tension in the Far East. He blames this on the United States and accuses us again of occupying Formosa.~~

The British Foreign Office finds this message "extremely disappointing." ~~There is no comment yet from the State~~ Department, but Chairman George of the SENATE ~~Foreign Relations Committee~~ calls Chou en Lai's conditions "impossible". ~~Republican Senator Knowland says: "Unless the free world is prepared for a Far Eastern Munich this is the place to let~~

2

The State Department says Red China's rejection of the cease-fire talks is "a further flouting" of the United Nations..we regret this "abrupt rejection" of the invitation to attend the Security Council meeting..the Council must now consider the Chinese statement.

In London, Prime Minister Churchill late tonight called an emergency cabinet meeting for tomorrow to consider the Formosa situation. Earlier, a foreign office spokesman had expressed "extreme disappointment" at the Chinese decision.

In Washington Chairman George of the Senate Foreign Relations committee says the Chinese Reds have given us "impossible conditions." Republican Senator Knowland says:"Unless the free world is prepared for a Far Eastern Munich, this is the place to let the Communist regime stew in its own juice." Republican Senator Bridges of New Hampshire calls the Red announcement "blackmail"..says it indicates they do not want peace.

~~In London, Prime Minister Churchill is dining with the eight Commonwealth prime ministers trying to figure out a next step. And today our ambassador Aldrich conferred with India's Prime Minister Nehru.~~ IS DINING WINTHROP

~~Some delegates at the United Nations feel that Chou en Lai has asked Nehru, or another third party, to try to organise a conference on Formosa..outside of the United Nations.~~ SOME OTHER

There was little military activity in the Formosa area today. And there appeared to be a snag in the negotiations to have the Chinese Nationalists withdraw from the Tachen islands, 200 miles north of Formosa. The Nationalists apparently want some guarantee from Washington to help protect their offshore islands of Quemoy and Matsu.

In Moscow today, the Soviet government presented its Parliament with a new military budget that is 12 per cent higher than last year's. (I'd like to discuss this budget in a few minutes.)

And in Paris, Premier Mendez-France appears to be in what my colleage Dave Schoenbrun calls "real trouble." Mendez has demanded a vote of confidence from the National Assembly on the way he has handled the situation in North Africa. This is the same issue on which his political enemies threaten to UNSEAT his government. Former Premier Rene Mayer, a leader of the same political party to which Mendez belongs, has charged that Mendez has abandoned Indo-China and North Africa. But the Premier points out that he has made no changes from the North African policy approved by the Assembly. [redacted]

B/

In Washington, the House armed services committee has unanimously approved a bill to extend the draft for four more years. This calls for all 18-and-a-half year-olds to serve in the armed forces for two years, followed by a six year obligation for reserve duty.

Senator Russell revealed today that a Senate group has been keeping a close check on the C.I.A...the Central Intelligence Agency. He says, "This is the kind of activity that has never been publicized."

Army Secretary Stevens today turned down Senator McCarthy's demand that the army give a dishonorable discharge to Private Marvin Belsky. McCarthy wants this done because Belsky invoked the 5th amendment to the Constitution when he appeared before the McCarthy committee last year. Secretary Stevens says to discharge Belsky dishonorably now would be illegal and hurt Army morale "in the absence of information to establish subversive conduct." Again, Stevens asked McCarthy for such information.

The uranium expert of the Atomic Energy Commission says we are in the midst of a "uranium boom" and moving toward the top of world production. Jesse Johnson, head of the raw materials division of the Atomic Energy Commission, says domestic uranium ~~development~~ production is enjoying "phenomenal development."

A special site committee of the Democratic National Committee has recommended that the 1956 convention be held in Chicago. The full national committee will vote on the selection of Chicago by mail.

~~Chairman Walter of the House un-American activities committee says he is convinced that Harvey Matusow was a Communist "plant" designed to discredit congressional investigators. Matusow, who calls himself a former Communist, has testified for the government in court, and appeared as a witness before congressional committees.~~

And the weather Bureau predicts another day of severe cold tomorrow for the northeastern third of the nation.

Edward R. Murrow: February 3, 1955. 7.45 p.m.

The increase of the Soviet military budget by twelve percent brought applause from the All-Soviet Congress in Moscow when it was announced. It compares with the decrease in the United States Defense Department budget of about 17 percent. Our decrease came first, and expressed the widespread optimism in Washington as the new year started over the lessened likelihood of war. In Moscow the Soviet increase was justified by the statement that nothing had happened to add to the probability of peace.

Just how much the Soviet Union spends for military purposes is impossible to judge. A budget in Moscow is not comparable with our own. The Soviet state is the only producer and the only employer, and many items that go into defense appear under other headings. Nominally about twenty percent of the new budget is to be for defense, or 112 billion rubles out of 589 billion. In fact, nearly half of current expenditure is for defense. (The proportion has always been something like that.) What is new this year is that defense is admitted to be 20 percent of the total, as against seventeen point eight percent last year.

This is financial confirmation of the big change in Soviet policy signalized by the removal of the Trade Minister Mikoyan. No longer is the objective of Soviet planning an increase in consumer goods. The nation goes back to the austerity of Stalin's times, with its concentration on big industry and defense output. This year there is to be a more open campaign to boost grain production, especially for feeding cattle. The secretary of the Communist Party, ~~Nikita~~ Krushchev, who shares top power with Premier Malenkov, has published a lengthy address to Soviet Farmers, ~~agriculturists~~. He urges them to emulate American farmers in developing hybrid corn for feeding cattle. He announces as goal a total grain production of 180 million tons, a fourth more than Stalin's last pre-war objective. He said that the Soviet Union grows more wheat than the United States, a larger total crop and a larger output per capita; but laments that fodder is far below American standards and that Soviet lands are not adequately fertilized.

But the campaign to increase the food supply is part of the campaign to step up military production. It certainly is not an alternative to it.

The ideological basis for the higher military budget will come in the talks on foreign affairs, still to be made at the Congress. Actually it was to hear these talks that the Congress was summoned at this time. And the Soviet public is sure to be made aware - as we should be - that the greatest of the world's conflicts today is over German re-armament. The Soviet aim continues to be to prevent the ratification of the Paris agreements; and if it cannot be prevented, of keeping them from going into effect.

What the threatened fall of Mendes France would do to the chances of ratification in Paris is too early to say. But it will not help. And while our attention has been diverted to the Far East, the Soviet work against German re-armament has slogged ahead. Now the German crisis looms up again in its true dimensions. I am not suggesting it is going to produce war. But Moscow is heightening the tension.

Moscow's blueprint of action never is distinct. Still it is possible to see something of the strategy ahead. Mr. Molotov has announced that Moscow will not negotiate with the Western Powers over German unification if the Paris accords are ratified. But he hasn't said there can be no negotiations. There can be, if the agreements are suspended or if they are not put into effect. Mendes France already has suggested parallel negotiations, which means to sit down with the Soviet representatives and talk about Germany before implementing the treaties. German Socialists have a campaign ready for the moment of ratification, which will be directed against raising any German army. They will contend that the treaties do not compel, but only permit, the raising of the twelve divisions. An emotional anti-conscription drive will be launched. And the East German Government already is offering asylum to any West German in uniform who wishes to escape military service. The Bonn government is not taking the offer lightly.

There is another approach to negotiations for Moscow. Now that it has ended the state of war with Germany, diplomatic relations with Bonn are to be established. And it looks like "a natural" that the new Soviet Ambassador should show up with an invitation for direct negotiations over German unification, laying down the single condition that the East German government take part. Bonn wants no truck with the East German government, but it might be almost suicidal to refuse to sit down and confer over unification.

Still another field for negotiation could be in the realm of a general European agreement to limit arms. This again is one of Mendes France's ideas. He suggested that the arming of Germany might lead to a mutual limitation on the size of armies on both sides of the Iron Curtain. Mr. Molotov himself has suggested an all-European mutual security pact which he says would make NATO superfluous. The two concepts are not irreconcilable.

If anyone is beginning to grow weary of the everlasting bickering, over Formosa, over re-arming Germany, over so much else, he might remind himself that his fatigue is what the Kremlin wants. That is the way a war of nerves is won.

It would seem that the best hope we have of winning the cold war, we must ~~is to~~ practice patience and act wisely. Jan Struther once put it well when she said:"There are some situations in which we are unable to take action, when all we can do is brace ourselves against the shock. But there are others in which we have the power to act. And that is when we need all our firmness and singleness of purpose. For with patience and strength we can endure all things, and achieve many."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 3, 1955
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

The Chinese Communists will not send a delegate to the United Nations Security Council to discuss Formosa. Premier Chou en Lai says that before this could be done the Chinese Nationalists must be deprived of their seat on the Council. And then he would have the Communist delegate discuss only the Soviet charge that the United States is guilty of aggression against Red China. Chou charges that : the Security Council is intervening in the internal affairs of Red China...any action it takes violates the United Nations charter and is illegal. He says the whole matter is of no concern to the United Nations.

The State Department says Red China's rejection of the cease-fire talks is "a further flouting" of the United Nations. We regret this "abrupt rejection" of the invitation to attend the Security Council meeting...the Council must now consider the Chinese statement.

In London, Prime Minister Churchill late tonight called an emergency cabinet meeting for tomorrow to consider the Formosa situation. Earlier, a foreign office spokesman had expressed "extreme disappointment" at the Chinese decision.

In Washington Chairman George of the Senate Foreign Relations committee says the Chinese Reds have given us "impossible conditions". Republican Senator Knowland says: "Unless the free world is prepared for a Far Eastern Munich, this is the place to let the Communist regime stew in its own juice." Republican Senator Bridges of New Hamphhire calls the Red announcement "blackmail" ...says it indicates they do not want peace.

There was little military activity in the Formosa area today. And there appeared to be a snag in the negotiations to have the Chinese Nationalists withdraw from the Tachen islands, 200 miles north of Formosa. The Nationalists apparently want some guarantee from Washington to help protect their offshore islands of Quemoy and Matsu.

In Moscow today, the Soviet government presented its Parliament with a new military budget that is 12 per cent higher than last year's. I'd like to discuss this budget in a few minutes.

And in Paris, Premier Mendez-France appears to be in what my colleague Dave Schoenbrun calls "real trouble." Mendez has demanded a vote of confidence from the National Assembly on the way he has handled the situation in North Africa. This is the same issue on which his political enemies threaten to unseat his government. Former Premier Rene Meyer, a leader of the same political party to which Mendez belongs, has charged that Mendez has abandoned Indo-China and North Africa. But the Premier points out that he has made no changes from the North African policy approved by the Assembly.

In Washington, the House armed services committee has unanimously approved a bill to extend the draft for four more years. This calls for all 18-and-a-half-year-olds to serve in the armed forces for two years, followed by a six year obligation for reserve duty.

Senator Russell revealed today that a Senate group has meen keeping a close check on the C.I.A. ...the Central Intelligence Agency. He says "This is the kind of activity that has never been publicized."

Army Secretary Stevens today turned down Senator McCarthy's demand that the army give a dishonorbale discharge to Private Marvin Belsky. McCarthy wants this done because Belsky invoked the 5th amendment to the constitution when he appeared before the McCarthy committee last year. Secretary Stevens says to discharge Belsky dishonorably now would be illegal and hurt Army morale " in the absence of information to establish subversive conduct." Again, Stevens asked McCarthy for such information.

The uranium expert of the Atomic Energy Commission says we are in the midst of a "uranium boom" and moving toward the top of world production. Jesse Johnson, head of the raw materials division of the atomic Energy Commission, says domestic uranium production is enjoying "phenomenal development."

A special site committee of the Democratic National Committee has reccommended that the 1956 convention be held in Chicago. The full national committee will vote on the selection of Chicago by mail.

And the Weather Bureau predicts another day of severe cold tomorrow for the northeastern third of the nation.

The increase of the Soviet military budget by twelve percent brought applause from the All-Soviet Congress in Moscow when it was announced. It compares with the decrease in the United States Defense Department budget of about 17 percent. Our decrease came first, and expressed the widespread optimism in Washington as the new year started over the lessened likelihood of war. In Moscow the Soviet increase was justified by the statement that nothing had happened to add to the probability of peace.

Just how much the Soviet Union spends for military purposes is impossible to judge. A budget in Moscow is not comparable with our own. The Soviet state is the only producer and the only employer, and many items that go into defense appear under other headings. Nominally about twenty percent of the new budget is to be for defense, or 112 billion rubles out of 589 billion. In fact, nearly half of current expenditure is for defense. The proportion has always been something like that. What is new this year is that defense is admitted to be 20 percent of the total, as against seventeen point eight percent last year.

This is financial confirmation of the big change in Soviet policy signalized by the removal of the Trade Minister Mikoyan. No longer is the objective of Soviet planning an increase in consumer goods. The nation goes back to the austerity of Stalin's times, with its concentration on big industry and defense output. This year there is to be more open campaign to boost grain production sepecially for feeding cattle. The secretary of the Communist Party, Krushchev, who shares top power with Premier Malenkov, has published a lenghthy address to Soviet farmers. He urges them to emulate American farmers in developing hybrid corn for feeding cattle. He announces as a goal, a total grain production of 180 million tons, a fourth more than Stalin's last pre-war objective. He said that the Soviet Union grows more wheat than the United States, a larger total crop, and a larger output per capita; but laments that fodder is far below American standards and that Soviet lands are not adequately fertilized.

But the campaign to increase the food supply is part of the campaign to step up military production. It certainly is not an alternative to it.

The ideological basis for the higher military budget will come in the talks on foreign affairs, still to be made at the Congress. Actually it was to hear these talks that the Congress was summoned at this time. And the Soviet public is sure to me made aware - as we should be - that the greatest of the world's conflicts today is over German re-armament. The Soviet aim continues to brevent the ratification of the Paris agreements; and if it cannot be prevented, of keeping them from going into effect.

What the threatened fall of Mendes France would do th the chances of ratification in Paris is too early to say. But it will not help. And while our attention has been diverted to the Far East, the Soviet work against re-armament has slogged ahead. Now the German crisis looms up again in its true dimensions. I am not suggesting it is going to produce war. But Moscow is heightening the tension.

Moscow's blueprint of action never is distinct. Still it is possible to see something of the strategy ahead. Mr. Molotov has announced that Moscow will not negotiate with Western Powers over German unification if the Paris accords are ratified. But he hasn't said there can be no negotiations. There can be, if the agreements are suspended or if they are not put into effect. Mendes France already has suggested parallel negotiations, which means to sit down with the Soviet representatives and talk about Germany before implementing the treaties. German Socialists have a campaign ready for the moment of ratification, which will be directed against raising any German army. They will contend that the treaties do not compel, but only permit, the raising of twelve divisions. An emotional anti-conscription drive will be launched. And the East German Government already is offering asylum to any West German in uniform who wishes to escape military service. The Bonn government is not taking the offer lightly.

There is another approach to negotiations for Moscow. Now that it has ended the state of war with Germany, diplomatic relations with Bonn are to be established. And it looks like " a natural " that the new Soviet Ambassador should show up with an invitation for direct negotiations over German unification, laying down the single condition that the East German government take part. Bonn wants no truck with the East German government, but it might be almost suicidal to refuse to sit down and confer over unification.

Still another field for negotiation could be in the realm of a general European agreement to limit arms. This again is one of Mendes-France's ideas. He suggested that the arming of Germany might lead to a mutual limitation of the size of armies on both sides of the Iron Curtain. Mr. Molotov himself has suggested an all-European mutual security pact which he says would make NATO superfluous. The two concepts are not irreconcilable.

If anyone is beginning to grow weary of the everlasting bickering, over Formosa, over re-arming Germany, over so much else, he might remind himself that his fatigue is what the Kremlin wants. That is the way a war of nerves is won.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a minute. But now....Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: It would seem that the best hope we have of winning the cold war ... we must practice patience and act wisely. Jan Struther once put it well when he said:" There are some situations in which we are unable to take action, when all we can do is brace ourselves against the shock. But there are others in which we have the power to act. And that is when we need all our firmness and singleness of purpose. For with patience and strength, we can endure all things, and acheive many."

Good Night and Good Luck.

Friday February 4, 1955

This is the news:

Great Britain's Foreign Minister Eden today warned the Chinese Communists not to try to seize any of the Nationalist-held islands off China by force. Eden told a questioner in the House of Commons that if the Communists use force to try to take the Tachens, Quemoy and Matsu islands it would endanger world peace and security. Eden acknowledged that these islands "undoubtedly form part of the territory" of Red China. But he cautioned against the use of force to capture them now. As for Formosa and the Pescadores, which the United States is committed to defend, Mr. Eden said their ownership is "uncertain and undetermined." I'd like to examine this problem in a few minutes.

India's Prime Minister Nehru met in London today with representatives of Red China and Indonesia. And in Moscow, Foreign Minister Molotov called in representatives from India and Great Britain.

And in Washington, a State Department spokesman made it clear that we do not favor any Formosan cease-fire meeting outside of the United Nations. News officer Henry Suydam told reporters that at the Geneva conference last summer he heard Communist Premier Chou en Lai assail "the moral authority of the United Nations in the most intemperate and arrogant language." He said:"I find it difficult to believe that anyone who participated in that experience would wish to repeat it." And Republican Senator Knowland told reporters that any new United Nations effort to get the Communists to discuss a cease-fire would be "a surrender to Communist power." Knowland also spoke against any such meeting that might be arranged by Nehru of India. He said he cannot conceive of Chiang Kai Shek risking the lives of his people in the hands of Nehru.

Republican Senator H. Alexander Smith of New Jersey feels that the Chinese Communists are trying "a great big bluff" in demanding a seat in the Security Council as a condition for discussing Formosa at a U.N. meeting. Smith said:" They'll come. But they want to get some concessions first."

Informed sources at the U.N. say that Secretary-General Hammershuld has sent Chou en Lai a personal message on the U.N.'s invitation to attend the Council meeting. Hammershuld is said to have received no reply thus far.

And Adlai Stevenson says the United States should exercise restraint in the Far East until the ownership of Formosa is "adjudicated peacefully."

In Washington, John G. Adams, the army general counsel, resigned today. Adams was a central figure in the Army-McCarthy hearings last year. Army Secretary Stevens accepted Adam's resignation and said he appreciated his "loyal and steadfast support of me." Adams says he wants to resign at the end of March because the projects he was in charge of are now well advanced.

The Army today gave a [redacted] discharge to Private Marvin Belsky "UNDER HONORABLE CONDITIONS." Senator McCarthy had demanded that Belsky receive a dis-honorable discharge because he refused to answer questions about Communism before McCarthy's committee. The army said today it made an exhaustive investigation of Belsky and could develop no information with reference to any subversive conduct

The Senate Internal (SECURITY SUBCOMMITTEE) [redacted] today subpenead Harvey Matusow, a former Communist. He will testify next Tuesday on charges that he lied in earlier (SWORN) [redacted] testimony. Matusow says he used "false documents and materials" from Senator McCarthy's office as campaign material against several Western Democratic senators in 1952.

The government announces that it will appeal to the United States Court of Appeals to reverse a decision by Federal Judge Youngdahl on the Owen Lattimore case. Judge Youngdahl dismissed a key count in the indictment against Lattimore..that he lied when he told a Senate committee he was not a follower of the Communist line or a promoter of Communist Interests. The judge said the charge was vague and obscure.

Navy Secretary Thomas today told a House committee that his department is getting satisfactory delivery of airplanes without undue delay for construction changes. At an earlier meeting, Thomas said he was "unhappy" about some phases of the naval air procurement program. Today he explained that this was a reference to the Administration's billion dollar cut in proposed new funds for naval aircraft..and NOt from snags in the production lines. Thomas also testified that after the Korean war started the Navy had to cancel more than one billion dollars worth of ordered planes because they performed so badly, All had been ordered on a rush basis.

Edward R. Murrow: February 4, 1955. 7.45 p.m.

On the face of it, Communist China's rejection of the United Nations invitation to discuss a cease fire crystalizes a confusing state of affairs into two clear choices. Peiping either wants war or it wants negotiations outside the United Nations. Chou En-lai has given no hint, so far as can be learned, not even a roundabout message of reassurance, that it is the cease fire he wants. He is playing his cards close to the chest. So far he has only one confidante, the Soviet Union. Possible intermediaries, like Nehru or other Asian statesmen, are not telling Western leaders of any hopeful intimations they have received. At least there is no clue to such communications. So the Western leaders still feel that at the root of the crisis is the disconcerting fact that they don't know what Peiping really wants, or indeed what Moscow wants.

However, it may be over-simplifying matters to say that everything narrows down to Peiping's two choices. It is conceivable that Peiping doesn't want war and does want a cease-fire, but feels it can't move toward negotiations until the military situation in the Formosa Straits is clarified. For days the evacuation of the Tachens has been scheduled, and the Seventh Fleet has been ostentatiously held in readiness to assist it.

But it hasn't happened. Differences in viewpoint between Washington and Taipeh have been admitted by President Eisenhower. Reports speak of Chiang Kai-shek wanting a public pledge that we will defend Quemoy and Matsu as a price for giving up the Tachens. This report has been denied, but the version keeps recurring in the news.

It would be natural for the Nationalists to want us involved in war with Communist China. (It may be their only chance of getting back to the mainland.) The South Koreans also would welcome such a development. We know that the Communists are inclined to believe that the United States also wants war. They are told the contrary, as by Dag Hammarskjold, Nehru and the British. But they do not understand the West, especially the United States. Now they may be waiting for action that confirms or disproves their suspicions. So what happens to the Tachens may be crucial.

Chou En-lai's reply to the United Nations invitation took up such an untenable legal position that it can hardly be read as anything but a final rejection, regardless of the impossible demand that Nationalist China get off the Security Council. Certainly the note was not meant to be good argument. "Taiwan, the Penghu Islands (that is, the Pescadores) and other coastal islands" he stated, "are all [redacted] parts of China's territory."

Hence he goes on to claim that the U.N. is interfering in China's domestic affairs. The only correct part of the sentence is that the coastal islands are inalienable parts of China. Formosa and the Pescadores ceased being Chinese territory when China ceded them by treaty to Japan in 1895. Something that has not been part of China for sixty years cannot be called [redacted] part of it. [redacted]

There are basic documents in the case, like deeds that define the right to title of any real estate. The first is the Cairo Declaration. In this, the applicable sentence issued by the three principals, Roosevelt, Churchill and Chiang Kai-shek reads: "It is their purpose that all the territories Japan has stolen from the Chinese, such as Manchuria, Formosa and the Pescadores, shall be restored to the Republic of China."

The Yalta agreement did not mention Formosa. The Potsdam declaration fixing the conditions of a Japanese surrender said: "The terms of the Cairo Declaration shall be carried out." Then in the San Francisco treaty of peace with Japan it is stated: "Japan renounces all right, title and claim to Formosa and the Pescadores." This, however, did not transfer the sovereignty of Formosa to anybody.

In September 1945, Chiang Kai-shek's forces, acting on orders of the Allied Supreme Commander, took over the Administration of Formosa from the Japanese. This did not constitute a change of sovereignty. It was not a "cession".

As to the Cairo Declaration, it was a declaration of intention that has not yet been carried out by those who made it. And in the pending treaty between Nationalist China and the United States, the territories to be defended by the United States are stated simply to be Formosa and the Pescadores, with the possibility of other territories belonging to the Republic of China being included by mutual agreement.

This wording has been criticized as being an implicit and unilateral cession of Formosa to Chiang. If it were, it would strengthen the Communist case against the U.N. interfering in Chinese domestic affairs. But Mr. Dulles, in a press conference, stated that the treaty drew a distinction between the legal status of the coastal islands and Formosa. The coastal islands are Chinese territory. Then, by implication, Formosa is not. Mr. Dulles may not have been clear enough in saying that Formosa is not. But since it is not, our presence on Formosa cannot conceivably be described as an aggression against China, as Chou En-lai calls it.

But Chou is just blustering when he says Formosa is part of China. Granted, even good lawyers sometimes bluster. But as a rule it is when they know the law is not on their side.

However tense international relations may grow, hope must Remain ~~we must still not allow ourselves to give up hope.~~ For as Dorothy Canfield Fisher once said:"No one of us can possibly know all the forces acting in each human situation. Perhaps others, also ready to despair, are also working - digging to undermine the foundations of the Dark Tower of Wrong. Who knows - with all of us working for what we believe in - perhaps tomorrow the tower will fall."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

¶ On the face of it, Communist China's rejection of the UN invitation to discuss a cease fire crystalizes a confusing state of affairs into two clear choices. Peiping either wants war or it wants negotiations outside the United Nations. Chou En-lai has given no hint, so far as can be learned, not even a roundabout message of reassurance, that it is the cease fire he wants. He is playing his cards close to the chest. So far he has only one confidante, the Soviet Union. Possible intermediaries, like Nehru or other Asian ~~leaders~~ statesmen, are not telling Western leaders of any hopeful intimations they have received. At least there is no clew to such communications. So the Western leaders still feel that at the root of the crisis is the disconcerting fact that they don't know what Peiping really wants, or indeed what Moscow wants.

¶ However, it may be oversimplifying matters to say that everything narrows down to Peiping's two choices. It is conceiveable that Peiping doesn't want war and does want a cease-fire, but feels it can't move toward negotiations until the military situation in the Formosa Straits is clarified. For days the evacuation of the Tachens has been scheduled and the Seventh Fleet has been ostentatiously held in readiness to assist it. But it hasn't happened. Differences in viewpoint between Washington and Taipeh have been admitted by President Eisenhower. Reports speak of Chaing Kai-shek wanting a public pledge that we will defend Quemoy and Matsu as a price for giving up the Tachens. This report has been denied, but the version keeps recurring in the news.

It would be natural for the Nationalists to want us involved in war with Communist China. It may be their only chance of getting back to the mainland. The Koreans also would welcome such a development. We know that the Communists are inclined to believe that the United States also wants war. They are told the contrary, as by Dag Hammarskjold, Nehru and the British. But they do not understand the West, especially the United States. Now they may be waiting for action that confirms or disproves their suspicions. So what happens to the Tachens may be crucial.

Chou En-lai's reply to the United Nations invitation took up such an untenable legal position that it can hardly be read as anything but a final rejection, regardless of the impossible demand that Nationalist China get off the Security Council. Certainly the note was not meant to be good argument."Taiwan, the Penghu Islands (that is, the Pescadores) and other coastal islands" he stated,"are all inalienable parts of China's territory." Hence he goes on to claim that the UN is interfering in China's domestic affairs.The only correct part of the sentence is that the coastal islands are inalienable parts of China. Formosa and the Pescadores ceased being Chinese territory when China ceded them by treaty to Japan in 1895. Something that has not been part of China for 60 years cannot be called inalienably part of it. Inalienable means unalterable.

There are basic documents in the case, like deeds that define the right to title of any real estate. The first is the Cairo Declaration. In this, the applicable sentence issued by the three principals, Roosevelt, Churchill and Chiang Kaishek reads:"It is their purpose"that all the territories Japan has stolen from the Chinese, such as Manchuria, Formosa and the Pescadores, shall be restored to the Republic of China."

The Yalta agreement did not mention Formosa. The Postdam declaration fixing the conditions of a Japanese surrender said:"The terms of the Cairo Declaration shall be carried out." Then in the SanFrancisco treaty of peace with Japan it is stated:"Japan renounces all right, title and claim to Formosa and the Pescadores."This however did not transfer the sovereignty of Formosa to anybody.

In September 1945, Chiang Kai-shek's forces, acting on orders of the Allied Supreme Commander, took over the Administration of Formosa from the Japanese. This did not constitute a change of sovereignty. It was not a "cession".

As to the Cairo Declaration, it was a declaration of intention that has not yet been carried out by those who made it. And in the pending treaty between Nationalist China and the United States, the territores to be defended by the United States are stated to be Formosa and the Pescadores, with the possibility of other territores belonging to The Republic of China being included by mutual agreement.

This wording has been criticized as being an implicit and unilateral cession of Formosa to Chiang. If it were, it would strengthen the Communist case against the UN interfering in Chinese domestic affairs. But Mr.Dulles, in a press conference, stated that the treaty drew a distinction between the legal status of the coastal islands and Formosa. The coastal islands ARE Chinese territory, Then, by implication, Formosa is not. Mr. Dulles may not have been clear enough in saying that Formosa is not. ~~But Chou En-lai is just blustering when he says it is.~~

~~Granted, even good lawyers sometimes~~

But since it is not, our presence on Formosa can not conceiveably be described as an aggression against China, as Chou En-lai calls it.

¶ But Chou is just blustering when he says Formosa is part of China. Granted, even good lawyers sometimes bluster.

But as a rule it is when they know the law is not on their side.

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 4, 1955
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

Great Britain's Foreign Minister Eden today warned the Chinese Communists not to try to seize any of the Nationalist-held islands off China by force.

Eden told a questioner in the House of Commons that if the Communists use force to try to take the Tachens, Quemoy, and Matsu islands, it would endanger world peace and security. Eden acknowledged that these islands "undoubtedly form part of the territory" of Red China. But he cautioned against the use of force to capture them now. As for Formosa and the Pescadores, which the United States is committed to defend, Mr. Eden said their ownership is "uncertain and undetermined." I'd like to examine this problem in a few minutes.

India's Prime Minister Nehru met in London today with representatives of Red China and Indonesia. And in Moscow, Foreign Minister Molotov called in representatives from India and Great Britain.

And in Washington, a State Department spokesman made it clear that we do not favor any Formosan cease-fire meeting outside of the United Nations. News Officer Henry Suydam told reporters that at the Geneva conference last summer he heard Communist Premier Chou en Lai assail "the moral authority of the United Nations in the most intemperate and arrogant language." He said: "I find it difficult to believe that anyone who participated in that experience would with to repeat it." And Republican Senator Knowland told reporters that any new United Nations effort to get the Communists do discuss a cease-fire would be "a surrender to Communist power." Knowland also spoke against any such meeting that might be arranged by Nehru of India. He said he cannot conceive of Chiang Kai Shek risking the lives of his people in the hands of Nehru.

Republican Senator H. Alexander Smith of New Jersey feels that the Chinese Communists are trying "a great big bluff" in demanding a seat in the Security Council as a condition for discussing Formosa at a U.N. meeting. Smith said: "They'll come. But they want to get some concessions first."

Informed sources at the U.N. say that Secretary General Hammerskjold has sent Chou en Lai a personal message on the U.N.'s invitation to attend the Council meeting. Hammarakjold is said to have received no reply thus far.

And Adlai Stevenson says the United States should exersice restraint in the Far East until the ownership of Formosa is "adjudicated peacefully."

In Washington, John G. Adams, the army general counsel, resigned today. Adams was a central figure in the Army-McCarthy hearings last year. Army Secretary Stevens accepted Adam's resignation and said he appreciated his "loyal and steadfast support of me." Adams says he wants to resign at the end of March because the projects he was in charge of are now well advanced.

The Army today gave a discharge to Private Marvin Belsky "under honorable conditions". Senator McCarthy had demanded that Belsky receive a dis-honorable discharge because he refused to answer questions about Communism before McCarthy's committee. The army said today it made an exhaustive investigation of Belsky and could develop no information with reference to any subversive conduct.

The Senate Internal Security Subcommittee today subpoened Harvey Matusow, a former Communist. He will testify next Tuesday on charges that he lied in earlier sworn testimony. Matusow says he used "false documents and materials" from Senator McCarthy's office as campaign material against several Western Democratic senators in 1952.

The government accounces that it will appeal to the United States Court of Appeals to reverse a decision by Federal Judge Youngdahl on the Owen Lattimore case. Judge Youngdahl dismissed a key count in the indictment against Lattimore...that he lied when he told a Senate committee he was not a follower of the Communist line or a promoter of Communist Interests. The judge said the charge was vague and obscure.

Navy Secretary Thomas today told a House committee that his department is getting satisfactory delivery of airplanes without undue delay for construction changes. At an earlier meeting, Thomas said he was "unhappy" about some phases of the naval air procurement program. Today he explained that this was a reference to the Administrations billion dollar cut in proposed new funds for naval aircraft...and not from snags in the production lines. Thomas also testified that after the Korean war started the Navy had to cancel more than one billion dollars worth of ordered planes because they performed so badly. All had been ordered on a rush basis.

On the face of it, Communist China's rejection of the United Nations invitation to duscuss a cease fire crystalizes a confusing state of affairs into two clear choices. Peiping either wants war or it want negotiations outside the United Nations. Chou En Lai has given no hint, so far as can be learned, not even a roundabout message of reassurance, that it is the cease fire he wants. He is playing his cards close to the chest. So far he has only one confidant, the Soviet Union. Possible intermediaries, like Nehru, or other Asian statesmen, are not telling Western leaders of any hopeful intimations they have received. At least there is no clue to such communication. So the Western leaders still feel that at the root of the crisis is the disconcerting fact that they don't know what Peiping really wants, or indeed what Moscow wants.

However, it may be over-simplifying matters to say that everhthing narrows down to Peiping's two choices. It is conceivable that Peiping doesn't want war and does want a cease-fire, but feels it can't move toward negotiations until the military situation in the Formosa Straits is clarified. For days the evacuation of the Tachens has been scheduleld, and the Seventh Fleet has been ostentatiously held in readiness to assist it. But it hasn't happened. Differences in viewpoint between Washington and Taipeh have been admitted by President Eisenhower. Reports speak of Chiang Kai-shek wanting a public pledge that we will defend Quemoy and Matsu as a price for giving up the Tachens. This report has been denied, but the version keeps recurring in the news.

It would be natural for the Nationalists to want us involved in war with Communist China. It may be their only chance of getting back to the mainland. The South Koreans also would welcome such a developement. We know that the Communists are inclined to believe that the United States also wants war. They are told the contrary, as by Dag Hammarskjold, Nehru and the British. But they do not understand the West, especially the United States. Now they may be waiting for action that confirms or disproves their suspicians. So what hsppens to the Tachens may be crucial.

Chou En-Lai's reply to the United Nations invitation took up such an untenable legal position that it can hardly be read as anything ut a final rejection, regardless of the impossible demand that Nationalist China get off the Security Council. Certainl the note was not meant to be good argument. "Taiwan, the Penghu Islands (that is, the Pescadores) and other coastal islands" he stated, "are all parts of China's territory."

Hence he goes on to claim that the U.N. is interfering in China's domestic aff irs. The only correct part of the sentence is that the coastal islands are inalienable parts of China. Formosa and the Pescadores ceased being Chinese territory when China ceded them by treaty to Japan in 1895. Something that has not been part of China for sixty years cannot be called part of it.

There are basic documents in the case, like deeds that define the right to title of any real estate. The first is the Cairo Declatation. In this, the applicable sentence issued by the three principals, Roosevelt, Churchill, and Chiang Kai-Shek reads: "It is their purpose that all the territories Japan has stolen from the Chinese, such as Manchuria, Formosa and the Pescadores, shall be restored to the Republic of China."

The Yalta agreement did not mention Formosa. The postdam declaration fixing the conditions of a Japanese surrender said: "the terms of the Cairo Declatation shall be carried out." Then in the San Francisco treaty of peace with Japan it is stated: "Japan renounces all right, title and claim to Formosa and the Pescadores." This, however, did not transfer the soverignty of Formosa to anybody.

In September 1945, Chiang-Kai-Shek's forces, acting on orders of the Allied Supreme Commander, took over the Administration of Formosa from the Japanese. This did not constitute a change of soverignty. It was not a "cession".

As to the Cairo Declatation, it was a declaration of intention, that has not yet been carried out by those who made it. And in the pending treaty between Nationalist China and the United States, the territories to be defended by the United States are stated simply to be Formosa and the Pescadores, with the possibility of other territories belonging to the Republic of China being included by mutual agreement.

This wording has been criticized as being an implicit and unilateral cession of Formosa to Chiang. If it were, it would strengthen the Communist case against the U.N. interfering in Chinese domestic affairs. But Mr. Dulles, in a press conference, stated that the treaty drew a distinction between the legal status of the coastal islands and Formosa. The coastal islands are Chinese territory. Then, by implication, Formosa is not. Mr.

Dulles may not have been clear enough in saying that Formosa is not. But since it is not, our presence on Formosa cannot conceivably be described as an aggression against China, as Chou en-lai calls it.

But Chou is just blustering when he says Formosa is part of China.. granted, even good lawyers sometimes bluster. But as a rule it is when they know the law is not on their side.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a minute with the Word for Today. But now, here is Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: However tense international relations may grow, hope must remain . For as Dorothy Canfield Fisher once said: "No one of us can possibly know all the forces acting in each human situation. Perhaps others, also ready to despair, are also working - digging to undermine the foundations of the Dark Tower of Wrong. Who knows - with all of us working for what we believe in - perhaps tomorrow the tower will fall."

Good Night and Good Luck

7 February 1955
Lehrer Murrow (London)

Monday, February 7, 1955

Good evening: Here's what happened today

An American naval officer said the Chinese Communists made "no threatening or unfriendly maneuvers whatsoever" in our first day of evacuating civlians from the Tachen islands. This officer adds: "Indications are that the Communists do not intend to make any such unfriendly maneuvers." //

A "substantial " American amphibious force is now in position off the Tachens. American frogmen, underwater demolition tems, have started looking for mines and underwater obstacles. A patrol party of our Marines has gone ashore. And as from 125 to 130 of our ships stand by a Navy beachmaster told reporters he thinks the withdrawal will be a "painfully slow operation because of poor beaches and 18-foot tides. A naval spokesman in Washington thinks it should take seven days to take off the 18-thousand civilians, 10-thousand soldiers and 4-thousand guerrillas. The Nationalist commander of the Tachens says he has not yet received an order to evacuate soldiers. American officers are urging Chiang Kai Shek to forward such orders. And Chiang today--in a written statement--explained to his people that this withdrawal is what he called a "positive preparation for a counter-attack against the Communist-held mainland". // a painful necessity.. a necessary military manuver to insure victory and consolidate his forces.

Both sides mentioned air action today but there was no damage. American pilots reported they were fired on by Communist guns from islands north of the Tachens. And Communist torpedo boats are reported to have been sighted 17 miles away from the Tachens. The Communists say six waves of our planes flew over a Communist-held island north of the Tachens. Peiping says the Americans flew away when Red planes rose to intercept them. And the Communists warn: this "constitutes a military provocation gravely encroaching upon China's territory and soverignty." If it happens again--say the Communists..the United States "must bear all serious consequences arising therefrom."

A naval spokesman in Washington says if the Communists attack our planes there is no reason why American planes should not chase the attackers as long as then fuel supply holds out. He says there is no naval challenge the Reds can mount against our 7th fleet.

British Foreign Secretary Eden said today that "diplomacy must be given a chance to work" in achieving a cease-fire off Formosa.

And in Washington, Secretary of State Dulles conferred with the President and then with the ambassadors from Great Britain and

New Zealand. Later, Mr. Dulles, urging approval of a mutual defense treaty with Nationalist China, told Senators: he doubts that the Chinese Reds "really intend to wage war against the United States" over Formosa. And Mr. Dulles said approval of the treaty with the Nationalists might "cool off" the tough-talking Communists. He said we want peace ardently but we will not retreat in the face of Communist threats.

And the Moscow radio, as if to add significance to the tension over Formosa, announced today that the Russians and Red Chinese, have confirmed their "complete unity of views" on international questions. They have also stressed their 1954 agreement. of mutual alliance

In Washington, Defense Secretary Wilson told Congress that the personnel problems of the armed forces have been serious for some time. But lately "an already critical situation has grown worse." Wilson urged higher pay and allowances for career service personnel, in order to keep more trained, capable men in uniform. And Chairman Radford of the Joint Chiefs of Staff told the House committee, the services will need a core of highly skilled young officers, as long as the present "uneasy tensions" exist. He said this could be for ten years..or for fifty years.

Chairman McClellan of the Senate Investigating Committee said today, committee files contain nothing to support a week-end charge by Senator McCarthy that a Democratic Senator received a 300-dollar campaign contribution from a West Coast Communist. McClellan said he personally checked the files. found nothing. and no reference to the matter Mc Carthy mentioned. McCarthy had said the uncashed check was in the committee's files.

The Justice Department today assigned William F. Tompkins, head of the internal security division. to help a federal grand jury, here in New York, get to the truth of testimony by Harvey Matusow. He's the Former Communist who has testified before Congressional inveetigating committees and in court. Attorney General Brownell says his department will "vigorously" continue its inquiry into varying statements by Matusow.

The White House says the President is flying to Georgia on Thursday for a week-end of quail shooting on the estate of Treasury Secretary Humphrey.

~~The American Federation of Labor today appealed to Germany's influential labor unions to switch their opposition, to support for the~~

The Archbishop of York celebrated his 80th Birthday today. He said that he would make one firm promise: when the time comes to retire, he will retire. But how will he be sure when this time comes ? That he said is simple: "When work loses its interest and becomes a labor, when you are hesitant about taking on new work because of age and the fear of getting tired, when you are frightened by new ventures and start looking back on an imaginary past - that's the time to retire."

This is L.L. saying goodnite

CBS RADIO DIVISION

EDWARD R. MURROW

Monday, Feb. 7, 1955
7:45-8:00 P.M.

LESUEUR: ... Edward R. Murrow is in London now on a short visit. And here's a report he recorded for you a few hours after his arrival

MURROW: THIS IS LONDON!

Not being the type of reporter who can arrive in a foreign capital early in the morning and do a definitive piece that afternoon, not even from London where I worked for nine years, I'm going to put a few questions to the resident expert, Howard K. Smith, our chief European correspondent.

Howard, I notice in the morning papers that the French political crisis is being played quite as big as the one around Formosa.

SMITH: Yes, Ed. You may remember a cartoon by Bill Mauldin during the war which showed the two GIs huddled in a foxhole, with shells whistling overhead, and one said to the other: "The heck this ain't the most important hole in the war; it's the one I'm in." Well, Formosa's a lot farther away from Britain than France is, and Britain's had a lot of trouble finding French Premiers she could work so well with and who could get things done - so there's a great deal of regret that Mendes-France is gone.

MURROW: Well, I noticed that "Nye" Bevan and Attlee, the Right and Left wings of the Labor party, are now in complete agreement on the Labor party's policy towards Formosa. What exactly is it?

SMITH: Well, Labor's policy, which is a new one, was put by Attlee on the front page of the Labor party's newspaper, The Daily Herald, the other day - and it is that Chiang Kai-shek be exiled from Formosa, that Formosa be given to the United Nations to control, and that Red China be admitted to the U.N. immediately as a controlling nation. Now, this policy is so diametrically opposed to America's, and Attlee, when in power, was so careful about being diametrically opposed that there's some slight suspicion that he may be making some domestic political capital out of the situation. And the situation is that elections are coming, possibly within the present year; Attlee's party has been divided and weak; his opponents, the Conservatives, have stolen all of Labor's policy, so there has been no issue to fight about. Well, when Eden came out in Parliament the other day supporting President Eisenhower morally, Attlee apparently saw his chance to be the man of peace against all this mess in the Far East, and in one move he found himself an issue to fight about -- a popular one, the Gallup Poll says -- and he united his party, because he and Bevan can agree on this.

MURROW: Well, Howard, I guessed in public the other nite in New York that the British would support us if it came to fighting for Formosa and the Pescadores, but if it came to any fighting for the coastal islands they would not. Is that a fair guess?

SMITH: I'm not sure about whether they would fight for us over Formosa. Elections being so close and the British being so sensitive about any act which looks like a defense of Chiang Kai-shek, I'm not sure that the Conservatives even would dare to go to war over Formosa.

MURROW: Well, Howard, there appears to be on the surface no sense of crisis here in London over the Formosa situation. Is this because they have it in perspective or is it because of this old British habit of flying into a great calm at time of crisis?

SMITH: Well, you know, the other day ... I don't know whether you remember, you got me up at 3:00 in the morning to do a broadcast with you about the Formosan crisis; and I hopped into a taxi, my pulse beating, anxious to get over here and talk about the thing all the world was fascinated by; and the taxi driver said, "What are you getting up so early for? You going over to hear about the cricket?" The thought that I could be interested in Formosa when there was a big cricket match in Australia was not comprehensible to him. Well, Ed, I think the reason people here are not as concerned is, they don't believe basically that a war over Formosa is going to happen. The first condition to a war, they say, is that both sides have to reach the battlefield. And if the war is about Formosa, we have the world's best navy and a hundred miles of ocean - so the Reds are not going to reach it if we don't want them to. And if the shooting should start over those offshore islands, there's no belief here it can lead to a big war; it can be a nasty little shooting affray, it can cause recriminations to be hurled back between America and Britain, but the opinion here is that it won't start a war.

MURROW: Howard, I remember when I was reporting from London, in the late '30s, when we had a whole series of crisis, and at that time the British were always eager to have American influence and participation in those crises. Now we have one, either major or minor, and they don't seem to be so happy about American leadership and participation.

SMITH: Well, that's certainly been true in most of the crises, especially those in the Far East, I think. But, I don't know, this time I think the British are torn. In a way they would like for us to be less passionately involved, but in another way they have colonies near-by, Malaya and Hong Kong, who are in danger from communism; and I think a little truculence on our part, if not carried too far, is rather appreciated.

MURROW: But nevertheless public opinion here is divided into about three categories on the whole subject, isn't it?

SMITH: That is so, yes. There are those who think that we shouldn't defend anything in what they consider Chinese waters, either Formosa or the offshore islands; then there are those who think that we should defend Formosa because it would have a bad influence all over the Far East if we abandoned Formosa; and, finally, there's a group who are for supporting the President, no matter what.

MURROW: Well, Howard Smith, do you think there's any reason to believe that the Commonwealth Prime Ministers meeting here in London will come up with any concrete suggestions for a solution?

SMITH: It's very hard to say, Ed. Prime Minister Churchill, who is the chairman at these meetings, got all the Prime Ministers to agree with him not to see reporters over this past week end, when most of the thinking about this has been going on. So I don't know, but I think it's fair to suppose that they will attempt to take some kind of initiative. They would prefer to take it in secret and private, because private diplomacy is greatly appreciated here. On the other hand, I know that their assessment of the situation is rather pessimistic. They do not believe that it's likely that the two Chinas can be got to a conference table in the near future. They tend here to want the kind of cease-fire that can be got without negotiation and without getting Communist agreement; that is, a geographical cease-fire by putting the Seventh Fleet between Formosa and the mainland and forgetting about those offshore islands.

MURROW: Thank you very much, Howard K. Smith, for briefing a visiting correspondent.

This is Ed Murrow recording from London.

Good Night and Good Luck!

-30-

Ediphone trans./E. Scheiner

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

MONDAY, FEBRUARY 7, 1955
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

LARRY LESUEUR: Good evening: Here's what happened today.

An American naval officer said the Chinese Communists made "no threatening or unfriendly maneuvers whatsoever" in our first day of evacuating civilians from the Tachen Islands. This officer adds: "Indications are that the Communists do not intend to make any such unfriendly maneuvers. A "substantial" American amphibious force is now in position off the Tachens. American frogmen...underwater demolition teams...have started looking for mines and underwater obstacles. A patrol party of our Marines has gone ashore. And as from 125 to 130 of our ships stand by a Navy beachmaster told reporters he thinks the withdrawal will be a "painfully slow operation because of poor beaches and 18 - foot tides. A naval spokesman in Washington thinks it should take seven days to take off the 18-thousand civilians, 10-thousand soldiers and 4-thousand guerillas. The Nationalist commander of the Tachens says he has not yet received an order to evacuate soldiers. American officers are urging Chiang Kai Shek to forward such orders. And Chiang today -- in a written statement -- explained to his people that this withdrawal is what he called "positive preparation for a counter-attack against the Communist - held mainland"...a painful necessity...a necessary military manuuver to insure victory and consolidate his forces.

Both sides mentioned air action today but there was no damage. American pilots reported they were fired on by Cummunist guns from islands north of the Tachens. And Communist torpedo boats are reported to have ben sighted 17 miles away from the Tachens. The Communists say six waves of our planes flew over a Communist-held island north of the Tachens. Peiping says the Americans flew away when Red planes rose to intercept them. And the Communists warn: this "constitutes a military provocation gravely encroaching upon China's territory ans soverignty." If it happens again -- says the Communists -- the United States "must bear all serious consiquences arising therefrom."

A naval spokesman in Washington says if the Communists attack our planes there is no reason why American planes should not chase the attackers as long as their fuel supply holds out. He says there is no naval challenge the Reds can mount against our 7th fleet.

British Foreign Secretary Eden said today that "diplomacy must be given a chance to work" in achieving a cease-fire off Formosa.

And in Washington Secretary of State Dulles conferred with the President and then with the ambassadors from Great Britain and New Zeland. Later, Mr. Dulles, urging a proval of a mutual defense treaty with Nationalist China told Senators: he doubts that the Chinese Reds "really intend to wage war against the United States" over Formosa. And Mr. Dulles said approval of the treaty with the Nationalists might "cool off" the tough-talking Communists. He said we want peace ardently but we will not retreat in the face of Communist threats.

And Moscow radio, as if to add significance to the tnnsion over Formosa, announced toaay that the Russians and Red Chinese have confirmed their "complete unity of views" on international questions. They have also stressed their 1954 agreement of mutual alliance.

In Washington, Defense Secretary Wilson told Congress that the personnel problems of the armed forces have been serious for some time. But lately "an already critical situation has grown worse"...Wilson urged higher pay and allowances for career service personnel in order to meep more trained, capable men in uniform. And Chairman Radford of the Joint Chiefs of Staff told the House Committee the serivces will need a core of highly skilled young officers as long as the present "uneasy tensions" exist. He said this could be ten years...or for fifty years.

Chairman McClelland of the Senate Investigating Committee said today committee files contain nothing to support a week-end charge by Senator McCarthy that a Democratic Senator received a 300-dollar campaign contribution from a West Coast Communist. McClellan said he personally checked the files... found nothing...and no reference to the matter McCarthy mentioned. McCarthy had said the uncahsed check was in the committee's files.

The Justice Department today assigned William F. Tompkins, head of the internal security division. To help a federal grand jury, here in New York, get the truth of testimony by Harvey Matusow. He's the former Communist who has testified before Congressional investigating committees ind in court. Attorney General Brownell says his department will "vigorously" continue its inquiry into varying statemsnts by Matusow.

The White House says the President is flying to Georgia on Thursday for a week-end of quail shooting on the estate of Treasury Secretary Humphrey.

Edward R. Murrow is in London now on a short visit. And here's a report he recorded for you a few hours after his arrival.

MURROW: THIS IS LONDON

Not being the type of reporter who can arrive in a foreign capital early in the morning and do a definitive piece that afternoon, not even from London where I worked for nine years, I'm going to put a few questions to THE resident expert, Howard K. Smith, our chief European correspondent.

Howard, I notice in the morning papers that the French political crisis is being played quite as big as the one around Formosa.

SMITH: Yes, Ed. You may remember a cartoon by Bill Mauldin during the war which showed the two GI's huddled in a foxhole, with shells whistling overhead, and one said to the other:"The heck this ain't the most important hole in the war; it's the one I'm in." Well, Formosa's a lot farther away from Britain than France is, and Britain's had a lot of trouble finding French Premiers she could work so well with and who could get things done - so there's a great deal of regret that Mendes-France is gone.

MURROW: Well, I noticed that "Nye" Bevan and Attlee, the Right and Left wings of the Labor party, are now in complete agreement on the Labor party's policy towards Formosa. What exactly is it?

SMITH: Well, Labor's policy, which is a new one, was put by Attlee on the front page of the Labor party's newspaper, The Daily Herald, the other day - and it is that Chiang Kai-shek be exiled from Formosa, that Formosa be given to the United Nations to control, and that Red China be admitted to the U.N. immediately as a controlling nation. Now, this policy is so diametrically opposed to America's, and Attlee, when in power, was so careful about being diametrically opposed that there's some slight suspicion that he may be making some domestic political capital out of the situation. And the situation is that elections are coming, possibly within the present year; Attlee's party has been divided and weak; his opponents, the Conservatives, have stolen all of Labor's policy, so there has been no issue to fight about. Well, when Eden came out in Parliament the other day supporting President Eisenhower morally, Attlee apparently saw his chance to be the man of peace against all this mess in the Far East, and in one move he found himself an issue to fight about -- a papular one, the Gallup Poll says -- and he united his party, because he and Bevan can agree on this.

MURROW: Well, Howard, I guessed in public the other night in New York that the British would support us if it came to fighting for Formosa and the Pescadores, but if it came to any fighting for the coastal islands they would not. is that a fair guess?

SMITH I'm not sure about whether they would fight for us over Formosa. Elections being so close tad the British being so sensitive about any act which looks like a defense of Chiang Kai-shek, I'm not sure thet they Conservatives even would dare to go to war over Formosa.

MURROW: Well, Howard, there appears to be on the surface no sense of crisis here in London over the Formosa situation. Is this because they have it in perspective or is it because of this old British habit of flying into a great calm it aime of crisis?"

SMITH: Well, you know, the other day...I don't know whether you remember, you got me up at 3:00 in the morning to do a broadcast with you about the Formosan crisis; and I hopped into a taxi, my pulse beating, anxious to get over here and talk about the thing all the world was fascinated by; and the taxi driver said, "What are you getting up so early for? You going over th hear about the cricket?" The thought that I could be interested in Formosa and there was a big cricket match in Australia was not comprehensible to him. Well, Ed, I think the reason people here are not concerned is, they don't believe basically that a war over Formosa is going to happen. The first condition to a war, they say, is that both sides have to reach the battlefield. And if the war is about Formosa, we have the world's best navy and a hundred miles of ocean - so the Reds are not going to reach it if we don't want them to. And if the shooting should start over those offshore islands, there's no belief here it can lead to a big war; it can be a nasty little shooting affray, it can cause recriminations to be hurled back between America and Britain, but the opinion here is that it won't start a war.

MURROW: Howard, I remember when I was reporting from London, in the late 30's, when we had a whole series of crises, and at that time the British were always eager to have American influence and participation in those crises. Now we have one, either major or minor, and they don't seem to be so happy about American leadership and participation.

SMITH: Well, that's certainly been true in most of the crises, especailly in those in the Far East, I think. But, I don't know, this time I think the British are torn. In a way they would like for us to be less passionately involved, but in another way they have colonies near-by, Malaya and Hong Kong, who are in danger from communism; and I think a little truculence on your part, if not carried too far, is rather appreciated.

MURROW: But nevertheless public opinion here is divided into about three categories on the whole subject, isn't it?

SMITH: That is so, yes. There are those who think that we shouldn't defend amything in what they consider Chinese waters, either Formosa or the offshore islands; then there are those who think that we should defend Formosa because it would have a bad influence all over the Far East if we abandoned Formosa; and, finally, there's a group who are for supporting the President, no matter what.

MURROW: Well, Howard Smith, do you think there's any reason to believe that the Commonwealth Prime Ministers meeting here in London will come up with any concrete suggestions for a solution?

SMITH: It's very hard to say, Ed. Prime Minister Churchill, who is the chairman at these meetings, got all the Prime Ministers to agree with him not to see reporters over this past week end, when most of the thinking about this has been going on. So I don't know, but I think it's fair to suppose that they will attempt to take some kind of initiative. They would prefer to take it in secret and private, because private diplomacy is greatly appreciated here. On the other hand, I know that their assessment of the situation is rather pessimistic. They do not believe that it's likely that the two Chinas can be got to a conference table in the near future. They tend here to want the kind of cease-fire that can be got without negotiation and without getting Communist agreement; that is, a geographical cease-fire by putting the Seventh Fleet between Formosa and the mainland and forgetting about the offshore islands.

MURROW: Thank you very much, Howard K. Smith, for briefing a visiting correspondent.

This is Ed Murrow recording from London. Good Night and Good Luck.

LESUEUR: And This is Larry Leseuer. I'll be back in a moment with a Footnote to the News. But first, here's Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

LESEUER: The Archbishop of York celebrated his 80th Brithday today. He said that he would make one firm promise: when the time comes to retire, he will retire. But how will he be sure when this time comes? That he said is simple: "When work loses its interest and becomes a labor, when you are hesitant about taking on new work because of age and the fear of getting tired, when you are frightened by new ventures and start looking back on an imaginary past - that's the time to retire."

This is Larry Lesueur saying good night.

Lesueur - ~~Lox~~ 7/41
Murrow - London.

8 Feb 1955

Good evening. Here's what happened today:

~~[illegible]~~

Marshal Nikolai Bulganin is the new prime minister of the Soviet Union. //

He was the unanimous choice of the Soviet parliament after Prime Minister Malenkov resigned, because, he said, he was a failure in the field of agriculture. Malenkov also said the only correct course for his country is to concentrate on developing heavy industry. And he said a man with greater experience should be in charge. From this surprising development..which Ed Murrow will discuss in a few minutes.. Nikita Krushchev emerged as the nation's number-one Communist. He nominated Bulganin and received his parliament's biggest ovation of the day.

After the switch in prime ministers, Foreign Minister Molotov charged that American foreign policies "are aggressive and leading to a third world war." He said we are nursing what he called "insane notions" of ~~reclaiming~~ reclaiming Communist countries for capitalism. He said:"The battle is being joined between two foreign policies; that of peace and that of war." ~~Molotov also chargedt that the United States wants to restore capitalism to the Soviet Union. And he accused us of being guilty of aggression in China. He said the United Nations must find us~~

~~guilty if it wants to retain its respect.~~

In London, reporters who asked Prime Minister Churchill for a statement on the substitution of Bulganin for Malenkov were told: "The future is veiled in obscurity." Former French Premier Bidault said this shows that "the instability of which France is accused, also exists in a totalitarian regime." And in Washington, in the absence of any White House or State Department comment, some legislators predicted an even tougher Soviet policy towards the United States. Others thought they saw signs of turmoil within the Soviet Union.

The French Foreign Ministry revealed that Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov has proposed an international conference on Formosa.. outside of the United Nations.

And from the Formosa area, the Navy announces that the last civilian has been removed from North Tachen.. where 15-thousand Nationalist soldiers and guerrillas have started to demolish their fortifications. For a second day Chinese Communist anti-aircraft gunners fired on American carrier planes but there was no report of damage. The Communists on islands near the Tachens have made no effort, so far, to interfere with the evacatiion. And Vice Admiral Pride reports: "The progress of the operation has been satisfactory thus far."

In London, the prime ministers of nine British Commonwealth nations have warned that atomic war "would bring ruin upon the human race." They have pledged their nations "never to embark upon aggression." They also appealed for a peaceful settlement of the Formosa problem and resolved "to do their utmost to ease international strain."

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee voted 11 to 2 today to ratify the Formosa defense treaty. In this agreement, we recognize that any attack on Formosa or the Pescadores is "dangerous to our peace and security." We promise to meet such attacks with military power "within the limits of the Constitution."

The House today voted 394 to 4 to continue the draft for four years beyond June 30th. The draft is currently taking about 11-thousand young men a month. ~~The vote came after Chairman Vinson of the Armed Services committee said "We're about as close to shooting as has ever happened in the history of this government. In 1951 we had trouble in Korea. In 1955 we have trouble in the Formosan Straits."~~

The President today sent Congress a plan for a three-year attack on the nation's school shortage. It calls for the federal government to contribute one billion 100-million dollars of federal money to help LOCALITIES CONSTRUCT EMERGENCY SCHOOLS.

~~emergency construction. The President said his program would preserve the responsibilities of communities and states in educating our children.~~

And Chairman Straws of the Atomic Energy Commission says that on Saturday the commission "by a majority vote" refused to cancel the controversial Dixon-Yates power contract.

Soon after Moscow announced that Prime Minister Malenkov had been replaced, Ed Murrow recorded this report FOR YOU from London:

(runs ending:

This is LL. I'llbe back in a moment with a footnote to the news. (pause) Here is Bob Dixon.

It isn't very often that the formal words of an official communique make eloquent reading. But today, the Commonwealth Prime Ministers Communique released C[redacted]ed in London, noted: "We have anxious thoughts about the problems of necular energy. The latest discoveries confront humanity with a force which is almost beyond the capacity of man's brain to comprehend or measure. They present a choice & a challenge. Is this vast power to be developed for the benefit of man or is it to be used to bring ruin upon the human race."

This is LL saying goodnite.

CBS RADIO DIVISION

EDWARD R. MURROW

Tuesday, Feb. 8, 1955
7:45-8:00 P.M.

LESUEUR: ... Soon after Moscow announced that Prime Minister Malenkov had been replaced, Ed Murrow recorded this report for you from London.

MURROW: THIS IS LONDON!

In the years before and during the war it was my privilege to sit here in London and put questions to my colleagues in various European capitals. We're going to try that again tonite. We will discuss Formosa and Malenkov's resignation. We have linked together Dick Hottelet in Bonn, David Schoenbrun in Paris and Howard K. Smith and Alexander Kendrick here in London.

Smith, since you're our chief European correspondent, why don't you start? Let's talk about Malenkov first.

SMITH: Well, Ed, the reaction to the Malenkov resignation and the appointment of Bulganin has been bewilderment here. I've run into one source who said that he doesn't think it'll make any difference to foreign policy; that the British, when they approached the Russians recently on the question of China in the Security Council, found the Russians extremely cooperative - therefore they thought this wouldn't alter relations any. However, I have some other reactions here from specific people. A Conservative Member of Parliament, Julian Amory, said that this may show that Sir Winston Churchill was right in trying to arrange high-level meetings with Malenkov's government while Malenkov existed. It raises the question, he said, have we missed a great chance? And then Dennis Healy, a Labor Member of Parliament, had this to say: "It means a return to rigidity, both in domestic and foreign policy, in the Soviet Union. It's likely to cause a serious strain inside Russia, since Malenkov's government was known to be popular, but," he said -- and this I would like to ask Dave Schoenbrun what he thinks of -- "but," he said, "it will help towards ratification of the Paris treaties in both Germany and France."

MURROW: What about that, Schoenbrun?

SCHOENBRUN: Well, I don't know. I can say this, that the Paris treaties certainly need some help. They're in very serious trouble. There was a statement here in Paris today from a Conservative member of this Parliament very much along the lines of the one that Smith reported from London. Gaston Polevski, a Gaullist, said that this whole thing was the fault of the French and British and American governments, that if they had adopted a conciliatory attitude towards Russia, if they had agreed with Churchill to go to Moscow and talk peace, then perhaps this wouldn't have happened. Let me add that this is a view of the Conservative Members of Parliament. It is by no means the opinion of the French Government or of the French experts here. The chief French expert on Russian affairs does not at all take a dim view of this, and he says that it has really very little motivation in foreign policy.

MURROW: Hottelet, what's the view in Germany?

HOTTELET: Well, the Germans are trying very hard to see the thing out, and there is really no single view; nobody has come out, as Amory and Polevsky have in France; there seems to be just a sort of uncertainty, a feeling that whatever it means, it means that something is very rotten in Russia.

MURROW: Well, Dick, Alex Kendrick, who is an old Russian hand and who has spent many years recently in Vienna studying conditions behind the Iron Curtain, is here in London. What do you think, Alex?

KENDRICK: Dick, there has been a resignation of this kind once before, if not twice before. As a matter of fact, Stalin himself resigned in favor of Molotov, who became the Prime Minister; then Molotov resigned in favor of Stalin, who became Prime Minister again.

HOTTELET: Well, that's not quite the same, Alex.

KENDRICK: I'm inclined to think that the French estimate of it, and your estimate too, that it's an internal question is the right estimate but there are some other elements involved which haven't been brought out yet.

And one of these, I think, is the primacy of the Communist party over the administrative organs of the government. Now, when Stalin was the Prime Minister, he was also the head of the Communist party in Russia. He combined both functions in one man. When he died, these two functions were separated - Khrushchev represented the party and Malenkov represented the government. And apparently the party gradually, over the past six or eight months, has been asserting its dominance over certain fields which it wouldn't normally assert its dominance over, and Khrushchev has been the instrument for that policy. Now we've come to a point where, I think, the resignation of Malenkov could be accepted as a normal routine, rather than this earth-shaking development that you think it might be.

MURROW: Isn't it possible that what has happened is rather simple, that for the last year and a half the Russian Government has held out to the people, who've been living pretty largely on empty promises for the last thirty years, that they have held out the possibility of more food, the extra pair of shoes, a little more clothing and so forth; that, as a result of their switch back to heavy industry -- in other words, a program of guns instead of butter -- that there must have been created a great deal of disappointment and somebody had to be the goat for that - and Malenkov was it. Is that too simple?

SCHOENBRUN: No, that sounds right in Paris.

HOTTELET: That simply fits the facts, Ed, but the thing is: what happens now? We've got Bulganin in there, who presumably is put in by the party. He is under Khrushchev's control, let's say; he's not a power in his own right and probably does not represent the Army as a political factor. Now, Khrushchev has got to go and force guns-instead-of-butter on the people.

MURROW: Well, gentlemen, let's check one thing here, sort of round the table, between London, Paris and Bonn. Do you think this change signifies any basic change in Russian foreign policy? Smith?

SMITH: Well, we're like archaeologists building structures of logic from very little evidence. I frankly don't know, but there is some evidence here that Russian foreign policy has not been affected by it. The Russians approached the British and the British approached the Russians on getting China to go to the Security Council, and I understand they came pretty close to agreeing on what to do about it. They failed because the Chinese wouldn't come along. But this happened just a few days ago, and this Malenkov change must have been known to the Russians when they were doing that, which indicates their policy is still rather pacific.

MURROW: Schoenbrun, do you think it means any change in Russian foreign policy?

SCHOENBRUN: I really don't know. If you want my personal opinion, all I can say is, as seen from Paris, there is no evidence whatsoever that it represents any change in Russian foreign policy. I'd merely like to say that when there is a change in Russian foreign policy we'll learn about it very suddenly. There's no reason to believe now, on the evidence before us, that there is.

MURROW: Hottelet?

HOTTELET: I think the Russians will not change their foreign policy; they don't have to. They've been driving for supremacy before Stalin died. That policy survived the death of Stalin. It survives the disappearance of Malenkov. I don't think they've buckled ...

MURROW: Kendrick?

KENDRICK: I agree with Dick. I think Molotov's speech indicates there's no change in foreign policy. But I do want to talk about one thing else - that is the principle of collective leadership, which I do not think has been violated by this change in the Kremlin. As a matter of fact, Bulganin, whose name leads all the rest, alphabetically, in the list of the Politburo, now becomes No. 1 not only alphabetically but in the fact as well.

MURROW: Then none of you gentlemen see any evidence in this that the power of the Red Army has been increased by this change, in spite of the fact that technically Bulganin is a marshal.

SCHOENBRUN: Certainly not!

HOTTELET: I don't think so, no.

KENDRICK: He's well liked by the Army, but I think it's for personal reasons and has nothing at all to do with the Army itself.

MURROW: All right! Now, gentlemen, let's turn for a moment to Formosa. Has it been driven out of the news entirely in Bonn and Paris?

HOTTELET: The disappearance of Malenkov, I think, has taken precedence over everything else. It's all anybody is talking about; the radio is full of it; and the papers, when they get down to printing tonite, will certainly be full of it, too.

SCHOENBRUN: Well, I have the evening papers in Paris in front of me now, and there's only three stories on the front page - and that's Moscow, Pinay trying to form a new government, and the River Seine is rising again.

MURROW: Smith?

SMITH: Well, Formosa's not driven completely out of the papers here, Ed, because the Commonwealth Prime Ministers are having today the last day of their nine-day conference - and the main thing they've been talking about is what to do about Formosa. So, it's still in the news here.

MURROW: Well, thank you very much, gentlemen!

This is Ed Murrow recording from London, with a the help of a great crew of reporters tied together by telephone lines: Howard Smith and Alex Kendrick in London, Dave Schoenbrun in Paris and Dick Hottelet in Bonn.

Good Night and Good Luck!

-30-

Ediphone trans./E. Scheiner

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETOORK

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 8, 1955
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

LARRY LESUEUR: Good Evening. Here's what happened today.

Marshal Nikolai Bulganin is the new prime minister of the Soviet Union.

He was the unanimous choice of the Soviet parliamant after Prime Minister Malenkov resigned because he said he was a failure in the field of agriculture. Malenkov also said the only correct course for his country is to concentrate on developing heavy industry. And he said a man with greater experience should be in charge. From this surprising development ...which Ed Murrow will discuss in a few minutes..Nikita Krushchev emerged as the nation's number one Communist. He nominated Bulganin and received his parleament's biggest ovation of the day.

After the switch in prime ministers, Foreign Minister Molotov charged that American foreign policies "are aggressive and leading to a third world war." He said we are nursing what he called "insane notions" of reclaiming Communist countries for capitalism. He said: "The battle is being joined between two foreign policies; that of peace and that of war."

In London, reporters who asked Prime Minister Churchill for a statement on the substitution of Bulganin for Malenkov were told: "The future is veiled in obscurity." Former French Premier Bidault said this shows that "the instability of which France is accused, also exists in a totalitarian regime." And in Washington in the absence of any White House or State Department comment some legislators predicted an even tougher Soviet policy towards the United States. Others thought they saw signs of turmoil within the Soviet Union.

The French Foreign Ministry revealed that Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov has proposed an international conference on Formosa outside of the United Nations.

And from the Formosa area, the Navy announces that the last civilian has been removed from North Tachen...where 15-thousand Nationalist soldiers and guerrillas have started to demolish their fortifications. For a second day Chinese Communist anti-aircraft gunners fired on American carrier planes but there was no report of damage. The Communists on islands near the Tachens have made no effort, so far, to interfere with the evacuation. And Vice Admiral Pride reports: "The progress of theoperation has been satisfactory thus far."

In London, the prime ministers of nine British Commonwealth nations have warned that atomic war "would bring ruin upon the human race." They have pledged their nations "never to embark upon aggression." They also appealed for a peaceful settlement of the Formosa problem and resolved "to do their utmost to ease international strain."

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee votel 11 to 2 today to ratify the Formosa defense treaty. In this agreement we recognize that any attack on Formosa or the Pescadores is "dangerous to our peace and security." We promise to meet such attacks with military power "within the limits of the Constitution."

Soon after Moscow announced that Prime Minister Malenkov had been replaced, Ed Murrow recorded this report for you from London:

MURROW: Let's talk about Malenkov first.

SMITH: Well, Ed, the reaction to the Malenkov resignation and the appointment of Bulganin has been bewilderment here. I've run into one source who said that he doesn't think it will make any difference to foreign policy, that the British, when they approached the Russians recently on the question of China in the Security Council, found the Russians extremely cooperative and, therefore, they thought this wouldn't alter relations any. However, I have some other reactions here from specific people. A Conservative member of Parliament, Julian Avery, said that this may show that Sir Winston Churchill was right in trying to arrange high-level meetings with Malenkov's Government while Malenkov existed. It raises the question, he said, - have we missed a great chance? And then, Dennis Ealy, a Labor member of Parliament, had this to say: "It means a reutrn to rigidity both in domestic and foreign policy in the Soviet Union. It's likely to cause a serious strain inside Russia since Malenkov's Government was known to be popular, but," he said, and this I would like to ask Dave Schoenbrun what he thinks of, "but," he said, "it will help towards ratification of the Paris treaties in both Germany and France."

MURROW: What about that, Schoenbrun?

SCHOENBRUN: Well, I don't know. I can say this, that the Paris treaties certainly need some help. They're in very serious trouble. There was s statement here in Paris today from a conservative member of the Parliament very much along the lines of the one that Smith reported from London, Gaston Palewski, a Gaullist, says that this whole thing was the fault of the French and British and American Governments, that if they had adapted a conciliatory attitude towards Russia, if they had agreed with Churchill to go to Moscow and talk peace, that perpaps this wouldn't have happened. Let me add this is a view of the Conservative members of Parliament. It is by no means the opinion of the French Government nor of the French experts here. The chief French expert on Russian affairs does not at all take a dim view of this and he says that it has really very little motivation in foreign policy.

MURROW: Hottelet, what's the view in Germany?

HOTTELET: Well, the Germans are trying very hard to figure the thing out and there is really no single view. Nobody has come out as Avery and Palewski have in France. There seems to be just an uncertainty of feeling that whatever it means, it means that something is very rotten in Russia.

MURROW: Well, Dick, Alex Kendrick, who is an old Russian hand an who has spent many years recently in Vienna, studying conditions behind the Iron Curtain, is here in London. What do you think, Alex?

KENDRICK: Dick, there has been a resignation of this kind once before, if not twice before. As a matter of fact, Stalin himself resigned in favor of Molotov, who became Prime Minister, then Molotov resinged in favor of Stalin who became Prime Minister again...(interruption)

HOTTELET: Well, it's not quite the same, Alex.

KENDRICK: (both speaking --unintelligible) ..that the French estimate of it and your estimate, too, that it's an internal question is the right estimate, but there's some other elements involved which haven't been brought out yet and one of these, I think, is the primacy of the Communist Party over the administrative organs of the government. Now, when Stalin was the Prime Minister he was also the head of the Communist party in Russia. He combined both functions in one man. When he died these two functions were separated Khrushchev represented the Party and Malenkov represented the Government and apparently the Party gradually over the past six or eight months has been asserting its dominance over certain fields which it wouldn't normally assert its dominance over and Khrushchev has been the insturment for that policy. Now, we've come to a point where, I think, the resignation of Malenkov could be accepted as a normal routine rather than this earth-shaking developement that you think it might be.

MURROW: Isn't it possible that what has happened is rather simple, that for the last year -and-a-half the Russian Government has held out to the people who have been living pretty largely on empty promises for the last thirty years, that they have held out the possibility of more food, the extra pair of shoes, a little more clothing, and so forth, that as a result of their disappointmentand somebody had to be the goat for that and Malenkov was it. Is that too simple?

SCHOENBRUN: No! That sounds right in Paris. It certainly fits the facts Ed, but the think is - what happens now? We've got Bulganin in there, who presumably is put in by the party. He is under Khrushchev's control, let's say. He's not a power in his own right and probably does not prerese-nt the Army as a political factor. Now, Khruschev has got to go and force guns instead of butter on the people.

MURROW: Well, gentlemen, let's check one thing here, sort of around the table between London, Paris, and Bonn. Do you think this change signifies any basic change in Russian foreign policy? Smith!

SMITH: Well, we're like archeologists, building structures of logic from very little evidence. I frankly don't know, but there is some evidence here that Russian foreign policy has not been affected by it. The Russians approached the British and the British approached the Russians on getting China to go to the Security Council and I understand they came pretty close to agreeing on what to do about it. They failed because the Chinese wouldn't come along, but this happened just a few days ago and this Malenkov change must have been known to the Russians when they were doing that, which indicates their policy is still rather specific.

MURROW: Schoenbrun, do you think it means any change in Russian foreign policy?

SCHOENBRUN: I don't really know, if you want my personal opinion. All I can say is as seen from Paris there is no evidence whatsoever that it represents any change in Russian foreign policy. I merely like to say that if there is any change in Russian foreign policy we'll learn about it very suddenly. There's no reason to believe now on the evidence before us that there is.

MURROW: Hottelet!

HOTTELET: I think the Russians will not change their foreign policy. They don't have to. They've been driving for supremacy before Stalin died. That policy survived the death of Stalin. It survives the disappearance of Malenkov.

MURROW: Kendrick!

KENDRICK: I agree with Dick. I think Moletov's speech about indicates there's no change in foreign policy, but I do want to talk about one thing else. That is the principle of collective leadership, which I do not think has been violated by this change in the Kremlin. As a matter of fact, Bulganin, whose name leads all the rest not only alphabetically on the list of the Politburo, now becomes Number 1 not only alphabetically but in the fact as well.

MURROW: Then, none of you gentlemen see any evidence in it that the power of the Red Army has been increased by this change in spite of the fact that technically Bulganin is a Marshall?

KENDRICK Certainly not!

SCHOENBRUN: I don't think so...no!

KENDRICK: He's well liked by the Army, but I think it's for personal reasons and has nothing at all do to with the Army itself.

MURROW: All right! Now, gentlemen, let's turn for a moment to Formosa. Has it been driven out of the news entirely in Bonn and Paris?

HOTTELET: Well, the disappearance of Malenkov, I think, has taken precedence over everything else. It's all anybody is talking about. The radio is full of it and the papers, when they get down to printing to-night, will certainly be full of it, too.

SCHOENBRUN: Well, I have the evening papers in Paris in front of me now and there's only three stories on the front page and that's Moscow, IA trying to form a new government and the River Seine is rising again.

MURROW: Smith!

SMITH: Well, Formosa's not driven completely out of the papers here, Ed, because the Commonwealth Prime Ministers are having today the last day of their nine-day conference and the main thing they've been talking about is what to do about Formosa, so it's still in the news here.

MURROW: Well, thank you very much, gentlemen. This is Ed Murrow recording from London, with the help of a great crew of reporters tied together by telephone lines, Howard Smith and Alex Kendrick in London, Dave Schoenbrun in Paris, and Dick Hottelet in Bonn.

Good Night and Good Luck.

LESUEUR: This is Larry Lesueuer. I'll be back in a moment with a footnote to the news. Here is Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

LESUEUR: It isn't very often that the formal words of an official communique make eloquent reading. But today, the Commonwealth Prime Ministers communique released in London noted: We have anxious thoughts about the problems of nuclear energy. The latest discoveries confront humanity with a force which is almost beyond the capacity of man's brain to comprehend or measure. They present a choice and a challenge. Is this vast power to be developed for the benefit of man or is it to be used to bring ruin upon the human race."

This is Larry Lesueur saying goodnight.

9 Feb 1955 - Lehrer - Murrow (Coulson)
7/41

Good evening, here's what happened today:

The President said [redacted] that the shakeup among Russia's top command reflects (internal) dissatisfaction. He does not believe it will [redacted] necessarily mean that Russia will launch a calculated tougher policy towards us. But We must remain alert. And the President says there will be no change in our policy aimed at achieveing a just and lasting peace.

Reporters asked the President about Marshal Zhukov, the Soviet [redacted] hero of World War two, who was named today as Soviet defense minister. Mr. Eisenhower recalled his pleasant relations with Zhukov at the close of the war. He recalled how they had assured each other, that neither Russia nor the United States would ever launch a surprise attack on each other. UNDER [redacted] continued questioning, the President revealed that at the suggestion of Washington he had invited Zhukov to visit the United States in 1945. The visit was never made. And Mr. Eisenhower said today that while he hadn't thought about it, he would not hesitate to consult his advisers on renewing the invitation if that is found desireable.

Mr. Eisenhower was also asked about Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov's statement yesterday that Russia is ahead of us in developing hydrogenweapons. The President said there is certainly no proof of this.

And it would be a rather remarkable achivement considering that we had the bomb before they did. But he feels its not worthwhile to speculate on this point. As Mr. Eisenhower summed it up: the dangers to civilization from atomic warfare are so great that intelligent people everywhere must devote themselves to preventing an atomic war from happening.

The President also declined to speculate on the possibility of an eventual cease-fire with the Chinese Communists in Formosa Strait, particularly because of the way the Chinese rejected a United Nations offer to discuss this. And Mr. Eisenhower said that our evaucation of the Tachens is going according to plan and should be completed soon.

Moscow's announcment of Marshal Zhukov's appointment to become defense minister, the post held by Marshal Bulganin who becamee premier yesterday, was followed by another announcement. Georgi Malenkov, prime minister of the Soviet Union yesterday, became Minister of Power Stations today, quite a come-down. And Prime Minister Bulganin told the Soviet Parliament that his government will work to expand Russia's heavy industry in order to build up the Soviet armed forces and raise the nation's living standards.

Bulganin also said the close war-time Russian-British-American collaboration was broken-up because the United States has been "trying to build its policy towards the Soviet Union from a so-called position of strength." He pledged support to the Chinese people..said America is undertaking a dangerous task in what he called "trying to conquer Formosa" and said he's surprised that the United Nations has not condemned what he called "the aggressive American action." And later the Supreme Soviet.the parliament. agreed unanimously that Europe could become the arena of a new war if the West carries through its plan for the re-armament of West Germany.

India's Prime Minister Nehru told reporters in London today that the Great powers..including Russia and India..are now exchanging ideas on how to end the Chinese fighting. He said there has been a suggestion for a conference patterned after the Geneva meeting on Indo-China, "but there is nothing definite. Nehru also appealed to Communist China not to try to invade Formosa. He always thinks "force of this type" should be avoided. He said we must all "strive that no such unfortunate incident of this type takes place." And as for the change of the Soviet leadership..Nehru said, he doesn't think Malenkov's resignation is "likely to affect" Russia's foreign policy.

~~British informants said today that their government has turned down Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov's proposal for a conference on Formosa without the participation of [redacted] Nationalist China.~~

In the Far East, Chinese Nationalist troops today started destroying whatever they [redacted] must leave behind in their evacuation of the Tachens. One of our navy's Skyraiders was shot down by Communist gun-fire yesterday when it wandered off its course west of the Tachens. The President at his news conference said the plane "got a little lost." Its three-man crew was rescued from the sea. //

Communist Migs were sighted by our pilots along the mainland coast 15 miles west of the Tachens. And our jets report considerable shipping activity in Red islands north of the Tachens... [redacted] could be an indication that the Communists are massing ships to take over the Tachens when the Nationalist withdrawal [redacted]. Right now it appears that the withdrawal may be over by Saturday or Sunday.

In Washington, Chairman Russell of the Senate Armed Services committee, today called for a close re-evaluation of the Administration's plans to cut-back our military manpower. Russell said, that in view of the Formosa crisis, and the changes in the Kremlin, there is substantial reason for this re-evaluation. He added: "This is not the time to indulge in wishful thinking." Earlier, Defense Secretary Wilson and Admiral Radford, the chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, both defended the manpower cut-back. They assured the Senators that the new program provides "adequate defense for the nation."

~~And Chairman George of the Senate's Foreign Relations Committee urged the Senate to give "overwhelming approval" to the mutual defense treaty with Nationalist China. He said this would be a clear warning to the Chinese Communists against aggression.~~

General Ridgeway, the army chief of staff, told a House committee today, that "in the first critical stages of war", the army could get the units it needed, only from the active forces in being. He pointed out that our troops in Korea, "were nearly swept into the sea" at the start of the war, "because active army units were under-strength, spread out, too thin for our wolrd-wide committments and inadequately reinforced.

6

The Senate today approved the mutual defense treaty with [redacted] Nationalist China. moving our western defense frontier to Formosa, within [redacted] 100 miles of the Chinese Communist Coast. The vote was 64 to 6, [redacted]

And the Chinese Communist news agency reported tonight that China recently switched from a policy of voluntary military service for young men to compulsory service. We're told that this was done "to further the building-up of the Red Chinese army as a modern regular army."

In Miami Beach today, leaders of the AF of L and the C.I.O. "proudly and unanimously agreed" to carry out a historic merger of the new organization. A.F. of L. President George Meany would be the new president of the union, which would cover about 86 per cent of all organized workers in this country. Walter Reuther, now the C.I.O. leader, would be named a vice president of the new federation and continue as head of the United Auto Workers. [~~Both Meany and Reuther today signed an agreement to reach "a long-cherished goal." Meany predicts the merger will be approved by conventions of both unions, and then by a joint convention, before the end of the year.~~]

And in Washington, Mrs. Marie Natvig swore that she was "coerced" by a former attorney for the Federal Communications Commission to give "false testimony" against Edward O. Lamb, a radio station owner and publisher. Mrs. Natvig's original testimony linked Lamb with Communism. Today she said the former attorney, Walter Powell, Junior, "coerced" her.. She added "They told me what the truth was and told me to tell it."

Ed Murrow tonight is flying home from a short visit to London. And before he left, he asked David Schoenbrun in Paris to record this report for you.

(mmmm runs 5;05 ending:

This is Dave Schoenbrun in Paris)

And this is LL. I'll be back in a moment with [redacted] a footnote to the days news. (pause) Here is Bmmm Bob Dixon.

The Russians who've taken credit for the invention of just about everything and association with just about everyone in history who serves their ends, are now "proud to announce" that research shows that the Greek playwright Aristophanes, 24-hundred years ago, gave evidence of being on the side of "progressive mankind." The Russians base their association with Aristophanes on the fact he recognized "the inhumanity of war."

This is LL saying Goodnite

CBS RADIO DIVISION

EDWARD R. MURROW

Wednesday, February 9, 1955
7:45 - 8:00 P.M.

LESUEUR: Ed Murrow tonight is flying home from a short visit to London, and before he left he asked David Schoenbrun, in Paris, to record this report for you.

SCHOENBRUN: The crisis in the Kremlin, dramatic and important as it is, is not having much direct effect on the French political crisis here in Paris tonight. It has not changed any votes nor any party policies on outstanding issues, notably, the controversial Treaties of Paris, providing for German rearmament in NATO, the Atlantic alliance. Those Frenchmen, who favored negotiations with Moscow before ratifying German rearmament, still do so. Those who oppose negotiations with the Soviets until after ratifying the Paris treaties, remain hostile to any premature mission to Moscow whether it's to see Malenkov or anybody else.

The folowers of General DeGaulle did seize upon the Soviet shakeup as an excellent pretext for some neutralist propaganda. They've charged that Mendes and his predecessors in office are in some measure responsible for the Kremlin shift. Their argument is this: Malenkov represented the new "soft" line of co-existence with the West, so, they say, he was the man to deal with while there was a chance. Now the Gaullies argue Malenkov's been kicked out and Bulganin brought in just to meet the threat of German rearmament caused by Mendes, Churchill and Eisenhower. Well, this argument is not getting much currency in other parties. It's pointed out that Bulganin is not really a Red Army professional. He's a Communist Party veteran, a pre-war economist. He was Stalin's private eye inside the Red Army General Staff. The consensus here in Paris tonight is that Malenkov's demise was motivated more by the failure of his agricultural program inside the Soviet Union and that it does not primarily reflect a foreign policy issue. Mr. Mendes-France, who is still the caretaker premier tonight pending formation of a new government, sees no reason in the Soviet change to change his own views. He believes that Germany must be rearmed and that this must be done before any agreement can be reached with the Russians on a new status. "You cannot negotiate," Mendes has explained to this reporter, "unless you have something to negotiate with. Right now the West has nothing concrete; there's only the hope that the Treaties of Paris will beratified." And that hope does not look bright tonight. Again not because of anything that's happened in Moscow, but because of the situation here inside France, a country almost hopelessly divided on every major issue. The Treaties of Paris, you'll recall, were ratified last December only by the narrowest of margins and only after a tremendous effort by Mendes-France. Many of the deputies who voted for those treaties did so, as the French say, "with death in their souls," and only because Mendes-France asked them to. Socialist Daniel Mayer said yesterday he would not approve those treaties on a second reading for a different premier. And many another deputy feels the same way. They trusted Mendes to carry out his promise to negotiate with Russia afterwards. They do not similarly trust other politicians either to keep the promise or to negotiate successfully. Mr. Antoine Pinay, for example, the man who's trying to replace Mendes, is the very opposite of Mr. France as a political personality. Pinay is Mr. Average Man, a small industrialist with almost no experience in world affairs and very little dynamism. The image of a Pinay at a Big Four conference with a Bulganin and Eisenhower and a Churchill, well, it's almost too painful to evoke. So the Treaties of Paris may lose quite a few of the votes that had been cast for Mendes last December.

One thing does seem certain here in Paris tonight. The proposal to rearm Germany in this European Union is still far from realization. It's by no means certain that the Senate will ratify it at all, and there is a possibility that ratification may be accompanied by crippling amendments, which would require a dangerous second reading in the Assembly. There's no reason either for any optimism tonight about an early, clearcut resolution of the current French Cabinet crisis. Mr. Pinay lost ground today when the Catholic Party - M.R.P. - voted against joining his proposed new government. They may still decide to support him in the Assembly, even without entering his Cabinet, but even if they do, his government will then be completely right-wing and consequently, too off-balance to stay upright for long. This is true of most French governments for there's a built-in political instability here. But it's particularly true at this time of an arch-conservative like Pinay. Next year, you know, is a national election year in France, and the Catholic Party, which holds the balance of power between right and left, draws much of its voting clientele from Catholic Liberals and Trade Union movements. They could risk sharing office with conservative Laniel a year ago, but not with a Pinay so near to election time. So what we're really witnessing this week, in the French Cabinet crisis, is the opening of the 1956 electoral campaign.

This is David Schoenbrun reporting from Paris.

LESUEUR: And this is Larry Lesueur. I'll be back in a moment with a footnote to today's news. First, Bob Dixon.

ANNOUNCER: (COMMERCIAL) ...

(30)

Ed. trans. P. O.

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 9, 1955
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

LARRY LESUEUR: Good Evening, here's what happened today:

The President said that the shakeup among Russia's top command reflects internal dissatisfaction. He does not believe it will necessarily mean that Russia will launch a calculated tougher policy towards us. But we must remain alert. And the President says there will be no change in our policy aimed at achieving a just and lasting peace.

Reporters asked the President about Marshal Zhukov, the Soviet hero of World War Two, who was named today as Soviet Defense Minister. Mr. Eisenhower recalled his pleasant relations with Zhukov at the close of the war. He recalled how they had assured each other that neither Russia nor the United States would ever launch a surprise attack on each other.

Under continued questioning the President revealed that at the suggestion of Washington he had invited Zhukov to visit the United States in 1945. The visit was never made. And Mr. Eisenhower said today that while he hadn't thought about it, he would not hesitate to consult his advisers on renewing the invitation if that is found desireable.

Mr. Eisenhower was also asked about Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov's statement yesterday that Russia is ahead of us in developing hydrogen weapons. The President said there is certainly no proof of this. And it would be a rather remarkable achievement considering that we had the bomb before they did. But he feels its not worthwhile to speculate on this point. As Mr. Eisenhower summed it up: the dangers to civilization from atomic warfare are so great that intelligent people everywhere must devote themselves to preventing an atomic war from happening.

The President also declined to speculate on the possibility of an eventual cease-fire with the Chinese Communists in Formosa Strait, particularly because of the way the Chinese rejected a United Nations offer to discuss this. And Mr. Eisenhower said that our evacuation of the Tachens is going according to plan and should be completed soon.

Moscow's announcement of Marshal Zhukov's appointment to become defense minister, the post held by Marshal Bulganin who became premier yesterday, was followed by another announcement. Georgi Malenkov, Prime Minister of the Soviet Union yesterday, became Minister of the Power Stations today...quite a come-down. And Prime Minister Bulganin told the Soviet Parliament that his government will work to expand Russia's heavy industry in order to build up the Soviet armed forces and raise the nation's living standards.

Bulganin also said the close war-time Russian-British-American collaboration was broken up because the United States has been "trying to build its policy towards the Soviet Union from a so-called position of strength." He pledged support to the Chinese people .. said American is undertaking a dangerous task in what he called "trying to conquer Formosa" and said he's surprised that the United Nations has not condemmed what he called "the aggressive American action." And later the Supreme Soviet ...the parliament... agreed unanimously that Europe could become the arena of a new war if the West carries through its plan for the re-armament of West Germany.

India's Prime Minister Nehru told reporters on London today that the Great powers...including Russia and India...are now exchanging ideas on how to end the Chinese fighting. He said there has been a suggestion for a conference patterned after the Geneva meeting on Indo- China, "but there is nothing definite. Nehru also appealed to Communist China not to try to invade Formosa. He always thinks "force of this type" should be avoided. He said we must all "strive that no such unfortunate incident of this type takes place." And as for the change of the Soviet leadership...Nehru said he doesn't think Malenkov's resignation is "likely to affect" Russia's foreign policy.

In the Far East, Chinese Nationalist troops today started destroying whatever they must leave behind in their evacuation of the Tachens. One of our navy's Skyraiders was shot down by Communist gun-fire yesterday when it wandered off its course west of the Tachens. The President at his news conference said the plane "got a little lost." Its three-man crew was rescued from the sea.

Communist Migs were sighted by our pilots along the mainland coast 15 miles west of the Tachens. And our jets report considerable shipping activity in Red islands north of the Tachens...This could be an indication that the Communists are massing ships to take over the Tahcens when the Nationalist withdrawal is over. Right now it appears that the withdrawal may be over by Saturday or Sunday.

In Washington, Chairman Russell of the Senate Armed Services Committee today called for a close re-evaluation of the Administration's plans to cut-back our military power. Russell said that in view of the Formosa crisis, and the changes in the Kremlin, there is substantial reason for this re-evaluation . He added: "This is not the time to indulge in wishful thinking." Earlier, Defense Secretary Wilson and Admiral Radford, the chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, both defended the manpower cut-back. They assured the Senators that tne new program provides "adequate defense for the nation."

General Ridgeway, the army chief of staff, told a House committee today that "in the first critical stages of war", the army could get the units it needed only from the active forces in being. He pointed out that our troops in Korea "were nearly swept into the sea" at the start of the war "because active army units were under-strength...spread out too thin for our world-wide committments. and inadequately reinforced.

The Senate today approved the mutual defense treaty with Nationalist China...moving our western defense frontier to Formosa, within 100 miles of the Chinese Communist coast. The vote was 64 to 6.

And the Chinese Communist news agency reported tonight that China recently switched from a policy of voluntary military service for young men to compulsory service. We're told that this was done to "further the building-up of the Red Chinese army as a modern regular army."

In Miami Beach today, leaders of the AF of L and the C.I.O. "proudly and unanimously agreed" to carry out a historic merger of the new organization. A.F. of L. President George Meany would be the new president of the union which would cover about 86 per cent of all organized workers in this country. Walter Ruuther, now the C.I.O. leader, would be named a vice president of the new federation and continue as head of the United Auto Workers.

Ed Murrow tonight is flying home from a short visit to London. And before he left he asked David Schoenbrun in Paris to record this report for you.

SCHOENBRUN: The crisis in the Kremlin, dramatic and important as it is, is not having much direct effect on the French political crisis here in Paris tonight. It has not changed any votes nor any party policies on outstanding issues, notably the controversial Treaties of Paris, providing for German rearmament in NATO, the Atlantic alliance. Those Frenchmen, who favored negotiations with Moscow before ratifying German rearmament, still do so. Those who oppose negotiations with the Soviets until after ratifying the Paris treaties, remain hostile to any premature mission to Moscow whether it's to see Malenkov or anybody else.

The folowers of General DeGaulle did sieze upon the Soviet shakeup as an excellent pretext for some neautralist propaganda. They've charged that Mendes and his predecessors in office are in some measure responsible for the Kremlin shift. Their argument is this: Malenkov represented the new "soft" line of co-existence with the West, so, they say, he was the man to deal with while there was a change. Now tha Gaullies argue Malenkov's been kicked out and Bulganin brought in just to meet the threat of German rearmament caused by Mendes, Churchill and Eisenhower. Well, this argument is not getting much currency in other parties. It's pointed out that Bulganin is not really a Red Army professional. He's a Communist Party veteran, a pre-war economist. He was Stalin's private eye inside the Red Army General Staff. The consensus here in Paris tonight is that Malenkov's demise was motivated more by the failure of his agricultural program inside the Soviet Union and that it does not primarily reflect a foreign policy issue. Mr. Mendes-France, who is still the caretaker premier tonight pending formation of a new government, sees no reason in the Soviet change to change his own views. He believes that Germany must be rearmed and that this must be done before any a greement can be reached with the Russians on a new status. "You cannot negotiate," Mendes has explained to this reporter, "Unless you have something to negotiate with. Right now the West has nothing concrete; There's only the hope that the Treaties of Paris will be ratified." And that hope does not look bright tonight. Again not because of anything that's happened in Moscow, bur because of the situation here inside France, a country almost hoeplessly divided on every major issue. The Treaties of Paris, you'll recall, were ratified last December only by the narrowest of margins and only after a tremendous effort by Mendes-France. Many of the deputios who voted for those treaties did so, as the French say, "with death in their souls," and only because Mendes-France asked them to. Socialist Daniel Mayer said yesterday he would not approve those treaties on a second reading for a different premier. And many another deputy feels the same way. They tursted Mendes to carry out his promise to negotiate with Russia afterwards . They to not similarly trust other politicians either to keep the promise or to negotiate successfully. Mr. Antoine Pinay, for example, the man who's trying to replace Mendes, is the very opposite of Mr. France as a political presonality. Pinay is Mr Average Man, a small industrialist with almost no experience in world affairs and very little dynamism. The image of a Pinay at a Big Four conference with a Bulganin, Eisenhower and a Churchill, well, it's almost too painful to evoke. So the Treaties of Paris may lose quite a few of the votes that had been cast for Mendes last December.

One thing does seem certain here in Paris tonight. The proposal to rearm Germany in this European Union is still far from realization. It's by no means certain that the Senate will ratify it at all, and there is a possibility that ratification may be accompanied by crippling amendments, which would require a dangerous second reading in the Assembly. There's no reason either for any optimism tonight about an early, clearcut resolution of the current French Cabinet crisis. Mr. Pinay lost ground yesterday when the Catholic Party - M.R.P - voted against joining his porposed new government. They still decide to support him in the Assembly, even without entering his cabinet, but even if they do, his government will then be completely right-wing and consequently, too off-balance to stay upright for long. This is true of most French governments for there's a built-in political instability here. But it's particularly true at this time of an arch-conservative like Pinay. Next year, you know, is a national election year in France, and the Catholic Party, which holds the balance of power between righr and left, draws much of its voting clientele from Catholic Liberals and Trade Union movements. They could risk sharing office with conservative Laniel a year ago, but not with a Pinay so near to election time. So what we're really witnessing this week, in the French Cabinet crisis, is the opening of the 1956 electoral campaign.

This is David Schoenbrun reporting from Paris.

LESUEUR: And this is Larry Lesueur. I'll be back in a moment with a footnote to today's news. First, Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

LESUEUR: The Russians who've taken credit for the invention of just about everything and association with just about everyone in history who serves their ends are now "proud to announce" that research shows that the Greek playwright Aristophanes, 24-hundred years ago, gave evidence of being on the side of "progressive mankind." The Russians base their association with Aristophanes on the fact that he recognized "the inhumanity of war."

This is Larry Lesueur saying Goodnight.

Thursday February 10 1955

This is the news:

A high navy source in Washington says the evacuation of the Tachen islands has reached the "critical" stage. He says if the Chinese Communists intend to interfere in the operation they'll probably do so in the next few days. This source says Admiral Pride, commander of our 7th fleet, feels he's "got it in the bag..unless something unforeseen occurs."

The evacuation of Nationalist troops and equipment is now well underway. We have spotted no movement of Communist ships or planes near the islands. The whole operation could be over tomorrow or Saturday.

Then, Nationalist officials say they will start the dangerous re-deployment of their troops to Quemoy, Matsu and other islands. Presumably this operation will be carried on completely by the Nationalists.

In London today, Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons he still favors a top-level Big Four conference with the Russians. But he made it clear that Great Britain intends to push ahead, first, with the re-arming of West Germany. He said this it not the time when a Big Four conference would seem to promise genuine results.

French President Coty today named Pierre Flim-lan to try to form a new government. Antoine Pinay has given up the task....

Flam-Lan is a 48-year-old Strasbourg lawyer.. a cabinet veteran..supporter of West German re-armament.. and a member of the Catholic Republic Movement. He's given a better than even chance of rallying enough support to be voted in.

In Washington today, Major General James Gavin, army chief of operations, told reporters we should not assume that "we have a patent" on new weapons. He said it would be complete folly to think that the Russians are lagging. And he agreed with a statement by Soviet Marshal Konev that the Russians have "all kinds of weapons."

And General Twining, the air force chief of staff, told a Senate committee today that we have had to make a series of changes in the new B-52 jet bomber..our Number One hydrogen-bomber. General Twining says that the B-52 is the finest long-range jet bomber in the world. But we had troubles with the engine design and we "had to change the way the bombs were carried". Senator Russell agreed with General Twining that the "bugs" in the B-52 are being ironed out.

Chairman Straws of the Atomic Energy Commission today told a Congressional committee that his colleague, Thomas E. Murray, gave Congress a wrong impression. Strauss denied that he had misled the committee. Murray recently testified that the Commission had discussed the controversial Dixon-Yates powder agreement on February first after Strauss had said the Commission did not discuss the contract since last November. Today Straws said that Murray had not told the Committee that Straws was not present at the February first meeting WHILE Dixon-Yates was discussed.

The Associated Press reports that the Consolidated Edison Company of New York is about to announce plans for the construction of the nation's first atomic power plant relying mainly on private financing.

And General Groves, war-time head of the atomic bomb project, said today that our educational system at present is incapable of meeting the challenge of the atomic age. He blames this on the insistence on "quantity over quality" and what he called "stereotyped educational methods." He says this is responsible for our failure to turn out as many young scientists, engineers and technicians as the Russians are turning out.

The House Ways and Means Committee today voted 20 to 5 to approve the President's liberalized foreign trade program..almost intact. Among other things this calls for a three-year extension of the reciprocal trade agreements act..with new authority for the President to cut tariffs by 15 per cent.

C.I.O. President Walter Reuther told [redacted] another congressional committee that he feels the administration is "looking through a rear-view mirror" in its economic planning. Reuther said he believes the Administration is [redacted] selling the American people short with [redacted] petty, half-hearted economic programs .

In Miami, the executive council of the American Federation of Labor today unanimously approved the A.F. of L.-C.I.O. merger agreement. And George Meany, head of the federation, says he's confident the merger will be accomplished.

Here in New York, Harvey Matusow testified in federal court that Roy M. Cohn helped him prepare the false testimony that Matusow SAYS HE gave for the government against 12 secondary Communists. Cohn has denied any involvement in Matusow's false testimony. Matusow said today that both he and Cohn knew the testimony Matusow gave was false. Matusow also said that Cohn, who was then an assistant United States attorney, had assured him that he would get $25 a day in addition to the regular $4 A DAY FOR government [redacted] witnesses. [redacted]. Matusow said he never got the extra $25.

The President today flew to Georgia to spend the week-end quail-hunting at the estate of Treasury Secretary Humphrey.

Edward R. Murrow: February 10, 1955. 7.45 p.m.

Three days in London, left this reporter with a few general impressions: the food is better; the mood is calm; another war is unthinkable, so they don't think about it; everyone is better dressed; the signs of austerity have pretty well disappeared. The parking lots, where gracious old buildings once stood, seem almost a planned part of the city. Time and weather have softened the scars of bombs.

One of the most impressive developments has been the increase in the prestige of President Eisenhower. A year ago a great many people in London were inclined to say of the President, "He doesn't seem to be running the show." Now his stature has increased very considerably. The British ~~xxx~~ know what a "vote of confidence" is, and he has been getting them regularly and overwhelmingly. There is a good oldfashioned word used sparingly in England, and it represents high praise; the word is "steady", and it is now frequently applied to President Eisenhower. His policies are not universally applauded, but his restraint, his steadiness, are widely recognized.

The present British Government finds itself in a difficult and embarrassing position. The Labor Party opposition is united against American policy in the Far East. Attlee and Bevan, its two leaders, frequently in conflict, are in agreement on this issue; and this means that Churchill and Eden must move with care, because a General Election will be held either in the Spring or Autumn - probably in the Autumn - and politicians in England, as here, like to win. No British Government that pursues a policy that it is believed might lead to war - anywhere - is likely to win or hold the support of the voters. The British have had their war.

The changes in the high command in Moscow were widely regarded as adding to the mystery, but there was no disposition on the part of government officials or of the visiting Commonwealth Prime Ministers, to believe that it means any change in Russian foreign policy. Certainly it is an indication that all is not well on the domestic economic front, and people in Britain were a little pleased that the Russian predictions of economic distress, unemployment and production problems in the West had not come true, while the Russians themselves and their satellites are clearly unable to make any substantial gains in the production of consumer goods.

The Commonwealth Prime Ministers spent most of their time discussing Formosa. They did not arrive at any agreed recommendation or solution. But there was a disposition to believe that neither side - that is, the United States or Communist China - wants war. So most of the discussion had to do with methods of easing the tension, at least temporarily. No one expects an immediate conference or an early solution. The positions taken up by the parties to the dispute appear to be wholly irreconcilable. The Chinese Communists say they are going to take Formosa and the Pescadores; we say they will be defended. The Communists say they won't even talk if the Chinese Nationalists are present. The search in London was for some formula which would not bypass the United Nations altogether, but which at the same time would permit quiet and confidential diplomatic talks to get underway. There was no sense of hysteria or crisis in London, for as a people the British have the capability of flying into a great calm at a critical period. They were also impressed and relieved that dispatches from this country indicated an absence of any unusual hysteria or belligerency. There was, and there is a fear in Britain that this country may undertake action that will lead to war, war which we might survive or even win, but which would obliterate them.

It is possible, although it shouldn't be put any higher than a possibility, that a method may be found of asking Britain, Russia and India to do some quiet exploring as to what solution, if any, may be found for the situation in the Straits of Formosa. ~~THESWXWHOADYSXXXX~~ Those who advocate this proceed upon the assumption, which may be wrong, that neither

China nor Russia want war with the United States at this time. No one, so far as I could discover, expects any easy or immediate solution. There is a tendency to believe that this may be a situation to which there isn't any solution visible. So the only thing to do is to try to stop the shooting, and wait for a break.

There is probably one basic disagreement between Washington and London, and it isn't so much over policy as over what might be called the estimate of the situation. Washington is more inclined than London to believe that Russia and China are a team in tandem with Moscow making the decisions. It is the view in London that the Chinese have much greater independence and freedom of action; and that the basic conflicts between the two countries are capable of exploitation; in short, that given time and patience it may be possible to divide or at least confuse the relations between Russia and China.

But perhaps the most encouraging impression brought back from a few days in London is an old one, merely reinforced; that despite differences of opinion, basically the American and British people want to live in the same kind of world.

It is reassuring to report that the British - ~~like those of us in this country~~ - are well aware of the tenseness of the times. And are no less active than are we in the search for peace. Cornelia Otis Skinner once put it well when she said: "These are days when the world is less in need of supine comfort than of high gallantry and faith in an inner integrity. During times of distress, doubt and weariness, we can find inspiration in the words of Columbus: This day we sailed on."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 10, 1955
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

A high navy source in Washington says the evacuation of the Tachen islands has reached the "critical" stage. He says if the Chinese Communists intend to interfere in the operation, they'll probably do so in the next few days. This source says Admiral Pride, commander of our 7th Fleet, feels he's "got it in the bag...unless something unforeseen occurs."

The evacuation of the Nationalist troops and equipment is now well underway. We have spotted no movement of the Communist ships or planes near the islands. The whole operation could be over tomorrow or Saturday.

Then, Nationalist officials say they well start the dangerous re-deployment of their troops to Quemoy, Matsu and other islands. Presumably this operation will be carried on completely by the Nationalists.

In London today, Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons he still favors a top-level Big Four conference with the Russian . But he made it clear that Great Britain intends to push ahead, first, with the re-arming of West Germany. He said this is not the time when a Big Four conference would seem to promise genuine results.

French President Coty today named Pierre Flam-Lan to try to form a new government. Antoine Pinay has given up the task...Flam-Lan is a 48-year-old Strasbourg lawyer...a cabinet veteran..supporter of West German re-armament.. and a member of the Catholic Republic Movement. He's given a better than even chance of rallying enough support to be voted in.

In Washington today, Major General James Gavin, army chief of operations, told reporters we should not assume that "we have a patent " on new weapons.

He said it would be complete folly to think that the Russians are lagging. And he agreed with a statement by Soviet Marshal Konev that the Russians have "all kinds of weapons".

And General Twining, the air force chief of staff, told a Senate committee today that we have had to make a series of changes in the new B-52 jet momber...our Number One hydrogen-bomber. General Twining says that the B-52 is the finest long-range jet bomber in the world. But we had troubles with the engine design and we "had the change the way the bombs were carried." Senator Russell agreed with General Twining that the "bugs" in the B-52 are being ironed out.

Chairman Strass of the Atomic Energy Commission today told a Congressional committee that his colleague, Thomas E. Murray, gave Congress a wrong impression. Strauss denied that he had misled the committee. Murray recently testified that the Commission had discussed the controversial Dixon-Yates power agreement on February first after Strauss had said the Commission did not discuss the contract since last November. Today Strauss said that Murray had not told the committee that Strauss was not present at the February first meeting whild Dixon Yates was discussed.

The Associated Press reports that the Consolidated Edison Company of New York is about to announce plans for the construction of the nation's first atomic power plant relying mainly on private financing.

And General Groves, war-time head of the atomic bomb project, said today that our educational system at present is incapable of meeting the challenge of the atomic age. He blames this on the insistance on "quantity over quality" and what he called "stereotyped educational methods". He says this is responsible for our failure to turn out as many young scientists, engineers and technicians at the Russians are turning out.

The House Ways and Means Committee today voted 20 to 5 to approve the President's liberalized foreign trade program...almost intact. Among other things this calls for a three-year extension of the reciprocal trade agreements act..with new authority for the President to cut tariffs by 15 per cent.

C.I.O. President Walter Reuther told another congressional committee that he feels the administration is "looking through a rear-view mirror" in its economic planning. Reuther said he believes the Administration is selling the American people short with petty, half-hearted economic programs.

In Miami, the executive council of the American Federation of Labor today unanimously approved the A.F. of L. -- C.I.O. merger agreement. And George Meany, head of the federation, says he's confident the merger will be accomplished.

Here in New Yo k, Harvey Matusow testified in federal court that Roy M. Cohn, helped himprepare the false testimony that Matusow says he gave for the government against 12 secondary Communists. Cohn denied any involvement in Matusow's false testimony. Motusow said today that both he and Cohn knew the testimony Matusow gave was false. Matusow also said that Cohn, who was then an assistant United States attorney, had assured him that he would get $25 a day in addition to the regular $4 a day for government witnesses. Matusow said he never got the extra $25.

The President today flew to Georgia to spend the week-end quail hunting. at the estate of Treasury Secretary Humphrey.

Three days in London left this reporter with a few general impressions: the food is better; the mood is calm; another war is unthinkable, so they don't think about it; everyone is better dressed; the signs of austerity have pretty well disappeared. The parking lots, where gracious old buildings once stood, seem almost a planned part of the city. Time and weather have softened the scars of bombs.

One of the most impressive developements has been the increase in the prestige of President Eisenhower. A year ago a great many people in London were inclined to say of the President, "He doesn't seem to be running the show." Now his stature has increased very considerably. The British know what a "vote of confidence" is, and he has been getting them regularly and overwhelmingly. There is a good old fashioned word used sparingly in England, and it represents high praise; the word is "steady", and it is now frequently applied to Presidnet Eisenhower. His policies are not universally applauded, but his restraint, his steadiness, are widely recognized.

The present British Government finds itself in a difficult and embarrassing position. The Labor Party opposition is united against American policy in the Far East. Attlee and Bevan, its two leaders frequently in conflict are in agreement on this issue; and this means that Churchill and Eden must move with care, because a General Election will be held either in the Spring or Autumn - probably in the Autumn - and politicians in England, as here, like to win. No British Government that pursues a policy that it is believed might lead to war - anywhere - is likely to win or hold the support of the voters. The British have had their war.

The changes in the high command in Moscow were widely regarded as adding to the mystery, but there was no disposition on the part of government officials or to the visititng Commonwealth Prime Ministers, to believe that it means any change in Russian foreigh policy. Certainly it is an indication that all is not well on the domestic economic front, and people in Britain were a little pleased that the Russian predictions of economic distress, unemployment and production problems in the West had not come true, while the Russians themselves and their satellites are clearly unable to make any substantial gains in the production of consumer goods.

The Commonwealth Prime Ministers spent most of their time discussing Formosa. They did not arrive at any agreed recommendation or solution. But there was a disposition to believe that neither side - that is, the United States or Communist China - wants war. So most of the discussion had to do with methods of easing the tension, at least temporarily. No one expects an immediate conference or an early solution. The positions taken up by the parties to the dispute appear to be wholly irreconcilable. The Chinese Communists say they are going to take Formosa nnd the Pescadores; we say they will be defended. The Communists say they won't even talk if the Chinese Nationalists are present. The search in London was for some formula which would not bypass the United Nations altogether, but which at the same time would permit quiet and confidential diplomatic talks to get underway. There was no sense of hysteria or cirsis in London, for as a people, the British have the capability of flying into a great calm at a critical period. They were also impressed and relieved that dispatches from this country indicated an absence of any unusual hysteria or belligerency. There was, and there is a fear in Britain that this country may undertake action that will lead to war, war which we might survive or even win, but which would obliterate them.

It is possible, although it shouldn't be put any higher than a possibility, that a method may be found of asking Britain, Russia and India to do some quiet exploring as to what solution, if any, may be found for the situation in the Straits of Formosa. Those who advocate this proceed upon the assumption, which may be wrong, that neitherChina nor Russia want war with the United States at this time. No one, so far as I could discover, expects any easy or immediate solution. There is a tendency to believe that this may be a situation to which there isn't any solution visible. So the only thing to do is to try to stop the shooting, and wait for a break.

There is probably one basic disagreement between Washington and London, and it isn't so much over policy as over what might be called the estimate of the situation. Washington is more inclined than London to believe that Russia and China are a team in tandem with Moscow making the decisions. It is the view in London that the Chinese have much greater independence and freedom of action; and that the basic conflicts between the two countries are capable of exploitation; in short, that given time and patience, it may be possible to divide or at least confuse the relations between Russia and China.

But perhaps the most encouraging impression brought back from a few days in London is an old one, merely reinforced; that despite differences of opinion, basically the American and British people want to live if the same kind of world.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a minute with the Word for Today. First, here is Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: It is reassuring to report that the British are well aware of the tenseness of the times, and are no less active than are we in the search for peace. Cornelia Otis Skinner once put it well when she said:"These are days when the world is less in need of supine comfort than of high gallantry and faith in an inner integrity. During times of distress, doubt and weariness, we can find inspiration in the words of Columbus: This day, we sailed on."

Good Night and Good Luck.

Friday, February 11, 1955

This is the news.

In the Far East, the evacuation of the Tachen Islands has been completed--(-all civilians and Nationalist troops were taken off under the [redacted] eye of the American 7th Fleet.) The last to leave were the demolition squads who stayed behind to blow up anything that might be of value to the [redacted] Communists. And, as the evacuation ended, the only action on the part of the Communists was [redacted] more propaganda. Peiping radio claimed that their fighter planes chased four American Sabrejets which (were) [redacted] over Communist territory. Peiping called this an "act of provocation".

(THERE WERE ALSO) [redacted] behind-the-scenes moves. [redacted] Britain's Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden talked with India's Prime Minister Nehru and American Ambassador Winthrop Aldrich on possible ways to arrange a cease-fire in the Far East. Eden and Nehru agreed to try for Russian support in getting talks underway. And, they discussed the possibility of having the Chinese Nationalists withdraw from all of the offshore islands, including Quemoy and Matsu---that this might temper Communist aggressive designs on Formosa and the Pescadores.

The UN Security Council has scheduled a meeting for Monday to try again for a cease-fire arrangement.

(IN WASHINGTON, THE) Chinese Nationalist Foreign Minister George Yeh was busy clarifying a statement atrributed to him yesterday. (THERE WERE PROTESTS) from some Congressmen when he was understood to have said that he had assuranced that our government would help defend a number of offshore islands. Today, he said the United States will decide which islands are important enough to defend---that this could mean any or all of them, but that the President would have to make the decision.

The Russian situation is still clouded by much speculation over what the recent changes will mean. But there is no hint as to whether these changes were related to another shakeup today. Moscow radio announced that six members of the Soviet Supreme Court have been dismissed and seven new ones appointed. I'LL HAVE MORE TO SAY ABOUT THIS LATER.

Incidentally, Russian papers had a complaint against Western news media today. THEY said American, British and French news sources (don't) give an (ACCURATE) account of the change in Premiers. (THEY CLAIM WE) distorted and sensationalized the moves with slanders and inventions.

In Chicago, Raymond Thurston---one of our State Department experts on Russia---had a word on those (changes). He pointed to our latest estimates on Russia's armed strength and said the recent changes point up sharply the need for continued cohesion and vigilance in the free-world. And Thurston described the foreign policy speech of Russia's V. M. Molotov as "vitriolic" and "threatening."

West Germany's Chancellor Adenauer commented on the Russian changes---said [redacted] Kruschev---head of the Communist party---is a realistic man, and that to the extent that he has emerged as the real Russian leader, it may be easier for the West to negotiate to ease world tensions.

American [redacted] intelligence officials gave a breakdown today on a cloak and dagger incident which took place in a Vienna cafe last week. They say that the Russian Consul in Vienna, Boris Nalivaiko, is really a top flight Russian spy-master---that he has been sending spies into the West for the past ten years. These officials say that Nalivaiko lured two Americans into a cafe on the pretense that he wanted to defect to the West, and that then he gave a signal to other Russian officers to block doors and windows so the Americans [redacted] would be trapped. The Americans however locked themselves in a washroom until International Police came and rescued them. The Russians, of course, claim that the Americans made an "impudent and provocative attempt" to get Nalivaiko to desert under pressure of blackmail.

[redacted] Communist informer Harvey Matusow appeared in a New York federal court again today for the hearing on a motion for a new trial for 13-Communist leaders against whom he had testified. Matusow again said he lied in his testimony against them---that he wanted so much to be a government witness that he dreamed up false statements as a selling point for his services.

The weather is a big story in the news tonight, with the worst cold wave of the season heading for the East (COAST) and Florida, leaving frozen lands in the Midwest. Temperatures were below zero in a dozen interior states and the entire state of Florida (IS) to feel the freeze tonight.

Cold, rainy weather didn't stop President Eisenhower from going out for his second day of quail-shooting at the farm of Treasury Secretary Humphrey near Thomasville, Georgia. However, the President came in after only an hour and a half---empty handed.

Vice President Nixon was in Mexico City today---another stop on his goodwill tour of Latin American countries. In an address prepared for the Mexican Chamber of Deputies, Nixon said the basic current of "Americanism" underlying relations between the peoples of Mexico and the United States "overshadows any superficial differences there may be between us".

Edward R. Murrow: February 11, 1955. 7.45 p.m.

The internal crisis in the Soviet Union continues, with news of a shake-up in the Supreme Court. This correspondent does not pretend to special knowledge or superior judgment about this or the crisis as a whole. Close reading of the two main speeches at the All-Soviet Congress - those of Foreign Minister Molotov and the new Premier Marshal Bulganin - leaves no doubt that the big subject in the minds of Soviet leaders is the re-armament of West Germany. And the subject of next biggest concern is solidarity with Communist China. Both issues presumably played a part in producing the crisis.

The shift of emphasis inside the Soviet Union is surely over-simplified in saying that power has passed from the "softs" to the "toughs". Only in a limited sense has this happened. Malenkov had been the spokesman of the "softs" in world affairs as well as in promising more consumer goods. But it now is fairly clear that Malenkov never had ~~preponderant~~ dominant personal power. He lost the Secretary-Generalship of the Communist Party to Khrushchev a few days after becoming premier. That is, Khrushchev has been the strong man all along, and growing stronger. And while he counts as a "tough" and not a "soft", he was as responsible for the soft policy as Malenkov.

What happened was that events changed Soviet political strategy and changed the planning objectives of the Soviet economists. First, Mikoyan, who personified the consumer goods policy, had to go. Then someone higher up had to be sacrificed if heavy industry, agriculture and consumer goods all were put in their ~~right~~ NEW balance. Malenkov was the one most expendable.

Two events changed the Soviet strategy. One was the failure of the "soft" approach to halt the re-armament of Germany. The other was the Formosa crisis. Perhaps an agricultural failure was a third event, but this we know little about. To speak of the Formosa crisis first, it should not be forgotten that Khrushchev and Bulganin were the Soviet envoys who reached a noteworthy agreement with Communist China last October. It included shipment of industrial equipment for the industrialization of China and a promise of arms. This correspondent is informed from Vienna that diplomats just out of Moscow report that aid for Communist China played a big part in the crisis. They say that the Soviet Union has been slow in sending military supplies. This might have been to exert pressure on Peiping for moderation. But it also might be that the Soviets are finding it hard to meet their obligations to Peiping. That would be one explanation for the present emphasis on heavy industry. The returning diplomats report that Marshal Zhukov himself insisted on speeding up deliveries of military supplies to Peiping. If so, it will not make the Peiping regime any easier for the West to deal with.

The effect of the changed Soviet strategy on the satellites will be worth watching. When the Kremlin decrees something for the Soviet Union it expects the satellites to accept it too. Thus the satellites have been stressing peaceful co-existence abroad and more consumer goods at home. Now they won't relish switching off the consumer goods program. Unlike the Soviet people, many of them know what it means to have consumer goods. (They once enjoyed them.) And they won't like privations for the sake of the security of a foreign country, even if that country is the Soviet Union.

A preview of the next Kremlin moves in the German crisis is probably to be found in the resolutions passed at a Communist conference just held at Warsaw. It was attended by delegates from Soviet Russia, the satellite countries and communist parties in Western Europe. News about the resolutions is coming out piecemeal, and most stressed is an offer the Soviet Union is said to have made to pull out all its troops from Poland and East Germany, if the Western Powers will withdraw their troops from a neutralized Germany. This is tied in with a proposal for elections in Germany said to be based on an Eden formula used at the last Big Four conference. And also with a guarantee of German frontiers by an all-European security organization.

There is nothing significantly new in this blue-print. The Kremlin is stated not to have gone so far publicly in offering to take its troops out of Poland. The offer is designed to help German socialists, and French and Italian communists, to fight ratification of the Paris accords. Intrinsically it will hardly make the West feel safer. For one thing the Polish army, commanded by the Soviet Marshal Rokossovsky, would intimidate an unarmed Germany nearly as much as the Red Army. For another, the Red Army could be invited back and move in in a matter of hours, whereas United States and British troops would be off the continent altogether. And in the air age the Soviet air force would be only minutes away from Germany even if based on Soviet soil.

This Warsaw blue-print was produced just when the Kremlin wanted it to be, just as the Malenkov resignation and the All-Soviet Congress were carefully timed. So it had better be taken seriously. Now the question is whether it will be influential on Western and world opinion, backed, as it will be, by tough talk in the Kremlin and the renewed emphasis on arms. That is, will it get farther than Malenkov's so-called softness.

Russian foreign policy over a period of time has shown ~~it seem to be~~ that ~~quite adaptable to the immediate situation at hand~~. It is based on the premise that if sugar doesn't work, try poison. But this is always a calculated risk. General Vandergrift once put it this way: "In each man's life situations arise when he can take the gambler's chance and -- sometimes -- carry it off. In the long run, however, true success belongs to those whose strength is real because it is backed by courage and character."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 11, 1955
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

In the Far East, the evacuation of the Tachen Islands has been completed -- all civilians and Nationalist troops were taken off under the eye of the American 7th Fleet. The last to leave were the demolition squads who stayed behind to blow up anything that might be of value to the Communists. And, as the evacuation ended, the only action on the part of the Communists was more propaganda. Peiping radio claimed that their fighter planes chased four American Sabrejets which were over Communist territory. Peiping called this an "act of provocation".

There were also behind-the-scenes moves. Britain's Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden talked with India's Prime Minister Nehru and American Ambassador Winthrop Aldrich on possible ways to arrange a cease-fire in the Far East. Eden and Nehru agreed to try for Russian support in getting talks underway. And, they discussed the possibility of having the Chinese Nationalists withdraw from all of the offshore islands, including Quemoy and Matsu -- that this might temper Communist aggressive disigns on Formosa and the Pescadores.

The UN Security Council has scheduled a meeting for Monday to try again for a cease-fire arrangement.

In Washington the Chinese Nationalist Foreign Minister George Yeh was busy clarifying a statement attributed to him yesterday. There were protests from some Congressmen when he was understood to have said that he had assurances that our government would help defend a number of offshore islands. Today, he said the United States will decide which islands are important enough to defend -- that this could mean any or all of them, but that the President would have to make the decision.

The Russian situation is still clouded by much speculation over what the recent changes will mean. But there is no hint as to whether these changes were related to another shakeup today. Moscow radio announced that six members of the Soviet Supreme Court have been dismissed and seven new ones appointed. I'll have more to say about this later. Incidentally, Russian papers had a complaint against Western news media today. They said American, British and French news sources don't give an accurate account of the change in Premiers. They claim we distorted and sensationalized the moves with slanders and inventions.

In Chicago, Raymond Thurston -- one of our State Department experts on Russia -- had a word on those changes. He pointed ou our latest estimates on Russia's armed strength and said the recent changes point up sharply the need for continued cohesion and vigilance in the free world. And Thurston described the foreign policy speech of Russia's V.M. Molotov as "vitriolic" and "threatening."

West Germany's Chancellor Adenauer commented on the Russian changes-- said Kruschev -- head of the Communist party -- is a realistic man, and that to the extent that he has emerged as the real Russian leader, it may be easier for the West to negotiate to ease world tensions.

American intelligence officials gave a breakdown today on a cloak and dagger incident which tock place in a Vienna cafe last week. They say that the Russian Consul in Vienna, Boris Nalivaiko, is really a top flight Russian spy-master -- that he has been sending spies into the West for the past ten years. These officials say that Nalivaido lured two Americans into a cafe on the pretense that he wanted to defect to the West, and that then he gave a signal to other Russian officers to block doors and windows so the Americans would be trapped. The Americans, how ver, locked themselves in a washroom until the International Police came and rescued them. The Russians, of claim that the Americans made an "impudent and provocative attempt" to get Nalaiko to desert under pressure of blackmail.

Communist informer Harvey Matusow appeared in a New York federal court again today for the hearing on a motion for a new trial for 13-Communist leaders against whom he had testified. Matusow again said he lied in his testimony against them --that he wanted so much to be a government witness that he dreamed up false statements as a selling point for his serivces.

The weather is a big story in the news tonight, with the worst cold wave of the season heading for the East coast and Florida, leaving frozen lands in the Midwest. Temperatures were below zero in a dozen interior states and the entire state of Florida is to feel the freeze tonight.

Cold, rainy weather didn't stop President Eisenhower from going out for his second day of quail-shooting at the farm of Treasury Secretary Humphrey near Thomasville, Georgia. However, the President came in after only an hour and a half---empty handed.

Vice President Nixon was in Mexico City today---another stop on is goodwill tour of Latin American countries. In an address prepared for the Mexican Chamber of Deputies, Nixon said the basic current of "Americanism" underlying relations between the peoples of Mexico and the United States "overshadows any superficial differences there may be between us."

The internal crisis in the Soviet Union continues, with news of a shake-up in the Supreme Court. This correspondent does not pretend to special knowledge or superior judgement about this or the crisis as a whole. Close reading of the two main speeches at the All-Soviet Congress - those of Foreign Minister Molotov and the new Premier Marshal Bulganin - leaves no doubt that the big subject in the minds of the Soviet leaders is the re-armament of West Germany. And the subject of next biggest concern is holidarity both Communist China. Both issues presumably played a part in producing the crisis.

The shift of emphasis inside the Soviet Union is surely over-simplified in saying that power has passed from the "softs" to the "toughs" . Only in a limited sense has this happened. Malenkov has been the spokesman of the "softs in world affairs as well as in promising more consumer goods. But it now is fairly clear that Malenkov never had dominant personal power. He lost the Secretary-Generalship of the Communist Party to Khurschev a few days after becoming premier. That is, Kruschev had been the strong man all along and growing stronger. And while he counts as a "tough" and not a "soft", he was as responsible for the soft policy as Malenkov.

What happened was that events changes Soviet political strategy and changed the p anning objectives of the Soviet economists. First, Mikoyan, who personified the consumer goods policy had to go. Then someone higher up had to be sacrificed if heavy industry, agri ulture and consumer goods all were put in their new balance. Malenkov was the one most expendable.

Two events changed the Soviet strategy. One was the failure of the "soft" approach to halt the re-armament of Germany. The other was the Formosa crisis. Perhaps an agricultural failure was a third event, but this we know little about. To speak of the Formosa crisis first, it should not be forgotten that Khruschev and Bulganin were the Soviet envoys who reached a notewortyy agreement with Communist China last October. It inlcuded shipment of industrial equipment for the industrialization of China and a promise of arms. This correspondent is informed from Vienna that diplomats just out of Moscow report that aid for Communist China played a big part in the crisis. They say that the Soviet Union has been slow in sending military supplies. This might have been to exert pressure on Peiping for moderation. But it also might be that the Soviets are finding it hard to meet their obligations to Peiping. That would be one explanation for the present emphasis on heavy industry. The returning diplomats report that Marshal Zhukov himself insisted on speeding up deliveries of military supplies to Peiping. If so, it will not make the Peiping regime any easier for the West to deal with.

The effect of the changed Soviet strategy on the sattellites will be worth watching. When the Kremlin decrees something for the Soviet Union it expects the satellites to accept it too. This the atellites have been stressing peaceful co-existence abroad and more consumer goods at home. Now they won't relish switching off the consumer goods program. Unlike the Soviet people, many of them know that it means to have consumer goods. They once enhoyed them And they won't like privation for the sake of the security of a foreign country, even it that country is the Soviet Union.

A preview of the next Kremlin moves in the German crisis is probably to be found in the resolutions passed a a Communist conference just held at Warsaw. It was attended by a delegates from Soviet Russia, the satellite countries and Communi t parties in Western Europe. News about the resolutions is coming out piecemeal, and most stressed is an offer the Soviet Union is said to have made to pull out all its troops from Poland and East Germany, if the Western Powers will withdraw their troops from a neautralized Germany. This is tied in with a proposal for elections in Germans said to be based on an Eden formula used at the last Big Four Conference. And also with a guarantee of German frontiers by an all-European security organization.

There is nothing significantly new in this blue-print. The Kremlin is stated not to have gone so far publicly in offering to take its troops out of Poland. The offer is designed to help German socialists, and French and Italian communists, to fight ratification of the Paris accords. Intrinsically

It will hardly make the West feel safer. For one thing the Polish army, commanded by the Soviet Marshal Rokossovsky, would intimidate an unarmed Germany nearly as much as the Red Army. For another, the Red Army cound be invited back and move in in a matter of hours, whereas United States and British troops would be off the continent altogether. And in the air age the Soviet air force would be only minutes away from Germany even if based on Soviet soil.

This Warsaw blueprint was produced just when the Kremlin wanted it to be, just as the Malenkov resignation and the All-Soviet Congress were carefully timed. So it had better be taken seriously. Now the question is whether it will be influential on Western and world opinion, backed, as it will be, by the tough talk in the Kremlin and the renewed emphasis on arms. That is, will it get farther than Malenkov's so-called softness.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a minute with the Word for Today. But first, here is Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: Russian foreign policy over a period of time has shown that it is based on the premise that if sugar doesn't work, try poison. But this is always a calculated risk. General Vandergrift once put it this way: "In each man's life, situations arise when ce can take the gambler's chance and -- sometimes --carry it off. In the long run, however, true success belongs to those whose strength is real because it is backed by courage and character.

Good Night and Good Luck!

Monday February 14, 1955

This is the news:

Russia and Red China today marked the 5th anniversary of their friendship pact with a series of warnings to the free world. China's top Communist, Mao Tze Tung, made a rare public appearance in Peiping and said: "If the imperialists wage war we and other people of the world will wipe them out clean from the surface of the globe." He added: "Together with Russia we can smash all plans of imperialism." And Premier Chou en Lai accused the United States of a number of things: reviving German militarism...preparing an atomic war...organizing aggressive blocs....establishing military bases everywhere to encircle the Soviet Union and Red China.

Moscow radio made its propaganda contribution with a pledge of support to Red China's efforts to capture Formosa. Moscow says the United States is guilty of aggression.

Moscow's plan for a ten-nation Formosa conference..without Nationalist China is making little HEADWAY. India's Prime Minister Nehru thinks its a good proposal..should be followed up. But the United States, Great Britain and Nationalist China are against it. And British Foreign Secretary Eden said today Nationalist China must be represented at any conference on Formosa. And further, he is by no means convinced that an international conference is the best way to achieve a cease-fire.

The United Nations Security Council decided today to let the diplomats outside the U.N. make an attempt to gain a cease-fire for Formosa. The council has postponed indefinitely its consideration of the Formosan situation. And by a ten-to-one vote it defeated a move to consider Moscow's charge that the United States is an aggressor in the Far East.

On Formosa, Generalissimo Chiang Kai Shek told reporters--in [redacted] written answers to questions-- that "it has been made perfectly clear" that the United States will defend China's off-shore islands..such as Quemoy and Matsu. Chiang did not say he had a formal commitment from Washington. But he did say: in no case would the two islands be abandoned.. their defense is essential to the defense of Formosa.. and its very clear to the Communists that the islands will be defended.

Reporters in Washington were told today that we have not given Chiang any formal promise to help defend Quemoy and Matsu. But authoritative quarters explained the possibilities this way: if the Communists attack the two small off-shore islands [redacted] of necessity they will have to gain air surpremacy, have to knock-out Nationalist airfields on Formosa. Inasmuch as we are committed to the defense of Formosa, we would respond to any red attack on Formosan fields. This means that any serious attempt to capture Quemoy and Matsu would see the United States involved in order to protect Formosa.

Independent Senator Morse of Oregon, says the Administration should clarify the issue. He wants the President or Secretary of State Dulles to tell the people, whether any committment, assurance or pledge has been made to defend Quemoy and Matsu.

At the United Nations today, the Russians charged that we had ordered "hot pursuit" of Communist planes in the Far East. This means that our PILOTS have been told, in case they are attacked, to pursue the attacking planes, even over the attackers territory. Ambassador Lodge says this is not true; our pilots have been instructed to defend themselves. But Lodge says it is not true to say our planes have been ordered to shoot down planes over "any" territory.

In Dallas, House Republican Leader Martin told reporters, he doesn't think we will get into war with Communist China because "we could polish them off" in thirty days..and the Chinese Reds know that.

In Washington today, House Speaker Rayburn said that if the President can "control" enough Republican votes the House will approve the Administration's foreign trade program--as is. Rayburn said "a big majority" of Democrats in the House will vote for it.

The President stopped work early today because of a cold. He has no fever..its not serious. Earlier, Mr. Eisenhower TALKED with Republican National Chairman Hall about plans for the 1956 Republican convention. Hall still thinks the President will be available for a second term. And he told reporters Chicago, Philadelphia and San Fransisco are the leading cities under consideration for the Republican convention.

The Democrats today decided to hold their convention in the same international ampitheater in the Chicago stockyards in which they met in 1952. As of today the opening date will be July 23..but this could be set back to August 13 if certain states change their election laws.

Utah's two republican Senators today attacked Utah's Republican Governor J. Bracken Lee for his criticism of the President. Senator Bennett said he thinks Lee is an active candidate for the presidency in 1956 "on the far right." And Senator Watkins says he disagrees with Lee's implied threat to help form a third party "because he can't have his way in the Republican party." Governor Lee says he's not interested in becoming a presidential candidate..thinks he's entitled to "fight for what" he thinks is right in his party.

Here in New York today, Harvey Matusow denied that he tried to "shake-down" an attorney formerly attached to Senator McCarthy's committee. U.S. Attorney Lombard asked Matusow if he had asked Lawyer Daniel Buckley:"How much would it be worth not to mention you in my book?" Matusow denied this.

Edward R. Murrow: February 14, 1955. 7.45 p.m.

The third man is now trying to form a government in the nine-day-old French political crisis. He is Christian Pineau - a Socialist who has been known to write fairy tales during his spare time. # If you are confused by French politics, permit this reporter to join you. This company of confusion would include a very considerable number of Frenchmen, who are frequently voluble and vehement as to who and what they are against; but rather more in doubt as to what they are for.

We might start this examination, which may in truth end up sounding like one of Mr. Pineau's fairy tales, with a few facts and figures. The total membership of the French Parliament is 627. But since the Communists, who are in perpetual opposition, have 100 votes this means that anyone trying to form a new government really has to consider only 527 votes. Using political shorthand these votes divide about this way: the Right Wing, including De Gaullists, Independents and peasants, number 200; the center parties combined, 135: and the Left Wing, about 190. This means that any man trying to form a government must win the support of practically all of any two of these blocks of votes if he is to survive. This in turn means that any government must be made up of either a right center or a left center coalition. Or, in other words, the right and left can only be linked by the center block. That explains why so many of France's premiers are Radical Socialists, even though they are the smallest of all the voting blocks in the Parliament. They are the center and thus the cement of political union. However, they are not a disciplined, unified party; and in the main they are neither Radical nor Socialist.

Dave Schoenbrun cables from Paris that radical socialism in France is not a party but a state of mind - less a political party than a ~~tactical~~ Political task force. Many of its leaders cordially detest each other. The other parties are not exactly homogeneous. The Socialists just flung seventeen of their number out of the party; the Catholic party expelled two; and the De Gaullists are split and multiplying; the Independents are independent.

In practise two blocks can be welded together temporarily at least, by mutual compromise, after prolonged crisis. That's what happened when Mendes-France came to power to end the war in Indochina, and the deadlock over the European Defense Community. But the previous government of Laniel stayed in office for a year, simply by doing nothing calculated to endanger the coalition.

Schoenbrun doubts that Pineau can get a majority for the Mendes-France crisis type government. The alternative is a do-nothing type of government, which fits the mood of the Parliament which overthrew Mendes-France, and which would correspond to the generally easy economic situation now prevailing. It is possible that Andre Maurice, a radical socialist and a veteran Cabinet Minister might be able to form a government, but so could anyone of a dozen similar men.

Schoenbrun, who has frequently been right about French politics in the past, believes that such a government formed at this time would mean that France would not count as a positive influence in big power councils for a long time to come. But what might be called "the negative influence" of France would be greater than ever. France has the power to wreck or impede the Western alliance by her own internal weaknesses, and by her key geographical position. The French Union includes some of the most valuable geo-political real estate in the world. It stretches from Indochina, through Africa, back to the vital hinge of metropolitan France. The door of Europe swings on the French hinge, and it could come crashing down if the hinge snaps. Nothing so dramatic or conclusive as a break is expected. It is more likely that there will be a continuing process of rusting, which is almost but not quite as bad. Meanwhile there will be frustration ahead over German re-armament, European unity, the defense of Southeast Asia, the security of military bases in North Africa, and many other problems. This may continue until one of two things happens - a constitutional reform which will give both authority and stability in office to a French government; or the rallying of the French people behind one or two organized parties that will have a real and lasting majority in parliament. Neither of these two things can happen before the national elections next year. More delay and confusion would seem to be inevitable.

The core of the French problem is the formation of a new majority, by new men dedicated to a fundamental break with the past, through constitutional, economic, social and colonial reforms. The elections will not be held until 1956; meanwhile the prospects cannot be regarded as encouraging.

There would seem to be no question that the French political picture is so confused that it will probably take a national election to untangle the French diplomatic line. But in the meantime, G. Lowes Dickinson offered some good advice to follow: "Our most threatening enemy is not the evil intention of the ordinary man, for his intention is usually good. A far worse danger is the increasing confusion of our time."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

MONDAY, FEBRUARY 14, 1955
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

Russia and Red China today marked the fifth anniversary of their friendship pact with a series of warnings to the free world. China's top Communist, Mao Tze Tung, made a rare public appearance in Peiping and said:"If the imperialists wage war we and other people of the world will wipe them out clean from the surface of the globe." He added: "Together with Russia we can smash all plans of imperialism." And Premier Chou en Lai accused the United States of a number of things: reviving German militarism...preparing an atomic war.. organizing aggressive blocs...establisning military bases everywhere.to encircle the Soviet Union and Red China.

Moscow radio made its propaganda contribution with a pledge of support to Red China's efforts to capture Formosa. MosccW says the United States is guilty of aggression.

Moscow's plan for a ten-nation Formosa conference...without Nationalist China is making little headway. India's Prime Minister Nehru thinks it's a good proposal...should be followed up. But the United States, Great Britain and Nationalist China are against it. And British Foreign Secretary Eden said today Nationalist China must be represented at any conference on Formosa. And further, he is by no means convinced that an international conference is the best way to achieve a cease-fire.

The United Nations Security Council decided today to let the diplomats outside the U.N. make an attempt to gain a cease-fire for Formosa. The council has postponed dndefinitely its consideration of the Formosan situation. And by a ten-to-one vote it defeated a move to consider Moscow's charge that the United States is an aggressor in the Far East.

On Formosa, Generalissimo Chiang Kai Shek told reporters -- in written answers to questions -- that "it has been made perfectly clear " that the United States will defend China's off-shore islands..such as Quemoy and Matsu. Chiang did not say he had a formal commitment from Washington. But he did say: in no case would the two islands be abandoned..their defense is essential to the defense of Formosa..and its very clear to the Communists that the islands will be defended.

Reporters in Washington were told today that we have not given Chiang any formal promise to help defend Quemoy and Matsu. But the authoritative quarters expalined the possibilities this way: if the Communists attack the two small off-shore islands, of necessity, they will have to gain air supremacy, have to knock out Nationalist airfields on Formosa. Inasmuch as we are committed to the defense of Formosa we would respond to any red attack on Formosan fields. This means that any serious attempt to capture Quemoy and Matsu would see the United States involved in order to protect Formosa.

Independent Senator Morse of Oregon says the Administration should clarify the issue. He wants the President or Secretary of State Dulles to tell the people whether any committemnt, assurance or pledge has been made to defend Quemoy and Matsu.

At the United Nations today the Russians charged that we had ordered "hot pursuit" of Communist planes in the Far East. This means that our pilots have been told, in case they are attacked, to pursue the attacking planes even over the attackers territory. Ambassador Lodge says this is no true; our pilots have been instructed to defend themselves. But Lodge says it is not tuue to say our planes have been ordered to shoot down planes over "any" territory.

In Dallas, House Republican Leader Martin told reporters he doesn't think we will get into war with Communist China because "we could polish them off" in thirty days...and the Chinese Reds know that.

In Washington today, House Speaker Rayburn said that if the President can "control" enough Republican votes the House will approve the Administration's foreign trade program -- as is. Rayburn siad " a big majority " of Democrats in the House will vote for it.

The President'stopped work early today because of a cold. He has no fever...it's not serious. Earlier, Mr. Eisenhower talked with Republican National Chairman Hall about plans for the 1956 Republican convention. Hall still thinks the President will be available for a second term. And he told reporters, Chicago, Philadelphia and San Francisco are the leading cities under consideration for the Republican convention.

The Democrats today decided to hold their convention in the same international ampitheater in the Chicago stockyards in which they met in 1952. As of today the opening date will be July 23...but this could be set back to August 13, if certain states change their election laws.

Utah's two republican Senators today attacked Utah's Rupublican Governor J. Bracken Lee for his criticism of the President. Senator Bennett said he thinks Lee is an active candidate for the presidency in 1956 "on the far right." And Senator Watkins says he disagres with Lee's implied threat to help form a third party "because he can't have his way in the Republican Party." Governor Lee says he's not interested in becoming a presidential candidate... thinks he's entitled to "fight for what he thinks is right in his party."

Here in New York today, Harvey Matusow denied that he tried to "shakedown" an attorney formerly attached to Senator McCarthy's committee. U.S. Attorney Lombard asked Muatusow if he had asked Lawyer Daniel Buckley:"How much it would be worth not to mention you in my book?" Matusow denied this.

The third man is now trying to form a government in the nine-day-old French political crisis. He is Christian Pineau - a Socialist who has been known to write fairy tales during his spare time.

If you are confused by French politics, permit this reporter to join you. This company of confusion would include a very considerable number of Frenchmen, who are frequently voluble and vehement as to who and what they are against; but rather more in doubt as to what they are for.

We might start this examination, which may in truth end up sounding like one of Mr. Pineau's fairy tles, with a few facts and figures. The total member-- ship of the French Parliamant is 627. But since the Communists, who are in perpetual opposioion, have 100 votes this means that anyone trying to form a new government really has to consider only 527 votes. Using political shorthand these votes divide about this way: the Right Wing, including DeGaullists, independents and peasants, number 200; the center parties combined, 135; and the Left Wing, about 190. This means that any man trying to form a government must win the support of practically all of any two of these blocks of votes if he is to survive. This in turn means that any government must be made up of either a right center or a left center coalition. Or, in other words, the right and left can only be linked by the center block. That explains why so many of France's premiers are Radical Socialists, even though they are the smallest of all the voting blocks in the Parliament. They are the center and thus the cement of political union. However, they are not a disciplined, unified party; and in the main they are neither Radical nor Socialist.

Dave Schoenbrun calbes from Paris that radical socialism in France is not a party but a state of mind -- less a political party than a political task force. Many of its leaders cordially detest each other. The other parties are not exactly homogenious. The Socialists just flung seventeen of their number out of the party; the Catholic party expelled two; and the DeGaullists are split and multiplying; the Independents are independent.

In practice two blocks can be welded together temporarily at least, by mutual compromise, after prolonged crisis. That's what heppened when Mendes-France came to power to end the war in Indochina, and the deadlock over the European Defense Community. But the previous government of Laniel stayed in office for a year, simply by doing nothing calculated to endanger the coalition.

Schoenbrun doubts that Pineau can get a majority for the Mendes-France crisis type government. The alternative is a do-nothing type of government. which fits the mood of the Parliament which overthrew Mendes-France, and which would correspond to the generally easy economic situation now prevailing. It is possible that Andre Maurice, a radical socialist and a veteran Cabinet Minister might be able to form a government but so could anyone of a dozen similar men.

Schoenbrun, who has frequently been right about French politics in the past, believes that such a government formed at this time would mean that France would not count as a positive influence in big power councils for a long time to come. But what might be called "the negative influence" of France would be greater than ever. France has the power to wreck or impede the Western alliance by her own internal weaknesses, and by her key geographical position. The French Union includes some of the most valuable geo-political real estate in the world. It stretches from Indochina, through Africa, back to the vital hinge of metropolitan France. The door of Europe swings on the French hinge, and it could come crashing down if the hinge snaps. Nothing so dramatic or conclusive as a break is expected. It is more likely that there will be a continuing process of rusting, which is almost but not quite as bad. Meanwhile there will be frustration ahead over German re-armament, European unity, the defense of Southeast Asia, the security of military bases in North Africa, and many other problems. This may continue until one of two things happens - a constitutional reform which will give both authority ar stability in office to a French government; or the rallying of the French poeple behind one or two organized parties that will have a real and lasting majority in parliament. Neither of these two things can happen before the national elections next year. More delay and confusion would seem to be inevitable.

The core of the French problem is the formation of a new majority, by new men deditated to a fundamental break with the past, through constitutional, economic, social and colonial reforms. The elections will not be held until 1956; meanwhile the prospects cannot be regarded as encouraging.

This is Ed Murrow, I'll be back in a moment with the Word for Today. But first, here is Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW:There would seem to be no question that the French political picture is so confused that it will probably take a national election to untangle the French diplomatic line. But in the meantime, G. Lowes Dickinson offered some good advice to follow:"Our most threatening enemy is not the evil intention of the ordinary man, for his intention is usallly good. A far worse danger is the increasing confusion of our time."

Good Night and Good Luck.

Tuesday February 15 1955

This is the news:

The Atomic Energy Commission says, an explosion from a giant Hydrogen bomb, could kill every person in a 7-thousand square mile area, down-wind from the explosion. The commission says this is its extreme estimate, under "the worst possible conditions". That is, if all persons in the area ignored all precautions...remained completely exposed out of doors for 36 hours, and so, received maximum exposure. The Commission drew its conclusions on the basis of our own H-bomb test at Bikini last March first. That explosion did contaminate a 7-thousand square mile area with its fallout. Fallout is a rain of intensely radioactive particles which ~~shifts~~ sifts down over a wide area, after a nuclear explosion. Sometimes it could look like snow. Sometimes it would be invisible.. ~~The Bikini explosion fallout contaminated an area cigar shaped area approximately 220 miles downwind from the point of the explosion. This area varied in width up to 40 miles. And upwind, there was a 20 mile contaminated area.~~ The Atomic Energy Commission is making all of this public, because the Soviet Union now possesses nuclear weapons..and this information is designed to help us protect ourselves. Specifically, the Commission advises that we can reducethe danger of [redacted] radioactive fallout, by simple precautionary measures like taking shelter in an ordinary basement. The Commission also refers to "cyclone cellers".. covered with three feet of earth. We're told that this kind of shelter would reduce the radiation level to a comparatively safe point even in the most heavily contaminated areas.

Defense Secretary Wilson said today that we are "out ahead" of the Soviet Union in the development of nuclear weapons..and the Russians know it. Wilson [redacted] thinks Foreign Minister Molotov's claim that Russia is ahead in developing big bombs is an attempt to "obscure what is happening" in Moscow.

~~The Atomic Energy Commission says prospects are good for shooting off a test atomic bomb in Nevada. The tests were supposed to have started today.~~

Great Britain announced today that by 1975 it will build enough nuclear power plants to light up almost 40 cities the size of Washington-D.C. The first stage calls for 12 power stations to be built over a 10-year period at a cost of more than 840-million dollars. Fuel and Power Minister Geoffrey Lloyd told reporters:"I know of no other nation that has yet launched a nuclear power program on this scale."

In Washington today, Secretary of State Dulles gave warm support to the United Nations against charges that it has failed to negotiate a cease-fire in Formosa..and failed to get the release of 15 Americans held prisonerss by the Chinese Communists. Mr. Dulles said the U.N. "operates as an almost essential buffer" between nations which otherwise would deal directly in rough "and perhaps war-making terms."

The Secretary spoke to a meeting of the United States Committee for the United Nations soon after Republican Senator Knowland had charged that the "conscience of the United Nations should be deeply troubled" because of its failure to get the American flyers released. Knowland told the Senate: "the American people have a right to ask the U.N. what they intend to do about it." He said he doesn't want the U.N. to feel that either the Congress or the American people are going to remain silent.

~~Tomorrow night, Secretary Dulles will clarify our policy on Formosa in in a speech in New York.~~

The House Rules Committee today voted 8 to 3 to send the President's liberalized trade program to the House floor. It goes under a rule barring amendments. And Republican Representative Reed of New York says the program would throw Americans out of work and guarantee what he calls "the greatest depression this country has ever witnessed."

The Pentagon reported today that it now has one million 370-thousand combat troops...nearly half its force..stationed at 950 bases outside the continental United States. Another one million 600-thousand persons are within the United States.

The United States Court of Appeals in Washington ruled today that the National Labor Relations Board cannot take away a union's privileges to use the board's services..on the grounds that a union official filed a false non-Communist oath with the knowledge of union members. The Court held that such action is not within the powers granted to the N.L.R.B.

~~Harvey Matusow testified in a New York court that he talked to a dozen people seeking "subsidation" for a book he was about to write recanting testimony he has given against Communists.~~

The General Electric Company says its research laboratory has made real diamonds...by using a giant press to create diamonds out of pure carbon or graphite (like that used in lead pencils.) So far the press has made only $10 worth..at a cost of hundreds of thousands of dollars.

~~But~~ These man-made diamonds will first be used in industry..making us independent of supplies from elsewhere.

In Bern, Switzerland, those seven Romanian anti-Communists are still in possession of the Romanian legation. They've told Swiss police they will stay and fight until Communist Romania releases five pro-American political prisoners now in Romanian jails. The Swiss have given the ~~men~~ GROUP until tomorrow to leave the legation or face an attack by Swiss army and police.

Edward R. Murrow: February 15, 1955. 7.45 p.m.

The China crisis has entered a new phase. This has been brought about by the peaceful evacuation of the Tachen Islands and the indefinite postponement of the cease-fire discussion in the United Nations Security Council. The new phase conceivably could be a constructive one. It certainly should be less dangerous. We are now in the process ~~It is the phase~~ of searching for a "formula" for a cease-fire.

But it is well to start any mention of such a formula by admitting that on the face of it, it appears to be impossible to find. Too many contradictory conditions have been set down by the parties concerned. Communist China refuses to negotiate with Nationalist China, and also to deal with or through the United Nations unless given Nationalist China's Council seat. The United States refuses to take part in another Geneva-type conference, and insists on United Nations sponsorship of negotiations. Nationalist China refuses to consider a settlement that trades the coastal islands for Peiping's acceptance of the present status of Formosa. So both form and substance of a genuine cease-fire agreement looks to be unattainable.

That is why so much emphasis is put on the prospect of a "de-facto" cease-fire, one that isn't negotiated. A de-facto cease-fire means simply that the Communists don't attack the Quemoys and Matsus - and, of course, Formosa - and the Nationalists on the coastal islands don't attack the mainland. Every day without fighting is a de-facto cease-fire.

But refraining from doing something today, is not the same as agreeing not to do it at all. And the search for a cease-fire formula will have to go on. And despite all the contradictions, it need not be an impossibility. The United Nations might ask certain powers to try to bring about an agreement. If they succeeded, then a settlement would have been reached outside the United Nations, ~~and~~ but still under U.N. sponsorship. That would do away with one obstacle. It also is possible, that both Communist and Nationalist Chinese representatives should come to the conference city, where they could be consulted, and really be negotiating through intermediaries, without sitting down at the same table. That would do away with another obstacle.

Such a solution isn't at present in the works. But it lies ahead, and if all goes well, it may be reached one day. At present all that is going on behind the scenes, is that a Soviet proposal for a ten-power conference is being studied, and questions about it are being asked and answered. This proposal leaves out the Chinese Nationalists, and the United States and Britain have rejected it for that reason. But further elucidation of the proposal is still regarded as desirable. And in time, what is learned could form the basis for negotiations that all parties would be willing to conduct.

We are still being plagued by our ambiguity over our role in the coastal islands. We have not made it unmistakable that we will or will not defend the Quemoys and Matsus. Ambiguity probably does more harm than good and is easy to condemn. But a well-informed public would know there is an explanation for this ambiguity. It is the result of the Administration being caught between two forces and trying to avoid the consequences of going either way. If we say outright that we will not defend the coastal islands that, in effect, gives these islands to the Communists. And that puts an end to Nationalist hopes of returning to the mainland. With that hope gone, the troops under Chiang Kai-shek would have to choose between permanent exile and coming to terms with the Communists so as to get home. Enough of them might prefer to go home to make Formosa difficult to hold.

We are committed not to allow Formosa to fall into unfriendly hands. That makes the morale on Formosa a big concern to us. In time, the neutralization of Formosa may become possible whereby the island does not fall to the Communists. But that time hasn't come.

On the other hand, if we fight for the coastal islands we will range ourselves against the bulk of Allied opinion. It now has become a principle of American policy not to do anything in the Far East that leaves us without allies.

Chiang Kai-shek says it is clear to him and clear to the Communists what we will do in regard to Quemoy and Matsu. But it can be anything but clear to most Americans. Reports from Washington today, apparently based on authentic information, say carefully that we have no "formal commitment" to defend the islands, but we probably will resist any determined Communist attempt to take them. That is, we are probably committed and we are not committed, whichever version you prefer.

When this ambiguity was first used, Administration experts explained that we would defend the coastal islands only if we decided that to do so was essential to the defense of Formosa. Now it is being argued that if the Communists want Quemoy they must have air cover over the island, and to maintain air cover they would have to knock out Nationalist air bases on Formosa. That of course would bring us in. The purpose of such talk must be simply to discourage military action at Quemoy, and so prolong the de-facto cease-fire.

Today's announcement on the p[redacted]le effects of the hydrogen bomb brings to mind something Walter Pitkin once wrote: "In this atomic age, he said, at the gray dawn of "one world," patience is more useful than ever before. Life is growing more and more complex. We have to deal with more and more people and things. And in a high-speed age, with many choices, the faster we move the surer it is that haste makes waste."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

EDWARD R.MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 15, 1955
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

The Atomic Energy Commission says an explosion from a giant hydrogen bomb could kill every person in a 7-thousand square mile area down-wind from the explosion. The Commission says this is its extreme estimate under "the worst possible conditions." That is, if all persons in the area ignored all precautions...remained completely exposed out of doors for 36 hours and so received maximum exposure. The Commission drew its conclusions on the basis of our own H-bomb test at Bikini last March first. The explosion did contaminate a 7-thousand square mile area with its fallout. Fallout is a rain of intensely radioactive particles which sifts down over a wide area after a nuclear e plosion. Sometimes it could look like snow. Sometimes it would be invisible. The Atomic Energy Commission is making all of this public because of the Soviet Union now possesses nuclear weapons..and this information is designed to help us protect ourselves. Specifically, the Commission advises that we can reduce the danger of radioactive fallout by simple precautionary measures like taking shelter in an ordinary basement. The Commission also refers to "cyclone cellars"..covered with three feet of earth. We're told that this kind of shelter would reduce the radiation level to a comparitively safe point even in the most heavily contaminated areas.

Defense Secretary Wilson said today that we are "out ahead" of the Soviet Union in the developement of nuclear weapons...and the Russians know it. Wilson thinks Foreign Minister Molotov's claim that Russia is ahead in developing big bombs is an attempt to "obscure what is happening" in Moscow.

Great Britain announced today that by 1975 it will build enough nuclear power plants to light-up almost 40 cities the size of Washington D.C. The first stage calls for 12 power stations to be built over a 10 year period at a cost of 840-million dollars. Fuel and Power Minister Geoffrey Lloyd told reporters:"I know of no other nation that has yet launched a nuclear power program on this scale."

In Washington today, Secretary of State Dulles gave warm support to the United Nations against charges that it has failed to negotiate a cease-fire in Formosa...and failed to get the release of 15 Americans held prisoners by the Chinese Communists. Mr. Dulles said the U.N. "operates as an almost essential buffer" between nations which otherwise would deal directly in rough "and perhaps war-making terms."

The Secretary spoke to a meeting of the United States Committee for the United Nations soon after Republican Senator Knowland had charged that the "conscience of the United Nations should be deeply troubled" because of its failure to get the American flyers released. Knowland told the Senate:"The American people have a right to ask the U.N. what they intend to do about it." He said he doesn't want the U.N. to feel that either the Congress or the American people are going to remain silent.

The House Rules Committee today voted 8 to 3 to send the President's liberalized trade program to the House floor. It goes under a rule barring amendments. And Republican Representative Reed of New York says the program would throw Americans out of work and guarantee what he calls "the greatest depression this country has ever witnessed."

The Pentagon reported today that it now has one million 370-thousand combat troops..nearly half its force..stationed at 950 bases outside the continental United States. Another one million 600-thousand persons are within the United States.

The United States Court of Appeals in Washington ruled today that the National Labor Relations Board cannot take away a union's privileges to use the board's services on the grounds that a union official filed a false non-Communist oath with the knowledge of union members. The court held that such action is not within the powers granted to the N.L.R.B.

The General Electric Company saas it s research laboratory has made real diamonds..by using a giant press to create diamonds out of pure carbon or graphine (like that used in lead pencils.) So far the press has made only $10 worth at a cost of hundreds of thousands of dollars. These man-made diamonds will first be used in industry..making us independent of supplies from elsewhere.

In Bern, Switzerland, those seven Roumanian anti-Communists are still in possession of the Roumanian legation. They've told Swiss police they will stay and fight until Communist Roumania releases five pro-American political prisoners now in Roumanian jails. The Swiss have given the group until tomorrow to leave the legation or face an attack by the Swiss army and police.

The China crisis has entered a new phase. This has been brought about by the peaceful evacuation of the Tachen Islands and the indefinite postponement of the cease-fire discussion in the United Nations Security Council, The new phase conceivably could be a constructive one. It certainly should be less dangerous. We are now in the process of searching for a "formula" for a cease-fire.

But it is well to start any mention of such a formula by admitting that on the face of it, it appears to be impossible to find. Too many contradictory conditions have been set down b the parties concerned. Communist China refuses to negotiate with Nationalist China, and also to deal with or through the United Nations unless given Nationalist China's Council seat. The United States refuses to take part in another Geneva type conference, and insists on United Nations sponsorship of negotiations. Nationalist China refuses to consider a settlement that trades the coastal islands for Pieping's acceptance of the present status of Formosa. So both form and substance of a genuine cease-fire agreement look to be unattainable.

That is why so much emphasis is put on the prospect of a "de-facto" cease-fire, one that isn't negotiated. A de-facto cease-fire means simply that the Communists don't attack the Quemoys and Matsus and, of course, Formosa- and the Nationalists on the coastal islnnds don't attack the mainland. Every day without fighting is a de-facto cease-fire.

But refraining from doing something today is not the same as agreeing not to do it at all. And the search for a cease-fire formula will have to go on. And despite all the contradictions it need not be an impossibility. The United Nations might ask certain powers to try to bring about an agreement If they succeeded, then a settlement would have been reached outside the United Nations but still under U.N. sponsorship. That would do away with one obstacle. It also is possible that both Communist and Nationalist Chinese representatives should come to the conference city, where they could be consulted and really be negotiating through intermediaties, without sitting down at the same table. That would do away with another obstacle.

Such a solution isn't at present in the works. But it lies ahead, and if all goes wel , it may e reached one day. At present all that is going on behind the scenes is that a Soviet proposal for a ten-power conference is being studies, and questions about it are being asked and answered. This proposal leaves out the Chinese Nationalists, and the United States and Britain have rejected it for that reason. But further elucidation of the proposal is still regarded as desirable. And in time, what is learned could form the basis for negotiations that all parties would be willing to conduct.

We are still being plagued by our ambiguity over our role in the coastal islands. We have not make it unmistakable that we will or will not defend the Quemoys and Matuus. Ambiguity probably does more harm than good and is easy to condemn. But a well-informed public would know there is an explanation for this ambiguity. It is the result of the Administration being caught between f two forces. and trying to avoid the consequences of boing either way. If we say outright that we will not defend the coastal islands that, in effect, gives these islands to the Communists. And that puts an end to Nationalist hopes of returning to the mainland. With that hope gone the troops under Chiang Kai-shek would have to choose between permanent exile and coming to terms with the Communists so as to get home. Enough of them might prefer to fo home to mak Formosa difficult to hold.

We are committed not to allow Formosa to fall into unfriendly hands. That makes the morale on Formosa a big concern to us. In time, the neautralization of Formosa may become possible whereby the island does not fall to the Communists. But that time hasn't come.

On the other hand, if we fight for the coastal islands we will range ourselves against the bulk of Allied opinion. It now has become a principle of American policy not to do anything in the Far East that leaves us without allies.

Chiang Kai-shek says it is clear to him and clear to the Communists what we will do in regard to Quemoy and Matsu. But it can by anything but clear to most Americans. Reports from Washington today, apparently based on authentic information, say carefully that we have no "formal commitment" to defend the islands, but we probably will esist any determined Communist attempt to take them. That is, we are probably committed and we are not committed, whichever version you prefer.

When this ambiguity was first used, Administration experts explained that we would defend the coastal islands only if we decided that to do so was essential to the defense of Formosa. Now it is being argued that if the Communists want Quemoy they must have air cover over the island, and to maintain air cover they would have to knock out Nationalist air bases on Formosa. That of course would bring us in. The purpose of such talk must be simply to discourage military action at Quemoy, and so prolong the de-facto-cease fire.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a moment with the Word for Today. But first, Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: Today's announcement on the effects of the hydrogen bomb brings to mind something Walter Pitkin once wrote: "In this atomic age, he said, at the gray dawn of one world, patience is more useful than ever before. Life is growing more and more complex. We have to deal with more and more people and things. And in a high-speed age, with many choices, the faster we move the surer it is that haste makes waste."

Good Night and Good Luck.

Wednesday February 16, 1955

This is the news:

The House of Representatives today approved a 10-thousand-dollar a year pay increase for members of Congress--from 15 to 25-thousand a year. The bill, approved by a vote of 283 to 118, also calls for pay raises for federal judges and top justice department officials. It now goes to the Senate where a committee has voted for increases of 75-hundred dollars a year.

The House Interior committee has voted to admit both Alaska and Hawaii as states. The vote was 19 to 6. The bill goes to the House floor for debate if and when it is approved by the Rules Committee.

~~A House armed services committee has voted to cut down on the amount of secret testimony it will accept when investigating military subjects. Chairman Heber says this means the subcommittee "will cut out the nonsense of trying to throw a cloak of security around every embarrassing question."~~

The White House SAYS that yesterday's publication of a report on the possible effects of a hydrogen bomb explosion was released with its full approval. News Secretary Hagerty says the President hopes three points will be emphasized: the need for world peace and disarmament...the necessity for the United Nations to approve the President's atoms-for-peace proposal.. and the fact that "adequate protection" can safeguard citizens and their families. I'd like to discuss this report in a few minutes.

Civil Defense Administrator Petersen said today: we have graduated from the duck and cover technique [redacted] to the age of evacuation..in case of attack. Petersen says:"Civil defense is a strong enough factor that we have reason to be optomistic."

A Republican committee today selected San Fransisco as the site for the 1956 Republican convention. Its tentatively scheduled to start on August 20th..the latest convention date in modern political history. The Democrats have decided to meet in Chicago, on July 23.. to chose their presidential candidate.

Oveta Culp Hobby, secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, told a Senate committee today that if the nation's school building program is to be limited only to federal grants this will slow-down, rather than speed-up, the construction needed to overcome a shortage of classrooms. She said there is a tendency on the part of many school districts to defer their building plans in the hope that they will receive federal assistance. Democrats call the President's [redacted] program too little and too late.

Democratic Senator Gore of Tennessee said today the controversial Dixon-Yates power contract has impeded our development of atomic power. He says this is seriously impairing our future ATOMIC weapons program.

In Kansas City today, former Secretary of State Acheson, (visiting former President Truman), told reporters: the foreign policies of the Truman and Eisenhower administrations are basically the same. But Acheson feels the policies are not now being pursued as "rigiorously or effectively" as in the past. Acheson said Europe "has been and will continue to be the focal point of our struggle with Communism." He feels the situation in western Europe has "deteriorated very badly" since Mr. Truman left office. He sees improvement in the Middle East and says: "things are not going so well in the Far East."

Secretary of State Dulles will speak on our Far Eastern program tonight over many of these CBS radio stations at 10;30 p.m. eastern time.

The Chinese Communists charge that we committed "crimes against humanity" in helping the Chinese Nationalists evacuate the Tachen islands. The Peiping radio says our Marines "deliberately abducted over 18-thousand Chinese civilians."

The British government said today that it has "an effective air defense against what any potential enemy is at present able to bring against" Great Britain. A government white paper says the ability of the Royal Air Force [redacted] to defend Great Britain against any night raiders is [redacted] "better than that of anyone else in the world."

In Bern, Swizterland, three Romanian anti-Communists have abandoned the Romanian legation.. quitely surrendered to Swiss authorities..and are now being held for trial in connection with the death of a Legation chauffeur. The men had vowed to hold the legation until Romania freed five imprisoned resistance leaders.

In Washington, spokesmen for the National Association of Manufacturers today praised the President's economic philosophy as "admirable." But Henry G. Riter, N.A.M. president, called for [redacted] a reduction in corporate taxes to overcome what he described as the "stagnation" of business profits.

The C.I.O. Transport Workers today voted against the proposed merger of the C.I.O. and the A.F. of L. until it receives assurances against "discrimination, raiding and racketeering." C.I.O. President Reuther, who favors the merger, said: "May the Lord forgive Brother Quill for he know not what he doeth." (Mike Quill is head of the Transport Workers.)

Here in New York, police say the murder of Serge Rubinstein was a bungled underworld kidnap job. They indicate they know the names of the killers.

And Harvey Matusow, who has filed an affidavit saying he lied in his testimony at the trial of Communist leaders, said today he "always tells the truth in answering questions."

Edward R. Murrow: February 16, 1955. 7.45 p.m.

Yesterday was a notable day in the atomic age. It brought the Atomic Energy Commission's report on the destructiveness of the hydrogen bomb. This at last was the beginning of action in what Washington has christened Operation Candor. The report is designed to wake up the country to the urgent need for civil defense, and to ~~indicate~~ nudge congressional minds into producing funds to finance a minimum civil defense program.

Then there was an item of news at the other end of the atomic spectrum, news about the peacetime use of nuclear energy planned in England. It is a program that calls for twelve atomic-driven power plants within ten years with an output up to ten million kilowatts. No blue-print in any country has gone so far in heralding an atomic millenium.

It is not far wrong to say that the human race is trying to live on two levels of knowledge, the one of old familiar ideas, and the other of ~~KNOWLEDGE~~ the atomic age. Most of the time most people still carry on as though the atomic age were just a phrase and not a fact. Then comes news about it that makes a certain number of people realize - if somewhat resentfully - that the atomic age is going to mean something to them.

Atomic news goes on bringing more and more people into the atomic age.

And when enough of them know they are in it, great changes can be expected. For one thing -(if World War Three hasn't come first)- people will have begun the long, difficult task of building world relationships that abolish war and replace it by law. For another thing, the frontiers of economic progress will be pushed back, and living standards in all lands will begin to rise in a way surpassing the brightest dreams of the industrial revolution.

Atomic news takes time to affect public thinking. It seems to take too long a time, but that is an illusion. Actually the first atomic bomb was exploded less than ten years ago. Our first full-sized hydrogen bomb went off at Bikini less than a year ago. Now the Atomic Energy Commission tells with a studied absence of drama what the destructiveness of the Bikini explosion would have been in a populated area. The story is in terms of our own hydrogen bomb, but that is not the point. The real message is about a Soviet bomb. (The Soviet Union presumably has a thermo-nuclear bomb far more powerful than the Bikini explosion, though the A.E.C. doesn't mention this or any other Soviet bomb, or tell how much bigger and more destructive thermo-nuclear bombs can be. (That should come with still more candor.)

The obvious purpose of the report is to make out a belated case for adequate civil defense. Another obvious purpose is to lessen the chances of panic when the public finally realizes how great the danger is. The heart of the report is the fact that in an area of 2,800 square miles the lives of nearly all people would be seriously threatened by radio-active fall-out from a Bikini type explosion. And twenty miles farther away, half the people would be in such danger. Fifty miles still farther away, from ten to fifteen percent of the people would be in this danger.

Then comes the crux of the lesson: the danger is for those who do not take protective measures. That doesn't mean that everybody can be protected. The report strongly urges evacuation if advance warning allows it. But shelters, buildings, houses and clothing reduce the danger from the radio-active fall-out.

It will cost time and money to organize adequate warning systems, evacuation, the provision of suitable shelters and the instruction of the public. So far, Civil Defense has been the little orphan Annie of the Budget Bureau and Congress, and while the Civil Defense Department has worked hard with the pittance so far received, this neglect represents a danger now demonstrated to be second only to the thermo-nuclear bomb itself. We may not be sure that the men in the Kremlin won't drop hydrogen bombs on us. But we can be sure that many of the people thus endangered are not wiped out.

It is an antidote to this kind of gloomy thinking to look at the British program to build a nest of atomic power stations, at a cost of eight hundred and forty million dollars. A British process already has brought the cost of electric power from atomic energy to seven-tenths of a cent per kilowatt, just a shade higher than the cost of producing it in England with coal. This can't be matched yet in this country, I believe.

Britain got a head start in the industrial era, when steam was first harnessed, because of its convenient coal supply. It became the leading world power in the nineteenth century. Now it is ambitiously bidding for a similar head start in the atomic age. This time, however, it is not reaching out for the old-fashioned kind of power, since that already is out of date. But it is a bid for leadership that is no less imaginative. And the introduction of the program in the House of Commons offered a contrast - a really cheering contrast - to the report of the Atomic Energy Commission, however necessary that was.

Those who step back in awe at the tremendous destructive force of bursting atoms and reconcile themselves to an inevitable fate, might do well to heed these words by Roy Chapman Andrews: "The progress of civilization, he said, has been uneven, but every generation can add something, be it little or much, to the heritage of the past. Today we face the greatest challenge history has ever known: we must live up to our heritage - and add something to it."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

¶ Yesterday was a notable day in the atomic age. It brought the Atomic Energy Commission's report on the destructiveness of the hydrogen bomb. This at last was action in what Washington has christened Operation Cander. The report is designed to wake up the country to the urgent need for civil defense, and to irradiate congressional minds into producing funds to finance a minimum civil defense program.

¶ Then there was an item of news at the other end of the atomic spectrum, news about the peace-time use of nuclear energy planned in England. It is a program that calls for twelve atomic-driven power plants within ten years with an output up to ten million kilowatts. No blue print in any country has gone so far in heralding an atomic millenium.

¶ It is not far wrong to say that the human race is trying to live on two levels of knowledge, the one of old familiar ideas, and the other of the atomic age. Most of the time most people still carry on as though the atomic age were just a phrase and not a fact. Then comes news about it that makes a certain number of people realise--if somewhat resentfully--that the atomic age is going to mean something to them. ¶ Atomic news goes on bringing more and more people into the atomic age. And when enough of them know they are in it, great changes can be expected. For one thing---if World War Three hasn't come first--people will have begun the long, difficult task of building world relationships that abolish war and replace it by law. For another thing, the frontiers of economic progress will be pushed back and living standards in all lands will begin to rise in a way surpassing the brightest dreams of the industrial revolution.

¶ Atomic news takes time to affect public thinking. It seems to take too long a time, but that is an illusion. Actually the first atomic bomb was exploded less than ten years ago. Our first full-sized hydrogen bomb went off at Bikini less than a year ago. Now the Atomic Energy Commission tells with a studied absence of drama what the destructiveness of the Bikini explosion would have been in a populated area. The story is in terms of our own hydrogen bomb, but that is not the point. The real message is about a Soviet bomb. The Soviet Union presumably has a thermonuclear bomb far more powerful than the Bikini explosion, though the AEC doesn't mention this or any other Soviet bomb, or tell how much bigger and more destructive thermonuclear bombs can be. That shows come with still more candor.

¶ The obvious purpose of the report is to to make out a belated case for adequate civil defense. Another obvious purpose is to lessen the chances of panic when the public finally realizes how great the danger is. The heart of the report is the fact that in an area of 2,800 square miles the lives of nearly ALL people would be seriously threatened by radio-active fall-out from a Bikini type explosion. And twenty miles farther away HALF the people would be in such danger. Fifty miles still farther away, from 10 to 15 percent of the people would be in this danger. ¶ Then comes the crux of the lesson: the danger is for those who do not take protective measures. That doesn't mean that everybody can be protected. The report strongly urges evacuation if advance warning allows it. But shelters, buildings, houses and clothing reduce the danger from the radio-active fall-out.

¶ It will cost time and money to organize adequate warnings systems, evacuation, the provision of suitable shelters and the instruction of the public.

So far, Civil Defense has been the little orphan Annie of the Budget Bureau and Congress, and while the Civil Defense Department has worked hard with the pittance so far received, this neglect represents a danger now demonstrated to be second only to the thermonuclear bomb itself. We may not be sure that the men in the Kremlin won't drop hydrogen bombs on us. But we CAN be sure that many of the people thus endangered are not wiped out.

¶ It is an antidote to this kind of gloomy thinking to look at the British program to build a nest of atomic power stations (at a cost of 840 million dollars). A British process already has brought the cost of electric power from atomic energy to seven-tenths of a cent per kilowatt, just a shade higher than the cost of producing it (in England) with coal. This can't be matched yet in this country, I believe.

¶ Britain got a head start in the industrial era, when steam was first harnassed, because of its convenient coal supply. It became the leading world power in the nineteenth century. Now it is ambitiously bidding for a similar head start in the atomic age. This time, however, its is not reaching out for the old-fashioned kind of power, since that already is out of date. But it is a bid for leadership that is no less imaginative. And the introduction of the program in the House of Commons ~~must~~ offered a contrast--a really cheering contrast--to the report of the Atomic Energy Commission, however necessary ~~it~~ that was.

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 16, 1955
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

The House of Representatives today approved a 10-thousand dollar a year pay increase for members of Congress - from 15 to 25-thousand a year. The bill, approved by a vote of 283 to 118, also calls for pay raises for federal judges and top justice department officials. It now goes to the Senate where a committee has voted for increases of 75-hundred dollars a year.

The House Interior committee has voted to admit both Alaska and Hawaii as states. The vote was 19 to 6. The bill goes to the House floor for debate if and when it is approved by the Rules Committee.

The White House says that yesterday's publication of a report on the possible effects of a hydrogen bomb explosion was reached with its full approval. News Secretary Hagerty says the President hopes three points will be emphasized: the need for world peace and disarmament...the necessity for the United Nations to approve the President's atoms-for-peace proposal.. and the fact that "adequate protection can safeguard citizens and their families. I'd like to discuss this report in a few minutes.

Civil Defense Administrator Petersen said today: we have graduated from the duck and cover technique to the age of evacuation...in case of attack. Petersen says:"Civil defense is a strong enough factor that we have reason to be optimistic."

A Republican committee today selected San Francisco as the site for the 1956 Republican convention. It's tentatively scheduled to start on August 20th...the latest convention date in modern political history. The Democrats have decided to meet in Chicago, on July 23..to choose their presidential candidate.

Oveta Culp Hobby, secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, told a Senate committee today that if the nation's school building program is to be limited only to federal grants this will slow down, rather than speed-up the construction needed to overcome a shortage of classrooms. She said there is a tendency on the part of many school districts to defer their building plans in the hope thatthey will receive federal assistance. Democrats call the President's program too little and too late.

Democratic Senator Gore of Tennessee said today the controversial Dixon-Yates power contract has impeded our developement of atomic power. He says this is seriously impairing our future atomic weapons program.

In Kansas City today, former Secretary of State Acheson, visiting former President Truman, told reporters: the foreign policies of the Truman and Eisenhower Administrations are basically the same. But Acheson feels the policies are not now being pursued as "rigorously or effectively" as in the past. Acheson said Europe "has been and will continue to be the focal point of our struggle with Communism." He feels the situation in western Europe has "deteriorated very badly" since Mr. Truman left office. He sees improvement in the Middle East and says: "things are not going so well in the Far East."

Secretary of State Dulles will speak on our Far Eastern program tonight over many of these CBS radio stations at 10:30 p.m., eastern time.

The Chinese Communists charge that we committed "crimes against humanity" in helping the Chinese Nationalists evacuate the Tachen islands. The Peiping radio says our Marines "deliberately abducted over 18-thousand Chinese civilians."

The British government said today that it has "an effective air defense against that any potintial enemy is at present able to bring against" great Britain. A government white paper says the ability of the Royal Air Force to defend Great Brtiain against any night raiders is "better than that of anyone else in the world."

In Bern, Switzerland, three Roumanian anit-Communists have abandoned the Roumanian legation..quietly surrendered to Swiss authorities..and are now being held for trial in connection with the death of a legation chauffer. The men had voted to hold the legation until Roumania freed five imprisoned resistance leaders.

In Washington, spokesmen for the National Association of Manufacturers today praised the President's economic philospphy as "admirable". But Henry G. Riter, N.A.N. president, called for a reduction in corporate taxes to overcome what he described as the "stagnation" of business profits.

The C.I.O. Transport Workers today voted against the proposed merger of the C.I.O. and the A.F. of L. until it receives assurances against "discrimination, raiding and racketeering." C.I.O. President Reuther, who favors the merger, said: "May the Lord forgive Brother Quill for he know not what he doeth." Mike Quill is head of the Transport Workers.

Here in New York, police say the murder of Serge Rubinstein was bungled underworld kidnap job. They indicate they know the names of the killers.

And Harvey Matusow, who has filed an affidavit saying he lied in his testimony at the trial of the Communist leaders, said today he "always tells the truth in answering questions."

Yesterday was a notable day in the atomic age. It brought the Atomic Energy Commission's Report on the destructiveness of the hydrogen bomb. This at last was the beginning of action in what Washington has christened Operation Candor. The report is designed to wake up the country to the urgent need for civil defense, and to nudge congressional minds into producing funds to finance a minimum civil defense program.

Then there was an item of news at the other end of the atomic spectrum, news about the peacetime use of nuclear energy planned in England, It is a program that calls for twelve atomic-driven power plants within ten years with an output up to ten million kilowatts. No blue print in any country has gone so far in heralding an atomic millenium.

It is not far wrong to say that the human race is trying to live on two levels of knowledge, the one of old familiar ideas, and the other of the atomic age. Most of the time, most people still carry on as though the atomic age were just a phrase and not a fact. Then comes news about it that makes a certain number of people realize - if somewhat resentfully that the atomic age is going to mean something to them.

Atomic news goes on bringing more and more people into the atomic age. And when enough of them know they are in it, great changes can be expected. For one thing - the frontiers of economic progress will be pushed back, and living standards in all lands will begin to rise in a way surpassing the brightest dreams of the industrial revolution.

Atomic news takes time to affect public thinking. It seems to take too long a time, but that is an illusion. Actually the first atomic bomb was exploded less than ten years ago. Our first full-sized hydrogen bomb went off at Bikini less than a year ago. Now the Atomic Energy Commission tells with a studied absence of drama what the destructiveness of the Bikini explosion would have been in a populated area. The story is in terms of our own hydrogen bomb, but that is not the point. The real message is about a Soviet bomb. The Soviet Union presumabl has a thermo-nuclear bomb far more powerful than the Bikini explosion, though the A.E.C. doesn't mention this or any Soviet Bomb, or tell how much bigger and more destructive thermo-nuclear bombs can be. That should come with still more candor.

The obvious purpose of the report is to make out a belated case for adequate civil defense. Another obvious purpose is to lessen the chances of panic when the public finally realizes how great the danger is. The heart of the report is the fact that in an area of 2,8000 square miles the lives of nearly all people would be seriously threatened by radio-active fall-out from a Bikini type explosion. And twenty miles farther away, half the people would be in such danger. Fifty miles still farther away, from ten to fifteen percent of the people would be in this danger.

Then comes the crux of the lesson: the danger is for those who do not take protective measures. That doesn't mean that everybody can be protected. The report strongly urges ecacuation if advance warning allows it. But shelters, buildings, houses and clothing reduce the danger from radio-active fall-out.

It will cost time and money to organize adequate warning systems, evacuation, the provisions of suitable shelters and the instruction of the public. So far, Civil Defense has been the Little Orphan Annie of the Budget Bureau and Congress, and while the Civil Defense Department has worked hard with the pittance so far received, this neglect represents a danger now demonstrated to be second only to the thermo-nuclear bomb itself. We may not be sure that the men in the Kremlin won't drop hydrogen bombs on us. But we can be sure that many of the people thus endangered are not wiped out. It is an antidote to this kind of gloomy thinking to look at the British program to build a nest of atomic power stateion, at a cost of eight hundred and forty million dollars. A British process already has brought the cost of electric power from atomic energy to seven-tenths of a cent per kilowat, just a shade higher then the cost of producing it in England with coal. This can't be matched yet in this country, I beleive.

Britain got a head start in the industrial era, when steam was first harnessed, because of its convenient coal supply. It became the leading world power in the nineteenth century. Now it is ambitiously bidding for a similar head start in the atomic age. This time, however, it is not reaching out for the old-fashioned kind of power, since that already is out of date. But it is a bid for leadership that is no less imaginative. And the introduction of the program in the House of Commons offered a contrast a really cheering contrast - to the report of the Atomic Energy Commission, however necessary that was.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a moment with the word for Today. Bur first, here is Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERICAL

MURROW: Those who step back in awe at the tremendous destructive force of bursting atoms and reconcile themselves to an inevitable fate, might do well to heed these words by Roy Champan Andrews: "The progress of civilization, he said, has been uneven, but every generation can add something, be it little or much, to the heritage of the past. Today we face the greatest challenge history has even known: We must live up to our heritage - and add something to it."

Good Night and Good Luck.

Thursday Feb. 17, 1955

This is the news:

The British made it clear today that they do not agree with American policy on the Quemoy and Matsu islands off Formosa. Secretary of State Dulles said last night that we are not committed to defend the islands "as such." But he said we'll "be alert" to any actions by the Communists aimed at conquering the islands. There is no word from the British foreign office. But British newspapers and British officials, privately, have made their views clear. They leave no doubt that the British will (INSIST) that Nationalist China turn over Quemoy and Matsu to the Communists..that this is the only way to achieve an unwritten cease-fire in the Formosa Strait. One newspaper says Great Britain and America now face "a major disagreement" in the Formosan (SITUATION) I'd like to discuss Mr. Dulles speech in a few minutes.

The British announced today that they have solved the secret of making hydrogen bombs..are moving into the development stage..and will soon start producing the bombs. Defense Minister Wilson says that because of this development Great Britain will appropriate less money for defense and reduce her armed forces manpower. Wilson pointed out that a small nation can hurt a large nation far more in hydrogen bomb war that it could in atomic war. As he put it:"Twenty atomic bomb explosions would be most inconvenient in Britain and would hurt us greatly." There is no indication when Britain's first hydrogen bomb will be completed.

A Cleveland architect, Hermann Field, arrived in Dover, England today, after five years of imprisonment by Polish Communists. Field said he's happy as a kid. He "supposes" he'll be going home to the United States soon.

The Swiss made it clear today that those [redacted] anti-Communist Romanians who occupied the Romanian legation in Berne for two days will not be returned to Romania. The Communist government of Romania has demanded that they be returned for trial. But the Swiss say the men will stand trial in Swizterland.

In Washington today, the President told the Republican National Committee that he believes his party can "sweep the country" in 1956. He said:"With the cause for which we have to work..with the material we have in this party..with the appeal we can make to youth.. and with the kind of candidate we can produce, we can sweep the country." Mr. Eisenhower gave no indication of his plans for 1956. But he did tell the Republicans he has come to like the term "dynamic conservatism" better than the label "progressive moderate" that he used recently to describe his Administration's philosophy of government. Mr. Eisenhower said the Republicans should adopt policies "that conserve on everything" and then be "dynamic in applying" these policies to the problems of the day. He aslo reminded the party leaders that "our great enemy is the Communists..not the Democrats."

The House of Representatives today agreed..by a one vote margin... to consider the President's foreign trade program under rules that bar amendments from the floor. It took a plea by Speaker Rayburn, a Democrat, to convince the majority that it was not wise to open the bill to a number of restrictive amendments from the floor.

The National Education Association told Congress today that the President's plan to help the states build more schools offers "too little aid and too much control" by the federal government. William Carr, of the N.E.A., said his organization cannot support the President's program as it stands now. He called it "untested and hastily formulated."

Secretary of Agriculture Benson told Congress today that things are getting better for the farmers. He said: farm prices and income are stabilized...per capita income is going up... agricultural assets increased slightly last year and increasing exports are helping.

Attorney General Brownell said today that Roy M. Cohn will be called before a federal grand jury if he has any significant connection with the case of Harvey Matusow. Matusow has said that Cohn helped him prepare false testimony. Cohn said he would not "dignify" the charge with a reply.

Irving Potash, one of the 11 Communist leaders convicted of a conspiracy violation under the Smith act, TODAY was given permission to leave the country and live in Communist Poland. Potash is under indictment for membership in the Communist party.

Republican Senator Bricker of Ohio said today that until Congress takes action the nation will not have "a TRULY competitive television system." Bricker says the four television networks, and their wholly-owned t.v. stations "garner a disproportionate share" of the revenue of the television industry. He says the Federal Communications Commission objective "to provide for a nationwide competitive system of TV stations is threatened with defeat.

Here in New York tonight, Navy Secretary Thomas will say that the Communists are avoiding war in Formosa strait because they cannot cope with our seapower. In a speech marking the 160th anniversary of the Navy Supply Corps, Secretary Thomas will say that for the first time the Communists have come "face to face with the harsh realities of seapower at the coastline of the Formosa Strait's 100 miles of open sea." He adds: To be an aggressor they had to have the ability to control and cross that 100 miles of water. And that they could not and cannot do."

Edward R. Murrow: February 17, 1955. 7.45 p.m.

The insiders in Washington promised that Secretary Dulles's speech last night would put an end to any ambiguity over our policy in regard to the Quemoys and Matsus off the China coast. But they were mostly wrong. Our policy remains unclearly what it was: We are not committed to defend the islands as such, but to defend Formosa and the Pescadores. But we are bound to take into consideration closely related localities that have a bearing on the defense of Formosa. And Mr. Dulles reduced the ambiguity only a little by implying an intent to defend the islands, which he did not state positively.

Mr. Dulles spoke out against the Nationalists surrendering their coastal position which (to quote him) "the Communists need to stage their announced attack on Formosa. It is doubtful," he declared, "that this would serve either the cause of peace or the cause of freedom."

A basis for a possible cease-fire is that the coastal islands, which are Chinese territory, be ceded to the Peiping regime in return for a pledge not to attack Formosa, which is not Chinese territory. Neither of the Chinese contestants likes this formula. Mr. Dulles now has turned his back on it, much to the dismay of our British allies.

The upshot of Mr. Dulles's speech was the hint to the American people that at any moment we may be involved in the defense of Quemoy and Matsu.

And ~~for~~ as far as it went, Mr. Dulles's analysis of the situation was sound. But it stated only part of the problem. He argued that the islands would be useful to the Communists if they were going to cross the straits to attack Formosa, which is undeniable. It also is undeniable that the Communists have said over and over that they are going to liberate Formosa.

But Quemoy is even more important to the Nationalists if they plan to invade the China mainland, and the Nationalists have said over and over that they are going to do just that. They even repeated it in the most authoritative way, after the President's message to Congress and the ratification of the mutual security treaty.

This reporter does not believe the Nationalists still hope to re-conquer the mainland with or without American military help. But the Communists take Nationalist boasts at their face value, in the same way we take the Communist boasts at their face value. They know that Chiang Kai-shek has about a third of his first-line forces on Quemoy, a few miles from the mainland, bottling up one of their best harbors, and helping sustain a quite painful coastal blockade. They believe the Nationalists' last hope of power is to get the United States into a China war. Even if the Communists do not go on to attack Formosa, they have military reasons to wish the Nationalists out of Quemoy. But now if they make a move, we have said in private, and strongly hinted in public, that we shall get into the act.

Mr. Dulles exhorted the Communists to give up the use of force. He said also, but only in passing, that we reject for ourselves - meaning the United States - any initiative of warlike deeds. This phrase might well have been underscored and expanded. The outlook for peace would be better if the Peiping leaders came to believe that the Nationalists are not going to invade the mainland. Or, more important still, if they could believe that the Nationalists cannot drag us into a war by setting off an explosion themselves.

A few days ago, the Communists resumed bombarding Quemoy for a little while. THEY DID IT AGAIN TODAY. The Nationalist radio naively explained that Nationalist artillery men, having been able to see the Communist gunners on the mainland getting ready to fire, fired on them first.

There is a puzzling story behind the Communist bombardment of Quemoy early in September, at the start of the Manila conference. The Nationalists explained that the Communists were getting ready to invade Quemoy and were only prevented by courageous Nationalist aviation and artillery. A retired American officer, now military analyst for the St. Louis Post Dispatch,

Brigadier General Thomas Phillips, was on Quemoy, and he told an entirely different story. He denied that there was any Communist build-up for invasion. What happened, he said, was that the Nationalists sank a landing craft off the Quemoy beach and then made an improvised dock by anchoring another craft across the end of it. This was in plain view of the Communists, who must have thought some action was being prepared. They opened fire and sank the two craft. Heavy artillery and air action followed. General Phillips says the Nationalists set this off "for political reasons to arouse the United States."

It does not weaken the campaign for a cease-fire to recognize that the Communists must take seriously the presence of fifty thousand first-line Nationalist troops six miles from their coast. If Mr. Dulles's plea to give up the use of force is to mean anything it must apply to the Nationalists, too. They do that in their new treaty with us. But Mr. Dulles said nothing about that last night.

In matters of diplomacy, what we say and what we do are often quite different. And, as a matter of fact, even what we say can be taken in different ways. Oliver Wendell Holmes put it well:"A word is not a crystal - transparent and unchanging. It is, he said, the skin of a living thought and may vary greatly in color and content according to the circumstances and time in which it is used." ~~All diplomats take note!~~

Sound advice for diplomats and Reporters

Good Nite and Good Luck!

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 17, 1955
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

The British made it clear today that they do not agree with American policy on the Quemoy and Matsu islands off Formosa. Secretary of State Dulles said last night that we are not committed to defend the islands "as such." But he said we'll "be alert to any actions by the Communists aimed at conquering the islands." There is no word from the British foreign office But British newspapers and British officials, privately, have made their views clear. They leave no doubt that the British will insist that Nationalist China turn over Quemoy and Matsu to the Communists...that this is the only way to achieve an unwritten cease-fire in the Formosa Strait. One newspaper says Great Britain and America now face "a major disagreement" in the Formosan situation. I'f like to discuss Mr. Dulles speech in a few min-minutes.

The British announced today that they have solved the secret of making hydrogen bombs..are moving into the development stage..and will soon start producing the bombs. Defense Minister Wilson says that because of this development Great Britain will appropriate less money for defense and reduce her armed forces manpower. Wilson pointed out that a small nation can hurt a large nation far more in hydrogen bomb age than it could in atomic war. As he put it:"Twenty atomic bomb explosions would be most inconvenient in Britain and would hurt us greatly." There is no indication when Britain's first hydrogen bomb will be completed.

A Cleveland architect, Hermann Field, arrived in Dover, England today, after five years of imprisonment by Polish Communists. Field said he's happy as a kid. He "supposes he'll be going home to the United States soon.

The Swiss made it clear today that those anti-Communist Romanians who occupied the Romanian legation in Berne for two days will not be returned to Romania. The Communist Government of Romania has demanded that they be returned for trial. But the Swiss say the men will stand trial in Switzerland.

In Washington today, the President told the Republican National Committee that he believes his party can sweep the country" in 1956. He said: "With the cause for which we have to work..with the material we have in this party..with the appeal we can make to youth...and with the kind of candidate we can produce, we can sweep the country." Mr. Eisenhower gave no indication of his plans for 1956. But he did tell the Republicans he has come to like the term "dynamic conservatism" better than the label "progressive moderate" that he used recently to describe ths Administration philosophy of government. Mr. Eisenhower said the Republicans should adopt policies "that concerve on everything" and then be "dynamic in applying" these policies to the problems. of the day. He also reminded the party leaders that "our great enemy is the Communists...not the Democrats."

The House of Representatives today agreed ..by a one vote margin...to consider the President's foreign trade program under rules that bar amendments from the floor. It tood a plea by Speaker Rayburn, a Democrat, to convince the majority that it was not wise to open the bill to a number of restrictive amendments from the floor.

The National Education Assosiation told Congress today that the President's plan to help the states build more schools offers "too little aid and too much control" by the federal government. William Carr, of the N.E.A., said his organization cannot support the President's program as it stands now. He called it "untested and hastily formulated."

Secretary of Agriculture Benson told Congress today that things are getting better for the farmers. He said: farm prices and income are stabilized ...per capita income is going up..agricultural assets increased slightly last year and increasing exports are helping.

Attorney General Brownell said today that Roy M. Cohn will be called before a federal grand jury if he has any significant connection with the case of Harvey Matusow. Matusow has said that Cohn helped him prepare false testimony. Cohn said he would not "dignify" the charge with a reply.

Irving Potash, one of the 11 Communist leaders convicted of a conspiracy violation under the Smith act, today was given permission to leave the country and live in Communist Poland. Potash is under indictment for membership in the Communist party.

Republican Senator Bricker of Ohio said today that until Congress takes action the nation will not have "a truly competitive television system." Bricker says the four television networks, and their wholly-owned TV stations "garner a disproportionate share" of the revenue of the television industry. He says the Federal Communications Commission objective "to provide for a nationwide competitive system of TV stations is threatened with defeat.

Here in New York tonight, Navy Secretary Thomas will say that the Communists are avoiding war in Formosa Strats because they cannot cope with our seapower. In a speech marking the 160th anniversary of the Navy Supply Corps, Secretary Thomas will say that for the first time the Communists have come "face to face with the harsh realities of seapower at the coastline of the the Formosa Strait's 100 miles of open sea." He adds: to be an aggressor they had to have the ability to control and cross the 100 miles of water. And that they could not and cannot do."

The insiders in Washington promised that Secretary Dulles's speech last night would put an end to any ambiguity over our policy in regard to the Quemoys and Matsus off the China coast. But they were mostly wrong. Our policy remains unclearly what is was: We are not committed to defend the islands as such, but to defend Formosa and the Pescadores. But we are bound to take into consideration closely related localities that have a bearing on the defense of Formosa. And Mr. Dulles reduced the ambiguity only a little by implying an intent to defend the islands, which he did not state positively.

Mr. Dulles spoke out against the Nationalists surrendering their coastal positions which (to quote him) "the Communists need to stage their announced attack on Formosa. "It is doubtful," he declared, "that this would serve either the cause of peace or the cause of freedom."

A basis for a possible cease-fire is that the coastal islands, which are Chinese territory, be ceded to the Peiping regime in return for a pledge not to attack Formosa, which is not Chinese territory. Neither of the Chinese contestants likes this formula. Mr. Dulles now has turned his back on it, much of the dismay of our British allies.

The upshot of Mr. Dulles's speech was the hint to the American people that at any moment we may be involved in the defense of Quemoy and Matsu. And as far as it went, Mr. Dulles's analysis of the situation was sound. But it stated only part of the problem. He argued that the islands would be useful to the Communists if they were going to cross the straits to attack Formosa, which is undeniable. It also is undeniable that the Communists have said over and over that they are going to liberate Formosa.

But Quemoy is even more important to the Nationalists if they plan to invade the China mainland, and the Nationalists have said over and over that they are going to do just that. They even repeated it in the most authoritative way, after the President's message to Congress and the ratification of the mutual security treaty.

This reporter does not believe the Nationalists still hope to reconquer the mainland with or without American military help. But the Communists take Nationalist boasts at their face value,

; in the same way we take the Communists boasts at their face value. They know that Chiang Kai-shek has about a third of his first-line forces on Quemoy, a few miles from the mainland, bottling up obout a third of his first-line forces on Quemoy, a few miles from the mainland, bottling up one of their best harbors, and helping sustain a quite painful coastal blockade. They believe the Nationalists' last hope of power is to get the United States into a China war. Even if the Communists do not go on to attack Formosa, they have military reasons to wish the Nationalists out of Quemoy. But now if they make a move, we have said in private, ans strongly hinted in public, that we shall get into the act.

Mr. Dulles exhorted the Communists to give up the use of force. He said also, but only in passing, that we reject for ourselves - meaning the United States - any initiative of warlike deeds. This phrase might well have been underscored and expanded. The outlook for peace wuld be better if the Peiping leaders came to believe that the Nationalists are not doing to invade the mainland. Or, more important still, if they could believe that the Nationalists cannot drag us into a war by setting off an explosion themselves.

A few days ago, the Communists resumed bombarding Quemoy for a little while. They did it again today. The Nationalist radio naively explained that Nationalist artillery men, having been able to see the Communist gunners on the mainland getting ready to fire, fired on them first.

There is a puzzling story behind the Communist bombardment of Quemoy early in September, at the start of the Manila conference. The Nationalists explained that the Communists were getting ready to invade Quemoy and were only prevented by courageous Nationalist aviation and artillery. A retired American officer, now military analyst for the St. Louis Post Dispatch, Brigadier General Thomas Phillips, was on Quemoy, and he told an entirely different story. He denied that there was any Communist build-up for invasion. What happened, he said, was that the Nationalists sank a landing craft off the Quemoy beach and then made an improvised dock by anchoring another landing draft across the end of it. This was in plain view of the Communists who must have thought some action was being prepared. They opened fire and sank the two craft. Heavy artillery and air action followed. General Phillips says the Nationalists set t is off "for political reasons to arrouse the United States."

It does not weaken the Campaign for a cease fire to recognize that the Communists must take seriously the presence of fifty thousand first-line Nationalist troops six miles from their coast. If Mr. Dulles's plea to give up the use of force is to mean anything it must apply to the Nationalists, too. They do that in their new treaty with us. But Mr. Dulles said nothing about that last night.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a moment with the Word for Today. Now, here is Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: In matters of diplomacy, what we say and what we do are often quite different. And, as a matter of fact, even what we say can be taken in different ways. Oliver Wendell Holmes put it well:"A word is not a crystal-transparent and unchanging. It is", he said, "the skin of a living thought and may vary greatly in color and content according to the circumstances and time n which it is used." Sound advice for diplomats and reporters.

Good Night and Good Luck.

Friday ~~January~~ February 18, 1955

This is the news:

The House today approved the President's liberalized trade program. #

It was one of the closest [redacted] and bitterest tariff debates and votes in history. The program was approved [redacted] AFTER a letter was read from the President assuring the House that "no American industry will be hurt" if he was given the authority he sought. The key vote came on a move by Republican Representative Reed of New York to send the bill back to committee. On this, 119 Republicans and 80 Democrats supported Reed. But they were beaten by 66 Republicans and 140 Democrats who favored the President's program. Later Mr. Eisenhower issued a statement saying he was gratified. He said the program "is of tremendous significance to the eceonomic health and security of the United States and our friends in the free world."

The President today sent a message to Chiang Kai Shek saying that the successful evacuation of the Tachen islands [redacted] (demonstrates) the "close and effective co-operation" of our two countries. And today, the Chinese Nationalists announced that their planes and ships had destroyed 21 Chinese Communist vessels. The Nationalists say a 12-hour battle occurred off Taishan island which is 120 miles northwest of Formosa. They say 18-hundred Communist troops went down with their transport vessels.

Secretary of State Dulles left Washington by plane today for a Southeast Asia defense conference at Bagkok, Thailand. He predicts the conference will make "a real contribution toward the peace and security of the future."

The Atomic Energy Commission started its atomic tests at Yucca Flat today with the explosion of a small a-bomb dropped from a B-36 bomber.

And the Soviet Union proposed tonight that all atomic weapons and all hydrogen weapons be destroyed. Only yesterday the British announced that they are prepared to start making hydrogen bombs.. a development I'd like to discuss in a few minutes. Today, Moscow said in addition to destroying all atomic and hydrogen weapons they want to limit armed forces at their present levels. In the past the United States has called for world control of atomic and hydrogen weapons. We insist on an international inspection system to make certain any such agreements are carried out.

In Paris, Christian Pineau today called on the National Assembly to approve his new government.

And Hermann Field, recently released from a Polish prison after five years, told his story to newsmen in London. Field says: he is not and never has been a Communist. He says he doesn't have the faintest idea why the Poles arrested him five years ago. He said he spent the whole five years in a small prison cellar... he was never brought to trial..never asked to confess to anything..never heard of any charges brought against him. Hermann Field said that for all of the five years he never was permitted out of doors..never given any clothes but the suit he had on when he was arrested. Field said when the Poles released him they gave him 50-thousand dollars as an indemnity payment and another 15-hundred for medical treatment.

The Polish embassy in Washington announced today that it will grant asylum to Irving Potash, a top United States Communist.

The Senate committee studying the President's school-building program was told today that the chief education officers in 31 of 33 states are opposed to most or all of the bill. The group was polled by the Council of Chief State School OFFICERS. And executive secretary Dr. Edgar Fuller said the state officials called the President's plan "utterly useless..highly objectionable..and abhorrent to Yankee tradition." Fuller described the education officers he polled as "professionals" and members of all political parties. Thus far, not one educator has appeared before the committee to give even qualified support to the program. It calls for the federal government to put up one billion dollars for the construction of schools over a three-year period in the hopes of getting the states to spend 6-billions.

Here in New York, Police Commissioner Adams told reporters that police raided a big wiretap center a week ago TODAY. But he said police don't know yet what it was all about..and no arrests have been made. Adams says the wiretappers had access to some 48 to 60-thousand telephones in a midtown area that includes many business establishments and homes. Republican Senator Ives of New York says this type of wiretapping operation creates "a grave danger of security leaks."

Edward R. Murrow: February 18, 1955. 7.45 p.m.

The news that the British Government is about to make the hydrogen bomb met in that country a somewhat awed approval. The policy is to be accepted by the Labor Party, but in silence. British editorials today are understandably solemn. The Daily Mail calls the White Paper with its news of the decision, "a grim message of the grimmest defense statement ever made by a British Government. The hydrogen bomb", it goes on to say, "is the master weapon of this terrible age. We must either possess it or resign ourselves to a subordinate place in the world, or to slavery." And it points out that in replacing orthodox with nuclear weapons as the main protection against attack, Britain has reached the point of no return.

The News Chronicle wrote that the news that Britain will make a hydrogen bomb, and use it if compelled to, "is likely at first to bring on a sickening, sinking feeling." But it agrees with the government that most of the British would rather risk physical devastation than humble themselves before militant communism. It accepts the bomb as a deterrent.

The White Paper did not forecast drastic reduction in other means of defense. It would be early for that, as the bomb isn't in production yet. But the whole emphasis of British policy now is put on deterrence, the thermo-nuclear bomb being the chief deterrent. This satisfies both the Times and the Daily Telegraph.

The Manchester Guardian, however, is frightened by the potential cost of the program. "Is not Britain attempting too much alone?" it asks. "And would she need to attempt so much if the Atlantic Alliance were more effective? We are about to duplicate the immense American effort in hydrogen bomb research, and to duplicate or supplement the American Strategic Air Command" it points out. "We are pursuing our own research in missiles and guided weapons - and all this on top of heavy commitments in conventional defense. "It suggests Britain might better rely on America's long lead in strategic air power, and concentrate its research on guided missiles. "That" it suggests, "might be the most valuable contribution it could make to the Atlantic Alliance."

The Daily Express says that imperial obligations require that Britain should have the hydrogen bomb. And it looks forward to the day when Canada and Australia will have it too. "That" it says, "would be the best safeguard of peace."

The mention of Canada and Australia one day having the hydrogen bomb should make anyone sit up and take notice. When a small country has the biggest, all-destructive weapon it automatically becomes about as powerful as a large country with the same weapon. For relative strength isn't in the number of maximum weapons. If ten, twenty, thirty of them could devastate a continent, they are practically as strong as a hundred or, for that matter, a thousand.

The United States started out with a monopoly of the hydrogen bomb which, for a time, made us very strong indeed. Then the Soviet produced one, and the power relationship of the world changed. We no longer were sure of nuclear world supremacy and were headed for a nuclear stalemate. Now Britain enters the picture, and power concepts are topsy-turvy. For if Britain has it, Canada and Australia can have it, as the Daily Express says; and if they can have it, so in time can any number of small countries. And then the purpose of military - power - which is to exert specific political influence in peace time and impose specific political decisions in war time - is utterly changed. The Daily Express thought that for Canada and Australia to have the hydrogen bomb would be the best safeguard of peace. One can grant that, but suppose some irresponsible dictator of some other small land had it, he might drop it. And that might set off the hydrogen bombs around the world. It does not make for law and order when everyone totes a gun.

Another effect of the British decision also is far-reaching. It is that Britain's main defense is being transferred from conventional to nuclear weapons which, as the Daily Mail calls it, is the point of no return. All the big military establishments are approaching this point of no return even without the hydrogen bomb. For if nuclear weapons replace orthodox weapons for tactical uses, any war becomes a nuclear war, with no clear line between tactical and strategic uses. This already is worrying military men everywhere, and inside the chiefs of staffs many an expert is staunchly standing against dependence on nuclear weapons for tactical purposes. The British decision now looks like an evolution as well as a revolution. And the evolution is toward concentrating all military power on deterrence. When the chief mission of military power is to prevent war, then military power no longer has any specific political mission.

The British government, in its White Paper, dedicated itself anew to the ultimate abolition of all weapons of mass destruction. But if we reach the point of no return there can be no salvation in that. The only safety becomes disarmament. It is significant that President Eisenhower, in ordering the publication of the A.E.C. report on our hydrogen bomb this week, did so, it now is revealed, to press home the need for disarmament.

There are those who contend that the tremendous emphasis now being placed on developing more and deadlier instruments of destruction is the result of circumstances beyond anyone's control. This may be so. But John Greenleaf Whittier took the other view when he wrote:"The tissue of the life to be we weave with colors all our own. And in the field of destiny we reap as we have sown."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 18, 1955
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

The House today approved the President's liberalized trade program. It was one of the closest and bitterest tariff debates and votes in history. The program was approved after a letter was read from the President assuring the House that "no American industry will be hurt" if he was given the authority he sought. The key vote came on a move by Republican Representative Reed of New York to send the bill back to committee. On this, 119 Republicans and 80 Democrats supported Reed. But they were beaten by 66 Republicans and 140 Democrats who favored the President's program. Later Mr. Eisenhower issued a statement saying he was gratified. He said the program "is of tremendous significance to the economic health and security of the United States and our friends in the free world.

The President today sent a message to Chiang Kai Shek saying that the successful evacuation of the Tachen islands demonstrates the "close and effective co-operation" of our two countries. And today, the Chinese Nationalists announced that their planes and ships had destroyed 21 Chinese Communist vessels. The Nationalists say a 12-hour battle occurred off Taishan island which is 120 miles northwest of Formosa. They say 18-hundred Communist troops went down with their transport vessesl.

Secretary of State Dulles left Washington by plane today for a South east Asia defense conference at Bangkok, Thailand. He predicts the conference will make "a real contribution toward the peace and security of the future."

The Atomic Energy Commission started its atomic tests at Yucca Flat today with the explosion of a small A-bomb dropped from a B-36 bomber.

And the Soviet Union porposed tonight that all atomic weapons and all hydrogen weapons be destroyed. Only yesterday the British announced that they are prepared to start making hydrogen bombs...a developement I'd like to discuss in a few minutes. Today, Moscow said in addition to destroying all atomic and hydrogen weapons they want to limit armed forces at their present levels. In the past the United States has called for world control of atomic weapons. We insist on an international inspeciton systm to make certain any such agreements are carried out.

In Paris, Christian Pineau today called on the National Assembly to approve his new government.

And Hermann Field, recently released from a Polish prison after five years, told his story to newsmen in London. Field says: he is not and never has been a Communist. He says he didsn't have the faintest idea why the Poles arrested him five years ago. He said he spent the whole five years in a small prison cellar...he was never brought to trial...never asked to confess anything..never heard af any charges brought against him. Hermann Field said that for all of the five years he never was permitted out of doors..never given any clothes but the suit he had on when he was arrested. Field said when the Poles released his they have him 50-thousand dollars as an indemnity payment and another 15-hundred for medical treatment.

The Polish embassy in Washington announced today that it will grant asylum to Irving Potash, a top United States Communist.

The Senate committee studying the President's school-building program was told today that the Chief education officers in 31 of 33 states are opposed to most or all of the bill. The group was polled by the Council of Chief State School Officers. And executive secretary Dr. Edgar Fuller said the state officials called the President's plan "utterly useless...highly objectionable..and abhorrent to Yankee tradition." Fuller described the education officers he polled as "professionals", and members of all political parties. Thus far not one educator has appeared before the committee to give even qualified support to the program. It calls for the federal government to put up one billion dollars for the construction of schools over a three-year period in the hopes of getting the states to spend 6 billions. Here in New York, Police Commissioner Adams told reporters that police raided a big wiretap center a week ago.today. But he said Police don't know yet what it was all about...and no arrests have been made. Adams says the wiretappers had access to some 48 to 60 thosuand telephones in a midtown area that included many business establishments and homes. Republican Senator Ives of New York says this type of wiretapping operation creates "a grave danger of security leaks."

The news that the British Government is about to make the hydrogen bomb met in that country a somewhat awed approval. The policy is to be accepted by the Labor Party, but in silence. British editorials today are understandably solemn. The Daily Mail calls the White Paper with its news of the decision, "a grim message of the grimmest defense statement ever made by a British government. The Hydrogem bomb", it goes on to say, "is the master weapon of this terrible age. We must either possess it or resign ourselves to a subordinate place in the world or to slavery." Ant it points out that in replacing orthodox with nuclear weapons as the main protection against attack, Britain has reached the point of no return. The News Chronicle wrote that the news that Britain will make a hydrogen bomb, and use it if compelled to, "is likely at first to bring on a sickening, sinking feeling." But it agress with the government that most of the British would rather risk physical devastation that humble themselves before militant communism. It accepts the bomb as a deterrent.

The White Paper did not forecast drastic reduction in other means of defense. It would be early for that, as the bomb isn't in production yet. But the whole emphasis of British policy is put on deterrents,. the thermo-nuclear bomb being the chief deterrent. This satisfies both the Times and the Daily Telepgaph.

The Manchester Guardian, however, is frightened by the potential of the program. "Is not Britain attempting too much alone?" it asks. "And would she need to attempt so much if the Atlantic Alliance were more effective? We are about to duplicate the emmense Americann effort in hydrogem bomb research, and to duplicate or supplement the American Strategic Air Command" it points out. "We are pursuing our own research in missiles and guided weapons. - and all this on top of heavy commitments in conventional defense." "It suggests Britain might better rely on America's long lead in strategic air power, and concentrate its research on guided milsiles."That" it suggests, "might be the most valuable contribution it could make to the Atlantic Alliance."

The Daily Express says the imperial obligations require that Britain should have the hydrogen bomb. And it looks forward to the day when Canada and Australia will have it too. "That" it says, "Would be the best safeguard of peace."

The mention of Canada and Australia one day having the hydrogen bomb should make anyone sit up and take notice. When a small country has the biggest, all-destructive weapon it atuomatically becomes about as powerful as a large country with the same weapon. For relative strength isn't in the number of maximum weapons. If ten, twenty, thirty of them could devastate a continent, they are practically as strong as a hundred or, for that matter a thousand.

The United States started out with a monopoly of the hydrogen bomb which, for a time, made us very strong indeed. Then the Soviet produced one, and the power relationship of the world changed. We no longer were sure of nuclear world supremacy and were headed for a nuclear stalemate. Now Britain enters the picture, and power concepts are topsy-turvy. For if Britain has it, Canada and Australia can have it, as the Daily Express says; and if they can have it, so in time can any number of small countries. And then the purpose of military power which is to exert specific political influence in peace time and impose specific political decisions in war time is utterly changed. The Daily Express thought that for Canada and Australia to have the hydrogen bomb would be the best safeguard of peace. One can grant that, but suppose some irresponsible dictator of some other small land had it, he might drop it. And that might set off the hydrogen bombs around the world. It does not make for law and order when everyone totes a gun.

Another effect of the British decision also is far-reaching. It is that Britain's main defense is being transferred from conventional to nuclear weapons which, as the Daily Mail calls it, is the point of no return. All the big military establishments are approaching this point of no return even without the hydrogen bomb. For if nuclear weapons replace orthodox weapons for tactical uses, any war becomes a nuclear war, with no clear line between tactical and strategic uses. This already is worrying military men everywhere, and inside the chiefs of staffs many an expert is staunchly standing against dependence on nuclear weapons for tactical purposes. The British decision now looks like an evolution as well as a revolution. And the evolution is toward concentrating all military power on deterrence. When the chief mission of military power is to prevent war, then military power no longer has any specific political mission.

The British government, in its White Paper, dedicated itself anew to the ultimate abolition of all weapons of mass destruction. But it we reach the point of no return there can b no salvation in that. The only safety becomes disarmament. It is significant that President Eisenhower, in ordering the publication of the A.E.C. report on our hydrogen bomb this week, do so, it now is revealed, to press home the need for disarmament.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a moment with the word for today. Now, here is Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW:There are those who contend that the tremndous emphasis now being placed on developigg more and deadlier instruments of destruction is the result of circumstances beyond anyone's control. This may be so. But John Greenleaf Whittier took the other view when he wrote: "The tissue of the life to be we weave with colors all our own. And in the field of destiny we reap as we have sown."

Good Night and Good Luck.

Monday, Feb. 21, 1955

This is the news:

The House Ways and Means Committee today approved a 20-dollar income tax reduction for everyone after next January first. The vote was 15 to 10. And it came after the committee heard from Treasury Secretary Humphrey for two and a half hours. Later, Humphrey told reporters the 20-dollar tax cut plan was "completely contrary to the public interest.. AND [redacted] [redacted] would play fast and loose with the welfare of 16 million Americans"... Nevertheless, the Committee voted to APPROVE FOR [redacted] each taxpayer and each OF his dependent, a $20 deduction of income earned after next January. At the same session, the committee approved the President's request to postpone for one year a three billion dollar cut in corporate income and excise taxes .

Republican Representative Reed of New York, who LEAD AN UNSUCCESSFUL [redacted] drive to cut income taxes two years ago, said today, the Ways and Means action "was an act of unpardonable irresponsibility"..designed to buy votes in the 1956 election. But Chairman Cooper of Tennessee said the program merely balances last year's tax bill which, he said, gave special relief to stockholders and corporations without giving tax relief "where it is needed the most."

The Senate today started debating a proposal to raise the pay of all members of Congress. Senator Kefauver said the increase to $22,500 a year is amply justified by increases in the cost of living since 1946..when congressional pay was last RAISED. Republican Senator Bush of Connecticut urged his colleagues to approve an increase for federal judges but to forget about members of congress. He said there are plenty of applicants for jobs in Congress..and there's nothing to compel a man to run if he considers the pay inadequate. But Senator Purtell, the other Republican Senator from Connecticut, asked Bush whether he thought a man should have "inherited or acquired" wealth before seeking office. Bush said: No..but congressmen should give-up large salaries out of their desire to serve the people.

The American Federation of Labor today criticized the President's school-aid program as: "half-hearted and penny-pinching..extremely involved..with all types of roadblocks for anyone seeking federal assistance." But John Burkhart of the Indiana Chamber of Commerce said "prodigious efforts" are now being made across the country that are "successfully closing the gap" of classroom shortage.

The President today outlined to Congressmen the highway program he'll send them tomorrow. Republican Senator Martin of Pennsylvania says there will be no major changes from the controversial Clay report. But Democratic Senator Chavez of New Mexico says the President's program is "so full of holes it might sink in Congress."

The Senate Internal Security Sub-committee today heard from Harvey Matusow who has identified himself as a former Communist, former F.B.I. informer and frequent liar. Among other things, Matusow said today that he believes Elizabeth Bentley gave false testimony on Communist activities. He said he bases this on conversations with her. He testified that he lied when he called Democratic Senator Jackson of Washington State a "pro-Communist." Matusow says he lied when he called Democratic Senator Mansfield of Montana a "tool of the Communist party." He said he was paid 600-dollars for speeches against Jackson..and up to 14-hundred for all his speeches against Mansfield. Matusow insisted he was telling the truth today. But Chairman Eastland said he believes Matusow is part of a shrewd plan to get some convicted Communists out of trouble. And Senator Watkins called Matusow "a perpetual and habitual liar."

The Justice Department says it has ordered a grand jury investigation of the testimony by Mrs. Marie Natvig before a Federal Communications Commission examiner in the case of Edward O. Lamb. Recently Mrs. Natvig repudiated testimony in which she linked Lamb to communism.

Admiral Carney, the chief of naval operations, said today that Russia's new big naval building program "is one of the most conclusive bits of evidence that they are not contemplating a short war."

The Chinese Nationalists say their planes have "probably damaged" an "unfriendly submarine" northwest of Formosa. The Nationalists say that for a fourth day their planes attacked a Communist build-up area and shipping in the Taishan islands.

In Bangkok, where a three-day Southeast Asia Defense Treaty conference opens tomorrow, the Thai premier reported that Communist "free Thai" forces are massing close to Thailand's border. And the Chinese Communist radio says the meeting is an American plot to "get Asians to do the dying for United States aggression in Asia." Secretary of State Dulles, stopping in Manila, said the time is ripe for "plain speaking to prevent a reckless Communist miscalculation which could endanger the lives of many."

And in Paris, the strong French Socialist party today refused to support or join a government headed by Radical Socialist Edgar Faure. This means Faure cannot get the broad national coalition support he had sought. He says he'll decide by tomorrow whether to go ahead with his efforts to form a new cabinet.

Edward R. Murrow: February 21, 1955. 7.45 p.m.

The Paris treaties providing for the re-armament of West Germany go before the German Parliament for final decision on Thursday of this week. The French remain seized with a government crisis. But the Germans today appeared calm and almost disinterested. The day was "Rose Monday" in Germany; the climax of the carnival season, and the last official occasion for letting off steam before Lent. In the cities of the Rhineland and South Germany the celebration was unrestrained. In Cologne more than a million people - many of them well-filled with anti-freeze - stood singing and swaying as they watched the carnival floats. Several of the displays poked fun at the idea of re-armament, but only in a mild fashion. One float had a giant, glowering Russian figure holding out a glass of champagne to a white-clad and reluctant Miss Germany; but in the other hand the Russian figure held a big sledge-hammer behind his back. Another float showed Chancellor Adenauer in a boat labelled "Europe" trying to pull Miss France aboard. Dick Hottelet cables me tonight that the German people appear much less agitated about the whole re-armament debate than do the political and editorial commentators. He thinks there is little reason to worry about popular passive resistance in Germany, once the treaties authorizing the new German Army have been ratified.

It is worthy of note that the Chinese Communists are in the process of creating a new army. According to their plans it will be one of the world's largest armies. Their new conscription law comes into effect in April. It is designed to raise a standing army of three million men. The present so-called People's Liberation Army of two-and-a-half million will be gradually de-mobilized, but it will be retained as a permanent reserve. According to the plan the new Chinese Army will be the biggest in the world; and it will also be China's first national military force. If that comes about it will end the old Chinese tradition of private armies run by war lords. The new Chinese army will be organized on Soviet lines - the officer corps will be given unprecedented status - there will be a formal system of rank - regular pay and awards for merit. For the first time the rank of Marshal will be used at the highest level; and sharing authority with the Military Commander in Chief will be an entirely new office at the head of the army. He will be the Chief of the General Political Department, or in Russian terms, the Chief Political Commissar. The present four field armies, which have been almost autonomous, will be abolished; and there will be created seventy-five new armies whose generals will get their orders direct from the Defense Council headed by Mao tse Tung. According to this plan the Chinese soldiers will, for the first time in recent generations, owe their loyalty directly to the state, rather than to separate field commanders or provincial commanders.

It is presumed that this massive new Chinese army will receive its heavy materiel from Russia. But rifles, machine guns and light ammunition will be made in China. It has recently been reported that military aircraft are now being produced in China.

These details of the new Chinese Army, recently received in London, tend to support the view that one cause, and perhaps a major one, for the recent re-shuffle in the Kremlin was the result of Russia's commitment to Red China. It is believed in London that immediately after the change in the Russian High Command, Russia and China signed a new trade agreement. This provides for increased Russian help in building up one hundred and fifty-six major Chinese industrial enterprises. These include chemicals, metallurgical plants, plus increased Russian supplies of machine tools, tractors and petroleum products.

London sources believe that the formation of the new Chinese Army is not merely military. It is in part a political action. And, just as in the Soviet Union, the Chinese Army will be used for education and indoctrination in Communism, on a compulsory basis. It is presumed that when these indoctrinated soldiers go back to the farm, they will help to overcome the current bitter and widespread peasant opposition to collectivization and the purchase of grain at low prices by the state.

If this plan for a new Chinese Army goes through - and there's no reason to think it won't - then the army in China may come to play as important a role as the Russian Army appears now to be playing in the Soviet Union.

We are accustomed to think of armies as instruments of defense and offense, in the military sense. The Russians regard their army in part as an instrument for compulsory indoctrination, where both military and ~~XXXXXX~~ political discipline is hammered home. The Chinese apparently are going to build on the same pattern.

It would seem, if current intelligence ~~are~~ is correct, that the [redacted] Chinese Communist soldier will henceforth have a dual function: to influence not only by force but by words. Of course, this approach is nothing new. A long time ago, Napoleon Bonaparte remarked:"There are but two powers in the world - the sword and the mind. But in the long run the sword is always beaten by the mind."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

MONDAY, FEBRUARY 21, 1955
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

The House Ways and Means Committee today approved a 20-dollar income deduction for everyone after next January first. The vote was 15 to 10. And it came after the committee heard from Treasury Secretary Humphrey for two and a half hours. Later, Humphrey told reporters that the 20-dollar tax cut plan was "completely contrary to the public interest"...and "would play fast and loose with the welfare of 16 million Americans"...Nevertheless, the Committee voted to approve for each taxpayer and each of his dependents a $20 deduction of income earned after next January. At the same session, the committee approved the President's request to postpone for one year a three billion dollar cut in corporate income and excise taxes.

Republican Representative Reed of New York who lead an unsuccessful drive to cut income taxes two years ago, said today: the Ways and Means action "was an act of unpardonable irresponsibility"...designed to buy votes in the 1956 election. But Chairman Cooper of Tennessee said the program merely balances last year's tax bill which, he said, gave special relief to stockholders and corporations without giving tax relief "where it is needed the most."

The Senate today started debating a porposal to raise the pay of all members of Congress. Senator Kefauver said the increase to $22,500 a year is amply justified by increases in the cost of living since 1946 ..(when Congressional pay was last raised.) Republican Senator Bush of Connecticut urged his colleagues to apporve an increase for federal judges but to forget about members of Congress. He said there are plenty of applicants for jobs in Congress..and there's nothing to compel a man to run if he considers the pay inadequate. But Senator Purtell, the other Republican Senator from Connecticut, asked Bush whether he thought a man should have "inherited or acquired" wealth before seeking offic . Bush said: No..but Congressmen should give up large salaries out of their desire to serve the people.

The American Federation of Labor today criticized the President's school-aid program as:"half hearted and penny pinching...extremely involved..with all types of road blocks for anyone seeking federal assistance." But John Burkhart of the Indiana Chamber of Commerce said "prodigious efforts" are now being made across the country that are "successfully closing the gap" of the classroom shortage.

The President today outlined to Congressmen the highway program he'll send them tomorrow. Republican Senator Martin of Pennsylvania says there will be no major changes from the controversial Clay report. But Democratic Senator Chavez of New Mexico says the President's grogram is "so full of holes it might sink in Congress."

The Senate Internal Security Sub-committee today heard from Harvey Matusow who has identified himself as a former Communist, former F.B.I. informer and frequent liar. Among other things Matusow said today that he believes Elizabeth Bentley gave false testimony on Communist activities. He said he bases this on conversttions with her. He testified that he lied when he called Democratic Senator Jakkson of Washington State a "pro-Communist". Matusow says he lied when he called Democratic Senator Mansfield of Montana a "tool of the Communist party." He said he was paid 600-dollars for speeches against Jackson..and up to 1½ hundred for all his speeches against Mansfield. Matusow insisted he was telling the truth today. But Chairman Eastland said he believes Matusow is part of a shrewd plan to get some convicted Communists out of trouble. And Senator Watkins called Matusow "a perpetual and habitual liar."

The Justice Department says it has ordered a grand jury investigation of the testimony by Mrs. Marie Natvig before a Federal Communications Commission examiner in the case of Edward O. Lamb. Recently Mrs. Natvig repudiated testimony in which she linked Lamb to communism.

Admiral Carney, the Chief of Naval operations, said today that Russia's new big naval building program "is one of the most conclusive bits of evidence thay they are not contemplating a short war."

The Chinese Nationalists say their planes have "probably damaged" an "unfriendly submarine" northwest of Formosa. The Nationalists say that for a fourth day their planes attacked a Communist build-up area and shipping in the Taishan islands.

In Bangkok, where a three-day Southesst Asia Defense Treaty conference opens tomorrow, the Thai premier reported that Communist "free Thai" forces are massing close to Thailand's border. And the Chinese Communist radio says the meeting is an American plot to "get Asians to do the dying for United States aggression in Asia." Secretary of State Dulles, stopping in Manila, said the time is ripe for "plain speaking to prevent a reckless Communist miscalculationwhich could endanger the lives of many."

And in Paris, the strong French Socialist party today refused to support or join a government headed by Radical Socialist Edgar Faure. This means Faure cannot get the broad national coalition support he has sought. He says he'll decide by tomorrow whether to go ahead with his efforts to form a new cabinet.

The Paris treaties providing for the re-armament of West Germany go before the German Parliament for final decision on Thursday of this week. The French remain seized with a government crisis. But the Germans today appeared calm amd almost disinterested The day was "Rose Monday" in Germany; the climax of the carnival season, and the last official occasion for letting off steam before Lent. In the cities of the Rhineland and South Germany, the celebration was unrestrained. In Cologne more than a million people - many of them will-filled with anti-freeze - stood singing and swaying as they watched the carnival floats. Several of the displays poked fun at the idea of re-armament, but only in a mild fashion. One float had a giant, glowering Russian figure holding out a glass of champagne to a white-clad and reluctant Miss Germany; but in the other hand the Russian figure held a big sledgehammer behind his back. Another float showed Chancellor Adenauer in a boat labelled "Europe" trying to pull Miss France aboard. Dick Hottelet calbes me tonight that the German people appear much less agitated about the whole re-armament debate than to the political and editorial commentators. He thinks there is little reason to worry about popular passive resistance in Germany, once the treaties authorizing the new German Army have been ratified.

It is worhty of note that the Chinese Communist are in the process of creating a new army. According to their plans it will be one of the world's largest armies. Their new conscription law comes into effect in April. It is designed to raise a standing army of three million men. The present so-called People's Liberation Army of two-and-a-half million will be gradually de-mobilized, but it will be retained as a permanent reserve. According to the plan the new Chinese Army will be the biggest in the world; and it will also by China's first national military force. If that comes about it will also be China's first national military force. If that comes about it will end the old Chinese tradition of private armies run by war lords. The new Chinese army will be organized of Soviet lines -the officers corps will be given unprecedented status - there will be a formal system of rank - regular pay and awards for merit. For the first time the rank of Marshal will be used at the highest level; and sharing authority with the Military Commander in Chief of the General Political Department, or in Russian terms, the Chief Political Commissar. The present four field armies, which have been almost autonomous, will be abolished; and there will be created seventy-five new armies whose generals will get their orders direct from the Defense Council headed by Mao tse Tung. According to this plan the Chinese soldiers will, for the first time in recent generations, owe their loyalty directly to the state, rather than to separate field commanders or provincial commanders. It is presumed that this massive new Chinese army will recieve its heavy material from Russia. But rifles, machine guns and light ammunition will be made in China. It has recently been reported that military aircraft are now being produced in China.

These details of the new Chinese Army, recently recieved in London, tend to support the view that one cause, and perhaps a major one for the recent re-shuffle in the Kremlin was the result of Russia's commitment to Red China It is believed in London that immediately after the change in the Russian High Command, Russia and China signed a new trade agreement. This provides for increased Russian help in building up one hundred and fifty - six major Chinese industrial enterprises. These include chemicals, metallurgical plants, plus increased Russian supplies of machine tools, tractors and petroleum products.

London sources believe that the formation of the new Chinese Army is not merely military. It is in part a political action. And just as in the Soviet Union, the Chinese Army will be used for education and indoctrination in Communism, on a compulsory basis. It is presumed that when these indoctrinated soldiers go back to the farm, they will hel to overcome the current bitter and widespread peasant opposition to collectivization and the purchase of grain at low prices by the state.

If this plan for a new Chinese Army goes through - and there's no reason to think it won't - then the army in China may come to play as important a role as the Russian Army appears now to be playing in the Soviet Union.

We are accustomed to think of armies as instruments of defense and offense, in the military sense. The Russians regard their army in part as an instrument for compulsory indoctrination, where both military and political discipline is hammered home. The Chinese apparently are going to build on the same pattern.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a moment with the Word for Today. Now, here is Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: It would seem, if current intelligence is correct, that the Chinese Communist soldiers will henceforth have a dual function: to influence not only by force but by words. Of course, this approach is nothing new. A long time ago, Napoleon Bonaparte remarked: "There are but two powers in the world - the sword and the mind. But in the long run the sword is always beaten by the mind."

Good Night and Good Luck.

Tuesday, Feb. 22, 1955

This is the news:

The Atomic Energy Commission today exploded another nuclear device at Yucca Flats. The shot was the second in the latest series of tests. It was dropped from a 300 foot tower..jarred some cities 135 miles away. Senator Long, one of the observers, suggested today's device was a "small-sized nuclear weapon."

In Washington, the Administration proposed that Congress establish a special commission to worry about the increasing problems of civil defense in a Hydrogen age. Defense Mobilizer Fleming says the commission's first job should be to work out a method of dispersing our prime targets. ~~Fleming told a Senate committee that the theory of building new defense plants outside of a ten mile perimeter of industrial and population centers is now discarded. There must be a re-evaluation. Fleming also points out that it is now clear that through dispersal we can reduce the disastrous effects of blast and heat from an atomic bomb.~~

A Senate committee also heard ~~Dr. John C. Bugher~~ the , director of the Atomic Enery Commission's medical division, state that it is possible that one of the long term effects of nuclear radiation might be to shorten the life expectancy of man. This has been demonstrated in test animals. It has not yet been proven for humans.

The Russians said today that they have an edge over us in the production of atomic and hydrogen weapons. General Shatilov said over the Moscow radio that Russia's fighters now have "all the necessary means with which to insure the defenses of the motherland."

And General Zhukov, appearing on television in Moscow, said Russia's peaceful policy has found no "favorable echoes" in the West. He said his country is ready and able to reply to all attacks. And the recently named defense minister charged that American "aggressive circles" are carrying on "active preparation for war."

In London, Prime Minister Churchill rejected the IDEA of halting further atomic bomb tests while East-West disarmament talks are underway.

And the British navy issued a white paper SAYING that to meet the challenge of atomic and hydrogen weapons, the AIRCRAFT carrier will be the core of the modern fleet..with special emphasis on guided-missile ships.

The Chinese Nationalists reported today that they had damaged or destroyed more than ten Communist "warships" in attacks on a 200-vessel invasion fleet threatening Nanchi island. At one point the Nationalists indicated the Communists might be starting an invasion attempt. Later the vessels were identified as belonging to fishermen or ships on training manuvers. American experts in Washington say Nationalist reports of heavy destruction of enemy warships are exaggerated. ~~no American source has had any report on the two submarine reports released by the Nationalists.~~

In Washington today, the President asked Congress to approve a 101-billion-dollar ten-year highway program. He said we must have a network of roads to permit evacuation of target areas in the event of attack. The President also feels better highways will save lives, reduce accidents, cut the cost of operating automobiles and trucks, and help our growing economy. Mr. Eisenhower left it up to Congress to decide how to finance the big program. He said he's inclined to favor financing the federal government's proposed 31-billion dollar share with revenue from gas and disel oil taxes..and some highway tolls.

The White House indicates that the President may have something to say tomorrow..at his news conference.. on the House Ways and Means Committee approval of a 20-dollar-a-person income tax cut starting next January. Republican Representative Ahremds of Illinois who discussed the matter with the President today said "it smacks of politics 100 per cent."

Harvey Matusow told a Senate committee today that he's purged his soul and his conscience is clear. Matusow says he will fight any government perjury charges unless the government also prosecutes former-Communists Elizabeth Bentley...Louis Budenz..Paul Crouch and Manning Johnson. Matusow said again today that Elizabeth Bentley once told him she gave false testimony.. that she had to find information to testify about because she was [redacted] broke...that testifying was her only source of income. Matusow says that in substance Miss Bentley told him that she had lied. He also told the committee that he had lied about Senators Jackson and Mansfield in the 1952 campaign at the suggestion of Senator Mc Carthy. He said McCarthy's office gave him material to use. Mc Carthy denies this..says he will not answer a man who is a confessed liar.

A federal jury in Kansas City today found the Kansas City Star guilty on two counts of violating the anti-trust laws: attempting to AND ACTUALLY monopolize the dissemination of news and avertising in its area. [redacted]

Emil A. Sees, the Star's advertising director was convicted on a count charging the "attempt." Roy Roberts, president of the Star Company, says the verdict will be appealed to a higher court. ~~He says the case should not have gone to the jury, and the court made mistakes in admitting certain testimony and in its instructions to the jury.~~

~~The Navy reported today that the Coast Guard had reported sighting to unidentified submarines three to five miles off the coast of Nags Head, North Carolina. There are no other details.~~

~~And in Congress, both houses listened to a reading of Washington's Farwell Address of 1796.. a~~ [redacted] custom that dates ~~back to the~~ turn of the ~~century~~.

Edward R. Murrow; February 22, 1955. 7.45 p.m.

Before sending his special message to Congress today, the President talked over his highway program with Congressional leaders of both Parties. It was his first bi-partisan consultation on a domestic issue since he took office. The event was greeted approvingly by the Republican New York Herald Tribune in a lead editorial today under the caption: "Coalition Politics."

That name, Coalition Politics, describes something theoretically uncalled for in a two-party system. It is reserved exclusively for times of such grave national danger that party politics have to be suspended. But that is not why a coalition is emerging at this time. Party politics are not going underground for the sake of national unity; they are badly mixed up, but rivalry is high and is going higher.

Yesterday's meeting may or may not set a pattern. Mr. Eisenhower explained it on the ground that the highways are a national, not a party, concern. That is, he placed them alongside of foreign affairs as a national subject deserving bi-partisan consideration. But all major ~~XXXXXX~~ domestic issues before Congress could be called national in the same way. But whether or not he intends to do this, the President certainly served notice yesterday that without stronger support from his own party he could deal with other issues in the same way.

Of course, coalitions have dominated Congress on many occasions in the last forty years. Ever since Theodore Roosevelt took the Progressives out of the Republican Party in 1912, a coalition of Democrats and Liberal Republicans has been responsible for some of the basic changes in American legislation. The only other time, however, that the coalition became formal, except in foreign affairs, was during President Roosevelt's third and fourth terms, when he invited leading Republicans into his Cabinet. That was a time of undeniable national crisis, and not a time for free play of party rivalries. Now the coalition has been formalized again, and this is not a time of extreme national crisis. This time the President has openly acknowledged his desire for Democratic support for a feature in his domestic program.

Two other recent events in the Republican Party go to make up a pattern of what is likely to happen in National politics next year. One is the choice of a date late in August for a four-day Republican National Convention. This appears to mean that the National Committee is sure President Eisenhower will accept the nomination and will get it without contest.

The other happening is the warning given the Republican Committee by Senator Barry Goldwater of Arizona that the Party will have a hard time to regain control of the Senate next year. This points to the election of another Democratically controlled Congress in 1956, even if President Eisenhower should be re-elected. Senator Goldwater was reporting as Chairman of the Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee, with a candor that was most uncommon. He found that ten Republican seats are in what he termed "great danger", while only two Democratic seats are in the same peril. Now that Senator Morse wears the Democratic label, the present Senate is divided forty-nine Democrats to forty-seven Republicans. If the Goldwater analysis is right, the Republicans have to win all ten of their hardest fights, and the Democrats lose both of theirs, for the Republicans to win a tie in the Senate.

The analysis is made by charting the trends of Party voting strength in state legislative and congressional races since 1952, and applying them to states where Senators in 1950 got less than fifty-five percent of the vote. This calculation gives the Republicans safe seats in five out of seventeen states - Idaho, New Hampshire, North and South Dakota and Vermont. On the same basis, nine out of fifteen Democratic seats would be safe - Alabama, Arizona, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Nevada, North and South Carolina and Oregon. However, Senator Goldwater only gives up on six of these, saying that sufficient effort might capture Arizona, Nevada and Oregon.

The ten Republican seats in most danger are in Colorado, Connecticut, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Maryland and Wisconsin. Described as in danger, but less so, are California and Utah. But unless quite unexpected seats are captured, all twelve have to be won if the Republicans come up with a tie in the Senate, and in addition the Democrats would have to lose their two hardest contests, New York and Washington. Three other Democratic seats are stated to be in some danger, Kentucky, Oklahoma and Missouri. But the trend of voting for state representatives and congressmen since 1952, has been against the Republicans in these states.

So it may turn out that coalition politics are coming into American life in a way never before experienced. If President Eisenhower accepts another nomination and is elected - which is not very improbable, to say the least - and if the Democrats carry Congress, which also is not very improbable, either there will be coalition rule or there will be a stalemate. Mr. Eisenhower's invitation to the Democrats to take a bi-partisan look at his highway program may have shown that he is determined there will be no stalemate.

Will Rogers...as he was wont to do on occasion...once commented somewhat irreverently on the subject of George Washington. He said: "In Washington's day there was no income tax, no cover charge, no disarmament conferences, no luncheon clubs, no stop-lights, no static, no headwinds, no drinking problem, no margins, no ticket speculators, no golf pants, and no Scotch jokes. My Lord, living in those times, who wouldn't be great!"

Good Nite and Good Luck.

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 22, 1955
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

The Atomic Energy Commission today exploded another nuclear device at Yucca Flats. The shot was the second in the latest series of tests. It was dropped from a 300 foot tower..jarred some cities 135 miles away. Senator Long, one of the observers, suggested today's device was a "small sized nuclear weapon."

In Washington, the Administration proposed that Congress establish a special commission to worry about the increasing problems of civil defense in a Hydrogen Age. Defense Mobilizer Fleming says the commission's first job should be to work out a method of dispersing our prime targets.

A Senate committee also heard the director of the Atomic Energy Commission's medical division, state that it is possible that one of the long term effects of nuclear radiation might be to shorten the life expectancy of man. This has been demonstrated in test animals. It has not yet been proven for humans.

The Russians said today that they have an edge over us in the production of atomic and hydrogen weapons. General Shatilov said over the Moscow radio that Russia's fighters now have "all the necessary means with which to insure the defenses of the motherland."

And General Zhukov, appearing on television in Moscow, said Russia's peaceful policy has found "no favorable echoes" in the West. He said his country is ready and able to reply to all attacks. And the recently named defense minister charged that American "aggressive circles" are carrying out an "active preparation for war."

In London, Prime Minister Churchill rejected the idea of halting further atomic bomb tests while East-West disarmamant talks are underway.

And the British have issued a white paper saying that to meet the challenge of atomic and hydrogen weapons the aircraft carrier will be the core of the modern fleet...with special emphasis on guided missile ships.

The Chinese Nationalists reported today that they had damaged or destroyed more than ten Communist "warships" in attacks on a 200-vessell invasion fleet threatening Nanchi island. At one point the Nationalists indicated the Communists might be starting an invasion attempt. Later the vessels were identified as belonging to fishermen or ships on training maneuvers. American experts in Washington say Nationalist reports of heavy destruction of enemy warships are exaggerated.

In Washington today, the President asked Congress to approve a 101-billion dollar ten-year highway program. He said we must have a network of roads to permit evacuation of target areas in the event of attack. The President also feels better highways will save lives, reduce accidents, cut the cost of operating automobiles and tuucks, and help our growing economy. Mr. Eisenhower left it up to Congress to decide how to finance the big program. He said he's inclined to favor financing the federal government's proposed 31-billion dollar share with revenue from gas and disel oil taxes ..and some highway tolls.

The White House indicates that the President may have something to say tomorrow ..at his news conference...on the House Ways and Means Committee approval of a 20-dollar-a-person-income tax cut starting next January. Republican Representative Ahrends of Illinois who discussed the matter with the President today said "it smacks of politics 100 per cent."

Harvey Matusow told a Senate committee today that he's purged his soul and his conscience is clear. Matusow says he will fight any government perjury charges unless the government also prosecutes former-Communist Elizabeth

Bentley...Louis Budenz..Paul Crouch and Manning Johnson. Matusow said again today that Elizabeth Bentley once told him she gave false testimony..that she had to find information to testify about becuase she was broke...that testifying was her only source of income. Matusow says that in substance, Miss Bentley told him that she had lied. He also told the committee that he had lied about Senators Jackson and Mansfield in the 1952 campaign at the suggestion of Senator McCarthy. He said McCarthy's office gave him material to use. McCarthy denies this...says he will not answer a man who is a confessed liar.

A federal jury in Kansas City today found the Kansas City Star guilty on two counts of violating the anti-trust laws: attempting to and actually monopolizing the dissemination of news and advertising in its area...Emil A. Sees, the Star's advertising director was convicted on a count charging the "attempt." Roy Roberts, president of the Star Company, says the verdict will be appealed to a higher court.

Before sending his special message to Congress today, the President talked over his highway program with Congressional leaders of both parties. I was his first bi-partisan consultation on a domestic issue since he took office. The event was greeted approvingly by the Republican New York Herald Tribune. in a lead editorial today under the caption, "Coalition Politics."

That name, Coalition Politics, describes something theoretically uncalled for in a two-party system. It is reserved exclusively for times of such grave national danger that part politics have to be usspended. But that is not why a coalition is emerging at this time. Party politics are not going underground for the sake of national unity; they are badly mixed up, but rivalry is high and going higher.

Yesterday's meeting may or may not set a pattern. Mr. Eisenhower explained it on the ground that the highways are a national, not a party concern.

That is, he placed them alongside of foreign affairs as a national subject deserving by-partisan consideration. But all major domestic issues before Congress could be called national in the same way. But whether or not he intends to do this, the President certainly served notice yesterday that without stronger support from his own party he could deal with other issues in the same way.

Of course, coalitions have dominated Congress on many occasions in the last forty years. Ever since Theodore Roosevelt took the Progressive out of the Republican Party in 1912, a coalition of Democrats and Liberal Republicans has been responsible for some of the basic changes in American legislation. The only other time, however, that the coalition became formal, except in foreign affairs, was during President Roosevelt's third and fourth terms , when he invited leading Republicans into his Cabinet. That was a time of undeniable national crisis, and not a time for free play of party rivalries. Now the coalition has been formalized again, and this is not a time of extreme national crisis. This time the President has openly acknowledge his desire for Democratic support for a feature in his domestic program.

Two other recent events in the Republican Party go to make up a pattern of that is likely to happen in National politics next year. One is the choice of a date late in August for a four-day Republican National Convention. This appears to mean that the National Committee is sure President Eisenhower will accept the nomination and will get it without contest.

The other happening is the warning given the Republican Committee by Senator Barry Goldwater of Arizona that the Party will have a hard time to regain control of the Senate next year. This points to the election of another Democratically controlled Congress in 1956 even is President Eisenhower should be re-elected. Senator Goldwater was reporting as Chairman of the Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee, with a candor that was most uncommon. He found that ten Republican seats are in what he termed "great danger" , while only two Democratic seats are in the same peril. Now that Senator Morse wears the Democratic label, the present Senate is divided forty-nine Democrats to forty-seven Republicans. If the Goldwater analysis is right, the Republic- and have to win all ten of their hardest fights, and the Democrats lose both of theirs, for the Republicans to win a tie in the Senate.

The analysis is made by charting the trends of Party voting strength in state legislative and congressional races since 1952, and applying them to states where Senators in 1950 got less than fifty-five percent of the vote. This calculation gives the Republicans safe seats in five out of seventenn states - Idaho, New Hampshire, North and South Dakota and Vermont. On the same basis, nine out of fifteen Democratic seats would be safe - Alabama, Arizona, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Nevada, North and South Carolina and Oregon. However, Senator Goldwater only gives up on six of these, saying that sufficient effort might capture Arizona, Nevada and Oregon.

The ten Republican seats in most danger are in Colorado, Connecticut, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Maryland and Wisconsin. Described as in danger, but less so, are California and Utah. But unless quite unexpected seats are captured, all twelve have to be won, if the Republicans come up with a tie in the Senate, and in addition the Democrats would have to lose their two hardest contests, New York and Washington. Three other Democratic seats are stated to be in some danger, Kentucky, Oklahoma and Missouri. But the trend of voting for state representatives and congressmen since 1952, has been against the Republicans in these states.

So it may turn out that coalition politics are comin into American life in a way never before experienced. If President Eisenhower accepts another and is elected - which is not very improbable, to say the least - and if the Democrats carry Congress, which also is not very improbable, either there will be coalition rule or there will ae a stalemate. Mr. Eisenhower's invitation to the Democrats to take a bi-partisan look at his highway program may have shown that he is determined there will be no stalemate.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a moment with the Word for Today. Now, here is Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: Will Rogers..as he was wont to do on occasion..once commented somewhat irreverently on the subject of George Washington. He said: "In Washington's day there was no income tax, no cover charge, no disarmament conferences, no luncheon clubs, no stop-lights, no static, no headwinds, no drinking problem, no margins, no ticket speculators, no golf pants, and no Scotch jokes. My Lord, lining in those times, who wouldn't be great! "

Good Night and Good Luck.

Wednesday February 23, 1955

This is the news:

The President said today that a Democratic plan for a 20-dollar-a-person income tax cut next year is "the height of fiscal irresponsibility." [redacted] And House Speaker Rayburn [redacted], replying to the President, told reporters: The Republicans engineered a tax cut last year in the face of an anticipated [redacted] deficit almost twice as large as is now estimated. And Rayburn inquired sarcastically:"When they didn't give the little folks anything last year and gave the dividend folks theirs, that was responsibility?"

This conflict between President and Democrats..the warmest so far in this Congress..started at Mr. Eisenhower's news conference when he was asked about the tax proposal. The President was prepared for this. He said: Its supporters lack the courage to submit a seperate tax-cutting bill. (they've tacked the 20-dollar cut to another tax measure) Mr. Eisenhower said [redacted] another tax cut at this time would cut the value of the dollar..hurt our economy. He said:"We simply cannot have this kind of thing in [redacted] responsible government." The President said a tax cut should be possible next year..if the budget deficit is reduced.

To all of this Speaker Rayburn replied: "Its too bad when the people who have been passing all of the President's legislation for him get irressponsible..all of them at one time, and so fast." Rayburn went on: "I don't know how much he could have passed without Democratic votes. Certainly the Republicans would have mutilated his reciprocal trade program if he had to depend on the 'responsible' people in the Republican party." And Rayburn predicted the tax bill will pass the House.

At the White House news conference the President commented on a number of things: He sees no reason for any tremendous optomism with respect to world disarmament...He still believes the United Nations is worthy of our support. (Senator Knowland said yesterday the U.N. is not an effective means for achieving world peace or ending aggression.) The President also told the reporters: He HAS ordered a study of a plan to offer our surplus wheat to Russia but he's not to keen about it. #...We favor exploring every possible means that might lead to a cease-fire in Formosa strait...There is no basic disagreement inside the Administration on aid for Asia...There have been no recent developments of any great significance in our effort to get the release of American airmen held as prisoners in Communist China.And Mr. Eisenhower said it would be impossible for him to over-emphasize the importance of European unity. In a few minutes we plan to hear a DIRECT report from the commander of the North Atlantic Treaty forces..General Gruenther.

The French National Assembly today approved a new premier..Edgar Faure, the 46-year-old financial expert who held the job for six weeks in 1952. The vote ended a 19-day cabinet crisis.(since former Premier Mendez-France was turned out of office) Faure has announced the members of his cabinet. And although he is classed a little left of center, the cabinet has been labelled as one of the farthest to the right in the 21 government's the French have had since the end of World War Two.

In West Germany, Chancellor Adenauer today threatened to expel the Free Democrats from his four-party government..unless they support the Paris agreement to Europeanize the Saar. The Free Democrats, Number two party in West Germany, say Adenauer's threat can only lead to a "hardening of their oppostition" to the Saar agreement.

Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons today that inasmuch as there's no question about Great Britain getting militarily involved in the defense of China's off-shore islands, it would not be right to press the United States in insisting that the Nationalists surrender these islands to the Communists. Sir Winston said: "We should be careful of what advice we should offer our friends and allies." Apparently trying to smoothe British-American differences on this issue, Sir Winston spoke sharply to Laborites who have been clamoring for the surrender of the islands to the Communists.

Today, Chinese Nationalist planes bombed Communist-held islands north and south of the Nationalist garrison on Nanchi. And official Nationalist quarters have stopped saying that all the off-shore islands will be defended against Communist invasion. Correspondents on Formosa say that signs are multiplying that Nanchi..140 miles northwest of Formosa..may have to be abandoned. If so, its expected to be conducted entirely by the Nationalists.

General Alfred Gruenther, the supreme commander of the North Atlantic Treaty organization forces, is now home from Western Europe for a short visit. In the past few days he's spoke to joint sessions of both the North and South Dakota state legislatures. ~~Tonight he is in Omaha, Nebraska.~~

Tonight he is in our newsroom at station KFAB, in Omaha, Nebraska.

General [redacted] Gruenther..tell us a little bit more about NATO:

(runs 5 mins return cue:

Well, Ed, I hoped that filled the bill and has given you a little more about our progress."

Thatnk you, General [redacted] Gruenther.. and a good trip back ~~to Washington [illegible]~~ to your headquarters outside of Paris.

The Senate today voted for a 75-hundred dollar a year pay increase for all members of Congress and for raises of from 75-hundred to nine-thousand-dollars a year for about 400 federal judges. The vote was 62 to 24. The bill now must go to a conference with House members who approved an increase of 10-thousand dollars. All Senators and representatives are now paid 15-thousand a year.

Democratic Senator Eastland said today that the firm that has agreed to publish Harvey Matusow's book is "a propaganda agency for far left causes." Eastland described one of the publishers, Albert E. Kahn, as a "fifth amendment case".. who refused to answer questions about possible Communist affiliation.

And Elizabeth Bentley, today denied Matusow's charge that she told him she had lied in testimony about Communist espionage. Miss Bentley told reporters:"I have never given false testimony and never intend to." She says there's not a word of truth in Matusow's statement.

The relief agency, CARE, announced today that it is halting its shipping service to eight west European nations..because they are now able to stand on their own feet. The agency says 85 per cent of the shipments to these eight countries are luxury ~~item~~ packages..instead of actual relief items. The eight countries are: Great Britain..France.. Belgium...Austria...Norway...Luxembourg..the Netherlands and West Germany.

The success of General Grunther's efforts toward securing the peace in Europe, is a tribute in no small measure to his own patience, understanding and perserverance. Words written by General Schofield back in 1887, and frequently repeated by President Eisenhower, would seem appropriate: "He who feels the respect which is due to others, can not fail to inspire in them regard for himself." This surely applies to General Grunther.

Good Nite and Good Luck!

CBS RADIO DIVISION

EDWARD R. MURROW

Wednesday, February 23, 1955
7:45-8:00 p.m.

MURROW: ..... General Alfred Gruenther, the Supreme Commander of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization Forces, is now home from western Europe for a short visit. In the past few days he's spoken to joint sessions of both the North and South Dakota Legislatures. Tonight, he is in our News Room at Station KFAB, in Omaha, Nebraska.

General Gruenther, tell us a little bit more about NATO.

GRUENTHER: Good evening, Ed! I realize that our attention is focused on the Far East now, and properly so. Nevertheless, I feel that it is also important to continue to keep in mind our important European problem. You know, it's four years since General Eisenhower arrived in Paris to organize the defenses of Europe. Thanks to the impetus given by General Eisenhower, and also by General Ridgway, who followed him as the Supreme Commander, we at SHAPE have made great progress. Our forces would give a good account of themselves if an act of aggression took place now anywhere on our four-thousand-mile front. However, because of the limited strength available to us, it is not now possible to defend far enough to the east in central Europe. This is an unsatisfactory strategy. We must have depth in our position in order to fight off modern jet aircraft and to counter the striking power of mechanized armies. The more we studied this problem at SHAPE the more we became convinced of the difficulties of defending Europe without German participation. When the Paris accords are ratified, and I am confident they will be ratified, we shall have a German contribution of eighteen to twenty tactical airwings, twelve army divisions, and a naval element. When those forces become effective it will be possible to defend much farther to the east than we can now.

Now, the question is sometimes asked -- what good are twelve German divisions in an atomic era? The answer is this, that twelve German divisions, along with the German air and naval contribution, make the difference between a second-choice strategy and a much more desirable forward strategy. This is true not in spite of the atomic age but because of it. We must have a sufficient shield of allied ground and air forces to prevent the enemy from advancing in widely dispersed formation. That shield must be strong ehough to force an attacking enemy to concentrate in his effort to break through. Those concentrations would be extremely vulnerable to attacks by our new weapons. For this reason we are devoting our main attention at SHAPE to the development of a defense plan which we will use when the German forces are ready. The German units will then be an integral part of the allied shield, side by side with their NATO partners. When we have this essential addition to our shield, and with the capability of all weapons in our NATO arsenal, we will then be able to plan realistically on a forward strategy which will defend Western Germany.

Now, the prospect of a rearmed Germany is a matter of concern to some nations of western Europe who have suffered much from the misuse of German power. That anxiety is quite understandable. The plans for the rearmament of Western Germany are also causing much anxiety in the minds of many Germans. This very attitude on their part is evidence of the determination of the people of WesternGermany to avoid the errors of the past. They have a stake in the continued freedom of the west and the right and the responsibility to aid in its defense. Although we face many difficulties we often forget that the other fellow is having his troubles, too. Some of those troubles were revealed to the world in the speeches before the Supreme Soviet two weeks ago. On balance, Ed, I believe that the tide is now running in our direction. It is crystal-clear to me that we can, and shall, prevent a third World War from taking place if we remain dedicated to the unity of our cause. Collective security must be our answer. If there had been in effect in 1939 an organization such as NATO there would have been no second World War. The active participation of the United States is a vital factor in insuring the success of NATO. Although it still has many imperfections, it is improving constantly. It would be a tragedy if we should weary and falter now, but I am sure we will not make that mistake. We shall succeed if the four hundred million people of NATO continue to exercise the perseverance and wisdom which is so essential for an alliance of this character. We must also continue our other programs directed towards bolstering the strength of the free world.

One of these is the Crusade for Freedom. I think the best evidence of the success of this program is to be found in the efforts of the countries behind the Iron Curtain have been taking to jamming its broadcasts. I feel that the Crusade for Freedom is entitled to the wholehearted support of the American people.

Well, Ed, please come and see us soon. Meanwhile, Ed, I hope that fills the bill in giving you a little bit more about our program.

MURROW: Thank you, General Gruenther!

Ed.trans.-A.A.Cardiff (30)

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 23, 1955
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

The President said today that a Democratic plan for a 20-dollar-a-person income tax cut next year is "the height of fiscal irresponsibility." And House Speaker Rayburn, replying to the President, told reporters: the Republicans engineered a tax cut last year in the face of an anticipated deficit almost twice as large as is now estimated. And Rayburn inquired sarcastically:"When they didn't have the little folks anything last year and gave the dividend folks theirs, that was responsibility?"

This conflict between President and Democrats...the warmest so far in this congress..started at Mr. Eisenhower's news conference when he was asked about the tax proposal. The President was prepared for this. He said: It's supporters lack the courage to submit a separate tax-cutting bill..they've tacked the 20-dollar cut to another tax measure. Mr. Eisenhower said another tax cut at this time would cut the value of the dollar..hurt our economy. He said :"We simply cannot have this kind of thing in responsible government." The President said a tax cut should be possible next year..if the budget deficit is reduced.

To all of this Speaker Rayburn replied: "Its too bad when the people who have been passing all of the President's legislation for him get irresponsible..all of them at one time, and so fast." Rayburn went on: "I don't know how much he could have passed without Democratic votes. Certainly the Republicans would have mutilated his reciprocal trade program if he had to depend on the 'responsible' people in the Republican party." And Rayburn predicted the tax bill will pass the House.

At the White House news conference the President commented on a number of things: He sees no reason for any tremendous optimism with respect to world disarmament...He still believes the United Nations is worthy of our support. (Senator Knowland said yesterday the U.N. is not an effective means for achieving world peace or ending aggression. The President also told the reporters: He has ordered a study of a plan to offer our surplus wheat to Russia but he's not keen about it.

We favor exploring every possible means that might lead to a cease-fire in Formosa strait..There is no basic disagreement inside the Administration on aid for Asia. There have been no recent developments of any great significance in our effort to get the release of American airmen held as prisoners in Communist China. And Mr. Eisenhower said it would be impossible for him to over-emphasize the importance of European unity. In a few minutes we plan to hear a direct report from the commander of the North Atlantic Treaty forces ...General Gruenther.

The French National Assembly today approved a new premier..Edgar Faure, the 46-year-old financial expert who held the job for six weeks in 1952. The vote ended a 19-day cabinet crisis..since former Premier Mendez-France was turned out of office. Faure has announced the members of his cabinet. And Although he is classed a little left of center, the cabinet has been labelled as one of the farthest to the right in the 21 governments the French have had since the end of World War Two.

In West Germany, Chancellor Adenauer today threatened to expel the Free Democrats from his four-party government..unless they support the Paris Agreement to Europeanize the Saar. The Free Democrats, Number two party in West German, say Adenauer's threat can only lead to a "hardening of their oppsition" to the Saar agreement.

Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons today that inasmuch as there's no question about Great Britain getting militarily involved in the defense of China's off-short islands it would not be right to press the United States in insisting that the Nationalists surrender these islands to the Communist . Sir Winston said:"We should be careful of what advice we should offer our friends and allies." Apparently trying to smooth British-American differences on this issue, Sir Winston spoke sharply to Laborites who have been clamoring for the surrender of the islands to the Communists.

Today, Chinese Nationalist planes bombed Communist-held islands north and south of the Nationalist garrison on Nanchi. And official Nationalist quarters have stopped saying that all the off-shore islands will be defended against Communist invasion. Correspondents on Formosa say that signs are multiplying Nanchi ..140 miles northwest of Formosa..may have to be abandoned If so, its expected to be conducted entirely by the Nationalists.

General Alfred Gruenther, the supreme commander of the North Atlantic Treaty organization forces, is now home from Western Europe for a short visit. In the past few days he's spoken to joint sessions of both the North and South Dakota state legislatures.

Tonight he is in our newsroom at station KFAB, in Omaha, Nebrasks. General Gruenther, tell us a little bit more about NATO.

GRUENTHER: Good evening, Ed! I realize that our attention is focused on the Far East now, and properly so. Nevertheless, I feel that it is also important to continue to keep in mind our important European problem. You know, it's four years since General Eisenhower arrived in Paris to organize the defense of Europe. Thanks to the impetus given by General Eisenhower and also by General Ridgway, who followed him as the Supreme Commander, we at SHAPE have made great progress. Our forces would give a good account of themselves if an act of aggression took place now anywhere on our four-thousand-mile front. However, because of the limited strength available to us, it is not now possible to defend far enough to the east in central Europe. This is an unsatisfactory strategy. We must have depth in our position in order to fight off modern jet aircraft and to counter the striking power of mechanized armies. The more we studied this problem at SHAPE the more we became convinced of the difficulties of defending Europe without German participation When the Paris accords are ratified, and I am confident they weill be ratified, we shall have a German contribution of eighteen to twenty tactical airwings, twelve army divisions, and a naval element. When those forces become effective it will be possible to defend much further to the east than we can now.

Now, the question is sometimes asked -- what good are twelve German divisions in an atomic era? The answer is this, that twelve German divisions, along with the German air and naval contribution, make the difference between a second-choice strategy and a much more desireable forward strategy. That is true not in spite of the atomic age but because of it. We must have a sufficient shield of allied ground and air forces to prevent the enemy from advancing in widely dispersed formation That shield must be strong enough to force an attacking enemy to concentrate in his effort to break through. Those concentrations would be extermely vulnerable to attacks by our new weapons. For this reason we are devoting our main attention at SHAPE to the development of a defense plan which we will use when the German forces are ready. The German units will then be an integral part of the allied shield, side by side with their NATO partners, When we have this essential additional to our shield, and with the capability of all weapons in our NATO arsenal, we will then be able to plan realistically on a forward strategy which will defend Western Germany.

Now, the prospect of a rearmed Germany is a matter of concern to some nations of western Eruope who have suffered much from the misuse of German power. That anxiety is quite understandable. The plans for the rearmament of Western Germany are also causing much anxiety in the minds of many Germans. This very attitude on their part is evidence of the determination of the people of Western Germany to avoid the errors of the past. They have a stake in the continued freedom of the west and the right and responsibility to aid in its defense. Although we face many difficulties we often forget that the other fellow is having his troubles, too. Some of those troubles were revealed to the world in the speeches before the Supremem Soviet two weeks ago. On balance, Ed, I believe that the tide is now running in our direction. It is crystal -clear to me that we can, and shall, prevent a third World War from taking place if we remain dedicated to the unity of our cause. Collective security must be our answer. If there had been in effect in 1939 an organization such as NATO there would have been no second World War. The active participation of the United States is a vital factor in insuring the success of NATO. Although it still has many imperfections, it is improving constantly. It would be a tragedy if we should weary and falter now, but I am sure we will not make that mistake. We shall succeed if the four hundred million people of NATO continue to exercise the perseverance and wisdom which is so essential for an alliance of this character. We must also continue our other programs directed towards bolstering the strenght of the free world.

One of these is the Crusade for Freedom. I think the best evidence of the success of this program is to be found in the efforts of the countries behind the Iron Curtain have been taking to jamming its broadcasts. I feel that the Crusade for Freedom is entitled to the whole hearted support of the American people.

Well, Ed, please come and see us soon. Meanwhile, Ed, I hope that fills the bill in giving you a little bit more about our program.

MURROW: Thank you, General Gruenther...and a good trip back to your head quarters outside of Paris.

The Senate today voted for a 75-hundred dollar a year pay increase for all members of Congress and for raises of from 75-hundred to nine-thousand dollars-a-year for about 400 federal judges. The vote was 62 to 24. The bill now must go to a conference with House members who approved an increase of 10 thou and dollars. All Senators and representatives are now paid 15-thousand a year.

Democratic Senator Eastland said today that the firm that has agreed to publish Harvey Matusow's book is " a propaganda agency for far left causes" Eastland described one of the publishers, Albert E. Kahn, as a "fifth amendmend case"..who refused to answer questions about possible Communist affiliation.

And Elizabeth Bentley, today denied Matusow's charge that she told him she had lied in testimony about Communist espionage. Miss Bentley told reporters: "I have never given false testimony and never intend to." She says there's not a word of truth in Matusow's statement.

The relief agency, CARE, announced today that it is halting its shipping service to eight wes European nations...because they are able to stand on their own feet The agency says 85 per ent of the shipments to these eight countries are luxury packages ..instead of actual relief items. The eight countries are:Great Britain...France..Belguim...Austria...Luxumbourg...the Netherlands and West Germany.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a moment with the Word for Today. Now, here in Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: The success of General Gruenther's efforts toward securing the peace in Europe is a tribute in no small measure to his own patience, understanding and perseverance. Words written by General Schofield back in 1887 and frequently repeated by President Eisenhower, would seem appropriate: "He who feels the respect which is due to others, can not fail to inspire in them regard for himself." This surely applies to General Greuenther.

Good Night and Good Luck.

Thursday, Feb. 24, 1955

This is the news:

Seven House Democrats..all from Virginia..decided today to vote with the Republicans against a Democratic plan for a $20 tax cut next year for everyone. The President has called the proposal the height of fiscal irresponsibility. And as the House put off a vote until tomorrow, the Republicans caucused and then announced that all but two or three of their members will vote against the plan. One prominent House Democrat is no longer sure of its passage. Other experts say the vote may be decided by a slim margin. Today, Assistant Republican Leader Halleck of Indiana said the Democrats are guilty of "a blackjacking operation." Democratic Leader Mc Cormack [redacted] said that while the Republicans now accuse the Democrats of trying to cut taxes in the face of an estimated deficit for the year of two point four billion dollars..the Republicans [redacted] pushed through tax cuts last year when the deficit was estimated at five billion.

Senate and House conferees agreed today to raise the salary of all Senators and Representatives by $7,500 a year. [redacted] [redacted]. In addition each member of Congress will get a $1250 tax-free office expense allowance. Congressional pay now is $15,000 a year... that's 12-thousand in salary and 25-hundred in a taxable expense account.

The Senate Post Office Committee today approved a 10 per cent pay increase for an estimated 480-thousand postal workers. The Democratic-sponsored bill was adopted after the committee turned down [redacted] an Administration bill calling for small increases.

The Associated Press reports that a recommendation that federal money for school construction "is not necessary" has reportedly been approved by the United States Commissioner for Education..Dr. Samuel Brownell. Its now under study by a presidential commission. The report says that there is no state which cannot afford to make more money available for its schools...no state that is economically unable to support an adequate school system. This report, prepared by a group under the President's Commission on Inter-Governmental Relations, also recommends that the government get out of the school lunch program.. withdraw most of its contributions to the vocational education program and not give aid to community libraries.

The President told a Masonic breakfast in Washington today that Americans must accept the duties of individual citizenship to prove that the Communists are "liars" in arguing that our free enterprise system won't work.

The United States Court of Appeals in Washington today knocked out a Federal Communications Commission ruling limiting the number of television stations that may be owned by the same interests. The F.C.C. rule limits ownership to five normal T.V. stations PLUS two ultra-high frequency stations. The Court ruled unanimously that anyone who now owns SUCH stations cannot be denied a hearing on additional applications. The court said that it is conceivable that in some circumstances "common ownership of a greater number of stations might be compatible with the public interest." Another F.C.C. rule limits radio station onwrehsip, under one interest, to seven standard frequency stations and seven in frequency modulation.

The C.I.O. executive Board today approved the A.F. of L.*C.I.O. merger. The Transport Workers Union was the only dissenter.

A State Department spokesman says the Chinese Nationalists alone must decide whether to evacuate the island of Nanchi. Today the Nationalists reported that their planes had again attacked Communist islands north and south of Nanchi. (All civilians have been taken off that island.) And reporters on Formosa suggest the 5-thousand man garrison will be withdrawn soon.

In Bangkok, the Southeast Asia Defense Conference has set up a military committee to work on measures designed to combat Communist aggression. Secretary of State Dulles has assured the conference of support by what he called the most powerful American striking force in history.

The British Labor Party today challenged the Churchill government's new atomic age military program. The Laborites say the government has EARMARKED too much money for conventional weapon. The Air Ministry says that the Royal Air Force, with the American air force, will provide the main detterrent to aggression.

In West Germany today, Socialists attacked the plan to re-arm West Germany inside the Bundestag. And outside communist demonstrators threatened riots against re-arming. Government sources say they're sure of a safe majority for re-armament by Saturday.

Edward R. Murrow: February 24, 1955. 7.45 p.m.

The new Faure government was installed today in Paris, with the presentation of the cabinet to President Coty and the OFFICIAL transfer of power from former Premier Mendes-France. It can't be called a brand-new government, since it contains three former premiers. But it is by no means shop-worn, and it is awakening unexpected hopes of lasting a while. Some optimists believe it might even last till the elections in June of next year.

Faure himself is one of the former premiers. The other two are Antoine Pinay, now Foreign Minister, and Robert Schumann -(they call him Father Europe)- who is Minister of Justice. My colleague Dave Schoenbrun, in a cable from Paris, points out that all three of these former premiers were originally sponsors of the European Defense Community and an integrated Europe. As it happened, two of them, Faure and Pinay, were to leave the E.D.C. in the lurch. Though Faure, when the treaties were signed, made an impassioned appeal for them in the Assembly, he went over to the Mendes-France solution of arming Germany through NATO. Pinay, whose government signed the E.D.C. treaties and was pledged to ratify them, connived in shelving them without a vote and so helped to kill them. Later he even voted against arming Germany through NATO. Now it comes under the heading of historic justice that Pinay should be Foreign Minister under Faure, and that this government is pledged to ratify the arming of the German Republic.

Faure, Pinay and Schumann - particularly Pinay and Schumann - are beyond question advocates of the Western Alliance at all costs. Faure yesterday promised the speediest ratification of the Paris accords, and he also promised not to ask the Allies to consult on East-West negotiations until after the ratification. This clearly is the continuation of the Mendes-France foreign policy. If anything, it is without any suspicion as to motives, which were questioned in the case of Mendes-France by some diplomatic observers.

The promise to ratify first before talks with the Soviet Union is not to be considered as compromised by the appointment of Gaston Palewski to a newly created cabinet post, as Minister Delegate to the Premier. Palewski, close to De Gaulle, is a leading neutralist. He has insisted on talks with Russia before ratification. But Mr. Schoenbrun has been told on the highest authority that Palewski was given an unspecified assignment in the Premier's office to keep him quiet. In other words, the neutralist is being neutralized. Mr. Schoenbrun emphasizes that without question this is not a neutralist cabinet.

Premier Faure borrowed the device of Mendes-France in offering the Assembly a contract. He undertook four accomplishments in return for fifteen months in office, that is till the general election. He promised to raise the production index, boost the standard of living, raise farm incomes - all by specified percentages - and to balance France's foreign payments "without recourse to foreign aid of a non-economic nature."

This last point seems to mean that France doesn't want any more military help from the United States. That would be politically popular in France, but it leaves some questions unanswered. Does Faure want economic help, and if so, what can he expect? He can hardly anticipate anything more than world bank or export-import loans for short terms at fixed interest. It can be doubted that in seeming to renounce military help he is ready to forego offshore procurement and the so-called end-items. For these have brought a lot of dollars into France. Indeed, they helped Faure, as Mendes-France's finance minister, to build up strong dollar and gold reserves. The chances are that he wants still more of this kind of help.

His government can be called the best that could be hoped for, and really better than was feared when Mendes-France fell. A do-nothing cabinet would have been logical under the circumstances. Faure won't do too much. It isn't in the arithmetic of his coalition that he should, and if he tried to be too dramatic, or to be influencing the coming elections, he would be thrown out. But he seems safe till November, and by then elections will be so close that the Assembly may keep him in till the following June - that is, if he hasn't been too obstreperous. But he promises steady progress, and being a resourceful maneuverer and an agile politician, he might stay the full fifteen months, which would be longer than any premier since the war.

Faure rates as one of the most brilliant men in France. He had his law degree at 19, and at 21 was elected Secretary General of the Paris Bar conference. At 37 he was deputy French prosecutor at the Nuremberg trials, and at 43 he was the youngest premier of the French Republic, tying the youth record of the Third Republic held by Gambetta. He is a language student and is the first French premier to be able to speak fluent Russian.

He is also a mystery-story writer. The title of his last book was "Mr. Langlois Is Not Always Up To Himself." The obvious question is being asked in Paris if Mr. Faure is going to be "up to himself." If he is, maybe he can avoid the pitfalls of a French Assembly that has shown limitless powers to wreck the most promising performances.

There would seem to be little question that the new Premier of France has a formidable task ahead. But there is much in what Helena Kuo once said. "The greatness of man, she contended, does not lie in his being faultless. Error is sometimes inevitable. Real virtue lies in recognizing that faults can be set right and in striving to correct them. From the willingness to make such an effort, there must emerge a new and better individual."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 24, 1955
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

Seven House Democrats...all from Virginia..decided today to vote with the Republicans against a Democratic plan for a $20 tax cut next year for everyone. The President has called the proposal the height of fiscal irresponsibility. And as the House put off a vote until tomorrow, the Republicans caucused and then announced that all but two or three of their members will vote against the plan. One prominent House Democrat is no longer sure of its passage. Other experts say the vote may be decided by a slim margin. Today, Assistant Republican Leader Halleck of Indiana said the Democrats are guilty of "a blackjacking operation."

Democratic Leader McCormack said that while the Republicans now accuse the Democrats of trying to cut taxes in the face of an estimated deficit for the next year of two point four billion dollars...the Republicans pushed through tax cuts last year when the deficit was estimated at five billion.

Senate and House conferes agreed today to raise the salary of all Senators and Representatives by $7500 a year. In addition each member of Congress will get a $1250 tax-free office expense allowance. Congressional pay now is $15,000 a year...that's 12-thousand in salary and 25-hundred in a taxable account.

The Senate Post Office Committee today approved a 10 per cent pay increase for an estimated 480 thousand postal workers. The Democratic-sponsored bill was adopted after the committee turned down an Administration bill calling for small increases.

The Associated Press reports that a recommendation that federal money for school construction "is not necessary" has reportedly been approved by the United States Commissioner oor Education..Dr. Samuel Brownell. Its now under study by a presidential commission. The report says that there is no state which cannot afford to make more money available for its schools..no state that is economically unable to support an adequate school system. This report, prepared by a group under the President's Commission on Inter-Governmental Relations, also recommends that the government get out of the school lunch program..withdraw most of its contributions to the vocational education program and not give aid to community libraries

The President told a Masonic breakfast in Washington today that Americans must accept the duties of individual citizenship to prove that the Communists are "liars" arguing that our free enterprise system won't work.

The United States Court of Appeals in Washington today knocked out a Federal Communications Commission ruling limiting the number of television stations that may be owned by the same interests. The F.C.C. rule limits ownership to five normal T.V. stations plus two ultra-high frequency stations. The Court ruled unanimously that anyone who now owns such stations cannot be denied a hearing on additional applications. The court said that it is conceivable that in some circumstances "common ownership of a greater number of stations might be compatible with the public interest." Another F.C.C. rule limits radio station ownership, under one interest, to seven standard frequency stations and seven in frequency modulation.

The C.I.O. executive Board today approved the A.F. of L--C.I.O. merger. The Transport Workers Union was the only dissenter.

A State Department spokesman says the Chinese Nationalists alone must decide whether to evacuate the island of Nanchi. Today the Nationalists reported that their planes had again attacked Communist islands north and south of Nanchi. All civilians have been taken off that island. And reporters on Formosa suggest the 5-thousand man garrison will be withdrawn soon.

In Bangkok, the Southeast Asia Defense Conference has set up a military committee to work on measures designed to combat Communist aggression. Secretary of State Dulles has assured the conference of support by what he called the most powerful American striking force in history.

The British Labor Party challenged the Churchill government's new atomic age military program. The Laborites say the government has earmarked too much money for conventional weapons. The Air Ministry says that the Royal Air Force, with the American Air Force, will provide the main deterrent to aggression.

In West Germany today, Socialists attacked the plan to re-arm Germany inside the Bundestag. And outside Communist demonstrators threatened riots against re-arming. Government sources say they're sure of a safe majority for re-armament by Saturday.

The new Faure government was installed today in Paris, with the presentation of the cabinet to President Coty and the official transfer of power from former Premier Mendes-France. It can't be called a brand-new government, since it contains three former premiers. But it is by no means shopworn, and it is awakening unexpected hopes of lasting a while. Some optimists believe it might even last till the elections in June of next year.

Faure himself is one of the former premiers. The other too are Antoine Pinay, now Foreign Minister, and Robert Schumann - (they call him Father Europe) --who is Minister of Justice. My colleague Dave Schoenbrun, in a cable from Paris, points out that all three of these former premiers were originally sponsors of the European Defense Community and an integrated Europe. As it happened, two of them, Faure and Pinay, were to leave the E.C.C. in the lurch. Though Faure, when the treaties were signed, made an impassioned appeal for them in the Assembly, he went over to the Mendes-France solution of arming Germany through NATO. Pinay, whose government signed the E.D.C. treaties and was pledged to ratify them, convived in shelving them without a vote and so helped to kill them. Later he even voted against arming Germany through NATO. Now it comes under the heading of historic justice that Pinay should be Foreign Minister under Faure, and that this government is pledged to ratify the arming of the German Republic.

Faure, Pinay and Schumann - particularly Pinay and Schumann - are beyond question advocates of the Western Alliance at all costs. Faure yesterday promised the speediest ratification of the Paris accords, and he also promised not to ask the Allies to consult on East-West negotiations until after the ratification. This clearly is the continuation of the Mendes-France foreign policy. If anything, it is without any suspicion as to motives, which were questioned in the case of Mendes-France by some diplomatic observers.

The promise to ratify first before talks with the Soviet Union is not to be considered as compromised by the appointment of Gaston Palewski to a newly created cabinet post, as minister Delegate to the Premier. Palewski, close to De Gaulle, is a leading neautralist. He has insisted on talks with Russia before ratification. But Schoenbrun has been told on the highest authority that Palewski was given an unspecified assignment in the Premier's office to keep him quiet. In other words, the neautralist is being neautralized. Mr. Schoenbrun emphasizes that without question this is not a neautralist cabinet.

Premier Faure borrowed the device of Mendes France in offering the Assembly a contract. He undertook four accomplishments in return for 15 months office, that is till the general election. He promised to raise the production index, boost the standard of living, raise farm incomes - all by specified percentages - and to balance France's foreign payments "without recourse to foreign aid of a non-economic nature."

This last point seems to mean that France doesn't want any more military help from the United States. That would be politically popular in France but it leaves some questions unanswered. Does Faure want economic help, and if so, what can he expect? He can hardly anticipate anything more than world bank or export-import loans for short terms at fixed interest. It can be doubted that in seeming to renounce military help he is ready to forgoe offshore procurement and the so-called end-items. For these have brought a lot of dollars to France. Indeed, they helped Faure, as Mendes-France's finance minister, to build up strong dollar and gold reserves. The chances are that he wants still more of this kind of help.

His government can be called the best that could be hoped for, and really better than was feared when Mendes-France fell. A do-nothing cabinet would have been the logical under the circumstances. Faure won't do too much. It isn't in the arithmatic of his coalition that he should, and if he tried to be too dramatic, or to be influencing the coming elections, he would be thrown out. But he seems safe till November, and by then elections will be so close that the Assembly may keep him in till the following June - that is, if he hasn't been to obstreperous. But he promises steady progress, and being a resourceful mancuverer and an agile politician, he might stay the full fifteen months, which would be longer than any other premier since the war.

Faure rates as one of the most brilliant men in France. He had his law degree at 19, and at 21 was elected Secretary General of the Paris Bar conference. At 37 he was deputy French prosecutor at the Nuremberg trials, and at 43 he was the youngest premier of the French Republic, tying the youth record of the Third Republic held by Gambetta. He is a language student and is the first French premier to be able to speak fluent Russian.

He is also a mystery-story writer. The title of his last book was "Mr. Langlois Is Not Always Up To Himself". The obvious question is being asked in Paris if Mr. Faure is going to be "up to himself". If he is, maybe he can avoid the pitfalls of a French Assembl that has shown limitless powers to wreck the most promising performances.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a minute with the Word For Today. Now, here is Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: There would seem to be little question that the new Premier of France has a formidable task ahead. But there is much in what Helena Kuo once said. "The greatness of man," she contended, "does not lie in his being faultless. Error is sometimes inevitable. Real virtue lies in recognizing that faults can be set right and in striving to correct them. From the willingness to make such an effort, there must emerge a new and better individual."

Good Night and Good Luck.

Friday, February 25, 1955

This is the news:

The House today defied the President and approved a bill to cut income taxes by $20 a person next year. In the crucial vote..on a Republican move to knock this provision ~~mm~~ out of an amendment to the tax laws..the ~~[illegible]~~ Democrats won by five votes. Then there was wild applause and back-slapping from the Democrats as the House went on to approve the whole measure by 67 votes. The bill also approves the President's request to continue for another year the present corporation income TAX and excise taxe rates. ~~About five [illegible] people with small incomes of large families would be relieved of any federal income tax payments next year.~~ The bill now goes to the Senate where several powerful Democrats are opposed to it. Republican Leader Knowland predicts its defeat.

Before the final House vote today, Speaker Rayburn warned the Republicans that they will "live to regret the day", they charged the Democrats with acting irresponsibly. Rayburn said some of the charges greived him greatly. He said:"I heard the word 'blackjack' used..the phrase 'shoddy deal'..I've heard 'irresponsibility'..and I have heard 'buying votes' charged. And you who have made those charges will live to regret it."

The House today approved a bill to raise the salary of all members of Congress by 75-hundred dollars, plus a twelve hundred and fifty dollar tax-free expense allowance and six round trips home each year. But in the Senate there was a surprising defeat for the bill..by an overwhelming voice vote. Democratic Senator Barkley, making his first speech since his return to the Senate, told his colleagues: Congress ought to fix its salary at any figure IT wants to..and not disguise part OF THE RAISE AS expenses. Barkley said he'd rather vote for a 24-thousand dollar a year salary, than for the compromise bill approved by members of the House and Senate. Republican Leader Knowland and many other Republicans joined in the attack on the tax-free expense allowance. The bill will now go back to a House-Senate committee.

The government reported today that the cost of living is remaining steady. The index did not change from December to January. And the Acting Commissioner of Labor Statistics says: the figures do not reflect the fact that quality is improving in many items. This means the consumer is getting more value for his money.

Federal Judge John H[redacted] Marshal told a Senate committee today that if he is confirmed as a supreme court justice he will quit the Atlantic Union movement and a pro-United Nations group to which he now belongs. Judge Harlan testified after George Racey Jordan told the committee that to put Harlan on the Supreme Court "may supply the judge necessary to abolish the United States by Judicial decision." Jordan said he represented the "American Coalition." He described it as a group of patriotic, civic and [redacted] societies devoted to keeping American american. Judge Harlan told the committee that he was a member of the Advisory Council of Atlantic union..had joined at the invitation of former Supreme Court Justice [redacted] Roberts..but attended no meetings and had forgotten his membership. [redacted] said he feels no member of the court has any business belonging to political organizations, whether their aim is good, bad or indifferent.

Democratic Senator Symington said today that the Russians may be ahead of us in the development of guided missiles. He added: "We better get going."

And Dr. Edward Teller, who is credited with leading the development of the hydrogen bomb, writes in the magazine Science that the H-bomb is not the ultimate. He doesn't know where the next steps will lead. "It is not likely that it will be just bigger bombs again." Dr. Teller said: "The world is full of surprises and great developments rarely go in straight lines."

The Chinese Nationalists today abandoned Nanchi island... removing all their troops. There was no interference from the Communists in the operation conducted completely by the Nationalists. Reports from Taipeh say the troops from Nanchi have been transferred to the Matsu islands. The Nationalists indicate they believe they'll get help from the United States if the Communists attack the Matsus or Quemoy.

And in New Delhi, India's Prime Minister Nehru called upon the Nationalists to abandon Quemoy and the Matsus. He said this is a first step toward any Formosan settlement. He said this is "generally recognized by the countries of the west."

In London today, British Minister of State Anthony Nutting told a United Nations dis-armament meeting:"All mankind will agree that there is no hope of attaining real and lasting peace without real all-around disarmament. In this modern scientific age, none of us must spare one ounce of effort in the fulfillment of this trust."

And in West Germany, a second party in Chancellor Adenauer's 4-PARTY coalition government announced it will vote against the controversial agreement with France on the Saar. Adenauer has warned that defeat of this agreement may wreck the whole plan for a western defense alliance.

Edward R. Murrow: February 25, 1955. 7.45 p.m.

The first meeting of the [redacted] Southeast Asia Treaty Organization has ended. It set up a Secretariat to be stationed at Bangkok, named a military staff group that starts to work at once, and appointed a committee of eight ambassadors to deal with the problems of the alliance. It also issued a communique resounding with familiar words about peace and strength.

But it gives a measure of the speed of events to realize that much of the time during the Bangkok conference was not devoted to SEATO at all, but to two ~~new~~ other Asian problems. One of these is the Formosa crisis, the other the forthcoming Afro-Asian conference to be held in Indonesia in April.

The original meeting of the so-called Manila powers had been called as the result of the armistice in Indochina and the partition of Vietnam. It looked at first as though the eight powers would set up an Asian counterpart of NATO, the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, with its merged armies under a supreme commander. Its purpose was to provide organized power to prevent extension of Communist domination in Southeast Asia. The Communists had taken over Vietminh at the conference table. That put them in the strategic position to absorb Cambodia and Laos and infiltrate Vietnam. The fall of the dominoes might bring down Thailand, then Malaya, and if the sweep went this far, Burma, Indonesia and even Japan.

The single motive of the Manila organization was to draw a line in Southeast Asia, through Indochina in particular, and notify the Communists that they would cross it, by aggression or subversion, at their peril. Now the SEATO states have met for the first time since ratification. But SEATO has not become an Asian NATO. It is not to have its own striking force, or even a unified command. This is not because the dangers in Indochina have subsided. If anything they are more acute. They continue to call for alertness and the capacity to act promptly with adequate force. They also call for the enlistment of large-scale economic aid, so as to bring internal stability to a very shaky region. But the ministers at Bangkok have had to be modest. Both the Marshall Plan for Asia and the NATO-type military set-up have had to be modified. Second thoughts brought the realization that the alliance is not extensive enough for a formidable military structure. And a study of economic problems showed they could not be solved in a hurry simply by assigning huge sums that can't be assimilated quickly.

We don't know in detail what private talks were held in the course of the Bangkok meeting. But it may not be far wrong to say there was more talk about Formosa than Indochina, and almost as much about the Afro-Asian conference. Formosa was discussed at a long dinner meeting by Sir Anthony Eden and John Foster Dulles last night, and unquestionably by the other six representatives at one time or another. This is because the Formosa crisis is bringing war nearer than anything happening in Indochina.

What Mr. Dulles and Sir Anthony said to each other has not leaked out. They were not far apart to begin with, as to the right to defend Formosa, since the British agree with us in regarding the sovereign title to that island as being in abeyance. They are further apart on the defense of Quemoy and Matsu, since the British recognize Red China and recognize these islands as belonging to Red China. But they both want a cease-fire, formal or de-facto. A rift between them was pre-supposed by some when the conference met. But it is convincingly denied by those who know most about the Anglo-American talks so far. There are differences, but they may not loom so large as a result of the heart-to-heart talks.

The interest at Bangkok in the coming Afro-Asian conference resulted in an official greeting to it being drafted. This can be applauded as an example of both self-restraint and unusually happy diplomacy. When the Afro-Asian conference was first improvised, it was to be a kind of answer to the Manila Treaty Organization. It isn't really all anti-Western and it is ~~by no means~~ not entirely pro-Communist. What it is trying to register is the existence in a vast part of the world of people who don't want to be drawn into war as the result of the power conflict. In drawing together for the first time in history, most of the nations of Asia and Africa, the meeting is bound to reflect their one common enthusiasm - and it is an historic enthusiasm - over the end of subservience to white masters. Since Communist China is invited, the conference looks like becoming a gigantic loud speaker for familiar slogans of anti-imperialism.

But if the United States and Britain disliked the conference when it was first mentioned, they have chosen to trust the dictum of Solomon that the "soft answer turneth away wrath". Instead of showing a fist to the Afro-Asians, they have stretched out an open hand. They may gain little, but they will not lose anything they would not lose anyway. Not all the Afro-Asian states are neutralist, since Pakistan is one of the Colombo powers that called the conference. Turkey, the Philippines, Japan, and several lesser states friendly to the West will be there. Only two states will be Communist, Red China and Vietminh. Now if the Bandoeng conference is swept into making bitter anti-Western attacks it will be Asia and Africa, not the West and its friends who are rejecting the proffered hand.

In the long search for peace, no amount of political conferences can bring about this goal unless those involved are prepared to give as well as take. Somerset Maugham put it well when he said:"It is curious that our own offenses should seem so much less heinous than than the offenses of others. I suppose the reason is that we know all the circumstances that have occasioned them and so manage to excuse in ourselves what we can not excuse in others."

Good Nite and Good Luck!

¶ The first meeting of the Council of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization has ended. It set up a secretariat to be stationed at Bangkok, named a military staff group that starts to work at once, and appointed a committee of eight ambassadors to deal with the problems of the alliance. It also issued a communique resounding with familiar words about peace and strength.

¶ But it gives a measure of the speed of events to realise that much of the time ~~at~~ during the Bangkok conference was not devoted to SEATO at all, but to two new Asian problems. One of these is the Formosa crisis, the other the forthcoming Afro-Asian conference to be held in Indonesia in April.

¶ The original meeting of the socalled Manila powers had been called as the result of the armistice in Indochina ~~and~~, and the partition of Vietnam. It looked at first as though the eight powers would set up an Asian counterpart of ~~the~~ NATO, the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, with its merged ~~troops~~ armies under a supreme commander. Its prupose was to provide organized power to prevent extension of Communist domination in Southeast Asia. The Communists had taken over Vietminh at the conference table. That put them in the strategic position to absorb Cambodia and Laos and infiltrate Vietnam. The fall of the dominoes might bring down Thailand, then Malaya, and if the sweep went this far, Burma, Indonesia and even Japan.

¶ The single motive of the Manila organization was to draw a line in Southeast Asia, through Indochina in particular, and notify the Communists that they would cross it, by aggression or subversion, at their peril. Now the SEATO states have met for the first time since ratification. But SEATO has not become an Asian NATO. It is not to have its own striking force, or even a unified command. This is not because the dangers in Indochina have subsided. If anything they are more acute. They continue to call for alertness and and the capacity to act promptly with adequate forces. They also call for the enlistment of large-scale economic aid, so as to bring internal stability to a very chaky region. But the ministers at Bangkok have had to be modest. Both the Marshall Plan for Asia and the NATO-type military set up have had to be modified. Second thoughts brought the realization that the alliance is not extensive enough for a formidable military structure. And a study of economic problems showed they could not be solved in a hurry simply by assigning huge sums that can't be assimilated quickly.

¶ We don't know in detail what private talks were held in the course of the Bangkok meeting. But it may not be far wrong to say there was more talk about Formosa than Indochina, and almost as much about the Afro-Asian conference. Formosa was discussed at a long dinner meeting by Sir Anthony Eden and John Foster Dulles last night, and unquestionably by the other six ~~powers~~ representatives at one time or another. This is because ~~Formosa~~ the Formosa crisis ~~has brought~~ is bringing war nearer than anything happening in Indochina.

¶ What ~~Mr.~~Dulles and Sir Anthony said to each other has not leaked out. They were not far apart to begin with, as to the right to defend Formosa, since the British agree with us in ~~thinking~~ regarding the sovereign title to that island as being in abeyance. They are farther apart on the defense of Quemoy and Matsu, since the British ~~have~~ recognized Red China and recognize these islands as belonging to Red China. But they both want a cease fire, formal or defacto. A rift between them was presupposed by some when the conference met, ~~according to some reports~~. But it is convincingly denied by those who know most about the Anglo-American talks so far. There are differences, but they may not loom large as a result of the heart-to-heart talks.

¶ The interest at Bangkok in the coming Afro-Asian conference resulted in an official greeting to it being drafted. This ~~might~~ can be applauded as an example of better self-restraint and unusually happy diplomacy. When the Afro-Asian conference was first improvised, it was to be a kind of answer to the Manila treaty organisation. It isn't really all anti-Western and it is by no means pro-Communist. ~~But~~ What it is trying to register the existence in a vast part of the world ~~the existence~~ of people who don't want to be drawn into war as the result of the power conflict. In drawing together for the first time in history most of the nations of Asia and Africa, it is bound to reflect their one common ~~interest~~ enthusiasm—and it is a historic ~~interest~~ enthusiasm — over the end of ~~the~~ subservience to white masters. ~~and~~ Since Communist China is invited, the conference looks like ~~providing~~ becoming a gigantic loud speaker for familiar slogans of anti-imperialism.

¶ But if the United States and Britain disliked the conference when it was first mentioned, they have chosen ~~to~~ to trust the dictum of Solomon that the soft word "turneth away anger". Instead of showing a fist to the Afro-Asians, they have stretched out ~~the~~ an open hand. They may gain little, but they will not lose anything they would not lose anyway. Not all the Afro-Asian states are neutralist, since Pakistan is one of the Colombo powers that called the conference. Turkey, the Philippines and Japan, and other lesser states friendly to the West will be there. Only two states will be Communist, Red China and Vietminh. Now if the Bandoeng conference is swept into making bitter anti-Western attacks it will be Asia and Africa, not the West, and its friends who are rejecting the proffered hand.

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 25, 1955
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

The House today defied the President and approved a bill to cut income taxes by $20 a person next year. In the crucial vote..on a Republican move to knock this provision out of an amendment to the tax laws..the Democrats won by five votes. Then there was wild applause and back-slapping from the Democrats as the House went on to approve the whole measure by 67 votes. The bill also approves the President's request to continue for another year the present corporation income tax and excise tax rates. The bill now goes to the Senate where several powerful Democrats are opposed to it. Republican Leader Knowland predicts its defeat.

Before the final House vote today, Speaker Rayburn warned the Republicans that they will "live to regret the day" they charged the Democrats with acting irresponsibly. Rayburn said some of the charges grieved him greatly. He said: "I heard the word'blackjack'used..the phrase 'shoddy deal'..I've heard 'irresponsibility' ...and I have heard 'buying votes' charged. And you who have made those charges will live to regret it."

The House today approved a bill to raise the salary of all members of Congress by 75-hundred dollars plus a twelve hundred and fifty dollar tax-free expense allowance and six round trips home each year. But in the Senate there was a surprising defeat for the bill..by an overwhelming voice vote. Democratic Senator Barkley, making his first speech since his return to the Senate, told his colleagues: Congress ought to fix its salary an any figure it wants to..and not disguise part of the raise as expenses. Barkley said he'd rather vote for a 24-thousand dollar a year salary than for the compromise bill approved by members of the House and Senate. Republican Leader Knowland and many other Republicans joined in the attack on the tax-free expense allowance. The bill will now go back to the House-Senate committee.

The government reported today that the cost of living is remaining steady. The index did not change from December to January. And the Acting Commissioner of Labor Statistics says: the figures do not reflect the fact that quality is improving in many items. This means the consumer is getting more value for his money.

Federal Judge John Marshall Harlan told a Senate committee today that if he is confirmed as a Surpreme court justice he will quit the Atlantic Union movement and a pro-United Nations group to which he now belongs. Judge Harlan testified after George Racey Jordan told the committee that to put Harlan on the Supreme Court "may supply the judge necessary to abolish the United States by Judicial decision." Jordan said he represented the "American coalition". He described it as a group of patriotic, civic and fraternal societies, devoted to keeping America American. Judge Harlan told the committee that he was a member of the Advisory Council of Atlantic Union...had joined at the invitation of former Supreme Court Justice Roberts...but attended no meetings and had forgotten his membership. Judge Harlan said he feels no member of the court has any business belonging to politican organizations, whether their aim is good, bad or indifferent.

Democratic Senator Symington said today that the Russians may be ahead of us in the developement of guided missiles. He adeed:"We better get going."

The Chinese Nationalists today abandoned Nanchi island removing all their troops. There was no interference from the Communists in the operation conducted completely by the Nationalists. Reports from Taipeh say the troops from Nanchi have been transferred to the Matsu islands. The Nationalists indicate they believe they'll get help from the United States if the Communists attack the Matsus or Quemoy.

And in New Delhi, India's Prime Minister Nehru called upon the Nationalists to abandon Quemoy and the Matsus. He said this is a first step toward any Formosan settlement. He said this is "generaly recognized by the countries of the west."

In London today, British Minister of State Anthony Nutting told a United Nations dis-armament meeting:"All mankind will agree that there is no hope of attaining real and lasting peace without real all-around disarmement. In this modern scienticic age, none of us must spare one ounce of effort in the fulfillment of this trust."

And in West Germany, a second party in Chancellor Adenauer's 4-Party Coalition Government announced it will vote against the controversial agreement with France an the Saar. Adenauer has warned that defeat of this agreement may wreck the whole plan for a western defense alliance.

The first meeting of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization has ended. It set up a Secreatriat to be stationed at Bangkok, named a military staff group that starts to work at once, and appointed a committee of eight ambassadors to deal with the problems of the alliance. It also issues a communique resounding with familiar words about peace and strength.

But it gives a measure of speed of events to realize that much of the time during the Bankok conference was not devoted to SEATO at all, but to two other Asian problems. One of these is the Formosa crisis, the other the forthcoming Afro-Asian conference to be held in Indonesia in April.

The original meeting of the so-called Manila powers had been called as the result of the armistice in Indochina and the partition of Vietnam. It looked at first as though the eight powers would set up an Asian counterpart of NATO, the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, with its merged armies under a supreme commander. Its purpose was to provide organized power to prevent extension of Communist domination in Southeast Asia. The Communists had taken over Vietminh at the conference table. That put them in the strategic position to absorb Cambodia and Laos and infiltrate Vietnam. The fall of the dominoes might bring down Thailand, then Malaya, and if the sweep went this far, Burma, Indonesia, and even Japan.

The single motive of the Manila organiaztion was to draw a line in Southeast Asia, through Indochina in particular, and notify the Communists that they would crossit, by aggression or subversion, at their peril. Now the SEATO states have met for a first time since ratification. But SEATO has not become an Asian NATO. It is not to have its own striking force, or even a unified command. This is not because the dangers in Indochian have subsided. If anything they are more acute. They continue to call for alertness and the capacity to act promptly with adequate force. They also call for the enlistment of large-scale economic aid, so as to bring internal stability to a very shaky region. But the ministers at Bangkok have had to be modest. Both the Marshall Plan for Asia and the NATO-type military set-up have had to be modified. Second thoughts brought the realization that the alliance is not extensive enough for a formidalbe military structure. And a study of economic problems showed they could not be solved in a hurry simply be assigning huge sums that can't be assimilated quickly.

We don't know in detail what private talks were held in the course of the Bangkok meeting. But it may not be far wrong to say there was more talk about Formosa than Indochina, and almost as much about the Afro-Asian conference. Formosa was discussed at a long dinner meeting by Sir Anthony Eden and John Foster Dulles last night, and unquestionably by the other six representatives at one time or another. This is because the Formosa crisis is bringing war than anything happening in Indochina.

What Mr. Dulles and Sir Anthony said to each other has not leaked out. They were not far apart to begin with, as to the fight to defend Formosa, since the British agree with us in regarding the soverign title to that island as being in abeyance. They are further apart on the defense of Quemoy and Matsu, since the British recognize Red China and recognize these islands as belonging to Red China. But they both want a cease-fire, formal or de-facto. A A rift between them was pre-supposed by some when the conference met. But it is convincingly denied by those who know most about the Anglo-American talks so far. There are differences, but they may not loom so large as a result of the heart-to-heart talks.

The interest at Bankok in the coming Afro-Asian conference resulted in an official greeting to it being drafted. This can be applauded as an example of both self-restraint and unusually happy diplomacy. When the Afro-Asian conference was first improvised, it was to be a kind of answer to the Manila Treaty Organization. It isn't really all anti-Western and it is not entirely pro-Communist. What is is trying to register is the esixtence in a vast part of the world of people who don't want to be drawn into war as the result of the prior conflict. In drawing together for the first time in history, most of the nations of Asia and Africa, the meeting is bound to reflect their one common enthusiasm - and is is an historic enthusiasm - over the end of subservience to white masters. Since Communist China is invited, the conference looks like becoming a gigantic loud speaker for familiar slogans of anti-imperialism.

But if the United States and Britain disliked the conference when it was first mentioned, they have chosed to trust the dictum of Solomon that the "soft answer turneth away wrath." Instead of showing a fist to the Afro-Asians, they have stretched out an open hand. They may gain little, but they will not lose anyway. Not all the Afro-Asian states are neaturalist, since Pakistan is one of the Colombo powers that called the conference. Turkey, the Phillippines, Japan, and several lesser states friendly to the West will be there. Only two states will be Communist Red China and Vietminh. Now if the Bandoeng conference is swept into making bitter anti-Western attacks it will be Asia and Africa, not the west and its friends who are rejecting the proffered hand.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a moment with the Word for Today. Now, here is Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: In the long search for peace, no amount of political conferences can bring about this goal unless those involved are prepared to give as well as take. Somerset Maugham put it well when he said:"It is curious that our own offenses should seem so much less heinous than the offenses of others. I suppose the reason is that we know all the circumstances that have occasioned them and so manage to excuse in ourselves what we can not excuse in others."

Godd Night and Good Luck!

Monday, February 28, 1955

This is the news:

Generalissimo Chiank Kai Shek has called his ruling Nationalist Party to a war conference tomorrow. Nationalist newspapers on Formosa say the conference will "map out a new platform in this great hour of crisis." #

Secretary of State Dulles, on his way home from Thailand, suddenly decided today to visit Formosa on Thursday. He'll be joined there by Admiral Carney, our chief of naval operations, and our top fleet commanders in the area.

Mr. Dulles flew into Saigon today after visits to neighboring Laos and Camobodia. He's confering with Vietnamese officials and American and French advisers on how to help Communist-threatened south Viet Nam.

Burma's premier U Nu, revealed today that on Saturday, ~~afternoon~~ in Rangoon, he had informed Secretary Dulles that the Chinese Communists are ready to receive an "unofficial" American mission to talk over tension between the two countries. U Nu says the idea would be to talk about the American flyers imprisoned in China and other tensions. Mr. Dulles had no comment on this in Rangoon. And the State Department had no comment in Washington today. But in the absence of any guidance from Mr. Dulles our officials are ~~amonm~~ avoiding any final rejection of the plan.

In Tokyo today, Prime Minister Ichiro Hatoyama, whose conservative party won Japan's national election yesterday, explained to reporters that this proves the Japanese people agree with his policy toward the Soviet Union and Red China. Hatoyama campaigned for friendship with both the Communists and the West. He said to refuse friendship to the Soviet bloc "would only add stimulus to a third World War."

The West German Bundestag has now approved the rearmament ~~tam~~ treaties despite a split in the government over the Saar. But this, too, was approved. And West Germany's Upper House is expected to approve all the treaties within three weeks.

In Washington, two powerful Democratic Senators, Byrd of Virginia and George of Georgia, have now made known their opposition to the House-approved bill calling for a 20-dollar tax cut for everyone. I'd like to discuss the tax bill debate in a few minutes.

The nation's mayors today went on record in favor of the President's highway program.. calling it "the best method" to build up a road network fit for the atomic age. But Democratic Senator Gore of Tennessee, author of a rival bill, calls the President's program a rush program that might set off a new inflationary spiral.

The President told the Inter-American Investment conference meeting in New Orleans that the main ingredients for good relations among western hemisphere nations are "North American faith in Latin America and Latin American faith in North America." In a filmed message to the conference the President called it a valuable contribution to our hemispheric concept of the Good Partner.

And the President tonight appealed for public support of the 1956 Red Cross Drive for 85-million dollars and 30-million members. He said he believes the sights set by the Red Cross are far too low. He hopes that by the end of March every American will be his fellow-member in the Red Cross.

The Supreme Court today turned down again an appeal by 13 second-string Communists for a review of their case. The Court made no comment on the Communist's plea that Harvey Matusow has now sworn that his testimony against them was either "false or not entirely true."

Today, Matusow accused congressional investigators of "forcing" him to become "a lying stool pigeon" by "creating an atmospehere of fear and hysteria about Communism." Matusow told a Senate committee that he is telling the truth now. He acknowledged that he gave false information to the F.B.I. and congressional committess in the past. Republican Senator Welker of Idaho called the witness "an admitted liar..and lying stool pigeon." Matusow charged that "when the F.B.I. bases its reports on irresponsible people like me and Paul Crouch and Louis Budenz, I'm serving the country to expose it."

The Hoover Commission today proposed that the government revise and curtail its medical program, particularly those for ex-servicemen. The Commission says it has found a great deal of waste in the government's obligation to give full or part medical care to 30-million persons. The Commission would close some veterans hospitals.. restrict new hospital care for veterans with aimlents not due to military service..and adjust payments to veterans disabled in the service. Seaborn P. Collins, national commander of the American Legion, says the Legion is "shocked and disappointed by these proposals to place government services to disabled veterans on a purely dollars-and-cents basis."

Senate and House conferees today agreed on a flat 50 per cent Pay increase by 75-hundred dollars a year. They eliminated the extra twelve hundred and fifty dollar expense account.

The Federal Trade Commission today barred "restrictive contracts" on the New York coffee and sugar exchange for trading in future deliveries of coffee. EXPERTS say this means that about 70 per cent of imports will now be traded on the open market. [This should remove coffee prices from radical fluctuations.]

James B. Arnold, of Chicago's Institute of Nuclear Studies, said today that probably nothing more will be learned about the effect of the Hydrogen bomb for some years. He says that for the first time its is now possible to plan defenses against Hydrogen-bomb attack.

Edward R. Murrow: February 28, 1955. 7.45 p.m.

Politics has been described as the art of the possible. It is in theory possible for one Party to take credit for a tax cut the year before a presidential election. It is also possible for the other Party to take credit for a tax cut the year of the election. Generally speaking, the second alternative is preferable because the voters' memories are short, and they are inclined to ask of the Party in power: "What have you done for us recently?" It would seem that this situation, in part at least, gave rise to the current controversy agitating both Houses - the proposal for a twenty-dollar across-the-board income tax cut. This has been passed by the House - denounced by the President - and is now being argued by the Senate Finance Committee.

The Democrats claim this is overdue tax relief for the little fellow. Treasury Secretary Humphrey said today, it might cause inflation which would hurt the little fellow most. He said: "Let us always remember, it is not the rich who need protection from inflation; it is the little folks who suffer the most when inflation takes hold." A mighty regard for the welfare of the "little fellow" invariably siezes both political parties in the year preceding a national election. Secretary Humphrey said this Administration advocates further tax cuts, but only at such times as we can see them justified by further cuts in spending, and increased revenues - to vote the twenty-dollar tax cut now, before we can afford it next year, is in his opinion "nothing but an irresponsible gesture."

Some Democrats contend that the President promised a tax cut next year - he didn't, he merely said he hoped for one. (And how long has it been since any President failed to hope for a tax cut.) Naturally the Republicans would rather announce a tax cut next year, than have it forced on them by the Democrats. The Democrats contend that the big fellows got some tax relief last year, and now it's time that a "twenty-dollar gesture" be made to those in the lower income brackets. This is politics, and it is as traditional as kissing babies or boasting that the candidate has some sentimental or family relationship, however remote, in the state or city in which he is speaking.

There may be those on both sides of this argument who support or oppose the twenty-dollar tax cut, for what they believe to be sound fiscal or national reasons. But the figure that looms largest, the one that must be dominant in a politician's mind, is not twenty dollars but 1956. The problem is as old as Party elections - to act in the Party's self-interest and simultaneously find a moral or financial reason for doing so.

It would be difficult for even the casual student of history to be surprised at the action of either the Democrats or Republicans. If their power positions were reversed, their policies might also be reversed. Probably the Democrats don't figure that they'll buy many votes in '56 with a twenty-dollar bill now; nor are the Republicans figuring that they'll buy very many with a similar tax cut in '56. But neither side can afford to let the other take the credit.

As of tonight, ten would probably get you twenty that this tax reduction will not go through as passed by the House; for Senator George, Democrat of Georgia, has joined Senator Byrd of Virginia, Chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, in opposing it. He says he will vote to strike out the twenty-dollar provision. If a deadlock later develops between the House and Senate he may have some compromise suggestions to make. But Senator George has no compromise to offer now. One compromise that has been discussed in Washington is that the tax cut should not take effect until July 1st, 1956; and that corporation and excise taxes would be extended until that date. Republican Senator Carlson of Kansas says this plan is "even more political than the original reduction voted by the House." Treasury Secretary Humphrey says this is merely a scheme for holding out tax relief with the idea it might be repealed. And then Mr. Humphrey uttered a sentence with which all but the most fearless prophet would agree. He said: "Neither you nor I know what the picture is going to be like sixteen months from now."

If the picture alters drastically in that period, it is likely to be the result of external affairs. There is widespread agreement, or rather bi-partisan support for our foreign policy, and very little disposition to play domestic politics with that. The basic question that confronts us is not a tax reduction of twenty dollars a head, but whether we shall keep our heads.

The problem of (high taxes) is nothing new. Yet it still presents as great a problem to those in politics, as it does to those who have to pay. As far back as 20 years ago, Will Rogers was moved to make this somewhat facetous observation: "When taxes first started, he said, Noah must have taken into the Ark two taxes: one male and one female - and did they multiply bountifully. Next to guinea pigs, taxes must have been the most prolific animal!"

Good Nite and Good Luck!

EDWARD R. MURROW WITH THE NEWS
C.B.S. RADIO NETWORK

MONDAY, FEBRUARY 28, 1955
7:45--8:00 P.M., E.S.T.

This is the news:

Generalissimo Chiang Kai Shek has called his ruling Nationalist Party to a war conference tomorrow. Nationalist newspapers on Formosa say the conference will "map out a new platform in this great hour of crisis." Secretary of State Dulles, on his way home from Thailand, suddenly decided today to visit Formosa on Thursday. He'll be joined there by Admiral Carney, our chief of naval operations, and our top fleet commanders in the area.

Mr. Dulles flew into Saigon today after visits to neighboring Laos and Cambodia. He's conferring with Vietnamese officials and American and French advisers on how to help Communist-threatened south Viet Nam.

Burma's premier U Nu, revealed today that on Saturday, in Rangoon, he had informed Secretary Dulles that the Chinese Communists are ready to receive an "unofficial" American mission to talk over tensions between the two countries. U Nu says the idea would be to talk about the American flyers imprisoned in China and other tensions. Mr. Dulles had no comment on this in Rangoon. And the State Department had no comment in Washington today. But in the absence of any guidance from Mr. Dulles our officials are avoiding any final rejection of the plan.

In Tokyo today, Prime Minister Ichiro Hatoyama, whose conservative party won Japan's national election yesterday, explained to reporters that this proves the Japanese people agree with his policy toward the Soviet Union and Red China. Hatoyama campaigned for friendship with both the Communists and the West. He said to refuse friendship to the Soviet bloc "would only add stimulus to a third World War."

The West German Bundestag has now approved the rearmament treaties despite a split in the government over the Saar. But this, too, was approved. And West Germany's Upper House is expected to approve all the treaties within three weeks.

In Washington, two powerful Democratic Senators, Byrd of Virginia and George of Georgia, have now made known their opposition to the House-approved bill calling for a 20-dollar tax cut for everyone. I'd like to discuss the tax bill debate in a few minutes.

The nation's mayors today went on record in favor of the President's highway program...calling it "the best method" to build up a road network fit for ate atomic age. But Democratic Senator Gore of Tennessee, author of a rival bill, calls the President's program a rush program that might set off a new inflationary spiral.

The President told the Inter-American Investment conference meeting in New Orleans that the main ingredients for good relations among western hemisphere nations are "North American faith in Latin America and Latin American faith in North America." In a filmed message to the conference the President called it a valuable contribution to our hemispheric concept of the Good Partner.

And the President tonight appealed for public support of the 1956 Red Cross Drive for 85-million dollars and 30-million members. He said he believes the sights set by the Red Cross are far too low. He hopes that by the end of March every American will be his fellow-member in the Red Cross.

The Supreme Court today turned down again an appeal by 13 second-string Communists for a review of their case. The Court made no comment on the Communist plea that Harvey Matusow has now sworn that this testimony against them was either "false or not entirely true."

Today Matusow accused congressional investigators of "forcing" him to become "a lying stool pigeon" by "creating an atmosphere of fear and hysteria about Communism." Matusow told a Senate committee that he is telling the truth now. He acknowledged that he gave false information to the F.B.I. and congressional committees in the past. Republican Senator Welker of Idaho called the witness "an admitted liar...and lying stool pigeon." Matusow charged that "when the F.B.I. bases its reports on irresponsible people like me and Paul Crouch and Louis Budenz, I'm serving the country to expose it."

The Hoover Commission today proposed that the government revise and curtail its medical program, particularly those for ex-servicemen. The Commission says it has found a great deal of waste in the government's obligation to give full or part medical care to 30-million persons. The Commission would close some veterans hospitals..restrict new hospital care for veterans with ailments not due to military service..and adjust payments to veterans disabled in the service. Seaborn P. Collins, national commander of the American Legion, says the Legion is "shocked and disappointed by these proposals to place government services to disabled veterans on a purely dollars-and-cents basis."

Senate and House conferees today agreed on a flat 50 per cent pay increase by 75-hundred dollars a year. They eliminated the extra twelve hundred and fifty dollar expense account.

The Federal Trade Commission today barred "restrictive contracts" on the New York coffee and sugar exchange for trading in future deliveries of coffee. Experts say this means that about 70 per cent of imports will now be traded on the open market. This should remove coffee prices from radical fluctuations.

Mr. James B. Arnold, of Chicago's Institute of Nuclear Studies, said today that probably nothing more will be learned about the effect of the Hydrogen bomb for some years. He says that for the first time, it is now possible to plan defenses against a Hydrogen-bomb attack.

Politics has been described as the art of the possible. It is in theory possible for one Party to take credit for a tax cut the year before a presidential election. It is also possible for the other Party to take credit for a tax cut theyear of the election. Generally speaking, the second alternative id preferable because the voters' memories are short, and they are inclined toask of the Party in power:"What have you done for us recently?" It would seem that this situation, in part at least, gave rise to the current controversy agitating both houses - the proposal for a twenty-dollar across-the-board income tax cut. This has been passed by the House--denounced by the President -- and is now being argued by the Senate Finance Committee.

The Democrats calim this is overdue relief for the little fellow. Treasury Secretary Humphrey said today, it might cause inflation which would hurt the little fellow most. He said:"Let us always remember, it is not the rich who need protection from inflation; it is the little folks who suffer most when inflation takes hold." A mighty regard for the welfare of the "little fellow" invariably seizes both political parties in the year preceding a national election. Secretary Humphrey said this Administration advocates further tax cuts, but only at such times as we can see them justified by further cuts in spending, and increased revenues - to vote the twenty-dollar tax cut now, before we can afford it next year, is in his opinion "nothing but an irresponsible gesture."

Some Democrats content that the President promised a tax cut next year - he didn't, he merely said he hoped for one. And how long has it been since any President failed to hope for a tax cut. Naturally the Republicans would rather announce a tax cut next year, than have it forced on them by the Democrats. The Democrats contend that the big fellows got some tax relief last year, and now it's time that a "twenty-dollar gesture" be made to those in the lower income brackets. This is politics, and it is an traditional as kissing babies or boasting that the candidate has some sentimental or family relationship, however remote, in the state or city in which he is speaking.

There may be those on both sides of this argument who support or oppose the twenty-dollar tax cut, for what they believe to be sound fiscal or national reasons. But the figure that looms largest, the one that must be dominant in a politician's mind, is not twenty dollars but 1956. The problem is as old as Party elections. - to act in the Party's self-interest and simultaneously find a moral or financial reason for doing so.

It would be difficult for even the casual student of history to be surprised at the action of either the Democrats or Republicans. In their power positions were reversed, their policies might also be reversed. Probably the Democrats don't figure that they'll buy many votes in '56 with a twenty-dollar bill now; nor are the Republicans figuring that they'll buy very many with s similar tax cut in '56. But neither side can afford to let the other take the credit.

As of tonight ten would probably get you twenty that this tax reduction will not go through as passed by the House; for Senator George, Democrat of Georgia, has joined Senator Byrd of Virginia, Chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, in opposing it. He says he will vote to strike out the twenty--dollar provision. If a deadlock later developes between the House and Senate he may have some compromise suggestions to make. But Senator George has no compromise offer now. One compromise that has been discussed in Washington is that the tax cut should not take effect until July 1st, 1956; and that corporation and excise taxes would be extended until that date. Republican Senator Carlson of Kansas says this plan is "even more political than the original reduction voted by the House." Treasury Secretary Humphrey says this is merely a scheme for holding out tax relief with the idea it might be repealed. And then Mr. Humphrey uttered a sentence with which all but the most fearless prophet would agree. He said:"Neither you nor I know what the picutee is going to be like sixteen months from now."

If the picture alters drastically in that period, it is likely to be the result of external affairs. There is widespread agreement, or rather bi-partisan support for our foreign policy, and very little disposition to play domestic politics with that. The basic question that confronts us is not a tax reduction of twenty dollars a head, but whether we shall keep our heads.

This is Ed Murrow. I'll be back in a moment with the Word for Today. Now, here is Bob Dixon.

DIXON: COMMERCIAL

MURROW: The problem of high taxes is nothing new. Yet it still presents as great a problem to those in politics as it does to those who have to pay. As far back as 20 years ago, Will Rogers was moved to make this somewhat facetious observation: "When taxes first started, he said, Noah must have taken into the Ark two taxes; one male and one female - and did they multiply bountifully! Next to guinea pigs, taxes must have been the most prolific animals."

Good Night and Good Luck.